Badger Senate Passes Bill on Contribution Ban

Republicans Stop History-Making Democrat Filibuster

MADISON (AP)—The Republican-controlled Wisconsin Senate rode out a 24-hour Democratic filibuster to pass, 14-9, and send to Gov. Kohler a bill that would prohibit labor unions from contributing to political campaigns or candidates. In addition to the votes there were five pairs, involving 10 senators.

Sen. Paul Rogan (R-Ladysmith), Republican floorleader, ended the filibuster through a parliamentary maneuver in which his party members gave him the necessary vote of two-thirds of Senate membership for a motion stopping all debate.

However, in the final vote, six Republicans joined with the eight Democrats in opposition to the bill. They had gone along with Rogan on the parliamentary procedure although expressing final opposition to the measure, which was bitterly fought by union leaders.

Before the final vote came, the Senate disposed of 16 Democratic amendments. Ten were killed, four were withdrawn by the authors.

Rogan, in putting a stop to the longest session in Wisconsin history, lashed sharply at the Democrats, who he said conducted this filibuster to dramatize their opposition.

He contended in the final speech on the measure that the Democrats who had fought against the bill were under the whip lash of labor bosses.

From mid-morning Thursday, through the afternoon, evening and all through the night Democratic Senators continued what they admitted was a hopeless attack on a Republican backed bill that would prohibit labor unions from contributing money to political campaigns.

They knew at the outset that they could not win, but were determined to talk on the measure for at least 24 hours in the hopes of dramatizing their opposition to the bill.

At seven o'clock the filibuster has passed the 20-hour mark. Senate clerks could find no record of any previous session going beyond 20 hours.

The bill, fought vigorously by labor leaders at a public hearing recently and passed in the Assembly last week by a 59 to 40 vote, came to the Senate early this week where it was made a special order of business for Thursday.

It was introduced by Assembly Speaker Mark Catlin of Appleton, a Republican, and was subjected to a six-hour assault by Democrats in that hour before the Republicans who are in control there pushed it through to passage.

Dentist Hires Detectives to Hunt for Clues

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Two private detectives employed by Dr. A. Arnold Axilrod were hunting the Lake of the Isles district today for defense clues in the strangling death of Mrs. Mary Moonen.

"Tailing" the two were city detectives seeking to find out what the private investigators find out.

Dr. Axilrod is being held without charge in connection with the death of Mrs. Mary Moonen, 21-year-old expectant mother whose body was found in a Lake of the Isles district alley last Saturday.

Axilrod, 49, father of two children, told police Mrs. Moonen was in his car the night before and said she had accused him of being the father of her unborn child. Axilrod told police he got mad, "blacked out," and couldn't remember what happened, other than that when he regained composure the woman was gone.

Mrs. Moonen's husband, Matt, 28, was at Plummer, Minn. today for funeral services for his wife.

To Prom Crowd: How to Live It Up And Enjoy Your Life

Some tips for tonight's Senior High School prom-goers:

Have a good time.

Enjoy yourselves and know that although some of the last-minute instructions may not sound like it, your folks want you to have a good time, too. They're probably letting you stay out a little later tonight and they want you to live it up a bit. But most of all they want you to live.

They know that, on the basis of past experiences, probably a dozen cars will leave the prom tonight and attempt to set new speed records between Winona and Fountain City, Centerville, Witoka or Minnesota City.

The odds are pretty good that all of these cars will return to Winona without a scratch but if one of them piles up along the way tomorrow's headlines will proclaim "Prom Party Ends in Tragedy" or "Teen-agers Injured in Crash" and it will give those who maintain that "this generation is going to hell" something more to talk about.

Proms, parties and dances have been going on for a long time now and they seem to be established for a long time to come. And chances are that those in the future will be just as exciting as this one tonight.

So, go out and have a good time tonight but remember that there's no reason to act like this is the last party you'll ever go to.

Of course, it could be, you know. Alcohol and gasoline is a dangerous mixture.

Public Reassured On Polio Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP)—California's postinoculation outbreak of polio stood at 12 cases today, raising to 17 the number of treated U. S. children known to have contracted the disease.

But Surgeon General Leonard Scheele, who heads the U. S. Public Health Service, reiterated his confidence in the Salk polio vaccine and added:

"There is nothing unusual about the polio picture across the nation."

Germans and French Work Out New Pact

BOON, Germany (AP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay sat down together today to work out details of the French-German pact on the industrial Saarland. If they fail to agree, West German rearmament could be delayed still more.

To head off demonstrations supporting Germany's claim to the border territory, Adenauer's government reinforced police in the capital and banned public processions.

Pinay, arriving by special train from Paris early today, declared French-German understanding "is the key to the security of Western cooperation and of the world in peace."

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), at a press conference in Minneapolis Thursday night, renewed his demand that United States economic aid be cut off from nations which ship material to Communist China. Such action, he said, would secure the release of 521 Americans from Chinese prison camps. McCarthy added that "... for the first time in history our commander in chief has abandoned the men of his command to the enemy." (UP Telephoto)

British Parties Square Off for May 26 Election

LONDON (AP)—Britain's two major parties squared off today with lengthy manifestos outlining their platforms for the May 26 general elections.

Both promised to work for peace and more prosperity. Both said they would seek early talks with the Russians. Both said they would keep Britain's defenses strong until world disarmament is a reality. Otherwise their programs differed sharply.

Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden pledged that his Conservatives, if kept in office, would try to agree with the Soviet leaders on "proposals which will make a fresh advance towards disarmament and security for all peoples."

On the home front, the Conservatives promised to develop Britain into a "property-owning democracy." More export trade, in line with the party's "trade not aid" policy, was again a cardinal point.

The Labor party of former Prime Minister Clement Attlee promised to work for neutralization of Formosa, an immediate end to H-bomb tests, early peace talks with Russia, cuts in the cost of living and further nationalization of industry to broaden the welfare state.

With betting odds and public opinion polls indicating a narrow victory for the Conservatives, the Laborites hit hard at peace and bread issues close to the hearts of the big middle class of wage earners.

The first objective of any British government, the Socialist manifesto said, "should be to end the delay in setting up high-level talks with the Russians." A meeting "on any level" ... can be arranged shortly."

The Labor statement also listed these other international aims for a Socialist government:

The removal of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces from the Chinese offshore islands, Red China's admission to the United Nations and the neutralization of Formosa under the U.N.

"Immediate cessation of H-bomb tests" and ultimate worldwide disarmament, even at "sacrifices of national sovereignty."

Left-wing rebel Aneurin Bevan last night was given back his membership in the parliamentary Labor party. He had been put in disgrace March 16 after a running battle with Attlee over defense policies. He since has apologized and promised not to oppose the party leadership any more.

Possibility of Arson Probed In Chicago Fires

CHICAGO (AP)—Authorities today investigated the possibility of arson in fires which took at least 12 lives at a walkup hotel and a nearby apartment house.

Inquests into both tragedies were on the coroner's schedule for the day.

A fire department attorney, Earle Downes, said the blaze which swept through the Green Mill Hotel northwest of downtown Chicago "undoubtedly" was of incendiary origin. Police said the fire at the neighboring apartment house also may have been set deliberately.

Both fires occurred at about 1 a.m. Thursday.

THE YOLK'S ON HIM

Farmer's Wife Hatches Plot to Smear Assessor

LANCASTER, Wis. (AP)—A Montfort farm wife went to jail Thursday rather than pay a $50 fine for pelting a village assessor with over-ripe duck eggs last July 24.

Mrs. John Winkers, 33, who weighs 90 pounds, told a Circuit Court jury she was not contrite over her attack on Harry Kramer, 225-pound Montfort assessor. The incident followed an argument over a tax levy.

Charged with assault and battery, Mrs. Winkers told Judge Richard Orton that "Kramer only laughed at me when I appeared before the board of review to ask a decrease in taxes last year."

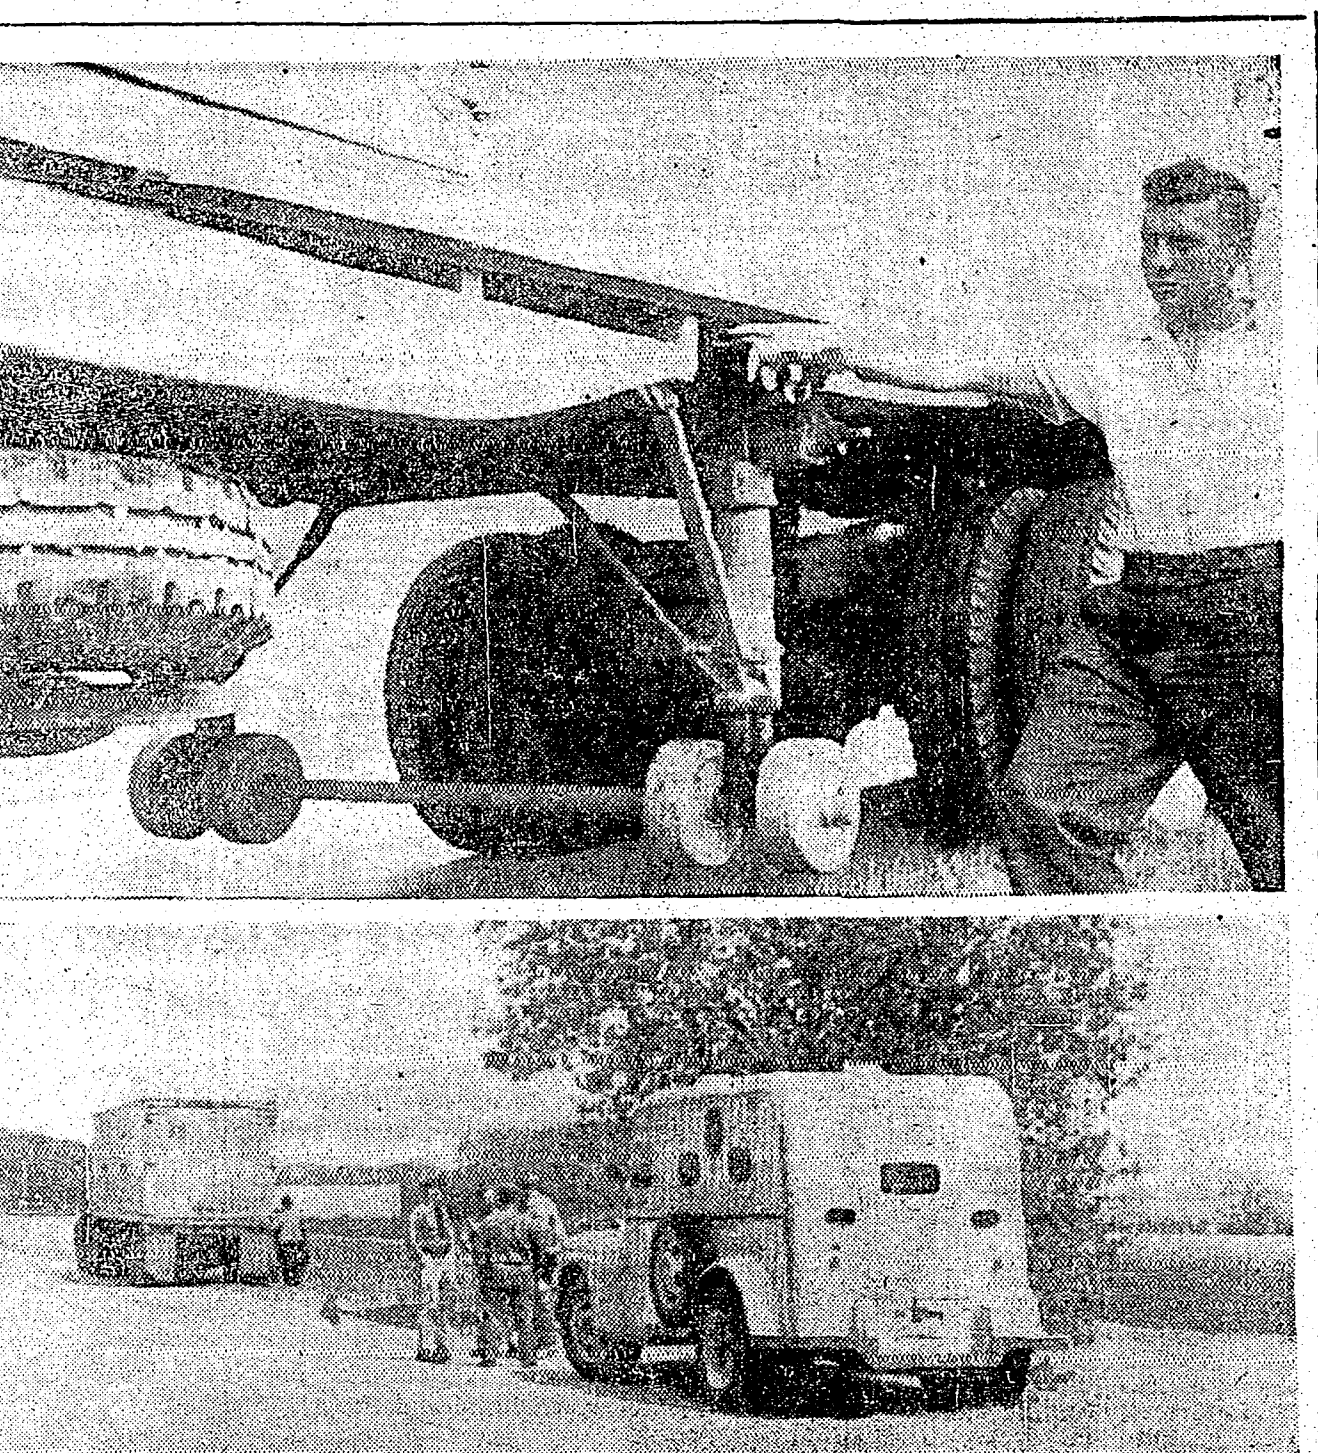

Kramer said Mrs. Winkers had flung the eggs at him in downtown Montfort, a day after her board of review hearing. He said:

"She lay in wait for me and started throwing badly-spiced eggs at me when I came out of the postoffice. She must have thrown close to two dozen. She warned me she would repeat the attack each time she saw me. I had to walk home because of the smell."

Mrs. Winkers, who said she threw only nine eggs, testified she aimed for Kramer's truck.

She was fined only $10 and costs in Justice Court last fall. She then appealed the decision to Circuit Court and was fined $50 and costs of $28.20, or 20 days in jail.

Premier Claims Saigon Victory

An unidentified truck driver points to a loosened floor strut that let 1,000 newly-minted half dollars spew out onto Highway 169 near St. Peter Thursday. The truck, carrying $250,000 in coin from the Denver mint to the Minneapolis Federal Reserve Bank, is shown below with the Brinks armored car that was conveying it. Guards in the following car halted the truck when they spotted the coins dropping. Guards said much of the money was recovered from the one broken sack carrying $500 in halves. (AP Wirephoto)

Doctor Draft Unfair, Medical Association Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Medical Assn. protested as "unfair" today the drafting of doctors to care for civilian dependents of military personnel.

Dr. Walter B. Martin, of Norfolk, Va., president, and other AMA spokesmen urged the House Armed Services Committee to end the draft of doctors and dentists when the present law expires June 30. The committee is considering a measure to extend the law for two more years.

Dr. Martin described the law as "discriminatory." It makes doctors and dentists subject to enforced military service until they are 51. The regular draft law applies only to men up to 26.

As an example of the growing amount of dependents' care, he said more than 145,000 babies were born in military hospitals in 1953, compared with 42,000 in 1948.

Capehart Says GOP Will Back Up Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) said today he thinks most Senate Republicans will back any decisions President Eisenhower makes in dealing with the Chinese Communists and the Formosa situation.

Capehart said in an interview he could not go along with his colleague Sen. Jenner (R-Ind), who proposed yesterday a resolution to put the Senate on record that no government official "may take part in any conference" which might result in the transfer of any territory to a Communist state.

Jenner's resolution, which would be merely an expression of Senate opinion, obviously was prompted by the increased prospect of some kind of talks between the United States and Communist China aimed at relaxing tensions in the Formosa Strait.

Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai suggested such talks last week. President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have endorsed the idea, with the condition that there must be some evidence of Communist sincerity.

Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley, former military governor of Berlin who now is vice chancellor of New York University, yesterday termed Chou's statement an insult.

"It's a sure sign he's got something up his sleeve," Howley told the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. "Either he's not ready to attack or he thinks he can get something by talk."

He said negotiating with the Communists in the Far East or elsewhere amounts to "sitting down with murderers" and added: "To the Communists a conference is a device for getting something."

Sick Leave Abuse Report Misleading, Postal Clerks Say

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL National Federation of Post Office Clerks today described as "misleading" a report in which government investigators charged widespread abuse of sick leave privileges by U.S. postal employees.

E. C. Hallbeck, legislative director of the clerks federation, said there are "thousands" of days of accumulated sick and annual leave left unclaimed every year by retiring workers.

"In terms of extra services to the taxpayer, not to mention the money savings involved, such renunciation runs into the millions both in hours and dollars," he declared in a statement.

The report with which Hallbeck took issue was filed with the House Post Office Committee by the Government Accounting Office; it was released without comment by the committee last week.

Annual leave is the government equivalent of vacation time. Sick leave is intended to be granted under the law for specified periods only when the employee is sick. The GAO report dealt only with use of sick leave.

A federal employee is entitled to 13 days of sick leave with pay each year. This is cumulative, so that if an employee has 10 years of service he is entitled to 130 days of such leave less any time he has taken off for illness.

Second Italian President Elected

ROME (AP)—Giovanni Gronchi, 67, leader of the left wing element of Italy's majority Christian Democratic party, was elected Italy's second president today.

Gronchi, a World War II resistance leader, was elected on the fourth ballot at a joint session of Parliament. Three previous ballots, taken Thursday, had failed to find a successor to 81-year-old Luigi Einaudi, first president of the republic.

One Blast 4 Blocks From U. S. Embassy

Cabinet Supports Move for Showdown With Binh Xuyen

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Ngo Dinh Diem claimed victory in bloody civil strife today and defied the authority of Chief of State Bao Dai to remove him.

Diem's American-backed government, in the second day of a showdown battle with the Binh Xuyen society, said the Premier was "indispensable" to the country. Despite the victory claim, fighting which had caused casualties of perhaps 1,000 killed or wounded continued in the area between Saigon and its Chinese suburb of Cho Lon. One clash flared only four blocks from the U. S. Embassy. Fires raging the past 24 hours made thousands of persons homeless.

Building on Fire

The government said its shock troops had blasted the last of the Binh Xuyen from their lone remaining stronghold guarding approaches to the society's headquarters in Cho Lon. The building was reported ablaze from Nationalist artillery.

Bao Dai, who lives on the French Riviera, summoned Diem to confer with him there by Tuesday. This was regarded as virtual dismissal for Diem. Bao Dai also ordered military authority transferred from Gen. Le Van Ty, who as army chief of staff is directing the war against the Binh Xuyen, to Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, a French-supported general opposed to Diem.

Diem's Cabinet issued a communique saying:

"There are no competent persons who might replace the Premier in the direction of the government if he should be absent."

"For the same reason, the transfer of the functions of chief of staff to Gen. Nguyen Van Vy would be deleterious to the nation. The cabinet has thus unanimously decided that both Gen. Ty and Vy will remain in their present functions. (Vy is inspector general and Ty chief of staff.)"

Pressure on Premier

"At the same time it instructs the Premier to expose the actual state of affairs to the chief of state at once."

In Paris, the French government, which has been seeking Diem's replacement for some time, apparently was supporting Bao Dai in his efforts to get Diem out. Premier Edgar Faure told a news conference it was evident Diem's government was no longer equal to its tasks.

There was no indication Bao Dai would return to Viet Nam. He has not set foot on Vietnamese soil for more than a year.

Three high ranking generals of the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao religious sects vowed not to recognize Gen. Vy as military chief. They described him as a tool of the French. The generals accused "French colonialists" of ordering Bao Dai to destroy the National army. The generals' statement was in a proclamation released by Diem's office. They were Nguyen Thanh Phung and Trinh Minh The of the Cao Dai and Nguyen Giao Ngo of the Hoa Hao.

Tough Fighting Unit

All have integrated their troops into Diem's Nationalist army and have army commissions. They represent some 35,000 tough fighting men.

"Dear compatriots, as you know the colonialists are responsible for the coup de force which caused the loss of hundreds of human lives among you and destruction of thousands of your homes," the generals' proclamation said.

It said the army was the peoples' wall of protection and added: "In order to destroy this wall and more easily realize their aims of subversion and exploitation of their interests, the colonialists have ordered Bao Dai to name Vy chief of staff."

No Children's Voices Heard In This School

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—P. S. 47 looks like any other New York school—weather-worn brick, flush on a busy street between a piano store and a moving company.

But inside, in the first classroom you come to, you notice the difference. It's a nursery, and underneath the surface noise of blaring radio and children banging blocks is a layer of silence.

The only voice you hear is the teacher's, purposefully chattering away as if her small charges could hear every word. If any of them talked back to her, it would be one of the happiest days of her life.

The best she can hope for is a meaningless babble, the beginning of a functional voice.

Public School 47 is New York City's school for deaf and hard of hearing children, the largest in the country. It has 550 students, from 3 to 19 years of age.

Children start in the nursery at 2 years, 3 months.

"That's the time we must start making them conscious of speech," says Mrs. M. Catherine Willman, assistant principal.

"The first time you realize you've gotten into the child's mentality is when he moves his lips for words, but doesn't make a sound. It's a great day and you kiss him and make a fuss over him."

In the nursery all activity is on the directed-play level. Banging is encouraged and the radio is on all day at varying degrees of loudness—both for noting the children's reaction.

Mothers accompany their children to the nursery and stay until the tots can say goodbye easily, usually a matter of a few weeks.

Teddy bears and dolls scattered around the nursery have hearing aids to help accustom the child to the devices. They are never forced on him. Sometimes the cloth harness containing the battery is worn a month before the second part is fitted in the child's ear.

Hearing aid companies have given the school $10,000 worth of equipment for children up to 5 years. After that age, it's up to the parents to provide them.

Revolt Over Danes' Doctor Develops Into Political Fight

THORSHAVN, Faeroe Islands, (AP)—The squabble over attempts to remove an expelled physician from the Danish-held Faeroes appeared today to be developing into a political struggle for island independence.

The revolt started with resistance of Bordo Islanders to attempts to remove Dr. Olaf Halvorsen from his hospital post at Klaksvig, Bordo's main town. It mushroomed into a general strike which has paralyzed industry throughout the 21 isles.

Halvorsen indicated in a telephone interview yesterday that his role in the dispute had become a minor one.

"I would return to Denmark immediately, if it were up to me," he said, "but it is not certain that I myself am allowed to decide."

The Faeroes are in the North Atlantic between Iceland and the Shetlands, between 600 and 700 miles from the Danish mainland.

U. S. margarine production totaled 426 million pounds in 1942 and rose to about 1,364 million pounds in 1954.

Truck Driver May Have Preferred Girl to Rutabagas

CHICAGO, P. — A 25-year-old man who abandoned 25 tons of canned rutabagas, possibly to visit his girl, was sought Thursday by Chicago police at the request of Minnesota authorities.

The sheriff of Itasca County, Minn., asked police to seek Richard T. Kelly, employee of the Arrowhead Canning Co. of Grand Rapids, Minn., on a theft warrant. Minnesota authorities said Kelly, his truck and tractor, and the 25 tons of rutabagas left Itasca County April 12 bound for Huntsville, Ala., and disappeared. The load was valued at $9,500.

Police found the truck on a South Side street, with the back door open but the load intact. They learned Kelly had cashed a $5 check in a nearby tavern. The Minnesota sheriff said Kelly might have stopped off here to visit his girl friend, but that he didn't know her address.

Washington Girl Who Got Cutter Vaccine Has Polio

YAKIMA, Wash. (P) — Three-year-old Vicki Barrett, who became ill six days after getting her first Salk vaccine inoculation, has been diagnosed as a definite polio case. Her physician said yesterday she is suffering from the paralytic type of polio and is coming along well. The doctor, who requested that his name not be used, said the girl may have had the polio virus before being inoculated. He said she became ill six days after the serum was administered and the common incubation period is 14 days.

Dr. W. R. Giedt of the State Health Department said in Seattle that the vaccine used for the girl was supplied by Cutter Laboratories in Berkeley, Calif.

$2,500 Allowed For Injuries in Dakota Accident

Damages of $2,500 were awarded by a District Court jury here Thursday afternoon to a Fremont, Wis., man for injuries suffered by him in an automobile accident at Dakota two years ago.

The award was made to Clyde Taylor, Fremont, in his personal injury action against Charles Baker, Dresbach, as a result of a collision of cars driven by the two men March 22, 1953.

The jury returned its verdict in favor of Taylor at 3:20 p.m., four hours after it retired to consider evidence presented in the trial.

Baker's counterclaim for damages was denied. Taylor was represented by C. Stanley McMahon and H. M. Lamberton Jr., Winona, and Baker by W. M. McRostee, Minneapolis.

The next jury case in District Court is scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Financing of Blair School Still Undecided

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Just who is going to pay the bill for Blair's new auditorium-gymnasium is still a question.

Since the school will provide the land and the building is to be used primarily as a part of the educational program there, it was originally planned to make the project a part of school district expense. However, it was learned that the district could not indent itself to the extent necessary, so the city picked up the fight and decided to erect the addition, rent it to the district and turn it over to the school within 20 years or as soon as the debt was liquidated. A St. Paul firm, Shaughnessy & Co., has agreed to finance the project.

This week it was revealed that the school district can assume the debt by order of the Wisconsin Supreme Court. So the issue has reverted back to its starting point—does the school district care to build now?

An answer will be given at a meeting May 16 of Joint School District 1. Voters will decide first of all whether to build and secondly, how to finance if approval is given.

Bids Listed
At a joint meeting of the school board and City Council Tuesday, 16 bids for construction were read and placed on file. No official action was taken pending settlement of who is to build. Proposals were as follows:

General construction — Arnold Construction Co., Arcadia, $102,501, 300 days; Hodgson & Mikelsen, Westby, $111,498, 240 days; McGrath Construction Co., Whitehall, (bidding on general, heating and ventilating, plumbing and electrical work) $129,867; Theodore J. Molzahns & Sons, La Crosse, $111,098, 200 days;

Nelson Construction Co., Black River Falls, $123,300, 210 days; Peter Nelson & Sons, La Crosse, $114,767, 180 days; Sequin Lumber & Hardware, Alma Center, $106,850, 150 days; J. C. Schneider, Merrillan, $94,550.

Heating and ventilating — Arcadia Refrigerating & Air Conditioning Co., $22,000; Constalia Plumbing Co., Westby, $23,400 (Constalia also bid $30,120 on the combined heating, plumbing and ventilating work).

Heating, ventilating and plumbing — Frank Kube, Arcadia, $26,700; R. H. Lovold Co., La Crosse, $28,860, and the Winona Plumbing Co., $29,500.

Electrical Bids
Electrical — North West Electric Co., Altoona, Wis., $8,900; Gunelsson Electric, Blair, and John N. Pappenfuss, La Crosse, $12,660, and the Villa Walters Electric, Arcadia, $12,399.

McGrath's bid of $129,867 was the lowest for the total job. Combining other bids including Schneider for general work, $94,550; Kube for heating, plumbing and ventilating, $26,700, and North West Electric for the electrical, $8,900, which totaled $130,150.

Social Agencies Council to Make Juvenile Study

Available Protection
To Be Studied;
Action Final Goal

The Winona Council of Social Agencies will undertake an over-all study of juvenile protection for the city of Winona, members decided Thursday night at the group's annual meeting at Winona General Hospital.

The council now consists of representatives from all groups and organizations in the city which perform welfare work. During the next few months all city recreational organizations will be asked to appoint representatives to the council to help facilitate the youth study; William F. White, president, said.

Hope for Action

"We have hopes that this will not be just another research project on juvenile delinquency," White said. "Detailed and impartial study of the various phases of the problem will of course be necessary, but the real goal of the council is to become an action group which will press hard to accomplish definite objectives."

There was general agreement among the persons attending the meeting that the council is the logical organization to undertake such a study, since it is the only organized body that brings together all the groups in the city which are concerned with social problems.

Active work on the project probably will not start until fall. In the meantime plans will be made for the best way to accomplish the council's objectives.

Council members decided to use the term "juvenile protection" rather than delinquency, because the study will embrace a much wider field than just the problems of delinquents.

White outlined three main objectives of the organization:

• To find forceful ways to make what is now considered delinquency so unattractive that teenagers will avoid it.

• To find rewarding ways to direct the city's youth into channels of benefit to them and the community.

• To search out acceptable means of getting parents to prevent trends toward delinquency in their own homes.

Specifically, the council will undertake studies of such things as juvenile automobile driving and traffic law enforcement, and the many other problems related to teenagers potentially headed for trouble.

Inspect Center

Council members inspected the Winona Rehabilitation Center's facilities for physiotherapy at the hospital during the meeting. Harry M. Reynolds, president of the center, explained how the center was organized and financed, and Miss Wilma Ziegler, therapist, showed a series of film slides on how the therapy equipment is used.

In an election of officers, William F. White was re-elected president; Mrs. R. W. Miller, vice president, and Mrs. James McConnon, secretary-treasurer. The Rev. J. Richard Feiten was re-elected to the board of directors for a three-year term, and Mrs. Robert S. Horton was elected to the board succeeding Mrs. Lawrence Jaszewski.

Mayor Hitt appointed L. O. Miller city marshal, Alvin Kindesky maintenance superintendent and Guesing, Mrs. Nogle and Reiter as members of the board of review, with Mrs. Schilling as alternate.

The Buffalo County Journal was named the city's official newspaper.

A Correction

BLAIR, Wis. — A Highway 95 road project, for which L. G. Arnold, Inc., Eau Claire, was given a $644,024 contract Tuesday, is for a 12-mile stretch between Blair and Hixton, not Blair and Merrillan as reported earlier.

The job will include grading and bridge construction.

Midnight Wisconsin

State Trout Fishing Delayed to 10 a.m.

For the first time in fishing history in Minnesota, the state's trout fishermen will not assemble along the creeks of the state long before dawn Saturday for the opening of a trout season.

The recent session of the Minnesota Legislature has decreed that trout fishing on the opening day is illegal until 10 a.m. or two hours before noon. After the first day, it goes back to one hour before sunrise.

Aimed to save trout by directing fishermen to other fields of fishing—or to save the trout from trout fishermen—the arrangement promises to be as unpopular as the park sticker with the mass of fishermen.

However, sportsmen's groups have endorsed the late opening and the lawmakers decided to try it. Wisconsin, after five years of experimenting with a similar plan, threw it out this year. The Wisconsin season opens one minute after midnight Friday or 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

Mississippi River fishing, with conditions nearly ideal for the opening, will draw the bulk of this area's 50,000 or more fishermen, fishermen and fishing youngsters. Here the season opens as early as you can see Saturday morning for all game fish including walleyes, northerns, bass and panfish.

Demands for fishing licenses at local sporting stores and at the county auditor's office is brisker than a year ago, when 7,640 fishing licenses were sold in Winona County.

Taking into consideration that children up to 16 are not required to possess a license, this total means that at least 1 in every 4 in the Winona County population goes fishing.

The ratio is similar in other nearby or river counties in Southeastern Minnesota and Western Wisconsin. Fishing is big business in this area. There has been no change in river regulations. Each fisherman can use two poles and lines and has no size limits to worry about. He can take five bass, eight walleyes, five northerns, 25 white bass, 25 crappies, 25 sunfish, 25 bullheads, 25 perch and catfish without limit, all in one day.

Inland Fishing
On inland waters of Minnesota, he can still use two lines and poles for panfish but not for other fishing. The season in such waters for walleyes and northerns does not open until May 15. Crappies, sunfish and perch may be fished the year around in both Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Wisconsin opens its south zone Saturday for walleyes and northerns. The northern zone, north of Highway 29, does not open until May 15.

Bass season in each state comes in June. Minnesota trout fishermen, unless a heavy rain comes overnight, will find the creeks clear and low. The drought of the past five months shows in water flow. It will be hard fishing if the day is clear.

Center of trout fishing interest, as in the past, will be the Whitewater system of streams. These streams were heavily stocked with fishable size trout last fall, and again this spring. It should be exciting fishing for the weekend there.

Southern Minnesota's "put and take" stream, Duschek Creek directly below the state trout hatchery at Lanesboro, will draw the "10 o'clock" crowd tomorrow morning. This half-mile creek has been stocked to capacity and every fisherman going there is assured trout. A year ago, fishermen stood shoulder to shoulder here in the dark. It promises to be a circus crowd this year with the late opening.

2 Rail Employees Injured at Shops Leaving Hospital

Two Chicago & North Western Railway employees, injured in accidents Wednesday and Thursday at the car department, were being released from Winona General Hospital today.

Theodore Eichman, 64, 1053 E. Sanborn St., was discharged after treatment of a laceration to his right arm. The hospital said his general condition was "good."

Eichman was injured about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday while operating a saw at the North Western shops. An official of the shops said today that it was a "rather strange" accident and declined to give details.

John Palmer Jr., 20, 768 E. 2nd St., apparently escaped serious injury Thursday afternoon when he stopped a rolling car with his body after a block of wood had failed to halt the car.

An attending physician said that Palmer would be released from the hospital this afternoon but would be kept under observation. He suffered bruises and strains of the left knee and lumbar spine. Palmer was admitted to the hospital at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

It was reported that Palmer was working with a crew at the North Western shops jacking up a car to change the truck (wheel assembly on one end of the car. The car was standing on a slight incline and when the car was raised, it began to roll.

Block Pushed Aside
Palmer put a block of wood under the wheels to stop the car but the momentum of the car pushed the block aside. Palmer then attempted to stop the slowly rolling car by holding into a wheel.

The wheel stopped resting against his body and it was originally feared that his injuries may be serious, but thorough X-rays at the hospital revealed no internal injury, and only bruises and strain to the knee and back. Heavy clothes worn by Palmer were believed to have prevented more serious injury.

Marshall Having Biggest Boom In Its History

By BILL MOLINE
MARSHALL, Minn. (U) — An upswing in population in the past two years has placed this city of 7,000 persons in the middle of the biggest boom in its history.

Evidence of the boom is apparent throughout the city. Industry is expanding, educational facilities are being increased, and more than a million dollars is being expended on residential building.

Perhaps the growth can best be noted in the city's educational system, with both public and parochial schools in the process of expanding.

The public school system, which constructed a new elementary school three years ago at a cost of $500,000, is spending $150,000 for an eight-room addition to that building, as well as putting up a new elementary school at a cost of $500,000.

The high school is getting a new shop and agriculture building, with the cost in excess of $100,000.

Central Catholic school, a combination high school and elementary facility, was built five years ago at a cost of $750,000. Today it is embarking on a program which includes a $300,000, 12-classroom addition.

Other projects which boost the total amount involved in building to over $3,000,000 are a new fairgrounds grounds ($35,000); a new armory ($225,000); and a golf club house ($50,000).

One of the most startling changes in the past two years is in residential building. Most residents were building $8,000 or $9,000 houses only two years ago. Today many of them run up to $16,000 or $18,000, with a number of them in the $25,000 class.

Most Children Must Wait for Vaccine Shots

By GEOFFREY GOULD
NEW YORK, (U) — Suppose your children aren't in the first or second grade. How do you get Salk polio vaccine shots for them?

The answer is you don't right now. You must wait — how long isn't clear. Possibly your family doctor may begin getting some through commercial channels in two weeks or a month. More likely it will be longer.

Last week Health Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby called a meeting in Washington of dozens of medical men and health officials to set up a voluntary program of commercial distribution that will be fair to everyone.

They said that by Aug. 1 enough vaccine will be ready to inoculate every child in the country under 10—the age range most susceptible to the disease.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which backed the development of the Salk vaccine, has first call on what is produced by the six participating pharmaceutical companies.

The foundation has ordered enough vaccine for nine million children, enough to cover all children in the first and second grades of all public, parochial and private schools.

That is what the foundation is distributing now, free of charge.

It Happened Last Night Photography Gets Too Easy For Everybody—Except Me

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK—Will people living in the 21st Century be able to write? Won't they communicate instead with pictures—taken with their own cameras?

Crazy, huh? Well, did you hear anybody say lately, "I just bought a wonderful new book on how to write a sentence?"

But you must have encountered cameras. It's time to do something about these lunatics—of whom I am one. It's the "Hollywood influence" and it's sad because so many of us got interested in photography in the wrong era. My B.W. just showed me an ad for a Graflex with "push-button focusing."

If I read this correctly, the camera focuses itself.

"Takes the skill out of it, doesn't it?" taunted the B.W.

She's right (this once). With automatic light meters and focusing, who needs a camera, any more?

Well, I do, for one. Because no matter how easy the cameras work, I manage to get one that mystifies me.

"What do you do with all your pictures?" Mrs. Joey Adams asked me at a recent party.

"What pictures?" retorted the B.W. "None ever come out."

This is untrue. My pictures of Movie Star Kim Novak taken in Hollywood recently came out—in fact, Miss Novak almost came out, too, of her dress.

One thing that disturbs any would-be photog is the conflicting free advice he gets from the would-be experts.

Lately the new Tri-X film has enabled the pros to work indoors without flash, or strobe.

(Frequently the drunk turns out to be right—when I'm shooting.)

Then there's the clash between the newspaper photos and the magazine guys.

"Are you sure you're in focus?" the newspaper fellows say.

Whereas the magazine geniuses who like a dreamy quality are likely to say "Are you sure you're out of focus?"

One rule remains good. It concerns girl pictures and may be stated this way:

"Don't shoot till you see the whites of their thighs."

No, I don't develop my own stuff. I don't have a darkroom. Notwithstanding a crack by my son Slugger who recently said, "If

6-Ulcer Man Makes Job A Romance

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (U)—The tired businessman might prolong his health and life if he really learned to think of his job in terms of romance rather than work.

"I have been resurrected by this idea," said Harvey Greenspan, a former six-ulcer man.

At 42 Greenspan, a financial genius, cashed in his chips, figuring he would soon die. Now at 61 he has chipped in his cash—some $400,000—to pioneer in the marketing of a new vitamin-rich fruit juice concentrate made from a little-known Puerto Rican cherry called the acerola.

"It is my latest and maybe my last romance," he said cheerfully during a visit here. "But however it turns out, it is more fun than buying chorus girls jewelry. I don't want that kind of romance."

Own Firm at 30

He worked his way through Columbia University here, specializing in business law. At 30 he had his own financial firm. For the next dozen years he worked himself ragged flitting back and forth across the country buying, reorganizing and selling corporations. One day in 1936 he collapsed. In addition to wealth he had piled up six king-size ulcers.

"I had more ulcers than freekies," he recalled. "A doctor told me that if I didn't undergo an operation for the removal of my stomach I'd die."

Greenspan thought it over and decided he'd rather die than part with his stomach. He sold out his business interests and moved to Florida, figuring "I might as well be warm while I was dying."

"I decided I'd better do all the things I'd wanted to do and hadn't found time. One thing I'd always wanted was a home of my own on an island. I told an architect to build me one, and he was quick about it. He did and I furnished it just the way I thought it should be."

Nursed His Ulcers

"I took good care of my ulcers. For two years I did nothing but loaf and fish. Then I began to fear I'd die of boredom."

"All of us have a hidden romance in our souls. When you are out of circulation, this piles up in you. During those two years I decided that business really was my romance in life, but I hadn't been looking at it from that angle."

"I swore that if I ever got well, I'd be the busiest and happiest man in 48 states. And I am."

Greenspan never fully conquered all his ulcers but, as he says, "we worked out an agreement so we'd be able to get along together on a basis of mutual respect."

In a few years Greenspan became a citrus magnate. In keeping with his new philosophy, his office in his Lakeland, Fla., canning plant is in a kitchen, where he directs operations from a comfortable armchair. The telephone is in the next room.

In 1949 while developing a citrus concentrate that could be taken by children allergic to orange juice, he conferred with Dr. James R. Wilson of the American Medical Assn. in Chicago. During the conversation Dr. Wilson, a nutritionist, mentioned that the Puerto Rican acerola was up to 80 times as rich in vitamin C as orange juice, and should prove a good natural source of this vital element for undernourished children.

"$400,000 Game"

"It was his idea," said Greenspan. "I just picked it up and shot craps with $400,000 to see if it would work."

After five years of experimentation and plantation building in Puerto Rico, he has 25,000 producing acerola trees, 25,000 more planted. This year he expects to market six million cans of apple juice blended with acerola concentrate, estimates a market of 24 million cans within another few years, but sees no prospect of the product drying up the nation's thirst for orange juice.

"It should become a major industry in Puerto Rico and have a big market in Europe," he said. "Other producers are now entering the field. Maybe it's true that all pioneers die broke—but I've had a wonderful romance."

Those who know Greenspan best, however, doubt that he will ever be without a smile, an ulcer—or money in the bank.

Sergeant With Orphanage Sees Story Filmed

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (U) — Sgt. Hugh O'Reilly, a onetime "Jap hater" who ended up marrying a Japanese girl and adopting an Osaka orphanage, has just been through the experience of watching his own life being filmed.

How did it feel?

"Kind of strange," said the tall, rugged sergeant from New York City. "I didn't think it would affect me, but I found myself bawling as I watched some of the scenes."

O'Reilly's story was recently filmed by Columbia in Japan under the title of "Gentle Wolfhound." That's the name of the proud regiment with which he fought in Korea. Now the studio may rename the film "Sergeant O'Reilly." The sarge doesn't cotton to the idea.

"Sure, it's a compliment to me," he said, "and I'd be a liar if I didn't say so. But I think the credit should go to the regiment. The men in it contribute $2,000 a month for the support of the orphanage."

O'Reilly can easily wax enthusiastic about the Gentle Wolfhounds. "It was formed in Texas 50 years ago," he said, "then went overseas in the Spanish-American War. It hasn't been back in the States since."

The regiment is stationed in Hawaii and O'Reilly hopes to be reassigned there this summer. He has lately been at West Point and was off duty to give technical advice on the picture.

Health, Welfare Issue Stalling Rail Strike End

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—One major obstacle is reportedly blocking agreement in the nation's longest railroad strike.

Both the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and the 10 AFL non-operating unions have agreed to arbitration. But they disagree on what differences are to be arbitrated. The main sore point reportedly is a health and welfare program.

Meanwhile, the economic situation in the 14 Southern states affected grows more serious daily. And violence—shootings, bridge dynamitings and freight train derailments—are becoming more frequent.

Little progress toward a settlement has been reported since the strike against the L&N and two of its subsidiaries began March 14. Federal mediators and state officials have failed in efforts to iron out remaining differences.

As one source analyzes the health and welfare issue: If the unions win this demand with the L&N, other railroads must follow suit while, if the unions lose, other railroads might seek to eliminate the program from their contracts.

The unions listed these issues in their strike call:

Improved vacations with pay; seven paid holidays with double time for employees who work on holidays; hospital, medical and benefits, and life insurance equal to full-time annual earnings, with a minimum of $3,500, the railroad to pay the full cost; premium pay for Sunday work; and a standard "national free transportation" plan or system of passes for L&N employees good on all railroads.

Italian Leaders Trying to Form Voting Alliances

ROME (AP)—Party leaders tried to patch together new voting alliances in preparation for a fourth round of parliamentary voting today for a new president of Italy.

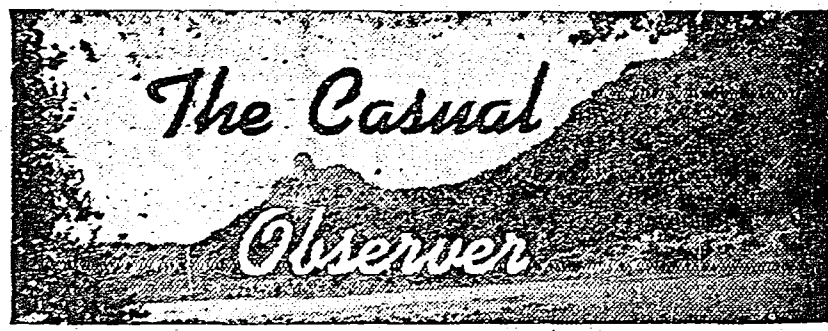

In three ballots yesterday the senators and deputies failed to produce the needed majority for any candidate.

Christian Democrat strategists held secret pre-session meetings as Premier Mario Scelba faced a serious loss of prestige because of the trend yesterday away from his party's official candidate.

On the third ballot last night Giovanni Gronchi, left-wing Christian Democrat and president of the Chamber of Deputies, took the lead despite the party's endorsement of Cesare Merzagora, political independent and Senate president.

Gronchi polled 281 votes against 245 for Merzagora, whom he had trailed 127-225 on the second ballot. But this fell far short of the two thirds needed of all 643 electors—590 deputies, 243 senators and 10 delegates from such semi-autonomous regions as Sicily.

The fourth ballot required only an absolute majority—422 of the 643 electors.

By GRETCHEN L. LAMBERTON

THIS weekend coming up right now is probably the most exquisitely lovely time in the whole year. The earth is a carpet of fresh green velvet, and trees are a mist of tender green. Plum trees are wearing ethereal bridal veils, and apple trees are just beginning to flower rosily. Everything seems young and bridal. By next week leaves and grass will be heavier and a deeper green, shrubs will be leafed out and there'll be a definite hint of the young matron summer in the air. I always hate to see the two most beautiful weeks in the year pass—the last week in April and the first week in October.

Acting on the excellent advice of gardener-columnist A. F. Shira I drove into Woodlawn Cemetery to look at the lone magnolia tree he urged people to view. It's every bit as beautiful as Mr. Shira says it is, with its huge cream velvet blossoms flushed with magenta. I wish people would plant more of them.

Perfect for this week of the year is the picture being shown for the next few days at the West End Theater, "Romeo and Juliet," for it is the personification of spring and youth. Most of the world's greatest actors and actresses have played the part of Romeo or Juliet, but most of them have been very mature and that in itself was a slight sour note at least as far as I was concerned. Shakespeare made Juliet only 14 years old and Romeo not many years older, and this story of tormented young love seems natural and possible only when the lovers are very youthful.

Another manifestation of spring: On Sunday, May 1, the old Anderson Hotel in Wabasha is re-opening its dining room. The two "Anderson girls," Mrs. Verna McCaffrey and Mrs. Belle Ebner who run it, were plump tired of planning and cooking wonderful meals and so just shut down the dining room for the winter.

So, go on a stiff diet for a couple of days and get in shape to tackle their famous "hot bread tray" with a dozen different kinds of fresh homemade bread and rolls; their Dutch ham pot-pie, crab soup, butter-fried chicken, potato pancakes, frozen rum cherry pie, sour cream doughnuts, wild plum preserves, Cedric Adams cake (the black devil cake to end all devil cakes), strawberry dumplings and a host of other unusual old-time dishes. Everybody who likes to eat—and who doesn't?—will be delighted to learn that the Anderson girls are re-opening this gourmet's paradise.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The dean of students at the University of Southern California has stepped in to stop a strip-tease artist from dancing for a student show.

The burlesque performer, who calls herself Patti Waggin, was scheduled to go through a rehearsal on the campus yesterday but students met her at a school entrance and told her of the dean's edict against her.

Premier Says U.S. Aid Stopped Thailand Reds

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Thailand Prime Minister told a press conference here that his country's "full economy and aid from the United States" enabled it to resist the threat of Communism.

Field Marshal P. Pibulsonggram said, "I can safely say there is no internal disturbance in my country today."

"Communism is very near, however," he added. "The Reds are more of a threat now than ever before since Viet Nam is divided."

He said solution of the Formosan crisis would greatly ease tension in Southeast Asia.

French Enterprise Builds 'Little TVA'

By CARL HARTMAN

MARRAKECH, French Morocco (AP)—At the edge of the snow-capped Atlas Mountains, French enterprise is building a "little TVA" for Moroccans who were fighting France to the death 25 years ago.

France shows off the project proudly as an answer to Arab nationalists clamoring for independence. The nationalists, however, don't let it keep them from their favorite sport of throwing bombs at pro-French Moroccans. They say it doesn't answer their demand for freedom and that anyhow the French are building to make a profit, not for love of Morocco.

Nationalists are few, however, among the Berber mountaineers of the Atlas. To celebrate the dedication of Bin-el-Ouidane Dam, 800 turbaned horsemen put on an exuberant display of riding and noise, repeatedly firing their ancient rifles in honor of a French Cabinet minister.

Energie Electrique du Maroc (Moroccan Electric Power) is a French firm, working with French government aid. It has just completed nine years of work on the project, designed to produce both electric power and water for irrigation.

Brannan Predicts '56 Win for Democrats

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Charles Brannan, agriculture secretary under former President Harry S. Truman, says the Democrats will win the White House in 1956. "Eisenhower is as invincible in 1956 as Dewey was in 1948," he told reporters yesterday.

Brannan also said farmers had lost 13 per cent of their income during the Republican administration and would lose another 5 per cent by the end of the year.

.. "the person who understands best how American women want to look is a . . . designer named Claire McCardell."

Time cover story, May 2 issue

When TIME appeared today with Claire McCardell's picture on its cover, we couldn't have been more elated if it had been our own! And, at the risk of sounding a mite smug, the story inside says what we've been saying for years about this imaginative designer and her clothes. We feel a little possessive about Claire McCardell, you see, because we introduced her casual "American look" fashions to this area. That was years ago, for right from the start, our trend-wise buyer spotted it as the beginning of an exciting new way of dressing.

And you've agreed! McCardells rarely stay in stock long enough to feel at home on the hangers. Hundreds of smart Winona area women live in them—are devoted to them for their uncommonly good looks, for their dash and flair, and for their absolute comfort.

Claire McCardell, reports Time, was first with separates; first with the unwaisted dress; first with body-conforming bias-cutting; first with jean-stitching, trouser pockets and work-clothes grippers on dresses; first with the innovations that crystallized eventually into the relaxed American look. Almost single-handed she effected a major revolution in fashion.

Claire McCardell clothes are so functional they never go out of style. We know many, many women who have cherished and worn their McCardells proudly and happily for four, five, six years, and who tell us they mean to wear them for as many more.

They're completely functional, down to the last planned stitch. Buttons button, ties tie, snaps snap. Her sports clothes swing as easily on a golf course as on a clothes line; her dresses go competently from an office desk to the fanciest party; her evening clothes are as much at ease tossing a salad as tossing off a mambo!

Time's article recognizes our gal as "... the master of the line, never the slave of the sequin . . . one of the few creative designers this country has ever produced." That's exactly the way we feel. Come in and see our Claire McCardell fashions! They'll show you what all the excitement is about!

City Owes Thanks To Siebrecht, George

Two outstanding citizens resigned from the Park-Recreation Board Monday after long periods of public service. They are Charles W. Siebrecht, Winona florist who was appointed to the board May 1, 1929 and has served continuously since, and J. M. George, an attorney, who devoted a portion of his time over a period of ten years to the affairs of the board.

Citizens of Winona should be grateful to both of these men for their able and experienced leadership. Mr. Siebrecht's tenure was one of the longest in the city's recent history and for the last 15 years he served as board president, taking a great personal interest in the maintenance and development of Winona's extensive park system.

It was during his administration that the Lake Winona dredging and beautification project was carried out and he was an early advocate of the consolidation of the Park Board and the Recreation Board with the objective in mind of effecting economies and eliminating the overlapping of services. Flowers have been not only his business but his hobby for years and under his direction some of the most beautiful plantings in the state were made annually in Lake Park.

Mr. Siebrecht succeeded such men in that important office as F. S. Bell, John Deltz, C. D. Tease and Emil Leicht and saw many of their early dreams carried successfully to completion.

The board also was fortunate in having a man of the caliber of Mr. George as a member and profited frequently by his advice based on his long legal experience.

Just last week, Mayor Loyde E. Pfeiffer, in his inaugural address to the new City Council, said "all of our board members are sacrificing their time and experience for the benefit of our city." He urged and recommended that the citizens express their appreciation to them for what they are doing.

"This can very easily turn an otherwise thankless position into a pleasure," continued the mayor, "for after all, that is the least compensation that they can hope for, for what they are doing for you and me."

This, then, is the time for all of us who have appreciated the contributions of Mr. Siebrecht and Mr. George to express our thanks and tell them that theirs was a job well done.

And to Robert Selover, successor to Mr. Siebrecht, our congratulations. May he carry on the tradition which has made Winona one of the most beautiful cities in the nation.

Why Not a Medal for Civilian Achievement?

Pres. Eisenhower has asked Congress to establish a medal for distinguished civilian achievement. He wants the first recipient of the medal to be Dr. Jonas Salk, developer of the new polio vaccine.

Most European countries have a system for paying homage to citizens who make important contributions. In this country, although decorations have been awarded for valor in war since our earliest history, no such civilian award exists.

The President's idea is a sound one. Honoring civilian heroes is a way of expressing the gratitude of the nation to a citizen who gives largely of his strength and devotion. The virtues of citizenship necessary to the winning of such an award are not so common that they do not deserve special notice.

Try and Stop Me

The club bore down on: "I thought I was drowning for sure: I was going down for the third time. mind you. Suddenly my whole life passed before my eyes in sharp, clearly delineated pictures."

"Hmhhh," snorted an alert listener from the depth of his leather chair. "I don't suppose one of those sharp pictures was one of me lending you that ten-spot back in 1932?"

The shapely Cole girl flunked her automobile driving test for the third time running, and burst into tears. "Cheer up," counseled the state examiner, "you can try again next year." But how am I going to get back and forth to La Guardia in the meantime?" demanded Miss Cole. "I'm a pilot."

Mamie and Gert, identical twins, made a slight bet as to which one would snag a husband first. For a full year, Mamie experienced nothing but setbacks, and finally phoned to inquire how Gert was progressing. "I think I've got the bet sewed up," reported Gert happily. "I'm on my last lap right now."

Rosenberg, Salk Both From N.Y.C.C.

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NEW YORK — Recently I went up to the City College of New York to debate the more or less moot question of whether Communists should be permitted to teach in the schools. All the time that I was there I could not help but think of two men, both of whom had been students of this school, Julius Rosenberg and Dr. Jonas Salk.

Both originated in identical environments. Both were New York boys of Jewish parentage. One was brought up on what is called the lower East Side; the other in the Bronx. I know what their lives were because I spent my boyhood in the same atmosphere. Some of the younger sociologists would call us slightly underprivileged which we never were, but that is another matter. We lived in crowded tenements, in close quarters. We were all products of the New York City Public School System; we all went to public high schools. Our parents made great sacrifices to provide for our education. What we lacked in wealth, we made up in enthusiasm and earnestness.

JULIUS ROSENBERG died in the electric chair, a traitor to his country. Dr. Jonas Salk is honored not only for his persistent scientific work which may save millions of lives but even more for his unerring self-sacrifice, his humility, his profound sense of service.

Both came from the same environment. Both went to the same free college. Both were of an age, a few years apart, and may have had the same instructors. What made the difference?

When I was a student, no one would think of attending a public gathering without a jacket and a necktie, nor would we in any manner show disrespect for our elders. And we knew that they were our elders. We accepted it as an indisputable fact that if a man spent 20 or more years working in a field and achieved the eminence of being a professor in an outstanding university, he knew more about his subject and was likely to have better judgment than a sophomore.

Not that we did not argue and differ and debate but we dared not cross the line where difference of opinion became boorishness and disrespect. The emphasis was on respect. And it was a two-sided emphasis. The professor who did not hold the respect of colleague and student was asked to leave — and there were no two ways about that.

In my day, there was no catering to youth; the converse today is probably one of the principal causes for what is called juvenile delinquency. Young people require discipline, self-discipline, if they are capable of it; external discipline, if that is the only way. The assumption that because a person is young, his indiscretions, impudence and lack of integrity need to be tolerated has not proved itself to be correct.

JULIUS ROSENBERG did not rebel against conformity. He became a spy by free choice as an act of supreme wickedness. Dr. Salk, as a researcher, has not conformed intellectually because he does not accept the unknown as unknowable, which is an act of non-conformity. The difference is whether one has a sloppy mind or a precise mind. The sloppy mind thinks in terms of clichés, slogans, vulgar tricks of words. It is impossible to work in science with a sloppy mind.

Both Julius Rosenberg and Dr. Jonas Salk made science their life work. But Julius Rosenberg became a spy and traitor as despised in American history as Benedict Arnold; Jonas Salk is devoting his life to experimental research to find cures for physical illness and has become honored. In a short time, as Dr. William Gorgas who rescued man from Yellow Fever. The corruption of the human mind and spirit cannot be defended by shouting the word, "democracy."

A young lady, in anger, demanded of me, if I really meant it when I said that I would not defend what I did not believe. She wanted to know whether I would not defend the right of a man to say what I believed to be wrong.

She was outraged when I said that I would, not I gave this example: Suppose a speaker advised a body of students not to register for the draft. Would I defend his right to do it. I would warn the students that this man was leading each one of them to a prison sentence.

Burma Premier Quizzes Chou on Captive Airmen

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—American prisoners—Premier U Nu of Burma had some private talks with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai at Bandung about release of the 15 American fliers held in Red China. Nu brought up the subject at the secret request of Sec. Dulles. Chou made no promises, in fact denounced the State Department for refusing to permit

American relatives to visit the prisoners as he has invited them to do. This columnist still believes Red China will turn the American fliers loose but not until it sees a good chance to make propaganda.

Joe's Rescuer Times have changed regarding Joe McCarthy. It was only a short time ago that he made the major spiel before the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Most editors then clamored for more news about Joe's witch-hunting.

In contrast, Sigma Delta Chi was holding a business meeting to prepare its annual breakfast meeting for visiting April editors. Washington big-shots were to be invited, and the list of VIP's from the Supreme Court down was called off to see which member would put up the $4 necessary to invite a very important person.

Finally Chairman Jim Warner called the name of Sen. Joe McCarthy. There was a dead silence—followed by laughter. No one wanted to buy bacon and eggs for the once headlined senator from Wisconsin.

"All right," said Chairman Warner, "we'll lay that one aside for a while and go on with the list." Then a voice piped up in the rear of the room in a last minute rescue of Joe: "I'll buy McCarthy."

It was Charles Frederick, a hearing examiner of the Federal Communications Commission which has been so ardently following McCarthy policies of late. Diplomatic pouch—Reports from China indicate that most of the jailed American fliers have been

Advice on Health

With Chronic Ill Don't Nurse Baby

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Just about every mother can and should nurse her baby. There are some exceptions, of course.

If you are a new mother, you probably should not nurse your baby if you have tuberculosis or a chronic weakening illness such as heart or kidney trouble, severe anemia, diabetes or cancer.

If you have a contagious disease such as scarlet fever, your baby should be kept away from you entirely. If you are not too ill, you should make every effort to keep up your milk supply. Empty your breasts by hand until you recover from your illness and can nurse your baby.

If you become pregnant again while nursing your infant, it may be advisable to stop nursing him.

Too Great a Strain Now don't misunderstand. Pregnancy has no adverse effect on breast milk. But many doctors believe that it is too much of a strain for a mother to nurse one baby at her breast and at the same time nourish another within the womb.

I think your doctor will also advise against nursing if you have a breast abscess. He will, at least, tell you not to use the infected breast. You may find an ice bag helpful in checking the infection. If that fails, penicillin usually will clear it up.

No Need to Stop Some mothers make the mistake of stopping breast feedings because of menstruation. Usually these monthly periods do not begin until five to seven months after the birth of a baby. No matter when they begin, there is no need to stop nursing.

Nursing during these periods may reduce the amount of milk in the breasts for a few days. And your baby may become a little restless because of your nervousness.

But he will get plenty to eat from nursing. You won't have to give him any additional milk.

How Did U.S. Get Involved With Chiang?

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is a quick look at history.

How did the United States get deeply involved with Chiang Kai-shek, with the island of Formosa where he has his Nationalist government, and with the Matsu and Quemoy islands, where he has garrison outposts?

Chiang, boss of China since 1927, was an American ally in World War II. In 1943 at a Cairo conference President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Chiang agreed China should get back Formosa after the defeat of Japan.

Why Should I

Trade In Rochester?

To the Editor: I thought you might be interested in the following letter which I mailed Thursday to the Rochester Chamber of Commerce:

Gentlemen: There was nothing in the advertising sheet I received today from Rochester to let me know who to write to relative to who is responsible for this plan.

I live in Winona but have no business here as I have been retired some years. For the life of me I cannot find one logical reason why I should go to Rochester to buy my merchandise. Give me just one good one and I might be interested.

Unless it is something very, very unusual I don't think Rochester merchants have much more than can be found in our local stores. I pay taxes here, that go to support our city government, but I am not the only taxpayer in the city. Our merchants all pay taxes.

Neighbors all around me work in stores. Should I help to cut off their noses i.e. jobs by driving to Rochester 90 miles to get something I could buy right here in town?

We are a friendly town and do not get the multitude of strangers in our stores that you do on account of the Mayo Clinic. When we go into the stores the clerks, our neighbors, know us and appreciate the opportunity to give us neighborly service. Should I go to Rochester just to trade I would feel like a traitor to my neighbors.

I never was in business here so I am not writing this as a disgruntled ex-businessman.

Liked Bargain Days

Advertising Section

To the Editor: Congratulations on that advertising section of The Winona Daily News on Winona Bargain Days. It's just the aggressive type of merchandising our stores need.

It coincided exactly with the mailing of the big brochure from Rochester advertising their downtown merchants. The buying public in the Winona market will compare, and I'm sure they'll buy at home.

There Are Some

Heartless People

To the Editor:

Is there anyone as heartless as some "city folks" who will take their "no longer wanted" dogs and dump them off on some country road to live miserably on dirt or weeds or hunger? These poor animals come crawling into farmyards, dirty, hungry and frightened, and begging with their eyes for a bit of food and kind word or gesture, which only a short time ago, was lavished on them so plentifully. They cannot seem to understand why they are chased and slashed by farm dogs, why they are no longer welcome anywhere, when only yesterday they were part of a family which gave them so much attention, food and a comfortable place to curl up and sleep?

Evidently there are such heartless people, as four dogs have been dumped near my farm within the last month. I've watched the lost and found column in The Winona Daily News, but not one has ever asked the return of a dog of their descriptions.

I had to destroy one of these animals today, but only after I found several of my injured and my own cattle dog killed after a battle in the dead of night. I know he was a city dog, as he attempted to enter the house several times. (My dog never enters my home.) City dogs also have the tendency to harass poultry and other small animals with which they are not familiar.

I felt sorry for the poor mutt, however, I had to take the time to dispose of him, not to mention the cost of ammunition I had to assume as a result. Farmers simply cannot adopt all these animals, feed them, or allow their farmyards to become havens for discarded and unwanted pets of city dog lovers, as they would like to be called. Why should all this become the responsibility of area farmers, especially here in Wisconsin on the other side of the Mississippi, which of course, no dog could swim if he did want to return to his home?

Surely as a farmer I am not such an inferior creature, that I should have this sort of thing forced on me just because the city "snootie" can't do it himself, or believes that a veterinarian's fee to do the job mercifully and painlessly would be honest-to-goodness break him!

Why get a dog in the first place, when such an end inevitably awaits him? There's hunger, misery, pain, and finally some farmer's merciful bullet away from the home he dimly remembers, and the family who deserted him on a country road one night so long ago.

It's a downright shame, that's what it is!

Uncertainty Hanging Over Chiang Capital

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Uncertainty hangs over Chiang Kai-shek's capital these days, feeding upon the fear that proposed talks between the United States and Communist China would do the Nationalist Chinese government no good.

The official policy is to say nothing just now.

Despite this reticence signs of worry find expression.

The Kung Lun Pao, a paper published by Formosan interests, said today Red China is baiting a trap for the United States and that the United States might fall for it.

"The United States will abandon its stand for justice if it talks with a regime condemned as an aggressor by the United Nations," the paper said. It said Nationalist China would not be bound by any cease-fire agreement.

All applications received after 4 p.m. Wednesday with a one-dollar payment are being returned to the applicants with word the doubled fee is now in effect, he said.

Learners' and duplicate licenses can still be issued for 35 cents.

Hormel and Leslie Get Final Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Leslie Caron, 23, French film actress and ballerina, was fully set free from matrimony Tuesday when George A. Hormel, 29, meat packing family, entered a final decree of divorce in superior court.

Hormel obtained an interlocutory decree March 31, 1954, when he testified Miss Caron wrote him from Paris that she had never really loved him and wanted to remain there to devote herself to "an intense artistic life."

The expectation of life for white females in the United States exceeds that of males by about six years at birth.

Let's get Growing

By A. F. SHIRA

DO YOU KEEP A GARDEN NOTEBOOK? A FEW years ago two friends of ours, a married couple from out of town, were spending a day with us and greatly admired a particular "glad" that was blooming in our glad patch. We told them we would see that they received some of the bulbs for planting the following season.

But memory is faulty at times. Winter passed and in the rush of spring planting the bulbs for our friends were forgotten completely. They were over again the following summer and then—I remembered. With profuse apologies we assured them that they would get the bulbs in the fall, and they did.

Since then, I have taken refuge in a garden notebook. If a friend is promised a bulb, root or plant, it goes down in the notebook, filed under the proper month with the approximate date when it should be ready. If we are promised a root, or plant, that goes down in the notebook, also, even though "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

A notebook is convenient for jotting down any attractive arrangement of flowers and other plants that you see and which will fit in with your garden scheme. For example, the little blue scilla is one of the first spring bloomers, along with the crocuses, to pop up from the ground. You see a blue carpet of these cheerful little flowers under low-growing evergreens, or along a shrub border, and you exclaim at their loveliness. Vowing to plant some of these bulbs in the fall in just such a situation, your good intentions probably fall by the wayside without a written note to jog your memory.

You see a beautiful iris, a lovely peony, a wonderful rose, inquire their names and promptly forget them, unless written down. A notebook is handy at a flower show, or exhibit, to record the specimens that please and which you think might make fine additions to your garden. The same applies to other flowers and trees. In this way one can plan ahead for new types and not overlook them when the proper plant-season comes.

A notebook is indispensable for recording the future exchanges of plants you desire to make with your neighbors and other friends. Such exchanges are responsible for the wider distribution of choice varieties. Most real flower lovers are pleased to exchange root divisions, bulbs and seeds with others. There is a fellowship in gardening that is unique in our social life.

You can have a succession of colors of various varieties of plants in your yard from very early spring until freezing weather occurs and your notebook can be the medium that will bring this about. Have a page for each month and note the blooming date and the kind of the flowers you see. First will be the scillas, crocuses and early tulips together with the early flowering narcissus and hyacinths. Along with these are the early blossoming shrubs such as spirea, forsythia and flowering quince. Then the later tulips, early peonies, iris, lilacs, flowering crabs and other shrubs and trees will lend their color to the scene, and so on throughout the season.

By late fall your notebook will be full of valuable information on color, kind, type, size and blooming dates in your local area. Then during the winter months you can use the notes to plan for more

Herman Grouses About Sharing Nest With Plane

HIBBING, Minn. (AP)—Herman is vying with a DCS for nesting rights on Hibbing Municipal Airport.

Herman is a sharp-tail grouse cock who makes his home in the grass at the intersection of a taxiway and two runways.

Each morning when a North Central Airlines DC3 is wheeled out of the hangar for its warm-up, the grouse comes out to meet it. He follows the plane as it taxis, his head down, "horns" up, wings out and neck distended.

Once he attacked the plane, pecking at its wings.

Charles Cox, station manager, said once Herman stood in the middle of the runway apparently ready to challenge all motored crumers.

Airport workers have spotted a hen sharp-tail too, apparently Herman's better half. She apparently is tending to nesting business.

Right Exercise Helps Restore That 'Uplift'

By IDA JEAN KAIN

With fashion emphasis on the bosom, a common query is: "Can sagging of the bust be corrected when the cause is not faulty posture or excess weight?"

In many instances, the answer is yes. But first, it is important to understand about the glands, ligaments and muscles. While the breasts are not composed of muscle, they are held in place by muscles and ligaments. So it follows that proper tone in the supporting tissues is essential to a normal high position of the bust.

Proper position depends on the tone of the ligaments reaching up to the collarbone, and on the tone of the pectoral muscles which lie just under the skin and cover the chest. These muscles are attached to the inner part of the collarbone, follow down the whole length of the sternum, and fan out across each side of the chest. The handles of the fans insert into groove in upper arms.

Blame Lack of Tone The sagging breast is almost always due to decrease in tone of the ligaments and to lack of tone in the supporting pectoral muscles, resulting from general loss in body tone. Excessive weight cannot be overlooked since it adds to the sag. This not only points up the importance of normal weight all ways, but also the need to wear a well fitted uplift brassiere. Particularly is this need urgent during special periods such as pregnancy and nursing. Of equal importance are follow-up exercises to restore tone.

If the sagging has been allowed to continue for years, on can promise that the ligaments and muscles can be restored to normal tone. But exercise is a real help, for it increases the tone in the particular ligaments and muscles and also improves general body tone, which is all-important. The pectoral muscles insert in the upper arms, and that is the key to effective exercise.

Ways to Exercise A good exercise is to pull to tip-toes on a stretching bar. Or the familiar resistance exercise—cup one fist in the other palm in front of chest, resisting with one arm and pushing with the other. The back stroke as patterned after swimming is excellent. A natural for young mothers is to push their child in a swing. One young mother who did, 50 times a day all year around, found it to be the perfect exercise.

No mechanical gadgets should ever be used on the bust. With a heavy bust, it is well to wear a bra while exercising, with the support from beneath and arm straps free. The importance of posture to the appearance of this measurement should never be overlooked. Shoulders should be straight and at ease, not raised, rounded forward or thrown back. Square the shoulders. With reasonable normal weight, proud posture and a well-fitted bra, the bosom need not be a problem measurement.

Ervin Laszlo Concert Displays Height of Art

By MAY MURRAY

Brilliance is scarcely a sufficiently descriptive word to describe the mastery of his art displayed by Ervin Laszlo, young Hungarian pianist, who appeared in concert at the College of Saint Teresa Thursday evening.

The muse was not wooed but was commanded by the young artist who demands of himself and of his instrument the utmost in color, tone and dexterity. A maturity with determination and concentrated attention makes each composition flawless in technique and interpretation.

The program itself was interesting in its selection, opening with the Bach Fantasy in C minor and its free beauty stressed through clarity of touch.

The "Waldstein" Sonata, Opus 53, by Beethoven furnished the dramatic height of the program with its many moods each translated to the audience by the artist with intensity.

A group of familiar Chopin compositions brought new interpretations of that composer's offerings, one in which not only the clear-cut notation is delineated but one in which a palette of color was painted. Debussy was represented on the program by two delicate arabesques.

"Ständchen" by R. Strauss was presented with the same appreciation of its melodious charm as was shown for the unusual tempos of two Albanic compositions.

Grandos' "Rondalla Aragonesa" brought a visualization of the jota with all its colorful steps and gestures. The unbelievable facility and rapidity of fingering in "Leyenda" was reiterated and emphasized in "La Campanella" by Liszt.

Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6 by Liszt and a march from "The Love for Three Oranges" by Prokofiev, were among the closing numbers.

Are all gasolines pretty much the same?

Everything It takes to be "TOPS"!

No, they're not. Standard Gasolines are distinctly different. We take a lot of pride in our gasolines — and we're mighty particular about things like purity, proper balance, and guarding the quality of the gasoline until it's in your car. That's why Standard maintains private and exclusive terminal facilities in your area — to assure you of gasolines of the same consistent high quality day in and day out. Yes, STANDARD WHITE CROWN and RED CROWN Gasolines are protected all the way from the refinery to your gas tank... for Standard maintains private and exclusive lake tankers, river barges, pipelines, tank cars and trucks. And a good thing to remember is this... no gasolines arrive at or go out of our terminals but Standard Gasolines.

Try a tankful of one of these clean burning, high octane gasolines today, and drive away convinced that there is a difference!

TODAY Warning Signals In Japan

By JOSEPH ALSOP

TOKYO — In the past month, things have been happening in Tokyo that ought to have alarmed even the most complacent and self-satisfied American policy makers.

The theme of the drama has been a Japanese-American negotiation about the scope of Japan's "self-defense" program and the size of the "defense contribution" Japan pays the United States for its present defense by American forces.

At one stage in this drama, tension reached such a point that the Foreign Minister, Mamoru Shigemitsu, attempted to fly to Washington on 24 hours notice to seek a new basis of agreement. When Secretary of State John Foster Dulles refused this abrupt visitation, Shigemitsu was publicly humiliated.

At another stage, the most powerful figure among Japanese conservatives, Finance Minister Hishida, declared he would resign his post rather than present a Japanese budget in conformity with American ideas.

Warns Ambassador

Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama was forced to warn U. S. Ambassador John Allison that Ichimada's resignation would bring down the cabinet and precipitate the ugliest kind of political crisis in Tokyo. On Allison's frantic plea, Washington's position on Japanese defense policy was then somewhat modified. In this manner, the Hatoyama cabinet was finally enabled to agree on an annual budget for presentation to the Diet.

As these words are written, however, everyone is forecasting that the budget debate in the Diet will be extremely stormy. Above all, the Diet is expected to ring with furious charges of American intervention in Japanese internal politics and policy making. And unfortunately these charges will be hard to answer.

Such are the results, such is the really appalling aftermath, of the bargain struck by Secretary of State Dulles when he negotiated the Japanese peace treaty and the linked understandings concerning defense problems.

The Dulles bargain was hailed at the time as a brilliant feat. But events have proved that it had two vices, which really should have been discerned at the time by simple common sense.

One vice number one was to convince the Japanese that their own defense program was something imposed by America and designed principally to serve American interests. The rule that a national effort must grow up from the nation that makes the effort was lamentably ignored by Secretary Dulles. Japanese divisions were needed to make pretty patterns in the paper game played by the American Chiefs of Staff. That need, essentially a need of American domestic politics, was given first consideration.

Phony Defense Effort

Thus today, the much touted Japanese defense effort is still basically a phony. More than 100,000 men are now in training in the self-defense force. But with great numbers of Japanese, including many Japanese conservatives, the program is bitterly unpopular. And because the defense effort does not truly represent the Japanese national will, because it is regarded as something done at America's behest, the value of the new Japanese defense force is at least highly questionable.

The second vice of the Dulles bargain greatly inflames the effects of the first vice. America has not only been entangled in Japanese defense planning. Because of the so-called "defense contribution," America is also automatically entangled each year in the process of preparing the Japanese annual budget.

Maybe it looked like good business, to provide that the Japanese would pay the United States $150,000,000 a year for helping to defend Japan. Maybe it seemed a good way to spur the Japanese to build their own defense force, and so escape the burden of this "contribution."

But the sum involved, while a drop in America's fiscal ocean, is a very large sum indeed in the eyes of Hishida Ichimada and his hard pressed budget makers. And because of this annual payment, the kind of Japanese-American drama that has just taken place here inevitably occurs whenever Japanese budget making begins.

The Dulles bargain provides, in short, for an annual, automatic, unavoidable, now-between-America-and-America's-most-important-ally-on-this-side-of-the-Pacific.

To date, to be sure, the results have been just bad, not fatal. Anti-Americanism has been greatly encouraged. The Japanese have been given an excellent excuse for not thinking independently and realistically about their own national problems. But there has been no breach between America and Japan.

On the other hand, the present

Pfeiffer Proclaims Mental Health Week

Mayor Loyde E. Pfeiffer has proclaimed next week as Mental Health Week.

In his proclamation he declares that "mental illness is our nation's No. 1 health problem. . . . There are more hospital patients with mental illness than with all other illnesses combined. More than 10,000,000 people are suffering from some form of mental disorder."

The mayor notes that "the costs incident to mental illness are more than $1,000,000,000 in tax funds each year," and calls "upon the citizens to participate in the observance of this occasion, to combat mental illness by furthering research, improved hospital care of the mentally ill and mental health clinics, and to build good mental health in our families, schools, industries and communities."

Freeman Picks Official For Vaccine Committee

ST. PAUL (U)—Gov. Freeman Thursday designated Dr. A. J. Chesley, secretary and executive officer of the state health department, as Minnesota's representative to work with the newly-formed national advisory committee on the distribution of polio vaccine.

"The national advisory committee was set up," said the governor, "in order to recommend a state-by-state distribution formula to be used as a guide to manufacturers. It is hoped that such a voluntary allocation plan will achieve as equitable a distribution to various states and territories as possible."

American policy line on Japanese defense and related problems plays directly into the hands of the astute Chinese Communist diplomats who are working overtime to promote an eventual Japanese-American breach. It is melancholy to contrast American clumsiness with Chinese Communist adroitness.

On the vital China trade issue, for example, the American line seems to have been carefully calculated to infuriate the Japanese, having the same look of heavy handed intervention in Japanese affairs as our line on defense. The Chinese are taking brilliant advantage of this. While British and other Western trade negotiators are not asked in Peking to deliver embargoed goods, the Communist trade mission now in Japan is asking for almost nothing except embargoed goods. The idea is being emphasized with great skill that only American obstinacy stands between Japan's struggling exporters and great profits in trade with China.

Time for Check

All of which leads to the conclusion which, it is authoritatively understood, has already been presented to Washington by the Embassy here. In brief, it is high time for a radical re-examination of our policies in Japan and our relationship with Japan.

Any such re-examination must lead to voluntary revision of the bargain struck by Secretary Dulles in 1951. The Japanese defense program must cease to be an effort made by contract with the United States. All American pressure on the defense issue must end forthwith. Such irritants as the nonsensical defense contribution must be altogether removed. If possible, to reduce the Japanese sense of still being occupied, the American ground forces should be withdrawn from Japan to Korea or elsewhere.

By such steps as these, and only by such steps as these, a wholly new Japanese-American atmosphere can be created. And this is urgent, for if the present poisoned atmosphere persists, the eventual result is going to be a shattering shock to the Washington policy makers who so comfortably take Japan for granted.

Homer Ridge School Closing

HOMER, Minn. (Special)—The Homer Ridge District 106 School will close its doors for the first time in more than 80 years during the 1955-56 school year.

P. J. Crawford, school board clerk, said today that the action was taken "for economical reasons" during a recent school board meeting.

Crawford said "at the moment it looks like there will be only four pupils available for the school for next year and it's not economical to operate this district with less than 10 or 12 children."

No Other Arrangements

The school board, said Crawford, has not yet made arrangements to send the students elsewhere next year, but hopes to get them into a Winona school if possible.

Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, teacher at the school the past three years, already has a job teaching at another Winona County rural school, said Crawford.

He added, however, that the board was not rejecting the possibility that the school might reopen the following year.

"The school population in this district," said Crawford, "varies tremendously from year to year, because there are three farms in the district owned by the Pleasant Valley Dairy and three more owned by the Watkins Experimental Farm."

"Employees on those six farms work by the month or are on a share basis with the owners. Right now these farms are occupied by persons who either have no children or have no children of school age. Next year it may be different."

Big Changes Noted

Crawford said that the school child population in the district has jumped from as much as 20 down to 8 or 9 in the course of a single year.

Other school board officers for the district are: Mrs. Leo May, Homer Ridge, chairman, and Mrs. Helmer Thompson, Homer, treasurer.

Not Just Yard

Clean Up Hazards Too, County Agent Cautions

By RAY SHANKLIN
Trempealeau County Agent
WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—Since about the second week of April people all over the county have been raking and cleaning their yards. During the nice weather last Saturday, I even got around to raking my own yard. I wonder if we have all cleaned up our safety hazards at the same time. We have lots of them such as boards with nails in them, numerous articles lying around to be fallen over, ruts and holes in our yards, and toys, equipment and homes which are hazards because they need repair.

Community Livestock Pastures Can Cause Trouble, Agent Says

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—Community livestock pastures have some disease drawbacks, according to Trempealeau County Agent Peter Bieri.

Dr. H. J. O'Connell, state-federal veterinarian, says that when animals are placed on community pastures, the disease hazard becomes acute since the cattle may come from many different herds and may have been exposed to disease.

Wisconsin animal health regulations provide that it is unlawful for any person to sell or transfer from one place to another any bovine animal unless it is accompanied by report of a negative brucellosis test conducted within 30 days. Exceptions are made in the case of calves under 4 months of age, steers, animals originating from brucellosis-free certified herds and official vaccines not over 30 months of age if accompanied by an official calfhood vaccination report. These tests are required prior to the time the cattle are placed on community pasture and also in the fall before they are returned to the home herd.

As an added precaution, Dr. O'Connell recommends keeping the pasture cattle separate from the home herd for a short period upon their return in the fall. Also, if livestock are hauled to community pastures, the trucks need proper cleaning and disinfection.

It would be a good idea, too, he feels, to have a veterinarian examine the pasture cattle for any possible disease infections before returning them to the home herd.

735 Winona Co. Women in Home Extension Clubs

By MRS. JOYCE RANDALL
Winona County Home Agent

LEWISTON, Minn. —The 735 members of extension home groups in Winona County are among some 5 million women in the nation—51,000 in Minnesota—who are taking part in a home economics educational program that is helping them to keep up-to-date in their jobs by learning the latest home-making techniques.

During the 10th annual observance of National Home Demonstration Week, May 1-7, attention throughout the nation will be focused on this program of education for better homemaking. Known in Minnesota as the extension home program and in some states as home demonstration work, it is probably the most far-reaching voluntary educational movement for women.

This program is carried into rural communities in this state by home agents and state specialists, as a cooperative undertaking of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the University of Minnesota and the local counties. It is open to all rural women.

"Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World," theme of National Home Demonstration Week, embodies the objective of the extension home program. Through the many projects of extension home groups, members learn ways of making family life more satisfying and their homes more comfortable and efficient.

Since the program was started in Winona County, members of homemaker groups have studied a wide range of topics relating to homemaking and family living. This past year the emphasis has been on outdoor cooking, dairy foods, good grooming, table settings and family life. The program is developed in each county by the county extension home council and the home agent.

Women who have not been connected with the extension home program and would like to enroll in a group may do so by contacting the home chairman in their local township or the county extension office. The new program will begin early next fall.

There has been no major epidemic in the United States since the influenza outbreak in 1918-19.

Buckthorn Marked For Extermination By Wisconsin Men

MADISON — An all-out drive is under way to rid Wisconsin of buckthorn — a bush responsible for the spread of leaf rust, a serious menace to oats. All farm groups are being asked to cooperate in the voluntary drive, says Earl Wade, University of Wisconsin plant disease specialist, which was agreed upon at a recent meeting of plant disease workers at the university and in the State Department of Agriculture.

Leaf rust on oats, also known as crown rust, last year resulted in an estimated $5,000,000 loss to Wisconsin farmers. Even tolerant or somewhat resistant oat varieties suffer in a bad rust year or when grown near a patch of buckthorn where rust has built up.

Common buckthorn, growing as a tree-like shrub to form hedges along fence rows and farm yards, is most often the host plant on which leaf rust develops before it can infect oats. Other species of buckthorn can serve as alternate hosts to this fungus disease.

The Wisconsin Nurserymen's Association and the American Phytopathological Society have passed resolutions condemning buckthorn. Landscape men have agreed not to encourage future plantings of it.

With Favorable Weather, Excellent Crop Indicated

By EARL GILBERT
Daily News Area Editor

The time-worn farm prophecy "It's all up to the weather" holds true for this Minnesota-Wisconsin area in 1955, according to reports of the county agents.

Legume crops came through the winter in fine style, they all agree. Moisture content of the soil is excellent and small grain is off to a better than average start.

From now on, things will depend pretty much on weather. If it is a warm and dry summer, the grasshoppers might get the crop before farmers are able to harvest it, the agents say. They recommend early spraying of fields. It is easier to kill the insect in its early stage of development than it is when grown.

Most small grains have been planted, an eight-county survey reveals. Some farmers are in the fields preparing seed beds for corn. Those farmers who work light soils and were able to get grains in the earth just after Easter have a crop that is well above ground already. April showers have been slow and soaking, causing a minimum of erosion and all conditions point to a bumper year—depending on the weather.

A roundup of opinion Friday went like this:

Peter Bieri, Trempealeau County agent—"The moisture is excellent and things have a good start. Legumes and pastures came through the winter in good shape. In the southern part of the county where soils are sandy loam, the farmers have been in the fields about two weeks. This is a little earlier than last year.

"In the northern sections where soils are somewhat heavier and retain the water longer, planting and plowing are a little slower. Next week the preparations for corn should be in full swing. Some oat planting is still to be done in the wet fields.

"As for grasshoppers, there are a lot of eggs in the soil. We know that. I suggest an early spray. The outlook depends on the weather."

Wayne Hanson, Houston County agent—"About 75 per cent of the small grain is in the ground here and a lot of it is up already. Grains which were put in the ground early are in good shape. I would say there is more grain in the ground at this time than there was at the same period last year. The potential is here for a big year.

"There has not been much corn plowing yet. The farmers have other chores to do. The moisture is excellent, in fact, conditions as a whole are now excellent. Everything depends on the weather.

"The state map indicates that this part of the state may be threatened by grasshoppers. If it is a dry year, they will be in here."

T. A. Parker, Pepin County agent—"Field work is coming along good here with farmers in the fields at about the normal or average time of year. On the lighter soils they may have been out a little earlier than usual; on the heavier, not so soon.

"Alfalfa came through the winter in fine shape. I would say that the hay outlook is good. Oats has been seeded in all but the heavier soils.

"There is plenty of moisture in the ground and that is a good point in favor of the farmers. The outlook for grasshoppers is from severe to very severe. We had a sprayer school here Tuesday for several counties and grasshoppers were thoroughly discussed."

Matt Metz, Wabasha County agent—"Conditions are good right now. Small grains have been planted with a few exceptions and some is above ground already.

"Corn preparations have just started. I would say the moisture is sufficient and that farmers were in the fields at about the average time of year. Legumes came through, seed the winter fine and are coming along well now. The hay and pasture outlook is good.

"As for grasshoppers, if the weather is favorable for them there will be some here."

Archie Brovold, Buffalo County agent—"The grain seeding is nearly complete. I would say it is above average for this time of year. Some fields, where the soils are light, are up four to five inches already.

"Some Buffalo County farmers are getting corn ground ready. Legume seedings stood the winter good and the hay crop outlook is fine.

"A word of caution about grasshoppers—the outlook is unfavorable. Farmers should investigate the possibility of spraying during the hatch. They are easiest to kill then. If we get warm dry weather, it will be a bad grasshopper year."

Milton Hoberg, Fillmore County agent—"Ninety per cent of seeding small grains is complete here. This is about average for this time of year. That which was seeded early is up already and looks very good.

"There will be considerable corn planting from now on. Soils are in good condition and the moisture situation is excellent. In fact, conditions are about as perfect as we will get them.

"Early rains have not caused erosion. Legumes are in excellent condition and the hay crop should be excellent."

A. J. Chacka, Jackson County agent—"If we continue to get enough moisture we should have a good crop. That is usually the limiting factor.

"Legumes are better than last year and hay and pastures look good. They seem to have weathered the winter well and I would say there will be more than usual this year.

"Planting is being done about the same time as last year, with most of the grains in except in wet soils. Corn plowing time is about here for those who plow in the spring."

Chacka also commented on the strawberry picture saying that some plantings are being made now and that the crop outlook is good as plants came through the winter well.

Currell Lodahl, assistant Winona County agent—"More than 90 per cent of the small grain crop is in with about 10-15 per cent of it

Agent Emphasizes Relating Stalk Count, Soil Fertility

By GORDON ANDERSON
Winona County Agent

LEWISTON, Minn.—As we all seem to be getting ready for corn planting, now is the time to consider some of the problems of fertilizing for corn.

One is the problem of getting the right population of stalks in relation to the field's capabilities. If your field will produce a 100-bushel crop in a normal year, you might use 16 to 18 thousand stalks per acre. If, however, your soil is light, or the subsoil is drouthy, you will get a better crop by holding down to 12 to 15 thousand stalks per acre.

Each plant then has a better chance to produce a better ear.

Another problem is the one of balanced fertility. Harold Jones, our soils specialist, tells of a Delavan farmer who actually decreased his yield of corn by 8 bushels through using only a nitrogen fertilizer. But, when this farmer side dressed nitrogen on a field that had also been fertilized with the proper amounts of phosphorus and potash, he increased his yield by 37 bushels.

Another problem in fertilizing is that sometimes we don't use enough. One half the recommended amount does not mean one half the results. It usually means no appreciable results at all.

Notice to farmers: Your county agent is the only person in your county that has any official connection with your state soil-testing lab. The dollar you pay for your soil testing includes a service of two parts. One is the determination of available nutrients and the other the recommendation for a crop. The second part is done in your county extension office.

Therefore, any recommendations you get which are not direct to you from your agent, are not official university tests, and we can take no responsibility for their results.

Also, the extension service does not officially endorse any person or product who or which is selling or being sold to farmers for profit. There is not at the present time any "ag" product salesman in Winona County who has any official connection with the university.

Burning Termed Harmful to Soil Building Program

By HAROLD KARLI
Fillmore County Soils Agent

PRESTON, Minn.—The practice of burning corn residues, such as straw, cornstalks, cobs and weeds, is detrimental to a good soil building program.

A high percentage of our soils is very low in organic matter—a condition which is steadily growing more serious, especially on farms where a good rotation is not followed and livestock numbers are low.

Our most fertile soils are not only high in essential plant nutrients, but have good structure, which is the result of high organic matter content. Following are some of the characteristics by which we recognize such soils:

Crumbles easily between fingers or with tillage implements, does not compact, does not bake, generally dark in color, absorbs water readily, retains moisture in dry periods, and less power required for tillage implements.

Frequently we see poor, badly eroded, yellow soil returned to good condition through the addition of adequate organic matter.

This means that rather than burning, cornstalks, straw and trash should be returned to the soil in addition to using sod crops and barnyard manure. Where large amounts of slowly-decayed material, such as cornstalks, cobs or sawdust are used, it is often advisable to plow down nitrate with the refuse to aid in rapid decomposition. In this case the nitrogen used is insurance against what is commonly called, "burning," but what actually amounts to nitrogen starvation.

Soils with a high content of organic matter have an additional advantage in that water erosion is less serious. Such soil will absorb much more rainfall before becoming saturated and will not be carried away as readily as a soil less absorptive.

Top Gas Year Reported by Whitehall Co-op

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—Approximately 500 patrons, families and friends attended the 28th annual meeting of the Cooperative Oil & Produce Co., at the city hall here Wednesday evening. New record sales of gasoline were reported.

Guest speakers were Ted Jacobson, fieldman for the Farmers Union Central Exchange, St. Paul; John McKay, director of public relations with the exchange, and Melvin Niemann, fieldman from St. Paul. He showed a movie, "Making the Most of a Miracle." Emil Skroch, Independence, president of the board of directors, presided. Skroch and Melvin Achley, Pigeon, were re-elected to the board for three-year terms. Harland Schaefer, Whitehall, appointed to the board following the resignation last Dec. 31 of Arne Torud, was elected to the board. Other directors are Omar Austad, Blair, and Clarence Herman, Pleasantville. Thomas Torason is bookkeeper at the co-op office; Walter Schroeder, Donald Hessler and Lloyd Truog, truckers, and Maynard Christianson, assistant clerk.

Financial Report
The financial report, explained by Jacobson, showed total deposits of customers, or total purchases of $359,024. The gross, less state gas taxes of $40,321, merchandise costs of $248,835, operating costs of $26,243, and other expenses brought net capital contributions for the year to $33,330.

Capital contributions from the Farmers Union Central Exchange at St. Paul of $21,526 brought total capital contributions to $54,857, which represented a net savings of $17.21 on each $100 of sales.

The balance sheet showed total current assets of $118,184 and current liabilities of $1,116.

Current assets included $30,310 of cash, $55,228 in accounts receivable and $22,308 in merchandise inventory, in addition to smaller amounts in other receivables and prepaid insurance. Investments of $110,928.74 and fixed assets brought the total assets to $248,971.

Edmund P. Woychik, secretary and manager of the co-op succeeding Torud, said $10,000 in stock retirement checks were issued two years ago, and this coming year about $15,000 will be retired on 1954 stock.

Woychik pointed out that the co-op for the first time in the history of its organization sold over a million gallons of gas in 1954, in addition to fuel oil, vehicle oil and grease.

McKay Speaks
The central exchange, McKay said, began operating in 1930 with a capital stock of about $25.

Since then it has not only returned stock to its member cooperatives in the amount of $31,000,000 but has returned in cash to its member cooperatives over $16,000,000. This year it will pay $2,181,000 on 1947 stock, he said.

The Whitehall co-op has received $20,513.42 back in cash as of last year, he said.

McKay said the Farmers Union Central Exchange owns one oil well by itself, interests in others and in refineries, and this year has drilled four new oil wells.

Oil from its own wells can be drilled at 12 cents a barrel, while oil purchased from other owners costs $2.25 a barrel, McKay said.

Tribute to Torud's 10 years of service as secretary and manager of the co-op was paid by Woychik, and he was given a rising vote of appreciation.

Following the distribution of door prizes, those attending were served a dairy lunch.

Several farmers have requested the cost of construction on permanent type gully control. They are Ignatz Sossalla, Leo George, Carl Hanson, Arcadia; Andrew Slaby, Whitehall; J. P. Williams, Vincent Bros. and Earl Ravnum, Galeville; Edward Schwesler, Andrew Pientok, Independence; Gerald Mahlum, Ettrick, and Frank Jereczek Jr., Dodge.

Preliminary surveys on the gullies have been completed on these farms.

Joe C. Bautech, Independence, completed digging his drainage ditch this spring.

Tilman Hanson, Pigeon farmer, will seed about eight acres of trefoil this spring for pasture. This will be an experimental plot in this area. We hope to have more information on this legume next year.

Jaszewski Bros., north of Independence, seeded 40 acres of meadow improvement this spring with the grassland drill. This drill seeds the grain and grass seed and applies fertilizer in one operation right in old sod without working it up. This drill may prove very valuable in sections of Trempealeau County which have a lot of acres that lend themselves to hay or pasture.

George R. Knutson, Blair, host to the Trempealeau County field day last fall, said his strip cropping and diversions built that day look very good this spring, despite heavy rains last fall and the spring thaw.

Dairy Festival Scheduled Here June 13 to 18

A Winona County Dairy Food Festival will be held June 13-18 sponsored by the county Farm Bureau and Winona Chamber of Commerce.

Held in conjunction with the national June dairy month promotion, the event here will be the first of its kind and will feature a dairy princess, coronation ball, banquet, ball game, buttercake baking contest and dairy foods cooking demonstration.

Sub-committees laid plans at the YMCA Thursday night and they have called on merchants and dairy products vendors to promote dairy sales during the festival week with advertising and merchandising methods.

Rules for the princess contest will be compiled and published in the near future. The ball game at Gabrych Park, featuring the Winona Chiefs, and special events connected with the dairy promotion, will be held June 14.

Members of the FB dairy sub-committee are Mr. and Mrs. Leon Henderson, Edwald Gaedy, Ridgeway; Malcolm Hobbs, Harold and Howard Anderson, Altura. A group from the C. of C. agriculture committee who met with them were Clarence Totman, Harold Schultz, Charles A. Choate and Kenneth McQueen.

Woman Claiming Liniment Burns Denied Damages

ST. PAUL (U)—A Ramsey County District Court jury verdict denying damages to a St. Paul woman who contended she suffered burns from using liniment made by a St. Paul firm was upheld today by the state Supreme Court.

The case was tried twice in district court. The first jury returned a verdict of $10,000 for Mrs. Evelyn Randall and $5,000 for her husband, Ira Randall.

The verdicts were against the Goodrich-Gamble Co., manufacturers of Hoff's Liniment.

Mrs. Randall said she suffered severe burns in February of 1947 when she used the liniment to treat a sprained ankle. After the first trial, the company appealed to the Supreme Court, which ordered a new trial in district court.

This jury returned a verdict for the company, and the Randalls appealed to the Supreme Court. The high court pointed to "hopelessly conflicting" testimony by doctors called as witnesses in the case and said the "obligation of determining the truth thereof rested with the jury."

Some doctors testified that Mrs. Randall suffered a chemical burn as a result of using the liniment. Others identified the condition as an ulcer resulting from insufficient blood supply.

Associate Justice Frank T. Gallagher dissented from the majority opinion.

Rochester Painters, Electricians May Go Out on Strike

ROCHESTER, Minn. (U)—Some 160 members of the AFL Painters union met here late today to discuss a possible strike which would coincide with that of 120 AFL Electricians Union Members.

Both groups have been meeting with state labor conciliators but without any progress on a new contract to supplant one that expires this weekend.

Painters, drawing $2.30 an hour, are seeking a 20-cent hourly raise and electricians, on a $2.70 scale, are seeking 10 cents increase plus paid vacations.

Contractors said a strike by the two unions could shut down all major construction projects here.

Prevention of Wildfire In Tobacco Outlined

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—A spray gun is better than a sprinkling can for wetting down tobacco seedbeds with a copper solution to prevent wildfire disease, according to Peter Bieri, Trempealeau County agent.

"The solution, called Copper A, is the most effective preventive treatment against wildfire," the agent said, "but you must do a good job—spray the soil inside and also a few feet around the bed, as well as seedbed boards and canals."

"Spray for the first time as soon as possible after seed is sown. Then repeat treatments every week. But water the beds thoroughly before spraying."

The spray dries on plants and sticks better if you leave beds uncovered for a short time after treatment. He recommends mixing one pound of the Copper A powder in 10 gallons of water. Use one gallon for each rod of seedbed six feet wide.

Just as important as spraying is keeping the seedbed clean and locating it away from the stripping room and tobacco shed, he adds.

Lamont, Indicted For Contempt, Quits Post at Columbia

NEW YORK (U)—Corliss Lamont, under indictment for alleged contempt of the U.S. Senate, said yesterday he has withdrawn as lecturer in philosophy at Columbia University until his case is clarified.

"I have voluntarily withdrawn my course at Columbia... until my contempt case is clarified. There is no suspension or dismissal involved."

Columbia said in a statement that Lamont's action was "without prior suggestion by any officer of the university."

Saturday 1st Deadline on Social Security

WASHINGTON (U)—Tomorrow is the first deadline for something like a million of Uncle Sam's new tax collectors — the householders who pay a domestic helper an average of $4 a week or more.

The new social security law that went into effect Jan. 1 qualified domestic help for social security if they make $50 a quarter, or more, from any one employer. That figures out to about $4 a week.

The householder is required to make the social security payments, and the first one is due no later than tomorrow.

Payments are due for any help around the house who earned as much as $50 during January, February and March, including a baby sitter, maid, handyman, laundress, cook, housekeeper, gardener, janitor, furnaceman, governess, valet, butler, chauffeur or other help.

The law puts the entire responsibility for making the social security tax payment for a domestic on the householder employer. It makes no difference if the domestic does not want to join up in social security. Nor does age make any difference — the teen-age baby sitter is qualified.

The payments are due no later than the last day of each quarter, that is, the last day of April, July, October and January.

The employee is not required to do anything, except to allow the 2 per cent deduction from his wages.

The revenue service says delinquent employers are subject to a penalty of 5 per cent a month of the tax due, up to 25 per cent, plus interest at 6 per cent.

Employers who willfully neglect to file and pay are subject to fines up to $10,000, or to a prison term up to one year, or both.

GREENVILLE, Miss. (U)—Although Bill Dietrich Jr. pitched a no-hit baseball game Thursday night, he could still use a pointer or two from his pop — the former Chicago White Sox pitcher.

Young Bill's wildness prevented him from getting a shutout as his Monroe teammates beat Greenville 5-2 in a Cotton States League opener.

BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggly was sailing away from Puppy Dog Island in Frog Pond. He was going to sail away on his raft to search for Buster the Rabbit Scout and Billie Wagtail the goat boy. Those two had taken the row boat from the deck of the raft to sail away, looking for adventures. They had as Buster guessed, one oar to use as a rudder. For a sail, they were using Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy's big umbrella.

King Wuff, of Puppy Dog Island, heard about Uncle Wiggly going to sail away on his raft to look for Buster and Billie.

"Can't you stay just a little bit longer on my island?" barked King Wuff.

"I must at once start searching for those missing animal boys," said Uncle Wiggly. "Thank you, but I must go."

"But the fun of my coronation party isn't half over," barked King Wuff. "We are going to play games like 'Hide Your Tail' and 'Listen For a Bark.' Please stay!"

"I may come back if I find Buster and Billie," promised the rabbit gentleman. "But now, King Wuff, I must go!"

"But you will come back, will you not?" asked the dog king.

"I shall try," was all Uncle Wiggly would promise. "Cast off, Buster! Hoist the sail! Let the search begin!"

"Aye, aye, sir, Cap'n Wiggly!" barked the old sea dog. So the raft sailed away from Puppy Dog Island.

Now that the search has started, suppose we try to find out what Buster and Billie are doing. As you know, they got tired of playing games on Puppy Dog Island and ran back to the raft.

"What can we do to have fun?" bled Billie the goat boy.

"Let's get some popcorn and molasses taffy from Nurse Jane's Candy Kitchen," said Buster.

But there was no candy and no popcorn in the muskrat lady's kitchen.

"Oh, now I remember," said Buster. "Nurse Jane took it all to King Wuff's coronation party. So we can't eat any."

"We can do something else," bled Billie, wagging his horns.

"What can we do?" asked Buster.

"We can go sailing in the row boat," went on Billie.

"The row boat has no sail," objected Buster.

"We can use Nurse Jane's big umbrella for a sail," suggested Billie. "I can sit in the front of the row boat. I will hold the open umbrella. The wind will blow on it as if it were a sail."

"How about steering the row boat with the umbrella for a sail?" Buster wanted to know.

"You can sit in the back end of the boat and steer with one oar," answered the goat boy.

"Let's do it!" shouted Buster. So they did. They pushed the row boat off the deck of the raft into Frog Pond. Billie sat in front with Nurse Jane's big umbrella.

St. Paul Police Seize Boys Set For Gang War

ST. PAUL (U)—Fifteen teenage boys all riding in or on one car and carrying guns, knives and brass knuckles were seized Thursday night by St. Paul police acting on a tip a gang fight was brewing.

Two patrol car officers collared the youths driving in a residential area and only a few doors from the home of St. Paul Police Chief William Proetz.

Patrolmen George Dearborn and William McCutcheon said the 1948 model car was overflowing with youngsters. Some were riding on the hood and in the trunk. The officers found two pistols under the front seat, a rifle in the trunk, three knives and an ammunition belt as well as brass knuckles.

Police had been tipped a gang fight was scheduled because of "girl trouble." Three of the youths were held without charge. The others were released to their parents.

It did. You may read about it tomorrow if the ants don't put salt in the sugar bowl so that the spoon makes a funny face when it takes a taste.

Add a dash of spice to pastry for apple pie! For a recipe based on two cups of flour, use three-quarters teaspoon nutmeg. If your apples for the pie aren't tart, sprinkle the apples with half a teaspoon of grated lemon rind and a tablespoon of lemon juice.

Now that the search has started, suppose we try to find out what Buster and Billie are doing. As you know, they got tired of playing games on Puppy Dog Island and ran back to the raft.

Recovery Brings Business Back To Peak of 1953

NEW YORK (AP)—Business recovery has brought industry and trade roughly back to the peak they climbed in the spring of 1953. The month of May could see new records set in many lines.

The feeling that the recovery is firmly based grows among businessmen. This leads an increasing number to look for good business all through this year, giving 1955 an excellent chance of being the best year yet.

May gives every sign of confirming this belief.

As for the longer pull, President Eisenhower says he's had no "earnest warnings" from his economic advisers of a possible downturn in the second half of the year. What his advisers apparently worry about most is the chance that the business upsurge might tempt the country to "get into a false rush and then fall back."

Warnings against such overconfidence and speculation have come recently from Washington. The Federal Reserve Board has raised margin regulations for the second time this year, making it necessary to put up more cash when buying stocks. Federal agencies in the housing field have put a mild curb on mortgage credit.

The big question worrying businessmen has been: What will happen if the home-building fever cools, if auto production stops its record pace?

One answer is offered today by the economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York's largest. They look for a further moderate rise in consumer spending, which is now gratifyingly ahead of last year. And they expect business itself to increase its spending for new plants and especially for new equipment.

VOICE of the OUTDOORS

Sea Monster
When Jules Verne wrote "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" and pictured sea monsters which are reproduced in rubber in the Disney picture of the same name now showing at the State Theater he probably never realized that creatures like the one shown above existed in the sea.

Called "the thing" by the crew of the Port Isabel, Texas, fishing boat which hauled the 240-pound creature from depths of the gulf, it might well take the role of one of the creatures in the book. The United Press photographer who made the picture the other day wrote in the outlines that fish called "the thing" might be a Warsaw, Mola-Mola, or a gigantic sun ray—anyway it came from the unknown depths of the sea that have now been made so realistic by the movie.

When local fishermen go forth on the river Saturday they will not encounter any monsters of the past like this one. However, they do exist in different forms in the river. The giant sturgeon, one of which, weighing well over 100 pounds and taken last year from Lake Pepin, is an example. Gar and mud puppies, as well as paddle fish and big eels, are other strange creatures not related to our game fish that haunt the bottom of the river.

Duschee Creek
One of the most unusual fishing scenes in Minnesota is rapidly shaping up in this area. It is the scene on Duschee Creek at 10 a.m. Saturday when the Minnesota trout season opens. As every trout fisherman knows, this creek is located directly below the state hatchery at Lanesboro and is heavily stocked with fishable size trout, plus surplus brood stock that may be at the hatchery just a few days before the season opens.

On past openings this half mile of water, for the early fishermen who have stood shoulder to shoulder to shoulder in the dark an hour before sunrise, has been a fisherman's paradise. Trout came out of the creek by the bushful. Limits have been taken in the first 15 minutes of fishing.

Last year we were on the creek for the opening. It was an unusual experience. The crowd was cheerful about the tangled lines. They all caught the fish and were busy. Pictures were taken as soon as there was sufficient light, but half of the opening hour group was gone. Additional fishermen, however, had stepped into the gaps along the banks.

With a 10 a.m. opening, all of the fishermen, women and children, will have ample time to gather in advance and be ready when Henry Hanson, superintendent of the hatchery, blows the starting whistle, the signal to wet lines. This late opening will unquestionably produce fishermen at least five deep the length of the bank. It will be "put and take" fishing at the extreme, a sight worth driving down to witness.

State fish biologists will set up checking stations at all entrances to the area and every fisherman's car coming out will be checked. The trout will be counted, weighed and measured. The purpose is to see the percentage of returns per fish stocked. It is a method that gives the state the greatest returns in fish for each dollar spent in trout rearing.

Opening Data

3 Die in Crash Of Small Plane
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—A small plane crashed in an open field on the outskirts of Wilmington yesterday, killing its three occupants. The victims were Floyd O. Quillen, 37, of Wilmington; Winfield S. SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—A sharp earthquake shook San Salvador on the anniversary of this country's worst quake, which destroyed the capital 36 years ago. No injuries or damage were reported yesterday.

Yale Students' 'Beer and Bike' Race Tomorrow

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Every year a bunch of Yale students hold what they call a "beer n' bike race" from New Haven to Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a distance of 85 miles.

They have a whale of a time, but they don't break any bicycling speed records.

Now comes a fellow who the Yalies think is taking this bike race business a little too serious. He wants to cut out the beer.

Can't see it, say the Yalies. They're going through with their annual race tomorrow beer and all.

It's a staggering race. They break into teams. Group No. 1 starts the race here by guzzling down a quart of beer. They pump to a point about 15 miles outside New Haven and another group takes over, after drinking a quart of beer as fast as they can. In all there are five relay points before the winning team rolls through the Vassar gates for a heroes' welcome by the women at the college.

Now this fellow, Everett Cassagener, wants to cut out all this. Cassagener practically lives on a bike. The holder of an American bicycling record, he rides 20 miles every night after a full day's work.

Billy Hoelt, Tigers, Cop 5th in Row, 4-1 Over Nats

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

Billy Hoelt, a lefty who has lost twice as many as he's won for Detroit in the past, told Manager Bucky Harris this spring that this is the season he becomes a winner. "Show me," said Harris.

So far, the kid's been showing him plenty. And since he started winning, the Tigers have been unbeatable, riding a five-game winning streak to within half a game of the American League lead.

It was Hoelt, a 22-year-old with three major league seasons behind him, who started the streak, shutting out the defending champion Cleveland Indians 3-0 on three hits last Saturday. And it was Hoelt again last night as the Tigers won No. 5, beating the Washington Senators 4-1.

Hoelt whittled his earned run average down to 0.95, with Washington's lone tally unearned. He walked only one and struck out six.

Except for some shabby fielding and wild pitching by the Kansas City Athletics last night, the Tigers would be in first place today with Cleveland instead of sharing second with the Indians. The A's failures allowed the New York Yankees an 11-4 triumph and with it the Bombers jumped back into the lead.

Chicago's White Sox tumbled out of first in a day game, losing to Boston and Ivan Delock, who spun a three-hitter for a 3-1 victory. Cleveland and Baltimore were idle.

In the National, Brooklyn opened up a four-game spread over second place Milwaukee, coming from behind to beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2.

The Braves were beaten by Willie Jones' homer in the ninth last night at Philadelphia 3-2. Cincinnati broke up a six-game losing streak 3-2 at Pittsburgh under the lights and New York's Giants beat St. Louis 6-4 at the Polo Grounds.

The Yanks tagged five Kansas City pitchers for 13 hits — including a two-run homer by Mickey Vernon — but ran three runs across in the sixth without a single safety. Two hit batsmen, three walks and an error that prevented the third out accounted for the gifts.

Delock, a 25-year-old right-hander, didn't give the White Sox anything more potent than a single, but Chicago paired two of them with a walk to spoil his shutout in the seventh. Ivan had them hitless to that point.

Brooklyn was handcuffed by the Cubs' Bob Rush until the seventh. Then the Dodgers scored four — three on Cal Furillo's seventh home run — to overcome a 2-0 Chicago lead, provided by Rush's home run in the fifth. Clem Labine was the winner.

Philadelphia also had a tough time getting hits until late in the game. Gran Hamner led off the eighth with a double, only the third hit allowed by Lew Burdette, and scored on a fly to tie it at 2-2, setting up Jones' winning blow in the ninth. Robin Roberts was the winner.

The Cardinals, idle all week, blew a three-run lead in the fourth when the New Yorkers scored four times and the Redbirds committed three of their four errors. That wiped out the benefit of Stan Musial's two-run homer and sent Harvey Haddix to his first defeat. Jim Hearn won his third.

Burdette Loses Four-Hitter, 3-2

PHILADELPHIA (U) — Lew Burdette allowed the Philadelphia Phillies only four hits Thursday night but one of them was a home run by Willie Jones and the Milwaukee Braves were beaten, 3-2.

Jones' blast came as he was the lead off hitter in the ninth inning and the ball game was over. Burdette, usually full of talk, was a silent man after the game but when he did get around to talking explained, "What else could I do?"

He added, "He had me 3 and 1. I couldn't walk him, they have him being bunted to second. So I threw the fast one down the middle with everything I had on it."

Del Crandall, catcher, chipped in "what makes it so tough is that we got him out in the same situation in the fourth. Only that time he popped out to Eddie Mathews."

The loss was Lew's first against two victories but he's been liberal with the home run ball, serving us seven so far in the season. Burdette also allowed seven walks and struck out three.

Robin Roberts, the Phils classy right-hander, posted his third win against one defeat. He struck out seven Braves, including Eddie Mathews three times, and allowed only three walks.

The game was the first of the season between the clubs and saw Burdette's string of seven victories including five straight last year against the Phils broken. He looked for a time like he might add another hitch in the victory belt as he held the Phillies to two hits in the first seven innings.

Both the early hits came in the second inning and led to Philadelphia's first run. With one out Jones smashed out a triple and scored on Stan Paly's following double.

Milwaukee tied it up in the fourth when Joe Adcock broke his hitting slump and cracked out a double. He got home on Johnny Logan's single.

The Braves took the lead in the sixth as Henry Aaron pounded a triple to right field. Adcock came along with a single to send him across.

The 2-1 Milwaukee advantage held up until the eighth when Granny Hamner led off with a double and got to third when Bill Bruton bobbled the ball. He scored the second Phillie run after Del Ennis flied out.

The Braves, still in second place, tangle with the Phils again tonight. Warren Spahn will seek his third victory against one defeat and Philadelphia will send Herm Wehmeier with a 1-1 record, to the mound.

Pleasant Valley Course Now In Top Shape

President-VeeP Tournament First Event on Slate

Formal opening of the 35th season of golf at the Winona Country Club will be Sunday at 12 noon when members of the Presidents and Vice Presidents teams tee off in their annual spring tournament.

The picturesque Pleasant Valley layout, designed by Ben Knight in 1919 and opened for play in 1920, "has never been in better shape than it is right now," according to many members who said it came through this winter beautifully.

Back for his fourth season as professional is Pat Shortridge, successor to Knight. Knight, the "grand old man of Winona golf," served as pro from the time the course was built until he retired after the 1951 season.

Weather Favorable

Shortridge said, "We're way ahead on the weather this season. The course is in wonderful shape right now—we've had just the right combination of rain and sunshine. Fairways have never been better and greens are in mid-season condition."

Some 50 to 60 members will participate in the President-Vice Presidents tourney, according to Jack Leaf, golf committee chairman. Pairings for the event will be announced Saturday.

Captains of the two teams in the tournament are Ralph E. Leonard, president of the club, and Richard Callender, vice president.

Handicap Tourney

The tournament is a handicap event, based on the last established handicaps. A four-ball event, two members of the foursomes will be "presidents" and the other two "vice presidents."

The net low-ball for nine holes will be the winners of each foursome. Members can play either nine or 18 holes.

An 11:30 a. m. brunch will be served Sunday for men golfers and an evening buffet supper will be held at 6 p. m. for all members.

Saturday night at the Country Club will be held each Wednesday starting May 4. These events will be handicapped affairs, nine holes. Following this weekend, there will be sweepstakes and other golfing events for men.

Upcoming Events

The annual Memorial Day Horse Race tournament will be held Monday, May 30, 7:30 a. m. men's breakfast is planned with tee-off time between 8 and 8:30 a. m.

The annual Winona Country Club invitational, a 45-hole medal play tournament for outstanding golfers in the state and area, has been scheduled for the weekend of June 11-12.

Blair Cops 4th Conference Tilt

BLAIR, Wis. — Blair overcame a major hurdle on its way to the Trempealeau Valley Conference baseball title by beating Independence here Thursday afternoon 3-1.

Independence's Bernard Wozney and Blair's Ron Johnson hooked up in a pitching duel, both allowing only five hits. Blair got its three winning runs in the fourth inning on two errors, a walk and single by Elwood Knutson.

The victory was Blair's fourth without a loss in conference play.

Mankato Ped Outstanding Track Star

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Resorters and sportsmen's groups report glowing prospects for a record turnout in the opening of trout season on Minnesota inland lakes and streams Saturday at 10 a. m.

Stream levels are fairly normal in the southern part of the state, and lake trout fishermen will find conditions just about right in northern areas reports indicate.

Not since 1948 have lakes in the northern border country been clear of ice before May 1, according to Stan Pechaver of Ely. The ice went out on big Lake of the Woods Monday for one of the earliest breakups in memory.

After Saturday the legal hours are from one hour before sunrise to 10 p.m. each day — an extra hour over last year.

A minor change in regulations permits anglers to buy their license anywhere in the state, not just in their home counties.

Mankato State is claiming the state's outstanding trackman in Lee Loewen, junior from Mountain Lake. Loewen ran the 120-yard high hurdles in :14.4 this week in a dual meet. The mark is believed the best ever by a Minnesota collegian and is bettered by only three hurdlers in the country so far this spring.

Loewen competes Friday and Saturday in the Drake Relays. His best to date include :09.9 in the 100-yard dash, 22 seconds in the 220, 24 seconds in the 220-yard low hurdles, 22 feet, 7½ inches in the broad jump, 6-1 in the high jump and 125 feet in the discus.

Joe Shrake, signed to pitch for the Winona Chiefs in the Southern Minny this year, has allowed only one earned run in 24 innings on the mound for St. Mary's so far.

LANESBORO, Minn. (Special)—Wyckoff and Caledonia chalked up victories in District One baseball games.

Wyckoff defeated visiting Lanesboro 18-0 on the one-hit, 17-strikeout pitching of Ken Nash Thursday afternoon, while Caledonia won a 13-1 decision at Canton Wednesday afternoon.

Helping Nash to the victory was the hitting of Wayne Depoppe, Ron Eickhoff and Dick Stender. Depoppe had a triple and single, Eickhoff batted four-for-five and Stender two-for-three. Nash had two hits in four trips.

Ray Johnson's triple in the fourth inning spoiled Nash's bid for a no-hitter.

Walt Gensmer pitched four-hit ball and his teammates backed him up with errorless support as Caledonia won its second conference game.

Norbert Staggemeyer was the big gun in Caledonia's eight-hit attack. He belted a pair of home runs, one a grand slam in the seventh inning. Bub Bunge batted two-for-four for Caledonia.

Canton's hits included a home run by Hubert Vannatter in the second inning and Reuben Stark's triple.

SPORT SIDELITES By Ralph Reeve

OPTIMISTS: Wednesday night at the Hubbell House, Mantorville, when scribes of seven of eight newspapers in the Southern Minny gathered for this and that, your agent polled those present on where their teams would finish this year. It looks like eight teams in the first division, folks. We figure the Winona Chiefs for the first division. Jim Cowan rates Waseca-Owatonna in second; Scott Nelson calls Mankato a "first division" team; Al Schmah, like his Albert Lea Packers for a 1-2 spot; Tom Koeck sees fourth place for Austin, Dave Pennington, who looks at Rochester through rose-colored glasses, has the Royals 1-2, and Lyle Domek, Fairmont, rates the Martins as a second-place team.

Don't Believe It

Emil Scheid, the colorful manager of the Winona Chiefs, will probably blister the ears of my sports-writing colleagues when he reads their opinions of the 1955 Winona Chiefs.

The Sidelighter queried sports-writers for their views of Scheid's sluggers, and although no one said it, their thoughts could be summed up basically by revising Bill Terry's famous last words, "Is Winona still in the league?"

First of all, we asked the boys where they figured the Mississippi Maulers would wind up in the 1955 pennant chase. After being told by the majority that the Chiefs wouldn't be too perspicacious this season, we then asked the gents why.

Here's how the various potentates of press rate the 1955 Greater Winona Chiefs:

Jim Cowan, Waseca Herald—"Eighth. Who's gonna finish below them?"

Al Schmah, Albert Lea Tribune—"I'll be generous and give yuh sixth."

Scott Nelson, Mankato Free Press (he's a reckless plunger)—"Oh, seventh."

Dave Pennington, Rochester Post-Bulletin (I thought he was my buddy)—"Seventh or eighth."

L. R. (Lefty) Ringhofer, Owatonna Daily Peoples Press—"On account of 1'm league secretary, I beg off, but a guy I know said fourth."

Lyle Domek, Fairmont Sentinel—"Fifth. Sid Langston."

Gale Anderson, Rochester (he's not a sports-writer no more, but since he attended we might as well toss his opinion in too)—"I'd say seventh."

Tom Koeck, Austin Daily Herald—"Sixth."

The Bitter Hemlock

Now we come to the meat of this poisoned-apple epistle. We asked the boys what was the basis for such prophecies of gloom. And let me remind that the opinions presented here in no way whatsoever correspond to the sentiments contained within the cranium of yours truly.

Read it and weep, folks. The Winona Wailing Wall is to the right.

Jim Cowan says, "We'll (Waseca-Owatonna) just run them right off the field. Winona's gonna be the dog team this year. Scheid's been in the league too long to know one player from another."

Mr. Schmah, why did you only pick the Chiefs for sixth? Al replied, "Only! Winona was eighth last year. I don't think Winona has improved over last year."

Scott Nelson wondered out loud, "Who have they picked up? I see Joe Shrake's going good. Is he another of Scheid's college wonder boys?"

Dave Pennington said he'd agree with Bernie Lusk, his sports-casting buddy at Rochester, who reported if you took a seventh place team's players (1954, Austin) and an eighth-place team, it equalled a 7½ place team.

Ringhofer, again giving opinions for his proxy, offered, "He's (Scheid) got the pick of Winona and Austin. He can only go one way. Look at his record. First division seven of eight years."

Gale Anderson tried to soothe our feelings. He said, "Winona's not so bad. It's just that every other team has improved so much."

Tom Koeck said he said what he said "for the simple reason this is a tough league. Besides Lawler, what's he got? It all depends on pitching. You need more than one."

One Consolation

Desperate for some good tidings to bring home to the Winona fans, we finally said, "Well, maybe you don't think Winona will be so hot. Let me ask you, what team will draw more than Winona opening day?"

A hushed silence enveloped the atmosphere. Not one of the stalwarts present would take up the argumentative cudgel on that point. Cowan started to open his mouth, but he closed it without saying anything.

Al Schmah of Albert Lea remarked if Manager Bill Ankoviak got one ball player he was after, "Albert Lea would probably have the greatest collection of sluggers the league has ever seen."

We seem to recall that reports from Albert Lea last year at this time had it that Albert Lea's 1954 pitching staff would be the best ever. What happened to George New, Len Matarrazzo & Co.?

A rumor has it that Monte Lopez, Owatonna's star pitcher last summer, may play in the Mexican League this summer. Don't believe it.

Vejar Favored To Win Tonight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (U) — Chico Vejar, the fighting collegian, is a 3-1 favorite to beat Italy's Paolo Melis tonight and stretch his latest unbeaten string to 10.

The two welterweights meet in a 10-round at the War Memorial Auditorium.

This is Vejar's second straight TV bout in the auditorium. The 23-year-old NYU dramatic student from Stamford, Conn., outpointed Billy Graham for the second time April 1. In his last nine scrapes, he won eight and drew in the other with Jed Black. His record is 60-4-1, including 31 knockouts, Melis, 25, former Italian welter-

Joe Hamernik's 600 in the Eagles League at Hal-Rod was the top individual series score in Winona bowling Thursday night.

He bowled for the First National Bank team. Top single game was Mike Sossalla's 233 for Keweenaw Lunch.

Five women rolled honors, two in the Keglerette Ladies League where Myrtle Krynsinski of Wally's hit 224-551 and Leona Lubinski chalked up a 516 series score.

In the Powder Puff League at Hal-Rod, Ruth Hopf of Winona Insurance, the first-place team, trounced 192-508, followed by Lorraine Bauer with 507 and Esther Pozzani with 502.

The Winona Boxcraft team won a roll-off against Kalmes Tires for the class A League title at the Red Men's Club. The six-man Boxcraft bowlers totaled 3,297 pins, while Kalmes had 3,229.

Individual leaders in the K-C League Thursday night were Jack Zywicki, Winona Milk, with a 223 single and Ralph Bambenek, Briggs, with a 598 series.

Hugh Duffy, Winona Tool, fired 225-551 and Richard Percy, Murphy Motor Freight, equaled Duffy's series score at the St. Matthews League at St. Martin's wound up bowling for the season.

Branca 5-Hitter Wins for Millers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ralph Branca, the former major league now with Minneapolis, tamed Toledo on a five-hitter and dropped the Sox into a tie with Louisville for the American Association lead Thursday night.

The Millers triumphed, 7-2, as Branca fanned eight and posted his second mound victory of the season. Louisville was idle, as was Omaha.

It also was a pitchers' night elsewhere about the league as Denver beat Indianapolis, 3-1, and Charleston edged St. Paul, 3-2.

Solo home runs by Jack Daniels and Sam Meeks were the only tallies against Branca at Toledo as he went the route the first time this year.

Local Roundup

Redmen Nine Faces 'Must' Assignment

Only action involving a local school Saturday is of major importance.

The St. Mary's Redmen journey to Collegeville, Minn., for a twin bill against power-packed St. John's and a sweep of the two games for Coach Max Molock's nine would add considerably to its chances of repeating as Minnesota College Conference baseball champions.

The Redmen shared the title with the Johnnies last year on 9-3 records. Molock intends to use his ace lefthander, Joe Shrake, for the nine-inning first game and probably will counter with freshman Tony Spallito for the nightcap.

St. Mary's holds a 3-1 conference record, with Shrake the winning pitcher three times and the loser once. To date, he's given up only one earned run in 24 innings of conference pitching.

Teams Busy Today

A busy day was on tap for local teams this afternoon. Coach Ed Spencer's Winona High baseball team had an engagement at La Crosse Logan and Spencer planned to start Fred Naas on the mound.

The Winona High track team hosted Lake City and Plainview in a triangular meet at Jefferson Field, while Coach Luther McCown's Winona State nine entertained visiting Carleton in a baseball game at Jefferson slated for a 2:30 p.m. start.

The Winona High golf and tennis teams also were booked for competition at La Crosse Logan this afternoon.

Scheduled Saturday at Jefferson Field is a practice for members of the Winona Chiefs, although Manager Emil Scheid may be unable to attend for business reasons.

Starting off next week's slate of events will be the Coter Rammers, who journey to Austin for a baseball game against St. Augustin.

Tuesday Winona High's golf, tennis and baseball teams travel to Owatonna for Big Nine Conference competition.

Winner—Delock. Loser—Harshman.

"GET BACK ON THE SIDEWALK!"

LAFF-A-DAY

"The grocer says are you going to come back and pick up the baby or do you want him delivered?"

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGUM, D. S.

1. DO SCIENTISTS KNOW WHY SOME PERSONS ARE FAT, SOME THIN? YES NO

2. PARENTS SHOULD TALK THEIR CHILD PROBLEMS OVER TOGETHER, SAYS SPECIALIST. WISE UNWISE

Answer to Question No. 1
No, says Dr. Frederick Stare of the Harvard Medical School. Overeating is one cause, but many persons get fat on a "canary bird" diet, and others remain thin on three big squares every day. The level of sugar in the blood seems to affect the brain, and, in turn, the appetite, but just how is not known. Heredity plays some part; environment, some. Some of the causes of obesity are psychological, some physiological, Stare said.

Answer to Question No. 2
2. Wise, especially if they can have a counselor to guide them. Dr. Murray Kahane, mental health specialist, says needless family tensions come largely from parents imposing goals and behavior standards beyond the child's age and development. Parents and children misunderstand each other. Result: Trouble for both. Frank family discussions of these problems (not criticism of children), says Dr. K., greatly help to solve these problems. Looking for a problem-solver? Test yourself and find the cause and cure in "Solving Personal Problems," a non-profit booklet available from Dr. A. E. Wiggum, in care of this newspaper. Enclose 15c, coin only, and stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Name city and state.)

Answer to Question No. 3
3. Canada bird specialist H. R. Ivor says in "National Geographic" that birds he has studied—wild birds including jays, robins, thrushes, etc.—have definite personalities and display signs of emotions such as fear, jealousy and love. Many of his birds fly free all day and at night "come home to roost." If not, he calls their names, and they fly home; except one jay, "Pet," who won't come until Ivor has her "husband" call her. She knows who's boss!

THE GRAB BAG

THE ANSWER, QUICK!

1. Who was the composer of the "Spring Symphony"?
2. Where and what are the Antilles?
3. Can you name the British admiral at the battle of Jutland in 1915?
4. What city do you associate with the Copacabana?
5. Can you finish this phrase: "To the last syllable"—who said it?

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

1. Robert Schumann.
2. Two groups of islands in the West Indies.
3. Adm. John Rushworth Jellicoe.
4. Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
5. "Of recorded time."—Macbeth in Shakespeare's play.
