Bluff Side Park Scene of Jollity

The all college picnic of the summer session was held at Bluff Side Park on Wednesday afternoon and evening, June 27, from five until eight o'clock. A large gathering which included the faculty members and their families and the students boycott and their guests, was interested. Coffee and ice cream were served by the college. Dancing was added to the success of the picnic. The band was directed by Mr. Grimm. The Saturday evening dance was a huge success. In addition to the dancing, many games were introduced to make the evening a memorable one.

Small Staff Issues Summer Publication

The Winonan is being issued by a small staff this summer. The editor is Stanley Ansgar of Brownwood. He has been assisted by Zula Smith of Winona. Miss Smith was editor of the paper during the winter term.

Other staff members are: Mary Ellen O'Neill, St. Paul; Helen Marek, Rochester; Eleanor Ames, Weaver; Mary Agnes Krouch, Millville; Arthur Tait, Manast sợ; and Frank Wachowski of Winona. Eleanor Ekel of Plainview is the head editor and Mary Copenhaver of Zumbrota is in charge of securing literary selections.

The typists are Dorothy Wier, Red Wing; Maxine Dickerson, Winona; Anges Le Gross, Adrian; and Verne Herman, Plainview.

Jill Edwards is Speaker For Graduation Today

Jill Edwards, noted radio and platform star, has been selected as speaker for the commencement exercises to be held this afternoon. Miss Edwards is a gay, whimsical, intimate and altogether delightful speaker.

The daughter of missionaries, she was brought up in China and has traveled extensively. In her professional life she is Jill of the Bells and Judy team which was heard over the National Broadcasting System. In 1933 they became the world's fair reporters for the Columbia Broadcasting Chain.

Jill Edwards is also a teacher. She is now teaching in the School of Speech of Northwestern University, she took charge of the work in Public Speaking at the Educational Institute of the Central Y.W.C.A. She is now conducting classes in speech for club women with marked success.

The college students under the direction of Mr. Grimm will sing and Miss Barr at the organ will play the professional and recitative marches. Director F. A. Sheban will present the diplomas.

The following persons are candidates for graduation this afternoon: Marie B. Anderson, Cannon Falls; Frank Blatnik, Chisago; Edythe Bowes, Lake City; Laura Broadstreet, Rutland; Bruce Miller, Hastings; Elsie Christensen, Red Wing; Hazel Groger, Lake City; Charles; Beth Hartig, Miles City, Montana; Mildred Herrick, Utica; Agnes R. Keller, Rosemount; Angelus Le Gros, Adrian; Alice Max, South Saint Paul, Vil

For Summer Dance

The first college summer-school party was held in the college gymnasium, Friday evening, June 15.

The early part of the evening was spent playing various games involving little skills such as throwing darts and dropping clothespins in a milk bottle. After many points were scored in each event, Miss Pendergast had charge of several get-acquainted games including handshaking on a large scale. Winners of these games were awarded penner socks as prizes.

Dancing was enjoyed to the music of the college orchestra until the usual hour. The punch bowl, presided over by Miss Richards and assisted by the Misses Anchester, Edholm and Feetham, was a favorite rendezvous during the dancing.

Miss Galligan Grante Regarding Leave of Absence

Mr. Galligan, athletic director, has been granted a year's leave of absence, starting this fall, from his duties here at the college. He plans to continue his studies in hygiene, physical education, and anatomy.

Mr. Galligan has definitely stated where he plans to continue his studies: New York City.

In addition to the above list of persons, over fifty students have secured rural positions.

Many Scholarships Given by College To New Students

Awarding of the scholarships for the year 1933-34 was made by Miss Sutherland at the last regular meeting of the Winona State Teachers College. Her creative logical and constructive mind has done much to further the growth of this institution.

She has been a rare leader. Her approach to any situation is impersonal. She believes in the spirit of youth. She has shown a genius for discovering the talent that has lain latent in the young candidates who come to be trained for the teaching vocation.

The enduring qualities of this impelling teacher is the heart of the family soul and soul are wide and she is as lasting as is the conception of public education to which she has been dedicated. Among the large number of devoted women who have labored for better conceptions of what true education is and can be made to achieve, she will always remain one of the most worthy representatives.

Faculty Teachers Are Vacationing And Studying

Faculty Teachers are vacations and studying. They will be as lasting as is the conception of what true education is and can be made to achieve, she will always remain one of the most worthy representatives.

Summer Faculty Adds Three New Teachers

Three additional teachers are members of the faculty for the summer term. They are the Misses Anchester, Edholm and Feetham, Miss Galligan.

After High School—What?

Only a few short weeks ago hundreds of high school graduates throughout the state of Minnesota were welcomed with people gathered there to witness the bestowing of the high school diploma upon thousands of those young people of the state—young people no longer to be considered boys and girls, no longer to be called high school students, but to be looked upon as truly young men and young women. And yet it is hard to think of this growing and maturing child with the printed diploma as the tangible evidence of something attained, something accomplished, left the halls where they had worked and played for four years, it is certainly that many looked back with a feeling of regret. It is also certain that many, particularly of the more serious, tried to look ahead and wonder, “What next?”

In more normal times many of these high school graduates would immediately find jobs, would at once absorb into the great army of those hurrying to make good in the world, and set on the way for the rest of their lives. But financial considerations are not the only factors in order to live a full, rich, complete life, a college education also pays. Especially, then, it pays to go to college. Especially is this true of the man with only a high school education. Financially considered, it is more one knows and thinks, the better prepared one is to meet whatever problems life holds for him, to solve them sanely and happily, and to enjoy the times as normal. It is still true in general that which show that the income of the college-trained man is, on the average, considerably higher than that of the man with only a high school education. Finan-

Dr. Ella Murphy

Elected To Staff

Dr. Ella Murphy of Shenandoah, Iowa, who substituted in English last winter during the absence of Mrs. Reed, was elected to a position in our English department by the State Teachers College Board at meeting held at Saint Paul on June 5.

Miss Murphy completed her undergraduate work at Smith College, Northampton, Massachusetts. Her work for the Master's degree was done in the University of Wisconsin, and her work for the Bachelor's degree at the University of Wisconsin and in the University of Iowa. She has taught high-school English in Minnesota, in Des Moines and Shenandoah, Iowa, and has carried college work in the teachers college at Cedar Falls, Iowa, Teaching University at Peking, China, and in Linderwood College, St. Charles, Missouri.

In the period following her return to her home with the close of our winter quarter, Miss Murphy's father passed away. Miss Murphy will therefore have much to remember at Winona for most of the time.

By MARJORIE KINSAW RAWLINGS

The dreary and feared pervaded life of the Florida scrabble-dweller is depicted in this piece of writing, by Marjorie Kinsaw Rawlings and she gives the reader an unusually fine picture.

The home of the palmetto, diamond-backed rattler and the moonshiner is portrayed for the reader through the eyes of Piety Jacklin and her likable son Lant.

The conversation of the characters is written in the dialect of the scrub-dwellers. This adds a great deal of interest in the story for the reader who enjoys dialect.

There is no special plot to the story. It is rather a chronicle of the lives of Piety who to earn money for the family, work outdoors, and of her son Lant who loved nature. I recommend this book because of its interest and its unusual background.

“Symbolesse”

When one glances at a present day newspaper, he finds himself completely engulfed with a variety of unintelligible symbols such as F.E.R.A., A.A.A., H.O.L.C., P.W.A. Practically any other possible combination. A wasp might find A.A.A. rather convenient. Otherwise, I fail to see the advantage. Through the years we have become educated to read C.C.C., and P.W.A. These innumerable new abbreviations have placed the average American in such a quandary that I have begun to believe that “ignorance would be bliss.”

The very fact that such a great deal of ignorance has been displayed is proof enough that the idea is faulty. Many have not interpreted N.R.A. to mean No Republicans Allowed, or Norwegians Rule America. The latter seems the more logical in this middle west. C.C.C. could very nicely refer to many a town’s commercial club. Why not California Commercial Club, P.W.A. the People’s Wheat Association? When I saw H.O.L.C. in print above a rustic building in a lakeshore town, it appealed to me as Homely Old Ladies Camp. How could I know it referred to the Home Owner’s Loan Corporation? If public spirit can be aroused by such a foreign language, why not establish such a code for every day conversation and term it “symbolesse”? It might be convenient but I doubt it; it is more likely to be confusing. Imagine the following dialogue:

Alice — “R.C.F.C.?” (Ready for church)

Charlie — “C.C.C.?”

(Alice! Alice!)

Charlie might faint ten times before Alice could translate the message.

And so I ask, why encourage ignorance? Why change the language of an intelligent people into a “symbolesse” which places us in a dilemma of misinterpretation.

— GEORGE CALEED, Wabasha.

The playground class has been working on the "whys" and "wherefores" of playground activities. This course includes sports, indoor and out-of-door games, and stunts. Perhaps you have noticed these gallant young women doing stunts on the library lawn.

Who are all these negroes around school? They only the members of the clogging class of about thirty cloggers. Many rows are becoming acquainted with the tap and the click-clack of steel plates. The most outstanding feature of the work of this class is the "Way Down South" follies, a part of the July-Julep.

The rhythmic activities class consists of approximately twenty-five members. This rhythm work consists mainly of interpretive dancing and folk dancing.

The schedule for the tennis tournament has been arranged and the games are being played off. Only advanced players are competitors. The beginners' tennis class has learned the fundamental skills and have put these skills into practice. Dominador Landichko and Ted Reibweil, winners of the first tournament, in the spring, demonstrated a game of tennis at the W.S.T.C. courts for the benefit of the class.

Swimming still continues to be one of the most attractive of all outdoor activities open for the young women of the college. The V.W.-C.A. pool is open from two to four in the afternoon and from three to eight in the evenings for all W.S.T.C. women. A supervisor is present at all times.

Golf seems to be very popular among the young women of the college. About thirty-five girls are members of the cloggers. These lessons include: an explanation of the game; practice in the swing and the drive; and demonstration and practice on the Westfield course. There will be no golf tournament among the young women of the college. The V.W.-C.A. pool is open from two to four in the afternoon and from three to eight in the evenings for all W.S.T.C. women. First Entertainment
Presented by Artists

The Summer Session entertainments at Winona State Teachers College began Wednesday evening, June 26, with a program by the Fisk Jubilee Singers in the college auditorium. Throughout the world, where musical entertainment from abroad is accepted, there is perhaps no other organization which has done more for making American voice and drift music known than this one.

The chorus is composed of a double quartet which gives a quantity and quality of music larger than one would expect from a group of this size; however, the thing that is uppermost in their quality is their general musicality, vocal effects, tone, and taste were excellent. Much credit goes to Mrs. James A. Myers, for guiding them from behind the lines to their successful and delightful performance.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN

The FERA at Washington authorizes the Emergency Education Division in the Department of Education at St. Paul to nominate students for self-help at the various colleges. Application should be made to the St. Paul office. A faculty committee will choose students approved for admission to Winona. Winning the choice upon need, character, ability to do college work, and upon the desire of the student to cooperate under the plan. The amount in the case of any student will not exceed fifteen dollars per month, for which he will carry on college work. The tasks must be "socially desirable," but do not include regular class instruction, though students may be assigned to practical classes, study of home economics, education, recreation, and to other activities that increase the usefulness of the college to the community. The hourly rate of pay will be that usually paid for similar work and not be less than thirty cents an hour. The amount, however, may be increased as was given last year when the state itself shared in the plan.

Applications for work-relief should be made to the Emergency Education Division, State Office Building, St. Paul.

A special meeting of the State Teachers College Board will be held in Bemidji next Saturday. The principal business will be a review of the proposed budget for the four years, to be submitted to the "Big Three" in early September. Five of such members of the Board have been appointed since the close of the last Legislature. These new members will be less familiar with the financial problems of the institutions and will thus add additional skill in which to complete the recommendations of the other Board meetings.

Bemidji for the reason that this institution has not yet been provided with adequate accommodations for the care of the increasing number of students.
