February 16, they kept telling me — February 16, that is. "Don't forget," they said, "very, very important." And I showed two blue tickets behind my ear. "What's all about?" I inquired. "Well, wouldn't you like to know," they retorted caustically, so I followed them to school.

Matchen and Tom Baab, reclining on the cold, cold floor of upper Sommen, met me, more or less, at the door. "Heathcliffe," they cried, "Heathcliffe, but I know I wasn't Heathcliffe, so decided I must read up on these things.

"Who are you?" I questioned.

"We're developing our personalities, they giggled, spun two blocks down the street and pointed to the closed doors ahead. I entered.

It looked like a Die-No-Mo rehearsal, but it couldn't be, as decided as someone in a little red wagon knocked me down. On stage Harry was soliloquing in glasses of pepper-cola, and Sprick was prancing around the auditorium shouting.

It kept up, and I stayed for half an hour. I asked what it meant, all of this, but just looked at each other and laughed knowingly. I'm minutes later, I asked again and someone threw a baseball bat. On it we were engraved the following names: Jean Zamboni, Edith Zamboni (sisters, no doubt), Elizabeth Harper, Sylvia Lello, Alverna Sprick, George Macdonald, Mary Meier, Lenore Bredeson and Tom Baab.

"Ha, ha," I quavered, "I have it. This is a cast. "What's broken?" they asked, and sat down to laugh heartily. I didn't think it was very funny so again told them I knew what it all about. "Quit you now," they murmured, "the list is not complete. Do not breathe it to a soul.

"Course not," I promised, "course not, and made a note to tell the editor.

The director was going through great contradictions by now, obviously showing someone how to split a personality. All this time I was being ignored, but the light was dawning. (I'm not so dumb)

Prescription for Peace

To the Editor:

How come T. C. students don't any yelling at the basketball games?

It's very peculiar, isn't it? If they have a deep-rooted spirit in them, this is the impression that a lot of the new students and outsiders get. Some have an interest in what is going on, and they give rise to wars to be eliminated, their causes must be eliminated.

The man who hangers is a danger to society, for he will seek to satisfy that instinct even if it be through crime. Likewise, a hungry nation, revenge will fester and the results will spread over the rest of the world.

Dangerous also to a democratic society is the man, or nation, who has no work, no raw materials to feed the machines that produce the essentials of living. For peace to be obtained for these must be provided at such circumstances, the nature of the minority group which is kept in bondage, will seek to break its bonds. In such a case, one must think for himself, is an easy prey for those who desire to gain power through influencing others.

We were beginning to think that something had happened to make all men strong and silent, when into our hall walked freshman Richard Patten. Dick, who is what is known as a “streetwise” (sp.), along himself across two chairs and in two minutes we were deep in a world-shaking discussion about the fate of R. O. Plenty.

We finally got back to work, though, and so we got a short film called “The Valley.” The title is Einfenstädt, and that he was once an Harry Lambertson and Don Douglas, both Winona residents, came in. They were in a hurry so we didn't tie them to our one apartment. The Kannel charm having made us completely lose our business bond we are doing it for nothing.

“Wanted. One apartment.”

Next came a pair of fellows, Bernard Koch and David Drugan, who looked about as happy as Marie Antoinette on her way to the guillotine. They barrac domed themselves behind a desk while we fixed our new apartment. It was a tough fight but we finally learned that Koch had entered the service in '42 as a member of the Seventh Air Force. He was stationed in the Pacific theatre when in his case, he inc curred the Mariannas, the New Hebrides, the Marshall's, the Gilberts, and the Carolinas; while Drugan used to call the 55th divi sion of St. Cloud's army "home" dur ing the time he served in Europe. We were quite interested to find out what they thought of the college, but the question frightened them so visibly that we withdrew it.

The Winonaan

Bemidji Tops Local Quint

Playing their second game of a two-game trip, the local TC Peds were defeated by a scrappy Bemidji T. C. quint Saturday night, 55-26. In St. Cloud.

Wayne Kannel, Winona center, was in rare form as he collected 23 points and seven rebounds in nine gift tosses. Jack Johnson, Bethel guard, led his team with 13 points.

Bemidji started out fast and was ahead 12-5 at the end of the first quarter and 23-10 at half time. Winona came alive in the third period, catching and narrowing the margin to 22-22 at the end of the third period.

The Warriors will travel to Mankato tomorrow evening for a tilt with the teachers college there. Accompanying the team will be the T.C. band.

Imtral Games Re-establish Men's Phy. Ed. Program

Following a recent chapel meeting, men students at the college decided in favor of intramural basketball games as the first step in the re-establishment of a program of physical activities for men. The games, which will be played on the campus, will be played on lines, days at four o'clock, will begin immediately. The department heads hope for at least four teams to open the activity.

Continuing the expansion of the men's physical education program will be the reorganization of the "W" club. A success of the 1942-43 club, the last one on campus, including Charles Lepe, Wayne Kannel, Sy Fritz, Bernard Bartel, Warren Smith, and Gilbert Rosley will begin the work of setting up the 1946 organization.

The program and the program will be courses in physical education for men to start during the four o'clock period. The courses will be played on lines, days at four o'clock, will begin immediately. The department heads hope for at least four teams to open the activity.

Game Party' Given by Club

A "game party" under the direction of George Matcham, recreational leader from the Midland Cooperative Wholesale, Minneapolis, was sponsored by the Elementary Grade Club, Monday evening, January 14.

Mr. Lukaszewski led group games, activity the groups which could be used by teachers in school and community groups. Rae Maren Olson, Dorothy Wildgrube, and Barbara Johnson were in charge of the party games.

During the day, Mr. Lukaszewski led gym class and community groups at the morning assembly, spoke to upperclassmen, and led the Phillips student activities during the noon hour.

Imagine this — trying to write an article for the paper and exactly ten fellows just sort of gathered all of a sudden. I didn't know that so many different conversations could be carried on at once. (My mistake, another one just wandered in — guess my motive is study, though.) Let's try anyway.

Broken Glass

I hear that it was necessary for one of us to purchase some new spectacles recently. It all happened when he was riding in the trunk of Tub's car. Tub went over the bump, Nagel's glasses flew off, and the truck laid down his head and crammed a chocolate ice cream cone into his left eye. (Nagel's that is.) Whatta mess! By the time they got back to the Lodge, Nagel had given all the information Tub the glasses were gone. They immediately returned to the scene of the accident and proceeded to look for the specks. After looking over the road with the ear light, Tub decided to drive down further and turn around. It wasn't until Tub heard something crunch under the wheels that Nagel's glasses were discovered.

I wonder why the boys who eat at the dorm don't report back to the Lodge until about 8:30 p.m.? I don't think they sit and chat over their coffee. I'd bet last night there's some special attraction!

Lucas Party

Wonder what a Lucas Lodge party would be like now? I've heard some rumors about one coming up. Let's dream just a little. Twenty-five couples would really be fun, wouldn't it? Dancing, ping-pong, checkers, quartets, group singing, interesting programs, all you can eat, and so many other things that make Lucas parties a success. (The above is paid advertisement!)

A Student

Here's one — Hendrickson got up before 8:15 a.m. on Wednesday to get his 8:30 class, and they tell me a whole week passed before Hansey called Chicago.

There seems to be wild betting going on about why Tubby is letting his beard grow and how long it will get before he shaves it off.

New Lodge

Kannel, Patton, and Fletz have joined the ranks of the Lodges since Christmas and, Uncle Sam snatched away Smaby and Suttie. Here are just a few bits from a conversation at the Lodge:

Phone conversation — "Hello, you lucky woman!"

"Who will call Cerrihad Sandager Jo-ju-tsu from the hours of 2:00 to 5:00? Line forms at the right."

"Lodger — "Some joker from Winona had her out."

"Roaring thorns entered the Lodge and exclaimed, "Here, Master of Woman!" Librarian — "You'll find that in the fiction section."

Two former Lodge members were recently married — namely John Kusul and Mary Grades.

The pajama parade is starting, so guess we'd better cut this short, nice.

Ace Letterman Returns

With the return to the Teachers College squad of Wayne Kannel, captain-elect of the 1945-46 basketball team, strength of the Winona Warriors has been increased.

Kannel, a junior from Plum City, Wisconsin, entered the college two semesters a year at the college and spent two and one-half years in the army, 22 months of which were spent in the E.T.O.

Kannel who was elected to the center post on the 1942-43 All Conference team, is enrolled at the college as a physical education major. Since his return, the 6'3", 210 pound T. C. Pett has scored 40 points in three conference games. He hit his top form in the Bemidji game last Saturday when he chalked up 28 points.

Kannel is also a star baseball player. He has the two letters in that sport while playing first base on the T. C. nine. Sports writer for the Winonaan before the war.

Kannel will resume his column, Athlete's Feats, in the next issue of the paper.

Students to Give Wages to W.S.S.F.

T. C. students will begin this week the jobs which they have taken to earn money for the World Student Service Fund. Launched during a chapel program on Wednesday, January 20, the drive, which is under the sponsorship of the WYCA, will continue throughout the following two weeks.

As part of the plan to raise money for the drive, the program was presented by faculty members and students in exchange for contributions donated by the audience. Betty Elwood, mistress of ceremonies, introduced speakers Janice Sellman, Jean Schwager and Mrs. Lois Turner who explained the work of the W.S.S.F.

These plans for raising funds, to be given for the aid of students in destitute countries, were begun as a follow-up of the report to the students made by Shirley Olson, representative from T. C., who attended a meeting concerning the drive at Macalester College late this fall.

Republican Governor George has attended Michigan State and served with the engineering branch of the army in the European theatre. Dwight was formerly in the air corps and stationed at Tuskegee Field.

At this stage we sent a runner out to locate "Buzz" Harders, alias Robert, while we settled down for a little cat-nap. We had nice dreams about about a blond fellow 6 feet 1 inches tall, weight about 180 lbs and when we woke up there he was in front of us, complete with a black overdress and black cap.

He identified himself as the guy we sent the butterfly out for and told us he had been a marine. Buzz has seen a lot of action but we won't embarrass him by mentioning the wherefores. We'll just say he was on Guam.

The little-hat-with-bulk, rather than the big, bulky cap, was the hat we wore. Choute's have some designed to be deliberately unbecoming. They are white, woolen with the popular and becoming "militarist" cap lines and high-fashioned jewelry necklaces; they are just the things for Buzz's visits. Choute's also have smooth, glossy gabardine suits that are attractive. They are good, and they add a natty fraction-inch to your height. The suits come in the loveliest colors and can be worn now under your coat. The little-breast-pocket, rather high, that concentrates its charm in its own - that's the hat you should wear with the new suits. Choute's are ready with a collection.

Sports shoes are getting tacky-looking! The French Slipper Shop, has for you casuals with a light-hearted heart in the kind of sports shoes that shine at school, dancing, and strolling. They are for light and easy on your feet.
