Conrad Flies to Paris Non-Stop

Max Conrad, 49-year-old Winona, Minn., pilot, waves from the step of his twin-engine Piper plane on arrival at an airport near Paris Sunday, after a non-stop transatlantic flight from New York in the light plane. Conrad made the crossing in 22 hours, 23 minutes, in the plane which had been equipped with extra fuel tanks. PARIS—A 49-year-old Winona, Minn., native, father of 10 children, landed his Piper Apache plane here Sunday after a non-stop solo flight of 22 hours and 23 minutes from New York.

Max Conrad flew the route pioneered by Charles A. Lindbergh on $102 worth of gasoline. He set out from Idlewild Airport at New York with 370 gallons and had 70 left when he came down.

He had flown about 3,600 miles. Conrad ferried the twin engine, all-metal, four-place Apache across the Atlantic for delivery in Europe.

Aviation records indicated it was the first non-stop crossing in a plane of such low horsepower—300—since Lindbergh did it in the Spirit of St. Louis with 220 horsepower in 1927.

"The plane behaved beautifully," Conrad said. "There were no incidents."

"I feel fine. I'm not sleepy, just excited. I'm trying to look on it as just a routine flight."

"I didn't eat anything all the way. It's better if you want to stay awake.

"The worst part was the long night at 11,000 feet. It was mighty cold. I had a gasoline heater, but I didn't want to waste fuel that I might need later, so I just bundled up in warm clothing."

"It was only a bit off course, because of two slight storms and high winds. There was one bad patch of snow and ice. I saw three other planes, but no ships."

"I brought a harmonica with me hoping to have a chance to compose some music while flying across the ocean. But there was no time for anything like that."

"I had brought along a grapefruit, hoping to eat it, but it rolled out of reach and I was unable to get it."

About 200 persons crowded about the plane when it rolled to a stop. Conrad, stubble-bearded and rubbing his eyes, waved as he climbed out. He peeled off his flying clothes and headed for the airport restaurant, where he downed a bowl of soup.

This was his fifth transatlantic flight, but he always had stopped on the way.

The flier said he would return to the United States by ship.

He made the crossing to deliver the plane to a French purchaser and to arouse interest among young people in flying.

Conrad, father of 10 children, nonchalantly bounced a grapefruit in his hand, all that was left of the slim provisions of toast, fruit and soft drinks with which he started out from New York's Idlewild Airport at 11:27 a.m. Saturday. He landed at Toussus le Noble Air Field near here at 3:50 p.m. (9:50 a.m. EST). It was his first nonstop flight across the Atlantic in a light plane.

Carried Extra Gas

The plane has a normal capacity of four passengers. Some of this space had to be used to store extra gasoline. Special tanks holding 300 gallons and 72-gallon wing tanks gave the craft a 25-hour range.

Hurrying indoors out of the light rain that greeted him, Conrad sipped champagne while describing his flight as uneventful.

He was met here by Robert Goemans, aircraft representative who accepted delivery of the plane. Goemans also had a bottle of champagne ready for the traditional Paris welcome.

"Now I'm going to eat before

Senate McCarthy Session Opens

TODAY Davies Urged Preventative War on Reds

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON—The most interesting single fact about the case of John Paton Davies may be simply stated. In his person, the only senior American official who has ever officially advocated preventive war with the Soviet Union has been ruled a "security risk."

Davies, then a member of the State Department's policy planning staff, produced a remarkable policy paper early in 1950. The Davies paper pointed out that the situation of the United States would become intolerably dangerous after the Soviets had accumulated a decisive stock of the absolute weapons.

This situation, the Davies paper reasoned, must not be allowed to arise. If necessary, "preventive action" must be taken to prevent its arising, while a decisive atomic advantage still lay with the United States.

Most people think of a "security risk" as a man who is, at the very least, "soft" on Communism. This is what they have been taught to think by the clever politicians who invented the phrase "security risk." So now the vaunted security system has "ferreted out" a man so soft on Communism that he has advocated preventive war with the Soviet Union. Someday, perhaps, it will be possible to laugh at this sort of nonsense.

Views Changed
It is true, of course, that Davies' present position represents a considerable evolution from his political views when he was in China in wartime. On this point, one of these reporters can speak with authority, since he was one of Davies' main antagonists in the backroom battles in wartime Chungking.

Because of this background, the reporter was called to testify before the Loyalty Board which sat on the Davies case. It was a remarkable experience. For several

Senator Terms Procedure 'Lynching Bee'

By ED CREAUGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate meets in extraordinary session today to consider censuring Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), the first such session ever held.

McCarthy, calling the whole procedure a "lynching bee," predicts a combination of Democrats and "so-called liberal" Republicans will carry the day against him.

"They have plenty of votes," he said in a televised interview in which he blamed campaign tactics of President Eisenhower, among other GOP leaders, for the loss of Congress to the Democrats in last Tuesday's election.

The Senate, in recess since mid-August, comes back to weigh charges that McCarthy is guilty of contempt of the Senate and of abusive treatment of an Army general who appeared before his investigations subcommittee. It is the first time in 25 years that a senator has been brought up before his colleagues on censure charges. In the nation's history only three senators have been formally censured.

The Senate does not expect to start actual debate on the censure move until Wednesday.

Today's opening session was to be brief and formal, with tomorrow's devoted to eulogies of members who have died since the Senate last met.

Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) called his special committee which recommended censure together today to work out the final wording of the censure resolution.

McCarthy has said he will not defend himself against the charges but will speak at length to inform the public on the issues.

The Watkins committee was composed of three Republican and three Democratic senators. McCarthy, in yesterday's TV appearance, repeated his charges that three of the six were prejudiced against him. He called the committee's unanimous report "silly."

"Despite such instances of provocation as that which took place yesterday (sic) off the coast of Japan, the specter of war looms less threateningly over all mankind."

The President said that the quest for an "enduring and lasting" peace "must be the overriding goal of our foreign policy."

Addressing a capacity audience in the 3,000-seat Boston Symphony Hall, the President again voiced hope that his "atoms for peace" proposal will open a "new phase" of United States relations with Russia.

"To attain . . . enduring peace must ever be the goal of our foreign policy," he said.

He received a rousing, standing ovation at the start of his address.

Eisenhower flew here from Washington and was greeted warmly by big crowds which turned out along the 3 1/2-mile route from Logan Airport.

Departing from his text at one point, Eisenhower declared that "if American mothers will teach their children there is no real alternative to peace, we shall have peace."

The chief executive sounded a call for better relations between nations.

Eisenhower declared: "It is not paradoxical in our peaceful efforts that we maintain powerful military forces. For in a world partly dominated by men who respect only guns, planes and tanks, these weapons are essential to our survival."

The President noted he was speaking on the 12th anniversary of the landing of the first American troops in North Africa during World War II.

"As we look back on that day, and on the most terrible war in human history, we again resolve that there must never be another war," Eisenhower declared.

Hopes Bright For Peace, Ike Declares

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

BOSTON (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today "the specter of war looms less threateningly" than in a long time "despite the instance of provocation" stemming from the shooting down of an American plane by Russian-built fighter craft.

A U.S. Air Force photo mapping plane was shot down by two Russian built MIG-type fighter planes Saturday, according to an Air Force announcement.

Departing from his text in addressing the 27th convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, the President said, after declaring the prospects for an enduring and lasting peace are the brightest in years.

10 of Crew Saved, One Man Perishes

TOKYO (AP)—Ten U. S. airmen, rescued after an attack by two Russian jet fighters, charged angrily today that the Reds pounced without warning on a U.S. photo plane mapping northern Japan and shot it down in flames Sunday.

The 10 men parachuted to safety moments before their big four-engine RB29 smashed into a house in northern Hokkaido, a few miles from the Russian-held Kurile Islands. An 11th crewman drowned in the sea after bailing out.

Today, in Tokyo, Capt. Anthony F. Feith, the plane's skipper, told a news conference that his plane was "never closer than 15 miles" to Russian territory.

The name of the crewman who drowned was withheld.

Asked why since his plane was armed he didn't return the fire, Feith said "I would have liked to." But he said his first thought was to complete the photo mission.

Not Criticizing

His group commander, Col. Albert Welsh, said Feith was not to be criticized.

"I would compliment before I would criticize," Welsh said.

Welsh said plane commanders have standing instructions "to fire if fired upon," but added "there must have been some misunderstanding (in this case)." However, Welsh warned that attacking planes will get "a different reception in any future incidents of this kind."

Feith told newsmen he radioed for help and learned later that U.S. fighters were in the area within moments—even before all the parachutes hit the ground.

In Washington, the State Department said it was protesting the incident to Moscow.

In Tokyo, Gen. John E. Hull, U. S. Far East commander, said the direction of the crippled plane's fall "completely negates" any possible Soviet claim that the plane was over Russian territory. He accused the Russians of a "piratical" attack.

Gov. Umstead Of N. Carolina Dies at Durham

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Gov. William B. Umstead, 59, who had been ill since he took office less than two years ago, died in Watts Hospital here yesterday. He suffered heart trouble and pneumonia.

Umstead, a life-long Democrat, had served as U. S. representative and senator and was elected governor in 1952.

He will be succeeded by Luther H. Hodges, 56, elected lieutenant governor in 1952 in his first political venture.

Hodges, a former vice president of Marshall Field Co., will be sworn in tomorrow.

Umstead had been in poor health since suffering a heart attack Jan. 8, 1953, two days after his inauguration as governor. He was readmitted to Watts Hospital in Durham Thursday with a severe cold.

His wife and 12-year-old daughter Merle Bradley were at the bedside when death came at 9:10 a.m. Death was due to congestive heart failure and bronchial pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Durham.

Umstead was a U. S. representative from 1932-1938 when Congress enacted much of President Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal into law.

Gas Kills Ten in New York Tenement

NEW YORK (AP)—Ten persons, including six children, were killed yesterday by fumes from a faulty gas water heater in a crowded tenement apartment.

The tragedy brought city officials to the scene. They opened a thorough investigation and the health commissioner advised a city wide drive to avoid similar deaths in the future.

Found dead early yesterday were a family of eight and two guests who had come for a baptismal celebration the next day.

The victims were Edubergs Gonzales, 33; his wife Victoria, 29; their six children; Domingo Motos, 31, and his wife, 27.

The youngest Gonzales child, a 4-month-old girl, was to be baptized yesterday, neighbors said, and was taken dead from her bed already dressed in her pink baptismal gown.

The Motos had spent the night in the Gonzales home after a pre-baptism party. Orphaned by the tragedy were their own three sons, aged 4 to 8, who had stayed elsewhere with relatives.

Two windows in the three-room apartment were open but there was not enough ventilation to remove the gases. One city official said enough carbon monoxide had been formed to "kill off an entire squadron of men in half an hour."

Asst. Health Commissioner Jerome Trichter said gas pressure in the apartment pipes was too high and could have caused the heater to function improperly.

The apartment is west of Times Square in a slum district known as Hell's Kitchen. Like many others in the area, it is a cold water flat in which no heat or hot water is provided by the landlord. Tenants usually use gas and kerosene heaters.

The 10 deaths were discovered by a neighbor who saw smoke curling from under the Gonzales door. This came from the smoldering handle of a mop that had fallen against the heater and added to the choking fumes. The appliance was immediately turned off and the victims removed. Efforts to revive them were futile.

Dr. Leona Baumgartner, city health commissioner, went to the scene, saying she wanted her department to get "all the facts" in the case. She said she would recommend a "citywide, all-out attack on this problem."

The Health Department said that so far this year 10 other persons have been killed in the city in separate but similar accidents.

Death of Man In Submerged Auto Probed

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—Authorities today continued their investigation into the death of a man whose body was found in an auto at the bottom of a river here Saturday.

The body was identified as that of Howard George, 68, a former convict, who had lived at Lena, Wis.

Police Sunday questioned an unidentified Green Bay woman in hope that she might have information on George's activities just before his death. But the woman told police she knew George only slightly and hadn't seen him since October.

George's body was found in a car submerged in 23 feet of water in the Fox River. It was identified by a married daughter. George's former wife, from whom he was divorced in 1938, still resides in Lena.

1st Veterans Day Thursday

The nation will observe its first Veterans Day Thursday, Nov. 11. Name of the day was changed from Armistice Day to Veterans Day by the 83rd Congress. Until now the Nov. 11 celebration has marked the end of World War I, but now it is intended as a symbolical day for the end of all wars.

In many communities, the day will be the occasion for naturalization ceremonies. That is occurring on this day because Citizenship Day (1st American Day) has been shifted to Sept. 17, formerly known as Constitution Day, but no naturalization ceremonies were scheduled that day because the U.S. attorney general ruled that naturalization cannot be granted during the 60-day period immediately preceding an election.

In WINONA the public ceremonies will be brief. Leon J. Wetzel Post 9, American Legion, assisted by the Marine Corps League, will fire a salute to the dead at 3rd and Center streets at 11 a.m. A program will be presented at the Winona Senior High School auditorium at 1:40 p.m. by the school. The Legion post and auxiliary will serve a free sauerkraut and wiener dinner to their members and their families from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The Marine Corps League will have a dinner party the previous evening—Wednesday—at Swede's Bar-Hall. That is the Marine Corps birthday.

At 10 a.m. there'll be a Veterans Day Mass at the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, with the Most Rev. Edward A. Fitzgerald, bishop of Diocese of Winona, as celebrant.

AS on former Armistice Days, all Winona city, county, state and federal offices and banks will be closed. There will be no mail delivery anywhere. It is a legal holiday in Minnesota.

Mrs. Rivers, 76, In Good Condition At Winona Hospital

ROLLINGSTONE, Minn. — Mrs. Elizabeth Rivers, 76, today was reported to be in good condition at the Winona General Hospital where she is receiving treatment for injuries suffered in a traffic accident here at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Rivers was riding in a car driven by her son, Arnold Rivers, Rollingstone, when it was involved in the collision with a car driven by Merton Stos, La Crosse, on Highway 248 near the north outskirts of the village.

Mrs. Rivers suffered a severe cheek cut in the mishap. Also taken to the hospital was Mrs. Stos, 24, who was released after receiving first aid treatment for a forehead cut.

Sheriff George Fort, who investigated the accident with Deputy Clarence McElmury, found that Rivers was driving east and Stos west on the highway when the accident occurred.

Sheriff Fort said that Stos was beginning to make a left turn when the cars collided.

His report shows that chattel mortgages and real estate fees $4,516.30.

The board authorized an appropriation of $2,000 for repair work at the courthouse and jail. Louis Gardipee, 2nd Ward here, spoke about proposed improvements at Hatfield. Clark county officers are anxious to have Jackson County join them in improving recreational facilities in that area, he said. Re-elected to serve on the highway committee were Walter Hart, Irving; Edwin Peterson, Northfield; and Mahlon Slegel, Manchester.

New Trial Motion Denied Overbye

A motion for a new trial in two damage suits tried in District Court here last month has been denied by Judge Karl Finkelnberg. The motion was made after a District Court jury Oct. 8 returned verdicts awarding damages totaling $5,208 to James Moger, 509 Center St., and his son, Lyle, in their actions against Joseph Overbye, Minneapolis, for injuries allegedly suffered by Lyle in an automobile accident involving a car driven by Overbye near Preston Aug. 9, 1953.

The Moger were represented by Martin A. Beatty and Overbye by the firm of George, Brehmer & McMahon.

Attorneys for Overbye moved for a new trial on grounds that the verdicts were not justified by the evidence, that the damages were excessive and that the court erred in his instructions to the jury in saying that it might find for the plaintiff if it determined that a lack of brace he wore during treatment of an accident injury was responsible for a tie he later developed.

Attorneys argued the motion before the court and a brief was filed by attorneys for the defendant.

The judgment of the group imposed loss of bicycle use privileges ranging from one week to a month for 11 members of the class.

The sheriff said that he and his deputies will make regular patrols of all areas of the county and that anyone found violating beer and liquor regulations will be arrested and prosecuted.

UCT Opposing Athletic Ban

Opposition to a recent recommendation by the Minnesota State High School League for discontinuance of organized athletic competition for children below the 9th grade was expressed by Winona Council 69, United Commercial Travelers, at its meeting here Saturday night.

The matter was brought to the attention of the council as a result of publicity given to the action of a high school league committee on its recommendation which will be presented to the league's delegate assembly next month.

Council members noted that the recommendation, if adopted, would sharply curtail the youth sports program now carried on by the Park-Recreation Board and similar activities for school-age children. Several members of the Winona UCT group said Saturday that if there are faults in the present program they should be corrected individually without discarding the over-all program.

Opposition to the recommendation is to be pressed through the statewide organization of the UCT. Plans also were made Saturday for the safety poster contest which is to be sponsored jointly by the Winona council, the American Automobile Association and the Automobile Club Safety Council.

All public and parochial school students under 19 are eligible for the contest. Local winners' entries will be sent to state and national contests.

Arrangements were made for the council's annual ladies night banquet Dec. 4.

Let's Get Another Almanac

If the "Old Farmer's Almanac" maintains its record of accurately forecasting the weather, Winona should be in for quite a winter.

Indian summer was predicted for Saturday through Thursday after last week's cold wave, and the weatherman's weekend report verified that prognostication.

The high temperature was a balmy 68 Sunday afternoon while the mercury reached a low of 33 degrees Saturday afternoon. Tonight, the temperature is expected to hit a low of 28, according to the federal forecaster, with generally fair weather to continue through Tuesday with a high of 56 forecast.

Looking ahead to 1955, the almanac predicts "Full storm and high tides while a pale moon hides" for Jan. 1 to 10 with weather that is "Not nice for men" the next four days.

From Jan. 15 to 20 it will be "Still colder and bolder" and the last 11 days of the month will include "Thaws a while, but don't smile, it storms begorrah today and tomorrow."

February will open with heavy snows through the first 11 days, as the lyricist says, "No lounge lizard will enjoy this blizzard," while some relief is in sight through Feb. 21 when it will be "Clear and fair, hitch up the old mare."

Traditional March winds will arrive at the end of February, according to the almanac, which predicts "High winds (will) prevail, perhaps a 'ale,' after Washington's birthday."

But the high winds probably won't end the winter, as the almanac continues for the first part of March 1955: "More snow we reason, the last big one this season," and "To add to your woes, a cold wind blows" through March 18.

This, however, should be the end of the winter season, according to the predictions of Robert E. Thomsen, who said that from March 21 to the end of the month, "Thaws now bring the buds, while rains cause bad floods."

Boy Sought After Roughhouse at Pajama Party

MINNEAPOLIS — A 16-year-old Robbinsdale boy was sought by police today for questioning as the ring leader of six boys who crashed a teenage girls pajama party Saturday night, roughing up a grandmother-chaperone and causing extensive damage to the home. Those boys, uninvited to the party at 1700 37th Ave. N.E., Minneapolis, ripped a gas pipe from the wall, smashed windows, broke phonograph records and splattered eggs on the walls.

Mrs. Marie Cotie, 56, 40 Penn Av., S., the chaperone, was taken to St. Barnabas Hospital suffering shock after she was slammed against a wall during the melee. Mrs. Cotie was chaperoning the party given by her granddaughter, Kay Holloway, 16, for five of her girl friends. The girls said some of the boys had been drinking.

U Regents to Ask Legislative Study

MINNEAPOLIS — The University of Minnesota board of regents will request the 1955 Legislature to set up a special joint committee or commission to study the institution's needs, President J. L. Morrill said here Saturday. Dr. Morrill told a Dad's Day audience the regents believe problems of a growing enrollment are so grave that a legislative group should examine possibilities of a larger staff and more space, and report to the 1957 Legislature.

Within 10 years the enrollment will be at least 24,000, he predicted, and possibly as high as 27,000. The current freshman class is 10 per cent larger than last year's.

France Keeps U.N. Debate on Atoms Rolling

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—France kept the debate on President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace program rolling in the U. N. Assembly today as delegates studied a new seven-power resolution designed to make the program effective.

The resolution was put into the Assembly hopper over the weekend by the United States and six other countries already negotiating to set up an international atomic energy agency. They are Britain, Canada, Belgium, France, Australia and South Africa.

There was no indication when the Soviet Union would reply to invitations to join the agency, extended by President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and U. N. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. Delegates expect Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign minister, to demand Red China's inclusion in the list of countries invited to send scientists to an international congress on the peaceful use of atomic energy. The resolution calls for the U. N. to summon the scientific congress before August 1955.

The resolution provides that delegates to the congress would come from members of the U. N. and the specialized agencies, the latter including some Iron Curtain countries not members of the U. N. This aroused some speculation that it might open a door to Red China, which in 1951 voted membership in the Universal Postal Union, the only specialized agency to which the Chinese Reds have gained admittance.

When reporters pointed this out to the U. S. delegation Saturday night, the resolution was withdrawn hastily for a check but later was reinstated.

Fred Allen Already Making Money on Book

NEW YORK—Fred Allen's already getting rich on his new book. Reader's Digest paid him $10 for a joke, and the Wm. Morris Agency took out a $1 commission—net profit already, 9 bucks!

"The brain trust of one big political party met to try to humanize one of its leading figures," reports Leonard Levinson. "It had to adjourn—it came to the conclusion he wasn't human."

Cleveland's lovely Joan Diener of "Kismet" has had a couple of dates with Aly Khan—who saw the last 10 minutes of her show last spring (he arrived a little late). Joan admitted it when I asked her, adding, "But it'd be nice if you said nothing about it. Poor guy! He's awfully nice, and people are always taking advantage of him to get publicity." Joan also told me she isn't the gal for whom he recently bought a mink coat. "I have my own mink coat and mink stole," Joan said, adding, "But I bought 'em myself!"

I asked James A. Farley if he thought pre-election polls were accurate. "When you're on the wrong side," he said, "they're too darned accurate!" Farley, by the way, is in constant touch with ex-Veeep John Nance Garner down in Uvalde, Texas. He'll be 85 on Nov. 22—and is sure he'll live to be at least 93.

"The way things are going now," says Jackie Gleason, "Frank Sinatra's gotta wind up with Marilyn Monroe." Jack Paar has made it. A horse has been named for him. Speaking of a California critic who was always blasting him, Jack said: "He drove me out of Hollywood. . . he drove me right into a gold mine."

Tallulah Bankhead removes her makeup with Energine and Kim Hunter takes hers off with Crisco. ("The Crisco Kid?"). . . Marlon Brando's coming in by boat. He went from naughty to nautical. Guess who comes off better'n anybody in "No Business Like Show Business"—just an ex-hops picker named Johnnie Ray.

I can explain Alben Barkley's generally successful politicking. First time he ever met my B.W., he was introduced to her by Paul McNutt who said, "I want you to meet a beautiful girl from Missouri." Replied Barkley: "I thank you for telling me where she's from, but you didn't need to mention the rest. I have eyes." That's a big part of the secret. The woman Tyrone Power pre-hours, the reporter did his best to explain some of the fantastic complexities of the wartime Chinese political situation, which led Davies to despair of the Nationalist Government and to advocate prompting a kind of Chinese Titoism.

The five men on the Loyalty Board listened politely enough, but the reporter might just as well have been talking about the other side of the moon. They knew nothing of the tortured history of American wartime policy in China, and they cared less. But they did care about their government jobs—and who can blame them? And they were rather obviously aware of what Sen. McCarthy's imitators in the government security system might do to them if they voted to clear John Paton Davies.

Wartime Role

As for Davies' role in those wartime days, what the reporter told the Loyalty Board may be briefly summarized. On balance, the reporter still thinks he was right in fighting the Davies policy by fair means, and occasionally, foul. But in that respect, the Davies policy of trying to promote Chinese Titoism was certainly far better than the China policy we did adopt—which was to have no policy at all. And it is far clearer now than it was then that Davies is a brilliant political analyst, with remarkable insight.

Yet, even assuming that his judgment was at fault, is Davies to be denied the right of learning by experience? Then how about, for instance, that stout anti-Communist periodical, "Life Magazine"? In an editorial on China appearing in "Life" in the spring of 1944, you can find more echoes of the Party line than you can find in John Davies' despatches from Chungking. "Life" learned better soon after—but so did John Davies.

Or how about William C. Bullitt, now a leading anti-Communist chest-thumper? If Davies was wrong about China, Bullitt was a great deal more wrong about Russia in the days when he was pressing President Roosevelt to recognize the Soviet Union.

Or how about Gen. Patrick Hurley, who these days yields to no man in his anti-Communism, but who once described the Chinese Communists as no different from Oklahoma Republicans? Or, for that matter, how about W. Scott McLeod, chief State Department security officer?

Under Pressure

The frightened men who sat in judgment on John Davies were under fearful pressure to convict him. But there was not a jot of evidence of disloyalty. So they ducked behind the vague charge of "indiscretion." Davies was indiscreet, apparently, when—with the full knowledge of Generals Stilwell and Wedemeyer—he promoted his views with the press in Chungking. But it is well known that McLeod went behind the back of the Secretary of State to promote his own views with the McCarthyite press in the case of Charles F. Bohlen. Because of fear of McCarthy, he was forgiven. Perhaps now it would be a good idea to write to the State Department a letter describing McLeod's actions in this matter.

Under the established rules, a hearing would then become mandatory. And if the rules were applied without regard to political consequences, the outcome ought to be predictable. For have not these "indiscretions" of McLeod been both more recent and at least as grave as those supposedly committed by Davies?

But all this can be little consolation to John Davies, who served his government to the best of his considerable ability for twenty-three years, and who has now been fired without a pension, and publicly disgraced.

New Comedy Find Talk Of the Town

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The least likely person to be the biggest new sensation in television is a 34-year-old Chicagoan named George Gobel.

He is certainly not what you would expect in a TV star. He is short, with a face that is reminiscent of a pessimist. He addresses the audience without smiling. Between his lines he drops pauses in which Milton Berle could squeeze five jokes.

Yet the sober-faced Gobel is being hailed as the greatest comedy find in TV since I Love Lucy debuted three years ago. After only five weeks with his own show, he is the talk of the town. Children—and their parents too—are repeating Gobelisms like "Well, I'll be a dirty bird" and "You can't hardly get them no more."

When David O. Selznick put on his million-dollar show for the electric industry, he passed up the name comics and gave the only comedy spot to Gobel. He convulsed 65 million viewers with his wacky explanation of an electronic brief.

Gobel's success isn't easy to analyze. His comedy style certainly doesn't translate on paper. For instance, band leader John Scott Trotter will comment: "It has come to our attention that some people aren't watching the commercials."

Gobel: (pause) "Well, I'll be a dirty bird." (pause) "Now that just isn't in keeping with the American way of life." (pause).

It's those pauses that drive his show's creators nuts. Director-writer Hal Kanter will carefully rehearse Gobel through the show, correcting him several times on the reading of a line. At showtime, Gobel will read the line entirely differently, then pause and milk a tremendous laugh.

Ex-Nazi Thinks Jail Release Suits Russian Policy

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—Former Nazi Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, arriving home from Spandau war crimes prison last night, suggested the Soviets might try to gain propaganda value from his release.

The four occupation powers paroled 81-year-old von Neurath Saturday on humane grounds because of his age and failing health. Hitler's first foreign minister and Nazi "protector" of Czechoslovakia he was the first of the major Nazi war criminals convicted at Nuernberg to be freed. He had served eight years of a 15-year term.

"I believe," von Neurath said in an interview, "my release suited Russian policy." He did not elaborate but hinted he thought the Russians would use it for propaganda purposes.

The Western Allies made overtures months ago for von Neurath's release. When the Communists received the subject last week, the Americans, French and British quickly agreed.

By GRETCHEN L. LAMBERTSON

I'VE just been reading over my garden notebook in which I keep track of my plants, the weather and so on. How different our fall weather has been this year from 1953. As you remember, last year there was a succession of hot brilliant blue and gold days through all of September and October. November was hot, bright and smoking-dry. We picnicked in summer clothes and found sweaters too hot.

The first soaking fall rain came Nov. 20 and 21. Then it got quite cold. Our first snowfall came Nov. 25, and it was a brief northwest howler with one day of zero weather. Then came more sunny warm weather. There was no snow for Christmas or New Year's. According to my notebook I ran the dogs up the hill and along the top of the ridge to Garvin Heights every afternoon, wearing my lightweight windbreaker and tennis shoes. On Jan. 8 several of us went out to the hill pastures and picked up baskets of hickory nuts, and we wore sweaters. On Jan. 12 the long-delayed winter snow came but didn't last long. Altogether it was a weird, illogical winter.

This fall has been for the most part chill, dark and wet—certainly anything but summer-clothes weather. Our first nasty blustery snowstorm came Oct. 29, and it's stayed pretty chilly ever since. Well, never say we lack variety in weather here in Minnesota!

Last fall everyone picked up bushels of hickory nuts, but this fall there seem to be none. Do hickory nut trees bear only every other year as many apple trees do? However, this does seem to be a fine year for black walnuts, and many farm women are selling them. It's a hard and messy job to get the outside hull off both black walnuts and butternuts. Not only are they very hard to peel off but they stain everything they touch dark brown.

One farm woman who sells them told me that they had tried to remove black walnut husks with a small corn husker and a heavy roller but it didn't work. "So," she said, "we just spread them on corncrib floors and all of us walked back and forth over them. That worked pretty well."

Another ingenious farmer I know told me that they had tried everything to get the tough husks off without much success. He ended up by laying the walnuts on a flat board surface and running a light truck back and forth over them. That did it.

One woman told me that her mother used to use the dark indelible juice from these walnut husks to dye her graying hair a deep brown. "It made the best dye you ever saw," she said.

I love black walnuts in any brown sugar cookies, especially brown sugar icebox cookies. They are also wonderful in nut-bread, particularly in that nice dark grape-nut-buttermilk-walnut bread. Some of the best candy I ever ate was Miss Elizabeth Murphy's black walnut taffy, and here's how she makes it:

MISS MURPHY'S BLACK WALNUT TAFFY

2 cups sugar, 1/4 cup water. Bring to a slow boil. Add 4 tablespoons vinegar, 3/4 cup yellow corn syrup and 1/4 cup molasses. Then add butter the size of 2 eggs, and finally add 1/2 teaspoon soda. Cook to the crackle stage. Add 1 cup broken black walnut meats. Pour onto cookie sheets. Let it cool, pull it, then form into ropes and cut in pieces. Wrap pieces in wax paper.

Geologist Casts Doubt on Badger 'Uranium Find'

WAUPACA, Wis. (U.P.)—A geologist's report has cast a shadow over the discovery by three Clintonville prospectors of what they supposed was a "uranium deposit" in Waupaca County.

Rollin C. Vickers of the U. S. Geological Survey, Madison, after spending a full day in the area, said he could discover "nothing to indicate there is any uranium of commercial value in bedrock at Big Falls."

Vickers' visit was prompted by a report by William Frost, Reuben Tews and Nathan Wiese, all of Clintonville, that they had found evidence of uranium in the wooded area of the Town of Wyoming earlier this week.

Using instruments to measure radio activity, Vickers said he came across "several spots but nothing that could be considered hot." He said he couldn't entirely rule out the possibility of the presence of commercial uranium but that he "strongly doubts it."

The geologist pointed out that all radio activity is not produced by uranium but might indicate the presence of other elements such as thorium which has no commercial value in large scale production of atomic energy.

Vickers took back to Madison a large chunk of rock which he plans to analyze. He said a report could be expected in about six weeks.

Typhoon Slashes Through Luzon

MANILA (U.P.)—Typhoon Ruby sliced through the northern half of the main Philippine Island of Luzon tonight after its 120-mile-an-hour winds left thousands homeless in the island's southeastern sections, the Weather Bureau reported.

Contradicting earlier predictions, the late-season tropical storm bypassed Manila after lashing through Catanduanes Island, some 200 miles southeast of here.

Winds of up to 155 miles an hour reportedly smashed innumerable flimsy homes of southeast Luzon, leaving thousands homeless, and devastated large tracts of farmland. There were no official reports of deaths so far.

After skirting Luzon's eastern seaboard, the erratic storm veered northward at about 14 miles an hour and roared through the mountains near Cape Iddeson, about 130 miles northeast of Manila. It was expected to blow into the South China Sea early tomorrow.

U.S. Power Policy Unchanged, Says McKay

PORTLAND, Ore. (U.P.)—Secretary of the Interior McKay today makes his first speech since last Tuesday's election but he is not going to announce any change in administration power policy.

McKay, former governor of Oregon, said in advance of his appearance at the opening session of the 23rd annual convention of the National Reclamation Assn. that there "will be no change in the power policy."

"The power policy is a part of the Eisenhower program, and I am just there in Washington working to make that program a success," McKay told a reporter.

Norwegian Donates $2,100 to Symphony

TRONDHEIM, Norway (U.P.)—A wealthy Trondheim citizen has donated 15,000 kroner (about $2,100) to the Trondheim Symphony Orchestra as a token of his admiration for American Negro conductor Dean Dixon.

Julius Holm, general manager of a Trondheim business firm, said he gave the money to express his gratitude for the concerts the orchestra has been giving recently under Dixon's baton.

Holm added he hoped the money would make possible the engagement of other famous conductors.

Our graduate corsetieres are Pygmalsions, too—not with the sculptor's chisel—but with the skill and training to coax your figure into beautiful, slim, young lines, gently, gently. Let them help you come alive to new loveliness. Once you're under the postural-improving, slenderizing, shapely influence of a new Warner's you think you'll live happily ever after.

Who Will Teach Them?

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of guest editorials to appear in this column during American Education Week, Nov. 7-13. Slogan for this year's observance is "Good Schools as Your Responsibility." Parents are urged to visit the schools this week or at any time.)

By DR. NELS MINNE
President, Winona State Teachers College

Who will teach them? This is not just an idle question. Small communities are already facing it. Larger towns have been draining off the supply of teachers who can be attracted to population centers.

All schools, large and small, face the same dilemma. More children must be taught. Fewer teachers are in the market for jobs.

A brochure published by the National Association of Manufacturers puts it this way. In 1953-54 there were 22 million youngsters in the nation's elementary schools. By 1958 there will be 26 million.

And the increased elementary school load will start to hit the high schools in 1955-56. Then the high schools will have the same overload problem which the elementary schools now face.

By 1960 school enrollments will be up 25 per cent or more.

By 1960 we'll need 200,000 more teachers just to take care of increased enrollments. But annually 85,000 teachers retire, die or leave the profession. Another 70,000 are teaching now without full standard preparation.

Yet the annual teacher production has dropped by 25 per cent since 1950.

It is estimated that we will need 140,000 new teachers every year for ten years ahead.

The answer to the question "Who Will Teach Them?" is not easy to give. Several approaches such as these ought to be fully explored:

- 1) Keep teachers in the service by whatever means the community can reasonably devise.
- 2) Bring back into service the better teachers with good preparation.
- 3) Encourage young people of good promise for success in teaching to consider this as a career.

Though difficult to generalize about, some answers will have to be found. America's children must be educated and teachers must somehow be provided.

Our nation's future is too precious to be jeopardized for want of a realistic answer to the question.

Yellow Stop Signs May Be on Way Out

The yellow stop sign may be on its way out. The National Joint Committee on Uniform Traffic recommends its replacement by a red sign with reflectorized white lettering.

Red is traditionally the danger signal, and on the highways hardly any risk can be greater than failure to stop at a busy intersection. Yellow is a less compelling color, which traffic lights often use to indicate caution, not a halt. Yellow and orange can be seen farther away, however, which is doubtless the reason for their use as stop signals.

Further improvements can be made in traffic signals and signs. A motorist who stays out of the country or goes to prison for the next 20 years will probably, on his return to circulation, have considerable to learn about road warnings.

These Days

Ike Pressed to Declare Himself

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NEW YORK — As the election figures are studied, no trend is found, no unmistakable public response to any great party pronouncements or a public challenge to party officials. It is impossible to say that the election was pro- or anti-Eisenhower. The narrow margins are convincing that the Republicans might have managed to win hands down had they not, with characteristic ineptitude, embroiled themselves in intra-party conflicts in several states. On that, of course, there will be wide disagreement both as to cause and effect and one can let the subject pass without too much concern at this time.

The question is of the future. Pres. Eisenhower continues to speak of the moderate approach to public problems which describes inadequately what that approach is. Who desires an moderate approach and what is the nature of it? Until we know the extremes, it is impossible ever to know where the middle is. In Roosevelt's time, the phrase used to be "left of center," with the center undefined. Perhaps the reason for this queer election is that no one can truly state what anyone believes to be the truth.

DURING THE CAMPAIGN, when it was generally held that the Democrats, supported by organized labor, would win an enormous victory, it was often suggested that Pres. Eisenhower would declare himself as a one-term president, that he would not run in 1956. No authority was ever cited for such a statement, but it was, from a political standpoint, a confusing one, because if it becomes generally believed, it can increase the conflicts within the Republican party by stimulating too many ambitions. It is true that Pres. Eisenhower has made no public announcement on the subject.

It is customary in the United States for a president to run for two terms, even if he is not always elected to the second term. Pres. Eisenhower is entitled to a second chance in 1956 and it ought to be understood that he will take it. If that is now iterated, Republican aspirants will have to step back to await their opportunity. No one in the Republican party comes out of this election so greatly confirmed by the American people as to be an outstanding contestant for Pres. Eisenhower's post. There still is no successor in party leadership to Sen. Robert A. Taft.

In the Democratic party, no one has created for himself so great a reputation as to be outstanding. While Adlai Stevenson assumed active leadership in the campaign, making speeches almost daily all over the country, the result of the election is not sufficient to establish that his participation in the campaign made much difference. No other Democratic personality emerged as an astonishing figure, except J. Strom Thurmond, whose write-in victory was surprising to the country, but which undoubtedly was the result of special local conditions in South Carolina with which other parts of the country are not familiar. Averell Harriman, whom friends before election day were grooming for the presidential nomination, received too narrow a majority to be regarded as significant from a national standpoint. He may now even have difficulty in controlling the New York delegation to the next Democratic convention.

THE ELIMINATION OF Thomas E. Dewey as a political leader in New York cannot be ignored. Three times elected as governor, twice a candidate for president, organizer of the nomination of Dwight Eisenhower at the 1952 Republican convention, Dewey could not carry his chosen successor, Irving Ives, to victory. The narrowness of the Harriman vote indicates that Ives could have won were there not a protest refusal to vote in the election by enough Republicans to make a difference. The defeat of Ives makes Jacob Javits, the attorney general, the leader of his party in the state. Javits is closely connected with the Liberal party and therefore he is likely to continue to be opposed by conservative Republicans.

In the New York situation, where men do unfortunately vote along religious and racial lines, in recent elections a tendency has appeared to substitute an Italian Catholic for an Irish Catholic in both parties. An analysis of election districts would indicate that the Irish Catholic Democrats have reasserted their strength by rejecting Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. for attorney general. He lost in strictly Democratic districts to Jacob Javits, a Republican with Liberal party leanings, who is a Jew. This unusual result was anticipated by nobody.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Former McCarthy Aide Reveals Tactics

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—On the eve of the McCarthy censure debate, a former associate of McCarthy's has given highly revealing information regarding his operations. They include:

1. An attempt by McCarthy to thwart the Senate committee probing his finances in 1951.

2. McCarthy's efforts to defeat Democratic candidates in Utah, Montana and Washington by smearing them as pro-Communists.

The ex-McCarthy associate, Harvey Matusow, is a former member of the Communist party who became disillusioned, gave information to the FBI and later joined McCarthy's long list of friends, informers and paid employees. Interviewed by this writer, Matusow told in detail how McCarthy had sent him to Utah to re-elect — of all people — Sen. Arthur Watkins, now chairman of the Senate committee which recommended the censure of McCarthy.

Matusow did this, he said, first by testifying before a Senate committee in Salt Lake City about Communists in the government later by smearing Cong. Granger, Democratic opponent of Sen. Watkins, as soft toward Communists. "I used McCarthy logic," Matusow explained. "I said Granger was for pro-administration policy on China. . . . China fell to the Reds and your boys are fighting in Korea."

"I also campaigned in Montana against Sen. Mansfield and in Washington against Sen. Jackson," Matusow said, "but the smear technique was not successful."

Lady Witness Exits
Describing his work for McCarthy in thwarting the Senate committee probing McCarthy's finances, Matusow said he had received a call from Mrs. J. B. Matthews, whose husband was then McCarthy's committee counsel, asking him to take Mrs. Arvilla Bentley out of the United States until the probe of McCarthy's finances blew over.

Mrs. Bentley, former wife of Cong. Alvin Bentley, had "loaned" $7,000 to McCarthy, while the congressman "loaned" $3,000. And the Senate wanted to question her regarding this and other contributions. Mrs. Bentley, Matusow said, had also paid for a Mutual N.Y. work broadcast which McCarthy made before the 1950 elections.

Matusow said McCarthy knew all about the idea of taking Mrs. Bentley out of the United States away from Senate probes and that he Matusow had talked to McCarthy himself about it. He also said that McCarthy's attorney knew about the plan.

Mrs. Bentley remained in the British Bahamas outside the arm of a Senate subpoena for about two weeks, then came back to the United States, Matusow explained.

"Was this $10,000 the money used by McCarthy to speculate on the soy bean market?" Matusow was asked.

"That's correct."

"Did Mrs. Bentley have any idea that McCarthy was going to use it for speculation?"

"No, she did not."

"Did she express any opinion to you about it?"

"Very definitely," Matusow replied. "She said that if she had known Sen. McCarthy was going to speculate with this money, she never would have loaned it to him."

Matusow also said that McCarthy had asked him to investigate the New York Times, Time magazine and other newspapers with a view to pinning the Communist party label on them.

"They had been attacking Sen. McCarthy," the ex-McCarthyite explained, "and he was sore about it and wanted to take his revenge."

There was an interesting inside reason why the Republicans elect-

Let's Honor Distillery That Fueled Grant

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It has been 42 years since Christopher Columbus discovered America, and still there is no great national monument to him.

Nor, for that matter, has the federal government erected a memorial to Amelia Jenks Bloomer, who pioneered in freeing women by appearing in public wearing bloomers.

Nor has anyone stepped forward to raise funds to put a plaque on the birthplace of the man who brought women an even greater prominence by inventing "falsies."

It's all kind of sad. For a young people who are fast growing middle-aged we are mighty forgetful. Our storied past is crowded with colorful, fabulous figures, but we do little to keep alive the atmosphere of the times they lived in.

We pull down their homes to make office buildings. We raze the schools they attended to make a parking lot. Nothing is left of our heroes and rascals but a printed memory.

Jack the Ripper

In Europe it's the other way around. A tourist can't walk 50 steps in any direction without bumping into a historic landmark — a cathedral where kings were crowned, an alleyway unchanged since Jack the Ripper lurked there.

There has been some improvement in this country in recent years. But we are still pretty well limited to Civil War battlefields, statues of half-forgotten generals and politicians that serve chiefly as flight decks for pigeons, and guest houses with signs bragging that "Washington slept here."

The signs don't admit that Washington was awfully tired at the time, and the bed is so hard that no guest since then has even been able to doze.

Ask the average guy to name five famous American historical monuments. He'd probably name the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials. Then he'd be stumped — unless you let him include Mae West or Sophie Tucker.

Americans are loathe to make monuments of their saloons, even though some of modern society's bluest blood has been shed in them in recent years, and despite the fact George Washington made his farewell address to his officers in a tavern. But, after all these years, doesn't the distillery that fueled Gen. U.S. Grant perhaps deserve a memorial marker? Any Southerner will confirm that it was only bottle courage that gave Grant the nerve to take on the peerless Robert E. Lee.

How about the bar off Gramercy Park, New York, where lonely O. Henry dreamed up his stories? Isn't that a kind of monument worth keeping?

There are many interesting political sites worth preserving as historic monuments — such as the smoke-filled room where Warren Harding was picked as a presidential candidate, and the exact spot where Calvin Coolidge put on his first Indian headdress. These would please Democrats greatly. Republicans might equally enjoy making a federal museum of Tammany Hall, or erecting a granite monument commemorating the "Truman dollar."

Everybody, of course, would be glad to contribute toward a national monument for the first man in America who finds a free place to park his car legally. But no such fund will ever be raised. No guy lucky enough to find a parking space would give away his secret for so empty a reward as fame.

THE WORLD TODAY

McCarthy May Have To Change Style

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy fights like Henry Armstrong, the perpetual motion man who won three world titles in the 1930s with this stock-in-trade: Never step back, punch, punch, and forget the fancy footwork.

Even the Wisconsin Republican's enemies must concede he is one of the most aggressive politicians of the 20th century. But he has reached a point where he may have to change his style or wind up flat on his political back.

It was his style that got him into trouble. His problem is: Can he change it?

He made his reputation as a Communist hunter. His record as a lawmaker is not particularly distinguished. He was a comparative unknown, outside Wisconsin, for the first four years after his election to the Senate in 1946.

When he hit on the theme of Red-in-government in 1950, he began to elug his way out of oblivion. If he had cooled off after his first few sensational charges he might have slipped back into obscure status.

Instead, he kept his name in the headlines by attack, attack, attack. Armstrong didn't back-pedal when the going got rough. He just belted the other guy. It was how he became king of the featherweights, lightweights and welterweights.

McCarthy became a national figure the same way. Trying to corner him didn't slow him up. He kept moving in, belting away, throwing charges from all directions.

As it turned out, he was a little too rough for his own good. The Senate, four years after he had become a sensational figure, decided it was time to see whether he needed a dressing down.

He himself predicts he will be censured by the Senate, returning today to consider charges that his conduct toward others, including senators, was contemptuous and unfitting a senator.

McCarthy refers to what lies in store for him as "lynching bee," which, all by itself, might be considered contemptuous of the Senate since it implies that body is a mob of vigilantes.

But it's typical McCarthy. Here he is, in the worst jam of his life, belting at a majority of the Senate even though he knows the verdict of that majority may in the end mean the ruin of his political life.

To be censured is, in a sense, to be discredited. It is the same as calling a foul on a fighter. It would mean his fellows thought he didn't meet the standards of what a senator should be.

Next to Toughest Verdict

Next to throwing him out altogether, a vote of censure is the worst verdict the Senate could render against him. Throwing him out doesn't seem in the cards.

McCarthy could still vote, if censured. He wouldn't lose his seat, at least before the 1958 elections when his second term ends.

Another man, censured, might be so humiliated he'd turn meek forever. That's hardly in McCarthy's nature. He's naturally too aggressive to take a setback as permanent.

In fact, he could hardly afford to go back into oblivion again unless he's willing to let his political career end without a further fight. He has no place to go but forward.

But how is he going forward? How is he going to stay in the headlines? By the same tactics that got him into trouble now? The next time the Senate verdict, with the Democrats in control, might be more drastic.

But if his free-swinging style is cramped — if he has to think of the consequences for himself every time he wants to act or speak in the future — will he be the same McCarthy? It's something he has to think about.

It's possible he may not be able to change, that he's too much himself for that. But that he'll fight, somehow, to keep himself a national figure seems certain. If he loses that, he loses everything.

He's probably already lost some of his following, and much public interest. Reports from the political fronts in the last campaign said he wasn't much of an issue.

Car Strikes Tractor, State Farmer Killed

MOTLEY, Minn. (AP)—A Motley farmer was killed when his tractor was struck from the rear by a car on U.S. Highway 10 a mile west of here Saturday evening.

Killed was Herman W. Gehlhar, 62, who farmed near the scene of the crash.

Dr. Jay Cook of Staples, Todd County deputy coroner, said the car was driven by Edwin S. Johnson, 38, also of Motley. No inquest was planned, Dr. Cook said.

Gehlhar's death raised Minnesota's 1954 traffic toll to 538, compared with 547 during the same period last year.

Back to School Party at Wabasha Thursday Evening

WABASHA, Minn. — In observance of American Education Week, the faculty of the Wabasha Public Schools is inviting parents and friends of students to a "Back to School" party Thursday at 8 p.m.

The evening will begin with a brief program, consisting of a vocal solo by Mrs. Kenneth Nelson and a talk by Daniel B. Hoyt, of Phelps Laboratory School, Winona State Teachers College.

Following the program, parents will be given schedules and locations of the classes their children attend. Time will be set aside for them to attend 10-minute sessions of these classes in the high school and to visit the grade rooms which their children attend. Here they may meet and talk with the members of the faculty and with other parents.

To add realism to the "school day," buses are to travel their routes to pick up parents in the same way students are brought in for the regular school day.

The evening will end with a coffee hour in the school cafeteria. While invitations are being sent to all parents of students, the faculty extends an invitation to as many other people as are interested in coming to hear the speaker, to visit the various school departments, or to talk with neighbors, faculty and friends.

He Leaves His Life Savings on The Window Ledge

CLEVELAND (U. S. — White-haired James Cranney, 84, decided yesterday it was high time he put his life savings into a safe place.

So he stuffed $1,165 into his wallet, went to a church and asked the pastor to put the money in a safe deposit box for him. But the pastor told him to take it to a bank.

Being unfamiliar with banks, Cranney did not know they were closed on the sabbath. He went to a bus stop in front of a closed restaurant to wait for a ride downtown.

He tells what happened after that:

"Well, I took out me pipe. And so's I could light it, I put me wallet on the window ledge. I lit me pipe, then — swoosh — along comes me bus. I put out me pipe, I grab me cane and I get aboard the bus.

"I sit down, and I look out the window. Then all of a sudden it dawns on me — me wallet!"

By the time he could get off that bus and get another one back to the restaurant, his wallet was gone.

Tennessean to Decline Post as Party Whip

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (U. S. — Rep. J. Percy Priest of Tennessee's 5th District says he probably will turn down the job of House majority whip in the new Congress.

Priest, who held the post for four years before the Democrats lost control of Congress in 1932, apparently would be in line to resume his old job.

But, he said, he plans to devote most of his time to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of which he is the ranking Democratic member.

9 TC Students Elected to 'Who's Who' Yearbook

Nine seniors, elected by the student body at Winona State Teachers College, will represent the college in the 1954-55 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Announcement of the honor was made in the weekly assembly today at the college.

The students named include: Miss Carol Anhalt, South St. Paul; Miss Arlene Martinson, Arnold Boese, Curtis Peterson, Russell Schmidt and Jon Sontag, Winona; the Misses Maxine Czapiewski, Fountain City, Wis., and Donna May Freeman, Dexter, and Jerome Grebin, Preston.

She is now secretary-treasurer of the senior class, editor-in-chief of the Winonan, president of the English Club and member of the Newman Club.

Miss Freeman, who has been active in dramatic productions at the college, was treasurer of the Wenonah Players last year and is now the club's president. She has also served on the student representative council, as secretary of Gamma Delta and circulation manager of the Winonan.

Boese, who holds the office of president of the student representative council, has been active in

Gamma Delta, the "W" Club, the Men's Physical Education Club and as a member of the joint faculty-student finance committee. He has been a member of the track team and of the football team for the past three years.

A star of the Warriors' football and basketball teams, Grebin has served as vice president of the "W" Club and as a member of the Men's Physical Education Club.

In his junior year Sontag was vice president of the student representative council and president of the Lutheran Student Association and of Kappa Pi, art fraternity. He still serves as president of Kappa Pi and program chairman of the Lutheran Students Association.

Peterson has served as president of the Teachers College band during the past two years and has been active in arranging homecoming band parades and the district music contests held at the college.

Schmidt, now vice president of the senior class and president of the science club, has played four years on the varsity football team. He is also vice president of Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternity.

Never before in regular grade gasoline

New Shell Gasoline contains TCP — gives performance never before possible with regular grade fuel

If the engine of your car was designed to operate on regular grade fuels, you can now take advantage of the remarkable gasoline additive, TCP*, first introduced in Shell Premium Gasoline exclusively.

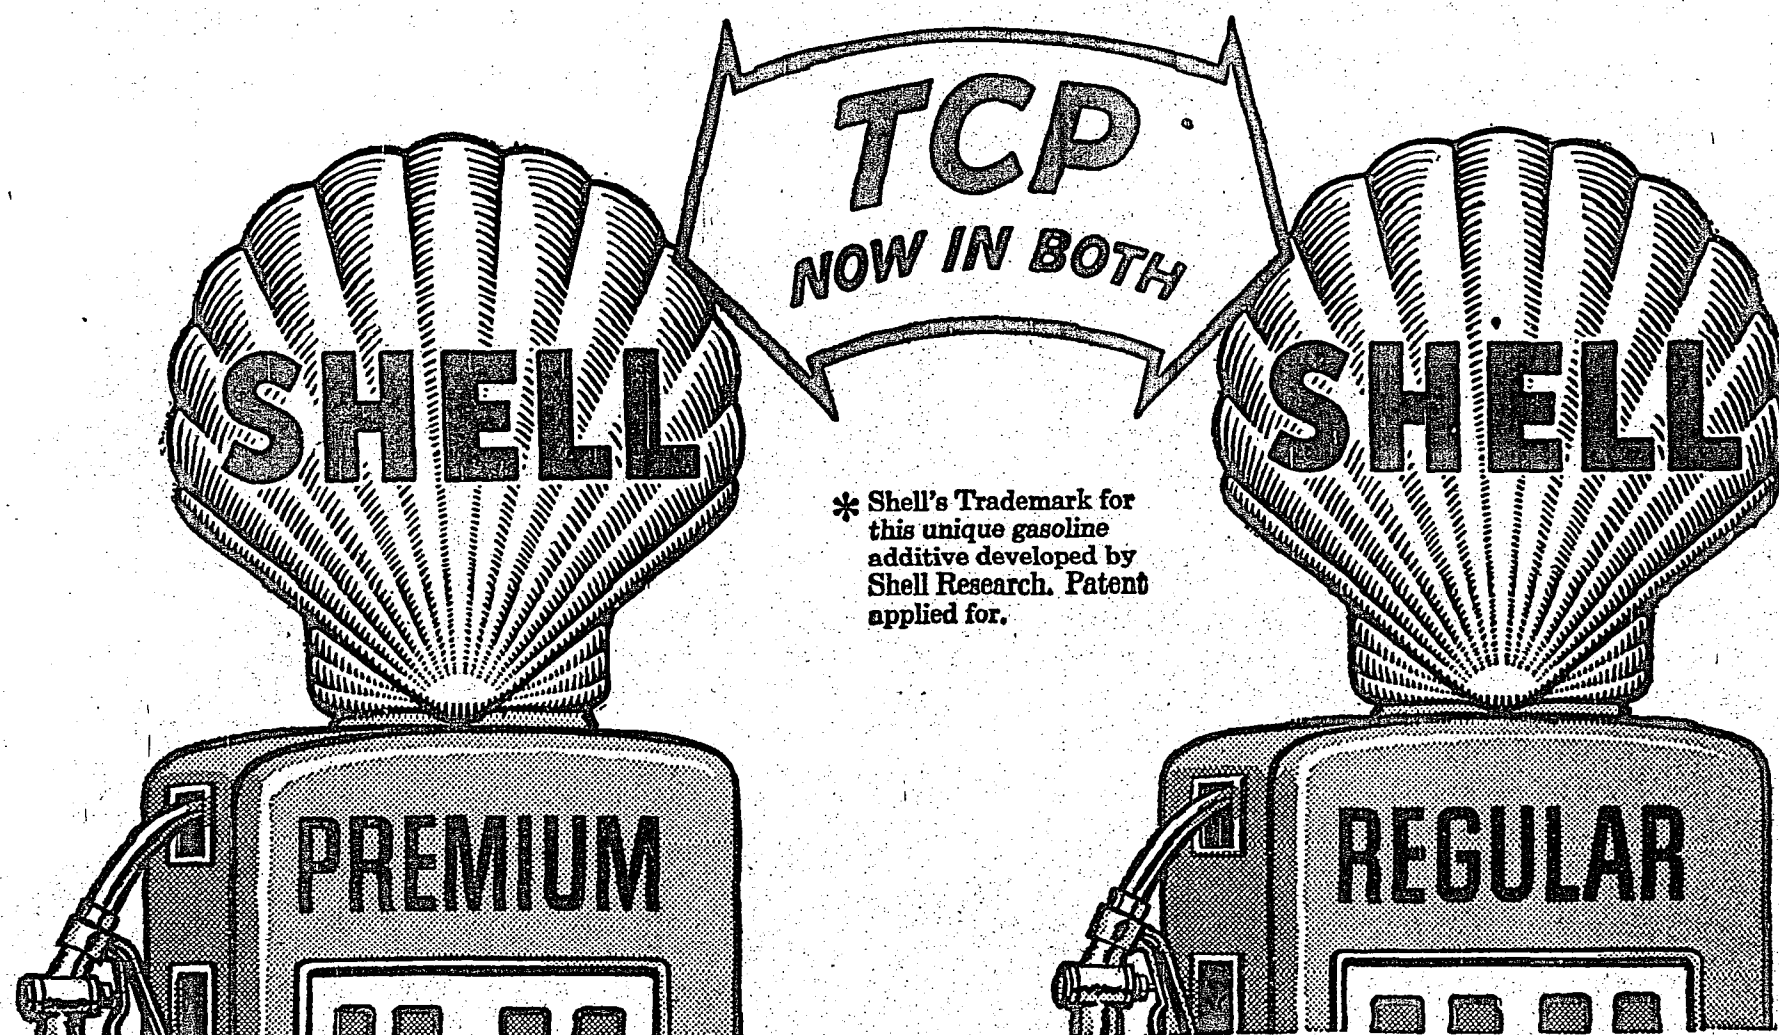

New Shell Gasoline (regular grade) with TCP benefits engine performance in two ways. First, by "fireproofing" combustion chamber deposits, it effectively controls pre-ignition. Second, by changing the deposits on the spark plugs to non-conductors of electricity, TCP additive stops misfiring. Each plug fires as it should, preventing fuel waste.

Now gives performance never before possible with regular grade fuel

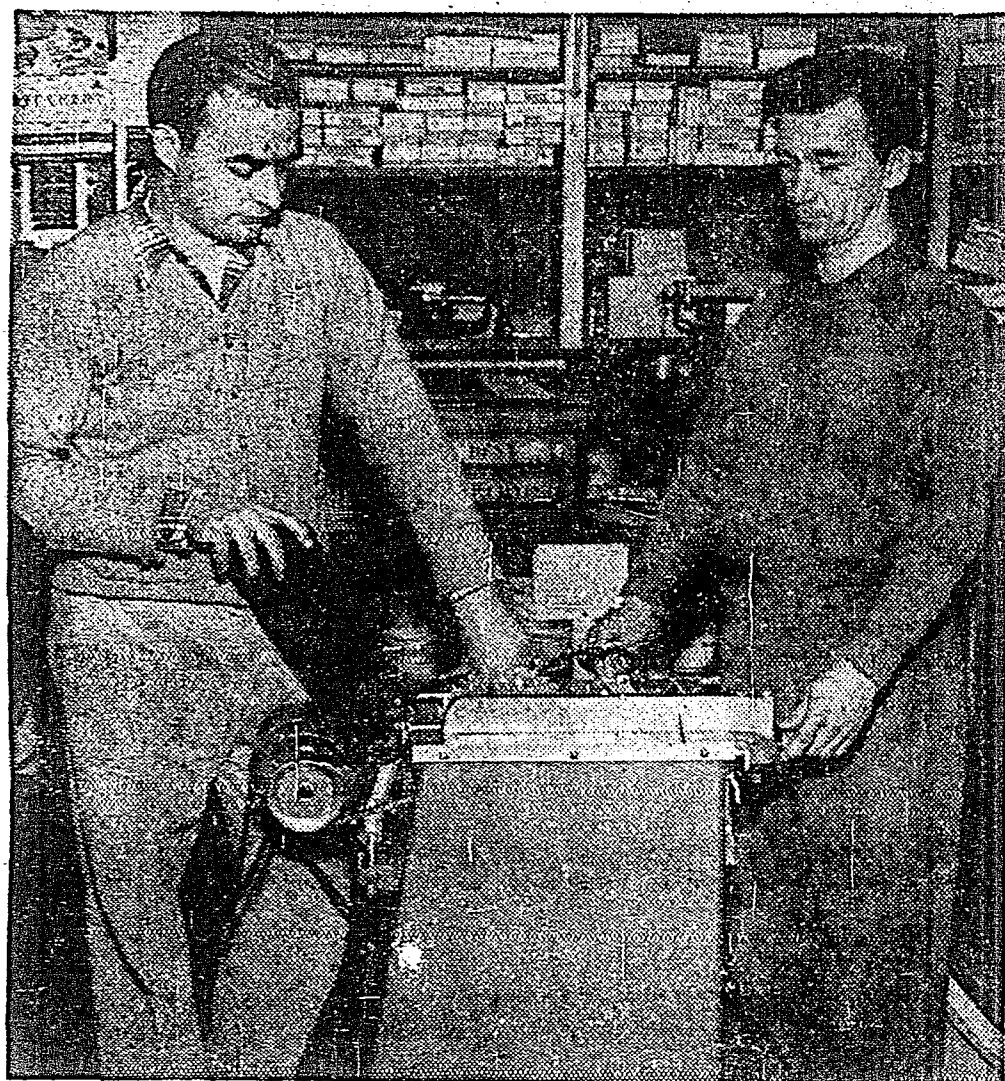

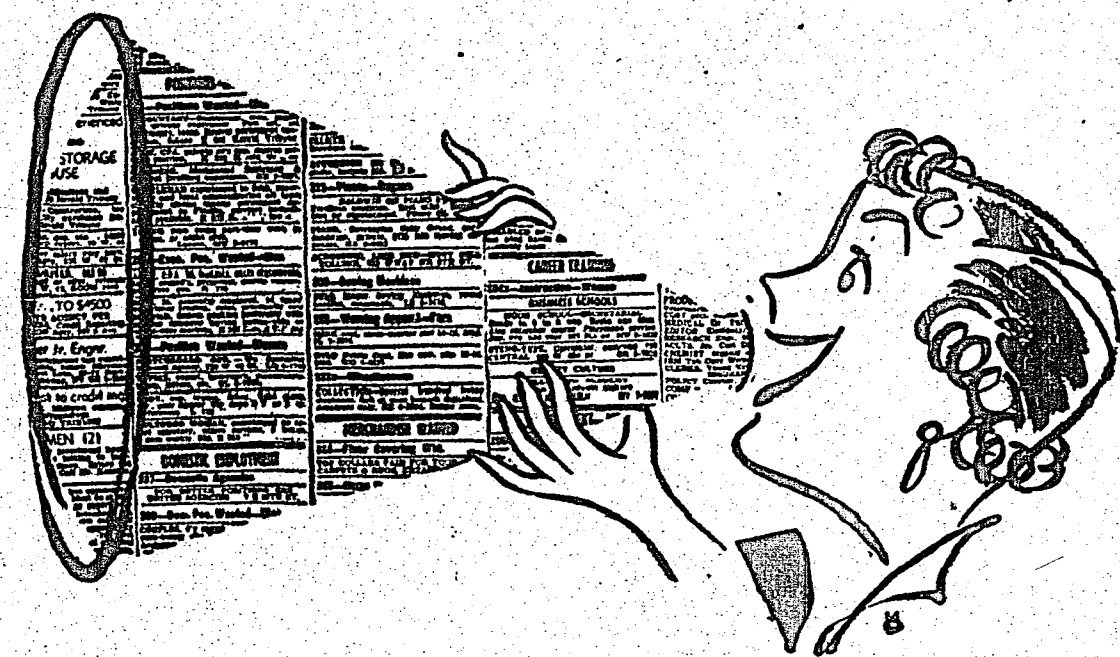

By correcting these engine troubles, Shell Gasoline with TCP gives an increase in acceleration, in smoothness of engine operation and in mileage.

Because engine deposits form constantly, continued use of Shell Gasoline (regular grade) with TCP is essential to retain its benefits. Now at all Shell Dealers.

Plan Alternate Command Posts If Need Arises

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The military, with an eye on the hydrogen bomb, is taking another look at plans for alternate emergency command posts if the capital faces air attack.

Questions have been raised, it was learned today, over the wisdom of concentrating the military high command at a single location, such as the man-made cavern in western Maryland.

While that underground installation would be used for its original purpose of a central emergency communications center, it might not become the temporary headquarters for the entire Joint Chiefs of Staff and military commands of the three major services — an alternate Pentagon.

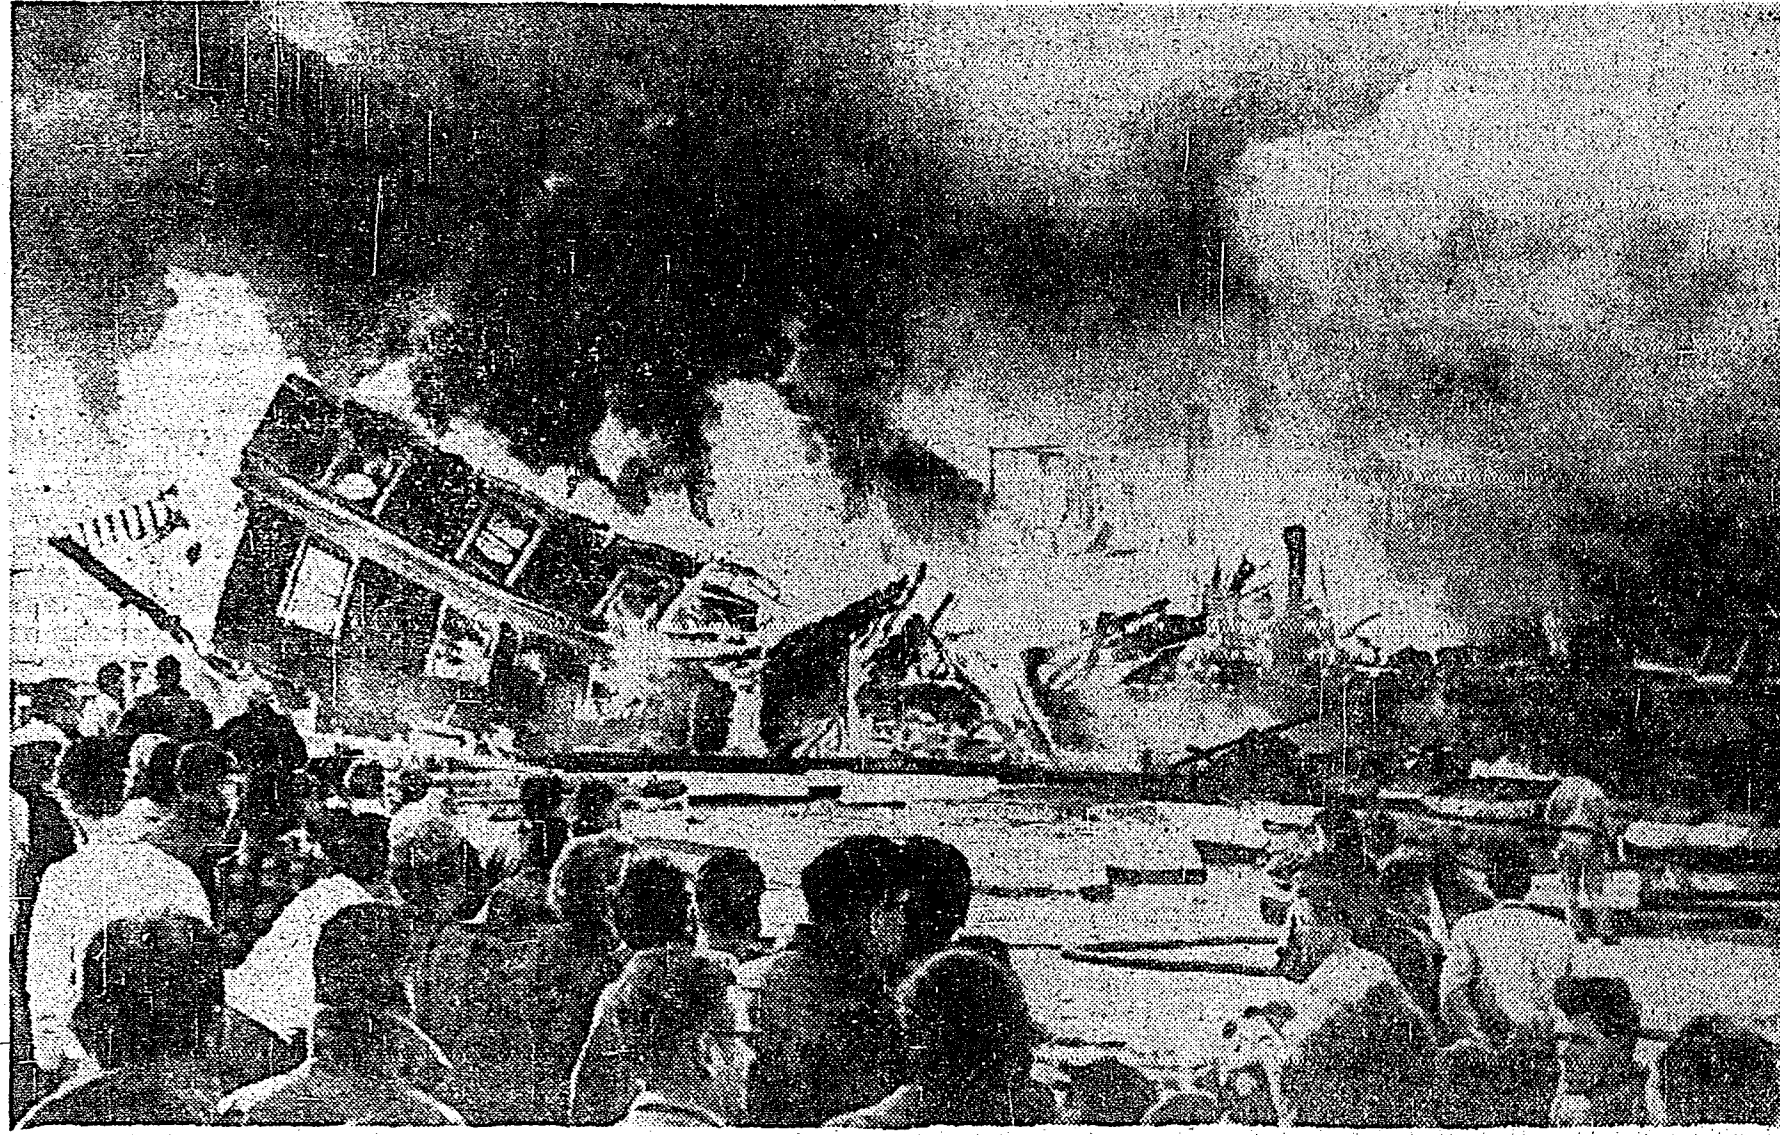

Instead, consideration has veered lately toward dispersal of the headquarters of the several armed forces to separate points outside the capital area. Initial thinking was toward use of established military centers, such as Ft. Belvoir, Va., about 15 miles south of the District of Columbia; Ft. Meade, Md., about 20 miles east; and Norfolk, Va., 150 air miles to the south. But a re-evaluation of the potentialities of the hydrogen bomb, made after the giant test explosion at the Marshall Islands proving ground last spring, apparently has brought new ideas about the blast destruction. Estimates of the zone of major damage from H-bomb blast effect alone run as much as 150 miles from the point of detonation.

While the underground installation at Ft. Ritchie, about 70 miles northwest of Washington in Frederick County, Md., presumably would escape the blast of a bomb exploded over the capital, it could be vulnerable to one dropped with the purpose of "cratering out" the subterranean installation.

Party Chairmen Exchange Views

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The postelection theme of harmony between President Eisenhower and the Democratic 84th Congress echoed some dissonant notes today in the wake of an exchange between party chairmen and new statements by Democratic leaders.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said yesterday in a statement that Vice President Nixon should "retract and apologize for his campaign excesses." If Nixon continues, Mitchell added, "I hope that the President will take the opportunity to disassociate himself from such character assassination by public disavowal."

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall replied of Mitchell's remarks: "This is in the worst possible taste and in the worst possible public interest" coming at a time when, Hall said, responsible leaders in Congress are pledging cooperation.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas who will be majority floor leader when the Democrats organize the new Senate in January, publicly criticized some of President Eisenhower's campaign remarks at a news conference Saturday. He also set out certain conditions for cooperation of Democratic congressional leaders during the next two years.

If the Republican administration wants Democrats to cooperate then it must consult with them in advance of making final decisions, he said.

It was learned that Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California later proposed periodic conferences between Eisenhower and both Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress.

"The President now has had his little fling in the political arena," Johnson said, referring to Eisenhower's campaign statement that election of a Democratic Congress might bring on "a cold war of partisan politics."

At his postelection news conference, Eisenhower said that statement was too strong for what he had in mind.

Johnson said talk about a "cold war" because of the political division is ridiculous and added: "If there is a cold war, the Democrats are not going to provoke it."

350 Green Bay Teen-agers Stage After-Game Riot

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Authorities were considering legal action against ringleaders of the 350 or more teenagers whose rioting resulted in vandalism in the downtown area after a football game Saturday night.

One 18-year-old West high school graduate faced arraignment today on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Police said Sunday that two of the ringleaders were arrested during the rioting.

The mobs of youngsters stoned windows of the city hall and jail, set leaves and trash afire, blocked traffic and injured at least two persons.

Police Inspector Francis Wigman called it the worst outbreak of juvenile vandalism to follow a football game in several years.

The rioting broke out after the annual football game between West and East high schools.

Seven youths were punished with fines and probation after a crowd of about 800 teenagers ran wild after the East-West game Nov. 6, 1948.

The only person seriously injured was 16-year-old Mercedes Marinaro who was beaten and dragged by two girls she was unable to identify. The girl was hospitalized

2 U.S. Diplomats Shun Red Reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two top American diplomats last night shunned a Soviet Embassy reception celebrating the 37th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

The Americans made a gesture of protest against the shooting down near Japan of a U. S. RB29 reconnaissance plane.

Although lower echelon State Department aides attended the plush gathering, Livingston Merchant, assistant secretary in charge of European affairs, and his deputy, Walworth Barbour, canceled plans to attend.

Most of the embassies, East and West, were represented.

Among the guests was Paul Robeson, American Negro singer, who wore a Stalin Peace Prize medal pinned to his lapel.

With severe head cuts and bruises, Police Sgt. Richard Van Hemelryck was knocked to his knees by a blow on the back of the neck as he attempted to break up one of the mobs that had converged on the city hall and jail after an 18-year-old boy was taken into custody following a scuffle with two officers.

Two Philippine Members Guests Of Local AAUW

Members and guests of the local AAUW had an opportunity to meet and talk with two members of the Philippine Association of University Women at the annual fellow-ship luncheon Saturday in the YMCA.

They were Mrs. Luz Einsidel, Quenzon City, Philippines, and Dr. Jesusa Barrios, Manila, the afternoon's speaker. Both are studying this year at the University of Minnesota, the former under the Point Four Program of the State Department, and Dr. Barrios on an AAUW fellowship.

Dr. Barrios was introduced to the group by Mrs. Fred Leighton, program chairman, and giving her impressions of America. Dr. Barrios said, "I am impressed especially by the kindness and consideration of the American people, by their high sense of responsibility and independence, and by the dignity of labor."

She sketched briefly her educational background, her experience during the war, and her work in her native land. She is on leave of absence from the University of Santo Tomas where she is a member of the faculty of medicine and surgery. At Minnesota she is doing further work in biochemistry and cytology.

An informal question and answer period followed Dr. Barrios' talk and in that she brought out pertinent facts about her country.

With reference to education, she said that it was not compulsory, that there is not so much a shortage of teachers as facilities; that teachers are poorly paid; an elementary teacher receiving the equivalent of $70 a month in American money; that the total years of education are shorter than in the United States, consisting of six years of elementary and four years of high school.

She said that only about three per cent of the young people who start school ever finish high school, and that about one per cent of that three go on to college.

Asked about the chief medical problem in the Philippines, she answered, "probably dietary," and went on to say that many of the natives still do not know of what a balanced diet consists, and continue to eat only rice and fish. She said this was being gradually counteracted by propaganda and teaching.

The speaker expressed appreciation for the aid given to her country both before and after the recent war and said she brought greetings from her countrymen.

Mrs. Einsidel, Dr. Barrios' traveling companion for the day, was introduced by Mrs. Leighton and spoke briefly about her work. This is her second period of study in the United States—the first was at Wellesley on an AAUW fellowship.

A background of the AAUW fellowship program was given earlier in the afternoon by Mrs. L. L. Korda. She pointed out that AAUW is the only organization that gives scholarships exclusively to women, that it is international in scope, and provides for advanced study.

She introduced Miss Shirley Minkewitz, Winona, as the first local AAUW scholarship holder, and now recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship. Miss Minkewitz told the women of her plans to study soon in Costa Rica on her Fulbright. At present she is teaching in Lake City.

Mrs. W. B. Spetch, president, presided at the business meeting which preceded the program.

The other non-furnace permits were issued to: W. V. Lowe, 160 E. King St., $75, to put a partition in the house; J. J. Wolfram, 505 E. Mark St., and Harold Streeter, 275 Wilson St., $200, to remodel the kitchen by Roy Brugger, contractor.

One of the furnace permits was drawn by H. W. Lea, 619 Center St., with the Winona Oil Burner Sales and Service as the contractor. The remainder of the permits listed the Quality Sheet Metal Works as the contractor.

They were issued to: The V. HOME OWNERS' QUESTION BOX

Q — Is there anything I can do to keep a hammer from slipping out of my hand?

A — Drill several small holes in the handle. A vacuum will be created when the hammer is held in the hand, giving a better grip. Another way is to wrap waterproof tape around the handle.

Q — Someone spilled oil on my concrete walk. How can I remove the stain?

A — To remove a surface stain, scrape off oil crusts, scrub the spot with gasoline, then scrub the area with warm soapy water, and finally rinse it. If the stain has penetrated the concrete, follow the gasoline scrub by scrubbing with a 10 per cent muriatic acid solution or with a strong solution of washing soda.

Q — Our living room floor, which is right over the furnace, has a few squeaks. Is there anything we can do about it?

A — Heat from the furnace has probably caused your floor boards to shrink. Locate the exact areas of the squeaks by having someone walk across the floor, then drive wood wedges between the subflooring and the joists in those areas.

New Designs for Outdoor Lighting

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature Writer

You don't have to be a movie star to enjoy outdoor lighting around your house. Although there is no doubt about it—the lights and shadows are likely to put you in a movie land setting.

Today's swing to outdoor living in the suburbs and country has helped to change American living habits. For one thing, homeowners spend as much time outdoors as possible even in cooler weather. The outdoor picnic around a big fire with diners wearing ski clothes has become a weekend ritual in many communities.

Many of these outdoor parties could be improved with the addition of attractive lighting, just as the attractive glow of the fireplace lends enchantment to indoor socials.

New Light Bulbs

Designers have been busy co-operating with manufacturers who have engineered weatherproof bulbs, sturdier waterproof wiring cables, corrosion proof conduits for underground installations.

You'll find a double lily pad fixture that floats on water, with waterproof bulbs illuminating translucent rubber pads. . . a novel cattail lamp 40 inches high with a tubular lamp fixed in a cast bronze cattail. . . a fixture made of plastic that resembles a tree stump, for mounting on the ground or in tree branches. . . a border set of seven aluminum torches shaped like clusters of leaves, mounted on 20 inch spiked stems and a floor mounting fixture that will support the weight of a car driven over it, designed to light shrubbery or tree borders along driveways. Special glass is used in garden lamps so that a sudden downpour doesn't break a hot bulb.

Yellow bulbs keep insects away.

Other Devices. Tennis courts, barbecue ovens and other outdoor living areas are coming in for their share of lighting treatment. Single sealed beam lamp fixtures mounted on spike metal extension poles from 5 to 8 feet high do the trick having extension cords and being portable. A 3-lamp cluster and unit with a 3-piece telescoping pole, adjustable from 5 to 13 inches is also available for special situations.

Sometimes installation of garden lighting poses a little problem, however. Although one or two garden lights may be run off a weatherproof convenience outlet from house or garage, the safest method is to install a new underground circuit directly from the main fuse box. Additional side current loads, put on obsolete wiring systems may cause trouble.

Canadians Seek Building Site in New York City

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (U.P.)—Canada's consul-general in New York, Ray Lawson, says sponsors of a proposed eight-million-dollar "Central Canada House" hope to select a site in New York City before the end of this year.

Interviewed during a visit here yesterday, Lawson said 29 private sponsors already have pledged $100,000 each to get the project going. A sponsors' committee will be named soon to select the building site, he added.

The building is planned to house offices of Canadian government agencies and firms as well as the Canadian Club, of New York.

Don't Mix Metals In Attaching Gutters, Flashing

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER
AP Real Estate Editor

Autumn leaves in roof gutters — or eaves troughs, if you call them that — can be a godsend. Maybe you consider them a dangerous nuisance, clogging up your downspouts, staining your house paint and washing out your shrubbery.

But they compel you to get up on a ladder, and that gives you a chance to see what's going on up on the roof.

And what some see up there makes them hoping mad — supposedly lifetime gutters and flashing disintegrating around nailholes. It that metalwork copper, nailed with copper nails? No. Is it aluminum, nailed with aluminum nails? No. And it isn't stainless steel, nailed with steel nails.

Galvanic Action
That's the trouble — galvanic action. You can't mix metals and leave them to the weather without dog eating dog. "It's somewhat equivalent to making a mild storage battery out of your roof," says an expert. "Just as the metal plates in a battery ultimately break down, so one of the two unlike metals breaks down from electrolytic action."

This commentator was C. E. Howes of the Berger division of Republic Steel. In manufacturing stainless steel gutters, downspouts and other roofing materials, his organization has run into many quibbles of galvanic action.

"One home owner," Howes told us, "insisted on buying a downspout of a different metal than that used for the gutters on his house. The contractor advised against it and predicted that one or the other would break down within a year. But each metal was warranted corrosion-resistant for many years. The home owner saved a few pennies, but within a year, as predicted, the downspout was eaten away by galvanic action and had to be replaced."

Sometimes the origin of this electrolytic action is hard to locate. Howes tells of one complete installation of gutters and downspouts all of one metal that showed signs of deterioration. "An experienced roof metal contractor looked over every foot of that roof," the expert recalled, "until he came to the dirt covered flashing around chimneys, some of which touched the gutter hangers. They were of dissimilar metal. Every time it rained, water conducted electricity between the two unlike metals and galvanic action did its damage."

New Lock Developed
A new lock has turned up in the hardware stores — sort of a padlock that went to college. It calls for no hooks or other attachments. Fine for workshop drawers to protect youngsters from sharp tools. The biggest advantage is that you can take it with you when traveling and lock almost any closet door or bureau drawer you come to in a hotel, without marring the woodwork.

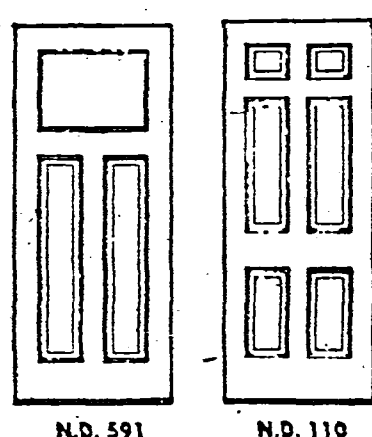

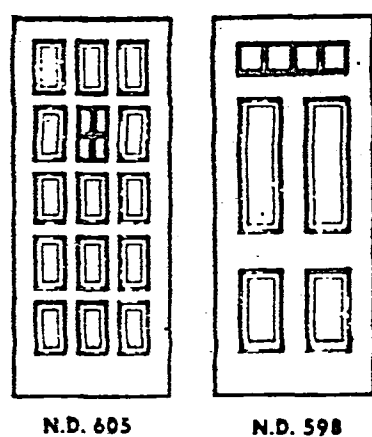

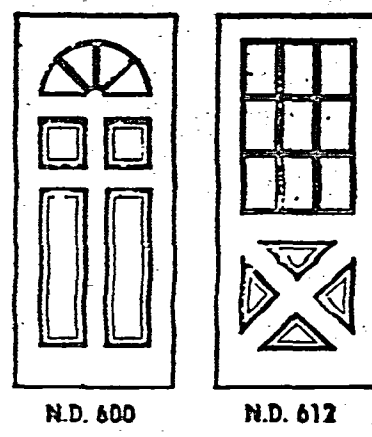

It has a strong knife-like hook that fits through the crack of a door or drawer, fastening into the latch plate. The lock itself slides along notched blade until snug against the door. When the key is turned and removed the door can't be opened. It works on a filing cabinet, too, and retails under $3.

The Sign of the cross seen on many modern doors has been used on doors for hundreds of years. The numbers are those used by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Cross Still Put in Doors

Many modern ponderosa pine panel doors carry the sign of the cross in their design, a tradition that began hundreds of years ago, when divine protection was sought for the entrance to the house.

The numbers have been assigned by the U. S. Department of Commerce in its Commercial Standard CS120-48. Doors may be ordered by these stock numbers.

Five variations of the cross-symbol are illustrated: The tall, slim Latin cross (N.D. 600), the X-shaped St. Andrew's cross (N.D. 612), the square Greek cross (N.D. 605 and 598), the T-shaped Egyptian cross (N.D. 591), and the cross of Lorraine (N.D. 110).

Panel doors without the cross design also are available.

No deaths were reported, but official sources said many victims were in a serious condition. Beirut hospitals were crowded with casualties. BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggly, the Lady Mouse Teacher of Hollow Tree School and the boy and girl pupils were marching through the woods. The children were carrying bunches of autumn leaves. The leaves were beautifully colored red, gold, purple, brown and yellow. Jack Frost had tinted the leaves, so they would fall to the ground. Winter was coming and in that part of the woods where Uncle Wiggly lived, most of the trees colored their leaves and let them fall when Winter was near.

Uncle Wiggly and the Lady Mouse Teacher were also carrying bunches of the lovely autumn colored leaves.

"They will make our class room look beautiful, when the children give the school play," said Miss Mouse in her funny, little squeaking voice. "I can hardly wait to see it!"

"Yes, the room will be very pretty," said Uncle Wiggly. "What is the play going to be about?"

"That's a secret," answered Miss Mouse. "Now Johnnie Bushytail, the suddenly called to one of the squirrel boys, 'Please stop throwing hickory nuts at Jackie Bow Wow!'"

"Jackie doesn't mind—do you, Jackie?" asked Johnnie.

"Let him throw as many nuts as he likes," barked the little puppy dog boy. "I will throw them right back at him!" Jackie dropped his leaves and began picking up some of the nuts that Johnnie had thrown.

"Please stop it!" ordered Miss Mouse. "You boys might hit some of the girls! Please stop!"

"All right," agreed Johnnie and Jackie. They picked up the leaves they had dropped to have a game of nut tag, and then walked on with the other pupils.

"So the school play is a secret: is it?" asked Uncle Wiggly as he hopped along beside Miss Mouse. "Oh, yes, a very special secret," answered the teacher. "But I can tell you the secret when you come to see the play."

"If I come to see the play you need not tell me the secret," suggested the rabbit gentleman. "I can see the secret for myself."

"Oh, so you can! Ha! Ha! Ha! I never thought of that!" squeaked Miss Mouse. You will know the school play, will you not, Uncle Wiggly?"

"I would not miss it for anything," answered the rabbit.

"We can start decorating the class room with these leaves today," said Miss Mouse. "Then it will be ready for the play tomorrow."

"And Mr. Coke, the rat gentleman janitor, is going to the woods to bring back the branches of colored leaves that the squirrel boys cut down; isn't he, Miss Mouse?"

"Yes, I will send Mr. Coke to the woods for the big autumn branches as soon as we reach the school. No! No! Susie Littletail!" called Miss Mouse quickly to a small rabbit girl. "Please don't stick the leaves in your fur. Save them for the class room."

"Yes'm, Miss Mouse," answered Susie politely.

Back in the woods, where the branches of autumn leaves waited for the rat gentleman janitor to come and pick them up, something was happening. Fixie, the big fox bad chap, and Dixie, the little boy fox, were slinking among the branches.

"Hide yourself, Dixie," gargled the daddy fox. "This is your chance to hide!" That was where we left off in Saturday's story, if you will kindly remember.

"Where do you want me to hide myself, daddy?" asked Dixie.

"In one of these tree branches of colored leaves," answered Fixie.

"Why should I do that?" asked the small fox.

"So that when Mr. Coke comes to get these branches, to carry them back to Hollow Tree School, he will also take you with them. You will be hidden from sight in a big leaf branch. In that way you will be able to sneak into the school without being seen."

"Why should I do that?" asked Dixie.

"So that you can play a trick on Uncle Wiggly," barked old fox, Fixie. "Sometimes when they talk, foxes bark." There will be more about Dixie's trick tomorrow if the piece of apple pie doesn't jump over the piece of cheese when it should be hiding in the bowl of powdered sugar.

Catholic Schools Plan Observance Of Education Week

(Activities developing the theme, "Catholic Schools Serve the Community," are planned in all Catholic schools this week in observance of American Education Week.

Cathedral elementary and junior high schools will have an open house Wednesday with parents and friends invited to visit classes during the day and to attend the regular parent-teacher meeting in the evening.

Open house also is being planned at St. Casimir's School on Wednesday during class hours. A series of posters prepared by students showing how a Catholic school trains for life will be on display.

St. Mary's Elementary and Junior High schools have scheduled parent-teacher conferences from 1 to 5 p.m. today, Tuesday and Wednesday and Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. There will be an open house for parents Friday morning and afternoon. Students in the St. Mary's Junior High School have participated in an essay contest on the subject, "Neighborhoodness, a Christian Duty," and have sponsored an exhibit of posters in Winona stores showing the contribution of Catholic schools to the community.

Activities at St. John's School will be centered on two topics, "Stewardship of God's Wealth in a Prosperous Community" and "Neighborhoodness, a Christian Duty."

The kindergarten and elementary grades at St. Stanislaus School are studying the family as the basic unit of social living and are working on projects which depict the community as a large family. Middle grades in the school have completed an exhibit explaining the benefit of Catholic schools in the community.

The students of Notre Dame Junior High School have planned meetings during the week to acquaint themselves with city ordinances concerned with children and teenagers. Among their activities will be a choral presentation of "The American Creed."

A skit, "Diabolic Doses," written and produced by Notre Dame students, will be broadcast by KWN and KWN-FM at 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

An open house for parents will be held at St. Stanislaus Wednesday from 7 to 8 p.m. and will be followed by a Home-School Association meeting.

Yule Trade Outlook Good

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Christmas trade prospects, with customers believed in a better buying mood than last year, cheer merchants in most cities.

Prices on gifts will be about the same or a little lower this year. But many store owners are expecting to equal and maybe surpass last year's dollar sales volume. Since the largest trading of the year is crowded into the final weeks, the results of the holiday selling make or break the year's earnings record for most stores.

Promotion plans are well along. The National Retail Dry Goods Assn. reports most member stores plan to match last year's record advertising.

The trade is going in heavily this year for gift packaging. A large array of items will be decked out in holiday garb to lure the shopper. Some of the packages are designed for double duty — made usable as containers of various sorts after the gift is removed.

This year merchants will have the advantage of one more shopping day between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Some 12 million Americans will receive more than one billion dollars in Christmas cash checks this month, for a new record high. Retailers expect almost half of that sum to be spent for Christmas gifts.

And Americans are about as well heeled this year as last.

'Swindle' of GIs In Europe Charged

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rep. Hess (R-Ohio) said last night a House Armed Services Subcommittee will start an investigation tomorrow of charges that GIs in Europe are being swindled at the rate of eight million dollars a year.

He said the investigation was prompted by an article entitled "How to Steal $8 Million a Year" by Michael Stern in Argosy magazine and by information secured by a committee investigator in Spain.

Stern alleged racketeers gained the money through food, whisky and insurance deals.

With the Minnesota and Wisconsin deer seasons opening Saturday, Nov. 20, the hundreds of deer hunters throughout this area, we are sure, are going to enjoy the series of tips on deer hunting starting with this Voice of the Outdoors. Arnold "Arnie" Kohner, the author, has put in more than 25 seasons of deer hunting, including a childhood in the deer country of northern Minnesota.

Deer Hunting
By ARNOLD KOHNER
To get the most out of that big game hunting trip this fall, you must have complete plans. Start now to plan your party, place to hunt, where to stay, firearms to be used, clothes to wear, etc.

I am going to try to lay out a complete trip from start to finish. This should be a great help to those who have hunted very little or not at all and also to those who have hunted only in the area near home. The season being closed in this southern area, many of you may wish to go north this fall. This will be a new experience and new grounds for you.

As stated above, plan your party, who will drive, where you will stay, firearms and what you will wear. Always prepare for very cold weather; sometimes it doesn't come but you can always shed the clothes if it is too warm. Here is my get-up, starting at the feet: Two pair of woolen socks, one pair of felt or sheepskin shoes, four or five buckle overshoes, two suits of heavy underwear, with long sleeves and legs. I have seen the day when I wore both suits at one time to keep warm at 46 degrees below zero. Woolen pants, woolen shirt in red, of course, red mackinaw, with perhaps a sweater underneath which can be other than red, but avoid white or tan. Red cap with earflaps. On my hands I prefer large mittens with a pair of woolen mittens inside. At least two red handkerchiefs and perhaps an extra piece of red cloth several feet square.

Some of you will say, "How can a person shoot with mittens on?" Notice, I said large mittens. A mitten can be slipped off your hand in no time and your hand is warm, fingers are limber and you can find your safety on the gun and know what tension you apply in the trigger, in other words you are in first class shape to shoot whereas gloves in cold weather give you cold, stiff and numb fingers. This causes accidents and inefficiency. This should cover clothing fairly well.

Firearms should be thoroughly cleaned, wipe or wash out all oil from the mechanism. Oil thickens in cold weather and often causes a gun to misfire, especially automatics. Kerosene and a paint brush are best for washing out the gun. Do not oil after cleaning. The little wear a gun gets while hunting will not hurt it.

Among other things, you should have a good compass. Always carry matches, preferably in a waterproof case, hunting knife and a map of the area, in which you are hunting. A small flashlight is also a good precaution. Don't forget your shells and license.

Now we are ready to start on our trip. Always go up the day before and if possible early, so you can study the area and perhaps pick a posting spot for the next morning. Getting an early start eliminates the necessity of speeding and reduces accidents and dangers on the road. Use this slogan on the road, "Drive slower, get there faster."

Now you are in camp the night before the opening of the season. Take out your map and study the lakes, streams, roads or maybe even a railroad track. This is one of the secrets to keep from getting lost. Your compass is no good to you if you do not know what direction to go to come out of the woods. But if you know that to the east of you is a road, stream or a lake, then you go east. The same holds good if the thing you have selected as a marker is north, south or west. Also study the map to know which way to follow this stream, road etc., for the shortest distance for help. If you leave your car on a road that runs fairly straight and you walk south into the woods to hunt surely you have to go north to get back to that road or car. (To be continued.)

Northern Season
River zone game wardens have requested us to make clear to all fishermen that the season is not closed in the river zone for northern fishing. Minnesota has closed "inland waters" which locally means Lake Winona. River zone is open to all fishing including bass until March 1. The sturgeon season in the river closed Oct. 31.

Soldier's Car Found In Trempealeau Co.

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — Trempealeau County Sheriff Ernest Axness has contacted the owner of a 1941 Plymouth car which was found near the Daggett School on Highway 53 between Whitehall and Pigeon Falls Thursday morning.

Personal papers indicated that the car belonged to Robert E. Holley, Wabash, Ind. Information he could secure indicated that Holley is presently in Army service at Camp Hale, Colo., but at the moment is at his home at Wabash. The Texas license plates were not issued to Holley, and the latter when contacted said he had loaned the car to one Taber, soldier at Camp Hale, to use on a trip back to his home in Wisconsin.

Sheriff Axness has not been notified what disposition to make of the car, which is now in his custody.

Sawdust From O'BRIEN'S

THE other day I was looking through my accumulation of Popular Mechanics magazines. I wasn't looking for anything in particular, but I happened across a page devoted to letters from the readers. Here they write the editors about things they would like to see developed. In this 1951 issue one reader wrote that he would like to see some product developed that would cover up the edges of plywood so a better finished job could be had. Well, call it coincidence if you want, but not long after that a salesman from one of our many suppliers dropped in to our office and announced that he had a new product. With that he brought out his sample case and proudly showed us the item I have just been talking about. A thin veneer strip to cover up the edges of plywood. We were very interested in this because we had often heard from our customers that plywood for the job they had to do would be all right if there was some way to cover the edges and get a nicer looking job. So we proceeded to ask questions about it. Here is what we found out:

This is an actual veneer, not a plastic. It is taken off a log just the same as regular plywood veneer. This means that it will match the plywood exactly and can be sanded and finished just as the large piece will be. After it is shaved from the log at 1/32" thickness, it is cut into strips 3/4" wide and 48" long. That is the way you can buy it. Then for any thickness of plywood you are using it would require cutting this 3/4" strip to size. But being so thin and a regular veneer this is an easy job and it can be sanded to look like part of the original plywood.

Now, how do we fasten it? It is manufactured with a contact glue applied and covered with a paper. When you are ready to use it you merely pull off the paper and press onto the edge of the plywood. The heat of your hand makes part of the bond and the heat of sanding afterwards makes the bond permanent. We asked him how long this cement would last — if it would ever loosen and pull away? He told us that they have put this little item through exhaustive tests through many months and it has yet to loosen. Also, he stated that it will not be pulled away after the cement has set. If you can get a finger nail under it as we did with his sample you will chip the piece before it will pull away.

OK, what's the name of this product? It's called Wood Tape. What wood is it going to be available in? You will be able to purchase Wood Tape in 6 different woods: Red or white mahogany, fir, birch, walnut or oak. However, we are only going to stock Wood Tape in the fir for the time being. These special woods are available on special order and can be had very quickly. I don't know whether the Popular Mechanics reader who wanted to see this product developed knows that it has finally come or not, but I do know this, that if he does, he is just as pleased with it as you will be when you first use it. Now you can make the things out of plywood that you have hesitated on before because there was nothing you could do with the edges but sanding. Keep that name in mind now, Wood Tape! And remember, no clamping, no gluing, no sawing, just apply, sand and finish. Wood Tape Plywood edging.

TC Ends Season With Loss at Eau Claire, 26-13

Setback Second For Local Team

By DAILY NEWS SPORTS WRITER
EAU CLAIRE, Wis.—The Winona State Warriors ended a successful season on a sour note here Saturday afternoon, losing to a homecoming-spirited Eau Claire team 26-13. The game marked only the second time that the Warriors have been beaten this year, and gave them a record of five wins, two losses and one tie. The other loss came at the hands of St. Cloud in a battle for the conference championship, and the tie in a game with Bemidji State.

Giants to Meet Eagles in Top Pro Tilt Sunday

By ORLO ROBERTSON
The Associated Press
Commissioner Bert Bell couldn't have done a better job if he had waited until today to make up next Sunday's National Football League schedule.

The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles are tied for the Eastern Division lead, each with 5-2 records. They meet Sunday at New York's Polo Grounds. The champion Detroit Lions lead the second-place San Francisco 49ers by a game in the west-coast column. They clash Sunday at Detroit with the Lions seeking to square accounts for the season. The champions' only setback was a 37-31 beating by the 49ers at Frisco. They have won five, the 49ers are 4-2 with one tie.

The two naturals were set up when the Giants knocked the Pittsburgh Steelers out of a three-way tie for the top spot in the Eastern section 30-6 and the Eagles downed the Chicago Cardinals 30-14. The Lions rode roughshod over the Baltimore Colts 27-3 Saturday night and the 49ers dropped a 42-34 decision to the Los Angeles Rams. At the same time the Cleveland Browns, who with the Lions have played one less game than the remainder of the clubs, kept right at the leaders' heels with a 62-3 romp over the Washington Redskins. The victory left the Browns, defending Eastern champions, with a 4-2 mark. The Chicago Bears edged the Green Bay Packers 28-23 in the other game.

The ease with which the Giants knocked off the Steelers came as a big surprise of the day although the Rams' win over the 49ers was not what the experts expected. They had tied 21-24 earlier in the season. But without a doubt the 49ers missed the injured Hugh McElhenny yesterday as they slowed down after scoring 17 points in the first period.

The Giants, rebounding from their defeat by Cleveland, picked up two points early in the game on a safety and never let up the pressure. Chuck Conerly, exploiting Pittsburgh's weak defense to the fullest, tossed three touchdown passes, and Eddie Price, who ripped off yardage by the chunks, went over from the two for the 20. Conerly completed 13 out of 20 aerials.

Witzig Made Rep On Hawaii Cards

The appearance of Jack Witzig on the wrestling card to night at the Red Men's Club will give the program "local" flavor.

Witzig, who tangles with 240-pound Frank Hickey of Los Angeles in the one-fall, 30-minute opening bout, hails from nearby Eau Claire, Wis. A solid 228-pounder, Witzig attended St. Thomas College in St. Paul and before that attended high school in Eau Claire. He competed in wrestling and also football in high school and college.

Witzig made his wrestling debut in St. Paul in 1951, but he was anything but sensational. Unhonored and unsung, he went to Virginia, North Carolina, San Francisco and finally the Hawaiian Islands.

The Witzig frame filled out, his shoulders started to bulge and his skill grew with every match. In 1953 he was voted Honolulu's favorite wrestler after drawing some of the biggest crowds in island history. About a year ago Witzig flew home for the holidays.

Witzig's return to these parts led to a spot on a Minneapolis card. Not even listed on the program, Witzig put on a great exhibition against the 300-pound Mighty Ursus. His debut was called the most sensational since Vern Gagne.

Witzig will have plenty of opportunity to display his wares tonight in the American Legion-sponsored program. Witzig's bout, first on the program, starts at 8:20 p.m.

Following the opener, Betty Hawkins of Louisville, Ky., will tangle with Barbara Baker, 140, Charleston, W. Va., in a one-fall, 30-minute special event.

The main event pits rough and rowdy Hard Boiled Hagerty, 255-pound Pier Six brawler from New York, against 235-pound Malcolm Brenner of Santa Monica, Calif. The main go is scheduled for one fall with an hour time limit.

Ohio State Set To Cinch Title

By JOE MOOSHL
CHICAGO (U)—Five Big Ten games are scheduled Saturday and before the smoke clears Ohio State could very well clinch the conference title and the right to play in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Riding a string of seven successive victories including a 28-0 triumph Saturday over Pitt, the Buckeyes can turn the trick by beating Purdue and getting a little help from Michigan State.

The Spartans humiliated Washington State, 54-6. Aside from Ohio State, only Minnesota and Michigan remain in contention. An Ohio State victory automatically would eliminate the Gophers from the race since Minnesota only plays six conference games.

Minnesota tuned up for the final drive with a 44-6 victory over Oregon State. A Coulee a Buckeye victory with a Michigan loss to Michigan State Saturday and that would settle the question.

However, Michigan, 14-7 victor over Illinois, and Purdue, beaten by Iowa, 25-14, have other ideas. The Wolverines must win Saturday in order to force Ohio State into a showdown Nov. 20.

Minnesota has the roughest row to hoe. The Gophers must beat Iowa and hope for victories by both Purdue and Michigan State. Then they would have to beat Wisconsin and hope for a Michigan victory over Ohio State.

The Buckeyes can lose to Purdue and still take all the chips with a triumph over Michigan. Among the also rans this week, Wisconsin and Illinois tangle at Champaign. It'll be homecoming for the Illini and they could get

Gophers Plug For Iowa After 44-6 Victory

By JIM KLOBUCHAR
MINNEAPOLIS (U)—Minnesota donned its crusaders' plumes today and toiled for Iowa, with only he-men allowed or wanted.

It was only incidental that Minnesota still has a faint chance for the Big Ten title or is reaching for pinnacles not attained since more than a decade ago.

Gopher veterans want this one to rub out the memory of last year's game, in which Iowa's 27-0 margin didn't nearly reflect the Minnesotans' terrific physical beating.

Iowa, shouldered out of title consideration with early defeats by Michigan and Ohio State, is in the midst of another stretch run which first kayaked Wisconsin and then Purdue last week.

Minnesota, meanwhile, did little more than heavy scrimmaging Saturday in its 44-6 plastering of weak Oregon State.

It was scarcely surprising that Minnesota reached a season's high in offensive efficiency, rolling up 492 yards behind Bob McNamara, Shorty Cochran, Geno Capelletti and a line which merely bulldozed away the younger and less talented Beavers.

There will be no such caper against Iowa, right now considered the No. 2 team in the conference in spite of two defeats.

Saturday's Memorial Stadium battle leaves Minnesota with this Rose Bowl possibility.

If it can beat Iowa and Wisconsin, Minnesota can get to Pasadena only by Ohio State losses to Purdue and Michigan plus a Michigan State victory over Michigan.

At this stage, the odds aren't worth considering. But Minnesota's splendid 6-1 record so far this year has elevated Murray Warmath into contention for coach of the year and produced as many victories as any Gopher team since 1941.

It has also helped raise fullback McNamara to new stature with each succeeding game. The Hastings senior was never stronger or faster than in Saturday's romp.

Warmath threw away all restraint and called him the greatest back in the country. McNamara's 161 yards and two touchdowns Saturday from a position he has played for only two games were solid arguments in support of Warmath.

Minnesota regulars played only two quarters against the westerners and came close to batting 1,000. They scored in six of eight trips with the ball.

The reserves, however, had troubles in the second quarter and they hinted that lack of real depth may be decisive against Iowa.

Aside from McNamara's great performance, there was this encouragement for Gopher supporters: Rochester's Shorty Cochran, running confidently and hard as a first string right half, scored three touchdowns in his best day at Minnesota.

Quarterback Geno Capelletti recovered from a midseason slump to throw three touchdown passes and direct the team without flaw. Deep reserves, especially fullback Jerry Eisenberg, got a chance to strut in the fourth period and played well.

The Gophers scored three times in the first quarter on McNamara's 48-yard run, Cochran's dash from the 29 and a 35-yard pass from Capelletti to Cochran. After Oregon State's Bob Clark hit on a touchdown pass to Leon Hittner in the second quarter, the regulars returned in the third for Capelletti's touchdown passes for 22 and 11 yards to Cochran and Jim Soltau and McNamara's one-yard smash. Minnesota added a safety in the last quarter.

All won eight games. The shrinking group lost one member last Saturday when Miami of Florida bowed to Auburn 14-13. Other eight games winners included Luther (Iowa), Montana State and Carleton (Minn.), which has completed its season.

Cage Coaches to Appear at Quarterback Club Meeting

The YMCA Quarterback Club will ring out the football season and ring in the basketball season at its last meeting of the year Tuesday night, 6:30 p.m., at the "Y."

Coaches of Winona grid teams which concluded seasons over the weekend will review the year. They are Gene Brodhagen of Winona State, Chet Bulger of St. Mary's and Gordie Paschka of Winona High.

In addition to the appearance of the football coaches, head basketball coaches at Winona's four schools have been invited to attend and give previews on the forthcoming cage season.

Basketball mentors are Don Snyder of Winona High, Johnny Nett of Colter High, Ken Wiltgen of St. Mary's and Lyle Arns of Winona State.

Sports Sidelights

By EARL GILBERT
Old Man Reeve has taken off for parts unknown between local football and basketball seasons. After the wild guesses I made this week I'd like to go and hide too. More about that later.

While watching the Gophers make hard work of kicking Michigan State a week ago, it appeared that what that club needs most is a topnotch split-T quarterback. Not that Quist and Capelletti aren't good ballplayers, they just don't seem to fill the bill as split-T mainstays. When the day comes that Murray gets a boy for that position of the caliber of Giel or McNamara...

look out! The kid will have to be more than a combination of field general and passer. He will have to be quick as a cat and able to keep his feet in the secondary once he breaks past the hole at the line of scrimmage.

That kind of player will be almost impossible to defense because he has the option of exploding uptied on any play in the book when he sees the opening. Bierman says it is a big mistake to build a defense by trying to outguess the offense as they know what they're going to run, so how can you beat them at it? But when the offense doesn't even know what's going to transpire until the defense has committed itself... that's really going to put the burden on the defensive club.

Those McNamaras are the finest brother backfielders at Minnesota since Wally and Johnny Haas. Very similar two-somes in many respects. The defense looked great. Gang kicking like the tough Gopher teams of the Bierman era. A socking defense like that takes a lot of zip out of speedy halfbacks by the time the fourth period rolls around.

Speaking of defense... I liked the way those two Winona High School junior classmen, Chuck Wally and Wilton Berger came up from secondary wingback positions Friday night to lace it to Mankato runners. Both boys jarred the ball loose with crushing tackles in the first period the other night.

As football grew up in the East and later found its greatest emphasis in the West, it looks as though major league baseball is about to face a like situation. Business is business so it's just plain common sense to go where 2 million will knock themselves out to watch your club perform rather than a few hundred thousand. I've seen bigger crowds at American Association contests than at one of the final Philly-Giant games this season in Philadelphia.

It was Curt Simmons versus Sal Maglie under the lights on a beautiful night and you could have had practically any seat in the upper deck. That same afternoon a meager crowd watched the bigtime Duke-Penn football game in the same city. They obviously aren't as sports minded as we in this part of the country.

The three Daily News scribes have had it rough this weekend. The loss about it is better. We all picked Rice over Arkansas, Miami U over Auburn, and Indiana over Miami of Ohio; Winona High over Mankato and WSC over Eau Claire. On top of that, I picked Purdue over Iowa. Eggleson saw Ohio State and Pitt playing a tie. How wrong can you get? Here are the present standings in The Daily News "Pin the Tail on the Donkey League."

McNamara Tied for Big 10 Scoring Lead

CHICAGO (U)—Minnesota's Bob McNamara cracked out a pair of touchdowns Saturday to vault into a tie with Earl Smith of Iowa for the lead in the Big Ten scoring.

Smith, the undisputed leader for three successive weeks, scored once Saturday in Iowa's victory over Purdue giving him 54 points.

Bobby Watkins of Ohio State remained in the running with a pair of touchdowns giving him 51 points.

The figures include all games played by Big Ten teams. Alan Ameche of Wisconsin put across one touchdown against Northwestern to hold onto fourth place with 42 points.

Hopalong Cassidy of Ohio State failed to score for the third A couple of Minnesota stars, Dar-

MILWAUKEE (U)—Artie Bues, 66, the home run king of the era before Babe Ruth, died of a heart attack at his Whitefish Bay home Sunday.

Bues, who played third base for the Milwaukee Brewers and three major league teams, became known as the country's king of homers while playing at Seattle, just before he moved up to the New York Giants.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Answer to Question No. 1
1. Lois Long, fashion authority, says in New York Times that in years of peace, sound money, and security, women wear long hair, massive pompadours, false curls, etc. But in the social chaos and currency inflation following wars they bob their hair and make it look "deliciously rumpled" — like they just got out of bed and had used an egg beater instead of a comb.

Answer to Question No. 2
2. Left side, Dr. Brandt, Visual Research Institute, found 78 per cent of readers look at the left side first. They read roughly 60 per cent of the first 15 seconds on the left side, 40 per cent on the right. Of 60 editors questioned, 20 per cent guessed people read the left first; 35 per cent, the right, 45 per cent, equal.

Answer to Question No. 3
3. Robert C. Cook, eminent authority, says in a letter to me (paraphrased), "The current claims that there is no connection between obesity and heredity are nonsense. Obesity represents a higher metabolism than does leanness. The bacon and lard type hogs are examples of inherited fatness and leanness." Calories are important, but on the same diet one person becomes fat; another, thin.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERIC BRANDEIS

According to scientists convened in Rome, Italy, the earth is slipping, and in a few years, say a couple of million or so, she (or is the earth an it?) may have disappeared entirely.

Another thing that is the matter with the earth, according to these gentlemen of science, is that the days are getting longer. About that more anon.

The slipping of the earth has no particularly immediate effect. It is more as if a woman's slip is showing. There is supposed to be a slip of about 75 feet a year between the earth's outer skin and her (its) inner core. Which isn't very much, but, on the other hand, it is only about the same as a lady's slip showing a half inch, still wouldn't be very good, would it?

The whole thing was brought out at an international geophysics conference in Rome, at which 42 nations were represented.

I don't want to say anything against conferences or conventions. I intend to go to one of my fraternity myself next month, and if my wife reads this I don't want her to think that all men do at these affairs is to have a good time.

As you can see by what was done at this geophysics conference, world-shaking events are discussed, such as the days getting longer, for instance.

There are now more than 24 hours to each day. You needn't change your watch as yet, though. So far, the change isn't noticeable and won't be for a couple of million years. And by that time I really don't think that you will care what time it is.

I understand from the paper that came out of the conference that the change in time is 3 1/4 seconds in a thousand years. What causes it? Nobody knows. One of the scientists, a Dr. Roger Revelle, delegate from the U. S. National Research Council, thinks that "two major factors are tidal friction slowing down the earth's turn on its axis, and the torque exerted on the earth by the sun through atmospheric ties."

I haven't the slightest idea what this means, but in case you want to make an impression on your girl or at an afternoon tea, it certainly sounds nice if you talk about the "torque exerted on the earth," etc., etc.

One thing I would recommend to you. Don't go worrying now about the earth's slip showing or about the days getting longer and your watch being out of kilter or about any of the other disturbing events you read and hear so much about these days.

I personally predict that in a million years—if the earth still exists then, which I am inclined to doubt—there will still be conventions and meetings at which the delegates will make impressive speeches—and accomplish comparatively little.

It's just one of those human characteristics to want to be important and show off what you know or think you know, although this is by no means a reflection on that Rome conference or any other convention.

By the way, when I couldn't get to sleep, I read a very important booklet just issued by the U. S. Printing Office. It is entitled, "Acute Infectious Hemorrhagic Fevers and Myxomatosis in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

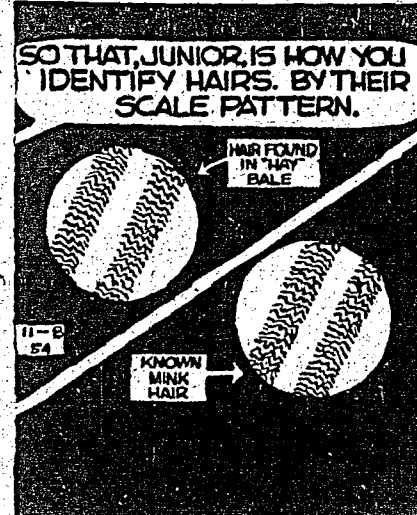

Unfortunately I can't report on its contents. I fell asleep on the fifth page and shot like a baby.
