Stout Defeats Winona in Hard Battle

Both Teams Show Speed in Plays

On Saturday afternoon the teams lost 12 to 6 in a hard fought game.

Quoting the immortal bard, "If two teams played for keeps, there would be no business in the world."

The victorious team, Stout, was evidence of Saturday's truth, Stout zealous in her pet tantrum, could not but improve it upon her rivals, as witnessed by undue roughness and bruises inflicted.

The ball was opened with Winona receiving; Gauger returning the ball. However, in the first quarter Winona fumbled and Stout recovered. In her first attempt, Stout succeeded in a measure, but upon a second and third attempt failed to make any noticeable progress.

The second quarter saw Stout leading, 7 to 0. Stout went to the gymnasium which was prepared for the annual event of the college, the Faculty Reception, which was held last Fall.

Members of the faculty received the students in the reception room. In the gym, between the games, the students were entertained with its living, green oak branches and bowers, and brilliant-colored Zinnias. At one end of the garden the orchestra was seated.

The entertainment was spent in dancing and refreshments served in the room adjoining the gymnasium.

GEOGRAPHY STUDENTS MAKE AN EXCURSION TO CASTLE ROCK

Saturday morning, at nine o’clock, thirty Geography students under the direction of Prof. W. W. Blakemore, started from the College Hall en route for Castle Rock. Each student was presented with a questionnaire which was to help him notice the important facts of the trip. A number of times the group gathered and discussed the questions of the students.

The bass farm was visited so that the hikers could quench their thirsts before their steep climb up Castle Rock. At twelve o’clock everyone had reached the top of the cliff. The lunch hour a general discussion was held as to whether St. Mary’s swimming assistant the students in answering the difficult questions on the questionnaire.

The trip back to Winona was a busy one due to the tremendous rain. In spite of the fact that many were caught in the shower, the students were all in high spirits; the swim was interesting and educational.

May make a ye foundation

You have ever stopped to think and wonder what T.C. would do — if you were the one who makes T.C. You have only the moulding to do. Mold it and make it good and firm, for it isn't T.C. — it's you.

This little thought happened to fly past; it has been handed on to you. It's a serious matter! Think it over! Get behind your school activities and boost!

Don't just "go to school." Life isn't made by only taking from it. It is the giving too that builds up character. Not only your character, but the character of your school, town, and the world.

Our theme for this week is "The 'Can Do' of the Winonan," is this year located at Carlton, Minnesota. Everyone is invited to the meeting of the kindergarten in that city and we are very certain that she will make good in her work.

In this world of today each person must know his value and he must see that the world takes him at his real value, not more nor less.

Some would say that self-confidence is merely a matter of the ego, in a way it is, but not entirely, really, it is a demanding of recognition of worth and no one has ever held that as a bad trait of character.

Know your own value, but be fair to others. Don't over-estimate that value. Demand that you receive recognition for work well done. Realize that, in order to get ahead and to stay there, you have the power to do anything with a reasonable degree of success.

Remember that we all differ, but that there is a place for each one of us if we only will look for it.

"But few are able to accomplish great works, but all should be able to appreciate that which the few can do." — Rukey

A thing of beauty is a joy forever, its loveliness increases, it will never pass into nothingness, but still will keep full of sweet dreams, health and quiet breathing." — Keats.
Catharine MacPherson and her friends were talented. Those that were unable to compete in the Art Nouveau style walked into a classroom on Saturday morning at ten o'clock. They found that the Art Nouveau style was something that they could excel in. Those that had been asked to do so grew quiet as they started to practice. The Art Nouveau style was difficult to judge because all of them did not have the same line of thought. The Art Nouveau style was not something that could be taught. It was a style that had to be practiced and understood.

The Nativity of St. Joseph was chosen to give the talk for the Art Nouveau Day. Her presentation was a show of how each of the things in this world representation of her subject made friendship seem to be a tangible reality rather than an abstract concept. The audience was made to realize that the present is the very best time to begin our practice of being friendly.

One of the girls at Shepard Hall, Lyla Dennison, remarked that AH! MEN!!!

Ach! Men! I hate men! They ruin my disposition. Such a hatred is a woman's privilege to change her mind.

Men are such bops of humanity—such great joy in life is eating, whose vanity is never satisfied; and those who bother cannot be found without the aid of a woman.

Men love to eat. The tickling sensation of food passing on to furnish nourishment for them gives them satisfaction.

The way to men's hearts lies through their stomachs. So let us ask for food in a thankful manner.

There are several kinds of men. For instance, the vane ones. They are human beings, minus the bright colors, who strut before their ladies false. This kind of man goes in for hair slickum and perfume. They will spend an hour a day before a mirror because men dislike bowing.

Then there are helpless men. They cannot find even their own belongings. He is a fish hook or a lawn mower. They will declare in the street, "I've lost my key!" and some member of the family will find then.

Of course, there are other kinds of men. I don't know if I tell you of them. Like talkative man, they speak for themselves. Yes, I tell you, I have ruined my disposition. Ach! Men.

CONFIDENTIAL COEDS

You know My dear, I was so upset the other day because you see the Snake Dance that the Illinois put on made me So Mad. I mean that so Few Students came. And it was the hot weather.

Mr. Owens — "How did the crowd feel?

Roth — "Why?"

Nissen — "I nearly died during the hot weather!"

Daniels to cop — "Making forty-five, give me a ticket, the boys will never believe it!"

Barnett — "I'm too tired. Let's wait and look in the morning paper."

Muddy Water

Knowlton — "What was the matter with the coffee at breakfast this morning? It looked like mud."

Ray — "It was ground this morning."

The Weak End

Mr. Selle — The time will soon come when women will receive men's wages.

Valkas — "Yes, about next Saturday night."

Kindly Old Lady — My good man, pray what has caused your sad plight?

Former Student — I have been daunted by the dangling dogs of destiny, sorrowed by the scabby skins of circumstance, failed by the frosty finger of fate.

Dear Folks,

I sure try to find time to write you but the New York sub-way is a slow motion picture reel compared to this college.

The first thing in the morning is the thing I generally take a cup of coffee and a roll. The guy who sells this stuff sure told me he could sell me a hot dog. I don't care if they mean the old spam. They never mean the old spam.

I never mean the old spam.

I mean we tried to sell tickets and Everybody Had to Work and you know My dear, the place where I never anything But just say, "I'm just looking around," bought the only ticket I Sold. And I'm furious because You see it Really means a great deal To a girl like me. I try to help the College. I mean that Every girl Should try to help the College instead of herself because you know You really help Yourself! More that you can do anyway. A girl like Me want to Help a lot anyway because You see, I mean you know I really do like to boost T. C.:

B. Nicholas — Why did you buy that awful looking tie?

Nissen — I'd be arrested if I stole it.

The shades of night were falling fast.

And breakfast time was here at last.

What gave it such a funny taste?

Excelsior!

A Scotchman leaving for a business trip called back to his family: "The Good boy's all right, and don't forget to talk! Little Donald's gone off when he looked at anything."

Mr. Owens — "How did the pupils like my chapel address?"

Mr. French — "Well, they all nodded in approval!"
