News on students in Oslo Exchange

The Oslo Exchange Program has brought Ingrid Aasen, 21, of Oslo, Norway to WSC.

Ingrid Aasen, a student at the University of Oslo, is studying for a four-year degree program in medical technology designed to provide a sound education in laboratory medicine.

The two-part program consists of a pre-medical technology program and a professional component. The second part requires successful completion of the first component to complete all general education and professional requirements.

The second part is spent at the laboratory medicine program in Norway on the same campus. She has already been in Oslo Exchange for one year. Here the student learns medicine.

The second part is spent at an affiliated hospital during the senior year. At this time, the student must write a qualifying paper and pass a practical examination that will determine the student's level of competence.

The professional component is further divided into two parts: the first part requires the student to complete a pre-medical technology segment, which includes courses in biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics. The second part of the professional component is a two-year program spent at an affiliated hospital during the senior year. Here the student learns medicine.

Davenport, Ia., a physical education student, is in his second year. Here the student learns medicine.

The government of Norway also has a program in Oslo, where students can take courses in medicine.

Letter questions senate actions...

TO THE EDITOR:

I must realize that as a result of this letter I may offend some people, possibly totally alienate them. But I sincerely hope that as an objective I may stir some people to action, for that is in my primary purpose. This is intended as an objective criticism.

There are several items the Student Senate of WSC should seriously consider, because these are valid issues, but I am speaking only as an objective.

The entire senate, executive board and individual senators should define their goals. The Senate has a purpose, it has been organized to fulfill a purpose, and every student involved with the senate, whether his term is past, current, or future, should define goals to work for which will better this institution. After these have been defined, the senate as a whole should decide an effective direction of achieving these goals. While deciding these, the concern should not only be for the students, but for the entire college community which does include faculty and administration.

To obtain, and possibly aid in senate direction, there should be consideration and evaluation of past senate actions with awareness of why these actions were good or bad. This should be an important factor in helping to define the immediate goals, for you can evolve from the future, past learning from past mistakes.

To be a cohesive and unified force, personal conflicts must be resolved. Controversy on an issue is important, but the siding on an issue must not be influenced by personality conflict. This could be handled in many ways such as leadership workshops, biannual coffee sales or even a senate party. However, I am not in a position to judge the most effective method. The primary concern is to unite the senate.

Student leaders in the senate are elected by the student body. Yet, in all, more student body contact cannot be over stressed. Listen to your students — seek them out. If you neglect the interest of these 4,000 students are the people your decisions affect. Few students know who their representatives are, much less where to find them. Many aren’t even aware when and where senate meetings are, or even if they may attend. The problems of the entire student body are the problems you can affect.

Along with this, there should be more initiative within the senate. The problems on this campus are not so few that resolutions cannot find the senate floor from each senator. When this is accomplished, the senate will be representative of the students, for the students. Finally there should be a full understanding of issues and what the senate can do to alleviate problems. This has been written to keep WSC progressing, and so it must be progressive, for the cumulative assembly and implementation hall on a campus, so does educational progress. Change is the only constant factor we have, for tomorrow is always different, change for the better.

Michigan Huskies ruin Homecoming game plan

by Connie Davis

The Michigan Tech Huskies ruined the Winona State Warrior's Homecoming with a 73-0 whipping, and brought Winona State's record to 1-5 for the season.

Conference leader Michigan Tech put together ten touchdowns and a 38 yard field goal to account for their 73 points. Senior Larry Ras carried the ball over three times, scoring his sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth touchdown of the season.

Michigan Tech got on the scoreboard early. Although Winona received the opening kickoff, they were unable to pick up the necessary first down and Paul Swanson was forced to punt, the first of many times during the game. The Huskies marched the ball down for a Larry Ras touchdown with 12:29 remaining in the first quarter. They managed one more touchdown during the first quarter, two touchdowns and a field goal during the second quarter, and really went wild, scoring four touchdowns the third quarter, while their defense managed to hold the Warriors from scoring.
