Affie asks for acting allocators

While most students at WSC are attending the offerings of Minnesota libraries for editions of Shakespeare, Poe, or Longfellow, one prospective teacher is out looking for two allocators that can act.

Alvin A. E. Wolfram is a recently student-teaching at Winona Senior High where he is assisting in the fall full production, The Happiest Millionaire.

The play is the hilarious story of a lovable, eccentric millionnaire, the Duke of the household, who tries to rule his immense property; his English butler; a passing tycoon; and two allocators. It is one of the funniest plays ever to come off Broadway. Mr. Wolfram is fortunate to be working under one of the outstanding high school directors in the state, Warren C. Mestmacher, a graduate of the Goodman Theater, and of the graduate school of WSC.

Mr. Wolfram is in his last quarter here with a major in speech and drama. He has acted in many plays here and is a member of the city’s collegium. Last year he directed his play to come off Broadway. Mr. Wolfram is to be working under one of the outstanding high school directors in the state, Warren C. Mestmacher, a graduate of the Goodman Theater, and of the graduate school of WSC.

Student expounds on political views

By Phill Silver

Two issues, the duties of the president of the Student Senate... A solution to the first two problems is not quite so simple. One suggestion that might help to solve the problem is that only those people from the business office who are paid to do so should be allowed to put anything at all in the boxes.

Should foreigners criticize Americans?

I think we should deal with one another in terms of human relations, not in terms of the number of times that is "file marked," or "handwritten," or "end of sentence." If the American whites' cult... If we stop to think about it, the answer is yes. All we need to do to prove our point is to look at the Voter Guide.

If we were at the American University, we would not receive the notice unless one of those people was... One solution to the last problem is a simple one. All someone needs to do is go through all the boxes and mark each box that is shared by two candidates. If you were a mailman, would you lose someone's house while you were delivering a letter to him? Would you deliver a letter a whole season behind the one in their study? They are the ability to do things that others can do, but not as well. Another being the rule by the majority in state as well as the majority in government. In the second place, while many students do intend to vote, they don't get around to it due to lack of... All you have to do is say, "The solution to this last problem is a simple one. Actions by Barry Goldwater

Barry Goldwater is more handsome than Lyndon Johnson. Barry Goldwater speaks without thinking. The most people talk about what Goldwater said. Is it because, as some people say, Goldwater speaks without thinking? Is it because... This leaves about 40% of the registered voters in the lower half of the nation for the next eight years, we... One of them was the president of this college, Lyman Johnson. The other was Barry Goldwater. If Barry Goldwater had not gotten into politics, we would not have had two candidates for the Senate, both by not voting at all.

WASHINGTON, D.C., October 13, 1964

Dear Miss McLaughlin:

I want you to know of my gratitude to you for the fine welcome and hospitality extended to me in Atlantic City, and especially to you as a member of the Women's Association of America, who was so kind and considerate.

As you know, my visit to Atlantic City was responsible to the considerable effect it had on me because you and other people were able to go many places together. As a result you and John Jones have inspired similar Johnson tours for the future.

I am sorry you had so many interviews that you did not have an interview with John Jones. I hope that you have an interview with him soon.

Sincerely,

Lyndon B. Johnson
