To the students of Winona State:

At this time, I would like to annouce my candidacy for the office of President of the Winona State College Student Senate. In so doing, I feel it is imperative to inform you, the students, of things which I believe can and should be accomplished by any student governmental organization. In so doing, I want to tell you that I have tried to remain cognizant of the office of President, its duties, its obligations, and its ramifications.

In seeking any elective office, a candidate should be aware that he represents everyone, not himself. I feel that I am capable of offering that representation, and, in so doing, I pledge to strive for the betterment of the Winona State student body. Any election has its campaign promises, however, these are not always precise. Thus at this time, I wish to present the following, non-generalized, goals that I firmly believe if reached will better this institution.

At present, the Winona State Student Senate President receives remuneration from the Student Activity Fund in order to freely provide him with tuition and books for the year he is in office. I do not feel that this is a necessity. If I am elected, I shall refuse to accept any financial stipend for holding the office, for I feel that money can be better utilized in another manner. In order to generate and keep interest in student government without financial stipends, I shall work toward establishing some type of academic credit for the officers and senators who represent the students on this campus.

If I am elected, I pledge to institute a survey that would reveal the classes you, the students, have been delayed in due to flooding or cancellation at registration time. In so doing, I would present the results of this survey to the college administration in hopes that they would consider expanding present class offerings.

If I am elected, I pledge to initiate regularly scheduled sessions that would enable the students, to air any complaints you might have regarding the institution. I am not referring to a “wind-up” type procedure, rather, one at which I would preside, so that your complaints are not only heard, something is done about them.

If I am elected, I pledge to work toward the formulation of a streamlined judicial system for this campus that would give the students the right to try anyone that might violate the rules and regulations of this campus.

If I am elected, I pledge to have the Student Senate undertake internal reconstruction as well as a yearly project in a broad interest area that would benefit the entire institution, and hopefully, perhaps the city.

In the more generalized vein, there are certain principles that should be adhered to. Above all the institution must be of prime concern; and the high ideal that the student does have certain individual rights must be sought. If I am elected, I pledge to strive for one common principle in which I feel we all must be united; the principle of betterment.

If I am elected, I promise to bring to the office of Student Senate President an earnest desire to perform my duties efficiently and honorably. I am not a person that is fighting for results rather than causes. I am fighting for both. With your assistance, I feel that I can achieve those aforementioned goals, and in so doing the Winona State Student Senate in the future will be able to carry on with dignity and confidence. With your cooperation as the student electorate, I am sure that there will be an outcome which is characterized by success.

Sincerely,
Mark Nolan

Humphries states SS qualifications

As students of this institution we have many realizations to meet. WSC is growing in leaps and bounds and believe it or not is doing it coherently. But even with coherence of growth comes problems. Problems of students relations to the administration, the administration to the community, the latter two with the state government. This is where my platform lies as far as Student Senator President.

I believe that our past and intimate acquaintances with the people, business men, and government of Winona and close friends in the state government can help draw a closer bond where we're concerned.

What about other student problems? Housing, union fees, registration -- these are problems that have been realized but it takes time and many people to work them out. Let's work them out together.

Arthur A. Humphries

Dunlap stresses student ideas

It is my wish to get as many students as possible involved in the action of student government so as to make them aware of what is going on around the campus. My platform stands mainly on the ideas and the student and if elected will try to put them in reality. I am not a person of many promises, but I will work for the betterment of the school and student body. One thing I can promise, however, is a student director.

Tom Dunlap

Candidate biographies presented

As the filing for student senate candidacy ended, a sparsity of candidates for the other offices, but for the position of president three aspirants appeared, their qualifications in hand.

Arthur Humphries is a junior in good standing at Winona State College, a past Tri-College representative at the Winona County Republican Campaign Committee, and a speech major with a physical education minor. He was an orientation team leader, and presently his other regular activities include membership in the Winona State Speech Association, participation in drama as a Winonah Player, and serving as a volunteer with KAGK Winona Radio.

The record of presidential hopeful is Mark Nolan, a political science and speech major, and a past president of the Winonan. Mark was a government intern to the University of Minnesota, and is a past representative to the student senate, residence hall government, and a past member of the Union Program Council and chairman of the University of Minnesota Board of Directors. Currently serving as president of the St. Olaf Residence Hall Council, he is also a member of the housing committee and president of Pi Kappa Delta.

Third on the ballot for the presidency is Tom Dunlap, political science and history major at Winona State, student body president of the Winonan last spring getting the newly elected student body president of the Winonan staff about the accomplishments of the Senate since he took over as leader of the Senators last spring, replacing Tom Dalton. At that time, faculty-senate communications was the subject being considered by the Senate. Dunlap explained that this is still a never ending job, but the Committee on Communications has apparently made significant progress here. "It isn't quite as much of a problem any more," said Dunlap. He explained that information vital to the family and senate was communicated by "word of mouth in the past," but that since last spring information has passed smoothly.

Much time was spent last spring getting the newly elected senators oriented and getting the organization in working order after the election interception. An investigation was made into the housing situation for off campus students but it "wasn't a great success," said Dunlap. A spread was run in the Winona last spring depicting the living conditions of several off campus apartment houses. For the last month, several members of the Senate have been lacking into the possibility of doing something for

Next Tuesday, the students of Winona State will determine who is to be their student leader for the next year by choosing a new Student Senate President.

For many years, the Student Senate President has been the one who held the title of Student Senate President. The office was created in the early 1970s, when the state legislature passed a law allowing higher education institutions to establish a student government. The Student Senate President is elected by the students of the university and serves as the official representative of the student body to the administration.

The position of Student Senate President is a significant one, as the president is responsible for a number of important duties. These duties include representing the student body in negotiations with the administration, serving as a liaison between the student body and the university, and overseeing the Student Senate.

In recent years, the Student Senate President has become increasingly involved in campus affairs. This involvement has included participating in decision-making processes, representing the student body in university-wide planning, and overseeing the Student Senate.

The Student Senate President is also responsible for overseeing the Student Senate, which is made up of elected student representatives from each of the university's colleges. The Student Senate is responsible for decision-making on a wide range of issues, including student policies, campus facilities, and student budgets.

In conclusion, the Student Senate President is a key figure in the governance of Winona State University. The position is important not only for the students who are elected to serve in it, but also for the broader university community. The Student Senate President plays a critical role in ensuring that the student voice is heard in the decision-making processes of the university.

the off-campus student. "Students are being discriminated against," said Gorman, and this is the point on which the Senate is focusing its attention at the moment. A Senate Union proposal is being considered by the Senate which would cause the city to pass an ordinance forbidding discrimination against students.

Gorman explained that the Senate had already passed an ordinance for campus social events such as Homecoming and Campus Cover Girl. He added that he thought that the other groups that had handled this type of activity had done a fine job and that he didn’t think that it was the job of the Senate to handle such activities.

The Senate sponsored the October War Montario and Gorman said he felt reaction was favorable and the venture a success.

The Minnesota State College Student Association provides a real force in influencing the State College Board, the Chancellor, and the legislature. Sen. John Gorman, and Gorman has emphasized Winona State’s participation at its regular meetings. He explained that it is a powerful force in passing legislation which affects the entire State College system. Gorman said that he is concerned that the Senate, Students, and faculty are involved in the April 8-9 events.

Formerly the Independent Theater, the group is a student effort to provide more exposure in theater for students. It operates without faculty supervision.

For its second production, the theater presented three performances: "The Innocent Comedy," by Karel and Josef Kapek, directed by David Breuninger; "A Progression of Micro Plays" directed by Beth Fratzke and "Not Enough Hope" by Elaine May, directed by Becky Bell.

Admission to the production was an item or idea, written down, which may aid the group in future productions.

Next quarter the theater plans to present a three-act melodrama.

Short handed swimmers capture second place

by Rick Krueger

Winona swimmers may have been short-handed for the Northern Intercollegiate Conference Meet, considering they lacked seven members needed to have a full squad — but they more than compensated for it with desire and conditioning as they captured second place in the annual event. The swimming Warriors suffered serious setbacks after Christmas this past season, when for numerous reasons, the team was whittled away from about 35 members down to 14. Being inadequate in numbers had its effects during the season, and the swimmers dual meet record ended with the team losing two more meets than they won. With all that as history, the swimmers went into the Conference Meet determined to redeem themselves and make the best of things.

The enthusiasm and spirit evidenced on the Winona Bench throughout the entire two day conference meet was proof enough that the team was ready mentally. The mental fitness progressed as they carried the physical conditioning. The team that had worked so diligently all year to exhibit. It is interesting to note that the St. Cloud team who had defeated Winona in a dual meet, and who had a full squad present had to settle for third place in the final conference ratings at the conclusion of the meet, and only Remzi was capable of finishing in front of Winona. Adequately the measts most spectacular swimmer was Winona's co-captain Rog Ertel. who captured three individual first places and set two conference records doing it. A Remzi swimmer, Randy Riegle, was the only other swimmer to capture three individual first places, however, he broke no records.

Rog set records in the 220 and 440 yard individual medleys, and then won his way to first in the 185 yard freestyle — a grueling 60-length race in which the closest swimmer to Rog finished over four lengths behind. The only other Conference champ on the Winona team was its other co-captain, Bob Bailey, who finished first in the 100 yard butterfly. Another outstanding swimming star on the Winona Bench was Brian Rudel who gave the team a large number of points by placing second in three individual events.

Every member of the team placed in the finals in at least two different events — thus earning team effort which was more than gratifying. The jubilee displayed by the Winona team when the announcement came over the loudspeaker that they had taken second place in the IC truly proved that their efforts were more than worth while.

Traditionally, the graduating seniors on the Winona State Swim Team are honorably recognized. For five years of service to the team at the last home dual meet of the year. Unfortunately, this past season, the last home dual meet was cancelled with almost no previous notice — thereby preventing this year's seniors an opportunity to pay tribute to the outstanding services rendered by their only senior. Jon Duck. The team therefore would like to publically thank Jim for his dedication to the sport and contributions to the team during his swimming career at Winona State.

Congratulations to all the girls who participated in the first Women's Extramural Gymnastics Team.

On the intramural side, intramural basketball tournaments started on Wednesday, March 2. Teams participating in the tournament are: Red Sea, On Potte Fills, Dicky Bubblers, Mary Ann's Mart, Millie's Moderns and Winona's Natives.

The apparatus room is open to all women on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 p.m. Come and work on the floor which is equipped.
