Stop Using Force, Dulles Tells Russ

2 Duluth Men, Albert Lea Girl Lake Victims

Wave Tips Craft
Of Pair Fishing
In Lake Superior

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Duluth fishermen drowned when a sudden wave capsized their boat and a girl swimmer perished Thursday in Fountain Lake at Albert Lea.

Conrad Haastad and Henry Taklo were fishing in a lake on Isle Royale in Lake Superior Wednesday when the furious wave engulfed their craft.

They, with Ewald Soder, also of Duluth, were thrown into the water. Soder, wearing a lifejacket, said he bobbed about in the water for a half hour before being rescued by Ray Taklo, brother of one of the victims, who had remained ashore. Soder never saw the others again.

Soder was brought to the mainland and put under care of a doctor after he and Taklo built signal fires on the shore of the island, about 200 miles northeast of Duluth. Commercial fishermen spotted the fires and picked up the pair.

"I heard Taklo shout and turned just in time to this huge wave bearing down on the boat," reported Soder. "I just got that glimpse when the boat was raised and tipped, with everything and everybody going into the water."

Soder said there was only a slight wind and attributed the wave to a "seiche," where the water suffers sudden surface changes due to fast-shifting atmospheric pressure.

Federal forest rangers, notified of the accident by radio, were dragging the lake for the bodies today.

At Albert Lea, 12-year-old Jean Johnson drowned when she became so exhausted in swimming 50 yards to a raft she could not pull herself onto it. Her brother, David, and a friend, David Brown, each 9, watched helplessly as the girl slipped into about 10 feet of water. Jean was the daughter of Mrs. Ina Johnson. Officials said she had gone swimming at an auxiliary beach after posted closing hours, when no lifeguard was on duty.

Hartle Asst's Gov. Freeman, Naftalin 'Bungling'

FAIRMONT, Minn. (P) — John Hartle, Owatonna, Republican state chairman, today accused Gov. Freeman and Arthur Naftalin, state commissioner of administration, of "bungling."

His speech was prepared for delivery at a Martin County Republican gathering tonight and was released for publication this afternoon.

As evidence of "bungling," Hartle cited school aids, reorganization, and state employees salaries. He said Freeman had promised school people $32 state aids and then "tried to hoodwink wage earners into paying for this promise through a withholding tax that would have squeezed an extra 25 million dollars out of them."

Hartle added that the Legislature had to limit reorganization "when we realized that Freeman's main interest in reorganization wasn't to improve government but to circumvent civil service and build his political machine."

Referring to the state employees salary adjustment bill passed by the Legislature and the fact that the governor has said it cannot be put into effect now because there is no money, the Republican leader declared the governor had told the Legislature it wouldn't cost any money.

"They told the Legislature it wouldn't cost any money because they could absorb the cost by improving efficiency," said Hartle. "Now, instead of admitting that we Republicans ran an efficient setup for 16 years that didn't give them much chance for improvement, they are now saying the Legislature turned them down on the money."

Edwin Glass, 25, Minneapolis, and Louise Horschler, Cheyenne, Wyo., planned to make a honeymoon of their European tour with Minnesota's St. Olaf College Choir. But the ceremony was put off because of the waiting period required by New York law and the fact the captain of the Norwegian-American liner on which they sailed is not empowered to marry people. They said they would wed when the choir returns in August. (AP Wirephoto)

Badger Democrats Prevent Recess

MADISON, Wis. (P) — State Democratic assemblymen, standing shoulder to shoulder at the midnight hour, have succeeded in blocking the plans of the Republican controlled Wisconsin Legislature to recess for the summer.

The Democrats turned back the bid of the GOP to recess at an extraordinary midnight session of the Assembly. The minority party stalled GOP plans on the issue of the 20 per cent surtax on state income taxes.

The bill, asked by Republican Gov. Kohler, and designed to raise 20 million dollars in the next two years to help balance the budget passed in the Senate, was the last major item of legislation standing in the way of recess.

The Republicans called the meeting for 12:01 a.m. today to have one more try at getting the measure through. The state's 35 Democratic Assemblymen were there and choked off the drive.

The Democratic victory meant that GOP plans to recess the Legislature Thursday were spoiled and both houses scheduled meetings for today.

The Assembly called a meeting for 2 p.m. today and the GOP indicated all members would be asked to remain in the city on the chance they might be able to muster a two-thirds vote and get the bill off the table—the second attempt in one day which requires a two-thirds vote—for action.

The Senate said Thursday, when leaders learned of the jam in the Assembly, that it would remain in session until the Assembly acted on the surtax. A meeting was set for 9 a.m. today.

Senate Majority Leader Paul Rogan (R-Ladysmith) said "our caucus voted almost solidly for action on the surtax now."

The measure bogged down earlier in the day when a coalition of Democrats and Republicans voted to table the measure on a 48-47 vote. The winning side declared they are in favor of action on the plan when the Legislature returns for a win-win session.

GOP leaders were determined to get it off the table and up for action. But in a caucus session they decided they lacked the two-thirds vote needed to get it back into action.

Memphis Ready To Build Own Electric Plant

Won't Depend On Power From
Dixon-Yates

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (P) — The city of Memphis has decided to build its own electric plant rather than accept power from Dixon-Yates. So what happens now?

The City Commission's move yesterday was the ace in the hole for backers of the Tennessee Valley Authority who bitterly oppose any tie up with the private power Dixon-Yates combine.

A new congressional attack on the controversial Dixon-Yates contract seems virtually assured.

President Eisenhower, who backed the Dixon-Yates contract solidly, once told a news conference he would like to see Memphis build its own plant. But there was no immediate comment on the Memphis move from high administration officials.

The controversial Dixon-Yates contract was conceived to provide electricity for the Memphis area, replacing TVA electricity used in atom plants.

It was brought forth when TVA said that by 1958 it would not be able to meet the area's power demands and asked congressional authority to build a new steam electric plant. Congress said no.

The Eisenhower administration said the Dixon-Yates plan to build a 107-million-dollar generating plant across the Mississippi River from Memphis would take care of the power problem without requiring federal loans.

Dixon-Yates power would be fed into TVA's public power here, and the Atomic Energy Commission would pay the bill under a long-term contract.

When the Dixon-Yates plan apparently hurdled all congressional obstacles, the Memphis City Commission moved to build its own 100-million-dollar generating plant.

Meeting in special session, the commission ordered the Municipal Utility Division to "act with all dispatch" in getting the plant into the construction stage.

Mayor Frank Tobey said the steam plant will be a 600,000-kilowatt facility erected on the Mississippi River. It will be completed, he said, before Memphis' contract with the TVA runs out—June 1, 1958.

The mayor said the plant would be financed through revenue bonds and several financial syndicates have expressed interest. He declined to identify them.

Rep. E. C. Gathings (D-Ark) said last night, "This will in no wise affect completion of the Dixon-Yates plant at West Memphis."

"The power will be vitally needed in the latter part of 1957 and 1958 for AEC purposes as well as for general use in the TVA territory," he said.

Mayo Clinic Operation Fails to Save Boy, 5

ROCHESTER, Minn. (P) — Marvin Peebles, 5-year-old Milwaukee boy, died Thursday night, less than 12 hours after Mayo Clinic surgeons had operated to correct a defect in his heart.

Surgeons used a mechanical heart-lung device to purify the boy's blood while his own heart was tied off for closure of two holes in the organ's inner wall.

Strike Russ Backed Ties Up Red Boats

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (P) — The British stevedores' strike—which has been defended by Moscow radio—today blocked the unloading of Russia's racing boats for the famous Henley Regatta.

The racing shells are aboard the Soviet ship Strenla, waiting off Gravesend to be unloaded by stevedores who've been striking for six weeks.

"Britain's dock strikes," said a Moscow radio commentator in a weekend broadcast, "are due to the dissatisfaction of the masses with excessive military expenditure." The striking union disagrees. It is demanding bargaining recognition outside London, now the prerogative of another and bigger union.

Even should the dockers go back to work Monday, they'll have to move fast to unload the Strenla. Forty ships are ahead of the Russian vessel in the queue to get their cargoes ashore.

The Henley Regatta begins next Wednesday.

The Soviet authorities are so distressed over the possibility of having no boats by race time that they spent 50 minutes on the radio telephone from Moscow last night, trying to talk the boats off the Strenla.

David Williams, regatta secretary, told the Russians he was sorry but that nothing could be done until the strike is over.

"We might be able to borrow a boat or two for them," he said, "but strange boats would be a handicap to the Russians."

The Russians won a tremendous victory at last year's regatta, capturing the Grand Challenge Cup, the Steward's Cup, the silver goblets and 15 gold medals.

Twenty-five of the best Soviet oarsmen are due in London today.

McCOY SECURITY TEST

Truck With $791,000 'Stalled' on Highway

CAMP MCCOY, Wis. (P) — There was an anxious moment Thursday when the car carrying the $791,000 payroll of Wisconsin's 32nd National Guard division stalled on the highway.

But it was part of a pre-arranged security test and the division's Military Police had the situation well in hand minutes after the incident. Heavily-armed men surrounded the convoy and the payroll was transferred to another sedan.

Move Would End Cold War, State Secretary Declares

By MAX HARRELSON

SAN FRANCISCO (P) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told Russia in blunt language today that the way to end the cold war is to stop using force against other countries and to stop supporting subversion.

In a stinging attack on Communism, Dulles declared: "To bring the cold war to an end, seven points are not needed; this one is sufficient."

The secretary spoke at the U.N.'s 10th anniversary meeting, which Wednesday heard Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov propose a seven-point program to liquidate the cold war.

Dulles spoke with President Eisenhower's "full confidence and concurrence." The President himself said so on Monday when he addressed the opening session. He told the delegates the secretary would speak today on appropriate elements in the foreign policy of this nation.

Dulles pulled no punches as he reviewed the role of Communism in recent history. He agreed with Molotov that some problems had been settled recently, but he said they would have been settled years earlier except for the Communists. "We dare not forget," he said, "that some of those who now hail the recent developments are precisely those who for years sought to stop them."

Dulles strongly defended the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other regional organizations which Molotov blamed for much of the trouble today. These organizations were based on the spirit of the U.N. Charter, he said, and it was Western strength, backed by these organizations, which had led to the solution of major problems.

Then, in sarcastic language, he took up the problems which Molotov had listed in his speech as having been solved. The Korean War, he said, was ended only after U.N. forces had repelled Communist aggression.

Strange Claim
"It is indeed strange," he said, "to hear this triumph of collective security now hailed as proof of the peace-loving character of the aggressor and its supporters. If they had had their way, we would today be commemorating the fifth anniversary of the demise of the United Nations."

Dulles said further:
The Indochina fighting was ended by agreement in Geneva, but only after the United States and other nations made it clear that continued fighting might call for collective action within the framework of the U.N. Charter.

The Austrian treaty should have been signed years ago, but it was delayed while one of its occupying powers exploited its economy for a decade.

Yugoslav-Soviet relations have been improved but they were bad in the first place only because Yugoslavia had broken away from "an alien yoke."

The recent Soviet overtures to West Germany and Japan came only after years of abuse and hostility from Russia.

Then Dulles listed five major problems, which he hinted he would like to see tackled by the summit meeting of the Big Four in Geneva next month. He did not list them specifically as agenda items, but he enumerated them as he led into his discussion of the Geneva talks.

They are:
1. Unification of Germany.
2. The problem of the Eastern European satellite of Russia.
3. Communist China's use of force and threats of force in Korea, Indochina and Formosa.
4. Efforts of "international Communism" to overthrow governments by conspiracy.
5. Disarmament.

"These are some of the problems that confront us as we face the future," Dulles said. "They are problems which cannot be met if we shut our eyes to them, or if we are weak, confused, or divided."

Freeman Urges Wheat Plan Vote

ST. PAUL (P) — Gov. Freeman today urged all eligible farmers to vote in the wheat referendum Saturday.

"The economic well-being of all the people is directly dependent upon agricultural prosperity," Freeman said. "A consideration of the alternatives involved in the wheat referendum makes it clear that farmers of Minnesota will be better off if the vote is 'yes.'"

"Eight senators from our area have urged a 'yes' vote, as have farm organizations and leading newspapers."

City Purchases Equipment for Water Mains

Meeting in special session Thursday, the Board of Municipal Works accepted bids totaling $4,339.93 for pipe, valves and fittings that will be used in extensions of existing water mains requested by property owners.

Bids were entered by three firms, and while one was apparent low bidder on one section of the bids, the firm refused to accept an order only for that portion.

That was the bid for fittings submitted by the American Cast Iron Co., St. Paul, of $297.03. The only other bid was by James B. Clow & Sons, Chicago, at $304.13. Clow also was low for 800 lineal feet of 6-inch cast iron pipe and standardized mechanical equipment and a like amount of 8-inch cast iron pipe. The bid totaled $3,584 compared with the $3,600 bid of American.

The Ludlow Valve Co., New York, bid only on valves and was low in that category with $451.80. Clow bid $455.60 and American $473.

Delivery of valves will be in two weeks while the remainder of the equipment will require from three to five weeks so the board authorized City Engineer W. O. Cribbs to prepare plans and specifications for laying the new extensions.

Extensions to Be Made
The new water mains: Bellevue street between Carmona and Zumbro streets; a 1-block extension of Randall court east of Clarks lane and a 500-foot extension from Gilmore avenue onto Terry Lane.

Secretary G. O. Harvey told the board he had written to the Athletic Board, which owns the land on which the Westfield Golf Course is located, requesting permission to drill test wells there. The site has been considered as a possible location for a new well field but samples of the water there must be obtained to determine if the site would be suitable.

It is anticipated that the board will grant permissions, because the drilling of test wells could be conducted in the roughs and would neither damage the course nor interfere with golf operations. Harvey said he could have the job done for about $300 and the board authorized him to have a test well drilled as soon as permission is obtained from the Athletic Board.

Wells will be drilled one at a time and samples forwarded to the engineering firm of Toltz, King & Day, St. Paul, which is conducting

Wisconsin Airman Survives Jet Crash

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — Air Force 1st Lt. Rollin C. Lerch, Fond du Lac, Wis., parachuted to safety Wednesday but 2nd Lt. John C. Arantz, Decatur, Ala., was killed when their jet training planes struck in the air.

Searchers found the body of Arantz still strapped in the pilot's seat of his plane. Wreckage was found on fourth mile away.

Air Force spokesman said the T33 planes collided at about 15,000 feet over wetland described as wilderness.

a survey of possible well sites. The survey was requested because some consideration has been given moving the golf course to the east end of Lake Winona, and development of a residential area at the present site of Westfield would prohibit location of a well field there. The board has hoped to be able to develop a well site on city property.

Engineer Writes
Read to the board was a letter from Arantz J. Duvall, municipal engineer of Toltz, King & Day, who has been working with the board on various projects. In it, he confirmed the advisability of obtaining samples at Westfield to permit sampling the water at 75, 100, 125 and 150 foot depths. He also said that tests could be taken later in an area south of Highway 61 and west of Pelzer street (the access road to the Arthur C. Thurlay Homes) in an area which is partially in Winona and partially in Goodview. Another site suggested was at the west end of Goodview, south of the highway, west of the Goodview road.

He said, however, that existing wells at the latter two sites should be investigated and depth and construction and data on previous test well drillings considered before the board actually decides to sink test wells there.

Goodview Request
Concluding the meeting was a discussion of a letter from the village of Goodview requesting use of the hydrant at the end of West 5th street to supply water to the village's newly-purchased fire truck tank. No action was taken.

Attending the special meeting were: President C. J. Borzykowski, Vice President George A. Desrosier, C. S. Lukaszewski, R. Burr Mann, William M. Hardt, Mayor Loyde E. Pfeiffer, Cribbs and Harvey.

TODAY

Russians Meet Yank In Moscow

By STEWART ALSOP

MOSCOW — "I hope," said the first English-speaking Russian encountered by this reporter, "that you will write the truth about my country." The same suspicious hope has been repeatedly expressed since, Alas, after fully four days in Russia, this reporter still does not know the truth about this strange country.

Instead of telling the truth about Russia, it may be worth describing a couple of incidents which occurred on my first day in Moscow. The incidents had no importance at all but they stuck in the mind like burrs, and they may have, at least, the simple, photographic value first impressions sometimes have.

The first episode was really hardly anything at all. After wandering vaguely around what I wrongly thought to be Red Square, I had gone down a side street, when suddenly it started to rain. I took shelter under a wooden awning. There were already a few Russians under the awning, and very soon we were packed shoulder to shoulder.

Our little crowd was cheerful enough. There was an old Russian peasant woman in a shawl, looking so much like an old Russian peasant woman in a shawl that you had to pinch yourself to believe she was true. There were two or three soldiers, in the dashing Russian uniform, one a very handsome fellow who was holding hands with a dumpy girl with whom he was obviously very much in love. There were several civilians, dressed in dark suits with square shoulders and sailor-wide trousers.

Most Conspicuous

This reporter, in a light tan gabardine suit, could hardly have been more conspicuous if attired in a ballet costume. There was no uncultured staring by the Russians, but there were a good many nudges and side glances at the peculiar animal from the other side of the moon.

Then somebody addressed a polite, incomprehensible question to me. I shook my head and said "Americanski." There were murmurings in the crowd. A man in a dark suit said "peace," and smiled and I said "peace" and smiled too. Then we all smiled and nodded our heads reassuringly at each other and then the rain stopped and we all went our ways.

The great Russian scientist Pavlov would no doubt have explained this episode in terms of the conditioned reflex, and certainly it does not encompass the truth about Russia. Nor did the second incident.

That same evening I crashed a reception given by the Section of Heavy Athletics of the Committee of Sport and Physical Culture of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in honor of a team of American weight lifters. The most conspicuous American weight lifter was a prophet without honor in his own country — Paul Anderson, of Georgia, an amiable Gargantua, whose arms are so enormous that he carries them at a sharp angle from his vast chest.

In the United States, weight lifting is largely concentrated in the area of York, Pa. In the Soviet Union, weight lifting is highly popular, and the competition had drawn standing-room-only crowds. The Russians had won, but Mr. Anderson had saved the national face by breaking all known records.

The Section of Heavy Athletics of the Committee of Sport and Physical Culture put on quite a show. There was a singer, who looked as though she could have lifted a few weights herself (she was actually very good, according to a competent judge of such matters) and a sleight-of-hand artist, and a wonderful Uzbekistan people dancer and an enthusiastic male vocalist.

The big-muscled weight lifters listened politely, although one had a feeling that the Americans, at least, might have preferred Marilyn Monroe. But the really memorable moment was the conversation between the Russians and American weight lifters.

Except for their muscles, they might have been a different species. The Russians in their square-shouldered suits, the Americans in their sports shirts and openwork shoes. At first, they seemed shy of each other. Then, through random interpreters, they began to talk about weight lifting and suddenly they were all weight lifters together.

A small attentive group of weight lifters gravitated to Mr. Anderson, the man who had lifted a greater weight than any weight lifter had ever lifted before. The talk was professional, and a little hard to follow. Asked by a Russian about a well known American lifter, Mr. Anderson remarked sadly that he was still pretty good but that he had lost his speed.

When this was translated, there was on every face a hint of that ancient tragedy — the tragedy of the passage of time and the loss of speed it brings to all men. For that moment, it seemed, all the weight lifters together were of the same face of men.

After the concert, a high official of the Section of Heavy Athletics recited a somewhat lengthy address, with emphasis on the comradeship of peoples, and then there was a buffet with vodka and caviar.

But the golden moment was never recaptured. Walking afterward in Red Square (the right one, this time) it was tempting to believe the peace was assured because everybody under a wooden awning wanted peace or because weight lifters share a common humanity and a common interest in weight lifting. But alas, there are also such dreary matters as the world balance of power and the frightening difference between social systems. This difference is nowhere more obvious than here.

Police Believe Drowned Man Named Brooks

Was in Hospital Earlier This Week After Taking Pills

The body of a man taken from the Mississippi River here early Wednesday afternoon was buried this morning in a simple ceremony at the Woodlawn Cemetery.

Winona County Coroner Dr. R. B. Tweedy said today that the drowning of August "Gus" Brooks apparently was a suicide.

Although positive identification of the elderly man has not been established, an extensive investigation by Assistant Chief of Police Everett R. Laak, Detective Marvin Meier and City Poor Commissioner Mrs. Katherine Lambert indicated today that his name was Brooks.

Last Friday, Brooks became ill in his room at a Winona hotel and Mrs. Lambert's office was contacted for authority to take him to the hospital. It was believed he suffered a stroke or a heart attack.

Brooks was admitted to the hospital Friday and discharged Monday morning, when he was taken to the relief department to fill out necessary papers.

History Taken

Mrs. Lambert said that at that time he appeared to be clean shaven and neat, wearing a light shirt and brown slacks. She said it seemed as though he did not want to divulge any information about himself, but gave his birth date as Oct. 14, 1893. Brooks said he was born in Iowa, had never married, that his only living relative was a cousin who lived in Los Angeles but whose name he said he could not recall. He told Mrs. Lambert he had been employed as a farm laborer, all his life in "various places."

Brooks continued that he had last been employed on the Bert Lingus farm, 20 miles "this side" (southeast) of Jamestown, N.D. He said Lingus had died in December 1954 and when his heirs had asked Brooks to rent the farm he told them he was unable to do so. Brooks related that he had been employed on the 600-acre farm for about 2 1/2 years. He said he then left the Jamestown area and came to Winona, arriving here June 13, where he obtained a room in a hotel.

Brooks said that on June 21 (Tuesday) he was going to work at the Hugh Sims farm near Lewiston and that he had a "friend" who was going to take him to the farm the next morning.

When Brooks signed the form, he omitted the "s" from his last name and signed only "Gus" as a first name.

He had told Mrs. Lambert that before going to Jamestown, he had been employed on the Mayo Priebe showhouse farm 35 miles south of Rochester.

Of his hospital stay, Brooks said that he did not suffer a heart attack or stroke, but made a "mistake" in taking three sleeping pills instead of some other pills.

Mrs. Lambert's investigation of Brooks' story revealed that little, if any, of the background information he had given was true.

She said that the Lewiston farmer had never heard of Brooks and had not hired him as Brooks said. Telephone calls to Jamestown and LaMoure, N.D., failed to produce any indication of the existence of a "Bert Lingus" or "Gus Brooks." The Jamestown welfare office made an extensive search of city and county records and also contacted small towns in the area in addition to making personal calls on residents in the area given as the location of the farm.

Not There Either

Mrs. Lambert's call to the Rochester office of the Priebe farm produced a similar result. The office said a check of payroll records through 1947 failed to reveal any record of the man.

The lone clue that may lead to positive identification is a social security number given Mrs. Lambert by the Jamestown office last week in her preliminary check for welfare purposes. When she called the office this week, the man who had given her the number was out of the office and it could not be determined how he obtained it. It was indicated by the Jamestown welfare office that the card was issued in that area in the 1940s.

The number has been sent to the social security office at Kansas City for a further check. It is expected to require two to three weeks.

Identification of the man as "Gus Brooks" was established during the investigation Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Lambert said she believed the man to be the same one that she talked to Monday identifying him by his thick lips and nose. The hotel operator, meanwhile, identified the pocket watch and glasses that he took to Brooks at the hospital Sunday. The driver of the ambulance which took Brooks to the hospital also was asked to assist in identification.

The Burke Funeral Home was in charge of the funeral with the Rev. James Hill, chaplain of the Leon J. Wetzel American Legion post, officiating during the graveside rites.

St. Paul Drowning Victim Identified

ST. PAUL (AP) — A body recovered from the Mississippi River was identified Thursday night as that of Joseph Fattisic, 64, River Falls, Wis. Officials said the body apparently had been in the water for about 12 hours.

A Traffic Check Of The Brakes and licenses on some 700 motorists was conducted by Winona police at four locations Thursday afternoon. Sgt. Edward Hittner said that about 25 arrests were made for illegal brakes, no driver's license and failure to have a driver's license in possession. Another 40 drivers received warnings while 15 drew illegal equipment warnings. The latter must be corrected within 48 hours. During the 6-hour check, police set up check points on West Broadway near High and South Baker streets; on East Broadway near Huff street; at Franklin and King streets, and at Sanborn and Steuben streets. In the picture, Sgt. Hittner is checking the license of one of the motorists. (Daily News photo)

Huge Road Culvert Rolls Over Farm Child at Blair

BLAIR, Wis. (Special)—A tiny 4-year-old Blair area farm girl was crushed to death beneath a huge road culvert 2 1/2 miles east of here late Thursday afternoon.

Dawn Dale, who lived with her parents a scant 150 feet from the scene of the accident, saw a truck of the Wisconsin Culvert Co., Madison, stop near the Highway 95 construction crew.

She ran to the road and spoke to the driver, William Elmer, Madison, who told her to go back to the lawn near her home while he unloaded two of the 1,800-pound corrugated steel culvert sections.

The child's mother, Mrs. Orvis Dale, called her back into the yard about 4:30 p.m. and then went back into the house.

Assuming the child and her dog were safely in the yard, Elmer unhooked the chain and let two of the culverts roll off the truck on the side of the roadway.

He then pulled away to return to Madison. When the truck was less than half a mile away, Mrs. Dale called for her daughter. When the child did not answer, Mrs. Dale asked Shelly Thompson, about 14, a neighbor who was riding a bicycle along the highway, to help her find the child.

The youngster thought Dawn might have crawled inside the huge (6-foot diameter) culvert but she noticed a red bonnet protruding from beneath one of the culverts. When the heavy culvert was rolled with bars, the child's body was found.

Probably No Inquest

Trempealeau County Coroner Martin A. Wiemer said the mishap appeared to be "purely accidental" and said he doubted if an inquest would be held.

Wiemer said that the truck driver did not know of the accident until he arrived at work in Madison this morning. He said since he had warned the child, he was actually more concerned about the safety of the dog when he rolled the culverts off the truck.

Elmer said he had been told by Norman Hulett, Eau Claire, superintendent of the L. J. Arnold Construction Co. crew, to dump the culverts by the roadside. Hulett and other men working there, along with Elmer, heard no noise

Summertime—When Living Is Dangerous

KELLOGG, Minn. (Special)—The toll on minor accidents sustained here during the past week includes:

Donald Weirather, who suffered a fractured collar bone when he was kicked by a cow at his home. Mary Helen Collier, who suffered a fractured collar bone, and Maureen McDonough, who received a cut on the chin, as the two were bicycle riding.

Robert Braun, who injured his thumb while repairing a lawn mower at his home.

Ridgeway Child's Pelvis Fractured As Cow Kicks Her

RIDGWAY, Minn. (Special)—A Ridgeway child is recovering at her home here from injuries suffered late Wednesday when she was kicked in the abdomen by a cow.

Suffering a fractured pelvis in the mishap was Linda Albrecht, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Albrecht, who was kicked as she stood beside a cow her father was milking in the family's barn.

She was rushed immediately to Winona General Hospital, where X-rays by physicians revealed the pelvic injury. She was permitted to return to her home Thursday, where she will be confined to her bed for at least three weeks.

other than the clatter of the falling culverts.

The coroner was called to the scene shortly after the accident, along with a Whitehall physician and Frank Carr, Eau Claire, vice president of the construction firm.

Younger Sister

Born April 26, 1951, Dawn and her family resided on the Ole Sylvest farm.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the First Lutheran Church with burial in Rest Haven Cemetery. In addition to her parents, the child is survived by a sister exactly a year younger and a paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ida Dale.

3 Unions Asking County Contract Receive Support

The Winona Trades & Labor Council has voted to support three affiliated unions in their fight with the Winona County Board of Commissioners for recognition.

Unions involved are Building Laborers Local 1316, Operating Engineers Local 49 and General Drivers Local 799. Representatives recently asked a meeting with the five commissioners, but the three commissioners residing in rural areas did not show up.

Council President Carl Aune said that the delegates to the council voted unanimously Wednesday that it is their feeling that "the three rural commissioners who neglected to appear at the called meeting of June 9 were not fulfilling their duties as elected officers of Winona County."

He added that "the council demands that the commissioners fulfill their oath of office and meet with the unions involved. If the commissioners fail to function properly an appeal for malfeasance in office will be filed with the state attorney general."

Editor at Durand To Be Assistant To Congressman

DURAND, Wis. (Special)—William Ender, editor of the Courier-Wedge here for five years, leaves this week to become administrative assistant to 2nd Dist. Cong. Glenn F. Davis of Waukesha in Washington.

Resignation of Jack Cory, former Elmwood publisher, created the vacancy which Ender will fill. Cory is returning to suburban Milwaukee where he will edit weekly newspapers.

Ender is resigning as treasurer of the Durand Commercial Club

Winona County Paying Out $1,333,216

Tax Settlement For June Reported By Two Officials

Winona County's June tax settlement—traditionally the largest of three in each calendar year—is $1,333,216.07, according to totals released today by County Auditor Richard Schoonover and County Treasurer Arthur W. Dorn.

Real estate and personal property collections are distributed in March, June, and November of each year. Today's figures represent 1954 taxes, payable in 1955.

Schools, which in the March settlement received the most money, slipped to third in the June count. Political subdivisions—townships, villages and cities—will receive the lion's share of the take this time, with county funds second and state revenue and loan repayments ranking fourth.

The totals received by each group: Political subdivisions, $445,710.45; county funds, $430,902.09; schools, $389,311.13; and state funds, $67,292.40.

Style Show, Sen. Wiley Launches Pageant Today, Mondovi Centennial, Parade Saturday Praises Cooperatives

MONDOVI, Wis.—A Gay 90s style show for women will be a feature of Mondovi's centennial today while a mammoth parade will move off here at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Both days the pageant, "Mondovi's Turn of the Century," will be presented at 8:15 p.m. at the fairgrounds with a stage show preceding the production and fireworks at the conclusion.

Centennial Belles, those girls of the present who dress from the past during centennials, presented their style show at the high school this afternoon and winners will be announced at the 7:30 p.m. stage performance. The Mondovi High School band and the 6 foot 4 barbershop quartet from this community also will perform.

The parade Saturday will form at the fairgrounds, pass the grandstand to Jackson street, south on Jackson to Huff street, on Hudson to Eau Claire street, north on Eau Claire to Columbia street, on Columbia west to Jackson and back to the fairgrounds.

The Wisconsin Historymobile will be in Mondovi today through Sunday and the Dobson Shows are on the fairgrounds midway. Stage entertainment will be held on the infield at 2 and 7:30 p.m. Sunday and the final presentation of the pageant will conclude the 100th birthday party.

No Bids Received For Lewiston Bus

LEWISTON, Minn. — No bids were received to furnish a bus chassis when the Lewiston Public School District 22 board met to open bids Thursday evening.

Webster A. Fischer, clerk, said that the board will advertise for bids again. Bid opening will be July 14.

MONDOVI, Wis. — A milk products laboratory will be built by the federal government at Madison if a bill introduced in the U. S. Congress by Sen. Alexander Wiley wins passage.

The senior Wisconsin senator told this to an audience here Thursday afternoon during a time capsule ceremony in connection with the Mondovi Centennial.

Last night he crowned Miss Donna Parkhurst, 20, Mondovi, queen of the 100th birthday party, before a large crowd at the fairgrounds. It preceded the premier performance of "Mondovi's Turn of the Century" a pageant in 27 scenes.

In the coronation the Republican senator substituted for Governor Kohler who was unable to attend.

A Bookkeeper

Donna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Parkhurst, Mondovi, and is employed as a bookkeeper at the Mondovi Equity Co-op Association. She won the contest from 30 entrants by selling the most pageant tickets — 572.

Eight attendants stood with her at the footlights as Sen. Wiley placed a golden tiara on her head. Mayor George Britton introduced the senator. The coronation took place after several hundred youths, in a patriotic theme, marched on to the large grass infield stage before the fairgrounds grandstand and stood at attention during the crowning.

Songs by the Menominee Barbershop Male Chorus, under the direction of Edward Phelan, and the Mondovi Centennial pageant choruses, directed by Keith La Gasse, introduced the first show which will be presented nightly through Sunday. More than 300 persons are in the cast.

Attendants to Miss Parkhurst are: Miss Mavis Cook, Miss Betty Mae Olson, Miss Lorraine Schultz,

Greeks Have a Word For 'Yes'—It's 'Neh'

By EARL WILSON

ATHENS, Greece—I ate octopi, showed off my Davy Crockett cap to the Palace Guards and wore a hairnet while getting barbered in this wonderful city where every sign reminds you of college fraternities and sororities.

But mostly I met your American friends. Marilyn Monroe's boss, Spyros Skouras, the ex-St. Louis bartender, has a nephew here with an interesting name—Spyros Skouras.

Going to his barber, Tony, for a haircut, I was asked if I wished a manicure.

"Neh, neh," I replied, giving it the Hollywood-Broadway pronunciation.

So I got one—"Neh, neh" meaning "Yes, yes" in Greek.

Greek gentlemen take great pride in their looks. One was getting black hair dye swabbed on his hair with a toothbrush. I recalled when Tony put a hairnet on me—it was to help my hair look curly.

I tried the octopi—served cold, vinegary and rubbery—with Socrates Chalkas of the Associated Press.

"Soc"—born in Pittsburgh, reared in Charlotte and Asheville, N.C., and once of Rollins College, Fla.—forked some octopus into his kisser and said, "Tasty, isn't it?"

I didn't answer.

"Save those fish heads for me," spoke up his nice bride. "That's the part of the fish I like—the head."

Civil Defense Activity Urged By Gov. Freeman

MANKATO, Minn. (AP)—Civil Defense is everybody's business because outbreak of an atomic war would bring conflict "right into our own back yards," Gov. Freeman said here Thursday night.

Talking to 650 delegates and auxiliary members attending the annual state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the governor urged all to take more active parts in their local Civil Defense organizations.

"If an atomic or hydrogen bomb should be dropped on one of our larger cities, that entire metropolitan area would require the help of all other communities in Minnesota," Freeman said. In addition to the fallout would cover a strip possibly 200 by 40 miles in area.

The governor who asked the help of the veterans in the current "Slow Down and Live" campaign, said investigation showed that "99.9 out of 100 accidents were due to drivers' errors" and the state planned to continue the present campaign "until all repeat offenders are driven from our highways."

Edward Ofstie, state commander, told the convention he expected the VFW drive for cancer funds would yield $15,000 this year.

Mary Ellen Kennedy, Wadena polo victim who didn't let the crippling disease stop her high school education, was presented with a scholarship award. She thanked the delegates and said she was using the money to enter Concordia College at Moorhead this fall.

Famous Italian Art Authority Looks at Life

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—A fabulous American named Bernard Berenson celebrates his 90th birthday Sunday.

Tiny and fragile, white-bearded and elegant, Berenson is an Italian date of kings, a living legend and the world's greatest authority on painting of the Italian Renaissance.

On his advice were built some of America's greatest collections. Hundreds of Americans visit his villa I Tatti just outside Florence to savor his wit and wisdom—and to see how steadfastly American he has remained after 65 years in Italy.

His conversation is peppered with references to "the way we do things in America." He talks of his youth in Boston and the Harvard class of 1887.

"Because I am an American," he says, "I am a European." A paradox? No, replies "B.B." Only an American can see Europe as a whole and not as single, nationalistic states.

What of postwar writers and painters? "Inspiration through dissipation seems to be the modern motto. I don't like it." Berenson himself is a devotee of moderation. Ticking off writers, artists and actors he has met in recent years, he went on: "They all seem to think that they must find their inspiration through lechery. I see no need for it and certainly their work shows it. It's not for the best."

For present-day artists he has even less use. "A doctor studies for nine years, a lawyer for five, all professions—and some we never even considered as professions—require time spent in learning—except artists. Men now seem to think that all they need to do is slap a brushful of paint across a canvas, give it a fanciful title, and run to a dealer to sell it. That is not art. Where is the technique?"

Here in his beautiful 40-room house, surrounded by devoted friends and servants and a collection of art treasures, Berenson lives like a 19th century gentleman with a 20th century outlook. He works daily on a new edition of his "Italian Painters of the Renaissance" and maintains a lively interest in world events. He corresponds with friends all over the world. His visitors range from young students to the less accessible of the world's great.

Born in Lithuania, Berenson went to the United States as a boy. A group of Bostonians contributed $750 to send him to Europe for a year after graduation from college. He has been in this art-loving land ever since, in the process amassing a comfortable fortune first as an art buyer and for years after as chief advisor to the late Lord Duveen, the dealer who assembled most big private American collections before World War II.

Italian friends hid him from the Nazis throughout the war. He plans to leave his estate and library to Harvard University, to be used for the study of Mediterranean art.

"I should like to think," he says, "that after I am gone, students can come to I Tatti as they did to the Medieval cloisters, to study, to escape for a while from the cares and clutter of the world, to learn of the past and to contemplate beauty."

The Casual Observer

By GRETCHEN L. LAMBERTON

"IS Howie Johnson running Paulsen's? Is Carl (Fat) Weimer selling flour in Pittsburgh? Did you know Jimmy Hauser is the father of seven children? Who is the Silver Fox? Get the answer at the 20th class reunion."

This was part of the intriguing letter received by every member of the class of 1935 of the Winona High School in April. The response to this first letter was enthusiastic. Of 196 living members (of an original 204) 80 out of town members and almost as many who lived in or near Winona answered. The committee in charge heard from Jim Bard who is a flight superintendent for Northwest Airlines in Anchorage, Alaska; from Major Bob Jackson who is with the American embassy in Rome; from Ione Engleth Morissette who married a French Canadian doctor in Montreal and who speaks only French with her husband and five children. And many more from all parts of the country from Maine and Florida to California wrote.

In May the committee sent a second letter: "Don't forget the dates—July 23 and 24. Remember to bring your husbands, wives, sweethearts, to the Saturday night dinner dance, and your entire family to a picnic on Sunday... We've already learned what the father of TEN children (Jim Hauser, step aside) and who milks 27 cows daily on his dairy farm in California. Aren't you curious to know what member of our class is a high school principal in Phoenix and what classmate retired at the age of 35? Come and find out all these answers."

Said Jerry Berthe who is acting as chairman of the arrangements committee: "It was a good bunch and we always had fun. This looks as though it'll be a great reunion with a Saturday night banquet and dance at the Oaks and a big family picnic at Merriek State Park on Sunday. Chef Kelly's got an elegant dinner planned for Saturday night, and there aren't going to be any speeches at all. We're planning to have identification badges for everyone and also class hosts and hostesses to greet everybody. Our committee has been working hard but there are a few people we just can't locate. Could you please ask your readers if any of them can tell the committee anything of the whereabouts of these 12 people?"

He went on to name these 12: Leverett Bishop, Leo Berry, Hugh Muncy, William Moore, Ruth Nowack, Bob Powell, Bernadine Lee, Margaret Levan, Lee Johnson, Linda Sprengler, Dorothy Erickson, Russell Gauder.

If any reader can shed any light on any of these 12 elusive members of the class of 1935 will he please contact Jerry Berthe or any member of the arrangements committee? The committee is made up of Jerry Berthe, Howard Johnson, Martha Fakler Busdicker, Violet Kern Wood, Cleo Stinson Mrozek, Jack Walz, Jeanne Heine, Robinson, Doris Krueger Peterson, John Stiefen, Ruthjean Sontag Walz, Bob Horton, Bob Stein and Ralph Wendt.

"Yeh, watch what you're doing. Dropped the whole cake right on the floor, whip cream and all. Now it's full of sand that we musta tracked in..."

"We s'posed to drink all this fruit punch?"

"Who else? Mom really went and fixed us up a snack today. Usually it's just cookies and milk. This lay-out is more like it, hun?"

Esther Williams Urges People To Swim More

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Esther Williams launched a campaign this week to get America into the swim.

"People ought to swim more," she argues. "Not only so they'll be safe in the water, but because it's healthful and fun, too. A swimming pool is the best thing in the world for a family. It brings the family together and brightens everyone's life."

Esther is certainly a walking testimonial for what a life in the water can do. Besides helping her achieve one of the world's most admired figures, it has brought her fame and fortune.

The first gun in her campaign is her announcement that she will operate a swimming school at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills, opening Aug. 11. Later she expects to establish them at Hilton hotels throughout the world. She plans to license schools throughout the United States, operating as dance studios do today.

Esther also aims to encourage Americans to swim in their own back yards. She and her husband, Ben Gage, are planning to merchandise a low-cost pool, constructed of cement blocks with a heavy plastic liner.

The Gage-Williams aquatic plans also include a projected water show.

European audiences, she said, are used to seeing shows "in the round."

"So that is how we'll do our show," she said. It will have three rings—a round, 100-foot diameter swimming pool made of fibre glass; another pool of transparent plastic for diving and underwater ballet; a stage for 'dry' acts.

She said the show will open in London in 1956.

Although meteorites have been observed for thousands of years, it was not until 1803 that modern astronomers were convinced that they reach the earth from outer space.

Precision-Made Mosaic on Display At Prairie du Chien

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Phetteplace of Waukesha spent five years and $1,000 producing what is believed to be the first precision-made mosaic of precious stones and it is now on display.

The mosaic, 30 by 24 inches, is a color portrait of the famed race horse, Man O' War. It is now being shown at the convention of the Midwest Federation of Mineralogists.

The Phetteplace mosaic is made of 1,000 pieces of precious and semi-precious stones cut precisely to size and placed together so that no cement or plaster shows between the small units, in contrast to the usual mosaic which is made of loose fitting pieces of colored glass or tile.

Phetteplace, who with his wife is a member of the mineralogists federation, is guarding the secret process by which he builds the mosaic picture on an already dried, lightweight piece of reinforced concrete.

Western Big 3, Yugoslavia Confer

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia and the Western Big Three today began the conference they arranged after the recent visit of Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

The western powers were represented by their ambassadors. The agenda, drafted in broad terms, made no mention of Soviet-Yugoslav relations. Instead it called for consideration of the general international situation and questions relating to mutual relations.

Specific issues expected to come up include prospects for German unity, disarmament, the Western position at the Big Four conference next month, Yugoslavia's debts to her Western creditors and the Balkan nation's political and economic relations with her former partners in the Soviet bloc.

Waukesha Claims Title to State Boys School Land

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — The Town of Waukesha believes a search of records may show the state would have to give the township the land occupied by the State School for Boys if the state decides to move the school elsewhere.

If the town's claim should prove valid, it would erase an argument of proponents of building a new school elsewhere. They have said the state could realize about $500,000 by selling the Waukesha site for real estate development.

The 1955 Legislature, after a battle, passed a bill calling for construction of a new six-million-dollar boys' school.

The bill gives the state building commission the right either to rebuild the school on the present site or build a new school in the Kettle Moraine state park area, which includes parts of seven counties, including western Waukesha County.

The township bases its claim on a memorial to the Wisconsin Legislature incorporated in the town board's minutes of 1886. That year it was proposed in the Legislature to move the Boy's School from the Waukesha site of the Town of Pewaukee.

The town of Waukesha reminded state officials that residents of Waukesha township had bought the land and donated it to the state with the understanding that the boys school would be located permanently in the Town of Waukesha.

Stillwater Prisoner Knocks Guard Down

STILLWATER, Minn. (AP) — A Stillwater prison inmate was placed in solitary confinement Wednesday after he hit a guard who tried to break up a fight.

Warden Douglas Rigg said Donald Haley, 30, Austin, knocked guard Joseph A. Powers, 60, down when Powers tried to break up a fight between Haley and Raymond Williamson, 50, Freeborn County.

Haley, who was placed in solitary confinement, is serving up to 17 years for auto theft and escape. Rigg said he would confer with Washington County officials about possible charges as a result of the incident.

Fantasies Go Underground As You Age

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone reflections of a Pavement Plato:

One trouble with life is a fellow gets too old to feel at ease while wearing a Davy Crockett hat in public. He no longer can openly act out his daydreams.

So his fantasies go underground in his mind. And they stay there, itching him mentally, for years and years.

In time they gradually grow smaller and smaller in scale. Haven't yours? Can't you remember when maybe you dreamed of running into a burning building and rescuing a beautiful lady? Or of robbing a great liner in mid-ocean and escaping by motor boat. Or of finding $100,000 in the street?

Today none of those daydreams flicker through your head. They don't even make sense as daydreams after 40.

If the loveliest woman in the world leaned her head out the window of a flaming dwelling, I'd merely stand there on the pavement and help her yell "Help!" I know my limitations. I wouldn't run up a flight of steps now to rescue anything except my social security card—and it would have to be in terrible peril at that.

In middle age a man no longer pictures himself in his daydreams as a great hero or a great rascal. He realizes he no longer has the desire—or energy—to be either.

His dreams of glory come down to small daily dramas in which he sees himself mastering some ordinary social situation that has always frustrated him before.

For example, he has just got a haircut. The barber holds up a perfunctory mirror and says, "Okay?"

For 500 times in a row in the last 20 years the victim has meekly murmured, "Uh-huh," and paid. But in his daydream he suddenly rebels and says:

"No, it certainly isn't okay, Tony. You got it parted wrong. There are at least 8 hairs too long on the right side. And I told you to lift the sideburns, and you didn't. Want me to look like a sheepdog? Now get out your scissors and do the job right—for once!"

The abashed barber bends anew to his task. When he is finished, our little hero steps from his chair with a crisp, "That's better!" As he swaggers from the shop the other customers break into admiring applause.

Long Voyage Home
Or suppose you are on a bus making the long voyage home and the driver says, "Pleeezmovebackinnabus, movebackinnabus," and you try to. And a fat lady says, "Who you shovin', Gargantua?" Instead of subsiding in mumbling apologetic apology, you sing out loud and clear:

"Out of my way, fat lady. I'm going to get to the back of the bus if I have to carve my way through a wall of living flesh—and I do mean your flesh!"

Well, the driver stops the bus. Tears streaming down his cheeks he comes back, shakes your hand, and mutters, "Pal, pal—after all these years, somebody done it at last. Somebody moved upma-backuhduhbus."

I have two simple daydreams myself. In one I am cashing my paycheck and the bank teller asks, "Do you have any identification with you?" Instead of fumbling through my pockets, I merely fix him with a pair of steel blue eyes and tell him coldly, "My face is my identification in this man's town, sonny." He takes one hurried look—and cashes the check pronto.

Second Daydream
In the other I go with a guest into one of the velvet rope restaurants, and when the headwaiter snootily asks if I have a reservation, I tell him:

"We have a reservation? Look, mister, I don't even own an Arrian. Now quit stalling, and show us a table."

Overcome by this bit of swift repartee, the humbled headwaiter drops his velvet rope and steers us to the best seats in the place.

In another variation of this daydream I merely take out a Boy Scout knife, hack the rope in two, and stalt right by the headwaiter as nearby guests look up and ask, "Who is he? Who is he?"

But, of course, this is probably the average man's most common daydream: He wakes up to find his house is finally paid for and doesn't need any repairs, his car is paid for and there isn't even a knock in the motor. He sits down to breakfast and neither his wife nor the kids hit him for money. He reaches in his pocket and is pleasantly dazed to find he still has $10 left—and it's only two days till payday.

Man, that's real dreaming! Who'd rather be Davy Crockett?

President Holds Out Hope for Era of Peace

President Eisenhower, in his keynote address before the United Nations tenth anniversary session in San Francisco, called for a reaffirmation of the faith with which the United Nations was founded.

It was not a speech filled with glittering promises that world peace will come tomorrow but it held out the hope for an era of peace such as the world has never known if the nations of the world are willing to seek it. He mentioned the impending top level Big Four discussions and while he made it plain that he was not predicting miracles he was positive in his statements that we will enter those talks loyal to the spirit in which the U.N. was conceived.

Unfortunately reaction to the United Nations, by its supporters as well as by its detractors, has been emotional rather than intellectual. Those who favor the U.N. have too often been unwilling to concede that it is not a perfect instrument, that its faults are many. Its opponents have very often taken the position that it is a useless, even a dangerous organization.

The fact is that the U.N. was made by men and as in all man-made things it has imperfections. Yet it has served some extremely useful purposes and has accomplished a great deal of specific good. The President's speech at San Francisco showed an awareness of this and he was speaking for most Americans when he pledged "my country's unwavering loyalty to the United Nations and the reasons for our tireless support of it."

Paul Is Going To Do All Right

It may not mean that he will shine on the diamond as he did on the gridiron, but recent pitching performances by Paul Giel, the $50,000 bonus baby of the New York Giants, indicate that the ex-Minnesota All-American halfback is going to do all right in major league baseball.

They indicate, too, that the Winona boy's competitive spirit, which attracted the scouts as much as did his pitching talents, still is strong. The other day he went to the mound with the bases full and nobody out against the Milwaukee Braves and got through the inning unscathed.

Wednesday he notched his first National League victory against the Chicago Cubs, pitching one-hit ball for three innings and getting the blow that started the victory rally.

Upper Midwest baseball fans are cheering. They realize that Giel has been under heavy pressure and that the direct jump from campus to big league baseball is seldom attained. Giel hasn't yet made it for sure, but he appears to be well on the way. He has the heart for it—and the best wishes of Minnesotans.—The Minneapolis Tribune.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

The universal appeal of a title like "The Power of Positive Thinking" certainly has played a part in keeping Norman Vincent Peale's inspirational book on the very top of nonfiction best-seller lists for two solid years. Aspiring authors, therefore, are continually beseeching Dr. Peale to provide sure-fire titles for their immortal prose. Dr. Peale counters with the story of the author who made a similar demand of J. M. Barrie. Barrie made no move to open the 1,500-page manuscript, but drawled, "Tell me, young man: are there any drums or any trumpets in your novel?" "Mr. Barrie," protested the author, "It's not that kind of a novel at all." "Perfect," beamed Barrie, "Call it 'No Drums, No Trumpets.'"

Selections from typical college comic magazines (and if they sound vaguely familiar, it's because the same stories, or facsimiles thereof, were appearing when the editors were handlebar mustaches and you still could snag a free lunch with a ten-cent schooner of beer):

"I can't stand necking," she protested softly. "So what do you say we sit down?" "She talked in her sleep, so I sent her home to mother."

"I'm knee deep in love with that dame."

These Days

Right of Passport Should Be Defined

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NEW YORK — In a letter to the New York Times, Dr. Otto Nathan, who quarreled with the State Department over his passport and got it through the courts, states categorically: "The right of a citizen to travel cannot be restricted."

In this letter, Dr. Nathan reduces the passport functions of the State Department to a mere registry. He says:

"My legal advisers argued that the State Department only has discretion in purely administrative matters such as the size of the passport photo, but does not enjoy any discretion in substantive matters and that it is unconstitutional to apply political standards to passport applications, as the State Department does."

IF THIS IS CORRECT, Congress should clearly define the nature of a passport, which countries an American may travel, and by what method a passport may be lifted if its possessor becomes a problem in this country.

The passport is a statement by the United States that the bearer is a citizen in good standing, that American officials abroad are required to protect him by whatever means they possess, that in the event of war or revolution, the American government will employ such methods as it may devise to safeguard him.

In 1918, because I bore an American passport, I was put on a train at Petrograd with other Americans and permitted to leave Russia. Between 1919-1921, I lived in China under extraterritoriality, protected from bandits and other marauders who were then extant in that country. In 1919 during the students movement, I was called to the American consulate in Shanghai and notified that my passport might be lifted if I actively partook in a revolution against the recognized government of China. In 1919, a group of Koreans wanted me to go to Paris to represent them at the peace conference. I could not get permission at the time. In 1923, in Tokyo, during the frightful earthquake, my wife and I were rescued by the American government after we had slept on the street for five nights. The State Department, Army and Navy cooperated in looking after Americans in distress. Some had inadequate funds and they were aided.

IT IS ABSURD to suggest that an American is free to go where he pleases in a disturbed world and to do whatever he pleases and then to have the privilege of calling upon the American government for aid if he gets into trouble. Dr. Otto Nathan is a refugee who has prospered here. In the United States, he has taught economics and has lectured before organizations. In the judgment of the State Department, it is not to the best interest of the United States that he should travel in Europe. They say that they have satisfactory data to uphold their view but this data they cannot make public.

They may be altogether wrong about Dr. Nathan or anybody else. But someone has to decide to whom a passport should be given and from whom it should be withheld. Such a decision is the right of any country. The agency constituted to make such a decision ought to have its rights from specific laws. Dr. Nathan's lawyers say that there are no such laws, except the McCarran Internal Security Act, the constitutionality of which is being challenged. If these lawyers are correct, Congress ought to pass a law forthwith.

THERE SEEMS to be a blind area in our laws in which administrative judgment rather than the acts of Congress prevail. In Great Britain such areas are regarded as essential to the correct functioning of government. For instance, they do not have a single law on their statute books concerning the vast process of banking. That area is left to the judgment of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and even more to the governor of the Bank of England. This method works very well.

Perhaps it is a matter of temperament, we needing laws to keep us in restraint. Franklin D. Roosevelt employed the device of the executive order probably more, and more effectively, than any predecessor; for this he was criticized by his opponents. It is clear, however, that it is practically impossible to run Congress for a law covering each picaresque detail of administration. In these days of complex living, such a process would end in paralysis of both Congress and the administration.

GOP Finds Sec. Hobby Obstinate About Quitting

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Now that the GOP national committee has greased the skids for Sec. of Health Oveta Culp Hobby and even picked her successor, it can't get the obstinate lady to resign.

Her patient replacement, Marion Folsom, is waiting like a gentleman for her to make the first move. But she won't budge.

Though she originally threatened to resign over the Salk mix-up, she has exercised her feminine prerogative to change her mind and now seems determined to see the Salk battle through to the end.

Mrs. Hobby first spoke to the White House about resigning before the polio problem hit the headlines. She gave her husband's ill health as her excuse. Then she suddenly found herself in the middle of the Salk whirl.

After a presidential scolding for her handling of the problem, she burned to a crisp and threatened to go back to Texas. Her advisers warned, however, that it would look bad for her to resign under fire. So she stuck to her desk. But every time she opened her mouth, the politicians at GOP headquarters winced.

"She blandly belittled the Salk problem when the papers were reporting children dying from bad vaccine," complained one top Republican. "Now she associates those who are against socialized medicine with the whole Salk mess. Before you know it, she'll have people believing maybe socialized medicine is a good thing."

Meanwhile, she is brushing off the polite suggestions from Republican headquarters that she ought to resign right away for her husband's sake.

Cheese Scandal
It hasn't been advertised as part of the GOP farm program, but Sec. of Agriculture Benson has been paying cheese subsidies not to the dairy farmers but to the cheese manufacturers.

This novel "farm support" program has enriched a few big producers, while the farmers have collected next to nothing.

Yet the whole idea of price supports is to help the farmers.

The great cheese scandal was uncovered by House investigators, who have been mousing around in the government's cheese. As an example of what has been going on, they reported in a confidential memo to the House government operations committee:

"During March, 1954, the Commodity Credit Corporation purchased approximately 180 million pounds of cheese at 37 cents per pound. In April about 80 million pounds of this cheese was resold to the original manufacturers at 34 cents a pound. The loss to the government on the purchase-resale transaction was apparently $2.5 million."

In other words, the cheese producers bought their own cheese back from the government and made nearly three cents per pound profit on the deal within a month. What's even more shocking, the cheese never so much as left the producer's warehouses. The whole transaction was carried out on paper, and the manufacturer's collected their profit without moving a pound of cheese.

Like most other farm policies, the cheese program was adopted with a minimum of advice from farmers but after careful consultation with the cheese industry. In other words, this plan to enrich the cheese manufacturers came largely from the manufacturers. One of those consulted, for example, was Carl Berst, whose big Wisconsin cheese company promptly sold 5,275,116 pounds of cheese to the government, then bought it back for more than $150,000 profit.

Ripe Profits
Borden and Kraft executives were also consulted in advance about the cheese subsidy program. Afterward, investigators reported, culture auditor agreed that "before this thing is ended, many heads will be lopped off."

Huston also explains how the cost of grain-storage bins dropped mysteriously after he began his investigation.

"This was indicated," he says, "by the fact that for approximately the same bushel capacity, one procurement cost the Commodity Credit Corporation $20,250,000. The difference between the two procurements, therefore, reflects substantial savings of approximately $2,250,000."

A company with connections inside the Department of Agriculture got special treatment when it bid on a contract for ventilating machinery to be used in storage facilities, according to Huston's report. After all the bids were submitted, the favored company was called on the telephone and allowed to change its offer "so as to supply the fan and motor assemblies with 16-gauge steel instead of the 24-gauge contained in its offer."

Dried-Milk Windfall

Most damaging revelation in the confidential document concerns a special deal whereby the Commodity Credit Corporation allowed manufacturers of animal feeds to buy dried milk for three and a half cents a pound. The CCC had paid sixteen and a half cents a pound for the milk when acquired under the price support program.

The feed manufacturers reaped windfall profits, since, in spite of the money they saved when they bought the dried milk from the CCC, the price of animal feeds didn't drop later. On the contrary, it went up.

Huston learned that the three-and-a-half-cent price "was set following an informal conference with representatives of the American Feed Manufacturers Association held in Washington March 24, 1954."

"A substantial profit was possible as a result of the low price at which this vast volume of dried milk was sold," he declares.

Obviously the dried milk was sold to the feed manufacturers as a substitute for soybeans, which were in short supply that year due to bad crops. However, Huston found that "a more equitable and realistic price of at least five and a half or six and a half cents per pound . . . would have saved the taxpayers more than $10,000,000."

He noted that "while this sales program was in progress and for some time prior thereto, the department disposed of rather large quantities of infested, caked, or otherwise damaged dried milk" at 7.71 cents a pound.

The investigator concluded that Department of Agriculture "personnel in charge of the sale of dried milk under this program have taken credit for a superlative accomplishment—having sold more dried milk at a greater overall loss to the taxpayers than ever before in all history."

Senators who now have hold of Huston's remarkable document think the American people should know about it and will ask either the government operations or agriculture committee of the Senate to conduct public hearings.

Sen. Humphrey's Demands on Peron Protest Overruled

WASHINGTON — The State Department Wednesday turned down a demand by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) that Secretary Dulles protest what Humphrey called "President Peron's persecution of the Roman Catholic Church in Argentina."

The department said it subscribed to "expressions by Argentine authorities" condemning the burning and looting of churches.

But it said a formal protest would be intervention in the internal affairs of Argentina. The department's position was set forth in a letter from Asst. Secretary Thruston B. Morton to Humphrey.

McCarthy Vote Shows Senate Confidence in Ike

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower can take enormous comfort from the clobbering Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) took this week, not because it was McCarthy, but from the significance of the clobbering. The Senate smashed 77-4 a proposal by McCarthy which would have interfered with, if it didn't wreck, Eisenhower's dealings with the Russians in the Big Four meeting in July.

Cleanliness Key to Cure Of Infection

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Strict attention to personal cleanliness is essential for anyone suffering from pinworm infection. It's especially important for parents to know what to do for it, since about 45 per cent of school-age children become infected with pinworms.

Generally, these small white worms are found in the upper part of the large intestine and cause intense itching around the rectum and frequently in the nose.

Piperazine is effective in treating this infection. But whatever the drug your doctor will prescribe for you or your youngster, you must heed the following general instructions:

Scrub Hands

The patient must scrub his hands and fingernails with a brush and soap after toilet and before each meal. Keep the fingernails short, because pinworms are frequently carried to the mouth or nose under fingernails. Also, keep the fingers away from the mouth and nose.

If your child is the one who is infected, be sure that he keeps all toys out of his mouth. Sterilize his metal toys in a hot oven.

The patient should take a shower each morning, washing especially well around the rectal and genital areas. Toilet seats should be scrubbed after use.

Use a separate towel and washcloth for the face.

Wear snug cotton underpants to bed each night.

Soak or Boil

Each day change any soiled underwear, bed clothes, washcloths and towels. You can either boil all linen well or soak it in a solution of household ammonia for one hour and then rise thoroughly. Make this solution by adding two teacups of ammonia to each 10 gallons of water.

Air out all rooms in your house for two hours each day.

Vacuum each room every day.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

M. J. S.: I am concerned about an enlarged liver. What treatment do you advise?

Answer: An enlarged liver comes from many causes, such as infections of various types, malaria, typhoid fever, tumors, gallstones, or congestion due to poor condition of the heart. An examination is needed in every case to determine the exact cause for the difficulty. Whether or not the treatment will clear up the condition depends entirely upon what is producing it.

'Illegal Marriage' Ends After 40 Years

PASADENA, Calif. — The 40-year marriage of a retired sea captain was annulled Thursday when he testified the ceremony was illegally performed.

Capt. Simon Erickson, 65, told superior court he married Julia Erickson in Duluth, Minn., on Dec. 12, 1914, without knowing that his divorce from a previous husband was not final at that time.

He separated from her 10 years ago, upon learning that the marriage was invalid, he said. Mrs. Erickson now resides in Superior, Wis.

"I shipped to sea as captain of a freighter and it didn't enter my mind to commence this action until two years ago," he informed the court. The annulment was granted by default.

About a fifth of U. S. crop and range land has been seriously damaged by water or wind, says the 20th Century Fund.

The vote was, in effect, an expression of confidence by an overwhelming number of senators of both parties in letting Eisenhower use his own judgment at the meeting in Geneva.

Only four Republicans, including McCarthy, voted for the proposal. All the Democrats and other Republicans on the floor at the time joined forces in refusing to tell Eisenhower what he should do or handcuff him before he started.

This was the kind of bipartisan support presidents dream about but which few get on the eve of the kind of negotiations Eisenhower faces.

Credit to Johnson
McCarthy's defeat was engineered by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Democratic leader of the Senate. Standing right beside him was Sen. Knowland of California, the Republicans' Senate leader.

Eisenhower has received more cooperation from the Democrats on foreign policy since they took over in January than he got from his own Republicans in the two previous years when they ran the Senate.

For in those two years the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign policy was under constant attack by McCarthy. And even Knowland repeatedly and publicly differed with the President. Knowland hasn't been doing that lately.

The cooperation given Eisenhower by the Democrats in the foreign field is particularly conspicuous when compared with the constant criticism heaped on his Democratic predecessor Harry Truman by the Republicans.

McCarthy proposed that the Senate tell Eisenhower to demand of Russia, before the Big Four meeting, an agreement to discuss the question of Communist control in countries in Asia and Europe.

Meeting at Stake

If the Senate went along with McCarthy—and if Eisenhower let the Senate dictate to him how to handle foreign affairs and made the demand on the Russians—the latter probably would have reused any meeting. If, by the far-fetched chance they agreed, they in turn could make demands on Eisenhower.

Johnson said McCarthy was trying to put Eisenhower in a strait-jacket. McCarthy's sudden introduction of his suggestion Monday and wanted fast action. Johnson said he'd get it. He sent the proposal to the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee at once.

On Tuesday that group, made up of Democrats and Republicans, condemned it 14-0. Then Johnson brought it out on the floor Wednesday. The vote that followed was a slaughter for McCarthy and a hearty pat on the back for Eisenhower.

Thye Discloses U. S. Stand on Selling of Lime

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has taken a hands-off attitude on the question of whether a Wisconsin county can sell agricultural lime to Minnesota farmers.

The department's position was disclosed Thursday by Sen. Thye (R-Minn.) who had forwarded to the department a protest that Polk County, Wis., was selling the lime in Minnesota at a lower price than that quoted by private concerns. Thye said the county pays no state or local taxes and sells the lime at cost.

C. M. Ferguson, administrator of the federal extension service, wrote Thye it appeared that under Wisconsin law Polk County is authorized to produce agricultural limestone and sell it at cost.

Ferguson also said that officials of Pine County, Minn., have requested Polk County to submit bids for delivery of limestone in Pine County under the county agricultural stabilization and conservation program.

Ferguson said it was also reported that the Minnesota attorney general has ruled that it is an entirely legal procedure. Ferguson gave no indication the department intended to take any position in the matter.

Several Minnesota limestone concerns have protested to Thye through an attorney. Thye said he intended to pursue the matter further.

Boy Stabbed To Death in Park Chase

PASO ROBLES, Calif. (AP)—A 19-year-old boy grabbed a steak off a barbecue grate last night and was stabbed to death accidentally in an ensuing chase.

Dist. Atty. Herbert Grundell said no charges are being filed. He gave this account:

The county park superintendent, Leroy Sherwin, accidentally stabbed Walter George Tieszen. Chasing the boy, Sherwin forgot he was carrying a butcher knife and barbecue fork.

As Sherwin lunged for the boy, the knife passed into Tieszen's chest.

The boy's father—Business Agent Nick Tieszen of the AFL Laborers Union—is on vacation and was last reported in Wenatchee, Wash.

The sheriff said Sherwin and a large family group were picnicking at Atascadero Lake when young Tieszen and another 19-year-old boy darted past and Walter grabbed one of two huge steaks Sherwin was barbecuing.

He entered the Minneapolis hospital May 16 but was taken home June 6 by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer List.

His condition weakened and he spent several days last week in the Clintonville hospital receiving oxygen. He was transferred here Monday to receive special care until he returns to the Minneapolis hospital July 18.

The University of Minnesota has informed the family that the surgeon who will perform the operation is donating his services. However, the university says the average cost of hospitalization for such surgery is about $1,500.

Clintonville businessmen, who started a drive called "Operation List" to help the family over the financial hurdles of Billy's ailment, have collected about $2,900.

Let's get Growing

By A. F. SHIRA

SOME JUNE SUGGESTIONS

SINCE tomato plants are now in blossom and some already have small tomatoes, it is a good time to give them some extra feeding.

Make a shallow trench around each plant about six inches from the stem, scatter a handful of a balanced fertilizer in it and mix well with the soil. Water, and when it has soaked away pull some of the dry topsoil over the fertilized area. Avoid any fertilizer that is very high in nitrogen, since it induces plant growth, but reduces the number and size of the fruit.

If you have some glad bulbs yet they should be put in the ground to plant for a succession of bloom, now. And don't forget to spray or dust your glads with DDT at 10-day intervals from the time they are about eight inches high until the spikes are well formed. You can never be certain to avoid thrip damage unless this is done.

June is the month of roses and it is a good time to start feeding them for best results. Once a month feed them with a balanced fertilizer as indicated above for tomatoes, only make the trenches around the plants about 12 inches from the stems. Mulching your roses with grass clippings or other weed-free material will help conserve moisture and discourage weeds.

If you have a strawberry bed that fruited this year, now is a good time to start a new one, and you should start a new one each year, you know, for more and better berries. Use some of the best new plants from the old bed for starting the new one. Of course, you will have to water them well when you set them out.

If you do not have space for a new strawberry bed, you might set the plants along your perennial or shrub border. They will do well there where they get a fair amount of sunshine each day. They will prove to be quite decorative in such a location.

While we are on the subject of small fruits, if you have space in your yard for a small tree, why not plant a cherry tree next spring. There are several kinds of sour cherry trees now available including one developed at the University of Minnesota farm that do not grow very large. Even when the trees are mature most of the cherries can be picked from a small stepladder.

A cherry is attractive as a specimen tree not only when in full bloom in the spring but, also, when laden with the luscious red fruit in the summer. Fresh cherry pie is a gourmet's delight and, as I have oft-times thought, is good for the soul.

Many years ago this area was the cherry center of Minnesota and the variety grown was known as the "Homer" cherry. Now, one sees but few cherry trees in this section. We have five trees with ripening fruit in our yard that are direct descendants of this old variety.

The trees serve as generous cafeterias for the young robins, catbirds and cedar waxwings. We have some mulberry trees to help detract the birds from the cherries, but they usually get their share just the same. And, why not? They surely earn their keep in view of the many destructive insects they devour.

If you have not already done this little chore, now is the time to cut the bloomed-off stems from the peonies and iris. The plants will be stronger and present a better appearance. Cut the iris stems down close to the rhizomes.

Restaurant Owner Notes Gain in Milk

County Agent Says Advertising May Have Started Trend

By GORDON R. ANDERSON
Winona County Agent

LEWISTON, Minn. —Last week a woman who has been in the restaurant business for several years made an interesting comment. She said that the number of customers who are ordering milk with their meals has increased markedly.

Let us hope that the dairy farmers through their advertising associations, such as ADA, have at last started a trend. Let us not forget that the trend toward vegetable fats took a long time to get started, but when it did get started it was in.

Those of you who contribute from your milk checks to promote your product are on the way to being paid off. If you are irritated by the few remaining free-loaders, take comfort in the proposition that the type of mind which refuses to recognize the value of advertising, is also the type which will run its business down the drain sooner or later, and more likely sooner.

The Witoka Calf Show is moving out of Witoka for the first time in its 28-year history. Although the committee was not unanimously in favor of the move, it was approved because many recognized that each year the attendance has been increasing, and for the past few years the Witoka facilities have been inadequate to handle these large crowds. The 1955 show will be July 3 at the Farmers Community Park as a one-year experiment. The park is located just off Highway 14 between Lewiston and Stockton.

Grasshoppers, leaf hoppers, army worms and other assorted little rascals enjoy the exact part of our forage crops which we are concerned about getting into the barn or silo, namely the leaves. By the time we notice their presence in alarming numbers, much damage has already begun. Control of younger ones also requires one-half the amount of insecticides as does the control of the big ones. Ask us about control methods.

If you are interested in comparing out varieties, the county plots at Choates (Highway 61) and at Paul Baer's (Fremont) are at a nice stage for observation. On July 5 we'll have a university agronomist at both plots to discuss small grain varieties, and to answer questions concerning all cropping problems. We'll announce that day in more detail next week.

We are trying to make up-to-date mailing lists so the farmer can notify you personally of information and events you will enjoy. If you want to get on the lists, send us a postcard with name, mailing address and subject such as dairy, beef, swine, poultry, agronomy, marketing and so forth, which interest you.

Watch Cutworms, University Advises

MADISON—Watch for a sneak attack on garden and farm crops by cutworms, warns E. H. Fisher, University of Wisconsin insect control specialist.

He says: Check your corn, onions, tomatoes, cabbage and other susceptible crops every two or three days this summer for damage by cutworms. These pests stay underground and do much of their feeding at night or on cloudy days. Toxaphene and dieldrin are your best insecticide choices for cutworms, according to Fisher. Spray two pounds of toxaphene or one-half pound dieldrin per acre.

If toxaphene and dieldrin aren't available, you can use DDT or chlordane at two pounds or heptachlor, endrin, or dieldrin at one half-pound per acre.

Attack Grasshoppers Now, Agent Advises

By T. A. PARKER
Pepin County Agent

DURAND, Wis.—The grasshopper hatch is getting well under way. Small "nymphs" or young grasshoppers may be found along fences, roadsides, in grass waterways, in pastures, edges of woods and similar grassy areas.

Control them before they spread to crops. The small grasshoppers, can be controlled where they hatch at much less cost for materials, and with less time, than later when they have spread into crops.

Here are some of the common recommended materials, and the recommended rates per acre, for use on small grasshoppers:

Aldrin, ½ pound; Chlordane, ½ pound; Dieldrin, ½ pound; Endrin, ½ pound; Heptachlor, ½ pound, and Toxaphene, ½ pound.

You'll need to double these amounts of spray materials when grasshoppers get larger.

All of these materials, Aldrin and Heptachlor are the best on feed crops (including pasture), when we consider the residue hazard—they can be used up to one and one-half weeks before harvest or grazing. The others require various waiting periods of three weeks or longer.

To control leafhoppers on second growth alfalfa, spray before insects yellow and stunt it. Three years of trials in several Wisconsin counties have shown that spraying second growth alfalfa for leafhopper and plant bug control averaged more than double the feed value, compared with unsprayed alfalfa in the same field. The insecticide cost was $1 to $2 per acre, and increased feed value was $15. Spraying prevented yellowing and stunting caused by combined leafhopper and plant bug feeding—they suck sap from plants and cause internal breakdown.

• Spray second-growth alfalfa when it is regrown six to eight inches from the first cutting, especially if it was cut on the early side (up to 10 per cent blossom).

• You will get good results with an emulsifiable solution of one of the following insecticides, mixed with water and applied at 10 gallons or more per acre: One-half pound methoxychlor or one pound malathion.

• If only a few grasshoppers are present, these sprays will be adequate. If grasshoppers are abundant, add one-eighth pound of aldrin or heptachlor per acre.

• Alfalfa thus sprayed is safe for livestock in one to two weeks.

If you want more information, please get in touch with me by telephone, or drop in at the office. Please pass this information along to your neighbors.

Wisconsin Crop Outlook Still Good

MADISON—Wisconsin's crop outlook for this year continues good, according to the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service for Wisconsin.

May was a month of above normal temperatures and below normal rainfall. Weather conditions were generally good for field work and for the state as a whole planting has been done on time this spring.

While crop progress has been good for the state, conditions in the northwestern counties have not been favorable for crop production this spring. The cool, wet weather at the beginning of June improved crop prospects in the drought area of the state and generally aided the growth of hay and pastures. But corn cultivating and haying have been slowed by the rains.

Pasture and hay conditions at the beginning of the month were above the rather high average of recent years and better than reported a year ago. Pasture conditions averaged 85 per cent of normal and hay 88 per cent, according to June 1 reports made by Wisconsin crop correspondents.

These farmers indicated that the condition of alfalfa was considerably higher than the condition of clover and timothy hay.

1 Million to Compete In Plowing Matches, Hayfield Man Claims

HAYFIELD, Minn. —"More than one million plowmen will compete in organized plowing contests this year with the goal of being crowned champion of the world at the third annual world plowing matches in Sweden October 8-9," Alf Larsen, board member and team manager, announced today.

He said that 16 countries will be represented in the matches in Sweden including contestants and spectators from the United States. He added that a great many people have expressed interest in the matches in a visit to Europe.

A special group led by Larsen will leave via Scandinavian Airlines Sept. 30 and arrive in Sweden the following day.

4-H'ers Offered Tips in Choosing A Demonstration

By CARROLL LODAHL
Assistant Winona County Agent

LEWISTON, Minn. —Here are some suggestions for Winona County 4-H'ers who have been wondering how to select a demonstration for county fair or achievement day.

Four-H'ers learn to do many useful and practical things in their activities and projects, and a demonstration is one way of sharing these ideas.

Choose a subject with which you have had experience, possibly one that has grown out of your project work. Select one that you think is practical, important, timely and can be easily done.

Make sure the topic has some action. The word "demonstration" suggests that the demonstrator will be doing something in addition to talking, so don't disappoint your audience — and the judges.

A catchy, descriptive title will make the audience interested immediately.

To be certain that your demonstration teaches safe and sound practices in agriculture and home economics, obtain the approval of the county extension office.

The size of the job being done determines whether the demonstration should be individual or team. Working together with a teammate gives good practice in cooperation.

Adequate preparation is very important for a good demonstration. It should be planned at least a month ahead of time. Four-H and extension bulletins are good reference materials.

After selecting and planning, your next step to a successful demonstration is practice.

If your club is planning a club tour and would like to have someone from the extension office go along, contact the office to make sure the date is open.

Trench Silo Gaining in Fillmore Co.

By Harold Karli
Fillmore County Soils Agent

PRESTON, Minn. —During the past several weeks quite a number of trench silos have been constructed on Fillmore County farms. The popularity of this type of storage is due to several considerations.

Generally the silo investment, in terms of storage cost per ton is about one third as great as for upright storage. Frozen silage is not a problem in the trench and labor is saved in feeding, especially where self-feeding is employed. Also cost of filling the trench is reduced since a blower is generally not used.

Trench and bunker silos have sometimes been criticized on the basis of excessive spoilage losses. However, farmer experience in the past several years indicates that spoilage loss can be kept very low if a few precautions are observed.

The wall should be as smooth as possible and slope outward about one foot for each four feet of wall height. This seems to be important since, as the silage settles, it tends to wedge itself against the wall.

Packing should be continuous as the filling progresses and is usually accomplished by driving the tractor and wagon through the trench in unloading besides another tractor operating in the trench between loads.

A number of methods have been employed to control surface spoilage with varying degrees of success. Very good results have been obtained where the last several loads of silage were quite high in moisture and the surface immediately packed with a tractor until tractor tracks are no longer visible.

Immediately following about two inches of agricultural limestone was added and wet down with a hose. If limestone is placed much thicker it may be difficult to remove in extremely cold weather. Any cover may be used which will exclude air shortly after filling and remain quite airtight.

Freezing, Canning Recipes Given For Raspberries

By MISS HELEN STETZER
Pepin County Home Demonstration Agent

DURAND, Wis. (Special) —With raspberries starting to ripen, home-makers are planning for the task of preserving them. For those who would like to can as well as freeze some, the following cold pack method is a good one to use:

Wash berries and drain well, fill jar to one-half inch of top, shake while filling for a full pack, cover with boiling syrup, leaving one-half inch space at top, adjust lids, process in boiling water bath 20 minutes for either pint or quart jars.

The following methods of freezing may be used:

Whole — Raspberries may be frozen in sugar or syrup or unsweetened. Seedy berries are best for use in making purees or juice. Select fully ripe, juicy berries. Sort, wash carefully in cold water and drain thoroughly.

Sugar pack — To one quart (one and one-third pounds) berries add three-fourths cup sugar and mix carefully to avoid crushing, put in containers, leaving head space, seal and freeze.

Syrup pack — Put berries into containers and cover with cold 40 per cent syrup leaving head space, seal and freeze. Forty per cent syrup is made with 3 cups of sugar and 4 cups of water, yielding 5½ cups.

Few Farmers In Area to Vote In Referendum

Only Ten Eligible In Winona County, Office Manager Says

Comparatively few farmers from this Minnesota-Wisconsin area will vote in the Saturday wheat marketing quota referendum which will determine government price supports in 1956.

Since a farmer must grow at least 15 acres of wheat in 1956 to be an eligible voter, not many in this dairy and corn belt county. Only 10 farmers in Winona County of the more than 1,700 who till the soil here are eligible to vote, according to Ray Schell, manager of the ASC office, Lewiston. Voting will be conducted there from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday.

At least two-thirds of those who do vote must approve crop quotas set by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to receive top support prices in 1956 with a minimum of $1.81 a bushel announced last week by Secretary Ezra Benson.

If more than a third of those who go to the polls turn down government regulation of the wheat crop in 1956, support prices will slip to $1.19 a bushel for those farmers who stay within government wheat acreage allotments.

Should the acreage allotment be accepted Saturday, support prices in 1956 would range between $1.81 and $2.38 per bushel depending on market situations.

In Buffalo County, polls will be open at the Alma ASC office from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. according to Fred Sutter, chairman of the county ASC committee.

Chairman Raymond Lamberson, Trempealeau County, has set the election there for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the county ASC office, Whitehall.

Waterways Built, Thompson Reports

By HENRY THOMPSON
Trempealeau County SCS

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—Farmers in Trempealeau County have taken much interest this spring in building waterways and diversions.

Over three miles of waterways and two miles of diversions have been built this spring, and several more farmers have indicated to our office that they will build more of them this fall.

We have had a lot of this work, and have had very fine cooperation from the Trempealeau County Highway Department in furnishing equipment for it. Without this type of equipment it would have been impossible for the farmers to get this work done.

The Soil Conservation Service has completed a gully survey on Ignatz Sossalla's farm in the Town of Arcadia, and a permanent structure will be built there this fall. Several farmers have requested layout of contour strips this fall through the ASC program.

Farmers who plant to lay their land out this fall for strip cropping should contact the Soil Conservation District office at Whitehall now so plans can be made for doing the work. Notifying the office now will help you get assistance in laying out the strips when you want it done.

Spring Pig Crop Up 9 Per Cent on Minnesota Farms

ST. PAUL — The spring pig crop in Minnesota totaled 4,691,000 head, up 9 per cent from the 4,317,000 head saved in the spring of 1954, based on reports made by livestock producers about June 1 to the State-Federal Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Sows farrowed this spring were 1 per cent less than farmers intended last March, although 4 per cent more than intended last December. This spring, litters averaged 8.94 pigs—the highest of record—and compares with 8.83 last year and the 10-year average of 8.38 pigs.

Based on June 1 intentions, a 7 per cent increase over last year in fall farrowings also is anticipated. The increase will occur in the late fall as producers are actually planning a decrease of 4 per cent in June-August farrowings, but an increase of 5 per cent for the September-November period. This is a continuation of the trend toward smoothing out the seasonal peak in hog marketings with more sows farrowing in the fall and winter months.

The number of all hogs on Minnesota farms June 1 at 5,508,000 head was 6 per cent above a year ago, and the number 6 months old and over at 940,000 was 3 per cent lower.

'Press as You Sew' Will Help Produce Professional Look

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special)—You'll give home-sewn garments that professional look if you press as you sew, says Mrs. Sylvia Shiras, Trempealeau County home demonstration agent.

The trick is to press each part of the garment before you join it to another. After making a seam, open it and press it flat before you cross another seam. Press in the same direction you stitched.

Curved areas which fit the rounded parts of the body need to be shaped. Use a pressing cushion—a ham shape is good for general use—to get rounded darts and sleeve caps.

For the crisp look, sharpen edges of lapels, collars and cuffs. Mrs. Shiras suggests: A "beater" made of hardwood and lay it firmly on the edges after you've used the steam iron. Or you can use a regular iron with a damp cheese cloth.

Heat, moisture and pressure are applied in top pressing according to the fabric. This is one on the right side with a press cloth such as cheese cloth.

Following his return to the U.S., Coskran entered the University of Minnesota, where he received his master's degree in social work in June of this year. His salary will be about $315 a month.

Municipal Court

Three charges against the youthful driver of a car involved in an accident at 11:07 a. m. Thursday were referred to juvenile authorities.

Curtis Rinn, 17, Goodview road, was charged with reckless driving, failing to stop for an official stop sign and operating a vehicle with a permit issued under another name. Rinn was apprehended after the car he was driving failed to negotiate a turn onto Franklin street from Sanborn street, went over a curb on the southwest corner of the intersection, blew a tire and landed in the boulevard.

The car Rinn was driving narrowly missed a police patrol car while driving west on Sanborn street toward Franklin. The police turned the patrol car around and started to follow Rinn, noticing that his car was traveling at an excessive speed.

Rinn began to apply the brakes as he neared the intersection, but was apparently unable to stop for the arterial and skidded across the intersection.

Richard W. Hanson, 26, 352 Mankato Ave., forfeited a $20 deposit posted following his arrest at 12:50 a. m. Wednesday on East Wabasha street. He was charged by police with illegal speed of 45 miles per hour in a 30-mile zone from Hamilton street to High Forest street. The fine was imposed in consideration of conviction last year on a careless driving charge.

Trials were set for two matters. William Lawrence, 32, Dresbach, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of having illegal license plates. He was arrested by police at 1:28 p. m. Thursday on West Broadway. Trial was set for 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Continued for two weeks was the case against Elmer Volkman, 40, 515 Center St., who was charged with failing to have a drivers license in his possession when stopped by police at 1:40 p. m. Thursday on West Broadway. Volkman said he had applied for a license but never received a reply from the Minnesota Department of Highways license division. He was instructed to seek action in the matter.

Two drivers entered guilty pleas and paid $5 fines on charges of no driver's license in possession. They were Watson Vaughn, Rollingstone, and Marie Trzebiatowski, 266 Kansas St. Both were arrested by police Thursday afternoon.

Deposits of $10 each on charges of illegal brakes were forfeited by George Cady, 1118 Marion St.; Frank Meske, 611½ E. 5th St.; and Marion Knutson, 28, Fourth City, Wis. while similar deposits on charges of having no driver's license were forfeited by Wayne Hotson, 1241 W. ## Transfer of Funds To Balance Badger Budget Approved

MADISON (AP)—Legislative action was completed Thursday on a bill to transfer six million dollars from the state deposit insurance fund to the general fund to help balance the 1955-57 budget.

The Senate concurred, 30 to 1, in a minor Assembly amendment to the bill and sent it to the governor. Laun (R-Kiel) was the only senator to object.

The money has accumulated over several years and has been held in reserve to guarantee bank deposits. As these deposits now are guaranteed by the federal government, state officials said the money should go into the general fund.

Final approval also was given by the Senate to a bill appropriating $500,000 from the general fund for capital improvements such as additional sanitary facilities and rest rooms at state parks. The measure includes $50,000 for use at Cox Hollow State Park in Iowa County. The Senate action in approving a minor Assembly amendment was unanimous.

The Senate refused, 16-15, to withdraw from committee a bill to repeal a law prohibiting public inspection of income tax returns.

Veronica Schneider, 4215 9th St., Goodview, failing to comply with a restricted driver's license. Parking deposits of $1 each were forfeited by: B. D. Conley, Kropp-Clawson Motor Co. (2 counts); Elmer Taras and Roy Lohse, all for overtime parking, and Leaf Laundry Co. (2 counts). William Vondrashek and Alexander Olezewski, for meter violations.

New Ulm Man Denied Added Cavein Damages

ST. PAUL, Minn.—A bulk oil storage plant owner failed to win a new trial from the Minnesota Supreme Court today on grounds a $2,500 jury verdict against the city of New Ulm was inadequate.

Victor W. Bartl, owner of the plant which adjoins the New Ulm baseball field, sued for $39,500 for damage to his tanks and equipment when the ballfield caved in July 10, 1952.

Bartl appealed only from that part of the judgment limiting damages, contending the verdict is insufficient and not justified by the evidence.

Chief Justice Roger Dell, who wrote the decision from which Associate Justice Thomas Gallagher dissented, said that the record reveals the jury exerted an earnest effort to arrive at a fair verdict.

Bartl testified the market value of the entire plant before the accident was $16,000, and that the value after the damage occurred was $2,000.

The city produced a sales engineer who testified an entirely new plant would cost about $5,040.

Justice Gallagher said in the dissenting memorandum that the instruction of District Judge B. M. Heinzen of Marshall that there had been "misstatements of fact" in the argument of Bartl's counsel, with further explanation, was prejudicial to Bartl's cause.

"As a result thereof," Justice Gallagher contended, "the jury may have lost confidence in plaintiff's claims and minimized his loss."

However, Dell said that the verdict is not so disproportionate as to warrant a new trial when considering the equipment had not been in use for several years.

BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggly stepped back a little way from the telephone in his hollow stump bungalow, twinkled his pink nose and exclaimed: "Oh, dear me!"

"Who is it?" asked Nurse Jane, who was standing near the rabbit. "It's Bosun, my jolly old sea dog," answered Uncle Wiggly. "Only Bosun isn't very jolly now."

"What's the matter?" Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy wanted to know. "Bosun is in trouble," answered Uncle Wiggly.

"What sort of trouble?" the muskrat lady inquired. "I don't know," was the rabbit's answer. "He didn't say. He just said he was in trouble and he wants me to come and help him."

"Where is he? Why don't you ask Bosun what sort of trouble he is in?" suggested Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Bosun is aboard my Amusement Raft, tied up along shore in Frog Pond not far from here," answered Uncle Wiggly. "He is telephoning from the raft."

"Well, why don't you hop along and help him?" exclaimed Nurse Jane sort of excited like. "What are you waiting for?"

"You told me," Mr. Longears slowly answered, "to go to the store and get you some lollypops so that you could make gravy for the ice cream cones. But if I go to the store I can't go help Bosun in his trouble."

"My good land eakes alive and some huckleberry hash!" exclaimed Nurse Jane, "don't bother about going to the store for me! I can go to the store myself. You hop along and help Bosun. But first ask him what sort of trouble he is in."

"I'll do that," said Mr. Longears. The rabbit gentleman turned back to the telephone and asked: "What sort of trouble are you in, Bosun?"

Mr. Longears listened a moment. Nurse Jane could not, as you can in some TV pictures, hear what Uncle Wiggly was hearing over the telephone. But at last the rabbit gentleman spoke into the telephone, saying:

"I'll hop right down to the raft and help you, Bosun."

"What sort of trouble is Bosun in?" asked Nurse Jane, as Uncle Wiggly started to leave his bungalow.

"He says it is something he can't explain over the telephone," was the rabbit gentleman's reply to the muskrat lady. "He says I must come to the raft and he will explain."

"Then hurry to the raft," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy quickly and all excited like. "I will go to the store. But when you come back you must tell me what trouble Bosun is in."

"I shall do that," promised Mr. Longears. "It must be serious trouble for Bosun's voice was not very cheerful."

"Maybe he fell off the raft into Frog Pond!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "That had happened, Bosun could not have telephoned," said Mr. Longears. "There are no telephones under water in Frog Pond."

"Very true. I didn't think of that," said Nurse Jane. "Now you hurry to the raft to help Bosun, and I'll run to the store to get the lollypops to make gravy for the ice cream cones. When you come back, I shall expect you to tell me all about it."

"Which I shall be glad to do," promised the rabbit gentleman.

So, while Nurse Jane was hopping to the store, Uncle Wiggly was hopping to his raft. He soon reached it and found Bosun sitting on one of the wooden elephants of the Merry Go Round, looking sad. I mean Bosun was looking sad, not the elephant.

"What's the trouble, Bosun?" Uncle Wiggly asked.

"Shiver my firecracker, Cap'n Wiggly, sir, it's the little cannon!" answered the sea dog.

"What about the little cannon, Bosun? What happened to it? I don't see it on the raft."

"The reason you don't see it, Cap'n Wiggly, sir," answered the old sea dog, "is that the little cannon is lost!"

Uncle Wiggly was very much surprised. More about that in tomorrow's story if the pickled beets don't give the bottle of milk a funny look and turn it sour so there is no cream for the canary bird's coffee.

Georgia Worker Admits Kidnap, Slaying of Girl

ROME, Ga. (AP)—Police Chief Smith Horton said a 37-year-old sawmill worker admitted early today that he abducted 14-year-old Patricia Ann Cook, choked her to death, and then threw her body into the Etowah River.

Horton identified the man as Willie Grady Cochran of nearby Paulding County. He said no charges had yet been filed against Cochran but that kidnap and murder warrants would be issued.

Cochran was arrested Wednesday. He had been reported seen with the girl late Monday.

FBI records, Horton said, showed Cochran had a criminal record that went back to 1942. Cochran was convicted of rape and sent to the state penitentiary in 1945, he said, but was paroled last December.

The former convict gave this account of the slaying, Horton said:

He was looking for a man in the girl's neighborhood Monday and went to her house to make inquiries. Patricia, wearing a bathing suit, answered his ring and accepted his offer to take her to a swimming pool.

Instead, Cochran drove her to a secluded, wooded area and choked her to death. He then went home, obtained a quilt and baling wire, returned and wrapped and bound the body. Then he threw it in the river.

Horton said officers were dragging the river for the girl's body. Feeling was intense at Rome, Horton said, and Cochran was taken to an undisclosed jail for safekeeping.

Refrigerator Gas Blamed for Death Of Three in Cabin

CHIPPewa FALLS, Wis. (AP)—The deaths of three members of one family in their small cabin at Cadott has been blamed by Chippewa County Dist. Atty. Eugene Jackson on asphyxiation due to incomplete combustion of refrigerator gas.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warner and their infant son were found by a relative June 3. Two other children, Michael, 5, and Charles, 2, were unconscious when found but recovered at a hospital.

Authorities considered the possibility of violence because Mrs. Warner's body was found head down, wedged between a mattress and a bed rail, with a sewing box on top of her. Jackson explained that Mrs. Warner had been subject to epileptic seizure and had kept the sewing box on the bed.

The State Crime Laboratory, Jackson said, found concentrations of carbon monoxide in the blood of vital organs sent to the lab for study. He said there was no outside vent for the refrigerator and that windows in the cabin were closed.

County Coroner Dr. Earl Hattberg said the reports will be considered at an inquest Tuesday.

Worker Fatally Hurt

Jaycees Elect Omaha Man at National Meet

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Hugh McKenna, 33-year-old insurance executive from Omaha, Neb., is the new president of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

In a noisy session here Thursday night that had much of the color of a national political convention, McKenna swept into office on the third ballot after trailing Edwin H. May Jr., 30, of Hartford, Conn., 1,204-794.

The final vote was 1,450 for McKenna, 1,197 for May.

McKenna is an administrative assistant of Mutual of Omaha Insurance Co.

The Jaycees also elected 10 vice presidents, including Vic Faust of Delit, Minn.

Officially the Jaycee convention, largest in its history, ended last night.

Lamar Buckner of Ogden, Utah, the outgoing president, was elected to life membership.

VOICE of the OUTDOORS

Tomb of Trees

Perhaps the most unusual tomb or burial mausoleum in the whole Northwest is the cloister of red cedars shown in the above picture made by Merritt Kelley. Daily News photographer, as the evening shadow deepened the other day. It is located in the nearly century-old Beaver Cemetery.

Located on a hill back of the erosion destroyed and nearly forgotten community of Beaver, this cemetery, now in the center of the vast Whitewater Wildlife Refuge, is rated as one of the most attractive bird sanctuaries in the state by George Meyers, superintendent of the refuge. State refuge crews cooperating with the cemetery association, have lent a very helpful hand in maintaining and enriching the restful beauty of this home of deep memories.

Beaver, situated at the junction of Beaver Creek and the Whitewater, was named after the animals that built a giant dam at the point before Stephen Covey built his log house there in 1854. The 40-acre village was plotted in 1856, and William Dooley built a log store there that year. A saw and grist mill followed with a whole colony of settlers.

In recent years, the village was subjected to destructive Whitewater floods and now consists of Jim Young's store and less than half a dozen homes. It has been pictured nationally by the Soil Conservation Service as the community destroyed and nearly buried by soil carried from the rich valley and surrounding highlands by the Whitewater's flash floods.

Reds 'Holding All the Cards,' Senator Says

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) said today the Soviet Union "holds all the real cards" in next month's discussions with the West on Germany.

He said administration foreign policy leaders have "overemphasized the tenuous relationship that now exists between West Germany and Western Europe and hypothesized themselves that this relationship will continue indefinitely."

If Russia really wants a neutral, reunified Germany, he said in an interview, Soviet leaders may well disclose at the Big Four summit conference an intent to advance these "attractive" propositions to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Invite him to "take over" Soviet East Germany; offer him Soviet-controlled territory now held by Poland and the Czechoslovakia Sudetenland, both of which Germany once controlled; and hold out a guarantee of trade concessions.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, Mansfield said, served notice in his San Francisco speech two days ago that Russian leaders will demand the United States give up its air base system in Europe and Africa when the Big Four talks begin at Geneva July 18.

"This is the most significant portion of Molotov's speech," Mansfield said.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California, meanwhile, demanded that the United States refuse to discuss Far East tensions at any international meeting until all Americans held by Communist China are freed.

In a speech here last night, Knowland said "the Chinese Communists should be told that we will not permit them to use our men" in an attempt to extort gain from the United States, and he added:

"Both the United States and the U.N. should make it clear that before any discussions are entered into relative to tensions in the Pacific, all Americans, military and civilians, who are being illegally held should be freed."

Arcadia Hires Plane to Fight Mosquito Problem

ARCADIA, Wis. — They're going to get an airplane to fight the mosquitoes in this town.

The airplane will spray mosquito breeding grounds and hangouts here, not do aerial combat with them.

A decision to spray from the air was made today by a local committee of city officials and members of the Arcadia Lions Club after an earlier spray from the ground appeared to be ineffective.

Bob Young, spokesman for the group, said today that the McCarthy Flying Service, Stevens Point, has been hired to spray the town, including outlying areas. About 100 acres are involved.

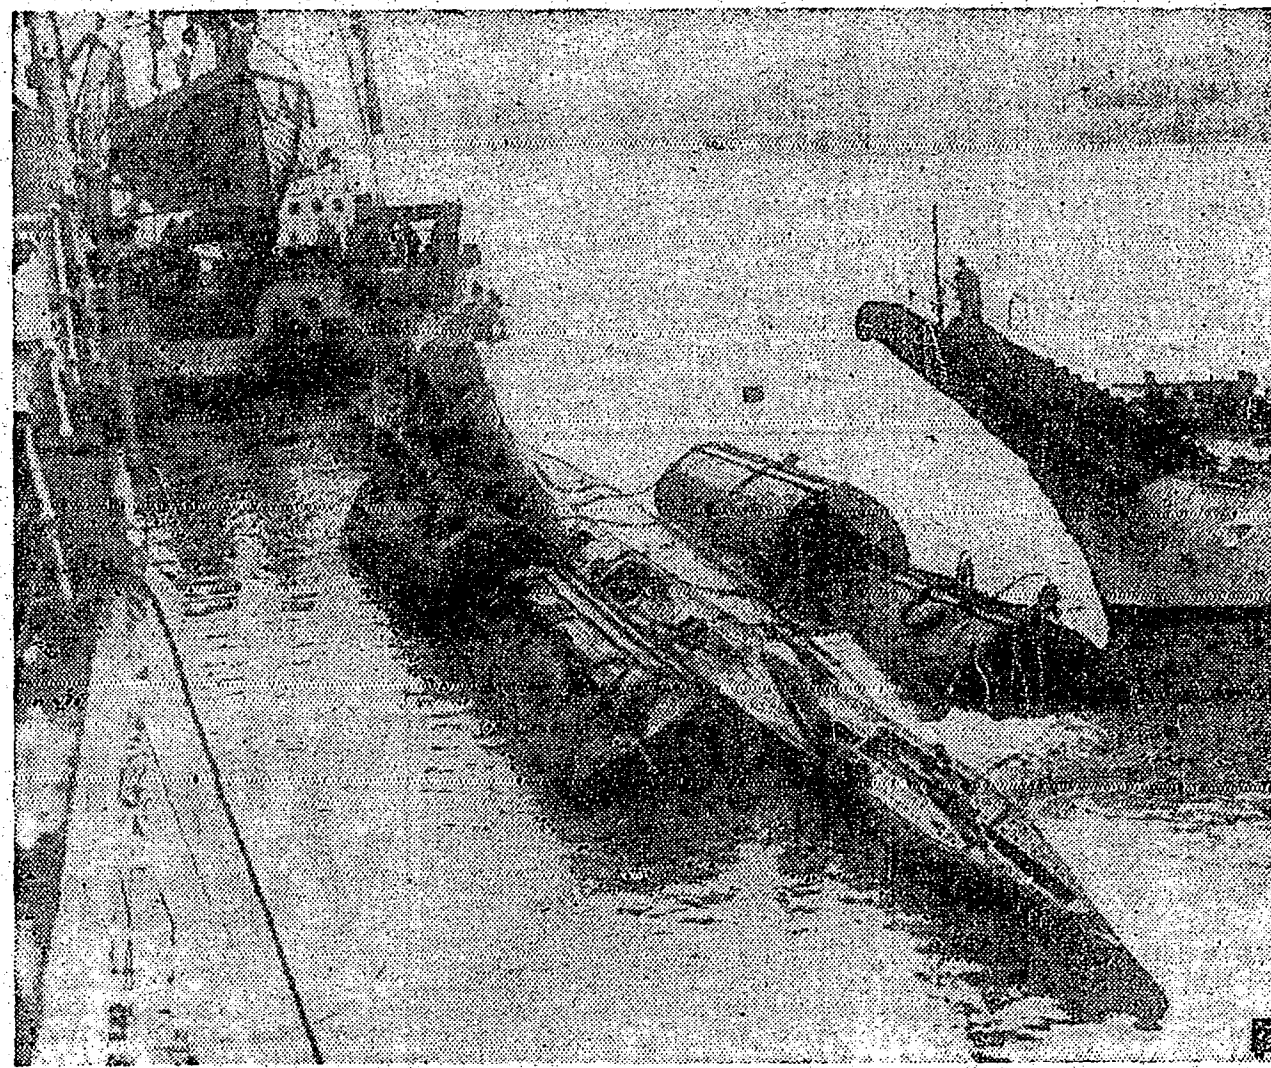

The ground spray was applied early Wednesday but Young declared it was impossible to cover outlying areas.

Cost of the project is being shared by the city and Lions Club. Young said the first spraying cost about $110 plus some labor and the air spray will cost $375.

Others on the committee are Red English, Otmer Schroeder, mayor of Arcadia, and Lyman Maloney. The crew started work at 3:30 a.m. Wednesday using Community Telephone Co. equipment. Both a ground and air spray were used last year to fight the big mosquito population.

RETURN HOME

Mrs. Carl Helmholtz, Lafayette, Calif., and Mrs. Thomas Taylor, Rochester, N. Y., who have been visiting their mother, Mrs. George R. Little, Edgebrook, have returned to their homes.

Badger Senate OKs Lost License Payment Measure

MADISON (AP) — Leading the list of legislation approved by the Senate Thursday was a bill that would require a driver who lost his license because of revocation or suspension to pay $10 for a new one.

The Senate concurred in Assembly approval of the plan offered by Sen. Merten (R-Milwaukee) who estimated the measure would return an additional $130,000 annually to the state.

A bill that would boost state highway fund income by an estimated $34,000 a year was also concurred in and sent to the governor. It passed on a 29-1 vote. It would reduce the amount of loss a bulk gasoline dealer could claim because of shrinkage. Under the plan, retailers would also receive a tax benefit for shrinkage loss, something they can not now claim.

The Senators killed a bill, 20-12, that would have prevented counties from charging more than $1,000 a year for outdoor theater licenses.

And the Senate concurred in these measures:

Permit the state Department of Agriculture to grade food and farm products and charge for such services.

Exempt pensions for wardens, policemen, firemen and Wisconsin Retirement Funds from state and local taxes.

Exempt the first $1,500 of a serviceman's pay from state income taxes.

Appropriate $38,000 to the Department of Public Instruction for a special school milk program.

Appropriate $2,500 a year as state aid to the Cooperative Poultry Improvement Assn., and $1,500 yearly to the Foreign Type Cheese Makers Assn.

Require the Conservation Commission to pay school taxes on state hunting grounds.

Repeat the state tax on cigarette papers, and Permit wardens to come under social security.

La Crescent to Open Bids Monday Evening

LA CRESCENT, Minn. — The village board will meet Monday to open bids on a sewer and water main extension program estimated to cost $77,000.

The project will include the building of a trunk line, a new water main and also new laterals. More than 700 feet of water main will be laid under the program.

The total number of immigrants to the United States before 1927 has been estimated at more than 37 million.

Motorcyclist Escapes With Minor Injuries

Gary Ulbrech, 20, Trempealeau, Wis., was released after treatment of abrasions and contusions at the Winona General Hospital Thursday afternoon.

Ulbrech was injured shortly after 1 p.m. Thursday when the motorcycle he was riding north on Wilson street tipped onto its side just past the intersection with Sanborn street.

He hung onto the motorcycle for a distance and then fell off the cycle coming to rest farther down the street. A physician said, Ulbrech suffered injuries to his arms, legs and face, but was in "satisfactory" condition.

RETURN HOME

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mracek and daughter Kay, Wapato, Wash., who spent two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Miller, 720 W. 4th St., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mracek, 816 E. Broadway, left Wednesday for their home. While here, they attended a reunion of the Mracek family at Plainview, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mracek.

Guests the past two days of Mr. and Mrs. Miller have been Mr. and Mrs. Chilo W. Burnham, Carrington, N. D. They were en route to Cleveland, Ohio, where they will attend the international convention of Kiwanis Clubs. Mr. Burnham, an attorney, was governor of the Minnesota-Dakota district of Kiwanis International in 1940, and this will be the tenth international convention he has attended.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"DON'T YOU WANT TO SEE THE REST OF MY HOUSE, DENNIS?"

LAFF-A-DAY

"That was excellent service, excellent!"

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGUM, D. S.

1. SHOULD YOUNG COUPLES EXPECT THEIR LOVE NEVER TO CHANGE? YOUR OPINION

2. MANY BOYS AND GIRLS ARE DELINQUENT. ARE BOYS NATURALLY WORSE THAN GIRLS? YES NO

3. IS THERE ONE SURE-FIRE WAY OF GETTING PROMOTED IN YOUR JOB? YES NO

Answer to Question No. 1
1. If so, they are in for disappointment. What they really want in their love is not permanence but development. Life itself is change. On this point J. K. Folsom of Vassar said: "If John wishes to love Mary always as intensely as he does now—and she, him—they must perpetually renew their love by learning new things, doing new things, changing their treatment of each other as new needs and circumstances arise." This is growing into life.

Answer to Question No. 2
2. No. It is only a manifestation of the fact that boys and men are more aggressive, more adventurous than girls. A boy's first delinquency is an adventure—the desire for a thrill, to feel important, keep up with the gang. It is far different from the deliberate crime of a seasoned criminal. Delinquency is nearly all due to environment, as shown by sociologist Clifford Shaw's great research.

Answer to Question No. 3
3. Yes, learn more about it. Write er Margery Wilson asked a salesgirl in a china department the story of a piece of china. The girl knew nothing about it. Miss Wilson found she was earning $18.00 a week. "If you would learn the story of what you are selling, you could get $100 a week," said Miss Wilson. The girl did learn and became a highly-paid lecturer on art forms in glass at the Metropolitan Art Museum. If this formula does not get you a promotion, probably nothing will.
