Democrats Take Control of New Congress

New Members Sworn In, Ike Message Thursday

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats took control of Congress today with the pledge of the new Senate majority leader, Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, that they will offer "neither blind support nor blind opposition" to President Eisenhower's program.

Both houses of the 84th Congress went through the formalities of transferring control from the Republicans to the Democrats, swearing in new members and then adjourned to await Eisenhower's personally delivered State of the Union message tomorrow.

That message is expected to be built around claims of prosperity at home and the nonexistence of hostilities abroad, with assurances that the GOP administration is moving to tighten the nation's defenses in an era of continuing cold war.

Re-elected as Democratic floor leader by a party caucus yesterday, Johnson said in an interview he and his colleagues have "rejected the theory that it is the duty of the opposition to oppose merely for opposition's sake."

Sees Good Session
Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he is looking forward to a "constructive session."

"I believe that on a good deal of legislation we will have cooperation between the two parties," he said.

Knowland said he and Johnson had agreed to keep in close consultation on the legislative program, but had not come to any understanding yet about what will be the first business before the Senate.

Rep. Rayburn of Texas, the incoming Democratic House speaker, said today that he will go to work first on Eisenhower's expected proposal for a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, together with additional tariff-cutting powers.

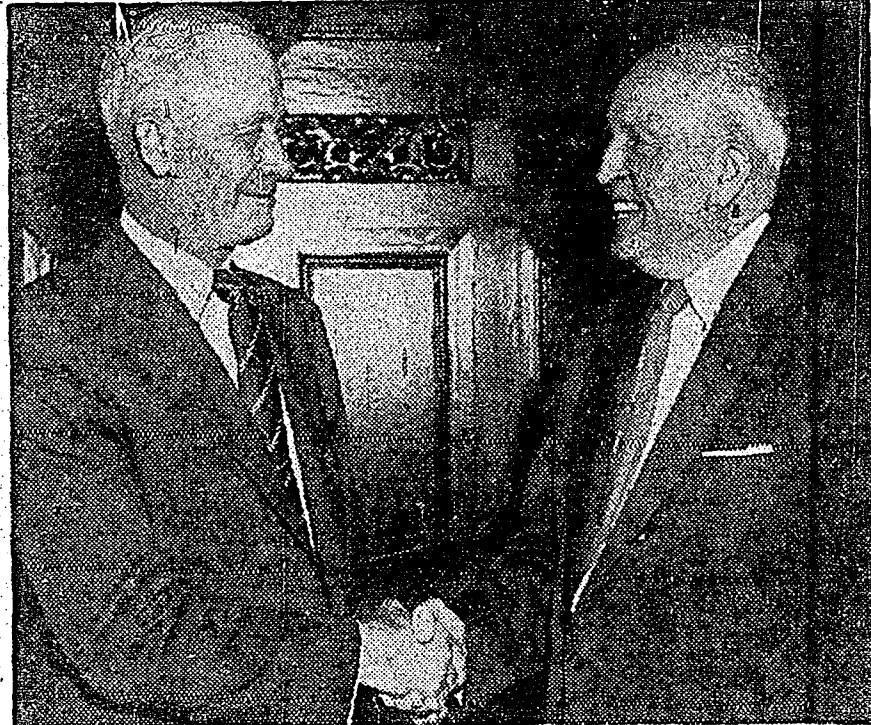

While Democrats in general likely will support that proposal, Rayburn told a caucus of Democratic representatives yesterday things were done and said by Republicans in last year's pre-election campaign that he could "neither give nor forget."

Heart's in Wrong Place So They'll Make Him Sergeant

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Peter Molland viewed with amusement the look of Maj. Robert F. Glock's face when the armed forces medical officer found Molland's heart on the right, and not the left, side.

Surprised as he was, the major had an answer. Said he of Molland: "With his heart in the wrong place, he ought to make a dandy sergeant."

Molland, 19, is a victim of dextrocardia, meaning his internal organs are all on the wrong side. He came three years ago from England and has been working on a farm near Randolph, Iowa.

Rep. A. I. Johnson, right, Benson liberal who was elected speaker of the Minnesota House of Representatives at the opening of the 50th session Tuesday, is congratulated by Rep. John Hartle, Owatonna, who had held the post under conservative control for the past three sessions. Johnson was elected over Hartle by a vote of 66-65. (AP photo)

60% Margin Ordered On Stock Purchases

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government put out a moderately restraining hand toward the surging stock market today, calling for purchasers of stocks to put up at least 60 per cent cash instead of the previous 50 per cent.

The action, announced by the Federal Reserve Board late yesterday, was promptly protested by the New York Stock Exchange president, Keith Funston, as restraining "the proper function of the market and the free interplay of the basic law of supply and demand."

The increased "down payment" is effective on stocks bought today and hereafter.

Steady Advance
The stock market has been advancing steadily for more than 15 months, and since the November elections it has been surging ahead with almost unprecedented speed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks topped yesterday at $156.40, a level topped only by the peak of $157.70 on Sept. 3, 1929, shortly before the big Wall Street crash. There were no federal cash minimums in 1929.

The government has no authority to regulate stock prices. A 1934 law authorizes the reserve board only to "prevent the excessive use of credit" in the stock market. The theory behind the action is that a hike in the cash requirement will cut down on speculative buying. The requirement could have been raised to 100 per cent.

Little Money Borrowed
New York brokers generally agree that speculation on margin is not a major factor in the present boom. The ratio of money borrowed by brokers to lend for margin trading is only about 1 per cent of the value of all securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange. In 1929 it was nearly 10 per cent.

According to the latest available reserve board figures, total credit extended to customers by brokers and dealers increased from $1,655,000,000 on Feb. 1, 1954, to $2,202,000,000 last Nov. 30.

It was possible the action might even stimulate market activity. Some officials conceded the boost in margin requirements might be taken by many investors as indicating the government thought the market would continue to advance.

Ladejinsky had security clearance from the State Department but his post was shifted to Agriculture Department control by an act of the last Congress and Secretary of Agriculture Benson, on advice of his security officer, ruled against retention of Ladejinsky in the attaché position.

In addition to the security finding, the Agriculture Department held that Ladejinsky lacked technical qualifications that the department would require.

Rules Committee Members Named

ST. PAUL (AP)—Names of the 10 liberal members who will make up the powerful Rules Committee of the state House of Representatives were made known today.

Liberals Tuesday won control of the House by electing Rep. A. I. Johnson, Benson liberal, as speaker over conservative Rep. John Hartle, Owatonna. The vote was 66-65.

Rep. Fred Cina, Aurora, will be chairman of the Rules Committee and majority leader.

Other members of the committee are Reps. E. J. Childers, Littlefork; Walter Day, Bagley; Charles Halsted, Brainerd; Jacob J. Herzog, Austin; Karl Iverson, Ashby; H. P. Goodin and E. J. Bolsted, both of Minneapolis; and Joseph Pritzel and D. D. Wozniak, both of St. Paul.

Speaker Johnson has promised to announce other standing committee appointments later this week, but members of the conservative minority already have expressed dissatisfaction with his distribution of assignments for them. They say they have been offered far less than the 50 per cent they believe they are entitled to on several key committees. They have launched a fight under Hartle as minority leader to obtain a "fair share" of committee votes.

Takes Governor's Oath at Capitol

By JACK B. MACKAY

ST. PAUL (AP)—Gov. Orville L. Freeman today told a joint session of the Legislature that the state is faced with a 38-million-dollar shortage in funds to pay its bills for the next two years, even if governmental services are held rigidly at the present level.

Launching into his inaugural message promptly after Chief Justice Roger L. Dell administered the oath of office to him as the state's 29th governor, Freeman called on the lawmakers to "accept reality of taking positive action to meet deferred responsibilities."

Freeman, the first Democratic-Farmer-Labor governor after 16 years of Republican rule, was escorted from the executive offices to the House Chamber by Adjutant General Joseph E. Nelson.

The new governor was flanked on the rostrum by the black-robed members of the Minnesota Supreme Court and the state's other six constitutional officers who, with one exception, were swept into power last November.

Among the constitutional officers were Lieut. Gov. Karl Rolvaag, State Treasurer Arthur Hansen, Attorney General Miles Lord, Secretary of State Joseph Donovan, Supreme Court Clerk Frank Larkin and the lone Republican, State Auditor Stafford King.

Freeman said that even if no department improved or expanded its program during the next two years, existing tax and revenue measures would still leave some $38 million dollars short of meeting state spending.

Revenue Falls Short
"This means," the governor said, "that if all needs for expanding our welfare services were denied during the next two years; if all needs brought on by a growing and aging population were ignored, if our educational program were held exactly where it is, in the face of increased population; if development in the programs of conservation, and safety, and business promotion were halted—it all this would be allowed to take place, our present revenue measures would not supply the money needed to operate this state government."

Freeman previously had disclosed there would be a 26-million-dollar deficit, but that was exclusive of an additional 12 million dollars the income tax fund will be short to pay basic aids to schools, based on present levels.

"Truly," he said, "we face difficult decisions. But I am confident that we can make these decisions wisely and that we can solve our problems, if we keep clearly in mind the basic goals we seek."

Freeman's talk outlined the principle which will form the basis of major recommendations he will make in detailed proposals for specific legislation at a later date.

He specifically called for a hike in basic aid to schools from the present $80 per pupil unit to $92 as a first step in bringing our schools up to realistic standards.

The governor said that educational opportunities for children must be improved, and added that "instead of keeping pace with our growing needs, our schools have been allowed to fall behind."

Cities School Needs
Freeman called attention to the continuing upward pressure on the facilities of the state's institutions of higher learning. He said that today Minnesota and the nation "badly needed" more teachers, more engineers, more physicians, more businessmen and labor leaders.

He said that experts have informed him that the University of Minnesota enrollment, both in the Twin Cities and in the Duluth branch, may increase by 30 per cent during the next three to four years. These facts, he said, emphasize the importance of "abandoning the policy of handling our educational program by year-to-year improvisation, and the necessity for long-range plans."

Freeman told how, after preliminary work on the budget for the next biennium had been completed, it was reopened at his special insistence to increase the allotment to the state's older citizens.

Assessing the aged have been forced to live in substandard conditions for too long, Freeman asked the legislators to increase the assistance to the "senior citizens" by $5 a month and to amend the law so that they will have more opportunity to help themselves by earning a little extra money.

The present "ceiling" for old age assistance recipients is $60 a month.

Freeman said that Minnesota has failed to keep up with the recognized standards in both the workers' compensation and unemployment fields. He said the state has an obligation to the injured workman and the person who is without work through no fault of his own. He then asked that these benefits be liberalized.

He also made a pitch for legislation that would give every Minnesotan equal economic opportunity, based on his ability, without regard to race or color.

Fight for Power Raging in Russia

By TOM WHITNEY and WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press Foreign Staff
(Editor's Note—Is the top about to blow off the "communist rule" that succeeded Stalin as the governing force in the Soviet Union? Two former Moscow correspondents, who regularly read and analyze the possibilities in this article.)

Moscow's recent pronouncements suggest that two distinct factions in the Soviet hierarchy are struggling for supremacy. The argument may yet have to be resolved by another purge in high places.

Unmistakable references in the Soviet press to serious heresies and factionalism within the Communist party hint at a showdown.

Foreign policy seems definitely involved, particularly to the extent that it is concerned with plotting the course of world Communism in the immediate future. Thus world peace—or the lack of it—may depend upon the outcome of such an internal Soviet struggle.

All signs seem to point to this sort of division.

On one side—the Communists of the Stalin school, devoted to the principle of dynamic Communism which has produced such dangerous situations as the Berlin blockade and the Korean War.

On the other side—the Communists of more conservative and cautious leanings who believe that time is on their side and they can play the waiting game while building internally. This sort of approach led to the Korean and Indo-Chinese truces and to a surface slackening of world tensions after Stalin's death.

The Soviet press, reflecting the views of the Communist leadership, has been going through a strange series of reversals ever since Stalin died. From a peaceful tone, it has gone over to one of belligerence on the international scene. Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's statements bristle with threats and bluster.

Sudden Switches
Yet, with confusing suddenness, the Soviet press then switches to a tone of hurt dismay that Premier Malenkov's proposal for a big power negotiation of Far Eastern tensions received so cool a reception in the West.

All this is accompanied by increasing prominence for the first secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist party, Nikita Khrushchev. His name is appearing in authoritative statements with rising frequency and importance.

By Leninist definition, Soviet foreign policy simply is an extension of domestic policy all keyed to the ultimate goal of a world dominated by Soviet Communism. Thus twists in Soviet foreign policy can reflect indecision and even disputes inside the Kremlin walls.

For the first time since before Stalin's death, the Soviet press refers to the blood purges of the late dictator and praises the methods by which he maintained the "steel unity" of the party.

When Ambassador Charles E. Bollen returned to Moscow recently, he reported back that the sense of tension had measurably increased there in the few days since he had left. The British Ambassador, Sir William Hayter, who also returned to Moscow at about the same time, reported back to London precisely the same thing.

One obvious reason for this tension in Moscow was, of course, the French voting on the German rearmament issue. But another reason also appeared, when long editorials about the future of the Soviet policy were published just before Christmas in Pravda and Izvestia.

Izvestia is the organ of the Soviet government, and is thus accounted the mouthpiece of Premier Georgi Malenkov. Pravda is the organ of the Soviet Communist party, and is thus accounted the mouthpiece of N. S. Khrushchev, Secretary of the Party. The two papers took almost diametrically opposite lines.

Izvestia called for a continuation of the present policy.

State Senator Asks Ike to Oust Benson

ST. PAUL (AP)—President Eisenhower is asked to remove Secretary of Agriculture Benson in the first proposal to be introduced in the 1955 Legislature.

The proposal is sponsored by Sen. Norman Larson of Ada. It asks that Benson be replaced by a man who will move to "correct the disparity between farm prices and the cost of things the farmer must buy."

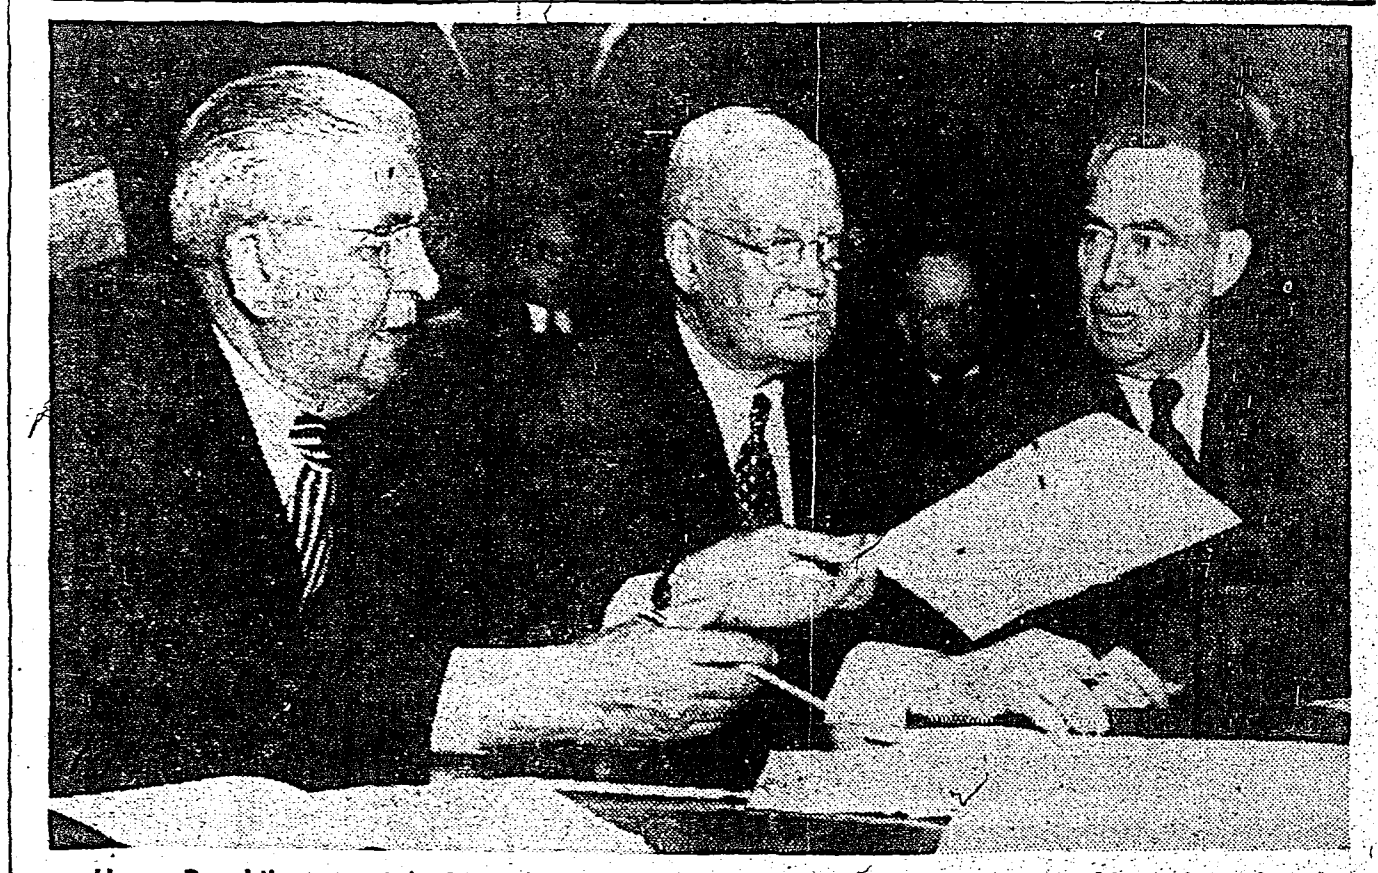

"Generally speaking," said Sen. Larson, "the farmer is a good spender, but conditions have become so serious that farmers do not have money to spend. Before long the people in the cities and factories will begin to feel the effects of this unfortunate situation."

The proposal recites that the economic welfare of Minnesota's agricultural community is "affected most directly" by the price paid for agricultural commodities in relation to the prices demanded for the manufactured goods they must purchase.

Declaring that retail prices are "supported at an artificially high level" by tariffs and other more direct support, and that the present administration promised to maintain farm prices at 90 per cent of parity, the proposal continues:

"The present executive branch of the federal government has not taken the action required of it in order to further the needed, necessary and promised farm support program, and on the contrary, has adopted a farm price program which . . . has the practical effect of enlarging the disparity between farm income and required expenses."

The proposal adds that unless there is immediate governmental action "the people of Minnesota who rely on a family farm for their sustenance and support will be faced with positive economic distress of widespread and bitter proportions."

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Alban W. Barkley of Kentucky starts afresh today on a job he first tackled in 1927—that of being a United States senator.
For the fifth time, the fun-loving, story-telling former "Veep," now 77, takes the oath of office as a Democratic senator.
Asked how it felt to be a senator again, he said he would know better in a month or two. "But it's not like coming to the Senate for the first time," he said.
Direct in a light gray suit, Barkley was on hand yesterday when Democratic senators caused. Former colleagues who welcomed him back with hearty handshakes and warm pats on the back. Barkley was first elected to the House in 1912 and served there until Kentucky sent him to the Senate in 1926. He was re-elected in 1932, 1938 and in 1944.

For 12 years, he was Democratic floor leader, although on one occasion in 1944 he resigned that post in dramatic protest against the wording used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in a message connected with the veto of a tax bill.
However, he was re-elected immediately and the breach with Roosevelt quickly healed. A few months later, Barkley nominated Roosevelt for his fourth term. With two years still left of his own fourth term, Barkley resigned his Senate seat to become vice president under President Truman from 1949-1952.

With the advent of the Eisenhower administration, he went out of public office for the first time in the nearly 50 years since his election in 1905 as a county prosecuting attorney.
But he made a comeback last fall, winning election to the Senate over Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper.

Thurley Homes Construction Cost Cited

$1,654,000 Spent During Phase, Accountant Reports

With the 160-unit Arthur C. Thurley Homes entering the management phase, the Winona Housing & Redevelopment Authority Tuesday heard a report of finances as related to the construction phase budget by Evan J. Henry, the authority's accountant.

Henry's report came during the authority's monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon. It also was the day of the annual meeting, but the only item of annual business was the election of officers. Re-elected were A. L. Kitt, chairman; Frank Cunningham, vice chairman, and W. J. Thurov, secretary.

The accountant told the commissioners that the construction budget established for the development of the 34-building site was $1,678,000. He said that the general construction total within the total construction budget was $1,516,000 and that $1,512,000 had been spent.

Actual expenditures in the construction phase, he noted, were $1,654,000 (that is being financed under a 40-year bonding program of a total of $1,655,000).

Individual Items
Henry explained to the authority that there are several categories within the breakdown of the entire construction (similar to the general construction account) in which the authority has not expended the allotted amount and that these more than offset the few in which there are minor over-expenditures.

He pointed out that the figures as of Nov. 30 would show only minor variation with the inclusion of December expenses. The Arthur C. Thurley Homes moved into the management phase Jan. 1, several days after the 160th apartment was occupied.

He also gave the commissioners an idea of what the annual contributions act would mean to the authority. Under this act, the federal government during the first year will pay the authority about

A. L. Kitt

$64,000, under provisions of the contract with the Public Housing Administration (PHA). The government takes into consideration the amount of money the local authority has on hand in determining its contribution.

The annual contribution, he said, is used to pay interest and to assist in retirement of the long-term bonds.

Mayor Comments
On the topic of finances, Mayor Loyde E. Pfeiffer said that he is frequently asked what the city will get out of the development. Henry and Executive Director Arthur A. Gallien, explained that the exact amount the city will receive in lieu of taxes has not been determined. They said that under the provisions of an agreement with the city, the authority is to pay 10 per cent of the shelter rent, which is contract rent less utilities (gas, water and electricity).

Gallien estimated the average contract rent at $30 per month making the total for the 160 apartments about $4,800 per month. Utilities deductions would probably chop about $1,000 from this, leaving $3,800, or approximately $23.75 a month. Just when the payment period begins, however, is not known. Rental totals through Nov. 30 were about $16,000 (the first ten moved in about March 20), a total considerably lower than the rent as computed in reply to the mayor's question that was based upon total occupancy.

Authority Praised
The mayor praised the members of the authority for the fine job they have done in development of the low-rent housing site. He said he was particularly pleased that the authority had succeeded in filling all of the apartments.

It was pointed out in this connection that the 160 units are only about a third of the number determined as the number needed in Winona by a housing survey conducted about five years ago. The mayor then asked about the change in regulations permitting persons from out of Winona to enter the project. (Several months ago, the authority eliminated previous residency requirements, specifying however that preference be accorded Winona residents.)

Commissioners emphasized that in accepting families who wish to live in Winona, they have been careful in selecting families that would not become a burden to the community.

Mayor Pfeiffer also mentioned two types of comment

Frederick R. Bauer
1st Ward FilingRay Thilmany
4th Ward Filing

1st and 4th Ward Filings Received

Two more filed for city offices Tuesday afternoon, but with the filing deadline only four days away a primary contest still hasn't developed.

Tuesday's filing was for 1st Ward alderman, by Frederick R. Bauer, 935 W. King St., and for 4th Ward alderman, by Ray Thilmany, 57 Carimona St.

There now is a contest for each of these offices, but unless there is another filing before 5 p.m. Monday, there'll be no primary contest Feb. 7 and the contest will be decided in the general election April 4.

Bauer is a candidate for the office now held by R. K. Ellings, who is not filing for re-election. Donald C. Kleinschmidt filed previously.

Thilmany is a candidate for the office now held by Joe Karsina, who has filed for re-election. Thilmany is a labor foreman for WMC, Inc. He began working for the construction firm prior to World War II, and during the conflict served three years in the Army, including two years in the Aleutian Islands.

A native of Winona, he is 41 years old, married, has four children, attended the St. Stanislaus grade school and is a member of the Winona Athletic Club, St. Stanislaus Catholic Church and of Local 1316, Laborers Union. He was business agent and secretary of the local during 1952 and 1953.

Bauer, 30 years old, is a native of Winona and graduated from Win-le hasn't heard concerning the housing project. He said he hadn't heard complaints from landlords that the establishment of the low-rent housing had effected a lower rent rate in the city, nor has he heard remarks that the homes have lowered the value of adjacent West End property.

Gallien noted that there would be some turnover in the tenancy, in reply to a question by the mayor concerning the stability of residence of some of the families. But Gallien said he was not concerned about a slight turnover in a project of 160 units. Actually, since the first apartment was occupied, only five families admitted to the project have moved, most of them leaving the city.

Applications Asked

For this reason, Gallien emphasized that despite the fact that total occupancy has been achieved, families interested in procuring information on possible admittance should not hesitate to contact him. Families which haven't made application, yet may desire admission in the future, should do so in the near future. He suggested that families contact him by telephoning 2642.

Just before the mayor left, there was a brief discussion of a problem that has become more important as the tenancy increases.

Gallien said there are about 300 adults and 400 children there. He explained that the only access road to the site is via Pelzer street off Highway 61, noting that for many residents, going downtown or other places east of the site, it means walking several blocks west to walk east. Suggested as a solution was opening one of the streets to the east or at least providing a path. It is hoped something can be done before spring because neighbors to the east will be gardening areas sometimes used as short cuts by residents of the homes.

Television also was discussed briefly. Gallien said that 20 to 25 families have erected antennas for television sets, complying with the authority's regulation that they must be mounted on clothesline poles and not more than 12 feet high.

Bracket Displayed
He showed a metal bracket designed for antenna purposes. It is designed to fit near the roof line, extending out from the house. The tenant would provide a 1 1/2-inch pipe that would reach to the ground (extending into the ground about a foot and a half and based inside a slightly larger pipe). The tenant would then be able to mount an antenna up to 10 feet above this (without the use of guy wires) and have an effective aerial. The brackets would be owned by the authority.

Gallien said the Winona situation is rather unusual in that most cities with low-rent housing projects either have a television station or are nearer a transmitter. But he said he is convinced that the arrival of television at the homes has reduced juvenile problems at the site.

Attending the meeting were Mayor Pfeiffer, Henry, Gallien, Kitt,

Donna Senior High School in 1942. He served for three years and eight months in the Navy during World War II. Since December 1945 he has been employed by Bauer Electric. He is a journeyman electrician.

He is married, has four children and is a member of the Isaac Walton League, Winona Boat Club, American Legion, Evangelical United Brethren Church and the United Commercial Travelers.

Others who have filed for city offices: Loyde E. Pfeiffer, incumbent mayor; E. D. Libera, incumbent municipal judge; Loren Torgerson, incumbent 3rd Ward alderman; William S. L. Christensen, incumbent 2nd Ward alderman, and Gordon L. Weishorn, incumbent alderman-at-large.

As yet no contest has developed for any of the five Board of Education offices on the spring ballot; in two wards, moreover, no candidate has filed for a directorship. Those who have announced their intention to seek re-election are Board President Carroll Syverson in the 1st Ward; William A. Lindquist, in the 3rd and Clarence P. Hartner, for director-at-large.

George Richman, the incumbent 2nd Ward director, has announced that he has decided not to file for re-election but no formal announcement has been made regarding his election plans by Glenn Morgan whose term as 4th Ward director is expiring.

Bonds to Build TC Dormitories Asked by Group

State College Board Proposing 10 Million Dollar Revenue Plan

ST. PAUL (U. S. —) The Minnesota State Teachers College Board will consider a proposal for 10 million dollars in revenue bonds for new dormitories at a meeting later this month.

The suggestion came Tuesday from a three-member subcommittee after a lengthy survey of problems of the board and colleges it supervises.

Krysko, Winona; John Halvorson, Albert Lea, and Helen Conway, St. Paul, members of the study group, said the revenue bonds would provide dormitories without any expense to taxpayers.

They estimated that a $2 boost in the present weekly $13.50 charged students for board and room would cover all bond costs.

Colleges are located at Bemidji, Mankato, Moorhead and St. Cloud in addition to Winona.

Housing Prime Need
The group said the new housing was a prime need because it is estimated the colleges will double their present 5,107 enrollment in the next decade.

Need for additional dormitory space has been cited for years by the Winona college. Under consideration is a flexible dormitory, that is one that could be used for both men and women. The type of construction would permit moving of dividing partitions as the need for housing by men and women students varied.

In addition, revenue bonds could be used to finance student unions and other physical facilities, the committee said.

Jurisdiction of the state Department of Administration over the teachers colleges would be removed, according to another recommendation, with the teachers college board given the same powers over their institutions as the board of regents has over University of Minnesota activities.

Appropriation Change
This involves a recommendation that legislative appropriations be made directly to the board for allocation instead of to the Department of Administration as at present. An increase in membership of the board from 9 to 11 also was suggested with the term to be increased from two to four years.

In addition, the committee recommends to the board that it act under its present powers to establish a central office.

Inventories of all Winona County equipment, with the value set at $269,044.32, were approved late Tuesday by Winona County's Board of Commissioners.

Estimated valuations of property included inventories of the engineering department at the courthouse, all other offices in the county building including the county jail and highway department equipment.

A breakdown of inventories in each category approved by commissioners, included:

Engineering department (courthouse), $3,203.09. All other courthouse offices and the county jail, $71,500.03. Highway department equipment in five classes as estimated by County Engineer Gordon Fay, $194,341.20.

Within the highway department, valuations set on equipment were broken down as follows: Major equipment, $107,676.46; minor equipment, $3,321.05; snow equipment, $1,000.00; shop and office equipment, $13,816.62, and supplies, $63,230.37.

Driver Reports Hit-Run Mishap

Eugene Grzybowski, Green Bay, Wis., reported $150 damage to his car after it was struck by a hit-run vehicle on East King street, near Chestnut street, Tuesday.

Grzybowski told police that he was not sure at exactly what time the accident occurred.

Cars driven by Frederick Arndt, 876 W. Wabasha St., and Ronald Kratz, 779 W. Wabasha St., were damaged in a collision at West Sanborn and Wilson streets at 6:50 p.m. Tuesday.

Arndt estimated his damage at $300 and damage to the Kratz car was set at $75.

A car owned by Ralph Neyers, 629 E. 2nd St., was damaged when it was struck by another car on Wilson street, near West 4th street, at 6:05 p.m. Tuesday.

The driver of the other car, Joan Fend, 614 W. Wabasha St., said that she was driving north on Wilson street when her car struck an icy spot and skidded into the parked car.

She was arrested on a charge of driving without a license and forfeited a $10 deposit in municipal court this morning.

Damage to the Fend car was estimated at $75 and Neyers reported $50 damage.

Wabasha Co. Plea For Buena Vista Extension Denied

Winona County's commissioners flatly rejected Tuesday a request from the Wabasha County board which, if allowed, would have extended a Buena Vista sanatorium contract an additional 60 days.

There had been some indication in December that commissioners might reverse a decision made to terminate the Winona Wabasha County agreement on Feb. 1.

Wabasha officials, through their county auditor, Wilbur Koelme, asked that commissioners here extend the termination date to April 1 to allow authorities at Buena Vista time to set up a county-supported nursing home.

Going to Mineral Springs
Beginning Feb. 1, Winona County TB patients will be cared for at Mineral Springs Sanatorium, Cannon Falls, Minn., on a per diem basis.

Wabasha County officials, faced with the possibility that Buena Vista would close down completely with Winona County out, seeks to establish a nursing home in its place. They asked for the additional 60 days now to allow them time to fumigate, paint, renovate and prepare the building for old-age occupancy.

Commissioners, when told of the petition Tuesday, voiced immediate disapproval.

Commissioner Merchewitz summed up board members' feeling in the affair by saying: "We were supposed to leave Buena Vista Dec. 31. We gave them until Feb. 1 to straighten up their affairs and we put Mineral Springs off an extra month. Now they want to dilly-dally around another two months? That's no way to do business is it? We don't want to get off on the wrong foot at Cannon Falls."

Ask Cannon Falls

Board Chairman Ray G. Kohner suggested that Auditor Richard Schoonover immediately place a call to Roland H. Peterson, business manager at Mineral Springs, to sound out Cannon Falls feeling in the matter.

A call to Peterson revealed that Mineral Springs authorities were quite cool to the Wabasha County request, saying that Winona County TB patients were expected Feb. 1.

Commissioners then voted unanimously to reject the Wabasha County board's petition and directed Schoonover to inform Koelme of their action.

Rule Changes Asked to Avert State House Delay

ST. PAUL (U. S. —) Changes in the rules to avert any work delay in the Minnesota House of Representatives were proposed today by the Rules Committee.

Majority leader Fred A. Cina, Aurora, chairman of the Rules Committee, said the House will be asked to approve a rule which eliminates the necessity for the Appropriations Committee to receive any measure which contemplates a future appropriation.

A similar change in the rules requiring a Civil Administration Committee to consider bills that make a change in any state department, no matter how minor, also was proposed.

Board Keeps Home 2 1/2 Miles From School in District

Is a grievance presented by one individual in a given society to be given greater immediate consideration than the effect a favorable decision might have upon the whole of that given society? Winona County's Board of Commissioners said no, Tuesday afternoon.

The board was dealing with a school set-off petition presented by Harold Cady, Fremont Township, asking that 80 acres of his 200-acre farm in Fremont Township common school district 66 be set off and attached to Independent Consolidated District 16 at Rushford in Fillmore County.

Actually, commissioners were debating whether or not 7-year-old Joanne Baker was going to have to continue walking 2 1/2 miles to school. Three commissioners said yes and at least one other—possibly two—in addition to the county superintendent of schools, who was called in for advice, said no.

Problem for Father

Joanne is the daughter of Arthur Baker, an employee at Cady's farm. Each morning, Baker has to take time off from work to drive his daughter to school; each evening, he again has to leave to pick her up—or Joanne has to walk the 2 1/2 miles each way to the district 66 school.

Baker contended that the school bus to district 16 at Rushford runs right by the front of the farm and wanted commissioners to allow his child to use that bus by allowing the land set-off petition.

Appearing, however, in stormy protest to the petition were six of Baker's neighbors, who in turn presented a petition signed by five more district residents, asking that commissioners say no. Both Cady and Baker were present.

Representing the protesting district were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hublein, Leo Rowekamp, John Antonson, Donald Klug and Harold Brommerich, clerk of the school district.

Brommerich pointed up a distinct possibility that the number of children attending the district 66 school would increase within three or four years and said that removal of the Baker family would cause a decrease in district revenues.

Predicts 12 or 15

Answering a question by Commissioner Zenke, Dakota, as to how many children now attend, Brommerich said that eight are there now (not counting Baker's child). "But," he continued, "we anticipate an enrollment of 12 or 15 within three years."

County Auditor Richard Schoonover said that if Cady's petition for Baker were allowed, it would remove $73.58 in school revenue taxes from the district.

The other five persons appearing with Brommerich presented views in accordance with Brommerich's wish that the school district not be made any smaller—which could result in its disbanding.

Cady, pointing up the fact that 120 acres of his land was already in district 16 at Rushford, said that he was unable to see what difference another 80 made.

"Besides," said Cady, "you must consider first the welfare of the little girl."

Disagreement Shown

Commissioner Merchewitz was inclined to agree with him, as was County Superintendent of Schools Jesse B. Jestus, who had been called in. Commissioners Baer, Spitzer and Zenke, however, said that even though the county board had school petitions, this time they should consider the whole group and put their foot down.

Ultimately, commissioners voted unanimously to reject Cady's petition. They said that were Cady to move out with the 80 acres of land, it might make the county too small, forcing them to disband and leaving all the children and parents of the district facing a transportation problem.

Actually, said commissioners, the present district 66 school is centrally located for all of them except Baker.

Driver Found Guilty of Speeding Count

Defendant Joined By Two Witnesses In Municipal Trial

LeRoy Jahnke, 22, 629 E. Mark St., this morning was found guilty in municipal court on a speeding charge.

Jahnke, who was charged by police with driving 40 miles an hour on East 3rd street from Chestnut street west to Kansas street at 10:35 p.m. Sunday, was fined $25 in consideration of two previous traffic violations.

The arresting patrolmen, Fred Brust and John Drakowski, were the only witnesses called by City Prosecutor William A. Lindquist during this morning's trial before Judge E. D. Libera.

Clocked Two Cars

Both officers said that they were in a police squad car parked on East 3rd street east of Carimona street when they noticed the west-bound Jahnke car being passed by another automobile at an excessive speed.

The patrolmen said that they followed and clocked the two automobiles—the driver of the other was identified as Leonard Mastenbrook, Minnesota City, who forfeited a deposit in municipal court earlier this week on a speeding charge—at 42 miles an hour.

Brust and Drakowski said that by the time they had completed the clocking of the two cars Jahnke had passed Mastenbrook.

In his questioning by Lindquist, Drakowski said that when Jahnke was taken to police headquarters he protested that he had not driven over 30 miles an hour.

Testifying in his own behalf Jahnke said that on the drive down East 3rd street before the arrest he was traveling "along about 25 or something like that."

He said that he did not notice the squad car behind him and was stopped, preparing to back into a parking place when the police overtook him.

2 Other Witnesses

Jahnke called as a witness a passenger in his car, Elaine Phillips, 18, Lamolite, who said that she did not believe the car was traveling more than 28 miles an hour.

Mastenbrook, another witness called by Jahnke, said that he did not exactly know how fast he was driving but added that after he had passed the Jahnke car he slowed down because of another car ahead of him.

Jahnke and his two witnesses maintained that there was at least one car between their two automobiles at all times.

The patrolmen, however, testified that during the block or so that they timed the two cars there were no vehicles between them.

CALEDONIA, Minn. (Special)—Contracts for 1955 stoker coal supplies were awarded the J. A. Roerkohl Co., Caledonia, Tuesday by the Houston County Board of Commissioners.

Roerkohl, the lone bidder, will supply the fuel at $12.59 per ton and at $12.94 per ton.

County weekly papers were designated as follows: Caledonia Journal, official paper; Caledonia Argus, delinquent tax lists; Spring Grove Herald and Houston Signal, financial statements, and La Crescent Times-Hokah Chief, stationery supplies.

Seven culvert bids were rejected as being noncompetitive and the commissioners agreed that in the future culverts will be purchased by bids for specific jobs.

A resolution calling for 75 per cent federal and 25 per cent county participation on federal aid secondary road projects was passed. Minimum wage scales for federal aid secondary projects were set at $1 per hour, common labor; $1.15, intermediate help, and $1.35, skilled labor.

Older Persons Vital Factor in Housing Market

By ED MORSE
(For Sam Dawson)

NEW YORK (U)—Are you discouraged at 40, or 45, or 50? Take heart. You're a powerful groundswell in the housing market—statistically, that is.

This is something new. For years, "Youth must be served" has been the virtual motto of the home-building industry. The returning veteran and his young bride formed the tidal wave of postwar housing demand.

Since V-J Day more than nine million Americans bought homes. About 3 1/2 million GI loans have been granted. Before most of these GI privileges end July 25, 1957, it's estimated another five million will be used.

That's the big, brassy music of the housing bandwagon—but a new and significant overtones has been added by a solid segment of demand by oldsters with cash in their jeans.

Home builders should sit up and take notice at this important fact: there are 57,414,100 folks over 40 compared with 47,682,900 between 20 and 40.

More than 20 years have been added to life expectancy since 1900, according to the National Office of Vital Statistics. Easier living, medical discoveries, steadier incomes from social security, pensions and annuities have made older people livelier customers.

Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York reports that even at 65 there are 34 persons working out of every 100.

If you're 40 you have a life expectancy of 33 more years. At 55 statistics say you'll probably hit 78. So, from the housing viewpoint, it seems worthwhile to make yourself comfortable for the big remainder of your years.

The National Assn. of Home Builders quoted recently from a survey of people over 40 conducted by the magazine Lifetime Living.

This survey showed that 45.6 per cent of these people, even though their average age was in the mid-50s, planned to build or buy new homes.

Presidential Security Board Recommended

PASADENA, Calif. (U)—Dr. Vannevar Bush proposes a presidential security board, independent of Congress.

Such a board, he said, should be composed of private citizens, not scientists, appointed by and responsible to the President—"men of great learning and skill in the law, operating in a calm and judicial atmosphere."

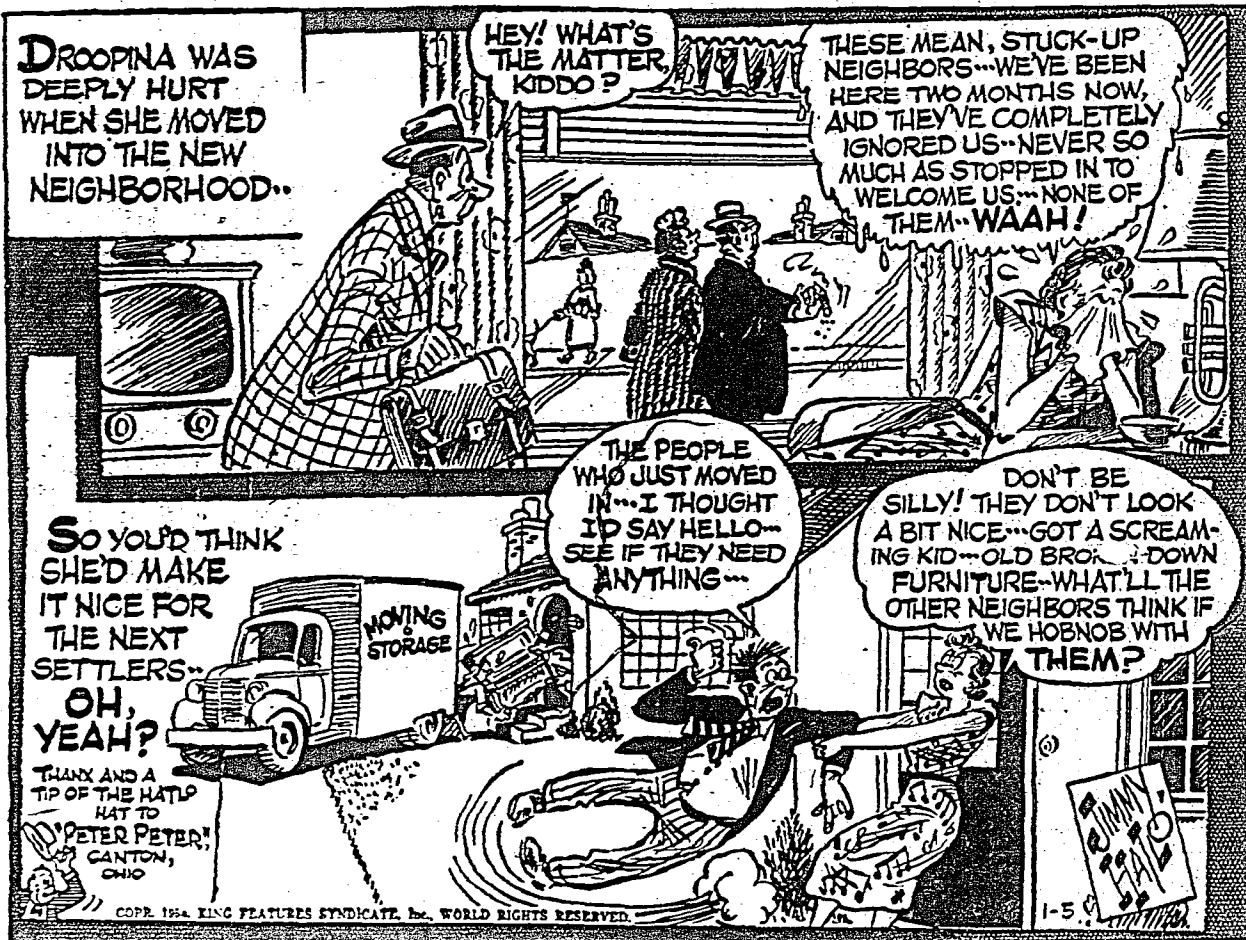

Dr. Bush, president of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, and a member of the President's Advisory Committee of the National Security Resources Board, told newsmen yesterday that "the tide of public sentiment is finally running against 'hysteria investigations' that have occupied the headlines since World War II."

He said that "only positive safeguards within the executive branch of the government can prevent the misuse of security measures."

Bob Hope Comes Through— Licks Rose Bowl Competition

By EARL WILSON

HOLLYWOOD—I think Bob Hope is the greatest of all the masters of ceremonies—he will always come through in a pinch, or with a pinch.

There's no question about it. Bob's always best at introducing crossed up at the Big Ten dinner for the Ohio State football team, Rose Bowl pilgrimage.

The supposed facts about the girls—which were written out for Bob—were so wrong that Bob finally said: "Who wrote these cards—Laurence Sterne?"

The girl "representing Purdue" admitted she wasn't from Purdue and had only learned she was "from Purdue" an hour before.

The gal representing Indiana confessed she was from Los Angeles and Bob said, "Oh, Los Angeles, Indiana?"

"Herb Shriner made so much money talking about Indiana," Bob said.

A beautiful doll waggled up and said she was representing Iowa.

"Have you ever been in Iowa?" Hope asked her.

"I've just flown over it," she answered.

"That's the best way to be there," Bob said. "Iowa is a wonderful place—it's the garden spot of that particular state."

Bob capitalized on the confusion. Backstage, between introductions, he was joking with Bill Holden, Jerry Colonna, Gloria De Haven, Anita Ekberg and some others about taking off to entertain some troops in Greenland.

"We were supposed to fly out of here in half an hour," Holden said. "This show'll run an hour more at least. But it's a Defense Dept. plane . . . I guess it'll wait."

Holden shook his head. "That Hope," he said.

"We were up till 2 o'clock this morning talking about the show, and today he happened to mention doing something at 8 o'clock this morning."

"I said, 'Were you working at 8 o'clock after working till 2?' He said, 'Oh! You know, I had to see about some cameras.'"

As an Ohio State alumnus myself, I was glad to hear Bob telling about his own education.

"I went to a very exclusive school in Ohio," he said. "A judge had to send you."

Eventually Peggy King sang, and then out came shapely Anita Ekberg, of the movies in shorts and a sweater.

She said she was representing the University of Southern California.

Looking at her admiringly, Bob said, "What a campus!"

I will always feel, though, that Bob's best one was tossed off six or seven years ago when he remarked, "I have a lot of trouble about my autographs."

"But," he added, "I can usually get somebody to take them."

BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggly, who had finished saving off the handle of one old dusting brush, down in the cellar of his hollow stump bungalow, listened. Once again he heard a knock at the outside cellar door, which he heard at the end of yesterday's story.

"I wonder who that can be," said Mr. Longears to himself. Then, as the knock sounded for the third time, the rabbit gentleman said to himself:

"I had better find out who it is. Maybe it is the dog gentleman come to read the electric meter or the gas or the water meter. I'll find out in a moment."

But, as he started toward the cellar door, he happened to think:

"This may be one of the bad chaps, who wants to catch me. I had better open the door only a little way. And I shall carry in one paw the handle I saved off the first feather duster. In another paw I can carry the second feather duster. It is a bad chap I will tickle him with the feather duster so that he sneezes. Then I will jab him with this handle. That ought to drive away any bad chaps."

Once more the knock sounded on the door.

"Coming! Coming!" shouted Mr. Longears. "Coming!"

He stood near the door and exclaimed:

"If you are a bad chap you had better go away. If you try to come in you will be tickled and jabbed!"

"Don't be silly, Wiggly!" a voice answered. "I am not a bad chap. I'm Pat Butler!"

"Oh, my grocery store goat friend!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly in a kind and jolly voice. "Why didn't you say so at first?"

"You didn't ask me!" bleated the goat, as Uncle Wiggly opened the door. "I saw Nurse Jane and she said you were down here in the cellar making snowshoes out of old feather dusters."

"That's just what I am doing," answered the rabbit gentleman. "Here is a handle I cut off one old duster. Here is the other old duster. I am going to saw the handle off that. Come in, Pat. What's on your mind?"

"I have made up my mind," bleated the goat, "that you can't make snowshoes out of old feather dusters. That's one thing on my mind. And for another thing, I was wondering if you would come down to my grocery store."

"Why should I come to your grocery store, Pat Butler?"

"Because I am having a special sale on carrots. I am overstocked and I am selling carrots cheap. Don't you want to buy some?"

"I might, after I go out and have an adventure on my feather duster snowshoes, Pat. You see the snow is deep and soft. Without special shoes to walk on, I would sink down in the drifts up to my pink, twinkling nose. That is why I am making feather duster snowshoes."

"You never can own it!" predicted the goat gentleman.

"Come inside and watch!" invited Mr. Longears. "After I walk about the yard in the snow on my feather duster shoes, I will walk down to your store and buy some carrots at your special sale."

"I will wait here for you," bleated Mr. Butler. "I can watch you from the cellar through the back door. Go ahead, Wiggly! But remember what I told you!"

"I will remember," promised the rabbit. He sawed the handle off the old dusting brush. Then he started to tie them on his feet, winding the cord around and around.

"Want any help, Wiggly?" bleated the goat.

"You might help me tie the cord," answered the rabbit. "Then I can go snow shoe walking."

"Remember what I told you!" warned Mr. Butler. "Remember!"

The old feather dusters were soon tied on the rabbit's hind feet or paws. He walked out of the lower cellar door.

"Watch me, Pat!" Watch me!" called Uncle Wiggly. "I am watching!" bleated the goat.

"You are going to be surprised," said Mr. Longears. "So is Nurse Jane! Here I go!"

He started to walk on the snow with feather dusters on his hind paws. Then, all of a sudden, something happened. You shall hear about it in tomorrow's story if the canary bird will use a wing to dust off the hands of the clock so they won't tell the wrong time and make the pussy cat late for school.

River Dragging Resumed in Hunt For Missing Woman

WAUKESHA, Wis. (U)—Sheriff Michael Lombardi ordered dragging operations in the Fox River near Mukwonago resumed today in an effort to find a clue to the disappearance of Mrs. Rose Marie Planinshek.

The auto of the 32-year-old West Allis housewife was found Monday partly submerged in the river near the Highway 15 bridge east of Mukwonago. No trace of the woman was found.

"There's a possibility she is in the river," Lombardi said Tuesday, "But I still don't think so."

Lombardi had stopped dragging operations Tuesday ending a further investigation into the woman's disappearance. At that time he said he didn't believe she had drowned.

Meanwhile, West Allis police reported an attorney in that city told them that Mrs. Planinshek had retained him Dec. 31 to start a divorce action. Her husband, Emil, 35, was at work at a West Allis factory when she disappeared.

Planinshek told authorities the divorce action was a surprise to him.

Detective Capt. John Sweeney of West Allis said Mrs. Planinshek reported her husband missing last week. At that time, he said, the woman reported her husband had been gone all day Thanksgiving and Christmas and hadn't explained why.

Charges Filed Against Bus Driver in Crash

GALLUP, N. M. (U)—Charles Owens, driver of the Greyhound bus which Monday skidded into an oncoming car taking two lives, Tuesday was charged with following too close and with not having his vehicle under control.

The charges were filed by State Policeman Dick McCool before Justice of the Peace Al Lavasek.

The Flagstaff, Ariz., driver, who had been with the Greyhound company only a few months, will be arraigned on the charges when he is released from the hospital, McCool said.

Owens received injuries to his ankles in the crash and possibly internal injury. Six of the 31 persons aboard the bus were injured, none critically, in the smashup.

Among those hurt was Anna Fasana, 52, of Kenosha, Wis., who suffered rib injuries.

State police said Owens' big Chicago-bound bus came up on a car going much slower. When the bus was slowed, it skidded on the icy road and swung broadside to the highway into the path of a car containing two airmen.

Both men, Duane Vaughn, 22, Red Oak, Iowa, and Kenneth W. Baldwin, 20, of Pottstown, Pa., were killed.

Ex-Film Director Borrows Pistol, Kills Himself

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (U)—A former movie director and writer borrowed a pistol from comedian Buster Keaton and killed himself in a restaurant restroom, police reported.

The body of Clyde Bruckman, 60, was found yesterday. Police said he left a typewritten note asking them to deliver his body to the Los Angeles County Medical Assn. or a medical school for experimental purposes and stating that "I have no money to pay for a funeral."

It also asked that his wife Gladys, who lives here, be notified.

Keaton told police Bruckman asked to use the .45-caliber gun for a hunting trip.

In silent pictures Bruckman directed Keaton, Harold Lloyd and W.C. Fields. Later he became a screen writer.

VOICE of the OUTDOORS

Thousand Fish Club

We wonder how many fishermen along this sector of the river equalled the fishing record of Ed Matzke, above, 223 E. King St., during 1952? He caught, with hook and line, 1,195 fish.

Ed, 74, is a year-round fisherman and goes fishing nearly every day that the weather permits. Fishing has, for nearly 25 years, been an all-consuming hobby for him. He has caught as high as 2,200 fish in a single year—1944.

Fishing today, Ed contends, is not as good as it has been in the past. Sunfish are hard to catch. Sheephead, catfish, and white bass are way down in numbers in the river. Last year Ed caught, for example, only four catfish. Ten years ago his catfish total was over 500. Sturgeon is another fish that is becoming rare in the river. Ed did not catch a single one in 1952. He formerly caught, each year, all the law allowed.

Pet peeve of Ed's is the winter open season on walleyes. He declares that only the female walleye strike during this period in the open water below the dams and each one is loaded with spawn. He would close the walleye season in the river on Dec. 1.

Despite common complaints that sunfish are declining in the river, half the 1,195 fish taken by Ed in 1952 were sunfish. Bullheads were second, then walleyes. He keeps a detailed daily record. One of the ceremonies when he gets home from a day's fishing is to enter the fish in the scorebook. This is the way it reads for 1952:

Sunfish 651, walleyes 103, bullheads 259, sheephead 56, crappies 24, catfish 4, northern 14, trout 7, blackbass 6, silver bass 3, buffalo 6, rock bass 3, perch 30, redear 22 and dogfish 2.

Where does Ed go fishing? Anywhere in the river from the head of Lake Pepin to below Stoddard, and on many of the tributaries and lakes. Today, you will find him on Lake Winona—where fishing has picked up a little the past couple of days.

Who else in this area can qualify as a member of the 1954 Thousand Fish Club? We would like to hear from them and get their list of fish for the year. Just mail it to The Voice of the Outdoors, care of this newspaper.

Bow and Arrow Deer

The first 510 Minnesota bow and arrow license holders to make reports, killed 91 deer or an average of 17 per cent. In 1953, 3,000 hunters reporting got 66 deer. There are approximately 4,500 more hunters to submit reports in the state.

2 Sons Overcome Fear, Accuse Father Of Intent to Kill

WILLIAMSBURG, Ky. (U)—A 6-foot, 175-pound farmer was held in default of $5,000 bond today after his two sons overcame their fear and blamed him for a near-fatal beating.

The youngsters' ability to dodge and to absorb the blows, doctors said, apparently saved them from death.

Esco Proffitt, 42, was charged with malicious striking and wounding with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Officers said they believed the weapon was a tree limb 1 1/2 inches in diameter and 3 feet long. Proffitt said he was "not guilty."

His sons John, 16, and Coy, 12, first claimed they were attacked by an unidentified man while gathering wood near their mountain home nine miles from here.

Brought from a hospital at Jellico, Tenn., the brothers repeated the story at a court of inquiry. But officers, who grieved they were afraid to talk, treated the boys to meals and new clothing, and the brothers admitted later they knew their assailant.

Mrs. Proffitt, the 22-year-old stepmother, also had testified her husband was not involved but changed her story after the inquiry.

Officers quoted her as saying Proffitt whipped his sons last Sunday because they left a saw and an ax in the woods.

Sheriff Everett Hains said Coy was beaten so severely his head "was swollen twice its normal size. He can't see. His eyes are swollen tight." John suffered a gash from the center of his head "to the top of his left ear. And the bodies of both boys were covered with blotches."

"There are large holes in their backs where flesh was torn away," the sheriff added.

Mix cheddar, cream and blue cheese together for an interesting tasting spread. Add Worcestershire sauce and celery salt if desired.

Democrats Plan Active Year of Investigations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats, taking control of Congress, say they plan an active year of investigations on many different fronts.

A continuing search for Communists in government and a close scrutiny of the security and power programs of the Eisenhower administration are among main ones.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), incoming chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said today he will probably revive the Preparedness Subcommittee for a critical look at the armed forces' purchasing program and other activities.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he thinks the Republicans spent too much time "digging up old corpses" and Democrats "will keep their investigations more current."

The Senate Rules Committee, from which Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) is about to step down as chairman, is working on a suggested new code of "fair play" rules for investigations. In the House, Rep. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) has announced he also will propose such a code.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) who will take over the investigations subcommittee chairmanship from Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), says this group will abolish "one-man hearings," which have been a subject of deep controversy.

In the House, Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) has announced no detailed plans for investigations pending a shakeup of the staff of the Un-American Activities Committee, of which he becomes chairman.

One subject certain to undergo investigation is the Dixon-Yates contract, under which the government would buy privately generated electric power to be fed into the public-power lines of the Tennessee Valley Authority. A Senate Judiciary subcommittee to be headed by Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), a bitter foe of the project, has already had a preliminary look at the project.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) has announced plans to investigate the Eisenhower administration's announcements of security risk firings.

Fillmore Co. Polio Chapter Hears Reports at Meeting

PRESTON, Minn. (Special)—The annual meeting of the Fillmore County Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, was held Monday night at the Preston American Legion Hall.

After a prayer by the Rev. R. J. S. Vordale of Grace Lutheran Church, Charles Michener, chairman of the chapter, welcomed the 86 chairmen and chairwomen of the townships and villages.

Mrs. Frank Ashton, Preston, secretary, read the roll call and the minutes of the last meeting.

Wils Garratt, treasurer, reported a total of $16,443.36 was received in the March of Dimes campaign and $5,797.61 received during the emergency campaign. He also reported outstanding claims of $19,128.23. Elected were: Michener, chairman; Mrs. Harry Sheff, Wykoff, secretary; Garratt, treasurer and Ben Sanford, Spring Valley, vice chairman.

Lester Walters, Minneapolis, field representative, spoke and said, "Our need in Minnesota for '55 is primarily one of patient care, that is, financing the treatment of old patients." He showed a short film called "More Can Be Done."

Songs were rendered by a Spring Valley barbershop quartet. The meeting was preceded by a dinner served by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Liberace Goes On Diet, Feels Better Already

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The loyal fans of Liberace will be cheered to learn he is doing well after his recent physical setback, thank you.

I have this on personal knowledge, having visited the candelabra king at his ornate home in the San Fernando Valley. He came to the door in his bathrobe and slippers and offered the news that he was feeling fine. We sat down in the black-and-white living room dominated by twin grand pianos, and he talked about his enforced vacation.

"I never would have found out about it, except for an insurance physical I had," he explained. "Every once in a while, the office takes out another annuity for me, and I have to have a checkup. The doctor told me I would have to cut down all activity and get a complete rest."

"I came back from my last tour quite heavy. The doctor told me that globules of fat were clogging my arteries, cutting off the flow of oxygen in my blood."

"That's why I had been feeling so tired. When I did my TV show, I'd get to the point at 4 o'clock in the afternoon when I didn't have the strength to continue. I had to ask the director to shoot around me for half an hour while I took a rest."

The cure was rest and reducing. With a diet of steaks and salads, he has shed 17 pounds and has three more to go. Off him, it looks good. He is not as cherubic as he used to be, and he looks younger.

He must continue his complete rest until February.

He has canceled six concert dates he had planned for early this year in Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake City and elsewhere. Next month he'll ease back into his TV routine. Then in May he expects to start his movie for Warner Brothers. It's now called "Sincerely Yours, Liberace," but it's not a biography. The story was merely suggested by his career.

tion of essentially the present policy—increased emphasis on production of consumer goods, and a "co-existence" policy abroad. Pravda called, in effect, for a "hard" line abroad, and a return to all-out priority for heavy industrial production, which means arms production.

The next day, Pravda published another long editorial, and this time Pravda fell in line with Laventia. By knowledgeable Russians as well as foreign observers, this episode was universally taken to mean that there had been a basic disagreement on policy as between Malenkov and Krushchev, and that this disagreement had been settled in Malenkov's favor.

West Reminded

The episode was further taken to mean that the Russian rulers wished to make known the existence of the disagreement. The purpose was, presumably, partly to remind the West that the Soviets could adopt a tougher line if they wanted to. But another purpose certainly was to give Krushchev, as it were, his day in court, and to remind the Russian people that no one had inherited all the powers of the dead Stalin.

It is quite genuinely true, in the view of Bohlen and all other foreign observers, that there is still no single absolute dictator in post-Stalin Russia. Moreover, the extent to which the Soviet rulers—though notably not the ruled—feel free to disagree with each other is remarkable.

For example, there was a recent meeting between certain "neutrals" and a number of the Russian leaders, including Malenkov, Krushchev, and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. Malenkov and Krushchev engaged in a lot of free-wheeling about Soviet policy. Molotov quite obviously felt that his special province was being invaded by amateurs, and made no attempt to conceal his irritation from the foreigners.

The meeting very nearly became a sort of three-cornered argument between the Russians.

There is a good deal to suggest, in short, that a "great debate" of sorts is in progress within the Soviet government. No one, of course, believes that the essential objectives of the Soviet regime have changed. But it is natural that the Soviet rulers should debate whether the "soft" policy which achieved a triumph in Asia and almost achieved a greater triumph in Europe, has not about played itself out, how that the French have at last agreed to the rearmament of West Germany.

4-Power Meeting

Malenkov's recent equivocal remarks about the desirability of a four-power "meeting at the summit" further suggests that the issue has not yet been fully decided. The Soviet rulers, apparently, simply have not made up their minds whether such a meeting would serve Soviet purposes, since it is now seemingly impossible further to delay German rearmament.

A great debate is also, of course, in progress within the American government. This debate also concerns whether it is worth trying to negotiate with the Soviets, now that the German rearmament issue is presumably settled; and if so whether this is the time to try it. On one side are those who believe that the Soviets at least share the West's interests in avoiding mutual incineration; and that it is worth trying to agree on a set of ground rules to this end. At least to some extent, President Eisenhower inclines to this view—as does British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill.

On the other side are those who have strong doubts about the value of any negotiation with the Russians except on the most limited and specific issues. Secretary of State Dulles entertains these doubts—and British Foreign Secretary Eden shares them. Thus a kind of global great debate is going on, in Washington, in Moscow, in London. No doubt it will be settled one way or another before this year ends.

Join Hands Against Polio

A unique characteristic of our American society is the value we place upon the life and dignity of each individual.

In many lands, the sight of the miserable and ill, huddled in alleys and doorways, is so common that it passes almost unnoticed. In the United States the life or death of a single person may become a matter of national concern . . . a little girl trapped in a well, a kidnapped baby, a child lost in the woods.

We do not attempt to put a price on a single life nor the value of mending it. We know that here we are dealing with the priceless.

Similarly, we refuse to accept the inevitability of disease and suffering. We band together and fight them. An outstanding example of this is the fight against polio — the March of Dimes.

In this fight, millions of men and women, believing in their individual importance and in their collective strength, have joined hands in typical American fashion. They move forward with unflinching determination, buttressed by the satisfaction that is common to those who do battle in a good cause.

For the fight against polio . . . for the task of mending lives . . . give to your 1955 March of Dimes.

The Case of Olson And Johnson

Tax laws can work out in some strange and peculiar ways. How true this is we'd like to point out today by citing the case of Mr. Olson and Mr. Johnson, two neighbors who could be living next door to each other anywhere in the state of Minnesota.

Let's suppose neighbors Olson and Johnson live on any street in Red Wing. They live in two houses of exactly the same size and age, pretty much alike in every respect. The only difference is that Olson has saved up enough to make a down payment and is buying his house, while Johnson hasn't been able to set that much aside. He's still renting the house in which his growing family lives.

Along comes the assessor one day, and, seeing that the two houses are almost exactly alike, he puts both down on the tax rolls at the same value—let's say, $4,000. But do both houses pay the same tax? Oh no, that's where our sometimes strange and peculiar tax laws enter in.

According to state law, Olson's house can be taxed at only 25 per cent of its full and true value—$4,000—because he's the owner and he lives there. But Johnson's house must be taxed at 40 per cent of its full and true value because its occupant isn't the owner.

So Olson's house, a homestead, is given an assessed value of $1,000. Johnson's house, nonhomestead, gets an assessed value of $1,600. Apply to these two assessed valuations Red Wing's 1954 tax rates, announced on Thursday by County Auditor E. P. Ekholm, and this is what you get: Olson's house pays $167.98; Johnson's house pays $277.12. The difference is $109.14 on two houses which the assessor said would have exactly the same value on today's market.

Olson naturally doesn't complain about this situation. Maybe Johnson doesn't either because as a renter he doesn't pay taxes directly on his home. But there's only one place that extra $109.14 in taxes on Johnson's house can come from, and that's from the rent which the owner charges Mr. Johnson. So here we see the neighbor who hasn't been able to set enough money aside to buy a home—maybe his job doesn't pay so well as Olson's or maybe he has a bigger family to support—charged more money by his local government than his somewhat better-off neighbor.

That, in a nutshell, is how Minnesota's "homestead exemption" law can work out. It was passed in the 1930's to ease the tax burden on home owners, but, as the Minnesota Tax Study Commission pointed out last week, "The segment of the low-income group most in need of relief are those who are financially unable to own their homes and consequently have their real estate taxes included in their rent."

This is not a complete discussion by any means of the so-called homestead exemption. This law has many other effects, chief among them a substantial reduction in the amount of money a given mill will raise to operate any community's schools, maintain its roads, and so on. But this example does seem enough to suggest that some courageous legislators ought to take a good, hard look at this homestead exemption law to determine whether its continued presence on the statute books really serves the best interests of Minnesota.—Red Wing Republican Eagle.

A statement made 130 years ago was true then, and is equally true now. George Canning, the English statesman who encouraged the young United States to put forth the Monroe Doctrine, warned the conservatives of his day, "Those who resist improvements as innovations will soon have to accept innovations that are not improvements."

'Humanist Funeral Service' Explained

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NEW YORK — Corliss Lamont, whose troubles upon this earth seem manifold despite his good fortune of having chosen a successful and wealthy father to sire him, continues to battle a mystical and mysterious god whose ways are beyond his faith and imagination. In pursuit of such a struggle with the everlasting, Corliss has come up with "A Humanist Funeral Service," which seems a queer way of starting a new religious worship. One would imagine that all things start with birth; for Corliss Lamont, apparently, they start with death.

In the foreword to this funeral service, he says: "There has long been a widely felt need for a funeral service centering around a non-supernatural, humanist philosophy of existence. The humanist view, stemming from some of the greatest thinkers in history, rejects the idea of personal immortality and interprets death as the final end of the individual conscious personality. The philosophy or religion of humanism sets up the happiness and progress of mankind on this earth as the supreme goal of human endeavor."

IT IS ACTUALLY a beautiful frame for a departure from this earth but it excludes everything that is even remotely related to the religions that are traditional among us, except a few excerpts from the Epistles of Paul. Surely no one can object to starting a man to the afterlife of his non-being (Lamont does not tolerate a hereafter, a heaven or a hell, for that would be unscientific) with the first third of the second movement of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony. Nevertheless, it does seem to me that the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," comes closer to the heart of a mourner than a few lines from Ben Jonson's "A Pindaric Ode" or William Cullen Bryant's "Thanatopsis," as beautiful as both are.

It is not only a matter of taste but of depth of emotion; it is not only a matter of cold thought but of warming feeling. What seems to be so stirring in this funeral service is not its contents but that it should be done at all. The atheist or agnostic who takes literally the "scientific" dictum of dust thou art, to dust thou returnest, that man is nothing more than a collection of molecules in a special form, a mammal who stands upright and talks his head off, is driven by the emptiness of his soul to turn to religious worship and rejecting the tried expressions of religious fervor among his own kind, turns everywhere for similar religious expression wherever he can find it.

HOW SIMPLE IT IS, in a cremation commitment, to give the soul of man to God for his mercy! However, Corliss Lamont, whose mind is tortured between the frigid materialism of Karl Marx and the sentimental humanism of George Santayana, rejects the Psalms but accepts and puts into his service this little slice of Sir Rabin-drath Tagore:

"O fire, my brother, I sing victory to you. You are the bright red image of fearful freedom."

You swing your arms in the sky, you sweep your impetuous fingers

Across the harp-string, your dance music is beautiful.

My body will be one with you, my heart will be caught in the Whirls of your frenzy, and the burning heat that was my life will flash up and mingle itself in your flame."

Compare that exuberance at death with the comforting 68th Psalm:

" . . . when ye lie among the sheepfolds, The wings of the dove are covered with silver, And her pinions with the shimmer of gold. . . . And when one is finished with Lamont's services for the dead, what actually has happened to Corliss Lamont is that try as he will to run from God, what he has only succeeded in doing is to return to God. Were it not so, why does he bother to bury his friends with music and poetry and prayer (which he calls meditation)? Why does he not cast the remains of his humanists on the dustpile and have his molecules carted away to the sea to sink in the ooze of centuries as forgotten as the flies of a summer day? Somehow the humanist sees the heaven and tries to reach it by song, as do we all in our moments of sadness and despair, when we, gazing into the blaze of a setting sun, exult in the glories of God.

Ike's Plans for Judgeship Get Tangled in Politics

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Inside story can now be told of how young deputy attorney general Bill Rogers actually overruled the President of the United States in appointing a federal judge.

President Eisenhower had promised to appoint outgoing Sen. Bob Hendrickson, New Jersey Republican, to the U. S. Court of Appeals as his consolation prize for stepping aside and letting Clifford Case run for the Senate. In fact, Ike had given his personal word on this to Hendrickson's colleague, Sen. Alex Smith, also of New Jersey.

But at the same time, young Rogers had also made a commitment—namely, to wangle a federal judgeship for Joseph McGarraghy on the D. C. District Court. As long-time GOP boss of the voteless District of Columbia, McGarraghy was too much of a politico to risk appointing him to the higher court of appeals.

However, a vacancy existed on the Court of Appeals, not the District Court. To get around this difficulty, Rogers deftly managed to promote District Judge Walter Bastian to the Appeals Court and thus create an opening for McGarraghy down below on the District Court. All this was pulled off smoothly without notifying the President, who is supposed to appoint federal judges. And by the time Ike heard about it, Bastian's appointment had already been sent to the Senate for approval.

Meanwhile, Sen. Smith of New Jersey had spread word around the Senate that Ike had promised the appeals vacancy to Sen. Hendrickson. So when Bastian's name came to the Senate instead, it made Smith look like a fool. He telephoned the White House in a rage and accused the President of "a breach of faith." Senate GOP leader Bill Knowland of California joined in the protest.

Ike decided, however, it would be too embarrassing to withdraw Bastian's appointment after it had already been announced. So he tried to mollify the senators by offering Hendrickson the ambassadorship to New Zealand.

By this time Hendrickson was really sore. He had agreed not to run for re-election, had watched Clifford Case win instead, and now the promised judgeship had faded to an ambassadorship "down under." So he pouted and refused to say whether he would accept or not. After his friend, Amos J. Peaslee of New Jersey, was appointed ambassador to next-door Australia, however, Hendrickson decided he would like to go to New Zealand after all.

But by this time, the State Department had decided Hendrickson didn't want the job and had gone ahead with other arrangements. Today the diplomats are frantically trying to straighten out the mess.

Oldest Senator
The oldest member of the new 84th Congress, 87-year-old Sen. Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, plans to set a new record before this session of Congress ends.

If he lives beyond Feb. 28, 1956, he will be the oldest active senator in our history. That record is now held posthumously by former Sen. Justin Smith Morrill of Vermont, who lived to be 88 years, 8 months and 15 days while still in the Senate.

At the rate he's going, Green ought to be a cinch to be the new champ. The latest physical check-up showed him to be in excellent condition, and, having just been elected for his fourth six-year term last November, he has every intention of finishing the term at the age of 92.

"Then I may think about retiring," says Green with a wry grin. Meantime, the spry, bachelor senator is kept busy as the chairman

All Writers Have Things Left Over

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—The new year is well into its first week but I'm still thinking about the old one.

Like a man cleaning out his desk after new year's, I find myself cleaning out the cluttered drawers of my mind after the havoc of 1954. There are so many odds and ends left over, so many little bits of thoughts or phrases once so dear but which somehow never made it.

Mostly they are things which couldn't get by editors or things which I didn't think of until it was too late. Now they are alone, unloved, unwanted, pitiful in their rejection, a little stupid looking since they have been cut off completely from the father of the thought.

Almost every year I try to get in the phrase, "A man with an utterly resistible personality." Why couldn't I make it in 1954? There were so many fine opportunities. Rummaging through another drawer, I find, "There was absolutely no news today. None at all." Period. End story. When will I be able to say that?

Boss Grabs Ulcer

Sure, I know it's been overdone. I know the boss grabs his ulcer every time he reads it. But are there many better ways of starting a story than "This is the story of . . ."

Sad to relate, there are so many "buts" and "ands" left over. Why do editors cut them out to often? A "but" or an "and" is the kind of word an editor can pounce on and eliminate with the thirsty zest of a business manager removing the water in an expense account. You'd think he had to pay for every letter of type himself.

"But" can be one of the strongest words in the English language. It says that may be true but not this. It says turn left but not right, at the risk of life and limb. It says, stop, now we got something else.

And the loveable, harmless little "and." "And" moves you along gently; it lets you know you're still in the same room, maybe just facing another wall. It is a friendly word, inviting another look, another thought. Really, the word needs more "ands."

And someday I'll get to write about a big operator, a diamond-studded tycoon who made his pile in the junk business. And, I hope, the story will begin "Jones was a big man in junk." Neat, simple, to the point.

I know lots of writers and they all have beloved bits and pieces left over from 1954 and many years that went before. The lady next to me keeps wanting to write, "She started a brouhaha." She's not sure how to spell it but she thinks it means a flurry of activity or small rick. Nice word, brouhaha.

Another fellow has been frustrated all the 18 years he's been in this business. Someday, we all hope, he'll be able to start a story beginning "A human skull rolled out on the table."

Still another lady writer complains, "I'm an 'actually' and 'however' and 'on the other hand' girl myself. When will they stop cutting them out?"

But with all his tender sensibilities a writer is made durable by hope. Someday we'll all get these things out of our system. Someday I'll be able to say of a certain party, "he was never too busy to say an unkind word."

A gallon of liquid will cover two square feet about one inch deep.

Democrats to Study Ike Security Probe

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democrats say they will investigate the Eisenhower administration's program for getting rid of security risks among government employees.

No doubt they would have done it anyway if they had never heard of Wolf Ladejinsky and two of Secretary of Agriculture Benson's aides: John Glen Cassidy, his security chief, and Milan D. Smith, his executive assistant.

The Democrats had eyed the security program suspiciously from its start in May 1953. They began calling it a "numbers game" as the administration continued to announce security dismissals mounting into the thousands.

Under former President Truman's loyalty program government employees were fired when they were found to be disloyal or when their loyalty was considered questionable.

Under the Eisenhower program an employee can be tagged and fired as a security risk for all sorts of reasons, some of which have no connection with loyalty.

For example, a man can be fired if he was a Communist, has information in his files which some security officer decides is subversive, or if he is a drunk, a homosexual or a blabbermouth.

Just as the storm over Ladejinsky was hitting a peak this week, the administration produced its latest figures: In 16 months 8,008 persons dropped from the federal payroll and classed as security risks, of whom 2,096 had "subversive data" in their files.

Ladejinsky, a Jew, came from Russia in 1922, was naturalized, worked for a time in 1931 as an interpreter for Amtorg, the Soviet trading agency, has relatives living in Russia, has written extensively against communism, was credited by many with doing an outstanding job for the United States in postwar land reform in Japan, where he worked for the State Department.

That department checked and cleared Ladejinsky twice for security. Last summer all the agricultural attaches were transferred from the State to the Agriculture Department.

The latter investigated Ladejinsky all over again and two weeks ago announced it didn't want him for "technical and security" reasons.

Ladejinsky has denied any Communist connections. There were protests from Japan, from farm organizations, from members of Congress in both parties. Some State Department officials were burned up too.

Misuse of U.S. Secrets Brings 7-Year Sentence

By KARL R. BAUMAN

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Joseph S. Petersen Jr. has begun a seven-year prison sentence for misusing government secrets entrusted to him as a veteran employee of the hush-hush National Security Agency.

U.S. Dist. Judge Albert V. Bryan who imposed sentence late yesterday, said Petersen "deliberately violated both the confidence and the trust" placed in him by the government. A native of New Orleans, Petersen worked for the NSA and predecessor agencies for 13 years before his arrest three months ago.

Petersen, 40, pleaded guilty Dec. 22 to a charge that he unlawfully stored government secrets in his Arlington, Va. apartment.

Included were notes from two documents classified as top secret. The notes indicated that this country had succeeded in breaking a Netherlands' code and had intercepted North Korean security communications. Two other documents found in the apartment bore lower classifications.

The government dropped two other charges against Petersen. By pleading guilty, Petersen waived any right to appeal. He must serve one-third of his sentence less allowances for good conduct, before becoming eligible for parole. The Justice Department will decide where he will be imprisoned. Judge Bryan could have given Petersen 10 years in jail and fined him $10,000.

While an espionage case, it lacked any Communist overtones. Petersen's contacts were with intelligence officials of the Netherlands, a friendly power.

John F. Reilly, a Justice Department attorney, said a brief statement from a statement Petersen gave FBI agents. In it, Petersen said that in 1948 he gave information to Giacomo Stuyt, then attached to the Netherlands Embassy in Washington. This data concerned

Rushford Farmer Unhappy With Flexible Supports

To the Editor:

The farmer is being told that his income will be a little less in 1955 than it was in 1954.

A news commentator said the other day "1955 is to be the most prosperous year this country has had."

A banker told me big business made more money in 1954 than big business did in any war year. I have 90 hogs and the same number of hogs which I have if sold today will bring me $1,900 less than in 1952 at the same weight by the price hogs are today with dairy prices lowered by Sec. Benson.

We are being told, "The farmer is in better shape now with parity lowered."

My income was $3,000 less in 1954 than 1953.

How can a farmer be in better shape getting $3,000 less for his livestock and other products with expenses higher?

I have figures from the Minnesota Creameries Association stating: Dated Dec. 1954, from the Senate agricultural committee: The committee figures show that since 1951 retail fluid milk prices have risen two per cent, while the farm value of milk dropped nine per cent.

Butter prices were lower nine per cent at retail but fell 16 per cent in return to the farmer. Cheese prices went up two-tenths of one per cent to the consumer, while the farm value fell 18 per cent.

How can Sec. Benson make those statements about farmers being in better shape since Benson lowered parity on milk when the figures prove different?

How can a farmer sell eggs at 23 cents a dozen, cows at 6 cents per pound, hogs at 17 cents a pound, ewes at 3 cents a pound with tractors selling around $3,000 and other machinery at high levels?

I figure the only farmer that will benefit from flexible price supports is the farmer that made his money during the good years and if everything is cheap his money will go further.

It is a shame the farmer has to put up with this policy of flexible price supports.

a Chinese telegraphic code; itself not secret, but so classified by the security agency because it supposedly contained additional information.

The Netherlands Embassy here said its intelligence agents received information from Petersen in the belief he had authority to give it.

More Fog, Rain And Snow Over Much of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's weather showed little change today, with more fog, rain and snow in the mid-continent and some Western states. Mild, fair weather continued in the southeast, and most of the Northeast, Northern Plains and Rocky Mountain regions.

A belt of light rain or drizzle extended from Texas to the Alleghenies, with thunderstorms in parts of Oklahoma and Kansas. Farther north, snow fell in northeastern Colorado and southeastern Wyoming. Rain and snow showers hit most of Washington and Oregon and along the Pacific Coast southward to San Francisco.

Fog blanketed many areas in the central Mississippi and Ohio valleys. Near zero visibility conditions were reported in northern Illinois.

Temperatures were in the upper 50s and lower 60s in the South and East and as far north as central Illinois. It was below freezing from Pennsylvania northwestward into central Wisconsin and southwestward into western Kansas and over most of the Rockies and Great Basin region.

Scandinavians Plan Joint Market To Aid Economies

By GUSTAV SVENSSON
STOCKHOLM (AP) — The three Scandinavian countries are planning to bolster their economies by creating a joint market of their 14 million persons.

The project envisages the gradual breaking down of customs and other barriers to free trade among Sweden, Norway and Denmark. It is expected eventually to double the "home market" of Sweden and could enlarge the "home markets" of Norway and Denmark four times.

One of the most important aims is to increase the competitive capacity on the world market by facilitating specialization and mass production.

Last autumn, the Scandinavian prime ministers' meeting appointed a joint cabinet committee to survey the economic fields where the joint market could be established most rapidly and with the greatest advantage to all three countries.

The fields of production to be examined include iron, steel, metals, chemicals, lumber, wood pulp and ores. Pharmaceutical industries, electrotechnics and a large number of semimanufactured products also will come under survey.

One aim is the starting of joint Scandinavian industries and enlargement of existing industries "by joint Scandinavian action".

New industries would be started as joint projects when the national market of only one of the three countries would be too narrow to make them profitable.

No date has yet been set for the opening of the joint market. Nor is there any indication as to what its actual scope will be. But there is agreement in principle among the three countries.

'Sunday School' Housing Rules May Not Stand Up

HOPEWELL, Va. (AP)—Ernest J. Connelly, a book-loving Sunday school teacher who manages a federal housing project here, said he felt the 76 families in the project needed "someone to take care of them."

So yesterday, he sent them a letter forbidding them to drink alcoholic beverages on the premises, keep pets or light their apartments with light bulbs larger than 60 watts.

"Just last year there was a murder here," said Connelly, former librarian and history instructor at Chowan Junior College of Murfreesboro, N.C. "Some of these occupants are very immoral."

Drinking by the tenants violates a clause in their leases banning "illegal and immoral" conduct, Connelly declared.

And, he said, pet dogs had been digging holes around shrubbery planted to beautify the project, Thomas Rolfe Court; excessive use of electricity was overloading electric circuits; tenants had been guilty of "poor housekeeping and maintenance of the yard"; and their children had fired air rifles in the project.

Connelly said similar letters, outlining similar prohibitions, would go soon to 120 families of the Davisville project for Negroes.

Whether his action would stand appeared in doubt today. C.A. Reese, chairman of the housing commission to which Connelly is responsible, said the commission would consider Connelly's rules at a session set for Jan. 27.

Advice on Health

Colds Can Be Serious For Baby

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A little cold in a big person can develop into a big cold in a little person. So, while a cold may be merely an inconvenience to you, it might easily turn into bronchitis or pneumonia in your baby.

What can you do if your baby comes down with a cold? There are several ways you can help him.

Usually your baby will sleep longer if he has a cold. If a stuffy nose makes his breathing difficult, then he's going to be awake more often.

The best way of clearing his head is with steam. There are many vaporizers of one sort or another on the market which will produce steam satisfactorily.

Moisture Beneficial
Various substances such as benzoin, menthol, or eucalyptus may be added to the water being vaporized. If your doctor advises it, but it is the moisture itself which is really beneficial.

If you don't have a vaporizer, you can boil water on your kitchen range in an uncovered pan and then place it in the baby's room, well out of his reach. If you have a hot plate, it will make the job easier. Bring the water to the boiling point on the kitchen range to save time, and then place the pan on the hot plate.

You can even use a wet sheet to add moisture to the room, if you are unable to use the steam method. Hang the sheet in the baby's room; don't put it over the bed. It's a bit messy, but better than no additional moisture at all.

Keep the room warm both day and night. I think you'll find the best temperature is about 70 to 72 degrees.

Raising Crib
Ordinarily, a baby with a cold will sleep better on his stomach. If your tot tucks his knees under him, that's swell. If he doesn't you can stick a couple of books under the foot of his crib to raise it a few inches higher than the head. You can do this even if he does sleep on his knees.

This will help drain the mucus out of your baby's mouth and nose onto the sheet. You don't want him to swallow it, or to suck it into his lungs.

If his nose is stopped up, and he has to breathe through his mouth, his throat will become dry and might get sore. Sometimes this might interfere with his eating, since he can't breathe through his mouth and eat at the same time.

Give the baby plenty of lukewarm, boiled or specially prepared baby water. You can continue his regular feedings, if he has no fever. If he does have a fever, and is bottle-fed, you can use less milk and more water in making his formula.

Don't force him to take any food he doesn't want, and don't take him outside until his fever has subsided. Give him a sponge bath instead of his regular tub bath.

Wipe his nose frequently if it is running, and spread a little cold cream or boric acid ointment on his upper lip and on the edge of his nostrils.

I have been informed that it is due to lack of something in the diet. Could you advise me?

Answer: Deficiency in the diet may be responsible for the condition of the nails. On the other hand, there are certain disorders which may also cause a disturbance of this type, such as psoriasis, eczema or ringworm of the nails. Careful study by the physician would be advisable to determine the exact cause.

Female Jurist Wants Jail Terms for Drunks

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Judge Anne X. Alpern says she thinks that jail sentences should be mandatory for persons convicted of drunken driving.

"I don't think this menace will ever be erased by fines . . . legislation making a jail sentence a part of drunken driving would be the only way to stop people from driving when drinking," she asserted.

The female jurist made her proposal yesterday after sentencing a disabled veteran to 60 days imprisonment for ramming and demolishing a parked car while he was driving under the influence of alcohol.

Stingy Congress Hampering Federal Courts, Says Judge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Congress is so stingy with money for Federal Courts, says Federal Judge Sherrill Halbert, "it has impaired the ability" of those courts to function properly.

Judge Halbert's charge was made from the bench yesterday after a probation officer said his department didn't have the money to investigate a probation case thoroughly.

"I think it is a disgrace . . ." said Judge Halbert. "If the Congress of the United States continues to cut down the money that is available for the operation of the Federal Courts, I think we might just as well close our doors and turn everyone loose."

SCOUTS AT LANESBORO
LANESBORO, Minn. (Special)—Boy Scout Troop 49 project for the next two months will be a study of the U. S. flag and etiquette, according to Orval Amdahl, scout leader. The Flying Arrow patrol was presented a patrol flag from the troop and each boy of that patrol is making a flag staff.

The winning staff will be used for the new flag. The leaders of the three patrols are Danny Hegg, Paul Langlie and Jerry Johnson.

Fake Governor Is Wined, Dined, Jailed

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Police reported a 44-year-old man stepped into a hotel lobby yesterday, introduced himself as "the governor of Mississippi" and said his plane had been grounded in Wichita. The hotel manager personally escorted him to the presidential suite.

Detective Richard Brown said that after the man had wined and dined the manager became suspicious and telephoned Mississippi. He learned the governor was still in his home state.

The manager called police and John W. Lott, a 44-year-old machinist, was arrested on charges of violating hotel laws. Detective Brown said Lott admitted posing as the governor and then drew $5 from his pocket—his only funds.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEREETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEREETH at any drug counter.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high lustre, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at the Paint Depot, 123 Center St. in Winona or Pembroke St., Wabasha.

Immigration Act Fantastic, Says Oppenheimer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer says that if the McCarran Immigration Act had been in effect at the time, perhaps Dr. Albert Einstein would not have been allowed to enter the United States.

Discussing the barring of a number of foreign scientists on security grounds, Oppenheimer, one of the chief architects of the atom bomb, said:

"This is just terrible, and seems a wholly fantastic and grotesque way to... meet the threat of espionage—just an enormous apparatus, surely not well designed for that, and terrible... for those of us who live with it."

"We are rightly ashamed by the contempt that the Europeans have for us, and we are rightly embarrassed that we can't hold (scientific) congresses in this country... This is a scandal."

Einstein, famed theoretical physicist, was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1933.

Oppenheimer, who has been barred from government atomic secrets as a security risk, is director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J. He was interviewed last night at his Princeton office by Edward R. Murrow for his program See It Now.

Only a part of the interview touched on the case of Oppenheimer, who was suspended as a consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission last April, pronounced loyal but still a security risk by a special board in June, and denied access to government secrets by the AEC later in June.

Much of the interview was about the work of the institute for advanced study, where about 100 distinguished scholars work in their various fields.

Murrow asked Oppenheimer: "Is there widespread reluctance on the part of scientists to work for the government?"

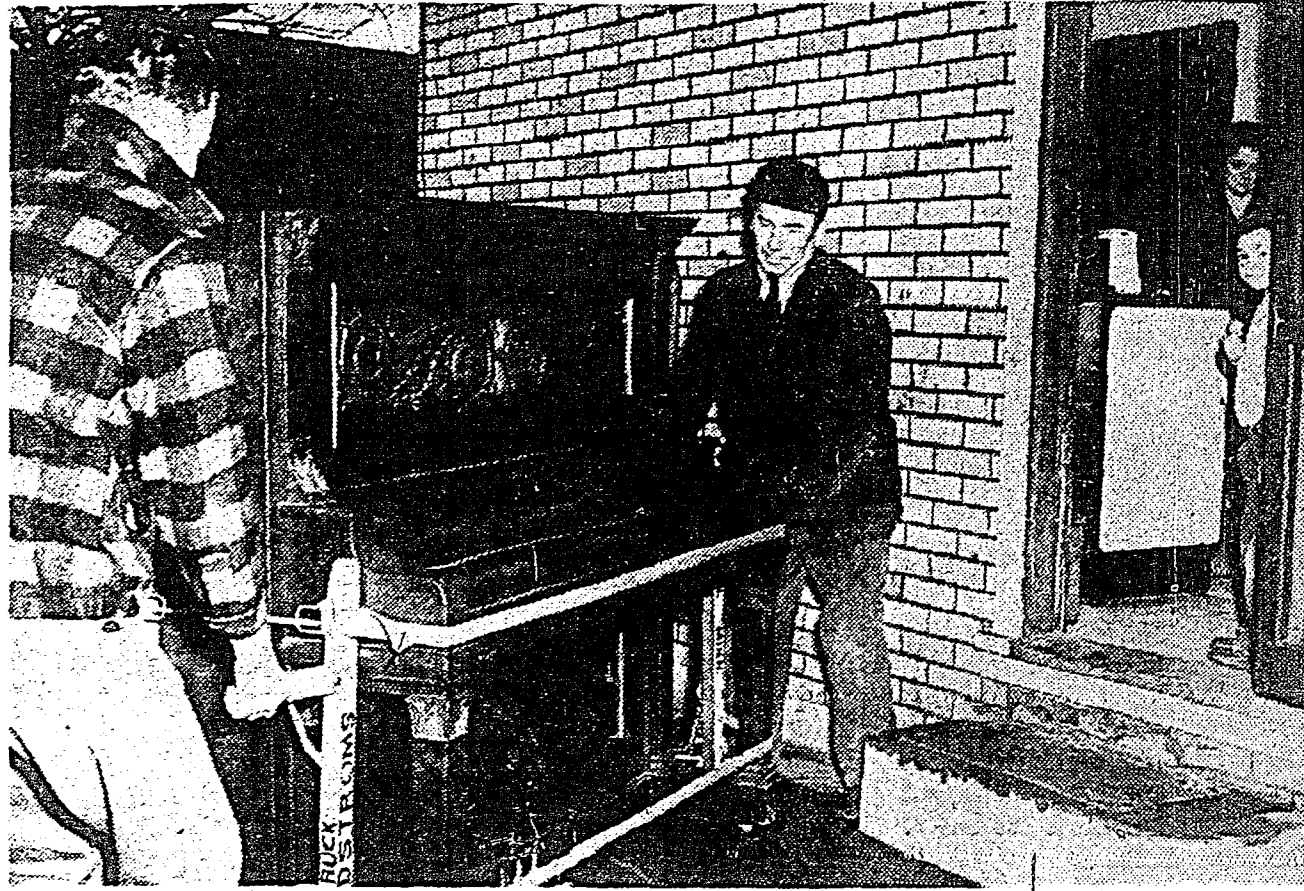

Oppenheimer replied: "No, I don't think so. It gets very much distorted when it's talked about in sloganistic terms."

Without referring directly to his own security case, Oppenheimer added:

"I suppose that when the government behaves badly in a field you are working close to, and when decisions that look cowardly or vindictive or shortsighted or mean are made... then you get discouraged... but I think that's human rather than scientific."

Serious Crimes Hit Record High

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's year-end report to Atty. Gen. Brownell today said serious crimes in the United States climbed 5 per cent to a new record high in 1954. Hoover said this occurred in the face of increased police efficiency.

The report said that although homicides and auto thefts declined in 1954, "the past year will record a new high for the past 10 years in crimes of robbery, aggravated assault, rape, burglary and larceny," along with sharp increases in the looting of banks by raid or embezzlement, frauds against the government, and theft of government property.

Army Corporal Visiting Mother Of 6 Murdered

WHITE HALL, Ill. (AP)—A 43-year-old Army corporal, visiting a mother of six children, was fatally shot last night. Officers seized the woman's estranged husband in connection with the shooting.

Sheriff Fred Ballard of Greene County said Cpl. Richard A. Suttles, in the regular Army for 17 years, was shot when he went outside the home of Mrs. Rose Seymour, 42, to investigate noises. He died in a White Hall hospital 2 1/2 hours later.

Ballard said Mrs. Seymour told him her husband Lawrence, 58, who lives next door to her, fired one shot from a 20-gauge shotgun when he met Suttles outside. She said she heard no conversation between the men—"only a shot."

The sheriff quoted Mrs. Seymour as saying her husband told her: "Get back in the house or you'll get the same."

Seymour, who is unemployed, was picked up shortly after the shooting and taken to the Greene County Jail in nearby Carrollton. Ballard said he will be charged with murder.

Two of Seymour's six children, who range in age from 3 to 18 years were asleep in their mother's home when the shooting occurred. Their oldest child Charles is in the Army. The others have been living with their father.

Ballard said Suttles, who had lived in White Hall before enlisting, arrived a few days ago to visit a brother-in-law while on a 17-day leave from Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Legislators Must Find Way to Cut Wisconsin Budget

MADISON (AP)—Wisconsin's legislators who convene here next Wednesday in their 72nd regular session will be confronted with the toughest financial problem they have faced in many years.

They will be charged with cutting requested executive budget appropriations of some 277 million dollars for the 1955-56 biennium by possibly as much as 50 million dollars.

Wisconsin, under its constitution, can not go into debt as can the federal government. It has to operate under a balanced budget—appropriating only as much money as its financial directors believe will be taken in during the next two years.

The current executive budget, set by the 1953 Legislature, was slightly above 242 million dollars. In the first year of that biennium, however, the state spent only about 115 million dollars of that amount while collections were about 109 million. There was a surplus on hand at the start of the fiscal year, however, of about 14 million dollars, so the surplus on July 1, 1954, was about eight million. If the full 242-million-dollar 1953-55 biennium budget is spent before next July 1, the state will have expenditures this year of 127 million dollars.

Therefore, if the income for the 1954-55 fiscal year does not exceed the 109 million taken in last year, the state would be in a hole by July. Even if it added the eight million dollar surplus to the revenue, it would be some 10 million short to match anticipated expenditures.

However, financial experts and Gov. Kohler contend the picture is not that dark.

They see considerable increase in state revenues for the fiscal year ending in July. They also contend that the full 242 million will not be spent and that there probably will be four million dollars of the funds appropriated that will lapse.

Whether the state is able to come out of this biennium without a deficit, however, will not change the hard financial facts of life that will confront the lawmakers for the next biennium.

They will have to find some way of slashing the requested appropriations drastically or of raising additional funds—assuming that revenues stay about on the level of the past year.

Content, Showmanship, Relationship Discussed for Toastmistress Club

"Public speaking is 50 per cent content and 50 per cent showmanship," Brother Raymond of St. Mary's College told members of the Winona Toastmistress Club at their meeting held Tuesday evening at the Williams Hotel.

"Body action and gestures," he continued, "are important in speech. Body action is important because it is the appeal aspect. If you are the type of person who has to develop gestures you will find that when you first attempt to make gestures they will be very mechanical. Don't get discouraged—you learn gradually. Practice, practice practice—these things will come to you."

"There are four basic types of hand gestures—index finger which we use to point out; the clenched fist which gives the indication of strength and virility; the open palm with the fingers relaxed, simple exposition, and the palm down—feeling of degradation, gloom."

"These gestures should not be abrupt, these gestures should not be cramped, the gestures should not be too extreme," the speaker told his audience.

At the conclusion of his talk Brother Raymond gave the group a demonstration of an introduction without gestures and then used appropriate gestures to make the introduction effective.

Three club members were selected after a preliminary speech contest to again participate in the local contest to be held at a later date. Miss Geraldine Gardini, Mrs. B. F. Perkins and Miss Helen Ingels who gave three-minute impromptu talks, were voted the winners.

Mrs. F. A. Lipinski, speech contest chairman, served as toastmistress, assigned the topics and timed each member's talk. Mrs. B. F. Perkins presided at the meeting and Mrs. Addison Glubka was in charge of the invocation. Guest of the club was Mrs. J. H. Quirk, Highmore, S. D., mother of Mrs. Lipinski.

F. J. Sagissor, Bride Return From Brief Trip

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (Special)—The wedding of Miss Margaret J. Sundberg, Fairmont, Minn., and Frederick J. Sagissor, Plainview, was solemnized by the Rev. Wilbert Traver at East Chain Methodist Church Dec. 19 at 2:30 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sundberg, Fairmont, Minn., and the bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sagissor, Plainview.

Pink snapdragons and pink and white chrysanthemums on the altar with candles in candelabra formed the setting for the wedding. Traditional wedding marches were played by the organist, Miss Linda Gaye Owens, and Miss Florence Morton sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The matron of honor was Mrs. Vincent Celander, Granada, Minn., and bridesmaids were Miss Janice Sundberg, Fairmont, and Mrs. William Allen (Marion Sagissor), Marion, Minn. Flower girl was Marcia Jean Celander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Celander, Granada.

Best man was Eugene Goetz, Winona, and groomsmen were Edward Sagissor, brother of the bridegroom, and Dale Reiter, Plainview. Ushers were William Allen, Marion; Richard Sundberg, Fairmont, Minn., and Vincent Celander, Granada, Minn.

The bride's gown was made of lace and satin with a net overskirt and train. The net veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and sequins. Her flowers were pink roses in a shower bouquet.

The attendants' gowns were made alike in deep orchid, pink and white. Their flowers were carnations and they wore carnations in their hair.

A reception was held at 3:30 p.m. in the church parlors. Pink and white chrysanthemums, pink snapdragons and candles graced the buffet table and the bride's table.

The couple is spending a few days on a brief wedding trip, and also will visit at the home of their parents. Their plans for the future are undecided as the bridegroom is still in service in the Air Force. He returned recently from Germany where he was stationed the past year.

The bride's traveling costume was a rust dress with brown accessories.

The bride was graduated from Fairmont High School and St. Mary's School of Nursing, Rochester, Minn., and has been a registered nurse in the Fairmont Hospital. The bridegroom attended Plainview High School.

The wedding rehearsal was held at the East Chain Church Dec. 18 with a social hour following. Miscellaneous showers were given by Mrs. George Sagissor, Mrs. William Allen and Miss Mary Sloan, by the WSCS and Miss Maurine Forstrom, Mrs. Arnold Soma and Mrs. Soren Larsen.

ASIDES - By the Society Editor

While Christmas is over, an account of the observance in Germany written by Miss Constance Christopher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Christopher, who is serving as librarian in the U. S. Army library at Munich, Germany, is not to be missed. She writes, "Christmas, one of the most cherished festivals in Germany, has managed to retain more of its simplicity and religious significance than our own in America, and as I participate in many of its customs, some of which had their beginning in folklore and move through the streets, resplendent with traditional Christmas decorations, I am saddened to think that this is my last Christmas in Germany. Remembering Christmas 1947, I find it hard to believe that in this brief space of time such tremendous changes have taken place as are everywhere in evidence today for the streets are thronged with eager shoppers, the shops are filled with wonderful things to buy, and all of the age-old Christmas customs are back again.

"The Christmas season in Germany is ushered in by the Advent season. From the northernmost tip of Protestant Holstein to the southernmost corner of Catholic Bavaria, the Advent wreath appears in every household. It is made with fir branches and is interlaced with red silk ribbons. It holds four red candles and hangs from the chandelier or stands on a table. On the first Sunday of Advent, the first candle is lit at dusk—often with a family ceremony. On the second Sunday, another candle, and on the last Sunday before Christmas, four lighted candles give a small preview of the many lights which will appear on the Christmas tree. Advent calendars with intriguing doors to be pushed open each day of the Advent season also are obtainable in shops and are a joy to children.

"For weeks before the holidays, the public squares are thronged with people who buy and sell at holiday fairs. Probably the most unique of these is one of the most unique. In early days, this market was held in the open square before the Dom or cathedral from which it derives its name. Today it occupies the Heiligengeistfeld or Holy Ghost Field in the center of town, and offers everything from lollipop to wonderful toys. Frankfurt's Chronicle records its first fair in 1400. Since that time every year around the first of December, a small town of shanties is erected in the center of the city. On the town wall, the Roster, a Christmas tree is put up as a symbol of the German Christmas. Nurnberg, toy center, also has its 'Christkindchens-Markt,' dating from medieval times, and held each year on the Hauptmarkt, with the Schoner Brunnen, a beautiful fountain erected by Emperor Charles IV, in the second half of the 14th century, in the background.

"It was also in Nurnberg that the Rauschgoldengel was created at about the turn of the 18th century. Its head carved of wood or clay bore a crown of so-called 'rustling gold.' 'Rustling gold' also was used to decorate the costume. Rauschgold - brass hammered to the thickness of a leaf is a product that has always been made near Nurnberg. It rustles at the slightest touch or faintest stir of air, and explains the name of the angel. According to an old legend, a citizen of Nurnberg lost his little daughter, went into seclusion and in his grief and solitude created a symbolic likeness of the child—about 150 years ago. His neighbors adopted the little figure as part of their Christmas symbolism. About 30 years ago, some members of the German Cultural League of Women revived the tradition in its original, unpretentious form.

"German Yuletide festivities begin with St. Nicholas Eve, Dec. 6, when the saint makes his annual calls on children. If boys and girls have been good, he promises them sweets and toys but if they have been bad, he flourishes a bundle of birch rods, or presents them with a cluster of twigs which are either real or of candy. Bundles of twigs on which candies and cookies have been strung are a familiar sight in German shops. St. Nicholas Day is believed to have originated in the fifth century growing out of old legends of the 'wild men,' roughly dressed hunters led by the God Thor who galloped through the sky in the solstice season and punished evil farmers and villagers. Today St. Nicholas in his gold and red priestly robes makes a striking figure. Traveling with him is a servant, Knecht Rupprecht, whose function it is to whip the bad children. It is Dec. 6 that German children put out their shoes in preparation for the visit of St. Nicholas.

"It seems fairly certain that the original home of the Christmas tree was the left bank of the upper Rhine in Germany. According to an old legend, the tradition of the Christmas tree was begun by Martin Luther who became entranced with the beauty of the starry sky one Christmas Eve and seeking to express his thoughts to his family brought into his home a tree and illuminated it with numerous candles. The first mention of the Christmas tree as we know it today, dates from Alsace in 1521.

"In Bavaria it was the custom to erect a crib in honor of the Christ Child at Christmas time, and as late as 1600, a Bavarian brewmaster was fined for having a Christmas tree in his home. Three years later, however, the tree was accepted in Bavaria and today a mixture of the two customs prevails. Every December the national museum in Munich holds an exhibition of Christmas cradles and it possesses the oldest German 'Christ crib' in existence, made for the Fussen Monastery seven hundred years ago. Today in most parts of Germany the tree is trimmed in utmost secrecy by the heads of the household Dec. 24—and has simple milk-white candles shining through the green branches. Only on the trees put up on public squares are electric candles used.

"The real holiday begins with Heiligabend (Holy Night, or Christmas Eve). Holy Night church services are followed by festivities and family gatherings. The Christmas tree is lit and when everything is read for the Beschering or distribution of gifts, all members of the family are summoned. German children have no Santa Claus. Instead gifts are brought by the Weihnachtsmann, Christmas Man, or the Christ Kindel, Christ Child, who wanders across the snow with blessings for young and old. Weihnachtsstag, Christmas Day is usually spent quietly with relatives and close friends. Germans prepare an astounding array of holiday foods—roast goose, Christmas cookies, lebkuchen, Pfefferkuchen, marzipan, Christollen, long loaves of bread bursting with nuts, raisins, citron and dried fruits. It is during the Christmas season that the Hexenhaus, old witch house, associated with the Hansel and Gretel fairy tale appears in bakery shops, a work of art and a delight to the children.

"During the holiday season many concerts and productions appropriate to the season are given—the opera 'Hansel and Gretel' and concerts of Christmas music. Hearing the Regensburg Domspatzen, Regensburg Cathedral boys choir in a concert of Christmas music is a moving experience. A favorite German Christmas carol, 'Silent Night' was composed on any detriment because of his race, color, creed, or national origin.

"The words 'regardless of race, creed or color' are often spoken glibly today," he asserted. "Here in Minnesota, these words should be translated into positive legislation which will stand as a testimony to our determination that every Minnesotan shall have an equal economic opportunity."

Resources Important
Declaring that "our resources are too important to be manipulated as political plums," the chief executive said one of the great goals of state government is the enhancement and conservation of our natural resources.

The governor claimed that the state's program for handling natural resources in the past has been too often "one of patchwork and piecemeal." He said "we have even had the experience of watching one division carry on a program which was cancelled out by the program of another division."

He called for a unified, long-range policy.

He explained that in meeting the great needs of conserving and expanding of both human and natural resources, the state always faces the reality that these services must be paid through taxes. He said the key lies in the development of an expanding economy.

Freeman said that the state's economic future is in the hands of the citizenry, and that the state is at a disadvantage in competition with other states in attracting new industries, is short-sighted and costly, he said as he emphasized that the services of government can be paid for only by an expanding economy.

The governor said he intends to appoint a committee to study the competitive effect of taxes on industry in Minnesota.

Another way to building the state's economy is through development of an "imaginative, long-range highway program," Freeman stressed.

Good roads, he said, are an incentive to the location of new industries; they increase the efficiency with which farmers move produce to markets, and they are basic to the prosperity of the resort and tourist trade.

Freeman urged the Legislature to decide upon new forms for the distribution of highway funds derived from highway users' taxes, as the first step toward financing the type of highway program needed.

He said it is imperative that Minnesota look now toward the development of the Duluth harbor, pointing to the hopeful prospects for the state's economic future in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Freeman urged the Legislature to undertake study of the implications of the Seaway to Minnesota's economy.

Minnesota labor can make its best contribution to economic expansion only in a climate of free collective bargaining, he said in that part of his talk dealing with labor-management relations.

Increasing farm income also is essential to an expanding economy, he said. Freeman contended that so long as parity prices in Minnesota are below the national average, state farmers in a must concern itself with the problem of farmers' income and prices.

Agencies Overlap
One of the goals of his administration will be the achievement of maximum efficiency in government through a program of administrative reorganization, Freeman said.

"At present," he said, "a great number of overlapping agencies, connected by tangled lines of authority, result in substantial waste of time and money." He said a careful review of the report of the "Little Hoover Commission" has been made and that further studies are presently under way.

Stressing that administrative and legislative acts alone are not enough in modernizing the state's government, Freeman urged revision of the state's century-old constitution. He made a plea to the legislators to submit a constitutional convention to revise and bring up to date "the basic machinery of government in Minnesota."

Reapportionment is long overdue, he said as he pointed to the requirement in the state constitution that there be redistricting. He said he could not urge too strongly that the Legislature comply with the provisions of the constitution and reapportion during the current session.

He also recommended that the lawmakers pass a law for party designation of members of the Legislature "to provide further for greater responsibility in government."

The efficiency of government rests in very large measure on the moral of state employees, Freeman said as he recommended provisions be made for opportunities for promotion, security under an improved merit system, and an adequate retirement program.

He pledged an alert vigil to the end that the people's money will be handled with scrupulous honesty in every respect.

The new governor said "we cannot hope to solve all of the problems that now confront us by 1937" but that he looks forward confidently to significant progress toward the administration's goals.

Youths Becoming 18 Must Register, Draft Head Reminds

Col. Lloyd E. Lylgren, state director of selective service, reminded today that all young men must register with their nearest local draft board within five days after their 18th birthday.

The Winona County selective service office is in Room 209, Winona Post Office building.

Col. Lylgren also noted that there are over 400 registrars in various localities throughout the state with whom a young man may register if he has difficulty in getting to his local board office.

In such case, he should write to his local board to ascertain who these registrars are and where they are situated.

Among these are the auditor's office at the Winona County Courthouse and Brother J. Leo at St. Mary's College. In St. Charles, registrations may be made at the First National Bank.

The county selective service office also announced that the pre-induction physical examination call for six men this month has been canceled. However, seven men will leave for induction into the armed forces Jan. 13 as originally scheduled.

Democrat Takes Whitehall Office

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—For the first time in over half a century, a Democrat was sworn into Trempealeau County office at the courthouse here Monday afternoon. Gordon Severson, Osseo, was elected as county treasurer on the Democratic ticket last November, defeating incumbent Marjory R. Lietz, who was serving her first term in office by appointment.

According to Albert Hess, Arcadia, dean of Trempealeau County Democrats, there was a Democrat in county office when he moved to this county from Buffalo County in 1896, but there never has been one since.

Mrs. Lietz had been serving since May 1, 1933, by appointment of the county board of supervisors, filling the vacancy left by Everett Gue when he resigned to take the position of county service officer.

One other new official was sworn in, Clarence H. Johnson, Whitehall, who defeated Mrs. Donna M. Amundson for clerk of court. Johnson, a Republican, has, however, previously held this office, leaving it two years ago to make an unsuccessful campaign for the office of sheriff. Mrs. Amundson held the office but one term.

Officials re-elected last November on the Republican ticket were H. M. Johnson, county clerk; Lester Brennon, register of deeds; Ernest Axness, sheriff; John C. Quinn, Arcadia, district attorney, and Martin A. Wiemer, Independence, county coroner.

Jens Klavestad, re-elected county highway commissioner by the county board at its November session, also took the oath of office at the beginning of his new 2-year term. The officers signed their oaths in the office of County Clerk Johnson and then were formally sworn in by Judge A. L. Twesme.

ed there will be a further announcement. All bowlers in the city, holding ABC membership cards are invited to this dinner.

The bowling pins for use in this tournament have already been secured, and will be the regulation pin with a weight of between three pounds, three ounces and three pounds, four ounces.

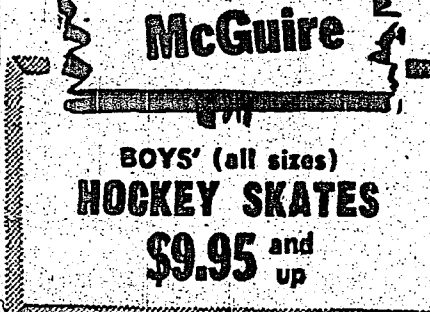

With this uniformity in the weight of pins exceptionally high scores are looked for this year. Before the pins are put into use, they will be examined and weighed by a special committee composed of Koetz, Critchfield and Holubar.

It is expected that about 20 teams will participate and between four and five hundred in the singles and doubles.

The entry fee must accompany the application. All entries must be in the hands of the secretary or left with one of the bowling establishments on or before Saturday, January 29. No entries will be accepted after that date. Therefore everyone is requested to get their entries in as early as possible.

James J. Schneider, secretary of the local association, will be in charge of the tournament.

Redmen Make Concordia 1st League Victim

Skemp Hits 29, Four Others in Double Figures

The St. Mary's College Redmen, with jumping Bill Skemp pouring 29 points through the net, rolled to a 21-point, 88-67 victory over Concordia Tuesday night at Terrace Heights.

It was a tight game until four minutes remained in the first half. At that point St. Mary's held only a 31-29 halftime lead. Then Skemp scored a fielder and when Concordia retaliated it was 33-31.

Skemp, however, bucketed eight straight points, two field goals and four free throws. St. Mary's jumped to a 41-31 lead and eased to a 45-34 intermission advantage.

Next game for Coach Ken Wiltgen's Marions is Saturday night at St. Thomas against a good-sized and dangerous Tommie squad.

Skemp shot at a 65 per cent clip, hitting 11 field goals in 17 attempts, most of them on jump shots with a few drives tossed in. The Redmen as a team hit 40 per cent.

Skemp, with 34 points, the last two games, boosted his per game average to a 20.5 clip.

St. Mary's held a rebound advantage throughout the game. Fred Sheridan and Johnny Curran both had 10 rebounds with Sheridan getting most of his off the offensive boards.

Effective rebounding gave St. Mary's second and third helpings at the basket time after time.

Wiltgen also showed developing bench strength in that reserve guards Dick Kuehl and Ken Jansen both played 75 per cent of the game. Regular guard and captain, Marty Coughlin, sat out most of the game with an ailing back.

Besides Skemp, Sheridan, Jansen, Blawen and Kuehl all scored 10 or more points.

The victory was St. Mary's first in Minnesota College Conference action, giving the Redmen a 2-2 mark in league warfare and boosted their season record to 10-3. It was Concordia's third straight MCC defeat and sixth straight loss of the season.

Iowa, Illinois Teams to Beat, Cowles Believes

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota's Ozzie Cowles, refusing to count 10 over his own team, today put the finger on Iowa and Illinois as the Big Ten's basketball powers.

After one round of conference warfare, Cowles adhered to an earlier estimate. "You have to call Iowa and Illinois the favorites," he said, "they've got the best personnel in the league."

On that there seemed to be an element of uncertainty around the league. Illinois Coach Harry Combes earlier this week fixed a prophet's gaze on Minnesota and called the Gophers co-favorites with Iowa.

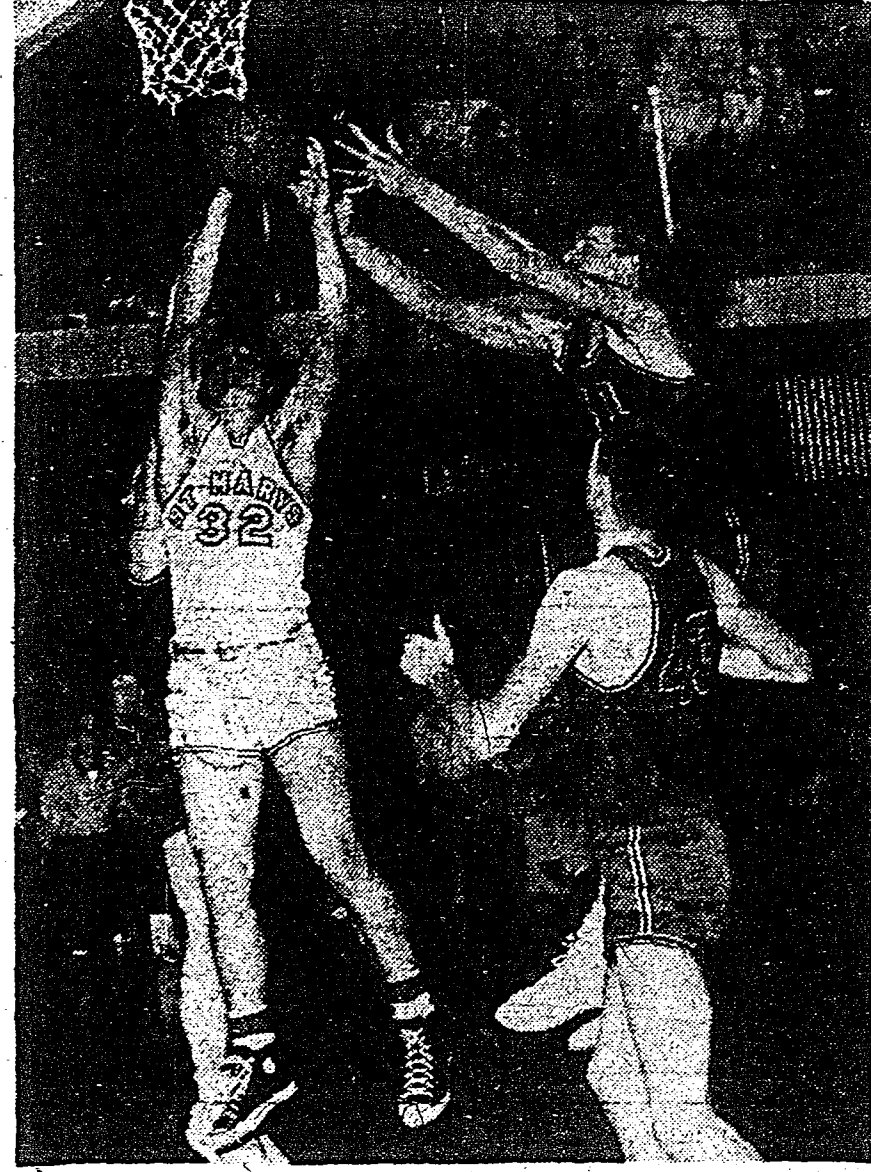

The record isn't charitable to the crystal ball talents of either. Illinois was ousted by Wisconsin in its first outing and the Gophers lost to Northwestern Monday night.

Cowles shrugged off the Northwestern defeat as "one of those things that happens now and then. We should have won it with that lead near the end of the game."

But, he said, he wouldn't begin to count his team out after an opening game defeat. "We've still got 13 left to go, and the kids are coming along all right."

At the top of this category he put Bill Simonovich, now an established scorer to go with Dick Garmaker and Chuck Mencil.

Cowles acknowledged, however, that Minnesota couldn't afford to

Langston, Gleason Sign Dotted Line

Two more contracts were announced in the fold of the 1955 Winona Chiefs.

Winona Baseball Association officials revealed that Manager Emil Scheid had secured signatures on the dotted line from catcher George Gleason and outfielder Sid Langston.

Langston hit .347 in 32 games with Austin last summer, while Gleason joined the team late, and had a .281 average in 16 games.

Langston had 41 hits in 118 trips to the plate. He had six doubles, six home runs and 21 runs batted in. Besides playing the outfield, he also filled in at first base.

The 6-2, 200-pound outfielder broke his wrist early in the season last summer and joined the Class AA Western Minny circuit.

Gleason, now only a junior at the University of Missouri, is rated by Austin sports writer Tom Kocek as the "best young prospect in the league."

New Five-Year Contract for Navy's Coach

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy Football Coach Eddie Erdelatz has under consideration a new five-year contract to keep him on the job here at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Home fresh from a 21-0 Sugar Bowl triumph over Mississippi in the New Year's Day, Erdelatz said only: "I am happy to get the offer."

In his five seasons at Navy, Erdelatz's teams have beaten Army four times. His contract expires this year. The salary was never disclosed, but was believed to be about $15,000 per year. The new contract reportedly contains a $2,000 raise.

Erdelatz's team returned late last night and paraded through the streets of Annapolis before thousands of "welcomers."

lose both to Indiana and Iowa during the next week and still figure in the race.

Iowa, Minnesota's opponent Saturday night at Iowa City, draws Cowles' verdict as the best in the league, one with balance, speed and drive.

He said any Minnesota lineup changes would have to await practice performances this week.

Chiefs Board Sets Budget At $30,000

A budget of slightly under $30,000 to operate the Chiefs for 1955 was submitted to the board of directors of the Winona Baseball Association by Milt Goldberg, treasurer, at a meeting of the board at the Arlington Club Tuesday night.

This is approximately $5,000 less than operation expenses in 1954. Expenditure for salaries was placed at $21,000 and for the park, maintenance, travel and equipment at $8,500.

Advance season ticket sales up to Tuesday afternoon was 246, or a number equal to the total number of season ticket holders at the opening of the season in 1954.

The board voted to allow only holders of 75-cent tickets in the unreserved section of the grandstand. Children up to 14 years of age may still purchase 25-cent tickets but they will be outside the grandstand.

League representatives Stan Wicorek and Bob Krick reported on the meeting Monday night at Owatonna at which the merger of the Wasca-Owatonna team was completed and Fairmont became the eighth team in the league.

They stated that the opinion prevailing at the meeting was that this arrangement will mean a better league.

Krick was instructed to make a survey of present uniforms and report to the next meeting. The possibility of selling beer at the park will be investigated.

There will be no solicitation of scorecard advertising as has been done in the past. Booster buttons will be discussed and taken up at the next meeting.

Maryland Makes Progress in Basketball Race

By ED CORRIGAN

The Associated Press

Remember back in the days when Maryland was a pushover for its rivals in the Southern Conference? Well, it wasn't so long ago—about five years.

Now times have changed, and Maryland today stands as a first threat to win the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. This is the Terps' fifth season under 34-year-old Bud Milikan and it could be their most successful.

Ranked No. 11 in the weekly Associated Press poll, Maryland won its fifth straight game and fourth league victory last night—a 68-51 decision over South Carolina. Sophomore Frank Fuqua, scored 17 points and junior Bob Kessler dropped in 25.

In the Southeastern Conference, Texas Christian, the league favorite, whipped Arkansas 67-59 on the wings of Dick O'Neal's 38 points. Southern Methodist, a sharp-shooting outfit which is rated right behind Texas Christian, slugged Texas 74-51. Rice coasted to a 61-41 triumph over Texas A. & M.

Missouri, which figures to win the Big Seven crown, got past Kansas, an old jinx, 76-65, and in the process snapped a Jayhawk streak of 33 straight home victories. Nebraska surprised Iowa State 76-63, while Kansas State outlasted Oklahoma 90-82.

Alabama defeated North Carolina 77-55, and the highlight of this one was an 88-foot field goal by George Linn of the Tide.

De Paul rolled to its ninth victory in 10 starts, defeating John Carroll 88-55; Columbia edged Syracuse 75-74; West Virginia University overcame West Virginia 78-78 on Ed Kramer's foul with three seconds to go; Manhattan clipped Brigham Young 78-75; and Oregon won a Pacific Coast Conference clash from Washington State 67-55.

2. That no boy with a history of heart abnormalities be allowed to play.

3. That every concussion be X-rayed immediately.

4. That players suffering serious concussions be barred from further play.

5. That no institution be allowed to play a football game unless a physician is on duty on the field.

6. That continued and increasing emphasis on tackling and blocking practice be maintained throughout the season.

The report listed 19 deaths directly attributable to the sport. Most of the other six fatalities were laid to heart conditions, not originating in football play.

Haggerty Heads Tag Team Bout

By STAFF WRITER

Santa Claus isn't coming to town Monday night but Hard Boiled Haggerty is.

Haggerty, a rasser by trade, needs little introduction to local fans. He has been booed and cheered here in past wrestling bouts and more of the same is expected Monday night when he appears on a four-man tag team match.

The card, sponsored by the Winona Legion, will open at 8:20 p.m. and finds a pair of attractive female wrestlers—Penny Banner and Millie Stafford—mixing it up.

Haggerty, the pier-six variety grunt and groan artist, is teamed with crutty Sir Alan Garfield, a 240-pound importation from London.

These two will oppose two rising newcomers—Jack Witzig, the 228-pound lad from Eau Claire and 237-pound Johnny Kostas of Greece.

The main event is a best two-out-of-three falls with a one hour time limit.

The opening special event is set for one fall or one hour.

The publicity releases on Millie Stafford and Penny Banner carry some interesting quotes:

About Penny Banner: "A beautiful blonde, she was born and raised 20 years ago in St. Louis, Mo. She has green eyes and fair complexion that any man would go for. This 150 pounds of dynamite is 5-8 in height."

The release quotes her as saying, "I do my exercises every day to keep myself in shape, because the more I exercise, the more I feel capable of taking care of myself in the ring."

On with the publicity release: "Don't get me wrong and think that Penny cannot be feminine. She loves children and housework and many other things any other girl would like. She hopes, someday, to have a married life and children of her own."

(Editor's note: Show us a woman that likes housework.) A little about Millie Stafford, girl wrestler:

"She was trained by Einar Olsen, a clever middleweight wrestler, who, at the time of training Millie, was the promoter in Racine, Wis. Although he trained her in his own style of clean wrestling, she prefers the rough technique of give and take."

"Millie says that she is, definitely, dissatisfied with the small income of $10,000 a year and has her eye on the present yearly income of world champion June Byers, who makes $50,000 annually."

Osseo Beats E-S, Lake City Romps

Osseo's improving basketball team handed Elva-Strum's Trempealeau Valley Conference leaders a 64-44 defeat and Lake City's Tigers romped to an 81-44 victory over suburban Hastings in feature games on Tuesday night's area prep card that saw all teams in non-conference action.

Andy Gunderson scored 20 and Dick Anderson 10 for Osseo while three Elva-Strum players—George Matson, Don Gilbertson and Rich Matheson—all hit 10 apiece.

Osseo also won the B game 22-17.

Gene Wiebusch and Phil Schackert both netted 20 points in Lake City's win over Hastings.

Norm Russian followed with 15 and Bill Hill had 12, while none of the Hastings players hit twin digits.

West Salem got back on the winning track with a 71-38 humping of DeSoto. Pat Moran hooped 20, Bruce Furchinecht 12, Ken Steiger 13 and Duane Horstman 10 for the winning Panthers.

Rich Gosse had 23 and Bill Munson 20 in Wabasha's 71-55 victory over Mazepa, which was led by Sommerfield with 16 and Frank with 11.

Coach Arnie Schweiger's Wabasha cagers now have a 5-1 record. The Wabasha B team took a 45-23 preliminary victory.

How Kohlmeier had 16, Jerry Modahl 12 and Bill Kischinsky 10 in Gale-Etrick's 70-34 victory over Arcadia.

Only three Arcadia players scored and the only one in double figures was freshman Tom Mettlich with 18.

Gale-Etrick also won the current-raiser, 30-22.

Spring Valley's Jim Sheldon got 13 points but it wasn't enough to offset LeRoy's double-barreled scoring punch as Spring Valley lost a 58-43 game.

Wayne Hanson and Roy Schmidt both got 22 for LeRoy. Spring Valley won the junior varsity tilt, 47-37.

Chatfield's District One powerhouse St. Charles of the White-water League 51-39. Don Herick had 16, Bill Harwood 13 and Dave Finstuen 11 for the Gophers, while Lyle Smith tallied 14 and Jim Fugleberg 12 for the Saints.

Water Board Pushes For Westfield Site

Whether Westfield Golf Course will continue in that capacity, be combined with a water supply site or moved in favor of a residential development remained undecided today.

But indications were that some decision on the matter probably will be forthcoming in the near future. The Board of Municipal Works, which is interested in establishing a municipal water supply at Westfield, met Tuesday afternoon with members of the Athletic Board (which governs Westfield among several recreation areas in the city) and other city officials.

The water board has been told by the state Department of Health's municipal water supply section that it must begin moving its water source from the Levee Park area, which, the state contends is threatened by floods (although the area has never been seriously flooded). Relocation, however, is posing site and financial problems. The water board wants a location that will facilitate connection to the existing mains and one where shallow wells are possible. Shallow wells produce water at a third or fourth of the cost involved in producing an equivalent amount from deep wells and initial drilling expense is considerably lower.

Reason for Selection
The Westfield site is favored because among public sites studied by the board and City Engineer W. O. Cribbs, it seemed the most feasible from an economy standpoint and this decision has been supported by the state Department of Health and by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The U. S. Department of the Interior Geological Survey also had been consulted particularly in location of shallow well sources.

The City Council, however, wants the water board to look for other sites. This recommendation was made in December by Council President W. P. Theurer, who is of the opinion that the report of an outside firm would bear more weight with the state than that of city officials. The board agreed to this at a separate meeting Tuesday. They'll complete arrangements for hiring an engineering firm for a reserve project planned for an area south of Lake Winona and receive an estimate of what the special survey will cost during Thursday's regular monthly meeting.

President Theurer, however, has said that there is no question that both the board and the city engineer have done a good job of the survey as far as it has been carried.

Development of a residential area on the site has been advocated as a means of adding land to the tax rolls. It has been estimated that about 200 lots could be developed there, to sell for about $50,000 (water deduction for construction of streets, sewers, curb and gutter, sidewalks, land fill and lights) and this might yield about $40,000 annually in land and house taxes. Theurer said Tuesday that these were some of the figures mentioned in City Council discussions.

Opinion to Be Asked
He added that City Attorney Harold S. Streeter is seeking an attorney general's opinion concerning the possibility of making land available to the water board. The land apparently cannot be sold to the city, Streeter told the aldermen Monday night, because it is now owned by the city. Furthermore, if retained by the city it must be used for recreational purposes. He doesn't believe the wells constitute recreation. But the land could be sold for residential development.

The Athletic Board indicated to the water board Tuesday that it would await this ruling before taking any action on disposition of the land.

Should the land be available to the water board, a unanimous approval by both the Athletic Board and City Council probably would be required before the water board would even consider sinking test wells at the site. And of course, any site would require state Department of Health approval.

The board wants permission to drill test wells, but with the provision that if the water proves satisfactory that the board will have assurance that it can use the land on a long-term basis, possibly including relocation of all wells and pumping facilities to the same site. Well houses similar to those in Levee Park or underground could be erected so that Westfield's golf facilities would in no way be hampered. If the site were eventually developed as a location for the entire water supply, the pumping facilities could either be located on part of the course possibly without disturbing the golf course, or on nearby land.

Residential development would be eliminated if wells were located on the site.

Disadvantages Cited
The proposal to move Westfield to an area owned by the Park-Recreation Board at the east end of Lake Winona also has its shortcomings, it was indicated in Tuesday's discussion.

Should the water board be forced to find another location, it might mean purchasing land that now is privately owned, which would be expensive and would thus remove this land from the tax rolls.

The added expense of deep wells might be increased even further by the water main extensions necessary to connect to another site (this was a major factor in the selection of Westfield). Any of these could boost the water rates it was said. The Westfield plan could be financed by bonds, according to the survey.

It was asked if erection of homes at the east end of Lake Winona had been considered. Extensive piling would be required for any construction there, it was noted. One official commented jokingly, "You'd have to drive piling for the trees down there."

Test Well Situation
However, whether the board would locate wells at Westfield would depend in the final analysis upon the quality of the water there. A test well sunk at Westfield about 1945 indicated a high iron content. It was the only test well sunk at that time, and officials have indicated they are hopeful of better results now. A single test well would cost about $2,000, while six or seven would cost about $500 to $600 each.

In general discussion, it was pointed out that there is other land available for housing development in the West End (although not owned by the city). Some of the difficulties here would be obtaining plats, due to the variable lengths of some of the lot areas and their locations, and also provision of access streets.

Board of Municipal Works President C. J. Borzyskowski, in backing the proposal, said that led to the conclusion of the area, told the group that the board has progressed as far as it can in improving the water system to improve the rating by the Department of Health. Relocation of at least part of the water supply is now considered essential by the state. The consequence for an unsatisfactory rating would mean that schools, restaurants, food processing plants and some other water users would be prohibited from using the city's water. And no further expansion of the Levee Park facilities will be allowed.

Officials Present
Representing the Athletic Board at the meeting were President Lester J. Knothe, Vice President John Ambrosio, Sec. S. J. Petersen, Arthur C. Tarras, Clarence P. Hartner, Edward M. Davis and John C. Bambenek. Water board members present included President George A. Desrosiers, Chester Lukaszewski, R. Burr Mann and Harry S. Horton. Sec. G. O. Harvey also attended as did Mayor Loyde E. Pfeiffer, City Engineer W. O. Cribbs, Council President Theurer and Arndt J. Duval, a representative of Toltz, King & Day, Inc., the St. Paul engineering firm that will conduct the site survey and plan the new reservoir for the Board of Municipal Works.

After the meeting with the Athletic Board ended, the Board of Municipal Works asked Duval to prepare an estimate of the cost of the survey for Thursday's meeting and then discussed the size of the reservoir to be constructed south of Lake Winona. There had been some consideration in the past whether the reservoir should have a two or three million gallon capacity and the board decided at the December meeting to seek the advice of the Underwriters.

Engineer Comments
City Engineer Cribbs showed the board the reply he received in response to his inquiry. The letter from John H. Arnold, assistant chief engineer, indicated that a 2-million-gallon elevated reservoir added to the system along with three new wells, would provide an adequate supply under normal conditions.

The letter continued, however, that in view of the Department of Health's contention of a flood threat "it might be well to explore the possibility of supplying both average consumption and fire demands from the new source and storage without the necessity of using the old supply at all during the period when floods are most likely to occur. This could not be done with three new wells and a 2,000,000-gallon reservoir, but could be with a 3,000,000-gallon reservoir if the minimum storage in it and in the elevated tank were regulated a little more closely than in your calculations to give a total minimum storage of 2,500,000 gallons."

(The improvement program at the pumping station has been geared to provide adequate pump capacity through 1970 and the Underwriters also made recommendations on this basis.)

However, He Says
"Let us now consider conditions in 1970. By that time, it is the desire of the state Board of Health and, undoubtedly, also yours to do away with all of the present supply works except the elevated tank. At that time, according to the report of your consulting engineers, the maximum consumption is estimated to be 7,500,000 gallons a day; so the total demand for a 10-hour fire flow period would be at a rate of 14,000,000 gallons per day. With nine new wells having a capacity with two out of service of 8,500,000 gallons, the minimum maintained total storage would have to be 2,770,000 gallons.

Therefore, in consideration of the two premises just developed above, it would seem advisable and good engineering for a reasonable period into the future to make the proposed reservoir of 3,000,000, or even 3,250,000 gallons capacity."

Without discussion, the board decided to construct a 3-million gallon reservoir.

Play Game of Musical Chairs

ST. PAUL (U. S. Gov. Orville L. Freeman almost sat in the lap of Chief Justice Robert L. Dell today just before he took the oath of office in what appeared for a moment to be a game of "musical chairs."

Laughter resounded throughout the jam-packed chambers when the new governor found he had no chair after members of the Supreme Court and constitutional officers took their seats immediately after Freeman was escorted to the rostrum.

Discovering that there was one chair short, Freeman grinned widely as he looked around. It took only a few seconds before someone hoisted an additional chair over the heads of others to give the governor a place to sit.

Seconds later Freeman and Judge Dell rose for the swearing in ceremony.

Higher Margin Requirements Dip Market
NEW YORK (U. S. —) Higher margin requirements tipped the stock market lower today in heavy trading.

The Federal Reserve Board Tuesday night ordered purchasers of stocks to put up 60 per cent cash instead of 50 per cent in buying stock on margin.

Losses were moderate for the most part and extended out to around 4 points while at the same time there were a number of good gainers up around 3 points.

Trading came to an estimated four million shares for the day. That is quite large when measured against many recent days, but it still is well under Tuesday's 4,420,000 shares traded when the market was falling. In other words, brokers noted the selling tended to dry up as prices slipped.

LAFF-A-DAY

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D.Sc.

Answer to Question No. 1
1. Psychology students at Brooklyn College gave the Maslow Self-Confidence Test to two groups of adults—one group had been bottle babies, the other breast-fed. The most self-confident were those who had been entirely bottle-fed and those who had been breast-fed over one year. Many mothers said they felt deprived in having to give the baby a formula and therefore extra coddled their children. Other experiments show that intelligent coddling increases self-confidence.

Answer to Question No. 2
2. Psychologist M. N. Chappell found that city people are over-awed by what other people own; country folks are more interested in what the people are. Farmers are not impressed by the size of their neighbor's houses or barns—but how well they are kept. Chappell says, "The hardest person in the world to overawe is a farmer."

Answer to Question No. 3
3. Schizophrenia. It fills one-fourth of all hospital beds. The chief symptom of the sufferers is their inability to get along with people. They are chronic neighborhood troublemakers. Courts often force them to move or go to a hospital. I haven't had to move yet. Our booklet, "How You, Too, Can Be Popular," will make you a favorite with your neighbors. FAIRLY SPOKEN

By MARGARET LATROBE

When someone says "I've never been in a plane..." my heart aches for the beauty, the splendor, even the occasional queasy stomachs they have missed. Which doesn't imply any prejudice against trains, buses or boats—they are fine, too. It's just that flight is like nothing else in this world. It is an experience to seek, not to be missed.

The most perfect flight, visually, begins on a field sprinkled with rain; with gray heavy clouds hanging low enough to be overcast but high enough so the visibility isn't nil. Lousy weather around gives the passenger a greater chance to feel useful, as he "helps" the pilot get the big ship into the air.

After the motors reach their pitch of intensity and the great silver bird leaves the runway, there is a few minutes amidst the clouds. Maybe you can see the wing-tips, maybe not. This is a good time to light the cigarette, ask for hot coffee and open a book.

But the book is never read. Within seconds you have emerged from the woolen vapors and your journey has reached halfway to Heaven. The clouds lie below now in a mass of ruffled cotton. Whatever colors were mixed for earthly sunsets are intensified in the pastel dream world above the shadowy fleece below. To one side, deep against the horizon, are four wings of rosy coral. A distant escort, without swiftness. And if the cloudland shapes itself into vast cities, valleys, mountains receding into the slate blue yonder—who is to say what may be really there?

And the night flight? Choose clear moonlight. Fly as far as you can, even if it means looking up a fourth-removed cousin 2,000 miles from home. Because once you look

Milwaukee Road Northwest's First All-Diesel Line

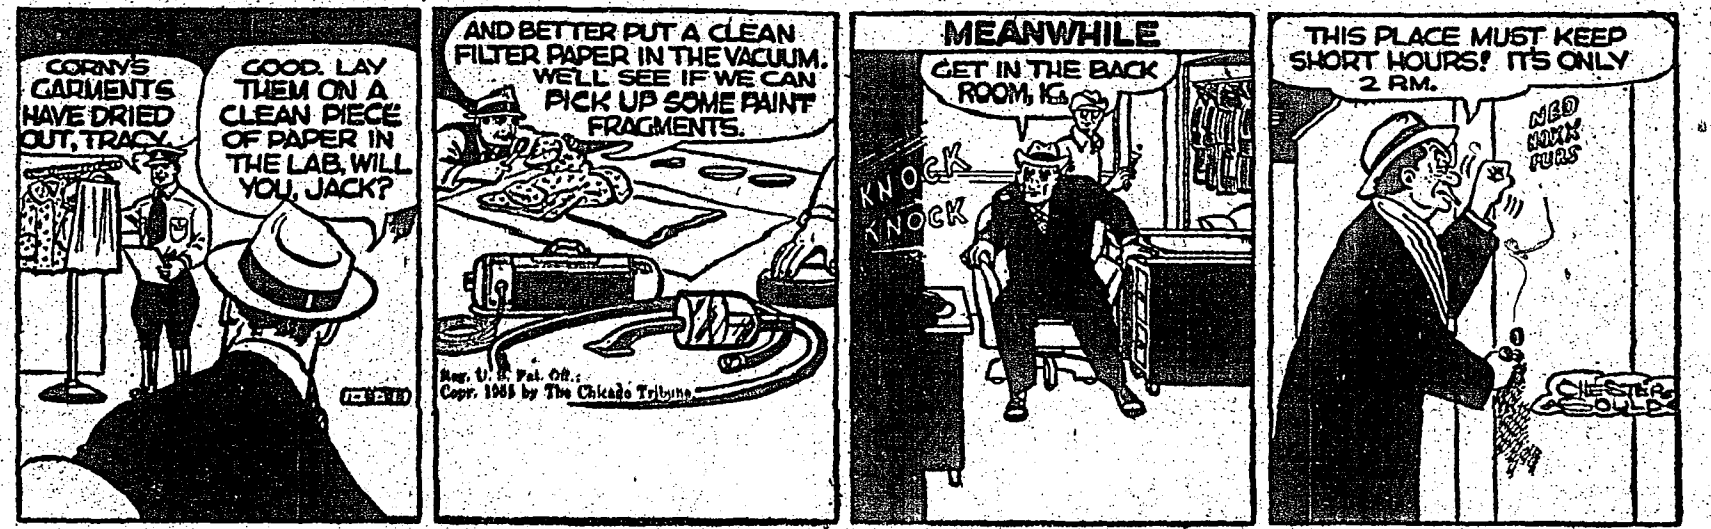

CHICAGO (AP) — The Milwaukee Road announced Monday that starting next week it will become the first railroad in the Northwest operating entirely with diesel-electric or electric locomotives.

It also will shorten the schedule of its freight trains between the Midwest and the Pacific Coast.

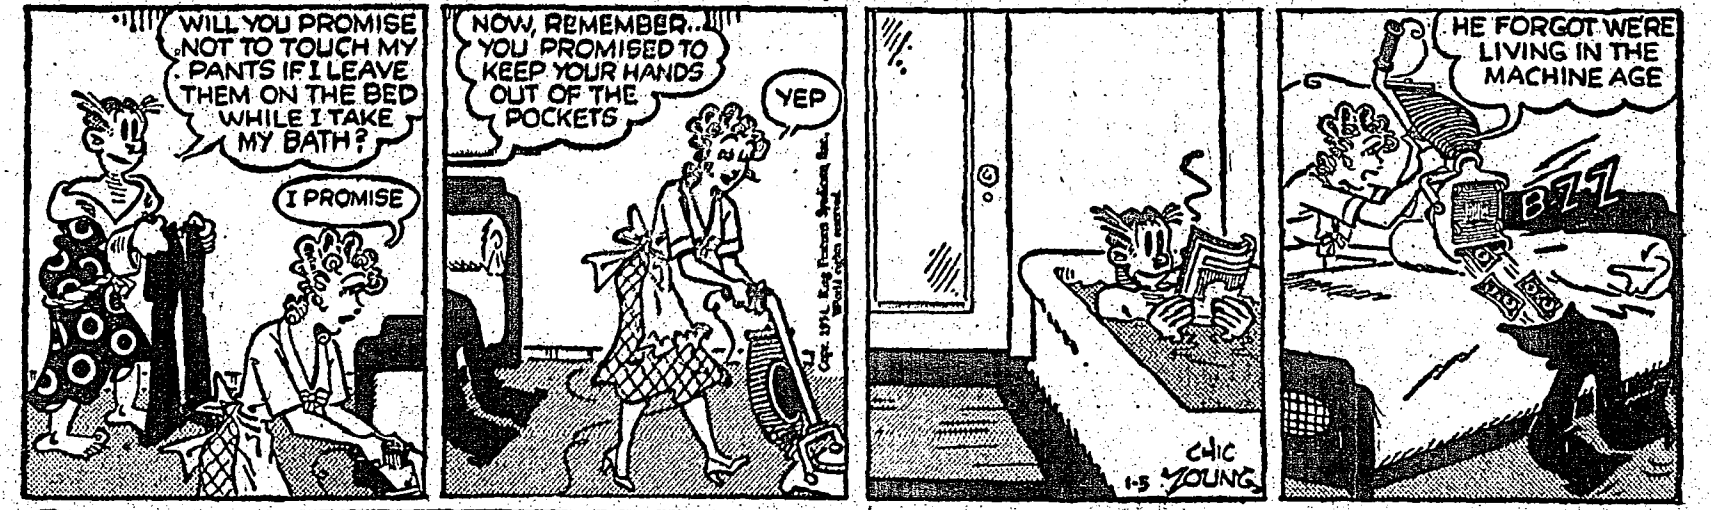

Starting Jan. 11 freight shipments leaving Chicago at 4:30 p. m. (CST) will reach Seattle and Tacoma the fourth night after departure. This represents a cut of nearly 24 hours in running time west of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The line at present is receiving the last of 74 diesel units ordered last fall. The Milwaukee Road is electrified in the Rocky, Bitter Root and Cascade Mountains. Its electric lines cover 440 miles.
