STATE GIVES MONEY FOR SHEPPARD HALL, $3,000 FOR FIELD

West Lodge to Go Next

The New Normal school's building is now being investigated for a possible extension. The cottage against the fence is the only part of the building.

For the Sectional Playoffs, Men who may be recruited for the team will be able to win a couple of games. The boys have been working hard for the season, and they should get away from the idea of just being a part of the team. The students merely want to see what they can accomplish on their own.

To say after this that the students have won a third building where West Lodge is located. The brick for building purposes, the cement are estimated at $22,500. Need- ing a third building is only one of the reasons girls in the dormitories are objetoive. The building will include a third floor where the girls can have their own space. It shouldered responsibilities that the school shouldered a great responsibility for safe living conditions.

MISS SUTHERLAND WILL ADDRESS MOTHER'S CLUB

Miss Sutherland was born in 1885 and has been active in the Women's Club for many years. She has been a great supporter of the club and has contributed greatly to its success.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1920

The victory over Shattuck showed that the students were ready for a challenge. The Normal school has played its fair share of games in the past and has not been able to show the rest of the world that they could win. It was up to us to put forth our best effort and show that we could win.

Model School Kiddies Falling With Autumn

The Model School held a fall fair on Friday, October 30th. The fair was a success, and the girls were able to sell many of the items they had created.

The fair was a great way for the girls to show off their talents and raise money for the school. The fair was a great success, and the girls were able to sell many of the items they had created.

LIVESTOCK AND AGRICULTURE

What the American Farm Bureau Federation Says

NEW RURAL LIFE MUST AFFORD BETTER WAGES AND MORE RECREATION

Country life can be made attractive and competitive with city life. There is no reason why a farmer should be at a disadvantage in getting a job. His life should be personally satisfactory.

The new farm life will provide for better wages, better educational facilities, better housing, and more recreation. It will be made more attractive by up-to-date methods; steps will be taken to furnish better mental and social aids; the rural man will make more money than the city man.

Although the urban populations need more food for their increased numbers, a broad educational program is necessary to utilize the matter of populating agriculture and country life for all times. Such a move, if it is to be effective, must be continued constantly, giving due consideration to each and every group and class that makes up this new movement.

New Rural Life Made Attractive

Country life need not be restricted to competitive times. We must in our contacts with people and business make it clear that there is a choice on a more attractive and higher plane along constructive lines. We must interest ourselves with putting rural life on a more attractive and higher plane.

Advantages of Rural Life

There are very real advantages of the rural life. The country that turns to the city has no more advantages of free life. In city life, one has never been able to spend as much time as is possible for the young man.

The city that turns from the rural life to the city has no more advantage, and the city that turns back to the rural life is the only one that is truly advancing. With the fact that farm labor is in scarce supply, and with the city being the center of the metropolis, there is little chance for the city to recover.

Country life makes for physical and mental strength—city is the ground of our national energy. In the final analysis, the farmer has the upper hand. Agriculture is the most stable of all industries. Wages are steady, prices may vary, but the farmer never goes hungry.

Agriculture As a Business

Countries, cities, churches, and the country, the city, the factory, and the shop—these are the jobs. They make it possible for the young man to give up the ideal of a city life and seek to live happily.

There is little chance for the city to recover. Artists, writers, and the like are leaving the city to seek a new home in the city.

The city in the city is a city that is seeking to make more money in its own way. The city is an idea that is seeking to make more money in its own way. The city is an idea that is seeking to make more money in its own way.

The city is a city that is seeking to make more money in its own way. The city is a city that is seeking to make more money in its own way.

 Farmers are Urged to Hold Wheat and Cotton for Advance Prices

President of National Union De- clares That It is Remedy for Poor Prices

Washington, D. C.—Holding of wheat and cotton for higher prices, urged by Charles F. S. Redding, President National Farmers' Union, and providing officer at the conference of farm organizations held at the Agricultural Extension Congress.

"Hold your wheat and cotton," said Mr. Redding. "The city man is only one of the farmers. For every disadvantage of farm life there are innumerable advantages. There is peace in the country.
