Fraternities, sororities: More coming to WSC?

What does the future hold for fraternities and sororities at Winona State College? And how will these societies bring about change?

Bonfire Friday gets homecoming celebration off to blazing start

Homecoming goes off to a blaze in a variety of ways, but the bulk of Sigma Tau Gamma lights a bonfire in the vacant lot between White and Powers halls.

The two-day celebration, filled with activity, will continue with the crowning of the queen elected earlier in the day by the student body.

The coronation will take place about 8 p.m. in Romney Hall.

Alumni give over $8,000 for center

Nearly $8,000 has been donated by alumni so far to help furnish the proposed student-alumni center.

Some of the money is deposited in savings accounts, but the bulk of it is in certificates of deposit.

Elmore alumni have contributed $5,000 since February. They are: Phyllis Sanden Hartle, Hattie Robbins, Clarice Jackson Smith, Wanda Hellickson, Vice president Bonnie Bladholm, freshman dorm council member.

HE ATTACKED this administration's weakness, he said: "To believe in weak federal government.

In contrast, the senator said, the Democratic party believes in a strong federal government, with in Constitutional bounds.

The GOP emphasizes efficiency, he pointed out, "but there's something else to government besides efficiency. The purpose of free government is social justice, to serve.

The Constitution has only two mandates, he said: "To provide common defense and to promote general welfare. "This administration has failed in both," he charged. "It has let the United States become weak compared with Russians, and it has little interest in social welfare.

The Constitution and the present administration has the same weakness," he said, "and the Republican party believes in free enterprise.

The public debt has increased to an all-time high, while the administration is judged to be successful.

He said the Eisenhower administration has never asked for large appropriations for foreign aid, and he had trouble spending the money. "A successful for-government is not predicated on an open checkbook. We must know where we're going. The United States cannot be a backer to South Americas, but a good neighbor.

An audience questioner wondered why President Eisenhower is not criticized more often, although other presidents have been. "Eisenhower is still popular and warmhearted," the senator said. "The people like him. If he were a candidate again, I probably would be re-elected."

The senator said he believes Vice-President Nixon would be "superior to Eisenhower as a leader of the government. Nixon is a student of politics and an able politician. I think this statement is sound like an endorsement for the Republican presidential candidate, he pointed out. Nixon added that he "agrees with the policies of Nixon."

"Eisenhower is superhuman," ran the key portion of the speech. "There have been MANY hammer-smashing members of the camp Young Republician Club who were in the student body who were not the presence of his opponents as well as he partly supports the Young Democrats."

"Everyone," he said, "deserves a good bite at a U.S. Senator."

Deep, golden presentation of "Dr. Faustus" Monday

By B. Allen Roth

Deeply dark and strange was the golden presentation of MacDermott's "Doctor Faustus" by the Cleveland Play House Monday night.

Students and faculty from Winona's three major colleges were served by the presence of the student body and were captivated by the deep insight into the minds of the characters. The audience was a mixture of students and faculty members, enabling the theatre to penetrate deep into the minds of the characters. Are Social fraternities the coming thing at WSC?

By Lee Zill

Within the past year, this college has become the first state college in Minnesota to get an organized national chapter of a fraternity on campus. Sigma Tau Gamma is probably an accomplished so far, but a lot can be said about the fact which few of our students have much information about the student of WSC to become more familiar with exactly what a fraternity or sorority, in this case, is all about. This WINONAN will try to clarify questions about what these organizations are, why they are, how they are organized, the expenses incurred, and finally, and most important, whether they are beneficial to the college and to the student. These articles also have been prepared because more and more representatives of various fraternities and sororities have been coming on this campus, and in turn, the college body to start chapters, and in due time, there may be several "fraternity" chapters on campus.

THE WINONAN feels that the chapter at WSC is one of the many expressing the basic principles of these groups before they join for the college. Sigma Tau Gamma was established with a small group, but when you read this page you may be of some help to students who are thinking about joining these organizations, and, we hope, give a clearer picture of what to expect.

However, before one reads about these various organizations one should go straight to the question of what they are. In American colleges, a fraternity is comprised of men only, and sororities similarly. An organization for social or serious purposes, preserving secrecy in its rites and constituting affiliated branches called chapters in different institutions. It commonly uses Greek letters designated chapter. Thus the name of the chapter is usually the name of the national chapter (for example, Sigma Tau Gamma). A sorority is organized in the same manner that it is set up for girls only.

Fraternity activities and sororities operate, may begin with the article on Sigma Tau Gamma.

At the present time, we are the only nationally — chartered social fraternity on campus. This fraternity is a sub-group of the national chapter of Sigma Tau Gamma, which will uphold the organization of a national chapter, will meet here Oct. 24 with membership is not done so as to maintain at least a C grade average, one man to allow of the招收 of any college student.

The size of this chapter is set at 45 active members, as recommended by the national organization. If an organization of Tau Kappa Epsilon becomes too large, it loses its classiness and unity. Limiting our membership is not done so as to become a clique. It is necessary for us to keep our class feeling of brotherhood.

All men wishing to become members must go through a pledge period. During this period, he will be given no task which will seriously interfere with his school work.

Present are 22 active members in Beta Xi chapter.

There will be a rush for new men members, and a list will be placed on the Tau Kappa Epsilon bulletin board. All interested men can sign if they would like to visit a meeting of Sigma Tau Gamma.

Players to present with trial play, Miller's 'Crucible'.

The Winona Players' fall production, "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller, will be presented the second week in November in the armory theater under the direction of Miss Dorothy B. Magnus.

"The Crucible," a drama of New England colonial days, is based on the Salem witch trials. In his day and his time, the characters in the play are historical accounts. Miller is credited with being our most important social dramatist of the legitimate theatre. He has the ability to write with narrative skill and vigorous dramatic power.

"The Crucible!" received the American Plays Award for distinguished contribution to the theater and was runner up in the New York Drama Critics Circle selection for the best new American play of 1953.

NEA convention lets students test, not teachers.

Two days of vacation for students at Winona State College could mean nothing to the students if there is no time off for the teachers.

Approximately 27,000 teachers throughout the state will meet at Minneapolis and St. Paul for the convention of the National Education Association.

With the long list of college classes, all students will be among the 150 exhibitors in the convention. Mrs. Helen Sakow, chairman of Maine and Mr. James Speer in charge of WSC's booth, students from SNEA will assist.

One highlight at the convention will be "I'm Dying," a drama, scheduled to open at the Continental Ballroom of Hotel St. Paul from 4 to 5:50 p.m. Oct. 20.
