Ranger on Target For Moon Landing

By RALPH DIGHTON
PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. spacecraft Ranger 6 streaked toward doom Saturday with a cargo of cameras that could solve ages-old mysteries before they crash on the moon early Sunday.

At 1 p.m. the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, the 804-pound vehicle would be 211,276 miles from the earth and 35,010 miles from the moon, speeding at 2,361 miles an hour.

It was expected to crash at 1:24 a.m. Sunday in the moon's Sea of Tranquility, a broad flat basin some 400 miles to the right of dead center of the shining disk.

This dry "sea" is being studied as a landing site for manned Apollo moonships later in this decade.

A spokesman for the laboratory, which is controlling Ranger 6 during its 66-hour voyage, said all systems are in a "go" condition.

As the spacecraft streaks nearer the moon, the pull of lunar gravity will increase its speed to almost 6,000 miles an hour at impact.

Ten minutes before the crash, at an altitude of about 900 miles six small television cameras will begin clicking at a rate of 300 shots a minute.

If everything works U. S. scientists will have the first closeup photographs of the moon. The pictures could disclose whether the surface is rough or smooth, made of lava that could wreck a spaceship, or composed of layers of dust that could engulf an entire expedition.

Two earlier vehicles landed on the moon—Russia's Lunik 2 and this country's Ranger 4—but neither sent back any significant information.

Russia's Lunik 3 photographed the back side of the moon but from altitudes of more than 4,000 miles and the pictures were indistinct.

Laboratory officials said Ranger 6 was designed to take pictures down to a few hundred feet above the lunar surface, a fraction of a second before the impact.

Observatories around the world planned to train powerful telescopes on the target area in the hopes of seeing the impact.

Astronomers said the crash would not be visible to the naked eye but that with luck some telescopes might pick up either a flash of light or a huge dust cloud.

Officials said it will be 18 to 48 hours before the processing is completed and pictures released to news media.

Johnson Raps De Gaulle Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson slapped directly at French President Charles de Gaulle Saturday, saying, "It would not be in the interest of freedom to share his view" on neutralizing Southeast Asia.

Johnson, at his first announced-in-advance news conference, said that "As I understand it, the neutralization talk has applied only to South Viet Nam and not to the whole of that area."

"If we could have neutralization of both North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam, I am sure that would be considered sympathetically," Johnson said.

The President's words left newsmen somewhat puzzled because De Gaulle has called for neutralization of both halves of Viet Nam as well as neighboring Laos and Cambodia.

Thus while Johnson was saying he disagreed with De Gaulle, in essence he seemed to be agreeing—at least in theory—since Laos has been officially neutralized and Cambodia avows a neutral stance.

A White House spokesman, saying he wanted to clarify Johnson's statements, said later that the French leader's suggestions had been interpreted in Saigon as envisioning neutralization only of that country. And the spokesman said Johnson was addressing himself to the Saigon interpretation.

Johnson made it clear that his own Viet Nam policy looks toward an immediate stepup in military operations against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

He announced that he had "received assurances from the new and friendly leaders" of the Saigon junta that seized power Wednesday "that they are proceeding immediately" to increase military pressure on the Viet Cong.

Although Johnson said some neutralization plan might receive a sympathetic hearing in Washington, he also said flatly, "I do not agree with General De Gaulle's proposals."

A standing-room-only crowd of reporters jammed into the tiny White House theater for the news conference, at which Johnson also told newsmen:

—Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, who has been mentioned as his possible choice as the Democratic vice-presidential nominee in November would direct the war on poverty.

—He would not comment on two questions about the Senate investigation of Johnson's erstwhile protégé, Robert G. (Bobby) Baker. The President said he had already spoken "with candor and frankness" on this subject.

—He does not expect that the civil rights bill now being debated in the House will have to be trimmed back in order to win enactment. But he said he does expect a Senate filibuster on the subject.

—The President began his conference by reading a lengthy statement in which he argued that the nation's determination to seek peace and freedom had been "demonstrated anew in eight different situations" in the past week.

These ranged from the continuing effort to restore relations with Panama to the "new assurances" that the South Viet Nam junta will step up the war against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Johnson minced no words in replying to a question about his attitude toward De Gaulle's ideas for promoting stability in Southeast Asia.

"I do not agree with General De Gaulle's proposals," said Johnson. The President added that he believed it would "not be in the interests of freedom to share his views."

Johnson defended the United States policy of supporting the anti-guerrilla war and U.S. efforts to see that war "stepped up."

The President said he had sent a message several days ago to the leader of the new Saigon regime, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, suggesting an immediate increase in military pressure against the Viet Cong.

The President said Khanh gave him new assurances that South Viet Nam was "proceeding immediately" with such plans. And Johnson said he sent a personal reply in which he said:

"I am glad to know we see eye to eye on the necessity for stepping up the war against the Viet Cong."

Goldwater to Be in State On Monday

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater makes his first swing Monday into Minnesota, where his strength as a presidential candidate is still somewhat of a mystery.

Goldwater is due to arrive shortly before noon. He'll address a sellout luncheon at the Nicollet Hotel, meet with Republican leaders, hold a news conference and then address a 5 p.m. rally at Macalester College in St. Paul.

Associated Press polls have shown the silver-haired Arizona's popularity high among Republican county chairmen. And, early bidders for national convention seats have announced their selves in Goldwater's camp.

William Holes of St. Cloud, chairman of the Minnesota Goldwater committee, says he has been swamped with ticket requests for Monday's luncheon.

About 1,100 persons will hear him in person, while another 900 or so will listen to Goldwater's noonday talk on closed circuit television in the hotel.

Backers expect 2,000 for the Macalester rally.

If not all are out-and-out fans, the huge numbers at least indicate a goodly curiosity about the man from the West.

Some big names in the Minnesota business and political world are backing Goldwater. Daniel C. Gailey, chairman of the board of Josten's, Inc., at Owatonna, is Goldwater's national finance chairman.

State Auditor Stafford King was an early booster.

Lines to Missile Site Cut Off When Bill Isn't Paid

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (AP)—The Air Force announced Friday night it is paying a $41,000 bill that caused a small telephone company to cut off service to two missile installations.

The base procurement officer at Offutt Air Force Base, Neb., was reported preparing "a voucher in the amount of $41,373.03 payable to the Gem State Utilities Co."

Edward Streigl, president of the company, said he cut off communications service to two underground missile sites for an hour and ten minutes Jan. 21 because the Air Force had failed to respond to repeated demands for payment.

Fire Blackens Out Hospital

CHICAGO (AP)—An electrical explosion followed by fire blacked out the big Cook County Hospital on the West Side Saturday.

The fire was quickly extinguished by firemen, but the hospital remained without electricity. Clocks in the darkened hallways stopped at 3:29 p.m. One man was injured when he was tossed 20 feet.

Many patients left their wards on the courtyard side of the black-square complex and some 30 children were taken from the children's ward into the adjoining county morgue. The youngsters later were sent back to the ward.

Rochester Man Dead In Car-Truck Crash

DODGE CENTER, Minn. (AP)—Wesley R. Elford, 32, Rochester, was killed Saturday when his car and a farm truck collided head-on on U.S. 14 about half a mile east of here.

Officers said the truck, driven by Duane M. Johnson, 17, of Hayfield, had pulled across the center line to pass three cars when the truck met Elford's auto head-on.

Elford, an assembler at the Rochester plant of International Business Machines, died at the scene of head injuries.

Johnson was not hurt, but a passenger in the Elford car, Glenn Jensen, 28, of Rochester, was listed in critical condition in a Rochester hospital. Another passenger, Frank W. Chase, 69, of Minneapolis, was not seriously injured.

A coroner's jury has been called for Monday morning to investigate the crash.

The death was Minnesota's 42nd of 1964, the same number as had died on state roads a year ago.

5 Killed at Crossing Near Stanley, Wis.

STANLEY, Wis. (AP)—A 68-year-old man and his four grandchildren were killed Saturday when a Soo Line train ripped into their car at a rural crossing.

Killed were Henry Steinmetz Sr., 68, and the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Smasel, rural Stanley.

The youngsters were Bruce, 10; Roxanne, 9; Douglas, 7, and Gregory, 6.

The accident happened about a mile from the Smasel home.

Train crewmen said they had blown the horn for the crossing but that the car proceeded onto the tracks. The car wreckage landed 100 feet away.

The train was an extra, bound from Stevens Point to Chippewa Falls.

The children's mother was in a hospital and was not immediately told of the tragedy.

Stanley is about 150 miles east of the Twin Cities.

Castro Cracks Down on Cuban Protestants

By THEODORE A. EDIGER
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Exiled Cuban church officials asked the World Council of Churches Saturday to investigate what they called increasing persecution of Protestants in Cuba.

They cited newly imposed restrictions, harassment of pastors and closing of churches.

The Movement for Christian Action, headed by the Rev. Manuel Viera, exiled Methodist pastor now in Tampa, Fla., told the council in Geneva, Switzerland, that Protestants "have been persecuted, first in subtle and silent ways, later openly, and always in a systematic and implacable way by the Communist regime."

The movement urged the council to look into this "and let the world know the real situation."

Turks, Greeks OK Allied Peace Force

LONDON (AP)—Diplomatic pressures built up on President Makarios of Cyprus Saturday night to accept the British-American plan to send a peace force of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to his explosive island nation.

As other nations involved in Cyprus fell into line, Makarios and his Greek Cypriot majority held the key to whether the plan would be accepted.

Britain, the United States, Greece and Turkey were reported working out a four-power presentation of the plan to Makarios in Nicosia, the Cypriot situation.

Units of the U. S. 6th Fleet Cyprus crisis was in virtual suspension after all sides had heard the plan to put 10,000 Allied troops on Cyprus for a minimum of three months so the Cypriots can be assured of peace while they try to work out a new constitution.

Units of the U. S. 6th Fleet were somewhere in the eastern Mediterranean with several hundred Marines on board. If the peace force is approved, the Marines probably would be the vanguard of a U. S. contingent of about 2,000 men.

The spotlight turned on Makarios with the approval of the plan, in broad outline at least, by the governments of Greece and Turkey, Turkish approval, which came after a series of Cabinet meetings in Ankara through the night, more or less assured that the Turkish Cypriot minority would fall in line.

Acceptance by the two governments left the Greek Cypriots increasingly isolated, especially from their supporters in Greece.

This strengthened the hand of the British in persuading Makarios to accept. But at the same time the bearded Cypriot chief was under pressure by anti-Turk extremists of his own group to hold out for maximum concessions.

Mondale Sees Big Job for State Schools

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP)—Minnesotans face a heavy responsibility to properly educate the booming population of school-age youngsters, Atty. Gen. Walter F. Mondale said Saturday.

In remarks prepared for an Austin Jaycee dinner, Mondale said that by 1970 there will be 109,000 additional grade and high school students.

"More than the entire population of Duluth," he noted. He predicted a growth of the various University of Minnesota campuses to 51,000 from the present 35,000 level.

Failure to educate youth properly carries the price-tag of immeasurable human and economic waste, Mondale said. He said inadequate schools are a "major cause" of drop-outs, delinquency.

Homeless Boys Killed for Blood

CALI, Colombia (AP)—Police continued to investigate today the deaths of 10 youths, believed to be victims of a ring which kills homeless boys and sells their blood to hospitals.

Blood is often sold in Colombia at $25 a quart.

The bodies of the youths, ranging in ages from 10 to 18, were discovered in vacant lots around Cali the past four months.

Tough February Predicted by Weather Bureau

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Inclement weather and mild temperatures prevailed over most of the country Saturday, the first day of the prime month, as the U.S. Weather Bureau issued a dismal forecast in the wake of a relatively mild January.

Hazardous driving conditions were common for northeastern New York and for most of New England. Light snow mixed with sleet and freezing rain fell, and gale warnings were displayed along the coast.

Rain damped the area from the Carolinas northward into Pennsylvania and Michigan. Rain also fell through the Ohio and Tennessee valleys.

Fog shrouded much of the Midwest. In Chicago a motorist driving in zero visibility struck and killed a youth riding a bicycle.

Clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures prevailed from the far Southwest through the Rocky Mountains and Plains states.

January bowed out Friday on an unseasonably mild note. But the U.S. Weather Bureau had dismal news concerning February, which wasn't even included in the first Roman calendar.

The Weather Bureau said in its 30-day forecast that February will be colder than normal in most portions of the country and that precipitation probably will be greater than usual on the Atlantic seaboard.

Erhard's Chief Security Aide Is Under Arrest

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's chief security officer has been arrested on charges of participating in the World War II Nazi massacre of Jews in southern Russia.

Ewald Peters, who also held the post under former West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, was arrested Thursday when he returned with Erhard from Rome.

Peters, a short, stocky man in his early 50s, had accompanied Erhard on his visit to President Johnson's Texas ranch last December. His job also included responsibility for organizing security measures for distinguished visitors, including President Kennedy, who came to West Germany last June.

In announcing the arrest Friday, government officials disclosed few details about the case. One official said Peters had been head of a Nazi police unit in Russia during the war. Under Adenauer and Erhard, Peters was chief of the protection and security service of the special federal police unit in charge of government security.

Badger Soldier Held on Charge Of Killing Wife

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP)—A Wisconsin soldier was held in a California Army stockade today after Nevada authorities charged him with murdering his wife, whose body was found buried in the basement of an Oshkosh home Thursday night.

A murder complaint was issued at Reno, Nev., Friday charging Sp. 4 Douglas A. Dahlke, 27, with shooting his wife, Florida Jean, 26, with a .22 caliber pistol last Oct. 12.

Many details of the bizarre cross-country crime still were miss, but Oshkosh Police Chief Harry A. Guenther said Dahlke apparently shot his estranged wife at Reno, brought her body back to Oshkosh in the trunk of his car and buried it in the cellar of his family's home.

Dahlke then filed suit for divorce in Circuit Court in Oshkosh, charging his wife with desertion and asking custody of their 6-year-old son, Eric, who accompanied him on the drive from Reno.

Coroner Art Miller said Oshkosh authorities had been advised that Dahlke described the slaying in detail and provided the information that led to the finding of Mrs. Dahlke's body.

The body was found in an uncompleted cellar area beneath the old frame house where Dahlke's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodland, live. The body had been buried in a hole 3½ feet deep with a slab of concrete dragged over it.

Jet Russ Shot Down Returned

BERLIN (AP)—Fire-scarred remains of a jet training plane that carried three American officers to their deaths under Soviet fire were trucked into West Berlin Saturday for study by U.S. Air Force investigators.

The largest fragments of the unarmed twin-engine T39 trainer were its sweptback wings.

One had been torn away in the air over Communist East Germany during the shooting Tuesday.

Using two trucks, a six-man U.S. Air Force team transported the wreckage in from the crash site near the village of Vogelsberg, about 60 miles inside East Germany and 125 miles southwest of Berlin.

Investigators probed the debris for information that might shed light on why the plane, which cruised at 500 miles an hour, strayed across the Iron Curtain on its flight above the clouds.

Instrument failure was one suggestion in speculation as to why the plane drifted over East Germany.

A mortuary team Friday recovered the bodies of the fliers—Lt. Col. Gerald Hannaford, 41, Austin, Tex.; Capt. Donald Millard, 33, Ukiah, Calif.; and Capt. John Lorraine, 34, Jacksonville, Fla.

The bodies were taken to U.S. Air Force European headquarters at Wiesbaden, West Germany, for funeral services.

Capt. Miles J. McNaughton, St. James, Mo., who directed the recovery, said 95 per cent of the plane's wreckage was scattered over an area 200 by 300 feet.

The stray wing was handed over to the Americans by Soviet troops and East German police.

Volume Rises At Department Stores Here

Department store sales in Winona during December increased by 5 percent compared with sales a year ago, according to a report released today by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

Sales throughout 1963, however, were down 2 percent from the 1962 figure, the report indicated.

In the entire state, sales for December were up 8 percent, and a comparison of the year-to-date totals for 1963 and 1962 shows a 2 percent increase.

A 7 percent increase during December was shown by sales throughout the entire ninth federal reserve district, which includes Minnesota, Montana, the Dakotas, northern Wisconsin and Michigan's upper peninsula. The total for the year was up 4 percent from the 1962 figure.

Rochester had a 2 percent decline in sales during December, and a 3 percent drop during the entire year. La Crosse showed a 2 percent drop for both periods.

Ellestad was charged by sheriff's deputies last Sunday after his car skidded 183 feet, knocked off a stop sign and a telephone pole and struck a tree at the intersection of County Highway 23 and Trunk Highway 14 in Stockton.

The driver admitted to investigating deputies that he was traveling 60 miles per hour as he approached the stop sign.

OK, So Can You See by Any Light?

By GEORGE McCORMICK
Sunday News Staff Writer

Frankly, the weather has been so warm recently that the Daily News staff almost forgot to celebrate Groundhog Day.

Even when someone remembered the holiday, a few pessimistic persons on the staff suggested that the whole thing be forgotten.

AFTER ALL, they pointed out, look at what happened the last two Groundhog days:

- In 1952, the Daily News Groundhog Editor, who lives in a snug burrow beside the employees' parking lot, hopped out of his hole and began to hide eggs about the premises. He always had trouble keeping his holidays straight.
- In 1963, the editor stuck his head out of his burrow and bumped it (his head, not his burrow) on the tailgate of the Sports Editor's modified sulky. He uttered a groan and slipped back into his burrow on that occasion. No one has seen him since, although the Drama Editor reported seeing the Groundhog Day Editor and the ghost of Hamlet's father as he got into his car after the company Christmas party.

THE PESSIMISTS were out-voted, however, and the entire staff trooped out into the parking lot this morning to see what the Groundhog Editor would do on his big day.

After everyone had stood in silence around the burrow for 15 minutes or so, a third assistant copyboy whispered, "Maybe he's dead."

"Shut up," said the second assistant copyboy kindly, as he thought of kicking in for flowers.

No one said anything for another 10 minutes, although the Church Editor began humming "Yes, We Have No Bananas," which was the most solemn thing he could think of at the moment.

Finally, there was a stirring deep down in the burrow. A scuffling sound grew louder and louder. At last a furry little head popped out of the hole.

"HAPPY NEW YEAR," said the Groundhog Day Editor, as he twinkled his little nose and rubbed his little eyes sleepily.

"Happy New Year, sir," answered the third assistant copyboy, who was a kindly lad.

"Shut up," said the second assistant copyboy from the heights of his sophistication. "... we have no bananas today," hummed the Church Editor.

"I'm sorry, you have the wrong holiday in mind," explained a proofreader, accustomed to making corrections tactfully.

"Be my valentine?" asked the Groundhog Day Editor hopefully.

"You're sweet," exclaimed a society writer, who was romantically inclined anyway because of the many wedding announcements she had to write.

"You're still wrong, though," persisted the proofreader. "It's Groundhog Day."

"SO?" INQUIRED the Groundhog Day Editor, who was a man of few words, most of them misspelled.

"So look for your shadow," the Science Editor said. "If you see it and it frightens you, you run back into your hole. That means that we'll have six more weeks of winter."

"But I'm not afraid of my shadow," objected the Groundhog Day Editor.

"Have you no regard for a grand old tradition?" quavered the History Editor. "Pretend you're frightened."

"All right," agreed the Groundhog Day Editor. He stepped out of his burrow, took a deep breath and blinked as he looked about.

"Do you see your shadow?" someone asked.

"No," declared the editor.

THERE WAS an outbreak of cheering at this, spoiled only by the Snow Sculpture Contest Editor, who was disappointed at the prospect of a seasonal layoff and so could not help saying "Oh fudge."

"You're sure that you can't see your shadow?" a cynic asked.

Police Checking Hit-Run Accident

Police are investigating a hit and run incident which occurred around 11:30 p.m. Friday.

Edwin Yach, 23, 119 Washington St., told police that his car was parked on Olmstead Street about 20 feet north of 4th Street. The car parked ahead of his began pulling out of its parking place, Yach said, and it struck the front of his car.

The driver of the other car drove off without stopping, Yach said. He estimated damage to his car at $100.

Whitehall Man Killed by Falling Tree

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — A 47-year-old rural Whitehall farmer was killed instantly shortly before 2 p.m. Saturday when the top of a chopped tree broke off and crushed his skull.

Rudolph Sosalla was cutting pulpwood in a woodlot belonging to Ray Reck about two miles northwest of Whitehall. His son, Ronald, was with him.

Sosalla had just completed felling a tree when another tree nearby that had been cut, and had partly fallen against a third tree, splintered in half. The broken part, about five inches in diameter, fell on Sosalla, killing him instantly, according to Trempealeau County Coroner James E. Garaghan, Whitehall, who investigated.

Ronald ran to Ralph Sygulla, cutting wood in his own woodlot nearby, crying, "My dad is dead."

Duane Sygulla, also in the woods with his father, ran to the Sygulla home and called the ambulance.

The body was taken to the Johnson Funeral Home, Whitehall, and later transferred to the Kern Funeral Home, Independence.

Sosalla was born Aug. 3, 1916, in the Town of Lincoln near Whitehall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sosalla. He married Dorothy Woychik in May 1946. They lived on a farm about 3 1/2 miles west of Whitehall in Lincoln Township.

Survivors are: His wife; two sons, Ronald, 16, and Frederic, 7; one daughter, Christy, 13; his parents, living near Whitehall; eight brothers, Gene and Clifford, Independence; Edward, on the home farm; Roman, Azusa, Calif.; Dominic and Henry, Whitehall; Allie, Milwaukee; and William, Blair; and one sister, Mrs. James (Angeline) Schoenberger, Alma.

Funeral arrangements are not complete. Services will be at St. Peter & Paul's Catholic Church, Independence, where he was a member.

Weather Favorable for Saturday's Klondike Derby

Driven off Lake Winona Jan. 25 by bitter cold and high winds, the Sugar Loaf District Klondike Derby was held here Saturday with 14 patrols participating. Activities began at 10 a.m.

Of the 14 Boy Scout patrols entered, only those from Dover and Altura were from outside Winona. The remaining 12 were from troops in the city. The event included competition in a half dozen areas of Scoutcraft and wound up at mid-afternoon with a sled race across the lake.

Grand champion patrol for the day was the Flaming Arrow Patrol, Troop 11, Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, whose members' aggregate scores led all the rest.

Winning the sled race was the Flaming Arrow Patrol, Troop 18, Altura. Coming in second was Raven Patrol, Troop 2, Central Lutheran Church, Winona. Third place was won by another Central Lutheran unit, Panther Patrol, Troop 2. Ten patrols entered the race but some were unable to keep up the grueling pace and did not finish.

Patrols competed for points at six stations, each one representing a different problem in Scouting. Winners were:

- Distance measuring, Raven Patrol, Troop 2, Central Lutheran;
- fire building, Flaming Arrow Patrol, Troop 6, Central Methodist;
- lashing, Flaming Arrow Patrol, Troop 11, Cathedral;
- ice rescue, Blackfoot Patrol, Troop 2, Central Lutheran;
- mapping, Wolf Patrol, Troop 20, Redeemer Lutheran;
- compass, Flaming Arrow, Troop 18, Altura.

Judges were: P. R. Ohnstad, Kenneth Ziebell, Daniel Kammerer, James Gunderson, H. R. Munson and Ralph Cox. Derby chief was Malcolm Beck.

46 Adults Showing High School Interest

A tentative schedule of evening classes for Winona area persons wishing to complete requirements for high school diplomas is being considered by the public school administration.

A meeting called during the past week to determine the demand for such instruction drew an attendance of 46. Superintendent of Schools A. L. Nelson emphasized the importance of a high school diploma in obtaining better employment opportunities and told the group that efforts would be made to provide instruction that would lead to credits toward the diploma.

The suggested schedule calls for courses to be offered twice a week, from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Students attending these classes could qualify for three or more credits during a 36-week school term.

Demand may make possible organization of classes also on Mondays and Wednesdays. Courses could continue through the summer months.

Among those participating in Thursday's information meeting with Nelson were Robert Smith, Senior High principal; Lewis Schoening, Miss Pauline Utzinger and Ernest Buhler of the public schools guidance department, and Thomas Raine, director of the Winona Area Vocational Technical School.

Anyone in the Winona area interested in learning how he can complete requirements for a high school diploma should call the vocational school office at Senior High School.

Firemen Delay Election to Put Out Chimney Fire

PIGEON FALLS, Wis. (Special) — The election of Pigeon Falls volunteer fire department officers Tuesday was delayed about an hour while firemen went to the Fred Leer farmhouse northeast of Northfield to put out a chimney fire.

This is the first time the department has been called out during an annual meeting.

All officers were re-elected. They are: Donald Larson, chief; Henry Jacobson, secretary; Richard Erickson, treasurer; and Helmer Neperud, Donald Ackley and Arthur Dahl, assistant chiefs.

The department answered 20 fire calls during 1963.

It Happened Last Night Eileen Has Hill On Staten Island

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — "I used to think Staten Island was just a place to take a ferry boat ride to," says Eileen Farrell, the bouncy Irish prima donna and jazz buff.

"But no more — I live in a 3-story, 14-room house on Grymes Hill . . . you know Staten Island is very hilly . . . and from my kitchen window I can look out and see the Statue of Liberty and, on a clear day, Sandy Hook."

"How did you land on Staten Island?" We were doing the 20 Questions Celebrity Quiz.

"My husband, who was not my husband at the time, had been born and raised on Staten Island, and I had grown up in a small town, Williamam, Conn., myself. You know there are farms on Staten Island . . . way out, there are. I don't know how long they will be farms."

Her husband, Robert Reagan, a former policeman with the forgers squad, now retired from the Police Dept. and an agent for a piano company, takes her off to Moosehead Lake, Me., where they have a home, every summer.

Q: Why is it called Moosehead?

A: We have moose, bobcats and black bears in our backyard. No other opera singer can make that statement. We put the fish in the frying pan while they're still bouncing.

Q: Do you do any singing up there?

A: WHAT! Work in the summer? Never! I don't even open my mouth in the summer.

"Let her try working in the summer and she'll get her first black eye," chipped in her husband, who's genial, outgoing and chatty.

MISS FARRELL drives to work when she's appearing at the "Tel." "You know we have three Staten Island bridges that come out in New Jersey. I take the Goethals Bridge, the Jersey Turnpike, the Lincoln Tunnel, and I'm at the Met in 45 minutes."

Q: You've done so well on the Garry Moore TV show, would you like a TV series?

A: Not if I had to work in the summer!

She'll be touring with the Bach Aria Group, for the 13th season, starting soon, and will be teaching the country some things about Bach. "Come to Jesus" is one of the group's favorites.

"Bach, you know, was very religious," she said. "He had 13 kids."

Q: You must be doing pretty well?

A: I'm all booked up through 1965. I have nothing to worry about except Uncle Sam.

LEONARD Bernstein, Maria Callas, and other experts have paid tribute to her talent, which it must be, for she didn't start singing until he was 19. Her daughter Kathleen, 11, and son Robert, 17, have no interest in trying to be singers.

She'll next play the Met in March in the role of Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana." This part requires a cushiony figure, which Miss Farrell has.

Q: Who'll play the tenor role?

A: I won't know till I get to rehearsal. Whoever does has to throw me to the floor. I'm his wife bearing his child and he's in love with another woman and she sees them on the street. There's this wild scene when he throws her down on the street. I always tell him he has the hard work to do — not me.

MISS FARRELL, like other stars, flies everywhere nowadays. In a snowstorm in upper New York recently, though, she wouldn't get aboard even though friends argued with her that the storm was moving.

"How do I know," she said, "it won't move the same direction we're moving?"

Peace Corps Test Slated

A Peace Corps placement test, required of all persons interested in serving overseas, will be given at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in the civil service room of the post office here.

The noncompetitive aptitude tests will be administered that day at 825 locations in principal cities throughout the United States. Other test locations in the area are the main post offices in La Crosse, Rochester and Eau Claire.

About an hour and a half is needed to complete the test. Included is a 30-minute general aptitude test and a 30-minute modern language aptitude test. Applicants claiming any proficiency in Spanish or French are asked to take an additional one-hour proficiency test in these languages.

No applicant may take the test a second time without special permission from the corps.

Persons who take the test must also submit a completed Peace Corps questionnaire, available from most post offices, from college Peace Corps liaison officers or from the Peace Corps, Washington 25, D. C.

Applicants who have not submitted the questionnaire earlier will be asked to complete one immediately after the testing.

Psychiatric Social Worker to Speak to Mental Health Unit

Garth T. Harrison, psychiatric social worker at the South Central Mental Health Center, Owatonna, Minn., will discuss the organization and program of a mental health center at a meeting of the Winona County Mental Health Association Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the YMCA.

Association officers noted that the address will be of special interest to area residents because of the current study of a proposed establishment of the Hiawatha Valley Mental Health Center to serve Southeastern Minnesota counties.

There will be a progress report by Dr. M. L. De Bolt, president, on developments in the planning for a tri-county center for Winona, Houston and Wabasha counties.

Any interested person may attend the meeting.

Final plans also will be made and a date set for a mental health workshop for clergy of the three counties. The workshop has been set tentatively for a Monday in March.

Trempealeau Co. Red Cross Urged To Secure Funds

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — The needs for funds was emphasized at a planning meeting for the forthcoming Trempealeau County Red Cross membership and fund campaign at the courthouse here Thursday evening.

The meeting was conducted by Ted Benzler, La Crosse, field representative for Western Wisconsin. Benzler talked of the various Red Cross services in Trempealeau County, especially the home service and the blood programs.

He suggested that the chapter reorganize, select an executive board and set a date for an annual meeting. He proposed that the board meet at least four times annually to promote Red Cross activities in the county. Funds must be raised to continue the blood program in Trempealeau County, he said.

Fund chairmen secured at the meeting included the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. O. S. Lee, president, for the city of Blair; Town of Burnside and Town of Lincoln, Mmes. Rudy Sosalla and Otis Briggs who are incoming and retiring presidents of the American Legion Auxiliary at Independence, Mrs. C. A. Brye for the village and town of Elrick, and Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, Town of Gale. Mrs. Joseph Pietrek, Arcadia, will assist in Arcadia Township.

At the meeting were Everett Guse, chapter treasurer and home service officer, Miss Irene Gilbertson, and Wayne Alleman, manager of the Whitehall Memorial Hospital, all of Whitehall; Lee Sacia, Town of Gale; Mmes. Francis Herrel, O. S. Lee, Ray Nering and Marie Bersing and Miss Alice Stumpf, all of Blair; Mrs. Otis Briggs, Independence; Mrs. Joseph Pietrek, Arcadia, and Mmes. Henry Solberg, Invald Jorgenson and C. A. Brye, Elrick. Mrs. Brye is executive secretary and publicity director.

Edmund Martin New Boss of Bethlehem Co.

NEW YORK (AP) — A mechanical engineer who worked up through production channels will become the new boss of Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's No. 2 steelmaker.

He is Edmund F. Martin, 6-foot-1 balding former president who has been vice chairman of the Bethlehem board since last August. He had been named president in 1960.

Martin will become chief executive and board chairman when Arthur B. Homer retires on his 66th birthday, April 14. Martin will be the fourth man to head Bethlehem.

The appointment was made by directors Thursday after Bethlehem reported a 15 per cent gain in earnings for 1963. Profits rose to $102,462,212 or $2.11 a share from $88,677,761 or $1.80 a share.

Rockefeller Hijs Johnson And Goldwater

By ROBERT T. GRAY
NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is sharpening his differences with President Johnson and Sen. Barry Goldwater in an accelerating political campaign that is ranging from coast to coast.

Rockefeller's forum is one that his campaign aides claim is paying rich dividends in his bid for the Republican nomination for president — the question and answer period after his formal speeches.

The governor used this approach Friday night in a campaign trip to Nashua, N.H., and in a visit to California earlier this week. He plans to do the same in a campaign visit to Oregon next week.

The governor paid a fast-moving, seven-hour visit Friday to New Hampshire, where he and Goldwater are entered in the March 10 presidential preference primary, along with other GOP prospects.

In another development concerning the Rockefeller campaign, Jackie Robinson, the first Negro to break into major-league baseball, resigned as a top executive of the Chock Full O' Nuts coffee and restaurant company to join the Rockefeller campaign organization.

Rockefeller flew to New Hampshire after announcing he would enter the West Virginia primary May 12. It was the fourth primary in which Rockefeller had announced plans to campaign. In addition to New Hampshire, he also will compete in Oregon and California.

The governor's New Hampshire foray was highlighted by a question period after a speech to an overflow audience of more than 600 persons at a dinner meeting of the Nashua Chamber of Commerce.

Shriver Gives Support to Bob Kennedy

By GEOFFREY GOULD
WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver says he doesn't think he's going to get the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

And, with a bow in the direction of brother-in-law Robert F. Kennedy, he says the attorney general would be a "terrific" choice.

Shriver's comments on one of Washington's favorite guessing games — President Johnson's likely running mate — were elicited by newsmen Friday after he told the House Foreign Affairs Committee he needs $115 million to run the Peace Corps the next fiscal year.

After the session, Shriver dropped by the White House to chat with Johnson and reports immediately began circulating that the President has decided to set up a new agency headed by Shriver to direct the administration's pledged war on poverty.

A comment from Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., that Johnson had indicated "someone like Sargent Shriver" should direct it gave substance to the reports.

In talking with newsmen about the vice presidential nomination, Shriver said: "I've not decided to rule out anything or rule in anything. I came down here at the request of President Kennedy to try to do a job . . . I've tended to my knitting as closely as possible. I've made a point of this. I'm not running for anything."

Would he run if Johnson asked him to?

"I don't worry about it. I don't think I'm the guy who's going to get asked," Shriver said.

Asked to comment on some of the others who have been mentioned, he said Kennedy "would be terrific. After all, who's got a better record? He's obviously got all the qualifications."

Shriver is married to the former Eunice Kennedy, a sister of the attorney general and the late President John F. Kennedy.

She's Selling the Dairy Industry

Visiting Winona last week in a two-day whirl of intense activity was Miss Audrey Meyer, Minnesota's Princess Kay of the Milky Way. Here are some of her comments on the life of a state dairy princess and the people and experiences she encounters.

An Interview By FRANK UHLIG Sunday News Staff Writer

Q.—Miss Meyer, how are you enjoying the celebrity business?

A.—Fine, thanks. I'm enjoying traveling around Minnesota.

I feel the most important thing is that it's an education second to none. I'm trying to take advantage of everything I can learn from it.

Q.—What are some of these things?

A.—One of the main things is how to get along with people, because most of the work is with the public. You learn a lot about life in general, I think.

Q.—What reactions have you observed among the people you meet in your travels as Princess Kay?

A.—Everyone has been very hospitable. They always see that everything is made as comfortable as possible during our stay and they're just nice people in general.

Q.—Who are some of the prominent people you've met in visiting various parts of the country?

A.—They include Gov. Karl Rolvaag, Sen. Eugene McCarthy, the famous heart surgeon, Dr. Lillehei. During the St. Paul Winter Carnival, I met Gary Lockwood and two men who play on the television show Petticoat Junction.

When you talk to them, they're very much like people you meet otherwise, not stuck up as you might think they'd be.

Q.—What are some of the more vivid impressions you've had in meeting these people?

A.—Well, for example, there's the Belgian ambassador to the United States, Baron

Louis Scheyven, to whom I talked at the St. Paul Winter Carnival. He was very friendly. And what I noticed especially was that he knew more about us girls than we knew about each other. Naturally this made quite an impression on us.

Q.—Has this year of activity as Princess Kay caused any postponement of your plans for further education?

A.—No, it really hasn't. I was working and saving money to go to college. This actually helps me get there quicker because I do receive a scholarship from the dairy industry.

Q.—What course of study will you follow?

A.—I hope to go into the business field. I've already worked in it for a couple of years and I like it very much.

Q.—But no home economics?

A.—No, I don't think I care too much for that field.

Q.—Do you have a dairy farming background?

A.—Yes. My father, Elmer Meyer, owns a dairy farm near Clarks Grove. We have 80 acres and we're milking 17 Guernsey cows at present.

Q.—What additional background or training did you have to acquire after you became Princess Kay?

A.—First I had to learn the history of the dairy industry and I had to keep up with what's going on in the field. I also received information from the Minnesota Dairy Committee in St. Paul.

My chaperone is a wonderful help as we travel about the state. She is Mrs. Doris Conlon. Her husband, Lew Conlon, is manager of the Minnesota branch of the American Dairy Association.

Q.—Have your travels taken you to

AUDREY MEYER
Not Fattening

other states or countries?

A.—I haven't gone out of the country. But in September, several weeks after I became Princess Kay, we went to Florida to the national dairy princess contest. I had an opportunity to meet girls from other states and to learn a few of the things being done there to promote dairy foods.

Q.—In your own opinion, based on your observations, how does Minnesota compare to other states in its dairy industry promotion efforts?

A.—I would say it's probably the leading state among the 25 which send girls to the national contest. Each year, of course, as dairying becomes more prominent in other states, they will send contestants, too.

Minnesota is one of the biggest dairying states and we take a back seat to no one in that respect. The American Dairy Association originated in Minnesota, then spread out across the United States. We also had the first dairy princess promotion ever staged.

Q.—After all your travels, how does Southeastern Minnesota look to you?

A.—I like the scenery very much and I think there are some wonderful dairy herds from what I've seen. This is the second time I've been in Winona and I enjoy coming back here. I think it's a great town.

Q.—Perhaps you'll like to attend college here, then?

A.—I guess that sort of puts me on the spot. But I was at Winona State College and it's very nice. And so, I understand, are the other two colleges located here.

Q.—What questions do people ask you most frequently as you visit various communities and make appearances?

A.—Most of them ask what we're doing and how I like the job. They seem to want to know about me personally.

Q.—How do you like your job?

A.—I like it fine. I hate to recall that five months of my job have already passed. I'd like to put them back on my schedule. I'm enjoying it thoroughly and, as I said before, taking advantage of the opportunities. I has helped me make up my mind what I want to do, so I won't have to waste time at school trying to decide which way to turn.

Q.—Do people ask or comment about weight control to you when you are engaged in these dairy promotional activities?

A.—Yes, we get comments in that area. Some people will say: "I'm sorry, I'm on a diet. I don't care for a sample." Or sometimes, they'll ask me how I keep my weight down when I attend all these banquets and with all the dairy products we eat.

Q.—What's the answer to that one?

A.—Well, personally, I don't think dairy products are fattening. They have protein calories, which are energy units, rather than fat calories.

As I told one man who said he was on a diet: This is one of the best things you could have in your diet. Milk is one of nature's most nearly perfect foods and it has all the protein you need. If you drink milk and eat ice cream, you could leave out some of the other things and still have all the requirements for good nutrition.

Dairy products are like anything else. If you don't use them in excess, they aren't fattening. If you eat too much of almost anything else, you'll get fat, too. So you can't very well say you get fat because of one single item in your diet.

Ryukyu Islands Valuable Outpost For United States

By CONRAD FINK

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — Won as a battle prize in World War II, the Ryukyu Islands stand today as America's most valuable military outpost in the Western Pacific.

After 19 years, U.S. rule over 900,000 islanders seems destined to go on without any let up, despite some rumbling from the natives.

Any postwar plans to return the islands to Japan vanished with the rise of Communist China.

There are immense diplomatic and economic problems in ruling an island chain that is 6,000 miles from the U.S. mainland—and only 364 miles from Red China.

The United States has poured more than a billion dollars into the islands it holds under terms of the Japanese peace treaty.

There is a vast network of air fields and Marine and paratroop camps scattered across the rocky, barren islands. Hillside arsenals hold deadly weapons of all types, military roads and firing ranges abound, and ports have been outfitted to handle ships of the roving 7th Fleet.

This activity hasn't enchanted the islanders. The common cry for years has been a return to Japanese control. Some charge their islands have been turned into a U.S. colony. Leftists in Japan and elsewhere raise the cry of "U.S. imperialism."

Japan, now a major U.S. ally in the Far East, frequently says it wants to get back the islands it lost in 1945.

Pressed from all sides to justify U.S. rule on Okinawa Island and the 72 smaller Ryukyus, U.S. diplomats publicly recognize Japan's "residual sovereignty" but explain America will retain control until "threat and tension" no longer exist in the Far East.

American military men who run the islands' civil administration say there is little chance of peace in this part of the world.

Privately, they heatedly express their intention of doing everything within their power to preserve the Ryukyus as a stable base for defensive or offensive operations.

Of all U.S. military complexes in Asia, this is the only one in which American commanders have complete political control. They can come and go without seeking permission from a host government.

Japan, despite the U.S.-Japan security treaty, protests every time an American plane is flown into an Asian hot spot from Japan. So far, U.S. nuclear-powered submarines are barred from entering Japanese ports to give shore leaves to crewmen.

U.S. military men say that if the Japanese regain control of the Ryukyus, the islands will become a politically unreliable base.

'Top Secret' Is Only Sand

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Albert Holland and Frank Osbar found a small package marked "Top Secret—Cape Kennedy" in a Nashville street Thursday.

"Rocket fuel — keep off hands — will burn," read a warning on the side of the 12-inch-square box.

Frying open the box, the men found sand. A smaller box was buried in it. They gingerly opened that box and found — more sand.

A guy offered me two dollars for my share of it," Osbar said. "I wish I'd taken it."

New Viet Nam Leader Asks Western Aid

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, South Viet Nam's new military strong man, appealed Saturday for Western support of his country's war against the Communists.

Ignoring French President Charles de Gaulle's proposal to neutralize Southeast Asia in a pact with Communist China, Khanh told the Saigon diplomatic corps he is confident the "Vietnamese people and the rest of the free world would continue material and moral support of the struggle against communism here."

Although repetition of the French proposal at De Gaulle's news conference in Paris Friday drew no official comment, relations between France and South Viet Nam remained seriously strained. Some sources predicted a break.

After the champagne reception, Khanh, 36, told newsmen a decision on his country's relations with Paris would be "extremely difficult."

In a cryptic style reminiscent of De Gaulle himself, the strong man added: "We shall handle our enemies and the friends of our enemies in our own way."

Khanh was far more blunt Friday. About the time De Gaulle made his statement in Paris, Khanh accused the French leader of attempting to impose a brutalizing policy on South Viet Nam and of blatantly interfering in its affairs.

At the reception Khanh exchanged pleasantries with French Charge d'Affaires

George Perruche and told him: "You are welcome with us today, but I hope all the world is aware of the North Vietnamese aggression."

South Viet Nam's deposed premier, Nguyen Ngor Tho, made a surprise appearance at the reception. Khanh said he would keep Tho in office until a new government is formed.

Tho, who has been in government continuously for 30 years, said he expects to return to private life in a week to 10 days.

Khanh said he will retain temporarily all ministers in a caretaker government except the generals arrested during the coup Wednesday for allegedly conspiring with the French to neutralize the country.

Khanh said the new regime will be "a government of national union, but we do not yet know what form it will take. It will be necessary to move slowly but surely in creating a new government."

He made it plain to the diplomats he was in charge. He said he would leave Saigon Monday for a tour of military units in the countryside as the first step in taking personal command of the war effort against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

After the other diplomats had left U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge remained behind and was overheard advising Khanh to seek popular support from his people.

"You should deliver a 'fire-side chat' as soon as possible," Lodge said. "And get it printed, distribute it as movies and so on, as soon as possible."

100th Battalion Vet 1st Nisei Army General

By MALCOLM BARR

HONOLULU (AP) — The United States had been at war more than a year and to the young lieutenant it seemed he might never be called to active duty. There was even the possibility that he might be treated like an enemy.

Today he wears the single star of a brigadier general — the only American of Japanese ancestry to rise to such a rank.

As brigadier, Francis A. Takemoto — a 52-year-old school principal — commands three battalions of the Hawaii National Guard. There are 1,800 men under his command.

Twenty years ago Takemoto waited day after day to receive the call to duty. He had been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps while a student at Santa Barbara State College in California in 1935.

Around him, on the islands of Hawaii, there were cries to herd all Japanese into relocation camps on the U.S. mainland. Each person of Japanese ancestry was looked upon with great suspicion.

One day in 1943, a military policeman appeared at Takemoto's home. The MP asked why hadn't he reported for duty?

It turned out that the message activating reserve officers took a long time getting from Pacific Army headquarters in Honolulu to Hilo — some 200 miles away.

Takemoto was one of approximately 1,300 men sent to Camp Shelby, Miss., for training and later to Europe with the 100th Infantry Battalion of the famed 442nd "Go for Broke" Regiment, which went into action at Anzio beach in Italy.

These men went to war to prove a point — that they were first and above all, Americans. They emerged from combat as the most decorated group in the entire U.S. Army.

After a day in his office at a Honolulu elementary school near Pearl Harbor, the general dons a uniform with a silver and blue combat infantryman's badge, and the multicolored ribbons for the Bronze Star, the Asiatic-Pacific Medal, European Theater Medal with four battle stars, Victory Medal, the Purple Heart and presidential citation with cluster.

Takemoto came out of the service in 1946 and settled into the life of a school teacher.

When the Hawaii National Guard was reactivated, he was asked to help reorganize Headquarters Company of the 299th Infantry Battalion on the big island of Hawaii. He was promoted to major.

He later became 2nd Battalion, 298th Infantry command-

Two New Eyota Wells Approved

EYOTA, Minn. (Special) — The Minnesota Department of Health has approved the new two wells drilled here. They received a rating of 94.

They are located in lot 2, block 22, in southeast Eyota adjacent to the steel water tank which holds 20,000 gallons of water.

Water is drawn from well No. 1 from a depth of 603 feet by a submersible pump at a rate of 270 gallons a minute. From well No. 2 at a depth of 612 feet, water is drawn by a vertical turbine pump at the same rate. It is then pumped into the distribution center and the overflow goes into the tank for storage and to maintain pressure.

A state report says no coliform organisms or any detergent was found in the water. The water is hard and is treated by gas chlorination. The water equipment in the pump house also was approved.

Dakota Boy Getting Treatment for Hip; Mother Has 13th Child

DAKOTA, Minn. (Special) — Daniel Stremcha, 14, was admitted to Gillette State Hospital, St. Paul, Tuesday for diagnostic treatment to help correct a hip socket.

While at play several years ago Daniel fell out of a tree. Recently growth in the hip area has been slow.

On Wednesday Danny had a birthday, to which he and his nine brothers and sisters had looked to with eagerness. On Friday a new baby arrived in the family. Mrs. Lucien J. Stremcha and daughter are doing well at St. Francis hospital, La Crosse.

Danny now has three sisters and seven brothers. He is the second eldest of 13 children, of whom 11 are living.

er, then took over the 1st Battalion at the National Guard headquarters, Ft. Ruger, Honolulu.

In 1952-53, he took time off for a 10-month course at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. This qualified him for plans and training officer for the Guard, and later he became executive officer for the 29th Infantry Brigade—with the rank of full colonel.

He and his wife, Gladys, have two children—Carol, studying to become a teacher at the University of Hawaii, and Harvey, who is student body president at a Honolulu high school.

Did Takemoto think he ever would be the first Nisei general in American history?

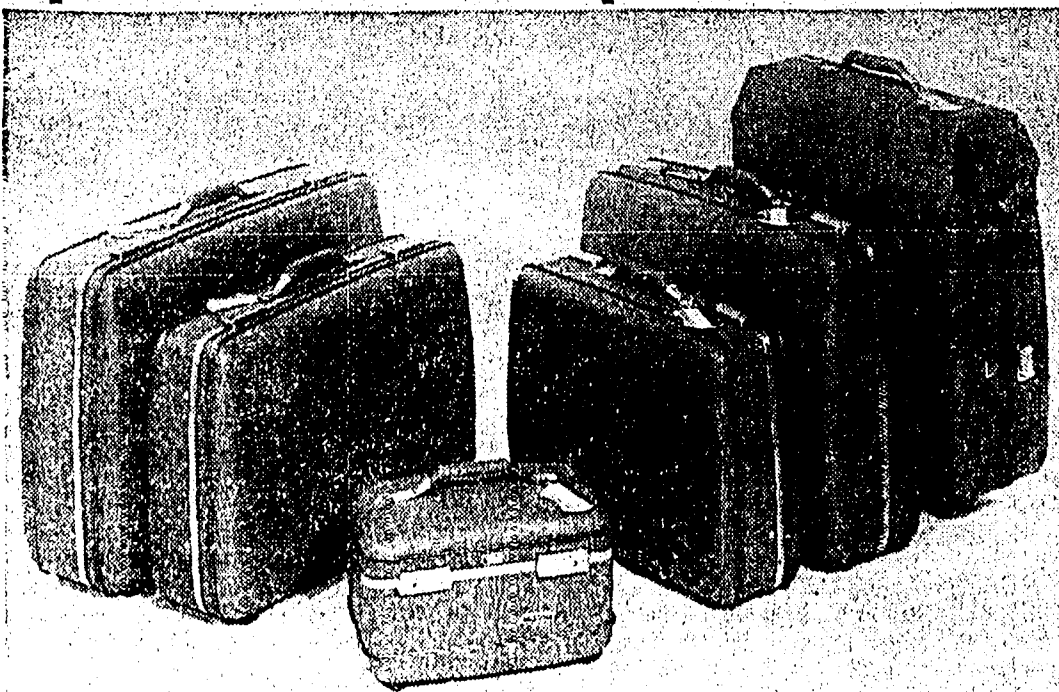

He confesses: "I thought I'd done pretty well when I was promoted to full colonel."

Thoughts at Random — From Editor's Notebook

QUITE A FEW people became agog late last July when David Brinkley, famed television newscaster, visited Winona for the filming of his special hour-long program "Our Man on the Mississippi." Several scenes were shot near Trempealeau at Fisherman Ralph Richtman's shanty and Mayor Rudy Elling's houseboat, "Skipper IV," was used as a base for the operations.

This show, in color, will be seen over NBC at 9 o'clock tonight on either Channel 5 or 10. It has been described as "A contemporary profile of the Mississippi River" in terms of the people who live, work and play along its great course. Producers, both of whom spent considerable time in Winona during the filming of the show, are Ted Yates and Stuart Schulberg. Yates also is the director.

Both Brinkley and Yates, who were high in their praise for the hospitality shown them while in Winona, were interviewed by the Daily News last July 22.

WE HAVE again received our copy of the World Almanac — 1964 edition — published as usual by the New York World-Telegram and Sun company. This particular volume is a special World's Fair edition.

The World Almanac with its 896 pages, is an amazing compilation of facts, and is an invaluable source of reference in a newspaper office and probably in thousands of other places. Do you want to know how Gillespie County in Texas voted in the 1960 presidential election? The Almanac has the facts and figures. Or perhaps the name of the secretary, together with his address of the Hay Fever Prevention Society? The Almanac gives it.

The current issue of the Almanac, by the way, is the 79th annual one.

AN ITEM from the Rochester Post-Bulletin tells of that community's elation over the fact that during the last year the deficit for operating its new municipal airport was only $19,736 compared with $34,905 in 1962.

It costs money to operate an airport, yet few Winonans are aware of the fact that the actual cost of operating Max Conrad Field over the years has been less than $4,000 per year. This past year that figure will be somewhat higher because the administration building was redecorated, runways repaired and new landing lights installed.

It cost Rochester $189,396 to operate its air passenger travel which in turn brought in an income of $169,660. Air user traffic there totaled 117,822 in 1963, an increase of 14 percent over 1962. The city is served by 23 flights daily.

ANY LEGISLATION in an attempt to stop the sale of cigarettes would probably fizzle out much as did prohibition — but there are two laws in Minnesota dealing with cigarettes and persons under 18 which could and probably should be enforced if law enforcement agencies choose to do so:

Section 614.62 of the statutes make it unlawful for any person to sell, barter, exchange, etc., cigarettes to any person under 18. Penalty for violation is 90 days in jail or a fine not exceeding $100 or both. (This is a misdemeanor).

Section 614.63 makes it unlawful for any person under 18 to smoke cigarettes. The penalty for violation is a maximum of five days in jail or a fine not exceeding $10 or both.

SPEAKING of cigarettes, we regard the proposal of Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin to increase the federal tax on coffin nails from 8 cents to 13 cents a pack as rather ridiculous. He would do this, he says, "to destroy poverty as it now exists in America." The campaign, he continues, would raise ten billion dollars in ten years.

The junior Wisconsin Senator obviously wants to jump on President Johnson's bandwagon in the latter's declared war on poverty but it would appear he is more interested in gaining some personal publicity than he is in creating man-months of work at the expense of those who desire to continue smoking despite the recent government report condemning fags as dangerous to health.

AN INTERESTING court trial at Rochester, involving shoplifting, was settled out of court the other day. It involved a Mazepa High School girl who had been detained in a Richfield discount house by employees for more than 2½ hours because of a suspicion she had been shoplifting. The attorney for the discount store admitted that it was found the girl was innocent.

The question on which the jury would have had to rule was not whether or not the girl was innocent of the offense, or whether she had been detained, but whether there was reasonable grounds to detain her. Since the case was settled, it never reached the jury.

The case pointed up the law adopted in 1959 by the state legislature which authorizes shop owners and employees to detain a person if there is reasonable cause to believe he is a shoplifter. Before the law was passed, merchants were hesitant about detaining suspected shoplifters since they would open themselves to damage suits unless the suspects were convicted. Now, a merchant is apparently safe if he can show there were reasonable grounds for his suspicions.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Elections Won In Big States

By MARQUIS CHILDS
WASHINGTON — Presidential elections are won not in states such as New Hampshire and Arizona, each with four electoral votes, but in New York, California, Pennsylvania and the other big-city states. This basic fact underscores the announcement of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R., Calif.) that he will support Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for the Presidential nomination in the California primary.

Kuchel's forthright statement implies two convictions about the contest just ahead. One is that Richard M. Nixon, now putting himself forward as the compromise G.O.P. candidate, could not carry the state in which he once resided. Second and more important is the conviction that a Republican cannot win simply by saying "No" to Democratic programs and Democratic promises.

Those Republicans, Kuchel says, who would repudiate historic party principles, who would tear to shreds basic pledges of 1952, 1956 and 1960, would do a tragic disservice to the Republican party. They would endanger, if not destroy, the American two-party system.

The 1960 platform, which was in considerable part the handiwork of Rockefeller after his famous midnight meeting with Nixon, has already been rejected by Sen. Barry Goldwater. He has said he would not run on it, and for good measure he has added, with a cynical realism that may be a luxury for a Presidential candidate, that platforms have in any event very little meaning.

KUCHEL CAN certify his claim to knowledge of how to carry the big-city states. Against a Democratic tide that saw Nixon defeated for Governor by 300,000 votes in 1962, Kuchel was re-elected by a majority of 750,000. And this was despite the sniping from the extreme right of his own party calling for his political head.

With a flock of candidates divided six ways to Sunday, the outcome of the New Hampshire primary may, when the votes are counted, mean very little. The bitter feud that helped to bring about the election of a Democratic Governor and Senator in that rock-ribbed Republican state has been injected into the primary.

With the entrance of former Gov. Wesley Powell as a "favorite son," the venom is flowing again. Mrs. Dolores Bridges, the widow of the Senator, who has embraced the Goldwater cause with all the zeal of which she is capable, is Powell's sworn enemy.

THE CALIFORNIA primary, if only because it is held in the state with the largest population in the Union, is of the first importance. It comes on June 3, little more than a month before the G.O.P. convention in San Francisco.

Goldwater could come out of New Hampshire with a majority of the delegates. He could, as he almost certainly will, take Nebraska. Republican leaders in Illinois are promising to carry that state for Goldwater. Yet, giving primaries their full weight in the scale, if Goldwater were to lose California, he would fail of the nomination.

NEW WORLD CHAMP SHOT PUTTER

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson's column today is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Senate investigators summoned Fred Black, the soft-spoken lobbyist for North American Aviation, behind closed doors the other day to ask what he knows of Bobby Baker's alleged association with gamblers and call girls.

Black acknowledged that he and Baker had participated in business ventures with gamblers Ed Levinson and Ed Torres of Las Vegas, and Benny Sigelbaum of Miami, also that an alleged labor racketeer, Mike Singer, is on the payroll of Serv-U, a vending machine company in which they own a big stake.

Black also suggested that the wheeling and dealing Bobby Baker, now out of a job and out of influence, is broke.

"I have loaned him small amounts to eat on since this thing broke about $1,000.00 Black confided. "I think he is broke. I feel real sorry for him."

THE LOBBYIST testified that George Simon of Miami, chief accountant for the international hotel chain, put up $80,000 to start Serv-U, and that Levinson, Torres, and Sigelbaum had invested by personal check.

"This is a clean deal," Black insisted. "There is nothing in there except clean money."

"Did you have anything to do with getting Levinson, Sigelbaum, and Torres into the deal?" demanded Lennox McLendon, the cracker-barrel special counsel, who is running the Bobby Baker investigation for the Senate Rules Committee.

"No, I guess Simon got them in," said Black.

"Did you know that these people were gamblers and racketeers?" rasped McLendon.

"I go along as far as Levinson is concerned with gambling, but he is far from being a racketeer," retorted Black.

"HE HAS quite an interesting background," suggested McLendon.

"Well, I am a gambler at heart," said the lobbyist. "I shoot crap, play the horses, as you know. Being with gamblers gives me a kick."

But, so far as I have been able to tell from the bankers, lawyers, and utility people out in Vegas, Levinson has led an exemplary life since he has lived out there."

(For the record, Levinson owns Las Vegas's glittering Fremont Hotel, plus investments in other Nevada gambling emporiums. Torres runs the Fremont for him. Baker once tried to get horse race concessions in California and gambling concessions in the Dominican Republic for Levinson.)

"How long have you known Levinson?" asked McLendon.

"I have known Ed Levinson since the day before Jack Kennedy's inauguration," replied the lobbyist.

"Do you know how Baker met Levinson?"

"Yes," said Black. "We both met him in this building in a pre-inauguration party, the day before the big snow, at a party that was given by Senators Bible and Cannon (of Nevada)."

BOTH SENATORS denied to this column that they had co-hosted any such party. But Bible's aides acknowledged that their records showed Levinson had dropped by the office during the Kennedy inaugural celebration.

"Do you know the labor racketeer Mike Singer?" asked McLendon. "Did you hire him?"

"No," said Black, Bill Armstrong (Serv-U's president) must have hired him. I didn't know why they employed him, and I have asked why he is still on the payroll. They said he has a contract that hasn't run out, he will be fired."

"Do you know," asked McLendon, "Whether Serv-U has paid Baker any money?"

"I knew you would ask me that," replied Black. "So I inquired and I was told no."

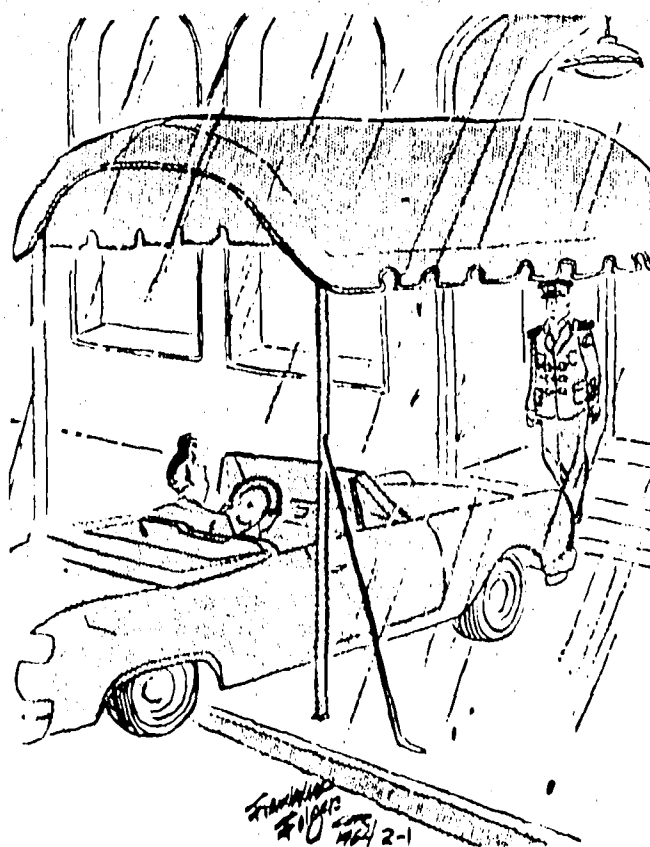

The paunchy, pleasant lobbyist also told how he had borrowed $175,000 from the Fidelity National Bank, controlled by the late Sen. Robert Kerr, D., Okla., to buy 6,400 shares of the Farmers and Merchants Bank. He has passed out 1,600 shares amice to Levinson and Sigelbaum, is still holding 1,600 shares for Baker.

"How did all this come about?" demanded McLendon.

"If you want to bring a dead man into this," said Black, "Bob Kerr made the loan possible. He thought this was a good deal and suggested I buy the stock."

"How did Baker get into this?" persisted the counsel.

What to Do If Exposed To T.B.

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A distant relative has just found that he has tuberculosis. My family has been repeatedly exposed by eating at his home. Please tell me what to do. We have five young children.

Will adding a little household bleach to water help sterilize dishes? — P.A.M.

Yes, a bleach or detergent will help sterilize dishes, but that is a rather small part of the problem.

The greater danger is in acquiring the T.B. germ from personal contact. It can be carried in the invisible droplets of moisture from a cough or sneeze, or even on the breath of a person with the disease.

Now that your family already has been exposed, the point is to find out how many of you have actually picked up the germ.

THE ADULTS should have chest X-rays repeated at six-month intervals for a time, to make sure that the disease is not developing. (It's a good idea for everyone to have a chest X-ray every year or so, because you can't tell by looking at a person whether he has T.B., and you never know when you may accidentally be exposed to the germ.)

As for the children, a tuberculin test (a simple skin test) is the first step. It will show whether they have actually come in contact with the germ. If this happens (that is, you get a "positive reaction") to any of them, then these children should have chest X-rays. With a negative reaction, X-rays are not necessary.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a wig be worn often without harm to the scalp and hair? — B. K.

By "often" I suppose you mean all the time — except when sleeping. There are no indications that wigs do any harm — and some people have been wearing them for a long, long time.

However, if you wear a wig, don't forget to observe the usual rules of hygiene for the scalp: Wash, comb and brush hair at reasonable intervals.

Wigs (the currently modish ones) will probably depart like other styles, such as short skirts and long, flat chests and padded, Empire gowns and shifts, bloomers and bikinis. Females will survive 'em all. For which I am glad.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and have an asthma history. Should I have cause for alarm because I now raise a lot of sputum from my lungs? — R. D.

This depends on what you mean by "alarm" — and on whether you have had a recent physical examination.

If you are raising sputum, you have that condition interfering with your breathing, along with whatever has been causing the asthma.

The sputum and the asthma may or may not have a direct connection, but the two factors are, so to speak, ganging up on you. They both hamper your breathing.

If some chronic infection is causing the sputum, it should be cleared up as soon as possible. Whether it is a serious or a relatively minor infection is something your doctor will have to determine. There is no way you can do so. Don't be "alarmed," but be concerned.

Dear Dr. Molner: My nine-year-old son suffered frostbite of the scrotum from playing in the snow too long. Will this make him sterile? My doctor says he doesn't think so at this age. — MRS. M. D.

I, too, doubt that it will cause sterility. The frostbite was of the skin covering, rather than of the testicles themselves.

Terms Manchester
Hate Center of N.E.
To the Editor:

Mr. Lance Lamphere, Nelson, Wis., sees the Goldwater presidential balloon rising so fast, it will soon be out of sight across the river.

In his letter to this column he has assured the area voters that the Republican convention will concede the nomination of Goldwater.

At present Goldwater is directing a vicious campaign in New Hampshire. The people of Manchester which is quite an active hate center in the northeast, have never been hate conscious until recently. The state's biggest newspaper pours a steady stream of venom on to its readers almost every day.

The democratic system is keyed to the free market place of ideas and dogmas and it is better that these ideas be placed openly before the voters, where they can be exposed and demolished, than to have them in the shadowy background of a candidate who hides behind the platitudes and slogans of a manufactured campaign.

Setting Record Straight
On Academic Freedom
To the Editor:

I would like to set the record straight as to being a spokesman for any political or social group. I speak only for myself.

I feel very strongly about freedom, whether it be academic, individual or freedom of the press and radio.

Our government (Democrat and Republican) put such a high price on this commodity, that it was willing to sacrifice over one million lives in two great wars, protecting it for people all over the globe, so let's not lose one precious drop of it here at home.

I believe anyone having information on subversive activities should by all means report it to the FBI. They can check out this information without damaging the reputation of the innocent and not start kangaroo court proceedings at the whim of irresponsible persons.

I denounce most vigorously any organization hiding behind the American flag, running roughshod over the rights of a citizen for the sake of a few headlines.

Officers of these groups should not be immune from punishment and should be made accountable for their actions. Members should put more thought in the choosing of officers, making sure that men of higher moral caliber protect their organization from being suckered in by a fast talking, overzealous, good time Charlie.

Anyone who has witnessed the shenanigans at some of these conventions, would do well to shiver in their boots, knowing that these wayward kids wield so much power.

I don't like to take the "MY NAME IS JOHN L. SULLIVAN AND I'LL FIGHT ANY MAN IN THE HOUSE" attitude, because I don't hate any man, I just hate the evil that men do.

Mondovi Busy With Building

Eight-Apartment Building Invites Visitors Today

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — Open house will be held today from noon to 4 p.m. at a new eight-unit apartment building constructed here by Mr. and Mrs. James Heike.

This is one of four new privately financed building projects in Mondovi just occupied or soon to be in use. Kramschuster, Inc., has occupied an office and shop for its contracting business, and Olbert Construction moved into new quarters last week. The Blum building is under construction.

Mondovi's first large, new APARTMENT building, located on Highway 10 about 3 1/2 blocks west of the downtown business district, is a completely modern one-story structure with brick exterior. The 44- by 104-foot building houses four two-bedroom apartments and four one-bedroom apartments. The two-bedroom quarters are at each end of the buildings and the one-bedroom units in the center.

All apartments are furnished with electric ranges and range hood exhaust ventilation, private hot water supply, individual thermostat for heat control, private bath and shower facilities. Several apartments will be completely furnished.

Kitchens in each apartment have built-in birch cabinets and stainless steel sinks, with garbage disposal units. The one-bedroom units have built-in counter tables.

Interiors are decorated in pastel colors and ranch maple paneling. Floors are covered with vinyl asbestos tile. All bathroom floors are terrazzo and walls have ceramic tiling.

Other features include a plug-in master TV antenna system, picture windows in the living room area, laundry facilities in the basement which include automatic washer and dryer, and ample off-the-street parking area. The basement also provides additional individual storage space for renters. The building has a gas-fired, hot water heating system.

Kramschuster, Inc., was general contractor; Mondovi Hardware Co., plumbing and hot water heaters; Tru-Gas, heating plant and installation; Van's Electric, electrical; Rudy Dworschak, painting, interior and exterior; Donald Parker Construction, excavating and landscaping; Miles Cabinet, cabinets (they're all Mondovi firms) and Zenith Sales Co., Eau Claire, electric ranges, range hoods, refrigerators and laundry equipment.

The public is invited to the open house.

GENE KRAMSCHUSTER, incorporated as a general contractor, has moved into his newly completed office and shop building on Highway 37 just north of Jackson Lumber Harvester, Inc., about a mile north of Mondovi.

The frame structure has redwood siding. The office, 18 by 30 feet, has pecan paneling. The shop is 36 by 54 feet.

Kramschuster, who also plans a 36- by 80-foot warehouse, has hired Duede Miles to manage shop operations. Cabinet and millwork, specialties of the company, now are in progress.

Kramschuster engaged Mondovi firms for the mechanical work. Tru-Gas for heating and air conditioning, the hardware for plumbing, and Van's Electric.

The OLBERT CONSTRUCTION CO. building on the south side of Highway 10 at its junction with Highway 37, is about three-fourths mile east of the business district.

The building is a pole-type structure. The warehouse, 34 by 60 feet, has an exterior covering of metal. A shop 16 by 24 feet is located in the warehouse. The office, 20 by 24 feet, presents a black and tan brick exterior. There are teal blue panels above and below the windows on the outside, with white trim.

The office interior is partly finished in paneling. Other features are acoustical tile ceilings, birch doors, and asphalt tile floors.

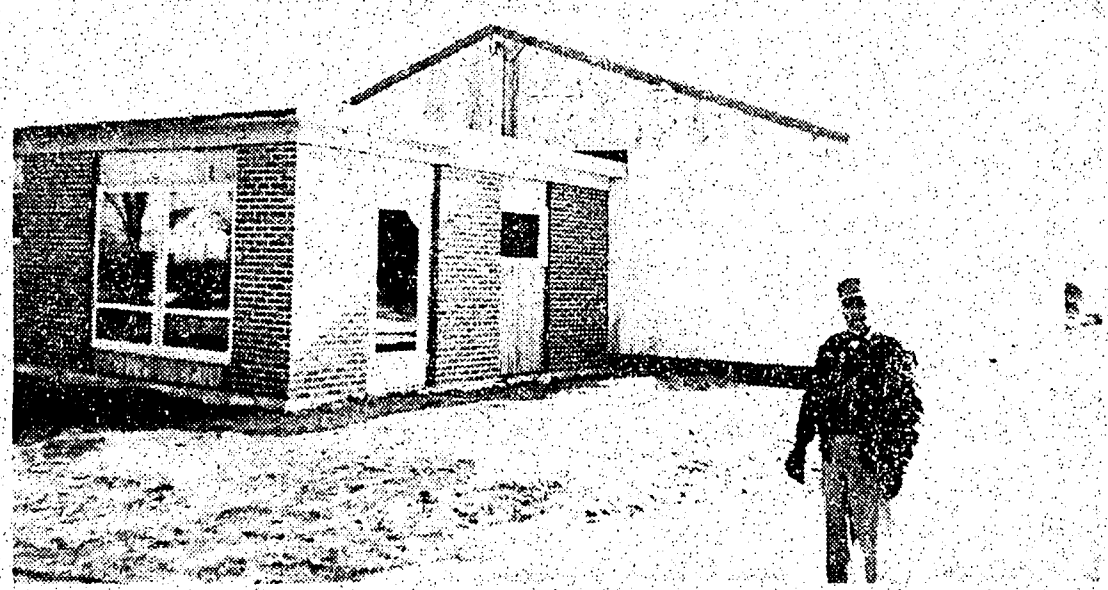

Olbert used the same Mondovi companies as Kramschuster for mechanical construction.

IN AREA ALL HER LIFE

Blair Woman Marks Her 96th Birthday

BLAIR, Wis. (Special)—Living in the same area where she was born 96 years ago — that's the story of Mrs. Ole Sylfest who observed her birthday Thursday.

The former Pauline Olson, she was born Jan. 30, 1868.

When relatives and friends called they were served biscuits made by Mrs. Sylfest, who lives with her daughters, Tillie and Amelia. She likes to bake bread, a specialty of hers since she was a young girl.

She gets around too. Christmas Eve she attended a family gathering at the Basil Erickson home at Whitehall. Christmas Day she joined members for the traditional dinner at the Harrison Immell home here.

Mrs. Sylfest was born on a farm about one mile south of the Trempealeau Valley Lutheran Church, daughter of Christian and Anna Olson. Her father was a Civil War veteran.

SHE HAS a remarkable memory and vividly recalls the pioneer days. Mrs. Sylfest recalls that lumber for the Trempealeau Valley church, in which she has kept up her membership, was hauled to the valley by oxen.

"It was a three-day journey," she recalls. "One day to make the trip to Black River Falls, one day to load the lumber, and the third day to return."

Mrs. Sylfest was one of the first babies baptized in the congregation. The church was not completed. The ceremony was performed in the house where the pastor stayed when he came to conduct services. The church is now served by the Rev. W. H. Winkler.

IN 1891 SHE was married to Ole Sylfest. They farmed in Vosse Coulee on the Sylfest homestead and later in Tur Coulee before purchasing a farm two miles east of here, where they continued to live until Sylfest's death in 1944.

Mrs. Sylfest and her two daughters then moved into Blair.

A birthday dinner at the Sylfest home Sunday was attended by her other two daughters, Mrs. Harrison Immell, Blair, and Mrs. Basil Erickson, Whitehall, and their husbands, plus the Ericksons' son, Roger, Madison.

Mrs. Sylfest's other grandson, Clark Erickson, a senior at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, was unable to be present.

8 Convicted in Dance Fraud In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A federal jury convicted seven men and a woman for mail fraud Friday night in the sale of high-priced dancing lessons.

The government charged in its first such prosecution that men and women students, many of them elderly, had been lured into spending as much as $6,930 for dancing lesson contracts. It was alleged also that lessons, and social contacts promised failed to match promises.

The jury acquitted Gil Anthony, 31, Minneapolis. Convicted were: Miss Kay Peterson, 28, Minneapolis, on 9 of 11 counts; Evan Eppert, 26, St. Paul, 7 of 9; Arvin Mueschke, 26, Rochester, 9 of 11; Robert Schafer, 31, St. Paul, 5 of 7; Fred Lowry, 29, Bloomington, 6 of 8; Wayne Schmidt, 26, Minneapolis, 6 of 8; Ralph O'Grady, 27, Bloomington, 2 of 3, and Stanley Friedman, 31, Old Bridge, N.J., 8 of 10.

Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye had dismissed charges against Gerald Friedman, 33, Long Island, N.Y., on Jan. 6. He is Stanley's brother. The government withdrew charges against Henry Klug, 26, Pittsburgh, on the second day of trial.

The defendants had operated as owners, salesmen or instructors at Dulo Studios in Minneapolis-St. Paul, later known as National Dance Studios.

Conviction on each count carries penalties up to $1,000 fine and five years in prison, or both.

The defendants remained free on bail, set for most at $1,500. A date for sentencing was not set immediately. Asst. U.S. Attorney Patrick Foley prosecuted the case, which was investigated under supervision of U.S. District Attorney Miles Lord.

U Probe Job For Regents, Keith States

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Lt. Gov. A. M. Keith says the board of regents and not any group of legislators should investigate faculty hiring and firing policies at the University of Minnesota.

Keith told a Friday news conference that it was "inappropriate" for the Senate Education Committee to have ordered such a probe because, under law, the regents are charged with the responsibility of running the university.

The inquiry had been voted 24 hours earlier by the Senate group after a discussion on academic freedom, sparked by recent exchanges between Prof. Mulford Q. Sibley, controversial political science instructor, and Milton Rosen, a St. Paul commissioner.

Keith told newsmen he considered the regents a highly able and dedicated group in a much better position to handle university affairs than legislators.

He cited that the House Rules Committee recently had turned down a demand for a similar investigation on grounds it would have had to be approved by a vote of the entire House. Keith added it was unfortunate that the Senate committee "did not follow this wise example."

"We must appreciate," said Keith, "that a truly great university never is free of controversy. A diversity of ideas, probably more than any other single factor, is essential to a meaningful education."

Keith concluded that, if every time there was a controversy an investigation would be held, the procedure would tend to drive good scholars away and to limit the freedom of expression.

Nigerian Slated For St. Teresa

First lecturer of 1964 on the College of Saint Teresa's Lee and Rose Warner lecture series will be Dr. William L. Hansberry, writer and historian.

Dr. Hansberry, chairman of the history department at the University of Nigeria, will be on the Saint Teresa campus Friday and Saturday to discuss "Art and Culture of the African Continent."

A graduate of Harvard, Dr. Hansberry did post-graduate work in African history and archaeology at the University of Chicago, at Oxford and at the University of Cairo. For a number of years, he headed the study of early African civilizations at Howard University.

He now is senior professor at the Hansberry College of African Studies at the University of Nigeria.

Recognized as an authority on the history and culture of Africa, the lecturer has done much to discredit the popularly held picture of Africa as the "Dark Continent." This has been achieved by his gathering of facts to prove that Africa "is not only the world's richest but nature's most favored continent."

His research has been fortified by first-hand studies of his subject. A former Fulbright research scholar in Egypt and the Sudan, he has made archaeological field surveys in both of these countries as well as in Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Southern Rhodesia, Belgian Congo, Ghana and Nigeria. He also has traveled extensively in Zanzibar, Tanganyika, Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia.

Dr. Hansberry is the author of many articles on early African civilization. His book, "Ancient and Medieval Africa," will be published soon.

Grand Bahama Island Moved On 1370th Map

By DON MCKEE
TURNER AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. (AP) — Moving the Grand Bahama Island could be listed as one accomplishment for the men of the 1370th.

The shift was done on maps after the Atlantic Missile Range was surveyed by the 1370th Photo Mapping Wing of the Air Photographic and Charting Service.

This project, born of need to meet precise guidance requirements of missiles, sharpened considerably the accuracy of the Atlantic range by uncovering mapping errors.

They found Grand Bahama six miles out of position on maps then in use; Cuba misplaced by six-tenths of a mile and other points erroneously located on maps.

One major survey of the 1370th was charting of the North Atlantic to link accurately the North American and European continents. Covering 2,000 miles, it was accurate within 34 feet.

"It provides the basic geodetic link for our missile strategy," said Col. Kendall S. Young, commander of the 1370th.

From polar icecaps to desolate peaks in South America; from New Guinea jungles to barren Pacific atolls — the men of the 1370th measure the world, bit by bit.

Sometimes it's lonely. "For five months I saw only one bird," said M. Sgt. Thomas Fenton, telling of his experiences on Greenland's icecap.

Ground crews of three men usually spend about three months at a station, living in tents.

Sometimes there's too much company. "A whole tribe of natives, painted and armed with spears, bows and arrows, surrounded our three-man station on an island near New Guinea," Col. Hugh W. Bell said.

"They were obviously disturbed about something."

So were the three Air Force crewmen.

"To keep the tribesmen from exploding, the ground crew gave away nearly all their food," Bell said.

The men of the 1370th still have plenty of work ahead. Only about 40 per cent of the globe has been mapped.

Was This Busy Indian Highway?

Editor's Note: Percival N. Narveson, 65, is a retired bricklayer and instructor of bricklaying. He lives at Spring Grove, Minn.

Always interested in history, he has more time for it now. He's particularly interested in the days of the Indian occupation. He's gathered material from newspapers, magazines, history books and people. A good deal of his time is spent at his books and typewriter.

By PERCIVAL NARVESON

From a time before the recorded history of this area, an unusual ancient trail, now nearly obliterated, apparently existed for an unestimated length of time from Winona almost due south to Fort Atkinson, Iowa.

It is surmised that this was an overland trail, running both north and south from these two points, and was first laid out by the ancient Mound Builders, immediate ancestors of the Sioux Indians.

It ran through Houston village and Spring Grove, Houston County, and through Decorah and Calmar, Iowa, en route to Fort Atkinson.

WHILE MOST Indian trails were only narrow footpaths through the wilderness, this one was as wide as a cart road and worn deep by much travel and the dragging of tepees.

Although it was referred to as the Winona-Fort Atkinson trail, it evidently continued up the valley from Winona.

This trail had been used by the Mdewakantons, more commonly known as the Dakotas, the branch of the great Sioux tribe which had their main village on the site of Winona. The Dakotas used it in traveling between their temporary villages and campsites along the Root River in Minnesota and the Iowa and Turkey rivers in Iowa.

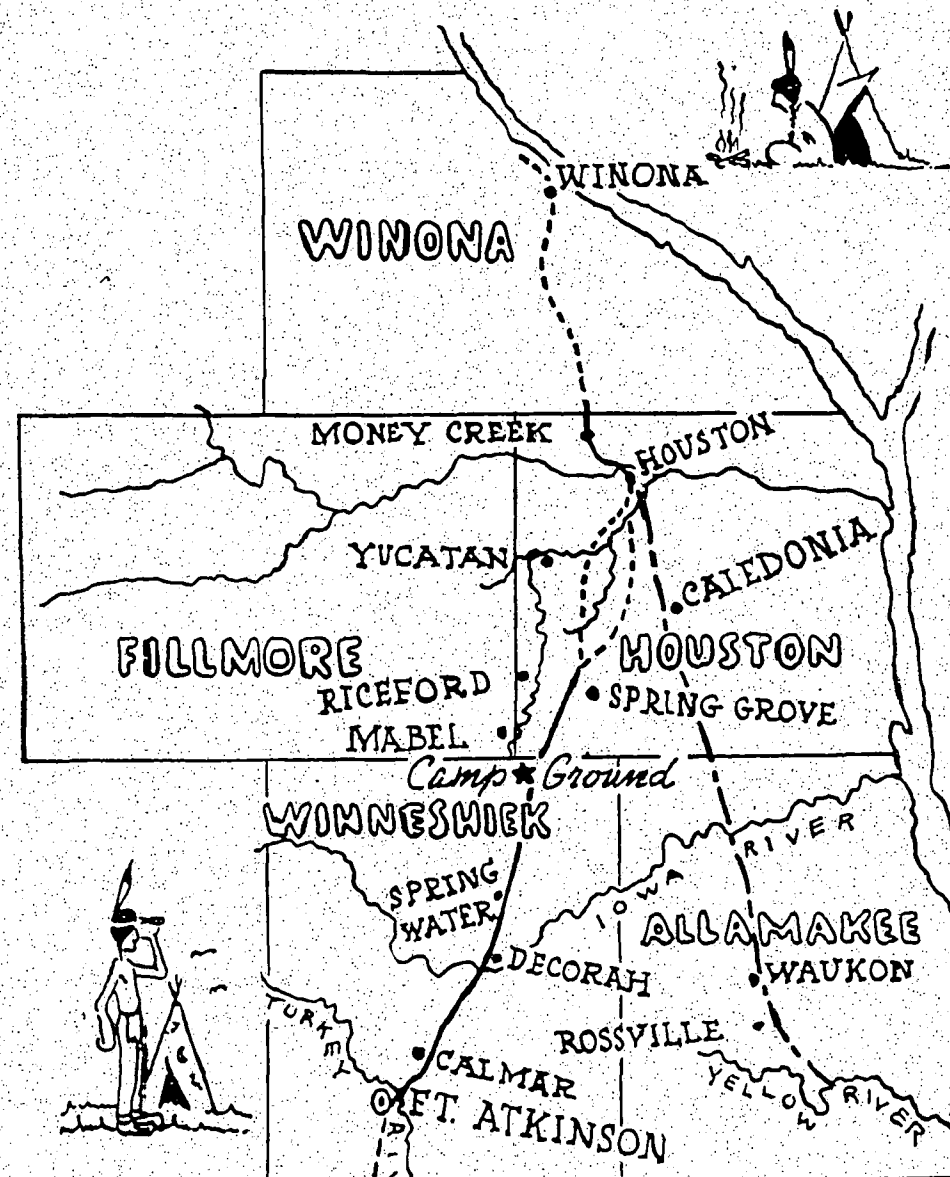

It also had been used by the Fox-Sauk tribe in raids against the Sioux. The Fox-Sauks were powerful and warlike, boasting of having conquered all tribes in their way westward from the Ohio Valley into Iowa. They had, by 1780, supplanted the Sioux in Iowa Territory.

OVER THIS trail many Chippewa war parties also had traveled in their raids against their traditional enemies, the Sioux. At an earlier time the Chippewa had driven the Sioux from their strongholds around Mille Lacs into Southeastern Minnesota. They continued to harass them to the time the Sioux were moved out of this area in 1851.

Without stretching the imagination, we can conclude the Mound Builders used this trail, for there is much evidence of their having ranged the lower parts of the valleys of the tributaries of the Mississippi River.

After the interior of North America came under French sovereignty, this trail was used by French explorers, traders and Jesuit missionaries. Some of the Jesuit missionaries are known to have worked among the Sioux in Southeastern Minnesota.

In the 1830s the Winnebago Indians relinquished all their land in Wisconsin to the whites

BEFORE RECORDED HISTORY

The trails down through the center of this map are believed to have been built by the Mound Builders, predecessors of the Indians. Unlike most Indian trails, this Winona-Fort Atkinson trail was worn wide as a

in Minnesota political history — was assigned the trade with the Winnebago, one of his posts was located on this trail, about three miles south of Decorah.

WE KNOW THAT mail carriers who traveled by foot with mail on their backs between Fort Snelling and Fort Crawford at Prairie du Chien made use of this trail from Winona south to the Root River valley. Somewhere south of the Root River they left the Winona-Fort Atkinson trail and continued on along another trail that angled off towards Caledonia, then via Portland Prairie, Waukon and Rossville they reached the mouth of the Yellow River.

Military men and scientific explorers also made use of this trail. On a roughly drawn and faded sketch found among the field notes of Maj. Stephen H. Long on his expedition into Minnesota in 1823, it appears, he traveled this trail in parts of his journey from the Iowa line and north to Winona.

When settlers began moving into Southeastern Minnesota in the early 1850s, many of them took advantage of this trail in scouting for eligible home sites. Several settlers from Spring Grove traveled over this trail from the already established settlements in Iowa into Minnesota territory. They came in covered wagons drawn by oxen. We also have records of millwrights following this trail while in search of mill sites in Houston County.

IN PUBLIC documents we find government officials, surveyors and men connected with Indian affairs referring to it as the "Government Trail." When roads were being laid out in Spring Grove Township in territorial days, one road was named the Indian Trail Road as for some distance it followed this ancient trail.

Although Southeastern Minnesota ceased to be Indian territory in 1851, early settlers told of seeing long caravans of Indians marching along this trail in the middle 1850s. It is now over a century ago since the redmen trod this trail, and most vestiges of its course

New Smithsonian Institution Head Man of Many Parts

By J. W. DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd expect the new head of the famous Smithsonian Institution to be a distinguished scholar. He is.

But who would expect him to be a onetime secret agent, or the man who introduced belly-dancing to Yale University?

This man of many parts is Dr. Sidney Dillon Ripley. He is the eighth man to head the 117-year-old Smithsonian, an institution that ranks at the top in Washington's attractions for tourists and dignitaries alike.

Ripley moved into his post Saturday, coming from Yale, where he was director of the Peabody Museum of Natural History, combining administrative work with his pursuit of ornithology.

It was at the Peabody, in connection with the exhibition of some treasures from the tomb of King Tutankhamen, that the belly-dancing episode took place.

Dr. Ripley thought a program of appropriate music at the exhibition would go well. He had a professor who could play authentic Egyptian music on a zither.

"So I called a theatrical agent in New York and asked him to supply an authentic Egyptian folk dancer," Ripley relates.

It wasn't until the shapely young woman started her writhing before 200 trustees and honored guests that it dawned on Ripley that Egypt's authentic folk dance was the belly dance.

"It was a distinct shock to production is indicated in all regions of the country."

U.S. Denies Panama Claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Denying Panama's charges of aggression, the United States told the Organization of American States an investigation would show the Panamanian government was "inciting the people to attack and violence" in the canal dispute.

Mobs "infiltrated and led by extremists, including persons trained in Communist countries" assaulted the U.S. controlled Canal Zone, Ellisworth Bunker, new U.S. ambassador to the OAS, told the hemisphere organization Friday.

U.S. forces "never attempted to enter Panama but acted only to protect the lives and property of its citizens," he said. "No small portion of the Panamanian casualties were caused by the Panamanians themselves."

Barry Raps Johnson on Word Juggling

By WALTER R. MEARS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona has accused the Johnson administration of "cockeyed thinking" on the cold war, "juggling of words" on disarmament and "bunkum" on Cuba.

Courting Missouri Republicans in his bid for the GOP presidential nomination, Goldwater insisted it is time for the party to offer the voters a choice and stop trying "to appease the Democrats."

The Arizona senator pressed his campaign Friday at airport rallies in St. Louis and Kansas City, on a "Goldwater special" charter flight that carried 91 Republicans between the two cities and at a $100-a-plate fundraising dinner here.

Goldwater took on Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, charging the Pentagon chief had "so far failed to prove" that U.S. missiles are dependable.

"This administration is not doing justice to the government's responsibility... to tell the people the whole truth," Goldwater told more than 500 Republicans. They greeted his charges with repeated applause.

The Arizona also told newsmen he thinks former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is his toughest opponent for the Republican nomination. He ranked New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, behind the party's 1960 candidate.

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — District 4-H leaders from La Crosse, Clark, Trempealeau, Jackson, Vernon, Monroe, Richland and Crawford counties will meet at the Fireside at La Crosse Wednesday. Mrs. Russell Kopp, Galesville, will be on a panel to discuss improving leadership skills.

Down by the Sea Shore..

TAYLOR, Wis. (Special) — Looking over the shell collection of Mrs. Clarence Amundson, Taylor, is like exploring the bottom of the ocean.

She has such specimens as the spider of the sea, turkey foot, turkey wing, angel wing, pine cone, Florida sand dollar, abalone shells and coral. They came from many parts of the world.

She has a type of shell used by sailors along the Southern coast of the U.S.

THE FLORIDA sand dollar is said to be the legend of the birth and death of Jesus. A small, low specimen about four inches in diameter, it is found along the Florida coast, washed ashore by the tide. When its brown, slimy coating is removed, it is snow white.

The sand dollar has four legs, said in the legend to be made by nails. A fifth hole is believed to be made by a spear. On one side there's an Easter egg. In its center is a star, believed to be a picture of the star that appeared to the shepherds and led them to the manger.

A pennant-like etching appears on the other side, said to mean the birth of Christ. When the center is broken, there are five white doves said to be awaiting their release to spread good will and peace.

COLORFUL abalone shells are found along San Francisco Bay. One she has made into a lighthouse lamp. Out of other shells Mrs. Amundson has made birds, lamps, dolls, necklaces and earrings.

Mrs. Amundson purchased part of her collection in shops, some shells have been sent her by friends and relatives, and some she has collected herself.

A few in her collection of hundreds are as old as 50 years. They differ in shape depending on where they were found.

MRS. AMUNDSON also has

Jury Deliberation Gives U.S. Olympic Medal

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Dawnless Jean Saubert of Lakeview, Ore., survived a foul claim and brought in the United States' first medal—a third-place bronze in the women's slalom ski race—while the powerful Russian team added to its avalanche of victories Saturday in the ninth Winter Olympic Games.

There were 70 minutes of anxious waiting for the 21-year-old Oregon State coed while an international jury deliberated on a report that she had missed one of the 56 gates on the last of her two runs.

Gate guards made the report.

The Americans demanded a review. Finally, after viewing movies, the jury ruled there was no infraction and gave Miss Saubert the No. 3 position behind a pair of French sisters, Christine and Marielle Goitschel, first and second, respectively.

Wild jubilation swept the American camp, but there was no escaping one sobering fact. This is a Soviet Union Olympics.

The fabulous Lidia Skoblikova, 24-year-old Siberian school teacher, won her third speed skating championship in Olympic record time by streaking the 1,000 meters in 1 minute, 33.2 seconds. And another Soviet school teacher, Claudia Boyarskikh of Sverdlovsk, led a 1-2-3 Russian sweep in the women's 10-kilometer ski race.

At the end of the day, the Russians boasted a whopping total of 12 medals—five gold, three silver and four bronze—and threatened to dominate the spectacle as no country ever has done.

Mrs. Skoblikova, a dimpled, blonde housewife who is a phantom on ice, emerged as the outstanding individual star of the Games with a chance of winning an unprecedented fourth medal Sunday. That's when she races in the 3,000-meter speed skating event.

The fourth day's other honors went to a pair of daring British bobsledders, Tony Nash and Robin Dixon, who defied the treacherous turns of the icy lugs chute for a two-man victory that snapped the longtime monopoly of Italy's famed Sergio Zardini and Eugenio Monti.

The British pair, their sled strengthened by an axle borrowed from the Italians, banged against the wall at the notorious Witch's Kettle turn and almost left the track on their second run. However, they zoomed down in safety for a combined time for four runs of 4 minutes, 21.90 seconds.

This was Britain's first gold medal in the Winter Games since 1952.

Zardini's sled was second and third went to Monti, the mountain man who has won eight world championships.

Larry McKillip of Saranac Lake, N.Y., with James Lamy of Lake Placid, N.Y., at the brake, finished fifth in 4:24.60.

The sturdy, round-faced Goitschel girls—Christine, 19, and Marielle, 18, daughters of a Val d'Isere inn keeper—became the first sister combination ever to win gold and silver medals in the Winter Games.

Christine, trailing after the first run, rallied on her second spurt down the 365-meter Lizum Valley course with its 64 gates to win by a fraction of a second. Christine was clocked in 1 minute, 29.86 seconds for the two runs, Marielle in 1:30.77.

Miss Saubert's time was 1:31.36. She went wide on the upper reaches of the course on her first effort and fell into sixth place. She cut loose on her second run and shot down the course like a rocket, clocking 46.58 seconds.

She was being hugged and kissed by her teammates when the report came that a guard at gate No. 8 had reported that she had failed to make the gate properly. Missing a gate means automatic disqualification.

American spirits fell. Amos Little, U.S. delegate to the International Ski Federation, immediately demanded a jury review. An hour and 10 minutes later, the good news came.

"That's wonderful, that's wonderful," Jean gushed. "I only wish it could have been of another color. But it's wonderful to win the first medal for America, just the same."

Gophers Rip Badgers

Minnesota Sets Mark

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota toyed with Wisconsin until midway in the second half and then nearly blew the Badgers off the court in soaring to school record 111-92 Big Ten basketball victory Saturday night.

The Gophers, moving up a notch to fourth place in the Big Ten with a 4-3 record, erased their old scoring mark of 107 set this season against South Dakota.

Lou Hudson topped the Minnesota scoring with 25 points and Mel Northway added 19 as all five Gopher starters reached double figures.

Wisconsin, now 1-4 in the conference, got 25 points from Dave Robert.

Minnesota held a modest 70-61 lead with 12 minutes, 42 seconds left when the Gophers started their big push. Within 2½ minutes the lead had jumped to 80-66 when Hudson sank two lay-ups on the fast break. Then the Gophers exploded for eight points in barely over one minute to roar ahead 88-68 with 7:45 to go.

The school record tumbled with 55 seconds to play when reserve Wes Martins twisted under the basket for a layup that made it 109-88. Martins also hit a jumper to run Minnesota's total to 111.

The Gophers jumped ahead 13-5 and it was never really close again. Minnesota led 56-41 at halftime.

State Swim Team Rolls Past 'Kato

Winona State College's swim team won its second dual meet of the weekend by rolling past Northern Intercollegiate Conference foe Mankato 82-13.

The victory over Mankato kept a string intact for Winona State.

The Warriors swept victories in all 11 events Saturday at the Memorial Hall pool to make it 22 firsts—the maximum number—for the two weekend meets.

In addition, Coach John Martin's tankers broke two records to make it five marks severed for the weekend.

Dennis Blanchard set new pool and varsity marks in the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:19.3. The old pool mark was 2:21 with the varsity record standing at 2:21.2.

The Warrior 400-yard freestyle relay team of Blanchard, Gerry Rode, Bill Kohler and Frank Braun posted a time of 3:34.1 to break the pool mark of 3:36.

Winona State now stands at 6-1. The Warrior tank team will be back in action Wednesday at La Crosse.

ST. MARY'S TRIUMPHS 74-67

Second-Half Surge Helps Redmen Win

St. Mary's evened its MIAC record at 4-4 with a 74-67 victory over Gustavus Adolphus at Terrace Heights Saturday night.

The Redmen used a second-half surge to turn the trick after trailing 42-38 at halftime.

Denny Burgman and Tom Hall were instrumental in the surge that propelled St. Mary's to an eight-point lead with just over three minutes left in the game.

Hall brought them back into contention and Burgman then hit four consecutive hook shots to boost St. Mary's back in front and set the stage for the final surge.

From that point on St. Mary's kept command and went on to the victory.

For St. Mary's Tom Hall hit 20 points, all on field goals and all coming on driving layups. Al Williams tallied 18 points and Denny Burgman 14.

For Gustavus, Bill Lauman around up with 23 points to take game honors. Andy Hagemann hit 13 and Ron Severson 11.

The Redmen dominated the second half thanks to their rebounding strength.

Their first lead in the second half came after St. Mary's had tied the score 51-51 on buckets by Hall, who got two, and one by George Valaika. The score was tied at 53-53 before a basket by Hall put St. Mary's out in front to stay with 10 minutes left.

St. Mary's left the floor at halftime trailing 42-38 after leading through the opening minutes.

St. Mary's Tom Hall hit six points as the Redmen burst to a 10-2 lead. All three field goals came on driving left-handed shots.

Gustavus came back fighting to close the gap to 10-8 on a series of weird jump shots by Bill Lauman.

Al Williams punched through two for the Redmen on a bucket off a pattern. The Gusties then took command, moving out in front 13-12 on a three-point play by Lauman and a basket by Ron Severson.

Williams hit again to give St. Mary's a 14-13 lead and Gustavus again went out in front, this time by 17-14.

From this point it was a see-saw battle until eight minutes remained in the half. Andy Hagemann then scored four points to put the Gusties ahead 29-24.

The Redmen gained two on a hook shot by Denny Burgman and Gustavus countered on a bucket by Severson to make it 31-26.

Williams hit two charity tosses to make it 31-28 and Gustavus then got six straight points to make it 37-28.

The Redmen fought back, whipping in six points to close the gap to 42-38.

Lauman was the big gun in the first half for Gustavus hitting 16 points. Williams got 14 for St. Mary's.

St. Mary's gets back into MIAC action by playing at Macalester Monday night.

LITTLE PUTT THAT MISSED... Charlie Sifford stares bleakly into space after missing a short putt for a birdie on the third green at Eldorado Country Club during Saturday's fourth round of the $100,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

State Drops Second Tilt To Dragons

MOORHEAD, Minn. (Special)—Winona State's hopes for a high Northern Intercollegiate Conference finish suffered an other severe setback here Saturday as a disastrous two-game road trip came to an end.

After stopping in Bemidji and succumbing to the Beavers 85-71 Friday night, the Warriors lost here Saturday by the score of 78-71.

"We just didn't do the job," said a very disappointed Coach Bob Campbell. "It was just a continuation of the Bemidji game. That's all that's to it."

The Warriors fell behind early under the attack of the NIC's leading scorer, Pete Lysaker, and couldn't recover.

Lyle Papenfuss, who finished with nine points in his second straight sub-average performance, picked up his fourth foul in the first half and went to the bench with his fifth early in the second 20-minute period.

"That hurt," said Campbell. With Lysaker, Jim Fahr and tiny guard Don Wermager, an all-conference performer last year, setting the pace, the Dragons controlled the game during the first half and left the floor on the long end of a 36-23 count.

"We shot 31 percent in the first half," said the Warrior coach, "and that didn't help things either."

A man-to-man press in the second half found the Warriors cutting the margin to eight points on several occasions, but that was it.

"We did a fairly good job with the press," stated Campbell, "but when we would get it down to eight, fundamental mistakes would hurt us."

The coach did have praise for the play of Dave Meisner and Dave Goede, his guards, and Dave Rosenau and reserve Jack Kelly.

"They hustled real well," he said.

Meisner wound up as the leading Winona State scorer with 12 points while Rosenau and Goede also hit double figures with 10.

Lysaker fired home 23 for the Dragons, Jahr 21 and Wermager 16.

The double losses this weekend left Winona State with an overall record of 9-11. The Warriors stand 2-4 in the NIC.

BUT SHE GOT BRONZE MEDAL

Jean Saubert Says: 'Course Scared Me'

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Olympics Saturday.

"When I looked at the course," she said, "I kept from below, it scared me," said Jean Saubert, the blue-eyed, pink-cheeked collegian from Lakeview, Ore., who won America's first medal at the Winter Olympics is just in a class by itself."

Miss Saubert had quite a bit of difficulty holding her position—even after she had finished third and apparently won a bronze medal.

It took only 1 minute and 31.36 seconds for the 21-year-old ace of the American team to slip her curves through the twisting women's slalom courses. But there was an additional 70-minute wait before she finally was awarded the medal.

As she leaped across the finish line on her second run, the Oregon State collegian said, "It felt real good. But is it good enough for a medal?"

The time was good. But the guard at flat No. 8 claimed that Miss Saubert had failed to take the gate properly.

Miss Saubert's composure was shaken. She whipped off her yellow goggles. She ran her fingers through her short-cropped hair. She fidgeted. And she waited.

Finally the international jury handed down its decision—Miss Saubert had not missed the gate.

Amos Little, U.S. delegate to the International Ski Federation, brought the news.

"Miss Saubert is definitely in," he said. "A review of the control film by the judges definitely proved that she passed the gate in proper fashion."

"That's wonderful, that's wonderful," said Miss Saubert. "I only wish it had been a different color medal. But it is wonderful to win the first medal for America, just the same."

Miss Saubert won America's first medal by ramming her 150-pound frame down the two runs in 44.78 and 46.58 seconds. She finished behind a pair of French Sisters, Christine Goitschel, the winner with a 1:29.86 clocking and Marielle, the runner-up at 1:30.77.

She admitted having difficulty at the start.

"I was tight at the start of the first run. It may have been nervousness, I don't know. But I thought I skied the last half of the first run good, and the second run very well."

U.S. team manager Fred Casotti was satisfied.

"We were hoping to do a little better, but we are awfully happy to get a medal, especially the first medal for the whole American team," he said.

Illini Tumble Wildcats 73-71

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Bill McKeown's basket in the final second of play gave Illinois a 73-71 Big Ten basketball victory over Northwestern Saturday despite a 49-point performance by Rick Lopossa.

Lopossa single handedly kept Northwestern in contention and tied the game with a three-point play with 20 seconds remaining.

Illinois then called time. Playing for the final shot, McKeown, who had been sidelined with an ankle injury earlier in the week, then fired his vital 15-foot jump shot to give the Illini their third conference victory without defeat and keep them in a technical tie with Michigan, 6-0, for first place.

Illinois got off to a fast 9-4 lead with Bogie Redmond hitting three quick baskets. But Northwestern took back an Illinois grew cold from the field and the Wildcats took a 31-26 halftime lead.

Lopossa then battled for a rebound and pushed the ball in, drawing a foul and sinking the tying point. Then McKeown came through with his heroics.

Cotter: There Are No Worries Like Nice Worries

By ROLLIE WUSSOW
Sunday News Sports Writer

Every basketball coach should have worries like Cotter John Nett.

The likeable Rambler mentor was concerned Friday morning because two of his basketball regulars were ill. Conversely, every basketball player should develop illnesses like Rich Starzecki and Mike Jerecek.

Starzecki and Jerecek, playing with a touch of the flu, were instrumental in steering the Ramblers to a 72-52 victory over St. Thomas Academy Friday night.

The win was the 15th for the Ramblers against two losses.

The game was tight for the first two minutes of play. St. Thomas took the lead with an opening basket by John Fogarty. The margin was quickly erased on a free throw by John Nett Jr. and a two-point shot by Jerecek. Fogarty then dropped in two free throws for a 4-3 lead and after this point the Cadets may as well have boarded the bus for the trip back to St. Paul.

Cotter, with floor-general Starzecki leading the attack with several sharp passes, spurred to a 22-11 quarter lead on a rash of free throws by Gene Schultz, Nett, Jerecek and Starzecki.

The Cadets and Ramblers exchanged baskets to open the second period. St. Thomas found itself down 30-18 midway through the stanza before John Labree took quick charge and poured in five straight points to make it 30-23. Nett and Russ Fisk then countered with six points. Nett hitting four and Fisk scoring from under the basket.

A free throw by Nett and a jump shot by Labree ended first-half scoring at 37-25.

The second half saw Cotter pouring on the coal to the delight of the partisan packed house in St. Stan's gym.

With the exception of a field goal by the Cadets' John Blum, the Ramblers rammed in eight straight points to go out in front 46-27. Cotter got four of the points on free tosses by Nett, Starzecki, Bob Judge and Jerecek. The third period ended with the Ramblers at a 54-37 budge.

Fourth-quarter action was earmarked by an alert Cotter defense — which picked off Cadet passes and utilized the fast break to score.

The Ramblers picked up six quick points this way in the opening minutes of fourth-period play. Schultz scored twice off the break and Fisk scored once. Nett pulled his regulars with three minutes to play — the score at 72-47. The Cadets whipped in five more points and the game was history.

Nett was well satisfied with his team's showing. He had special praise for Starzecki and Schultz. "Rich played a real fine game," said the Cotter coach, "he develops confidence with every game. Schultz played his usual fine floor game, too," stated Nett.

Cotter won the game on free throws. The Ramblers canned 24 of 30 attempts from the stripe while St. Thomas hit 10 of 18. The Ramblers made 24 shots from the field as compared to St. Thomas 21.

Schultz paced the Rambler scoring with 18 with John Nett Jr. close behind at 17. Judge was the only starter not in double figures, he hit nine. Starzecki and Jerecek had 11 each. Labree paced St. Thomas with 14, while Blum hit 12.

Next Friday the Ramblers host Rochester Lourdes at St. Stan's and Saturday travel to Austin for a game with the Pacelli Shamrocks.

Big Men (Their Own) Trip State; Hawks Win

Win Helps Kenney Find 5 Starters

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (Special) — "And the score reads 12-9 folks with Northfield leading. Winona High in this hard-fought game."

Sounds like about the first four minutes of the basketball game had gone by doesn't it? That was the halftime score Friday night in the Big Nine tilt between Winona and Northfield — a game which Winona finally won by the respectable score of 53-28.

"We were content to sit and watch them play keep-away for the first half," commented Winhawk Coach John Kenney. Northfield, decided underdogs in the tilt, attempted to slow the game to almost a stand-still in order to swing the balance in its favor. It worked in the first half, but, "we got three quick buckets in the second half that put us ahead, and then they had to play our game," said Kenney.

KENNEY LAID credit for the Hawks' surge in the second half squarely on the shoulders of Pat Boland. "Pat did an outstanding job at forward for us," said Kenney. "He got us the ball and he got us the short shot."

But rather than talk of the Winona victory, Kenney talked of the starting lineup which he finally found, and if the likeable coach had been told he would be using this lineup at the start of the season, even he wouldn't have believed it.

As plans stand right now, when the Winhawks take the floor Friday night against Owatonna, sophomore Gary Addington and freshman Don Hazellon will be at guards. Boland and Bill Squires will fill the wings on the front line, with Jim Kasten at center.

Kenney explained his proposed first five in this manner. "Hazellon (who was a 'B' team player) until the Northfield game) has definitely taken Keller's position away from him. Steve (Keller) will still play, but he will have to earn the position back if he wants to start."

"I knew at the start of the season that Boland was a forward, but I hated to put 5-11 (Boland's height) in the front line when I've got kids 6-3 and 6-4 sitting on the bench. But if they don't do the job it doesn't make much difference. I told Pat midway through the season that he had to make it as a forward, and he sat on the bench for the last four games without saying a word. Friday night he earned his spot."

Kenney also plans to move Tony Kreutzer to a forward position and Bob Urness to guard on the reserve team.

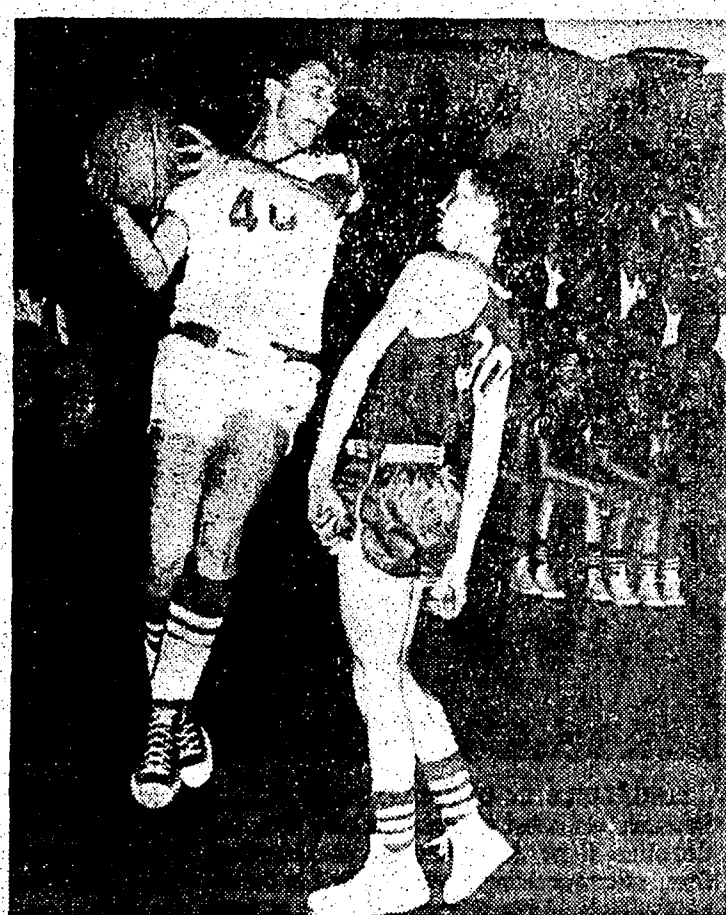

With Winona's new starting five in the game in the second half, Winona pulled away from the Raiders. A 1-2-2 zone press turned the tide, with Boland and Hazellon doing the ball-hawking.

The Winhawks shot a respectable 48 percent for the tilt with Bill Squires leading the way, hitting on 9 of 10 shots for the game. In its second half surge, Winona hit a torrid 65 percent on 20 of 31. Northfield, meanwhile, was connecting on only 11 of 36 for 30 percent. Winona also controlled the boards 32-23, with Kasten hauling down 12 of the rebounds.

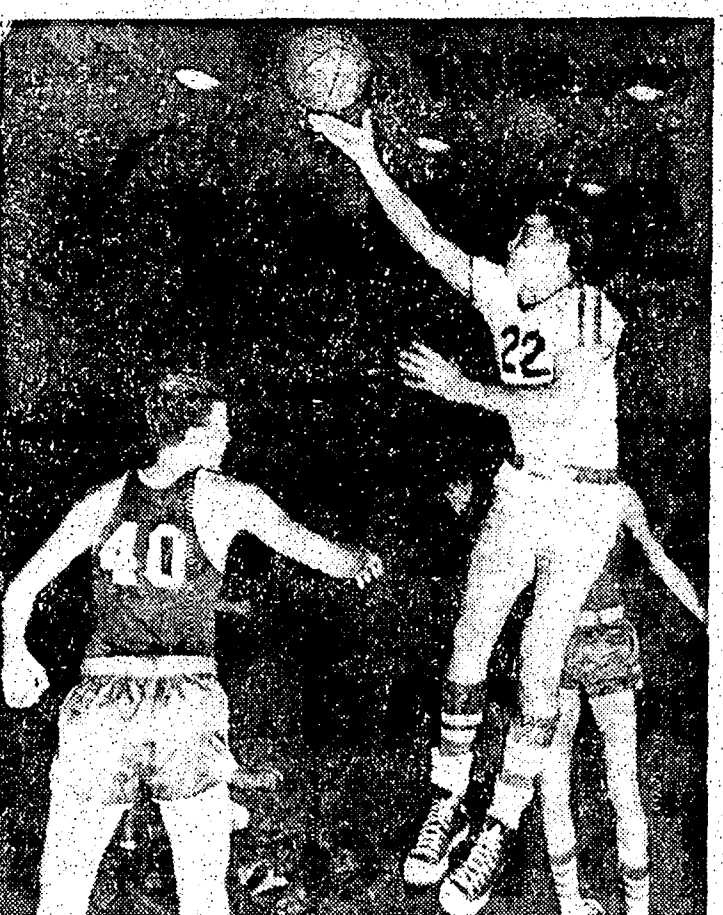

Squires led Winona's parade with 18 points. Kasten added 10. Kent Holden and Brad Carel put in 11 and 10, respectively, for the Raiders.

Without the services of Hazellon, Bob (Red) Lee's "B" squad lost a 46-42 decision to the Northfield "B" squad. Winona held a 39-34 margin with 2 1/2 minutes remaining in the third period, but hit a cold spell and Northfield ran in 10 straight points. Winona could never make up the gap. It was the 10th straight win for the Junior Raiders.

Everett Lantz is in his 27th season as coach of the Wyoming wrestling team.

EXPRESSIONS AND BUCKETS . . . The facial expressions used by the St. Thomas and Cotter players Friday night were a comedy in themselves. At left, John Nett Jr. comes down with a rebound while casting a wary eye at the Cadets' John Labree, who seems to step out of the way in an apologetic gesture. At right, Rick Starzecki's tongue stretches into space as he lets go in a driving attempt. Trying to stop Starzecki is St. Thomas' Ron Larson. (Sunday News Sports Photos)

State Pivot Combo Goes Scoreless

BEMIDJI, Minn. (Special) — An emphatic "terrible" was the first word Winona State Coach Bob Campbell said the morning after the Warriors had dropped an 85-71 NIC tilt to Bemidji Friday night.

The "terrible" Campbell was referring to was the performance of his four big men, who combined for a total of five points in the game. Roger Kijome, Dave Rosenau and Tim Anderson, the Warriors three-center, came out of the contest without a point. The other big man is Lyle Papenfuss, who led the team in scoring last season. Papenfuss hit five points for the game, well below his average.

NOT ONLY did the scoring of the front line leave something to be desired, but Winona State was out rebounded 51-38 for the game, "and they didn't even use their big team," said Campbell.

Bemidji played a man-to-man defense, directly opposite from what the Warriors had expected. The actual outcome of the game (as so often happens) was written at the charity stripe. Bemidji outscored Winona by only one field goal, but hit on a dozen more free throws.

"It wasn't that we didn't have the chances," said Campbell. "We only shot 53 percent from the free throw line, and when I saw Dave Goede miss two in a row I knew it just wasn't our night."

The Warriors trailed 40-30 at the half, and had it not been for the efforts of newly reinstated Darrell Schuster and Dave Meisner, the score might have been even more lopsided. In the second half, Gary Petersen turned in one of his usual spectacular displays, but couldn't make up the gap.

WINONA STATE closed the gap to 55-50 with eight minutes to play, but then, in Campbell's words, "We executed two near-perfect passes to our opponents, and the rally died."

Winona State hit only 37 percent from the field, while the Beavers were connected for 43 percent. Petersen fired in 20 points to lead Winona. Meisner added 15 and Schuster 11. For Bemidji, Dave Sjobald led the way with 21 points. Dave Warner and Dave Odegaard had 16 each and Mark Carlin added 15.

Huth Announces Grid Retirement

ST. PAUL (AP) — Offensive guard Gerry Huth of the Minnesota Vikings, bothered by leg trouble last season, announced his retirement from professional football Friday.

Huth, 30, was one of two remaining players of the 36 played in a pool to stock the Vikings when the Minnesota team won a National Football League franchise three years ago. The other is tackle Grady Alderman.

UNHERALDED SKATERS TURN TRICK

Redmen Skaters Trip Scots

Reichenbach in Hat Trick

ST. PAUL, Minn. (Special) — At the beginning of the season St. Mary's hockey coach Keith Hanzel said his ice team would have more depth this season and should be in a position to make a run for the MIAC crown.

Friday night in Aldrich Arena, both of Hanzel's points were plainly evident to Macalester's defending MIAC sextet. The Redmen humbled the Scots 6-3 and gained a commanding lead in the conference race as a pair of unheralded skaters carried the load.

The win boosted St. Mary's season mark to 9-1 and to 7-0 in the MIAC, while Macalester is now in second place with a 5-2 mark.

The sleepers that Coach Keith Hanzel pulled out of his bag of tricks were Tom Fitzgerald, a seldom-played sophomore wing, and Phil Reichenbach, a regular wing on the veteran line who rarely goes wild in the scoring column.

Reichenbach pulled off a hat trick with a trio of goals in the final period to break open a previously tight game. With the score standing 3-2 going into the final 20 minutes, Reichenbach personally took charge to propel the Redmen to victory.

Fitzgerald started skating with the veteran line this week after regular winger Don Berrigan was forced out of action by scholastic problems. Fitzgerald picked up a goal and an assist and was praised by Hanzel for his fine passing which kept the pressure on Scot goalie Gene Hanson. Both Hanson and St. Mary's goalie Jerry Archambeau finished with 23 stops for the game, but the pressure put on by the Redmen skaters in the first period finally wore down Hanson.

Nearly the entire first period was played on the Macalester half of the rink as the Redmen blue-line crew kept the Scot forwards well in check. Mike Bishop, an defenseman, came up with the first goal of the game on a picture-book slap shot from the blue line. Macalester tied at 1-1, but then freshman center Dennis Cooney put the Redmen ahead to stay with a goal assisted by Reichenbach. Fitzgerald picked up his goal in the second period to run the count to 3-1 before the Scots could hit again.

With the first big one out of the way, St. Mary's hits the heaviest part of its schedule in the next two weeks. Saturday's game with Macalester at Terrace Heights was postponed because of warm weather, but the Redmen travel to Concordia Monday for another MIAC encounter. This will start a string of seven games in 10 days for Hanzel's crew — a situation in which the Redmen's depth will become more apparent.

State Tank Team Runs Mark to 5-1

With over one-third of its dual swimming meet season gone, Winona State has a 5-1 record.

Now this isn't too startling in itself until you run down the roster of the Warrior swimmers and realize the team is completely made up of freshmen and sophomores except for senior co-captain Dave Frank. The young State tankers added win No. 5 to their list Friday night by crushing Oshkosh 73-23 and sweeping all 11 first places.

The Warriors set three Oshkosh pool records in the process in the 100, 200 and 500-yard freestyle events. Rich Childers, who is becoming an old hand at breaking records, set the 500-yard mark with a winning time of 5:54 flat. The other records were set by Bill Kohler with a clocking of 2:00.5 in the 200, and Frank Braun with a time of :54.2 in the 100.

The only double-winner in the meet was Braun. With another victory in the 50-yard freestyle. Other first places went to both Winona relay teams, Dennis Blanchard in the individual medley, Randy Sinkey in diving, John Dwyer in the butterfly, Frank in the backstroke and Pat Ford in the breaststroke.

EVEN BIG NINE MARK

Hawk Matmen Upset Raiders

"I've never seen a Winona team put together so much fine wrestling and desire in one meet."

That was Gene Nardini's description of his Winona High wrestling team's 22-19 victory in a meet that was decided in the final match.

Not until heavyweight Bob Haeussinger had completely overpowered Raider Dick Hiley in 1:15 were the Hawks assured of victory.

"We went into the last match trailing 19-17," recalled Nardini. "I told Haeussinger to pin him in a hurry or I'd be a nervous wreck."

"IT WAS A tremendous effort," stated the coach. "We looked good even when we lost a match. And I was especially pleased with the wins in the lighter weights."

Although Jim Overberg got Winona off on the right foot with a 2-0 victory over Mark Henkel at 95, the meet score evened at 3-3 when Bernard Street topped Dennis Lander 6-0 at 103.

And then came the turning point. Winona won the match with a 1-0—that's right, with a loss.

At 112, Gary Ellis of Winona battled defending state champion Jim Enfield tooth-and-nail, finally losing a 4-0 decision.

"That made the difference," said Nardini. "If he had been pinned, we'd have had to fight for our lives."

At 120, Lenry Dienger fought a 5-4 win before Ken Gautsch lost at 127 and Larry Pomerooy won 6-3 at 133.

Packer Tankers Stop Winhawks

AUSTIN, Minn. (Special) — In the last meeting between the two teams, Austin eked out a 48-47 victory over injury-riddled Winona in high school swimming.

The Packers learned something. Friday at the high school pool here they juggled men and wound up posting a 62-33 varsity victory.

"He pulled some of his men out of the medley relay and let us have those seven points," said Coach Lloyd Luke. "And then he inserted them in the individual events where they averaged seconds. That made the difference."

Winona took both relay events with the team of John Sanders, Greg Gerlach, Johnson and Gary Grabow leading the pack.

200-yard medley championship with a 1:56.1 clocking and Grabow, Kane, Heise and Fegre winning the 200-yard freestyle event with a 1:46.2 time.

"Had they swam like they did Friday in our pool," mentioned Luke, "we couldn't have beaten them even in our pool."

The Packers dominated in the individual events, winning all but one first place.

Greg Gerlach salvaged some of the individual glory for Winona with a first in the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:12.1.

"Some of our times were pretty good," said Luke. "But some of them weren't."

Winona now has the gigantic task of trying to upset defending state champion Rochester in the John Marshall pool Friday.

"That won't be any fun," smiled the coach. "Rochester is always extra tough in its own pool."

MEET OPENS SATURDAY

212 Teams in Men's Tourney

According to the team schedule released today by Winona Men's Bowling Association secretary, Jim Schneider, 212 quintets are entered in the annual city tournament which will get under way at Hal-Rod Lanes with a 6:45 p.m. shift Saturday.

Although that total trails the 1963 entry by two teams, it marks a record.

It is the greatest percentage of the city's teams ever to participate in the tourney.

The team event will run from Saturday through a 9 p.m. shift Feb. 5.

"We would like to ask all bowlers to keep this week open for bowling," said Schneider, "and not to ask us to change some team or other for some reason other than bowling. We tried to keep bowlers from rolling on the same shift with another team, but we admit that some of the bowlers will have to roll a double shift."

In addition to the 212 teams entered in the tourney, there will be 300 sets of doubles and 600 singles entries.

The doubles and singles event will end the meet and Hal-Rod will open for open bowling later in the day.

Schneider also announces that he has a full shift for 16 bowlers for the Minneapolis Tribune sweeper at 2 p.m. March 14.

Problem Lake—Pepin Winter Fishing Suffers

THEY didn't use the standard alibi, "You should have been here yesterday," when we visited a handful of the top Lake Pepin winter fishermen out on the ice about a mile from Camp La Cupolis recently. Instead, in displaying the lone catfish caught by the group, they all had a general gripe about poor fishing.

Instead of the walleye, which formerly made Lake Pepin winter fishing attractive, the group was jigging for catfish, using a sonar off the bottom in 40 feet of water. It can be thrilling if a school of slowly moving "cats" are located. Such "snagging," declared legal by wardens, was a bonanza a year ago in the area when fishermen hauled sacks of catfish off the ice. It has been very slow so far this season.

Typical of the fishermen there was (1) L. A. Fellows, Lake City, who brings a folding chair along and chops a large round hole, large enough to pull a big catfish up through. Fred Seeling, (2) is a former Winona County sheriff and one of the fishing Seelings. He now resides at Wabasha. In picture 3 is Clem Noll, Wabasha, well-known fisherman and turtle hunter. Al Klinnert, (4) Reads Landing, was the only fisherman who could display a fish for Merritt Kelley, Sunday News photographer, to snap.

Some of the fishermen after walleye (5) fish right on the edge of the ice. In fact from U. S. Highway 61 above, it looked like they were standing in water. They say the ice is perfectly safe and 18 inches thick. Those on the edge caught one two-pound walleye. The "catfish group" (6) is bunched around in the area where Klinnert got his one fish.

Too Much Food in Water, Belief

WHAT is happening to the fishing in Lake Pepin? That is a question residents along the lake prefer not to discuss extensively, but when two or three fishermen get together many reasons are advanced for the poor winter fishing on Lake Pepin.

Such a group, rather talkative and composed of some of the better fishermen from Wabasha, Lake City and Reads Landing, fishing for catfish about a mile out on Lake Pepin from Camp LaCupolis and not catching any fish, openly expressed their opinion on this decline in winter fishing on this big lake the other day.

The drop in the number of fishing shacks on the ice of the lake is proof. Five years ago there were 200 such houses between Reads Landing and Lake City. Willis Kruger, Wabasha County warden, declares, "This year over the same stretch of the lake there are 23 licensed fish houses. In the Lake City to Red Wing area, Norman Anderson, Red Wing warden, reports in the same period a drop from 500 houses to 18.

PROJECTED DATA secured in 1963 in a winter creel census of Lake Pepin, Robert C. Nord, La Crosse, Mississippi Conservation committee coordinator states, shows only 230 walleyes, 1,915 sauger, and 235 northerns caught from the lake last winter.

Another bit of evidence is the group of fish hungry fishermen that were with us on the ice trying to catch the lowly catfish with sonars off the bottom, 40 feet down. They had only one fish large enough to photograph.

"Too much food," Warden Kruger declares, "The lake is full of gizzard shad." "Our data shows that the fish are there," Nord declares. "Our projected data shows that 276,651 fish were caught out of Pool 4 or from the Alma dam to Red Wing 44 miles of lake and river, in 1963. The year around catch included 19,651 walleyes, 37,900 sauger, and 3,859 northerns." Whitman, Trempealeau, Dresbach and Genoa pools showed nearly double the number of fish caught to the acre of water.

"Pollution and sedimentation" is more apt to be the answer in the Red Wing, Bay City, Stockholm areas. In fact, Red Wing business interests, after their drowned duck experience of last spring, have set in motion a vast anti-pollution campaign that has gained national support. A big powwow on the program is scheduled for early February in St. Paul.

These answers don't satisfy the clamor of the Lake Pepin fisherman. He wants his fishing back and wants to know why something is not being done about his problem.

"Twenty-five years ago," old timers like Clem Noll, Wabasha fisherman, will tell you, "the state and federal government used to stock Lake Pepin with walleye fry. Thousands of them were put in each year.

Kruger verifies this program which was discontinued 15 years ago. Reads Landing fishermen add that the War Department, in its dredging operations, has covered up great spawning areas at mouth of and up the Chippewa River.

"WE ARE taking everything out of the lake and putting nothing back," a rather angry Reads Landing resident told us.

"It is not entirely the lack of fish. We have good walleye fishing in the spring, fall and early winter," Kruger adds. "It is deeper than that."

Another factor pointed out at Pepin, Wis., across the lake, is the decline of commercial fishing. No markets for carp and buffalo, cost of labor and marketing facilities have made a big inroad of commercial fishing operations on the lake.

"It is full of rough fish," some will tell you. "The government should pay to have them removed so there is more room for game fish."

But the tales of what fishing used to be in Lake Pepin told by the old timers dwarf greatly when one looks at the pages of Oliver Gibbs book published in 1963, titled "Lake Pepin Fish Chowder."

MUSKELUNGE and trout, Gibbs wrote, were commonly caught on flies—large yellow flies. One paragraph reads: "It greatly enhances the ex-

FISHING IN THE RAIN

So maybe you don't feature fishing in the rain. But plenty of guys do and under certain dry conditions the release of new oxygen into lakes and streams from falling rain sends fish prowling. BUT spin fishermen can be bothered by whispy monofilament sticking to the wet rod surface. Stop that quick by rubbing rod down with flyline dressing. Line will never stick again and non-greasy dressing is not objectionable.

NEVER LOSE A KNIFE

The way to never lose a knife is to NEVER lay it down. ALWAYS put it back.

element and pleasure of fishing to be able in one day to catch three or four kinds of bass, two of pickerel, two of pike-perch, the muskellunge and a dozen kinds of other curious and gamey, handsome fish."

The handful of fishermen on the ice the other day, will agree quite a change has taken place in the last 100 years.

In fact, the retaining of fishing in Lake Pepin seems to be a challenge to fishing authorities today.

Voice of the Outdoors

Oh No — Six More Weeks. If the predictions he has given out for today are correct, the Weather Man is pulling a dirty trick. "Bright summery weather with melting snow" means that Mr. Ground Hog, pictured here, took one look, beat it back into its hole for another six weeks of sleep — in other words, winter to mid-March.

Regardless of this tradition that has apparently stood up through the years or it would long ago have been discarded, today should be a nice winter outdoor Sunday. The lack of snow and sloppy ice may handicap some activities, but the winter fishermen will be out in force. The warming trend has woke up panfish and some of the fishermen have justified their time on the ice by bringing home a good mess of keepers.

Of course, there may be a bright side to the picture. It may open up the ice below the dams so some walleye can be taken during February. So far, the ice has crept up beyond the 300-foot line at the Whitman, Winona and Trempealeau dams so that there is no room for boat fishing. There has been some open water below the Dresbach and Alma dams but only a few sauger have been caught.

Low flow this winter in the river is the cause apparently for the ice field closing in on the winter area below the dams. For instance, the flow Saturday at the Winona dam was 9,100 cubic feet per second. This reduces the current in the pool so much that the river freezes almost up to the dam, leaving no open water below the 300-foot mark.

Some fishermen have ventured on the ice below the dams and have had fair success. The most popular area near Winona has been below the Trempealeau dam. They walk in from the Minnesota side along the dam dike and across a slough to the main channel. The most saugers have been caught there. Crappies are caught from the slough.

There has been very little fishing below the Winona and Whitman dams through the ice. Fishermen who have tried it had poor results. Probably the warmer weather with a slight increase in flow may help.

Deer Herd Reduced
Winona winter motorists who drive out to Prairie Island to see the Izaak Walton League deer in the Deer Park probably have been wondering what happened to the deer. The herd is

Conservation Unit Retains Chairman

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Guido Rahr of Manitowoc was retained as chairman of the Wisconsin Conservation Commission Friday when the body deadlocked on a successor. Receiving three votes each were James Smaby of La Crosse and Jack Lynch of Gordon. The commissioners then decided to retain Rahr pending outcome of a court test on appointments by Gov. John W. Reynolds to the group.

Federal Aid Funds Will Be Distributed

WASHINGTON D. C. — A final distribution of $10.2 million in federal aid funds for fish and wildlife restoration during fiscal year 1964 has been made to the 50 States, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, the Department of the Interior announced today.

These funds are in addition to the $12.6 million released on May 15, 1963, thus making more than $22.8 million available for fiscal year 1964. Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said.

Of the total of $22,828,172.62 released for fiscal year 1964, $16,673,026 is for wildlife restoration and $6,155,099 is for fish projects. Minnesota will receive $280,576 for fisheries and $444,846 for wildlife. Wisconsin's share is $227,491 for fisheries and $461,201 for wildlife.

TRAPSHOOTERS
LANESBORO, Minn. — The Southeastern Trapshooters Association will hold its annual meeting Feb. 6 at 8 p.m. in the Legion hall here. Persons interested in the trapshooting program for this year should attend.

Seven, the deer committee decided, was a good number to carry through winter. With spring there will be a new crop of fawns; which, of course, is the big park attraction. Once it became known that the Ikes had deer for sale, the demands from parks throughout the area quickly went up the surplus.

River on TV
Last summer camera crews from the National Broadcasting Co. with David Brinkley, one of the system's star announcers, toured the river taking pictures here and there. A considerable period of time was spent in the Winona - La Crosse, and Lake City to Red Wing, areas.

Well tonight, starting at 9 p.m., the hour-long film with Brinkley "Our Man on the Mississippi," will make its first showing on the big time chain. In the 60 minutes allotted time, if this area gets five minutes, it will get top rating.

SILENT SQUIRRELS
Old trick for squirrels is to rub two pebbles or nuts or marbles or shell hulls, etc. together to make a sound like a bushytail chattering. Another is to carry a silent dog whistle. A noiseless blast while a squirrel is running away will often nail him in his tracks wondering what that crazy new sound was.

Outdoor Tips

SPARE FIRING PIN
Handy types (who know how to install one) can carry a spare firing pin by boring a hole in gun's stock and slipping in. Butt plate holds the spare pin in place.

POCKET MINNOW BAG
Here's a way you can make a small minnow bucket that will fit in odd places. Fit a plastic bag inside a lady's nylon stocking. Strong nylon mesh holds the plastic securely and the plastic holds the water. You supply fish.

NIGHTCRAWLERS' LIGHT
Does everybody know by now that a piece of red cellophane over your flashlight won't send night crawlers back into their holes. If no cellophane is handy, nail polish painted on the lens will do.

GILL NETS

PEPIN Wis. — The Wisconsin Conservation Department will hold a meeting to discuss the use of gill nets in the Mississippi River and Lake Pepin at a meeting in the village hall here Feb. 11.

FISH IN THE BAG

Time was when a man could catch a fish easy. Now he has to work at it. Like this: Fill a paper bag with chum that will attract the species you want. Put a rock in the bag, lower to the bottom. A sharp snap breaks the bag, releases the chum, signals the fish. (P.S. About that "used to be easy to catch fish," we don't believe it. We bet the Indians used to complain that the fish were getting too smart.)

NAPKIN DECOYS

Plenty of waterfowl need life-like decoys before they will come in but snow geese are an exception. Anything white: painted oil cans, napkins covering earth clods, pieces of old sheets, newspaper sections, will lure them. Nor is a blind needed. Just cover yourself with a sheet and lie down in the decoy area. Keep still and you'll be surprised how many other kinds of ducks and geese will stool to this rig — even though they aren't supposed to.

POP-BOTTLE CREEPERS

Tops of pop bottles fastened on the sole of boots or waders make acceptable ice creepers. Also will help sure footing wading slippery rocks in streams.

Children's National Dental Health Week Starts Today

DENTAL CARDS ...

Winona Joins With Thousands of Other Communities in 16th Annual Observance

"KEEP Your Smile; Care For Your Teeth" has been designated as the slogan for the 1964 National Children's Dental Health Week.

Winona will be one of thousands of American communities that will observe the slogan and program planned to impress the importance of good dental health on the nation's youth.

Dr. James P. Hollers, San Antonio, president of the American Dental Association says, "Teeth were meant to last a lifetime; and they will, with proper home and professional care."

CHILDREN'S Dental Health Week is sponsored nationally by the American Dental Association, statewide by the Minnesota Dental Association and locally by the Winona County Dental Society and its Auxiliary.

Dr. George Joyce is president of the Dental Society and Mrs. Joyce of the Auxiliary. Assisting the Society president are committee members, Drs. John Luebke and Curtis Rohrer. Mrs. Joyce's committee for Dental Health Week is comprised of Mmes. John Cross, Luebke and C. A. Rohrer.

Dr. Joyce supports the proclamation—"Whereas, many of the citizens and members of the dental profession are concerned with the prevention of dental disease; and whereas, early preventive measures and education of children and youth can aid in preventing a large part of the incidence of dental disease, especially tooth decay, and can help to ensure the good dental health of future generations of adults; this proclamation names the week of Feb. 2-8 as National Children's Dental Health Week and urges that all citizens and all community organizations join in the observance."

A DENTAL FILM PROGRAM, being introduced this year in the upper elementary and junior high level in Winona schools, will be viewed by over 2,000 children. Arrangements were made by Dr. Joyce, Mrs. Luebke and Mrs. Rohrer.

Posters drawing attention to National Children's Dental Health Week have been distributed by the public health nurses under the direction of school year. When there is no change in the mouth of the athlete from one season to another, the same cast or guard can sometimes be used. Many of the guards were made at the time of the clinic while others were made in dental offices.

There is no school requirement or mass clinic at Cotter High School, although some of the players had protectors made on a private basis.

The dental cards which are given to all of the children in the Winona grade and junior high schools at the beginning of the school year are returned in greater percentage in grades up to four, according to Mrs. Mary Crane, who supervises the program through the work of the public health nurses. She strongly advises that dental health work with children begins early.

"It is important to visit the dentist as soon as the first teeth are in. Getting acquainted and knowing the dentist as a friend is the first important step, even though nothing much is done on the first visit other than an examination."

MRS. CRANE REPORTED that the lowest level of dental card return is in the junior high grades, when actually, this is the period when young adults should be most concerned about their appearance and health. The over-all return of dental cards for the 1962-63 school years was 53 percent. Service clubs in Winona have done much in support of the dental health program.

Dental Auxiliary members will be introducing Children's Dental Health Week at 13 PTA meetings and distributing dental brochures to some 1,200 interested parents who attend.

A number of radio interviews will be presented — newspaper articles during the week will tell of various phases of children's dental health.

"Picture Your Teeth," a color-sound movie, will highlight the dental health film program Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the teachers' lunchroom of Winona Senior High. This public program is sponsored by the Winona City PTA council, Lloyd Ferdinandson, president, in cooperation with the Winona County Dental Society. There is no charge.

FIRST VISIT ... Even dentists' children must have a first official visit to the dentist's office as is being demonstrated here. Dr. John Luebke's two and a half year old son, Danny, is getting acquainted with the new experience of sitting in the big dentist's chair as his father shows him some dental tools, while three-and-a-half-year-old brother, David, watches with interest. BRUSHING TEETH ... With the encouragement of the teachers and parents' cooperation, more and more of the children at St. Casimir's School are joining the group of those who brush their teeth at school after their lunch period. Demonstrating the new program of dental hygiene are Debra Schoener and Becky Saehler.

WINONA PUBLIC LIBRARY ... Shown admiring an exhibit in the children's room of the Winona Public Library are, from left, Mrs. Jack Stehn and four-year-old son Tommy and Mrs. Ralph Williams, children's librarian. The exhibit was arranged by Mrs. Curtis Rohrer to show foods included in well-balanced meals, tools for good dental care and a selection of children's books about teeth. Mrs. Rohrer will distribute brochures at the children's story hour at the library on Tuesday on "Your Child's First Visit to the Dentist."

Mrs. Mary Crane to the Winona schools and to schools in St. Charles, Lewiston and rural Winona County by Miss Susan Steiner.

Throughout the city a committee headed by Mrs. Cross has placed "Swish and Swallow" posters in offices and business places and in the Public Library display, which was arranged by Miss Charlotte Harnish. Miniature posters are being sent by banks and businesses through the mail.

A DISPLAY CASE in the children's room of the Public Library includes place settings showing an adequate breakfast, lunch and dinner; a large tooth brush and tooth model with information about brushing teeth properly; a selection of books about teeth chosen by Mrs. Ralph Williams, children's librarian.

The display was created by Mrs. Curtis Rohrer, who will distribute First-Visit-to-the-Dentist brochures to more than 100 mothers and children at the Tuesday morning pre-school story hour at the library.

Over 200 football players in the Winona Public Schools have worn mouth guard protectors this year as required by state law in public schools for football and hockey players.

The guards are made of thin, tough, flexible materials shaped to casts made from impressions of players' mouths. This is done in hopes that injury to teeth and mouth will be almost completely eliminated when the protectors are worn during football play.

THE WINONA DENTISTS conducted a mass mouth guard clinic in the Winona Senior High School chemistry room at the beginning of the PAUL PARTIUN, director of the Teresian Chorus, practices with Mary Nilles one of the soloists in 'St. John's Passion' being presented at the College of Saint Teresa Saturday.

Midwest Premiere Performance of 'St. John's Passion' Is Saturday

Soloists in the Saturday performance of "St. John's Passion" at the College of Saint Teresa are James Stolpa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Stolpa, Winona, and Miss Mary Nilles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Nilles, Rollingstone, Minn. Mr. Stolpa will sing the part of the Evangelist and Miss Nilles, the soprano arias. The concert will be in the college auditorium, starting at 8:15 p.m.

Mr. Stolpa, a senior at St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., is a music major. As a member of St. John's internationally known chorus he sang at the Christmas Tree lighting in Washington, D.C.

Modern Math Subject of PTA Meeting

LA CRESCENT, Minn. (Special)—Parents and teachers heard a presentation on "Modern Mathematics" by Mrs. Stanley Harris at the Tuesday meeting of the Public School PTA.

Mrs. Harris used a movie to show how and why modern methods are needed in our school systems today. In her talk she showed examples of phases of modern mathematics and reasons it is taught in special ways. She said that the new method will do away with the stock phrase parents have frequently heard in the past, "I hate Arithmetic."

Mrs. Harris said new methods are being presented with mechanical aids in the lower grades to make learning a pleasant experience and mathematics fun. By using logic first in their teaching, the speaker said, students will understand rules they will learn later.

Mrs. Harris said that next year modern math will be used in all grades from kindergarten to eighth in the La Crescent Elementary School. She asked parents to be patient with their children's progress during the change-over and asked that they encourage students during the first period of change. Seventh and eighth grades are not being taught the new method by Mrs. Harris.

Many books on the subject were displayed by Mrs. Harris. Several charts and diagrams made by Mrs. Harris' students were on display.

Caledonia Deanery Board Makes Plans

DAKOTA, Minn. (Special) — Officers, parish presidents and chairmen of special committees of the Caledonia Deanery met recently at the home of deanery president, Mrs. Marius A. Morse, Dakota, to formulate plans for 1964 activity in the eight parishes that comprise the deanery.

"Spiritual Renewal" will be the theme of next year's activity, to coincide with the theme stressed by Most Rev. Edward A. Fitzgerald, bishop of Winona. The deanery board is comprised of three officers, all parish presidents, and committee chairmen.

OF SECOND major importance was the Uterine Cancer Program. How it will be put into action in all parishes of the diocese was discussed. Parishes who do not have a chairman in the deanery, were urged to start action now. In some communities, all women will participate in the program. Information on this work will be forthcoming very soon, Mrs. Morse said.

Lenten Mission projects for children were reviewed and one in particular was mentioned: Knitting and crocheting with remnants of wool, a simple project in which the wool squares are used in making afghans. Sharing of magazines and books with students in foreign countries was another activity to be started.

Parish Lenten projects for all persons are to be the Feed-A-Family and the Madonna plans, it was announced. Both are cash in substance.

Sister Mary Dulce of Brazil gave a talk at the annual convention of the Winona NCCW last year, in which she explained how funds are spent and the tremendous work she and her co-workers can do with injections, medicines and shelter for Brazil's poverty-stricken persons through monies from the two mentioned plans.

OFFICERS PRESENT at the meeting included vice president, Mrs. George J. Kelly, Houston, Minn., and Mrs. Norris Johnson, secretary-treasurer, Caledonia, Minn., representing St. Mary's and St. John's parishes, respectively. Parish presidents or delegates were: Mrs. Edward Olinger, St. Nicholas, Freeburg, Minn.; Mrs. Burton Mach and Mrs. Lawrence Eden, Crucifixion, La Crosse; Mrs. William McCabe, St. Peter's, Caledonia; Mrs. Vincent Scanlon, St. Patrick's, Brownsville, Minn.; Mrs. Elmer Cochran, St. John the Baptist, Caledonia; Mrs. Thomas Krage, St. Patrick's, Ridgeway, Minn.

The deanery meets again Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of St. Peter's parish, Hokah, Minn. Women from all parishes are urged to attend the meeting, Mrs. Morse said.

After Five Years Castro Continues to Defy U.S.

By BEN F. MEYER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Fidel Castro, after five years as dictator in little Cuba, still thumbs his nose at big Uncle Sam.

Internal economic troubles he may have. His patron, Soviet Premier Khrushchev, may be weary of his expensive protégé. But Castro remains a strong fact of life despite all U.S. efforts to cut him down.

Washington's government now rates Castro right along with Viet Nam, Berlin and divided Germany as big trouble in a world full of problems.

As if Castro's activities in this hemisphere were not enough of a headache for Uncle Sam, there are reports of a link between the recent revolution in Zanzibar, on the other side of the world, and Communist Cuba.

Zanzibar was one of the African nations sending so-called students to Cuba, where special training centers in Communist subversion, propaganda and guerrilla tactics have been in operation several years.

Washington may be in for still more trouble from Havana-Moscow plotters.

In Latin America, the bearded, talkative Castro is still the biggest headache for Washington. The trouble with Panama over the Canal Zone, serious as it is, comes second in this hemisphere.

Castro came into power Jan. 1, 1959, when Fulgencio Batista, his predecessor as dictator, took flight before the sweep of the popular revolution Castro led.

Washington hastened to recognize the disorganized revolutionary regime, even before Castro reached Havana on his triumphal march from the mountains.

It was not long, however, before Washington became wary of him. U.S. officials began to wonder whether he was a Communist, since some of his activities had a decidedly pro-Communist slant.

Now there is no doubt. Now there is total disenchantment with his promises that Cuba's revolution would see to it that there was respect for human life and liberty, that Cubans would enjoy more freedom than they had ever known in their lives, plus genuinely free elections, and social and economic reforms to make times better for everybody. But also now, despite years of U.S. efforts aimed frankly at toppling Castro from power and entreaties to other nations to help that program, Castro is boss.

U.S. officials, however, believe that internal troubles of every description are piling up for Castro, that the Cuban economy particularly is in chaos and that sooner or later something will happen to bring collapse of Castro and his regime.

Official Washington insists that its policy of economic and diplomatic isolation of Cuba is getting results.

Cuba's industries minister, Ernesto Guevara, says the U.S. economic blockade is the main reason Cuba's industrialization program failed.

Cuba, a land where even fence posts take root and two or three crops a year are not unusual, now is unable to produce enough of the once-abundant vegetables, fruits, poultry, beef and pork to go around.

It has strict rationing of all key foods, including the favorite black beans and rice, coffee, as well as of drugs, milk, oranges, shoes and all other items of clothing.

Cuban exiles, some of them recently arrived from Cuba, describe internal conditions as appalling. They say Castro Cuba has the most oppressive system of internal espionage of Cuban against Cuban the little nation ever knew under its worst earlier dictators.

Cuban children are taught to spy on their parents, relatives and friends, to single out anyone not in sympathy with the revolution.

If Castro is now beset by troubles, and he is, there have been moments of glory for him. In April 1959, only a few months after he had been in power, but long enough to raise doubts about him in the United States, he came to the United States as an invited guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, although the U.S. State Department was obviously displeased at the idea of such a visit.

Then in September 1960, he went to New York City to speak to the United Nations. There he got a public bear hug and assurances of help from Khrushchev.

But a speech of nearly five hours to the United Nations by Castro which became an angry tirade against the United States seemed to have done him harm, as did a noisy incident in which Castro charged he and members of his official party were not being treated hospitably.

From Castro's viewpoint, one of his greatest successes since his own victory over Batista was the crushing of an attempted invasion of Cuba by Cuban exiles, with some backing, but a lack of military support, from the United States.

He turned the Bay of Pigs invasion of April 1961 into the worst international defeat of the then-new government of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Only a few days before Kennedy had said that no U.S. armed forces would be sent into Cuba merely to oust the Castro regime. That has been U.S. policy since, but the Kennedy pronouncement did not preclude U.S. action if events in Cuba should, in the opinion of the Washington government, threaten the security of the United States or of its neighbors in Latin America.

In October 1962 the United States decided that such a situation had developed after the Soviet Union equipped bases in Cuba with missiles capable of reaching most of the United States mainland area and any point in the Caribbean from Mexico to Peru.

Kennedy imposed a military blockade of Cuba, demanded that the Soviet Union withdraw the missiles and destroy the launching installations. The Soviet Union backed down, apparently without so much as consulting Castro who later refused to allow the on-site inspection Moscow had promised to prove that the missiles and bases had been removed. U.S. officials say aerial inspection convinced them this had been done.

Officials here feel there has been a steady decline in Latin America's estimate of Castro as evidenced by the 1962 declaration of the American republics that Castro's regime is incompatible to inter-American ideals of freedom and democracy.

Widespread reports that the Cuban revolutionary regime was deeply involved in the Panama disturbances came at an awkward time for the Havana government, experts say.

Cuba already was in the situation of a defendant before the Organization of American States, which is now in the midst of an inquiry concerning the discovery of a three-ton cache of arms, some bearing Cuban markings, in Venezuela. Venezuela's government has accused pro-Castro elements and other Communists of efforts to overthrow it.

U.S. officials say there has been no change in this government's policies toward Cuba, since Edwin M. Martin, former assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, outlined them in an address in Los Angeles last September.

The administration of President Johnson may follow the same pattern, trying at the same time to find new ways to tighten the screws on the Castro regime.

Martin's outline: "We will not relax our pressure until all these (Soviet) forces are gone from the Caribbean."

"The United States is committed to helping the Cuban people regain their freedom and 'is vigorously enforcing a policy of isolation of the Castro regime.'"

"Cuba's government already has been 'rejected by the nations of this hemisphere' as one of an ideology incompatible with the inter-American system."

"The isolation policy is working and already has helped slow Cuban trade with the free world 'to a trickle.'"

"Conspicuous failure on every front must be made the daily diet of Castro and his associates. A revolution in reverse is a revolution destroyed, awaiting only some fortuitous incident to cause its collapse and reveal its internal decay."

Rockefeller to Enter Primary in West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — West Virginia apparently will not be a key state for presidential hopefuls this year as it was in 1960 when John F. Kennedy fought and won a pivotal primary election.

Only one candidate — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller — has indicated he will enter the state's May 12 primary. Rockefeller announced Friday he will file today for the Republican primary.

The only other major announced candidate for the GOP nomination, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Friday he does not plan to enter the West Virginia race.

Rockefeller called on all aspirants to file in West Virginia. "I want them to get into the fight," he said. "The more the merrier."

Russia Renews
Drive on Church

By REINHOLD ENSZ
MOSCOW (AP)—A new energetic drive against religion appears to be developing in the Soviet Union.

Ever since the 1917 takeover, the Communists have been following a boom-and-bust policy concerning religion. A period of great antireligious agitation is followed by a period of relative inactivity.

Cancer Crusade
Plans Discussed
At Galesville

GALESVILLE, Wis. (Special) — Miss Eileen M. McGorty, Chippewa Falls, American Cancer Society field representative, Wisconsin Division, discussed the Trempealeau County Cancer Crusade when the society met here Thursday.

Miss McGorty said, "There should be great enthusiasm from the people here since there were 54 deaths attributed to cancer in this county in 1962."

President Prosper Schank, Arcadia, showed slides on his recent trip to Russia.

Dr. Elizabeth Comstock, 88, Arcadia, who received recognition two years ago as the doctor who made the most cancer tests in the county, was present.

Mrs. J. O. Beadle, Galesville, chairman of the education committee said that since the cigarette and cancer reports have been released, every school and group is interested in obtaining the five films, records and materials distributed through the society. Mrs. Beadle has divided the county into two divisions, southern and northern, and each community will have a chairman.

President Schank suggested having a "Bowl Down Cancer" tournament where small entry fees would bring in contributions. Last year the men bowlers from the Arcadia Bowling Lanes contributed $40 and the women $36.50.

Other officers of this unit are: Mrs. John Gilbertson, Whitehall, first vice president; Mrs. G. M. Wiley, second vice president; Mrs. R. E. Anderson, Blair, secretary, and Mrs. Gary Quammen, Eltrick, treasurer.

Persons from Arcadia, Strum, Osseo and Galesville were present. Refreshments were served.

Threat of War
On 3 Fronts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—War, the threat of war and acute political tensions have plagued the divided nations of Viet Nam, Korea and Germany. All are powder kegs in the world struggle between Communist and non-Communist forces. They are heritages of war, mirroring the division between East and West.

Political unrest, including bloody coups, have flared in South Korea and South Viet Nam, where forces backed by the West have been struggling to establish themselves. Communist rule prevails in North Korea and North Viet Nam.

On the other side of the world West Germany has achieved unprecedented prosperity and emerged as a powerful force in the Western Alliance under a democratic system. East Germany is relatively poor and kept under tight Communist control — with the help of Soviet might.

How did Viet Nam, Korea and Germany become divided?

Viet Nam was divided at the 17th Parallel under an agreement reached at a 19-nation conference in Geneva in 1954 after the French defeat in Indochina. Unlike the situation in South Korea, a strong Communist guerrilla force controlled much of the countryside.

One of the decisions reached at the 1945 Potsdam conference by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union was to make the 38th Parallel the dividing line between U.S. and Soviet occupation forces in Korea.

Efforts to reach agreement on unification of Korea collapsed and in May 1948, the rival regimes were established. War broke out when North Korea invaded South Korea on June 25, 1950.

Unification of Korea has been under debate at the United Nations for years. Western insistence upon free elections as a condition for unification has met with solid Communist opposition. Chances of agreement remain dim.

Germany was divided into four occupation zones after World War II, governed by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union. Berlin was similarly divided, within the Soviet zone.

The four powers couldn't agree on a peace treaty for all of Germany. The West German Republic was born in May 1949, and granted almost complete independence.

It would use government and market payments to encourage farmers to comply with supply management measures. Certainly this is what Johnson advocated for wheat, cotton and milk in his farm message.

There are some in farm circles who believe Johnson in his farm message gave Freeman a "last chance" to get his policies through Congress.

These Freeman critics predict that if the present Congress fails to enact the cotton, wheat and dairy recommendations of the farm message, Johnson may well name a new secretary. They report that Johnson has his eyes on former Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee.

Beck said it dutifully repeats the "peace" propaganda of the Kremlin, the Russian Orthodox Church has been relatively exempt. But Ilyichyev indicated this special status is being scrutinized.

"Religion under all conditions remains antiscientific, an ideology which is hostile to communism," he said.

President Schank suggested having a "Bowl Down Cancer" tournament where small entry fees would bring in contributions. Last year the men bowlers from the Arcadia Bowling Lanes contributed $40 and the women $36.50.

Other officers of this unit are: Mrs. John Gilbertson, Whitehall, first vice president; Mrs. G. M. Wiley, second vice president; Mrs. R. E. Anderson, Blair, secretary, and Mrs. Gary Quammen, Eltrick, treasurer.

High School Plant To Be Improved

PEPIN, Wis. (Special)—Children in Pepin's new elementary school are enjoying the shiny new quarters they occupied after Christmas vacation, and are looking forward to open house when they can show their parents around the pleasant quarters which are their home away from home a large part of each week.

Superintendent Harold C. Lunde says, however, that some rejuvenation will be completed in the high school building before open house is held. Work will be done in several rooms, among them the library. The industrial arts and ag departments will be enlarged.

THE NEW 11-classroom, two-story addition faces south on Fifth Street. In addition to the classrooms, there are two teacher lounges; two offices; new cafeteria; furnace room, and several storage rooms.

All rooms are decorated in soft tones and have fluorescent lighting. The floors are tiled. The outside is brick to match the brick in the original building.

Occupying the new structure are the kindergarten; special education classes; two first grades; two second grades; third grade; combined third, fourth and fifth, and seventh and eighth grade combination. An addition to the west side of the gym provides a band and chorus room and special practice rooms.

THE FOURTH grade, two sixth grades and another music room are in the original grade school, built in 1959, from which the addition runs west.

Other parts of the old grade school have been converted for extra high school classrooms including home economics, commercial, art and history.

Cost of the addition and renovations was $237,500. Construction was started last spring. Buchholz Construction Co., Durand, had the general construction contract; Mutch Electric, La Crosse, electrical; Fisher Well-Drilling Co., Durand, plumbing; and Early Plumbing & Heating, River Falls, heating and ventilating.

Plans were by Carl Schubert & Associates, La Crosse.

PEPIN DISTRICT sold $365,000 in bonds in January 1963 to cover the construction and refinance a current $127,500 debt. They were sold at 3.2 percent interest.

The district used the Stockholm school for some grades until the new building was completed.

Construction costs included concrete curb and gutter on the east and south side; sidewalk on the south; vinyl asbestos tile on the landings of the original school; repainting and padding stairs, and other improvements.

U.S. Baby Crop Over Four Million

By JOHN BARBOUR
WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid declining birth rates, the United States still has a baby crop of over 4 million a year, say the population experts.
And the future is so potentially fertile they dread to think about it.
The U.S. Public Health Service reported this week that November yielded only 327,000 babies to Americans, the lowest November since 1953.

The Population Reference Bureau says the birth rate has declined some 14 per cent since 1957.
But these figures hardly tell the story.
The postwar baby boom is about to bring its multitude of offspring into the marrying years. A girl born in 1947 is 17 years old this year.
The prospect of what this could mean to the U.S. population in terms of growth is impressive. Even with fewer babies per mother, there will be many more mothers, hence many more babies.

For instance, there were 11 million women in their 20s, the prime reproductive age, in 1960. By 1970, there will be 15 million women in this age group says the Population Reference Bureau. By 1980, 20 million.
If U.S. women have the 3.1 children they currently seem to plan on, it could push the U.S. population to 249 million by 1980, to 344 million by the year 2000, and to over a billion by year 2065.

NWA Ordered to Refund Mail Subsidies to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday ordered Northwest Airlines, Minneapolis, to refund $1,833,125 in mail subsidies.
The board order noted that under current tax rates the refund would create a tax credit of about $979,000, so the resulting net paycheck would be about $854,000.

The CAB started an inquiry in December 1953 to determine rates that should be paid Northwest for carrying mail over its international routes during 1954. Adopting the conclusions of its examiner, the board found there were sufficient excess earnings from Northwest's domestic division to make up the entire subsidy need of the airline's international division, so that it was not entitled to subsidy for international service during 1954.

Iowa Guardsmen Put on Probation

LITTLE FALLS, Minn. (AP) — Two Iowa National Guardsmen who pleaded guilty to abduction of an 18-year-old Brainerd girl while in training last summer at nearby Camp Ripley were given probation from five-year state reformatory sentences Friday.
John K. Ripley, 21, and Walter Swenson, 23, both of Des Moines, originally were accused of rape and kidnapping but were allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge on Dec. 3.

District Judge Charles W. Kennedy ruled that the defendants could be under supervision of Iowa probation agents, who would provide reports for Minnesota authorities, and thus could return to their homes.

Both Ripley and Swenson had been held in jail here, except for their several court appearances, since the attack took place on Aug. 18.

Bethany Pair Crosses Wall

By MRS. RALPH BENICKE
Sunday News Staff Writer
A couple from Bethany, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ties, were among the thousands who crossed the Berlin wall in Germany at Christmas.

They had been the recipients of a wonderful Christmas present from their children — a six-week paid trip to Germany.
In October 1963 they attended a surprise party in their honor at the home of one of their sons, Lavern Ties, Altura, and his family.

ALL OF THEIR children and their families were present with the exception of Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Eileen) Stever and family, Augsburg, Germany.

The children gave them a Christmas card which read, "Dear Mom and Daddy — You have always put our needs before your own and now we would like to give you something to show our love and appreciation. How about a trip to Germany? Merry Christmas and may God bring you back safely to us."

It was signed by their children and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford (Garnet) Olson, Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Eldor Ties, Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. David Ties, Trempealeau, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald (Charlotte) Pasche, Minnesota City, daughters Kathleen and Susan, at home, and Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Ties.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ties left Dec. 16 on an Icelandic airliner via Gander, Newfoundland and Reykjavik, Iceland, arriving in Augsburg the 18th at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Eileen) Stever, and their son, Frank Jr., 3, and daughter, Martha, 7 months.

FRANK IS the son of the late Otto Stever, Winona, who died just this month. He was able to fly home to attend his father's funeral.

Frank is a mathematics teacher at the United States Army base in the American zone in Augsburg.

They had written to Berlin two weeks prior to obtain permission to cross the wall.

On Dec. 27 Mr. and Mrs. Ties accompanied by their daughter, son-in-law and grandson, drove to Helmstedt. This is about 600 miles from Augsburg. When they arrived their papers were checked at various points. The first building was occupied by the Germans and then there were four or five buildings occupied by the Russian soldiers. At each point they had to be checked.

They were asked if they intended to visit relatives and answered that they intended to go on a sight-seeing tour.

THEIR son-in-law was driving an Army car and they were told that civilians would not be allowed to accompany him, so they boarded a bus, along with 30 other passengers.

All the passengers were counted when they boarded the bus and when they were discharged.

OLYMPICS SKI JUMP . . . This is a view of the ski jump at Innsbruck, Austria, where the winter Olympics are under way. The Ties of Bethany were present to watch the tryouts on the ski jump. A round bowl-like stadium is at the foot of the jump. Some of the seats are shown.

charged. Soldiers checked the motors, the luggage compartments and their luggage. If the travel papers were not filled out properly they were detained until they were. En route to Berlin there was no stopping and the bus speed was limited to 40 miles an hour. The 100-mile trip took about three hours.

They arrived at "Check Point Charlie" in Berlin where they went through another series of checks by the Russians.

Once through the wall they began a three-hour tour. During it they were permitted to leave the bus just once and that time was to view a large combination park and cemetery where Russian soldiers who died in World War II were buried.

THEY SAW a large factory which employed mostly women and many bombed buildings still standing and of course many new buildings also.

In West Berlin the Ties found the German people to be well dressed, polite and very friendly. They visited two churches and felt at home since they both speak German. They visited St. Ann's in Augsburg Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. This church was built in 1329 and is more than 200 feet long and about 50 feet wide with an altar at both ends. It has wide wooden planks on the floor held together by spikes and has straight boards for pews for the seat and the back rest. There were large framed pictures which encircled the entire church. There was no heat in either church and the Ties kept their overcoats on but could still feel the cold breezes blowing about them.

Real candles are used on many of the Christmas trees in Germany; otherwise the bulbs are in the shape of a candle which give off a yellow glow. The only place they saw colored lights was in the American Zone of Berlin.

They also visited the Kaiser Wilhelm Church, German Evangelical Lutheran Church, which was bombed during the war. The remains of the building still stand. A new church, built of colored glass blocks, was constructed around the ruins.

THE TIES, along with 40 other passengers, took a ride on a cable car which transported them to the top of Zugspitze mountain at Garmisch, 200 miles south of Augsburg. It took 10 minutes to be transported to the top and they saw airplanes flying below them and saw the trees disappearing swiftly. The cable made a loud grinding sound.

When they arrived on top, 10,000 feet up, their ears were cracking, and their stomachs were upset from the height. They found a restaurant there.

On their return and after they got on level ground, they were informed that the Garmisch city officials initiated the cable car on its first trip and the car got stuck about halfway up and it took three hours to correct the situation.

TIES, a carpenter employed by Altura Lumber Yard 12 years, said one did not see many one-story bungalows since the population is so great there would not be room for everyone. He saw mostly 16-unit apartment houses or two- or three-story houses. In the farm country the house and barn were joined together on one level. The homes have steep roofs covered with rounded slate shingles that hook together at the bottom and are nailed on top.

The people there do a lot of walking. Most farmers live in town. There's a shed on the land where hay and tools are kept. Grain is the prime commodity raised and horses are used to harvest the crops. There are very few tractors.

For breakfast one is served coffee, brotchen (bread), jelly and butter. This is the only time coffee is served. For luncheon and dinner it's wine or beer. The beer, served in a gaily decorated mug, is a little stronger and sharper than American made beer, said Ties. Their wine is more sour and not as strong.

IN HEIDELBERG they visited a former king's castle which has a large wine barrel in the basement. It holds 22,000 gallons. A pump elevates the wine to the dining hall above.

The Ties visited Mrs. Elizabeth Drozen at Duren, near Dusseldorf in northeast Germany. She is the mother of Mrs. Elgar (Gertraude) Rustert, a German bride who lives near Stockton, Minn.

It was foggy nearly every day the Ties spent in Germany. They returned home Jan. 22.

Ties' mother, the former Amelia Tews, was born in Germany and was brought to this country as a child. Their daughter, Eileen, who lives in Augsburg had the ministers trace their family history and it was found the original name was Ties and Ties' grandfather had the name changed to its present spelling. Eileen presented her parents with their family crest, with the name Tieg inscribed on it.

Mrs. Ties' grandfather, William Prigge, was born in Hanover, Germany.

St. Cloud State Chief Warns of European Trend

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — A Minnesota college president warned Saturday against patterning American schools after those of Europe.

Dr. George F. Budd, president of St. Cloud State College, said American schools have the general objective of equalizing educational opportunity so that everybody has a chance to develop his abilities.

"European education, on the other hand, is designed to educate an elite, usually recruited from the higher social ranks, which will govern social, political and economic life," he said.

Dr. Budd spoke to supervising teachers at the 36th annual mid-year education conference at Colorado State College. About 3,000 teachers and education students in Colorado were present.

He conceded that some nations may educate "a privileged few" better than the United States educates everyone. Some nations, too, may have a core of "master teachers" who are better qualified than our average teacher, he added. And some may have higher standards for students up to a certain age.

"The real test of education in a democracy," Dr. Budd said, "can be summed up in two questions: What percentage of the population is educated to the limit of individual capabilities? Does each person, regardless of birth or station, have an opportunity, through education, to move up the social and economic ladder? Here we welcome comparisons."

He said American schools must not become overly cautious and apologetic as a result of criticism.

Ocean Floor Best Place for Missile Launch

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — The ocean floor will one day become the best place for launching missiles, the head of Lockheed's submarine-launched Polaris missile program predicts.
"Land-based missiles, no matter how well-protected, can be spotted," Stanley W. Burris told the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics at the close of a three-day meeting here Friday.

Civil Rights Debate in House Calm

By JOHN BECKLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — A civil rights debate that opened in unexpected serenity continued Saturday with the bill's supporters wondering how long the smooth sailing will last.

For nearly five hours Friday the explosive issue was discussed in generally calm and reasoned tones, with even a few jokes thrown in and applause generously afforded most speakers.

That took care of almost half the time allotted for debate, and House leaders cleared up the rest Saturday so that real fighting over amendments can begin Monday. All this week has been set aside for considering amendments.

The prevailing calm did not cover up the sharp differences between North and South on the bill, which would provide broad new federal powers to combat racial discrimination. But despite their fierce objections, the Southerners took almost no advantage of the many opportunities in the House rules to delay the proceedings. Only once was debate interrupted by a demand that a quorum or majority be mustered.

Instead, speakers on both sides called repeatedly for calm debate, with Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, perhaps, putting it best when he said, "Let us have the House demonstrate to the world that on legislation of this importance we can act in the cool light of reason, fairly, justly, properly."

The House leaders expect the measure to be passed without being seriously amended by Feb. 11, then on to the Senate and a likely filibuster.

For its part the Senate ran into some unusual trouble Friday on the tax cut bill — not enough talk.

It adjourned after only 2 hours and 28 minutes because there weren't enough senators on hand to keep debate rolling, and those in charge refused to allow any major votes on the bill's provisions.

President Johnson has urged quick action on the $11.6-billion tax cut, saying that every day of delay withholds $30 million from the economy's bloodstream. The Senate hopes to pass it by Feb. 11, start of the Lincoln Day recess.

Quie Wants to Study Johnson Farm Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's farm proposals drew mixed reaction Friday from congressional leaders, largely along partisan lines.

Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., said he wants to make a thorough study of Johnson's proposals "and if it looks like more and more government control over agriculture, I will oppose them."

However, Quie said, if the Johnson program leads in the direction of less government controls, "I will try to help in the development of sound legislation."

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Corporation Profits At Boom Rate in '63

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Corporation profits rolled in at a boom rate in 1963.

This was evident during the week as many major companies reported big increases in earnings over 1962.

The once familiar cry of "profit squeeze" was heard only occasionally.

The surge in profits was expected to carry over into 1964 at an unabated pace.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon was particularly optimistic about the outlook.

"We ought to be able to move ahead steadily through this year and have one of the best years we have had, and that ought to continue into next year," he said.

"It looks like we will have three or four years of improvement, which is the best we have had in peacetime—ever."

His forecast was conditioned on passage of the $11-billion tax-cut bill which may be enacted by Congress next week.

The profit parade was led by General Motors Corp., the world's biggest manufacturer, which in 1963 had the highest earnings and sales of any corporation in history.

The No. 1 automaker earned $1,592,000,000, or $5.56 a share.

on sales of $16.5 billion. The previous record was $1.52 billion by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in the year ended last Nov. 30.

All of the major auto companies have reported higher earnings for 1963.

It was a good year, too, for the steel industry. The top producer, U.S. Steel Corp., earned $202,913,826, or $3.28 a share, against $163,639,817, or $2.56 a share, in 1962. However, Chairman Roger Blough said the percentage of profit to sales wasn't satisfactory.

Bethlehem, Jones & Laughlin, National Steel, Armco, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Pittsburgh Steel also came in with favorable earnings reports.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) entered for the first time the select circle of companies with profit of $1 billion or more. The company earned $1,015,000,000 or $4.68 a share, up from $840,000,000, or $3.88 a share, in 1962.

The cost of living took an unusual step higher in December. It was only the third time in the last 10 years that the consumer price index had risen in December.

The Labor Department said higher vegetable and sugar prices were mainly responsible for pushing the over-all living costs up two-tenths of 1 per cent over November.

The index advanced to 107.6, meaning that it took $10.76 to buy items that in the 1957-59 base period cost $10.

President Johnson asked Congress to make it possible for workers in selected industries to receive double pay for overtime as a means of widening employment opportunities.

The idea was to encourage industry to spread employment, rather than pay overtime for work at peak seasons.

The President also submitted to Congress a draft of legislation to increase overtime and minimum wage protection for more than two million workers.

Machine tool orders, a key economic barometer, spurted in 1963 to $930,300,000, up 30 per cent from 1962. The total was the highest since 1956.

Automobile production during the week was estimated at 160,900 cars, down from 178,471 the previous week but up from 151,724 a year ago.

Another advance was registered by steel production which rose to 2,212,000 tons from 2,130,000 the previous week.

Regents One Of Oldest Bodies in State

By ADOLPH JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

ST. PAUL (AP)—The board of regents of the University of Minnesota, to which Gov. Karl Rolvaag has just made his first appointment, is one of the oldest and most powerful governing bodies in the state.

Rolvaag appointed Gerald Heaney, Duluth lawyer, to succeed A. J. Olson of Renville, who retired after 35 years of service.

The board was established in 1851 when the university was founded. The charter granted by the Territorial Legislature, and still in force, makes the university autonomous. It is outside the control of the legislature, except that the legislature votes about a third of its operating funds and elects regents.

The charter gives the 12-member board the power and duty "to enact laws for the government of the university," to elect a chancellor, commonly known as the university president, to appoint and remove faculty and other staff members, to fix their salaries, to set tuition rates and provide for needed buildings and equipment.

The board runs a $100 million a year educational business. It has charge of the several campuses having a land area of 16,534 acres and a book value of $11 million. Buildings and equipment are listed at $180 million, but would cost much more to replace, and the endowment amounts to $67 million.

The board at its monthly meeting deals with the affairs of what is now the fourth largest university in the nation, with 35,000 day students and 14,000 attending evening classes. It has an academic staff numbering 4,213 and other staff members totaling 6,012.

The university, long among the largest in the nation, was rated No. 1 in 1908-09 when it had an enrollment of 4,684.

Regents are elected for 6-year terms by the legislature — the Senate and House meeting in joint session. The governor makes appointments to fill vacancies occurring between sessions.

The election of regents often is among the most exciting events of a legislative session. Such is the prestige of the office of regent that competition among supporters of various candidates, and even among the candidates themselves, becomes intense and sometimes bitter.

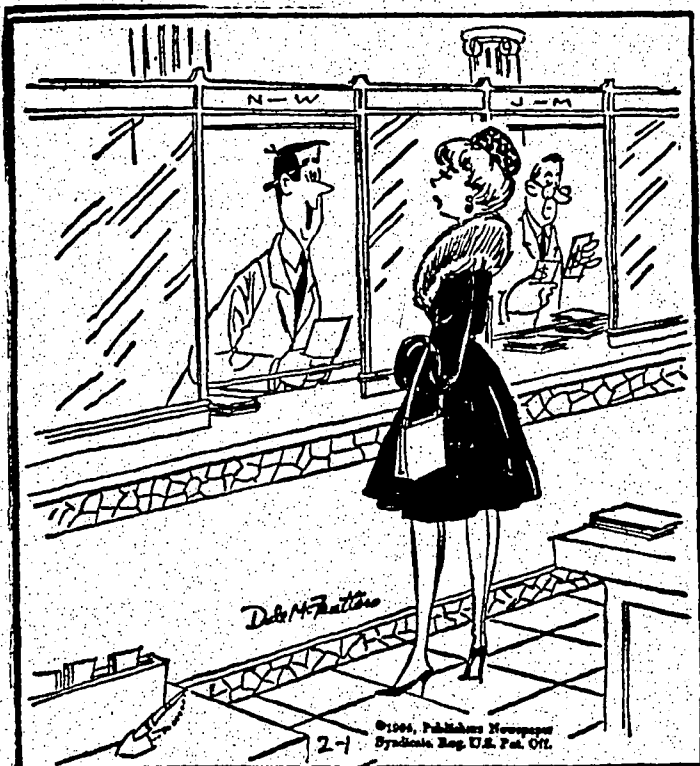

While there is no provision in the charter, it has become customary to elect one regent from each congressional district, the remainder at large.

The education committee of the Senate and the university committee of the House serve as nominating committees for both at-large and district seats. House and Senate members meet by congressional districts to endorse candidates.

It is customary to submit a slate of candidates to the joint Senate - House session, but additional nominations may be made from the floor, and usually are.

The original plan was to have one-third of the board elected at each session of the legislature, but resignations sometimes throw this off.

In 1963, five regents will be elected. Those whose terms expire — all regarded as likely candidates — are Dr. Charles W. Mayo of Rochester, chairman of the board and an at-large regent; Mrs. C. E. Howard of Excelsior, at-large; A. L. Johnson of Benson, at-large; Henney, at-large;

Blair Banker Has Been Busy Man All His Life

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — A man described by a state bank examiner from Madison as having had "more experience in the business than any banker in the area" has retired from banking, but not from public life.

William H. Melby, cashier of the Union Bank of Blair since 1932 but in banking since about 1916, retired here Dec. 31 but will continue as a member of the Trempealeau County Hospital board of trustees. He and his wife are thinking about another trip to Europe.

Following the tradition of his father, Anton O. Melby, who was a banker in Whitehall 50 years, William started his career about 48 years ago. After graduation from the University of Wisconsin, he entered the employ of the John O. Melby & Co. Bank at Whitehall. This bank was named for his uncle, who founded it in 1885 as a private bank. In 1894 it was reorganized, and incorporated as a state bank. It has continued under the same name.

William enlisted in World War I. He was assigned to Company 27, 20th Engineers, and trained in South Dakota before being sent to Europe. He spent 14 months there, most of the time on the Swiss border. He was discharged June 12, 1919.

Forty-four years ago he started on his own by organizing a state bank at North Bend, Jackson County. He returned to Trempealeau County in 1925 to merge the Beaver Valley Bank with the Bank of Ettrick. He remained in Ettrick until 1927 when he went to Hillsboro, Vernon County, where he consolidated two banks.

The Union Bank of Blair had deposits of less than $400,000 when he came here 32 years ago. By last Dec. 31 they were $4,125,185.

Capital stock was $25,000 in 1932, now it is $60,000. Surplus has grown from $5,000 to $120,000, and undivided profits from $2,500 to $120,000.

H. J. Hierleid and O. B. Borsheim were the first bankers here, organizing a private bank in 1899 which in 1903 was reorganized as a state bank. In 1932 it was merged with the

First National Bank of Blair.

MELBY WAS born at North Ferrisburg, Vt. His father was a native of Norway. His mother, the former Della E. Hazard, was a native of Vermont. She died at 34, leaving two sons and a daughter.

The family came to Whitehall when William was an infant. He graduated from Whitehall High School.

Melby has compiled a long record of service to his community. He was president of Blair village. When it became a city in 1949 he became its first mayor, serving until 1962, when he declined re-election and Amos Kolve succeeded him.

He was adjutant of the American Legion post here 14 years; served three years on the school board; is in his fourth year as secretary of the county hospital board, and is treasurer of the Masonic lodge.

HE MARRIED Faith Van Tassel, postmistress at Whitehall, Sept. 1, 1920. They have traveled extensively and are considering a trip abroad next summer.

They have made two trips to Europe, in 1960 and 1962. They have a framed Viking certificate received on their second voyage which says they made the northlands cruise "to the lands of the Vikings: Iceland, Sweden, Finland, Russia, Germany, Denmark and Belgium." A flag from each country is displayed in their living room.

They also have taken trips to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Hawaii.

The Melbys have two children: Anton O. II, who is division head of market development, organic chemicals department, E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., Inc., Wilmington, Del., and Phyllis, presently at home. She has held a position in New York City the last year but plans to enter the University of Minnesota to specialize in library science.

MELBY BELIEVES in physical fitness. Having no desire to operate a car, he has covered the distance from his home to the bank on foot each day, rain or shine. The distance he has walked to and from the bank from the three locations he has lived totals many miles.

The new cashier at the Union Bank of Blair is Howard R. Turk.

Wild Rice Business Goes Indoors

WARROAD, Minn. (AP) — The wild rice business is going on these sub-zero days in the protective confines of a plastic covered nursery.

Four men who incorporated as Woods Wild Rice Co. are nurturing their crop in three 60-foot paddies. They hope to develop a good hybrid.

Marvin Braaten, a bank cashier, and Richard Roberts, former school teacher and manager of a hardware store, got into wild rice cultivation last year.

They operated near the shores of Lake of the Woods, on a 10-acre strip.

Two others have since joined Braaten and Roberts, John Heneman, local banker, and Erwin Brooks, St. Paul.

Last fall, they set up the nursery behind a store and equipped it with two oil furnaces.

Braaten explained, "We expect to have seed by spring." He emptied a handful of wild rice kernels on his desk and compared a long and a short kernel.

"Crossing these might be what we want," he said. "We're trying to develop better types or an ideal type that is more hardy, with better yield."

They don't expect to realize their goal in a year or two, but it can be done in time, says Braaten.

Wild rice has become a gourmet delicacy, bringing as much as $3 a pound in some retail markets.

Ralph Karlson, Swift, is thought to be the pioneer rice grower on the shores of Lake of the Woods.

Indians regularly harvest the rice on their reservations, just as their forefathers used to do.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Cost of Living Causes Concern

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The cost of living isn't following the rules this winter. It has risen to a new high at a time when it wasn't supposed to, on the basis of past average behavior.

And rising prices in some basic materials pose a further worry along the same line. A chance of any drop in the index is even more unlikely than usual.

Consumers haven't been happy about any of this. And now the statisticians are a bit perturbed, although putting most of the blame on the weather. They still hold to the belief that the rise in the cost of living will continue to be gradual rather than picking up much steam and causing a marked flurry of inflation.

In some lines, workers have been helped in meeting higher living costs by a rise in their take-home pay. And Congress is talking about increasing the take-home pay for countless others by passing a federal tax cut bill by the end of next month.

What pushed the cost of living to a new high in December of 107.6 per cent of the 1957-59 base period was largely the damage to winter crops by unusual freezes in the South, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports. But also rising from the November figures were housing, personal care and recreation.

Only twice before in the last 10 years had the December index topped the November figure. And the January index is expected to stay around the record high.

Biggest increases last year came in June, July, November and December. The year end figure of 107.6 compared with 105.9 in December 1962. Every component of the index had risen during the year, with services showing the biggest gains.

Consumers are used to food prices varying with the seasons and with the violence or benevolence of the weather. They also have become used to services rising steadily in recent years.

What's worrying them now is whether prices of basic goods will start rising again after a period of near stability. Most such goods are in adequate supply, and most producers have plenty of capacity—some of it idle—to turn out more goods if demand requires. All this helps hold prices down on a competitive basis.

But if economic growth takes off at the rate some predict, the excess capacity can disappear. Demand then could rise faster than supply. It has happened before in periods of increasing prosperity.

Right now many people are helped by higher incomes. These come from longer work weeks and higher hourly earnings, from increased interest paid on savings, from larger dividend payments, from higher wage scales.

But for most folk the long battle between the pay check and the cost of living hasn't been licked yet.

Publisher Steps Down At Age 100

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—May be it's the smell of printer's ink or his interest in everything, but E. L. Turner intends to keep an eye on his newspaper as he retires at 100.

The title of publisher emeritus gives him the right to do just that. As for the years ahead, he says, "I'll let them take care of themselves."

Turner will be 101 on March 6. "After 75 memorable years, time has taken its toll," he told the board of directors this week as he retired from active management of the Valdosta Daily Times.

He stepped down as publisher and turned his job over to another Turner, his son E. Mann Turner, who at 75 is following his father's example of longevity.

The elder Turner was named to Valdosta in 1889 as a $40-a-month printer. He nurtured the newspaper with thrift and wit from a tiny weekly to a daily with a circulation of 14,500.

Vacationing in the Sourdough Country

To Alaska on Wing and Shoestring

THESE teeth-chattering, midwinter days, the thought of a trip to Alaska for most Winonans is about as appealing as a case of whooping cough. But two Winona policemen and a Fountain City, Wis., native still are talking about an almost spur of the moment flying vacation jaunt they made last fall into remote territory beyond the Arctic Circle.

For Patrolman Lyle Lattman and Richard Braithwaite the two-week trip to the land of tundra, glaciers and Gold Rush ghost towns was the realization of dreams conceived while they patrolled the city in a police squad car on the department's night shift. The lure of the Arctic was there but a trip by automobile was out of the question with only two weeks of vacation in which to make it.

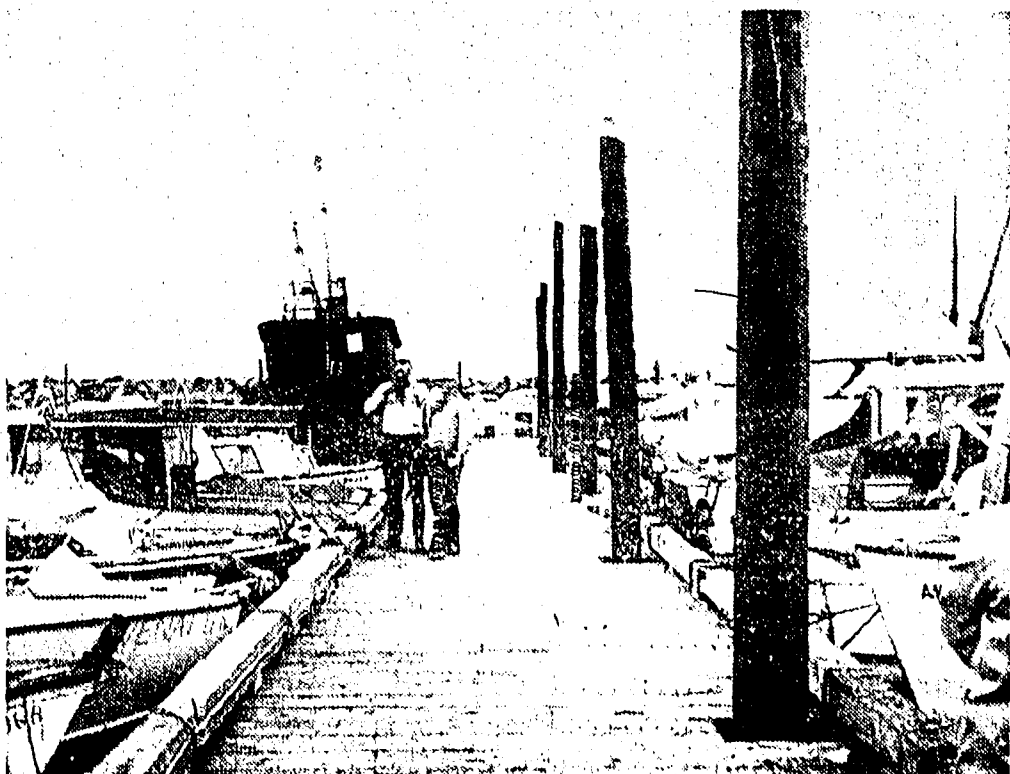

The situation changed abruptly, however, as a result of a chance meeting with amateur pilot Morris Marsolek, a Chicago-based sales supervisor for Armour & Co., whose home is at Fountain City. Introduced by a mutual friend over a cup of coffee at a local restaurant one night, the three saw each other from time to time and on one occasion Braithwaite and Lattman happened to mention that they'd like to go to Alaska some day.

That was interesting, Marsolek commented, because he and a friend had made a 19-day flight the previous year to Alaska with time out in Seattle for a visit to the World's Fair. A longtime admirer of famed Winona pilot Max Conrad, Marsolek had learned to fly at Max Conrad Field here three years ago and went on the Alaskan junket to gain additional flying experience and log hours toward his commercial pilot's license. The first trip had been made in a Piper Cub but during the winter Marsolek had bought a four-seat Cessna 172.

Sure, he'd be willing to make a return trip with Lattman and Braithwaite on an expense-sharing basis, Marsolek said with enthusiasm, and when would they want to start?

"First we had to get our wives convinced that this was a good idea," Lattman recalls with a smile. Braithwaite added, "They were mostly concerned with the safety angle. Actually, they felt that as long as we wanted to make this trip it would be a good opportunity for us and they were pretty much for it."

Then came the problem of when to go. While Lattman and Braithwaite were working the same shift it was impossible for them to take their vacations at the same time but a rescheduling of assignments in the police department late last summer placed them on different shifts and it was possible for them to arrange their vacation at a time when Marsolek was able to go.

"It wasn't easy, even at that," Lattman explained, "and it really wasn't until practically a day or so before we took off that we had everything settled."

Packing posed no problems. Each of the passengers was limited to 20 pounds of baggage for the trip and their sleeping bags took care of the bulk of that weight. The second day out they were relieved of a couple of pounds of their cargo when customs officials at Regina, Canada, took Braithwaite's service revolver — which had been taken along as a part of survival gear — with the explanation that they would not be allowed to carry pistols on their trip.

On the third day they reached the Yukon Territory where they spent the night as welcome guests of three servicemen manning a radar station at an otherwise abandoned air base. The following day they reached Valdez, a tiny fishing village on the Alaskan west coast, nestled in a setting of glaciers and jagged mountain peaks which has earned it the descriptive phrase, "the Switzerland of North America," and considered by the trio the most scenic area found on the entire flight.

Marsolek piloted his craft in close to the glacier edge and the reverberation of the engine's roar caused portions of ice to break loose and slide down some 500 feet into the sea. A hop over the mountains, during which the noise of the airplane sent mountain sheep scurrying about, brought them to Anchorage and a meeting with Braithwaite's brother, Jerry, who had been serving 18 months with the Air Force there.

One look at the prices of merchandise in that Alaskan city discouraged the Winonans from souvenir hunting.

"You should see the prices of that stuff," Braithwaite explained. "I looked at a little statue of a bear and they wanted something like $15 for it."

A hamburger and a few French fries at a lunch counter cost $1.25 and Lattman remembers that he decided on a reindeer steak, rather than beef, because it could be bought for about half the price of beefsteak.

The Winona patrolmen visited the Anchorage police department and found that policemen there received $790 a month and the rapid turnover in personnel, as a result of employment opportunities that attracted members of the department into other more lucrative positions, was a constant problem.

"They told us that if we were interested in a job we probably could get on the force right away," Lattman said. "One of the oldest men in the department had been on the force seven years and was an inspector. I'd say that the average length of service was around two years."

"The fire department was housed in the same building as the police station," Braithwaite mentioned, "and we were surprised to find out that in the entire department there was just one man who didn't own his own airplane. That's the way they all travel up there."

Their next stop was Fairbanks and a side trip to Cripple Creek mine, the site of the first gold strike in Alaska during last century's Gold Rush. Here they found a gold dredge still working a mining area and the much chronicled Malemute Saloon, maintained virtually in its original state as a tourist attraction. At Cripple Creek, Marsolek, Lattman and Braithwaite spent some time looking for gold nuggets and returned with a bag full of odd-colored rocks which they hopefully consider the real thing.

Then it was north to Fort Yukon, a village above the Arctic Circle with a population of about 450, of whom all but about 40 are Indians. After a flight over several hundred miles of frozen wasteland, the Minnesotans, upon arrival at Fort Yukon, sat down to their first real sourdough breakfast, a $2 meal that promised them all they could eat.

A tour of the village revealed a cluster of log cabins with sod roofs. The Indians were shy and when Lattman attempted to obtain pictures of them with his movie camera they'd run behind buildings and stay there until the visitors left.

Residents of the settlement make their living fishing, using large fishing wheels equipped with buckets which would scoop up salmon as they swam up the river.

After leaving Fort Yukon, the trio put down at Dawson for a night and then began the return trip to the United States.

Thirteen days after they had taken off from Max Conrad Field, the vacationers returned to Winona with 60 hours flying time logged and 8,000 miles covered.

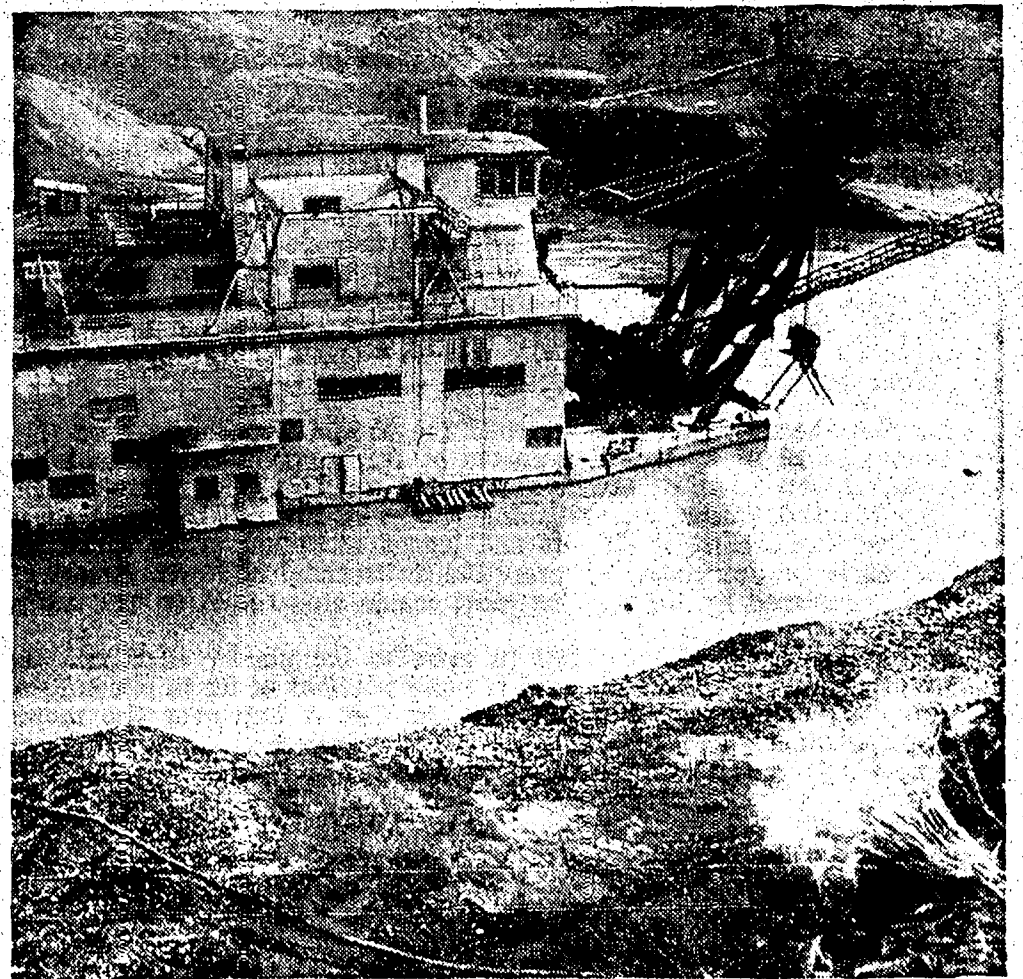

Virtually the entire flight had been made by visual navigation, following the Alaskan Highway on its route up the West Coast to its end and then depending on landmarks for the extension of the trip into more remote areas.

In flight, Marsolek from time to time would turn over the controls to Lattman or Braithwaite while Marsolek studied his maps and charted their course.

The days lengthened as the travelers probed farther north and by the time they reached the Arctic Circle there was daylight as late as 11 p.m. and a dusky darkness prevailed for only a scant three hours.

STILL HUNTING . . . At Cripple Creek, once a scene of frenzied Gold Rush activity, this gold dredge continues in operation seeking ore-bearing rock.

The trip only whetted their appetite for traveling. Marsolek already is considering other trips in his airplane and Lattman and Braithwaite would like to return to Alaska again some day.

They'd do it in a more leisurely manner the second time though. Both agreed that in two weeks they hardly had a glimpse of everything that state has to offer.

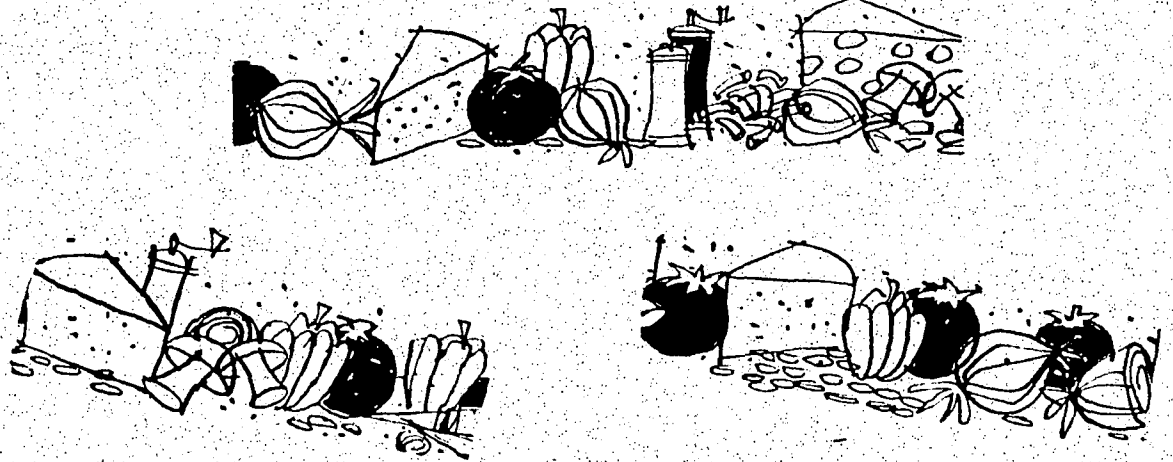

"We think the best way would be if you had enough time and enough money to take a year off and spend it up there," they have concluded. "Even then, you probably wouldn't get to see and do everything you'd have planned on."

Do It Yourself at a Salad Buffet

Recipes for Informal Entertaining

MRS. D. C. Alexander has lived an interesting life, with many years spent abroad as the wife of a much-traveled man in government service. When Mr. Alexander came to Winona as vice president of the J. R. Watkins Company, Mrs. Alexander — at the request of the president of the company, E. L. King who was her brother — did nutritional research for the company. She also wrote and edited six cookbooks for the company, using the name "Elaine Allen."

For this task she was well qualified, for she had studied cooking at the world-famed Cordon Bleu Cooking School in Paris, as well as taking cooking courses in New York. She studied nutrition, including food chemistry and food technology at the University of Southern California under food authority Dr. Roger Trusdail of the Trusdail Laboratories.

For many years the spacious and charming Alexander house was known for its elegant parties and fabulous cuisine. Since the death of Mr. Alexander and the marriage of their only daughter, Mrs. Alexander devotes much of her time to her work on the Research Committee of the United Nations, a post she has held since 1950. Today her entertainment is confined mostly to church and club groups but is still marked by great elegance.

Being a realist, Mrs. Alexander said that today few people have the help necessary for the elaborate entertaining of "the good old days." This was brought home to her in her research and cookbook work for the Watkins company when women from all over the world wrote to "Elaine Allen" asking not so much for recipes but for ways of entertaining simply, informally and inexpensively. The result was her "Salad Cookbook" with its special emphasis on Salad Buffets.

Quoting from the Salad Buffet Chapter: "A salad buffet offers a delightfully informal way of entertaining because guests enjoy selecting and tossing together a salad combination of their own choice. Supplemented by one or two hot breads, sandwiches, hot coffee and a dessert, a very appetizing and satisfying meal can be planned."

She goes on to suggest: "Serve two different salads on a chilled luncheon plate, such as chicken and a fruit salad. . . . Pass French dressing made with lemon juice." And there follow many intriguing suggestions for combinations of salads.

For this reason Mrs. Alexander gave me recipes suitable for informal buffets or dessert luncheons rather than the old-style formal dinners.

French Dressing (Basic Recipe)

¾ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons tarragon vinegar or lemon juice (or combination of the two) ½ teaspoon granulated sugar, ¼ cup olive oil, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Place salt, sugar and vinegar in a bottle or small fruit jar and shake until salt is dissolved. Add olive oil, paprika and shake or whip with rotary beater until creamy. Keep covered in the refrigerator and shake well before using.

For a Large Quantity: Use an electric or rotary beater. Measure into a fruit jar 1½ cups olive oil, ½ cup tarragon vinegar, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, with sugar to suit taste. Shake vigorously to blend mixture and keep covered in the refrigerator.

Chicken Chow Mein Salad

2½ cups diced cooked chicken, 1 cup drained canned bean sprouts, 1 small can water chestnuts, sliced, ½ cup diced pineapple, ½ cup diced crisp celery, 1 teaspoon minced pimiento, salt, paprika.

Add French dressing to cooked chicken and chill 2 hours. Add other ingredients and mayonnaise, toss together lightly, and serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with ripe olives and deviled eggs, cut into quarters. Add a dash of paprika.

Bacon and Rice Salad

1 small onion, chopped, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup vinegar, 4 stalks celery, cut fine, 3 cups cooked brown (unpolished) rice, 4 slices crisp bacon, diced, hot bacon drippings, 3 hard cooked eggs, paprika.

Place chopped onion, parsley, salt, pepper and vinegar in a large bowl, let stand 10 minutes to flavor, then blend in hot rice. Add celery, crisp bacon, hot bacon drippings, and blend. Arrange on crisp lettuce and garnish with sliced eggs.

Frankfurter and Baked Bean Salad

4 frankfurters, 1 1-pound can baked beans in tomato sauce, ¼ cup minced sour pickle, paprika.

Use skinless frankfurters and follow directions on can, or wash and boil 5 minutes, chill and cut in ¼ inch slices. Arrange in a salad bowl lined with crisp lettuce, or break lettuce into small pieces, add French dressing, toss mixture and serve.

Orange Toast

Blend 2 tablespoons orange juice and grated rind of 1 orange with ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Spread on slices of hot buttered toast and place in a hot oven about 2 minutes. Serve hot.

Quick Peppermint Ice Cream

(No Sugar)

20 marshmallows, 1 cup hot milk, 1 cup crushed peppermint candy, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cut marshmallows and stir into hot milk. When dissolved remove from fire, cool, then chill. Fold marshmallow mixture into whipped cream and beat until smooth. Fold in crushed candy and vanilla. Turn into freezing tray of an automatic refrigerator and freeze 3 to 4 hours or until firm. Stir twice during freezing. For Sunday dinner, make and chill overnight.

Potato Chip Cookies

One ingredient was missing in last week's recipe for Potato Chip Cookies. Two cups of flour should be added to the other ingredients listed.

Apple or Pineapple Hors d'oeuvres

Soften cream cheese with a little milk, and if you wish add finely chopped chives or nuts. Chill fine spicy apples and cut in cubes. Or use cubed canned pineapple. Spread cubes with cream cheese and impale on toothpicks. Serve chilled, using a big red apple to stick cubes in.

French Cherry Cake

This delicate and different cherry dessert is a favorite in France.

4 eggs and 2 egg yolks, 1 cup sifted cake flour, ¼ cup butter, melted, ½ cup sugar, 2 cups sweet cherries, pitted, 1 teaspoon lemon extract.

Beat eggs and yolks lightly. Add sugar and heat over very low heat until just lukewarm, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and whip with rotary egg beater until mixture doubles in volume.

Sift flour, a little at a time, over egg mixture and fold in alternately with melted butter. Turn into a buttered and lightly floured baking pan (9x12). Drop pitted cherries over entire top and bake in moderate 350 oven for about 50 minutes or until cake shrinks from edges slightly. Serve with following cherry sauce.

French Cherry Sauce

¼ cup port wine, ¼ cup sherry wine, 1 4-ounce glass currant jelly, juice of 2 oranges, juice of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups sweet cherries.

Blend wines, jelly, fruit juices and butter and place over low heat, stirring to dissolve jelly. Add pitted cherries and serve.

French Chocolate Mousse

6 ounces dark sweet chocolate, ½ ounce bitter chocolate, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 egg yolks, 3 egg whites beaten stiff.

Melt chocolate and water in pan and stir over very low heat until dissolved. Remove from heat, stir in vanilla. Add unbeaten egg yolks one at a time and beat well. Fold in stiffly beaten whites and blend thoroughly. Pour into sherbet glasses and chill 3 hours.

Lemon Souffle

3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup scalded milk, 3 egg separated, ½ cup sugar, pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, grated rind of ½ lemon, powdered sugar.

Melt butter and stir in flour. Stirring constantly add milk slowly and blend until smooth. Beat egg yolks with rotary beater, beat in sugar and salt. Stir hot cream sauce slowly into beaten egg yolks. Cool, then fold in egg whites beaten until stiff but not dry. Sprinkle inside of buttered baking dish with powdered sugar. Turn in mixture and bake about 35 minutes in a fairly hot 400 oven until nicely browned. Serve with the following hot lemon sauce.

LEMON SAUCE:

½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons strained lemon juice, 2 tablespoons butter.

Blend together sugar, salt and cornstarch, then gradually stir in hot water and cook until mixture is smooth and thick, about 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Add lemon rind and juice, then butter.

Coordinate From Top to Toe

Hosiery Figures in the Natural Look

IT'S ironic how women will take such care and go to such lengths to coordinate their costumes; how they'll devote such attention to what blouse to wear with which skirt and which shoes and bag (should they match?) would set the outfit off best. They'll even take great pains to match their lingerie to their foundation garments.

But how many women ever consider matching their hosiery to the outfits they're wearing?

The knee-to-the-ankle is quite a stretch of flesh. It comprises, I would say, well over one-quarter of a woman's height. And yet very few even trouble to coordinate this area with the other three-quarters.

True, in the past, hosiery has been rather unimaginative and "one-of-a-kind." But the range and variety available today is utterly breathtaking — and should be taken advantage of.

I really can't see the logic of a woman going to all the trouble of trying to look smart in a fashionable navy blue suit sparked with crisp white, being diligent in selecting a pair of pale pumps to set it off — and then neglecting the entire leg area in between. A pair of eggshell-colored stockings would, in this case, provide a continuous, coordinated flow from top to toe tip.

The emphasis this spring — throughout — is on the soft, natural look — in figure control, in apparel, in makeup and grooming. And why, may I ask, should hosiery be excluded from this total concept?

Stocking color, I maintain, must be as soft and as gently tinted as costume color and shoe color. There is a whole spectrum of pastels and pale neutrals to choose from — to complement whatever outfit you may have in mind. These range from pink to peach white put just a blush on the leg; to beige, bone, and buttery yellow; to grey, green and gold.

In keeping with spring softness, these stockings will be sheerer than ever before. Even textured stockings — which are enjoying a continued vogue — will be silkier and more feminine. Diamond patterns will be highly popular, as will be rib designs and speckly tweeds. Many of the stockings for spring will sport cooling air holes in the form of fishnets, crochets, and openwork.

Although the sheers will dominate, don't overlook the delicate opaques — especially in popular white and off-white, naturals amid the flurry of white leathers, fabrics, and furs.

Stockings for spring will also boast little or no reinforcements. The reason? Shoes will be getting more open and airier — and the lower-cut shell will be coming on strong.

FASHION MIRROR

Reptiles textures are in the bag — and in the shoe and glove as well. Whether authentic or simulated (pressed calf in often pressed into service in the latter case), the grainy look and feel should dress up the accessories picture considerably this spring.

The little reptile cocktail bag has become quite the thing of late; and at the other end of the scale, giant totes are also participating in the reptilian rage.

Lizard and alligator lead the parade, but such distant relatives as ostrich and saffian are likewise popular.

Any special color? You bet. White — in all grains. (And in patent, too. Look for patents in mottled tortoise effects.) Don't, however, overlook black which is just dandy in cobra and other snakes.

FASHION TIP

It's no secret by this time that I'm more or less preoccupied with hands. As I've said on countless occasions before, to me a woman's hands can be the essence of elegance — or, if not properly cared for, a highly distracting presence.

Contrary to the opinion of many, I don't think it's all in the polish. It's rather refreshing, I feel, to sport polishless nails from time to time. That is, if you've already seen to your cuticles and tips and have given them a good buffing.

DEAR ABBY:

Everybody Wants To Get the Credit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: As a journalist, responsible for writing the truth, did you do a competent research job before giving credit to the Houston Police Department for "Ten Easy Rules For Raising A Delinquent"? Sincerely yours,

MINISTER, PHILIPSBURG, KANSAS

My dear Reverend: The item in question was sent to me by a Chicago reader, crediting the Houston Police Department with authorship. Believing that people are honest until proved otherwise, I ran it verbatim, including the credit. My primary purpose in using the item was to share it with my readers, not to applaud the author. I have since heard from 22 readers, each ascribing authorship of "The Rules" to a different source. If the Houston Police Department did not originate them, I hope the real author will step forward, make himself known and accept my apologies. And now I am reminded of an appropriate quote (I know not whose): "There is no end to the amount of good people could accomplish in this world if nobody cared who got the credit." Respectfully yours,

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a newspaper compositor and your column comes to my attention frequently. I agree with your advice — most of the time. An exception being your reply to the man whose name was erroneously included with the list of employees who, though uninvited to the wedding, gave the boss' daughter a gift. His reasons for not conforming were valid, and his name could have been added purposely either to make him conform; become a conspicuous nonconformist in the eyes of his boss; or live a lie among his associates. Your reply dictates that he should allow himself to be tricked into donating to something he believes to be incorrect or to expose himself to a potentially vindictive superior. I feel he should be defended and commended — let the one who added his name to the list kick in with the five bucks.

TED FARABEE

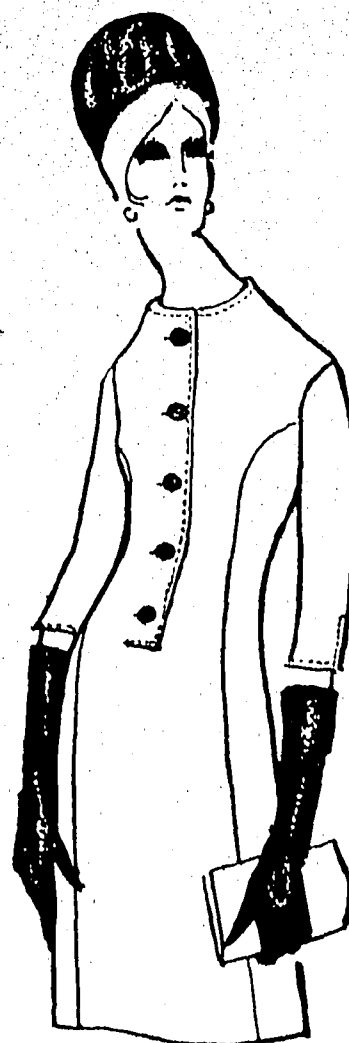

DEAR MR. FARABEE: I don't know for which newspaper you work, but they are lucky. Although I gave a great deal of thought to my reply, I must admit I missed the boat. Your answer was better, and I thank you.

DEAR ABBY: My brother claims to be a religious man, but when he does his chores (he is a farmer) he beats his animals so unmercifully it would make you sick to watch him. I saw him club a poor old cow so bad one day I actually cried for her. Another time, I saw him kick a newborn calf halfway across the barn for no reason at all. He also kicked a pig in the mouth until it bled just because it wouldn't wait until he had put all the food in the trough. This same brother can quote passages from the Bible as good as any preacher. I go to church, but I don't attend as regularly as he does. He wouldn't miss a service for anything. Now, what kind of religion do you call that?

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Your brother may be exposed to religion, and even preach it, but he isn't practicing it. It's difficult to believe that a man who is as familiar with the word of the Lord could behave so inhumanely to any of God's creatures. I think he needs to have his head examined.

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WINONA SUNDAY NEWS

Sunday, February 2, 1964 WINONA SUNDAY NEWS

Says He Means It

Danny Thomas Show To End This Time

By HARVEY PACK

When Danny Thomas announced that he was finally giving up his TV series in favor of a limited number of specials, there was considerable surprise. Thomas has made an annual event out of forecasting the demise of his weekly show, after which he has invariably signed it back to life.

Those who know the "Lebanese Lion" insist that his previous, abortive attempts to cut down his personal work load were sincere. They claim that Thomas is really two people—one an easygoing entertainer who thrives on laughter and applause, the other a shrewd, ambitious businessman. Sometimes the two don't agree, but the fun-loving comic was always able to convince the hard-headed businessman that "The Danny Thomas Show" should continue, until now.

Then Thomas, the realist, pointed out that even a guy with two heads has only one nervous system, and the argument was over. "I'm gonna miss the show and the people on it," he said wistfully. "Especially the people—Marjorie Lord, Sid Melton, Pat Carroll, Hans Conried, the kids. We had a lot of fun together. But this thing has grown to the point where I've simply got to spend more time behind my desk."

WHAT THOMAS refers to as "this thing" is a multi-million dollar TV packaging firm whose program roster includes "The Andy Griffith Show," "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "The Joey Bishop Show" and "The Bill Dana Show." Next season two more Thomas proteges, homespun comic Jim Nabors and British humorist Bernie Fox, seem likely to land network berths.

"My biggest kick, outside of actually performing, is watching other entertainers work," Thomas said. "I'm a sucker for talent. And when people really break me up—the way Andy Griffith and Dick Van Dyke do—I start thinking how they would fit on TV."

Out of such conjecture has evolved Thomas' flourishing video empire. "There was a time when all this wouldn't have been possible," he admitted. "The ground rules were different in the old days. Producers produced, actors acted and comedians told funny stories. Then a few movie stars—like Gregory Peck, William Holden and Cary Grant—asked for a piece of the action. They figured if they could make people laugh and cry, they knew as much about entertainment, and maybe more, than guys who had never faced a camera. All I did was apply the same logic to television."

Along the way, Thomas convinced other veteran performers—notably movie "mobster" Sheldon Leonard and two-time "Emmy" winner Carl Reiner—to join him behind the scenes. (Leonard is now Thomas' top production executive and Reiner is producer-writer of the Van Dyke series.) He also helped several entertainers set up their own prod-

Question—Please settle an argument which I had with my grandmother who is a very avid moviegoer and TV fan. She told me that Clark Gable and Greta Garbo were once married for a brief time when they made a movie called "Susan and God." I recently saw "Susan and God" on TV and it starred Joan Crawford and Frederic March. When I pointed this out to my grandmother, she said the Crawford movie must have been a remake. — B.E., Providence, Rhode Island.

Answer—Your grandmother is a bit confused, but after a lifetime of movie going and at least a decade of TV viewing, I can't say I blame her. "Susan and God" starred Joan Crawford and Frederic March and was released in 1939. It has not been remade. Gable and Garbo were never married but they did co-star in a film called "Susan Lennox." Both "Susan" films are available on TV.

Question—I recently saw the movie "A View From the Bridge" on TV and would like to know the name of the actor who played "Rodolpho" in the movie? He was very handsome and I would like to know if he is going to appear in any other films or on TV in the near future. — L. D., Morristown, New Jersey.

Answer—Jean Sorel is the actor's name. He is a French actor who has appeared in Italian as well as French films. He lives in Europe where he works in films. He has no immediate plans to star in any American films or appear on TV in this country.

State Sets First Film Festival

The State Theatre Wednesday inaugurates its Film Art Festival with a one-day showing of Ingmar Bergman's THE VIRGIN SPRING.

Set in 14th Century Sweden with a cast that includes Max Von Sydow, Birgitta Valberg, Gunnel Lindblom and Birgitta Pettersson, the story is based on a medieval folk song and legend about Karin Tore (Birgitta Pettersson), the lovely, spoiled daughter of an imperious farmer and her foster sister (Gunnel Lindblom), who is disheveled, scorned, full of hate and fiercely beautiful.

The two set off on horseback for church but become temporarily separated. Karin playfully takes up with two dirty herdsmen and their younger brother and, in the midst of a picnic, is raped and killed while the returning sister looks on with horror and vengeful satisfaction.

The rest of the story deals with the farmer's bloody revenge, his subsequent remorse and his final vow to build a great church on the spot where his daughter was slain, thereby cleansing himself of his guilt.

The movie will be seen at a 2 p.m. matinee and at 7:15 and 9:30 p.m.

John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara are starred in McLINTOCK! arriving Thursday at the State.

This is the story of hard-drinking, hard-fighting George Washington McLintock, a land and cattle baron played by Wayne.

He meets his match when it comes to tough-mindedness in his wife, Miss O'Hara.

Filmed almost entirely in the Nogales cow country in Arizona, the movie has a cast that includes Wayne's son, Patrick Wayne, Stefanie Powers, Jack Kruschen, Chill Wills and Yvonne De Carlo.

Ending its run Tuesday at the State is 4 FOR TEXAS, with Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Anita Ekberg and Ursula Andress.

This 19th Century Western has Sinatra and Martin cast as gunmen-gamblers who are arch enemies.

Miss Ekberg is the owner of a dress salon who is Sinatra's girl friend and Miss Andress, operator of a gambling boat, is romantically involved with Martin.

FESTIVAL OFFERING . . . Max Von Sydow and Birgitta Pettersen are seen in THE VIRGIN SPRING, a Film Art Festival feature at the State Wednesday.

MERLE OBERON AND LAURENCE OLIVIER are seen in a romantic interlude in the drama of WUTHERING HEIGHTS, playing at the Winona Theatre Wednesday through Saturday.

War Hero Stars in Western at Winona

Audie Murphy, who came out of World War II as America's most decorated soldier and then went on to become a film star, is cast as a detective in the West near the turn of the century in GUNFIGHT AT COMANCHE CREEK, playing through Tuesday at the Winona.

Murphy, who heads a cast that includes Ben Cooper, Colleen Miller, DeForest Kelley and Jan Merlin, plays a detective who almost single-handedly smashes an outlaw gang in Colorado.

Although he has a racy affair with Laurie Mitchell, it is with Colleen Miller he has his serious romance. Miss Miller portrays the owner of a hotel saloon, a woman with charm and dignity.

Also featured in the production are Joan Hubbard, Damian O'Flynn and Susan Seaforth.

Opening Wednesday is the film version of the Emily Bronte novel, WUTHERING HEIGHTS, with Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier heading a cast that includes David Niven, Flora Robson, Hugh Williams, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Donald Crisp and Miles Mander.

The story concerns the lives of five strangely assorted people against a backdrop of love and disaster, strange emotions and hates.

Miss Oberon appears as Cathy, a high-spirited beauty whose life is mysteriously influenced by the moors on which she has lived all her life.

Olivier is in the role of Heathcliff, a brooding, melancholy figure in love with Cathy.

Niven is seen as Edgar Linton and Miss Robson is Cathy's nurse.

The Samuel Goldwyn production was a screenplay by Ben Hecht and was directed by William Wyler.

NOW, let's see. In our first episode — way back there — I said I was going to take a few weeks off to prepare for and enjoy the holidays and from the length of time I've been incommunicado you might think we had some sort of bacchanalian orgy going on here that just won't quit!

That's not quite the case.

Actually, the holidays were not an unmixed blessing. We had a few medical episodes (nothing dramatic enough for a TV prime-time doctor series — strictly soap opera agonies) and then — as the partying wore on — a few touches of a kind of roadshow La Dolce Vita.

It was all somewhat tiring but of course the kids had a fine time. There's nothing like the disintegration of a bunch of expensive, absolutely, positively unbreakable toys to bring a sparkle to the eyes of the young.

So the holidays finally came to an end, leaving me with only a few small caches of pine needles in hard-to-get-at places. (That's embarrassing, you know? You have a cocktail party in July and some nosy guest wanders off the mainstream and comes up with a handful of Christmas remembrances.)

The real reason I didn't write in January is that it has taken all my powers of creative imagination to deal with the Christmas bills — which ones to pay, which ones to hide and how to explain the hidden ones should my roommate come upon them. It takes a lot of fanciful conversation I can tell you.

I was also rendered speechless (at least as far as a family newspaper goes) by a trip to Minneapolis to see "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf." It's a marvelous play but exasperating on the nerves and, though the personality disorder it causes is only temporary, it has a more lingering effect on the vocabulary.

I'm not going to blushingly pretend that I'd never been aware of such language but after you've heard it shrieked and shouted on a stage for an intense three and a half hours you are apt to find yourself turning to your dear ones and tossing off some really gamey phrases.

Having cleaned up my vocabulary and SOME of the bills it does seem time to get back to work, particularly since 1964 looks like a pretty good year for readers. '63 was lousy. I'm not giving any prizes for last year's literary efforts and I don't know what the old fuddy-dufs on the Pulitzer Committee will do with theirs.)

The book I enjoyed most in the last few months — in fact the one that I gave everyone in sight for Christmas — was THE MOST OF A. J. LIEBLING, a prize sampling of some of the hundreds of articles he has written through the years, mostly for The New Yorker.

Sadly enough, just a few weeks ago and a few weeks after this book was published, Mr. Liebling died, but I think this book and all his earlier ones will be around for a long, long time.

Liebling was a man of vast enthusiasms and — most important — the talent to share them with others. He was an expert on the secrets of gourmet cookery and a walking encyclopedia on the manly art of boxing from its very inception. He was a much admired war correspondent during World War II and a continual thorn in the side of newspaper publishers for his frequently acid but almost "more in sorrow than in anger" reports on the vagaries of the Press.

These were, perhaps, his favorite topics but everything he saw interested him and everything he wrote about amused and delighted his readers. If you can imagine me, the militant anti-sports minority of one around here, reading with eagerness and merriment every word Mr. Liebling ever wrote on boxing, you may get some small idea of his powers of expression.

It seems to me that one of this man's greatest enthusiasms was for writing itself. His articles — on whatever subject — are so engaging that I am absolutely sure I can see him smiling at his typewriter and chuckling to himself when he hit on a phrase he particularly liked.

As for '64 — well, things are looking up. I may get to the following in more detail in weeks to come but if you're looking for something to hibernate with right now I recommend — briefly but enthusiastically — these brand new ones.

THE WAPSHOT SCANDAL by John Cheever. Cheever is — and I say this with complete conviction and a stony glance in the direction of my erstwhile hero, John O'Hara — the finest short story writer in America today. This is his second novel (his first, "The Wapshot Chronicle," won the NBA award several years ago) and it's excellent. Cheever's people (in contrast to you know whose) do not live in plastic bubbles and he loves them and is sad for them.

THE LITTLE GIRLS by Elizabeth Bowen. If you still have a bad taste in your mouth from Mary McCarthy's little ode to womanhood, try this. Miss Bowen is writing about women, too, and at least as well as Miss McCarthy, but she is unfashionable enough to be filled with warmth and affection for days gone by.

CHANGE OF PLEA by Camilla Bittle. If you can get beyond that exotic name (and I admit it is sort of a stunner) you will find Miss Bittle to be both a sensitive observer and a lucid reporter. In this novel she uses a manslaughter case (there I am back in that old courtroom again) to bring to a head the misery of a marriage.

Now, go read for awhile because I have to get ready to go to Phoenix. This is the first time in 10 years I've gone on a real trip but if you think lack of experience will keep me from filling this space with a couple of boring travel talks in weeks to come you are very, very wrong.

Prepare yourself for fading sunsets and reports on the friendly natives.

Horsing Around Out West

THE CADILLAC COWBOYS. By Glendon Swarthout. Random. $4.95.

Pull your $400 deck chair up to the edge of the $40,000 swimming pool, podner, and latch on to a mess of modern Western guff from the breezy insouciance of desert Arizona.

This Swarthout has written a raunchy, side-of-the-mouth thing like you might hear over the alcoholic murmur of an air-conditioned bar out in the wide open spaces, where nowadays men are spurred and spurious.

THERE IS A joker named H. Carleton Cadell, an Easterner who makes like a history professor. The trick is that he has married a widow saturated with money; they gallop off in their white Bentley to the frontier sands, to escape effete Eastern boredom in favor of Western ditto.

So our barfly pal Cadell gets tangled up with a 12-gallon cow-billy, Eddie Bud Boyd, right there in the glaring Arizona sunset of federal subsidies, dusty dogies and early American schmalz.

It seems this horseless, broad-accented Boyd is a commission salesman who recently has made $720,000 on a rising cattle market, which explains his adventurous marriage to a barefoot creature from Utah and his desire for the prodigal-type swimming pool.

THE ONLY trouble is that podner Boyd, a naive innocent, gets clobbered by (a) Eastern promoters who have invaded our heroic Western wastelands, (b) a falling beef market and (c) an educated Indian. Which busts brother Boyd and maims his friend Cadell.

We have to shed a tear for the sad deterioration of pioneer honesty in the cattle racket, and another tear because Eastern disillusionment and chicanery have spread to the glorious West, where at least real estate developers and bankers have replaced the gunslingers and grubstake prospectors of the romantic past.

Podner, this Swarthout is a real East-West sharp, making smart cracks like a Madison Avenue wrangler.

Dangerous Mission Romance, Intrigue On the Islands

THE DANGEROUS ISLANDS. By Ann Bridge. McGraw-Hill. 275 pages. $5.50.

By JOHN R. BREITLOW

Fans of popular novelist Ann Bridge will welcome the return of her comely heroine Julia Probyn, in Miss Bridge's latest lady-like thriller, THE DANGEROUS ISLANDS. It is a pleasant tale of romance and espionage, set against the background of some delightfully remote areas of the British Isles.

The "islands" to which the title refers are three: one of the remote Hebrides of the wild north coast of Scotland, Clare Island, an isolated spot west of Ireland's remarkably primitive County Mayo, and one of the rugged Scilly Isles — Bryher by name — at the very southern edge of Britain.

THE CONNECTION between these three isolated islands is a series of hidden Soviet satellite tracking devices, one of which is accidentally discovered by Miss Julia Probyn and her cousin, Colin, while on a yachting trip in northern waters. Colin just happens to work for the British Secret Service and signals headquarters for help.

Help arrives in the form of the dashing Col. Phillip Jamieson, who is interested in just this sort of thing. After a good deal of islandhopping, he and Julia become rather fond of each other and go so far as to set the date.

While working up to this conclusion, they have a few close scrapes with some Slavic types who resent people tampering with their installations.

ALONG THE way, a professorial friend of Julia's also comes into the picture. He is an elderly and renowned archeologist whom the Russians have blackmailed into installing their tracking devices under the pretense of searching for historical material in some of the remote but ideally located islands on the fringes of Britain. His presence causes Julia Probyn some emotional problems, which a Communist bullet helps to solve.

Ann Bridge has written over a dozen such mild thrillers and, while none of them cause any great stir, they are easily readable and prove good diversion. Their best points deal with interesting but little known areas of the world. THE DANGEROUS ISLANDS excels in this aspect, where the feeling and flavor of the setting dominates whatever action might be happening. It might be called an excellent travelogue with mild plot and pleasant people thrown in.

WHAT A TV SET COST 25 YEARS AGO

If someone complained that a TV set costs more today than 25 years ago, you'd lift an eyebrow. 25 years ago there were no TV sets at any price.

For the same reason, it isn't logical to say, "Prescriptions cost more today than they used to."
Most of today's drugs weren't available 25 years ago. In fact, over three quarters of the prescriptions written today, are for drugs that didn't exist ten years ago.

Today, Americans spend only one cent from every disposable dollar on drugs. This is no more than in 1939. Also today's drugs work faster, they are more efficient.
They do much to reduce your total cost of illness. That's why we say, "Today's prescription is the biggest bargain in history."

2. If your car battery has run down you can remedy the fault if you CHARGE it (Change). — If you Change it you do not remedy the fault; the old battery is still run down. To remedy the fault you will need to CHARGE it.

5. Threats don't often have much effect on a person who is by nature COOL (Fool). — They might well have a marked effect on a person who is by nature a Fool; he might not realize they are incapable of being put into action. The person who is COOL is level-headed and can size-up the situation realistically.

7. Many young women seem ready to attach themselves to young men who SEEM to be wealthy (Seek). — The weakness of Seek is that it covers such a wide field. It also implies that the young women have little regard for personal characteristics of the young men. Young men who SEEM to be wealthy have at least one potential advantage!

8. If you're not BOLD by nature it's seldom easy to pretend to be (Cold). — It's easier to pretend to be Cold than to be BOLD. More courage, usually, is required to adopt a BOLD attitude.

11. Hilarity often follows WIN
(Wit). — Wit sometimes causes laughter; but it more often causes a smile or a chuckle rather than hilarity. Hilarity is best described as pleasurable excitement, which often follows a WIN.

13. A badly built hut may soon start to LEAK (Lean). — The word soon goes rather far with Lean; in due course it might start to collapse, but not soon.
LEAK isn't quite so serious, and a slight defect might be responsible.

14. The fact that a runner is almost exhausted is usually obvious from his FACE (Pace). — Usually exaggerates with Pace;
he might well keep up till the last possible moment. The strain he is under is much more likely to be revealed in his FACE.

15. We sometimes see the ing in mind the number of big Winners in all fields of endeavor, their photographs are published much more frequently than sometimes. The photograph of a big DINNER is more likely sometimes to be published. The dinner need not warrant the printing of a picture—words tell the story well enough.

DOWN

1. Knowing that a runner was LAST in a race usually gives us an idea of his ability (Fast). —
Fast doesn't help much; a race is a contest of speed and the runners are expected to be Fast.
LAST supplies additional information as to his ability, usually.

3. The fact that a man has GOOD teeth is usually very noticeable when he smiles (Gold). — Usually and very rule out Gold;
he is unlikely to have many, and they might be far back in his mouth. GOOD makes an accurate statement of sentence.

4. A person who has been badly DECEIVED is usually foolish to go back to the same people again (Received). — Received is open to question; there are many possible reasons for a bad reception by others. A person who has been badly DECEIVED is well advised to steer clear of the people who deceived him.

6. The popularity of LASS with the opposite sex often depends largely on good looks (Lads). — LASS is better here. Boys are much more concerned with outward appearances. So far as Lads is concerned, girls are more likely to consider other aspects, such as social standing, behavior, character, etc.

9. A person who OWNS a lot of money usually pays heavily for doing so (Owes). — Heavily is too strong and usually too frequent to justify Owes; interest on a large loan might well be low.
OWNS is more to the point; his tax load is heavy.

10. A conscientious master has to take a lot of trouble to teach a DANCE properly (Dunce). — Dunce is very open to question; any teacher, conscientious or otherwise, has to take a lot of trouble to teach a stupid pupil properly. Conscientious and properly indicate DANCE.

11. As a rule, women are more likely than men to be WILY is an argument (Wild). — As a rule fits better with WILY; women seem to have an uncanny way of going off at a tangent when it suits them. Wild is much less true; at times of argument they can be very cool and composed!

12. Disappointment in love sometimes makes even a sunny-natured person MOAN (Mean). — MOAN is better here, if only because of the contrast between his MOANing and his normal, sunny nature. Sometimes over-states with Mean.

Weather-Guard For Your Face

By Bonnie and Reba Churchill

CAN you answer this beauty riddle? What goes everywhere with you . . . can never be hid . . . and stands up against wind, rain or snow? The answer is your face. Unlike the rest of your body, it can't go undercover when the mercury zeros down. As Barbara Eden illustrates, whether you're on the ski slopes or a wintry street, your complexion needs a weather-guard. Never go outdoors without the protection of lotion, foundation base, or chap-preventive cream.

THE FINGER TEST reveals if the weather has left its imprint on your skin. When face is free of make-up, use your index and third finger to scribe a series of circles on cheeks, forehead and chin. Do they feel slightly scratchy, dry and rough to the touch? Cold climates, combined with overheated rooms, are the complexion villains. Even that hot bath that seems to warm the body tends to wash away much of the remaining facial oil.

REPLACE THIS LOSS of oil with a nightly creaming. Most experts agree cold cream does its maximum beauty aid the first 10 minutes it is on the face. They suggest tussling it off prior to bedtime. Barbara, who stars in 'Columbia Pictures' 'The New Interns,' occasionally applies the same creamy lotion used for tanning to prevent windburn and to keep skin supple and spring smooth.

Once Just a Comic, He Finds Life Complicated

uction firms and briefed them on the economic facts of life.

"THERE'S NO reason an actor should knock himself out for five or six good years, then wind up broke," Thomas explained. "When Joey Bishop wanted to do a live variety show, I talked him out of it. I told him, 'Why settle for a straight dollar when you can put it on film and watch the residuals add up?' Joey took my advice. He did a situation comedy. Now he's set for life."

Next on Thomas' agenda may be a merger involving his firm and Hollywood's other talented-owned powerhouse, Lucille Ball's Desilu Studios. Despite persistent rumors that such a deal is in the works, Thomas sidesteps the issue this way: "If there's going to be a merger, Lucy and I are the ones who will make it. So far, we haven't discussed the matter. Until we do—it's just a lot of talk."

At present, Thomas is completing the last few episodes of the family series he began 11 eventful years ago. Next season, he'll star in five NBC-TV specials, make a limited number of guest appearances (mostly on shows in which he has a financial stake) and spend a few weeks each entertaining at two Nevada resorts. The rest of his time will be taken up with budgets, auditions, production schedules, sales meetings and myriad other business details.

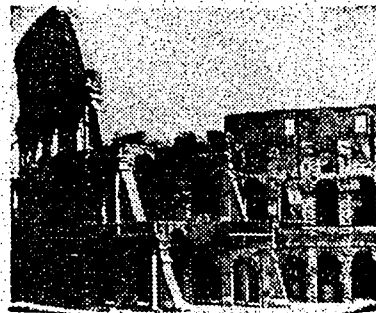

"I never meant to get this involved," he confessed candidly. "One day, I was making a nice living as a comic, no headaches, no problems. And the next, it seems, I was loaded with responsibilities. It just happened."

"Don't misunderstand. I'm not complaining about success. I'm a lucky guy. But there are times, when the pressure builds up, when I'd like to crawl out from behind the desk, get into my tux, and run away to some night club. Get on stage, tell a few jokes, hear people laugh. Then have a big steak and go home to bed, without a worry in the world. It'd feel like a million bucks."

Perhaps this is the difference between the two Danny Thomases. One wants to feel like a million dollars. The other would rather take that million in cash.

SPOT OF FAME —
GUESS THE NAME

One of the last vestiges of the glory that was Rome, for centuries invulnerable to earthquakes and the bombardments of armies and war, now seems in danger of collapse from the onslaughts of time and weather — plus the continuous vibrations set up by the intense motor traffic swirling around its base.

Correctly called the Amphitheatrum Flavium, it was begun by Vespasian in the center of Nero's villa, on low ground which that questionable gentleman had used as a lake.

It was first used in 80 A.D. by Titus for sporting events, track competitions, gladiatorial duels, combats between men and beasts and martyring of Christians. Occasionally it was flooded and sham naval battles, in miniature, were enacted there.

The three-story arched facade is of travertine-lined stone masonry, with vaulting arches and the inner bowl constructed of concrete. Apparently the largest amphitheater in the Roman world, its marble seats would hold about 50,000 spectators.

Furniture Talk

By Lavern Lawrenz

SLEEP occupies, for most of us, a third of our lives . . . which means that of all the furnishings in our homes, the one we use most is the mattress on our bed, along with its companion box spring.

That makes the selection of a good mattress and box spring one of your most important purchases for the home, not just because of hours of daily use, but because it contributes so much toward your feeling of health and vitality coming from restful sleep.

A sleep set is just about the only purchase you make in home furnishings where you need to be concerned only with service. Appearance has little if anything to do with it. You want a quality ticking because it will last longer . . . but the pretty pattern isn't any reason for buying.

Mattress comfort, and the choice of a good innerspring or foam rubber mattress, is largely an individual matter. Many experts recommend mattresses more toward the firm side than the overly soft, but a light person might prefer the softer mattress.

Your best bet is to stop in at our bedding department. You'll find a full selection of sizes and types in quality Restonic sleep sets. Test them for comfort, and remember: a good mattress and box spring are one of the best investments you can make. All Restonic Sleep Sets guaranteed in writing and also carry a 30-day Free Trial. Your satisfaction guaranteed.

BIG GEORGE!

by Virgil Partch

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who are building a new house or thinking of buying a new cook stove or range:

May I suggest that they look into the possibilities of buying two apartment-size kitchen stoves or ranges and setting them side by side? They take up no more room than one large range.

This provides many more burners than one range does. Also two ovens!

It's surprising how many times both ovens will be going at once.

Example: during the holidays, or when you are having company, you might have a turkey in one (which usually takes up the space of the entire oven) and then where are you going to put those baked potatoes, hot rolls and apple pie?

I also find when baking a big dinner it sometimes is necessary to have one oven on low heat (for the meat) and the other oven hot for baking bread, etc.

At least it is worth a woman's time to look around and compare prices and see if she can get two apartment-size stoves for the price of one large one. I did.

Drue Lytle

DEAR HELOISE:
When grating a soft cheese . . . first, lightly butter the hand grater. The cheese won't gum up on the grater or stick to it.

Mrs. James Clouston

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's what to do when shredded coconut gets hard:

Cut an apple in half and lay one half of the apple on top of the small jar of coconut, with the peel next to the coconut. Leave this a few days and the coconut will be usable again.

Mrs. J. S. Forester

DEAR HELOISE:
When cutting blossoms from thorny bushes such as roses and bougainvillea, did you know that you can use a spring-type clothespin to hold the stem you want to cut?

Snip off the stem, squeeze the clothespin and drop in the flower basket.

A Reader

DEAR HELOISE:
May I offer a cooking hint? Try saving the excess fat on pork chops and freezing it! The rendered fat is something very special to brown meat in, especially meat balls. This is a must for good spaghetti sauce.

Mrs. Thomas Duffy

DEAR HELOISE:
I would like to pass a few tips along about canned biscuits.

I have found that if I place them in the pan and put them in a warm place to rise for a few minutes before baking, they turn out much better.

Also, if you roll an uncooked biscuit very thin, it is then ready to be used as an individual pizza, the crust for a fried pie or (when baked on a griddle) a flour tortilla.

These have really become work-and-time-savers for me, since my husband is very fond of Mexican food.

Nancy Harris

DEAR HELOISE:
Being a devoted mother of one-year-old twins . . . may I tell you that they have their first wagon!

I tried to get them to kneel in it when riding, but it hurt their knees.

My husband and I took a bathroom mat and put it in the bottom of the wagon. This seems to absorb all the bumps, besides keeping their corduroy pants from wearing out. The kids love it.

Diana Hensley

DEAR HELOISE:
For your readers who might have trouble zipping up the back of a dress . . . put a safety pin on one end of a narrow ribbon and fasten the pin to the tongue of the zipper. Hold ribbon and pull up.

Jessie Weihe

STORE A BOARD

DEAR HELOISE:
I keep my breadboard in a pillowcase alongside my refrigerator. Thus . . . it is always clean and handy when I need it.

Mrs. Homer Nelson

DEAR HELOISE:
Have you ever torn your ironing board cover in the midst of a big ironing? I patch mine with color-fast iron-on tape patches. It gets me through that big ironing job. This even works on silicone covers.

M. M. Frey

DEAR HELOISE:
When using my flour sifter I always put a little foil pan (from those frozen potpies) under the sifter, so that when I set it down the flour left in the sifter doesn't fall on the table. Saves an extra cleanup job.

M. M. L.

CLEARANCE SALE

DEAR HELOISE:
A real way to have fun and get rid of accumulated "junk" in closets and basements is to have a backyard rummage sale and coffee hour among the neighbors!

Marian O. Hamilton

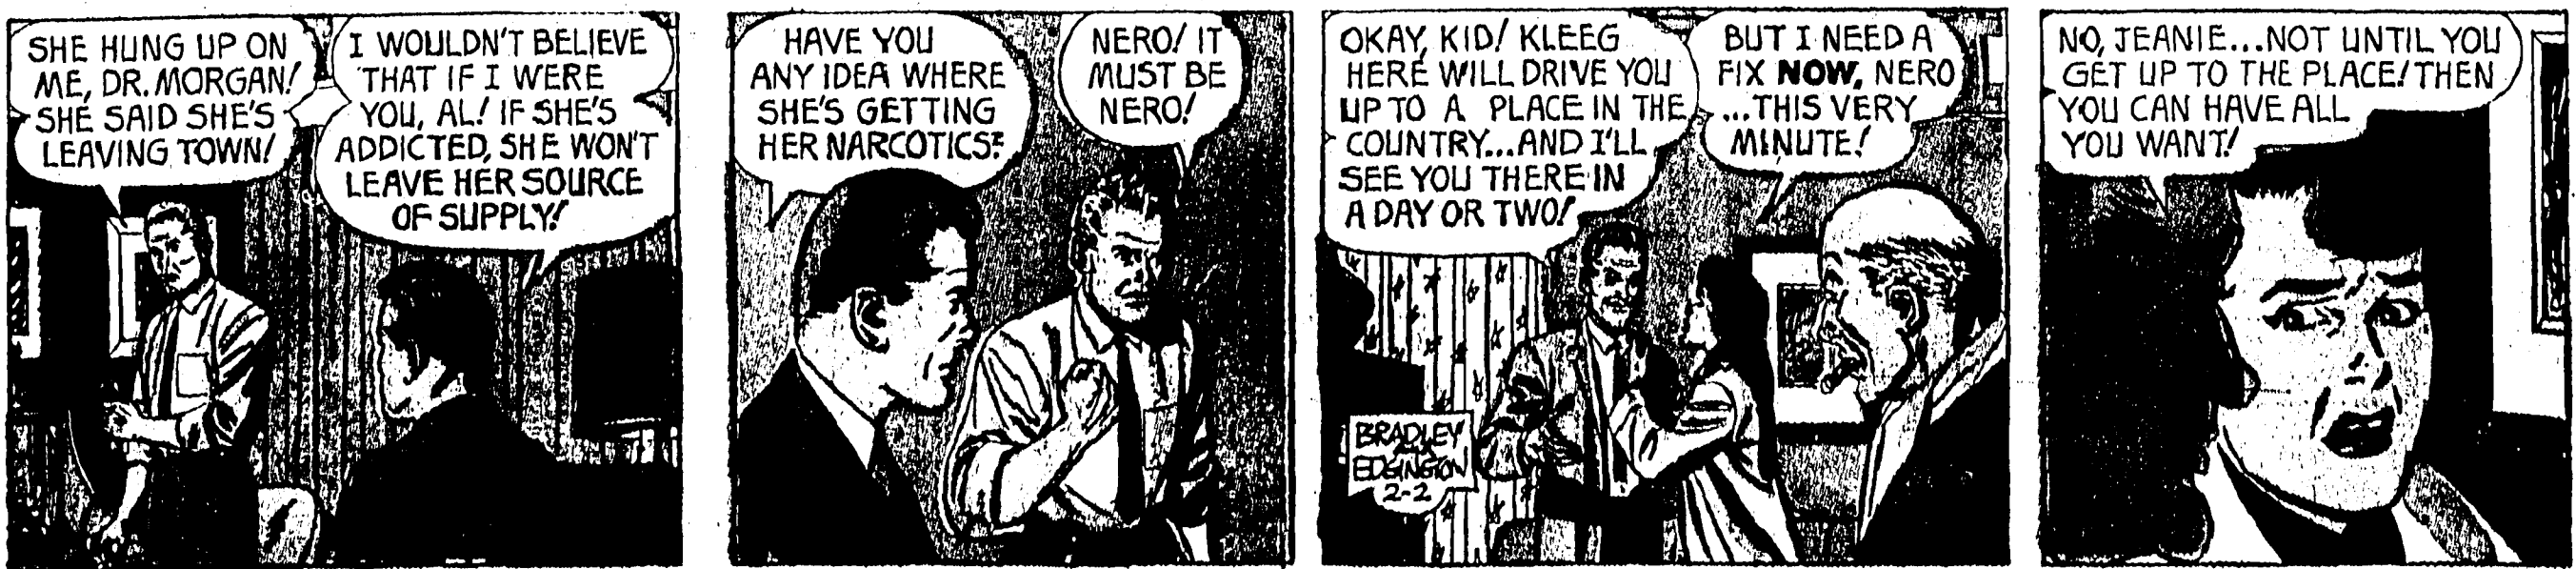

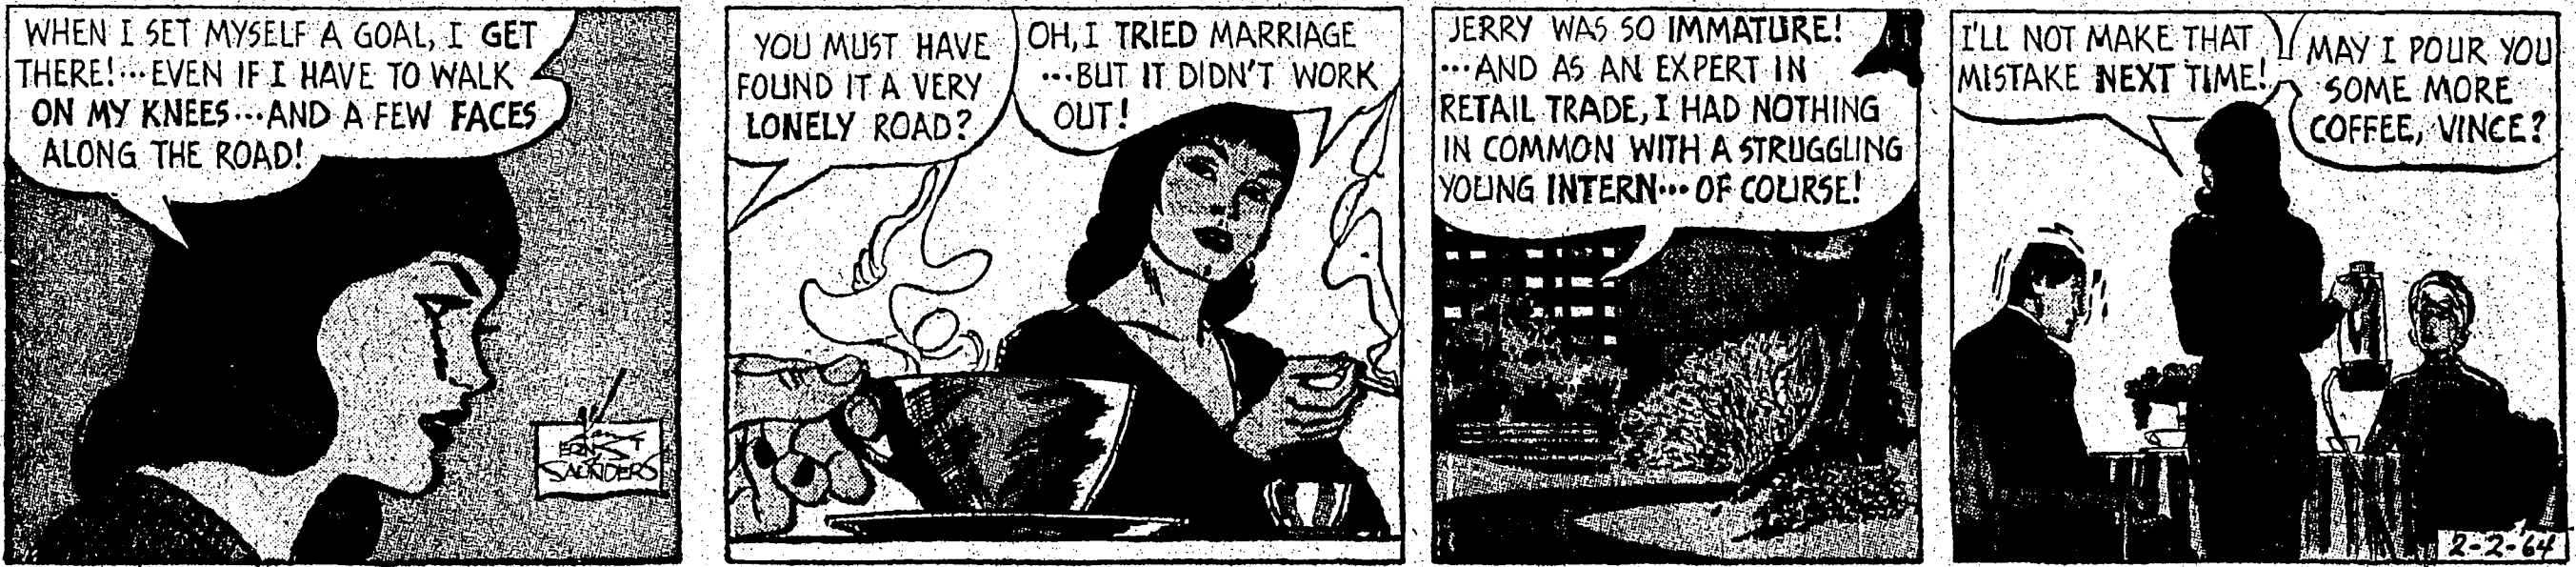

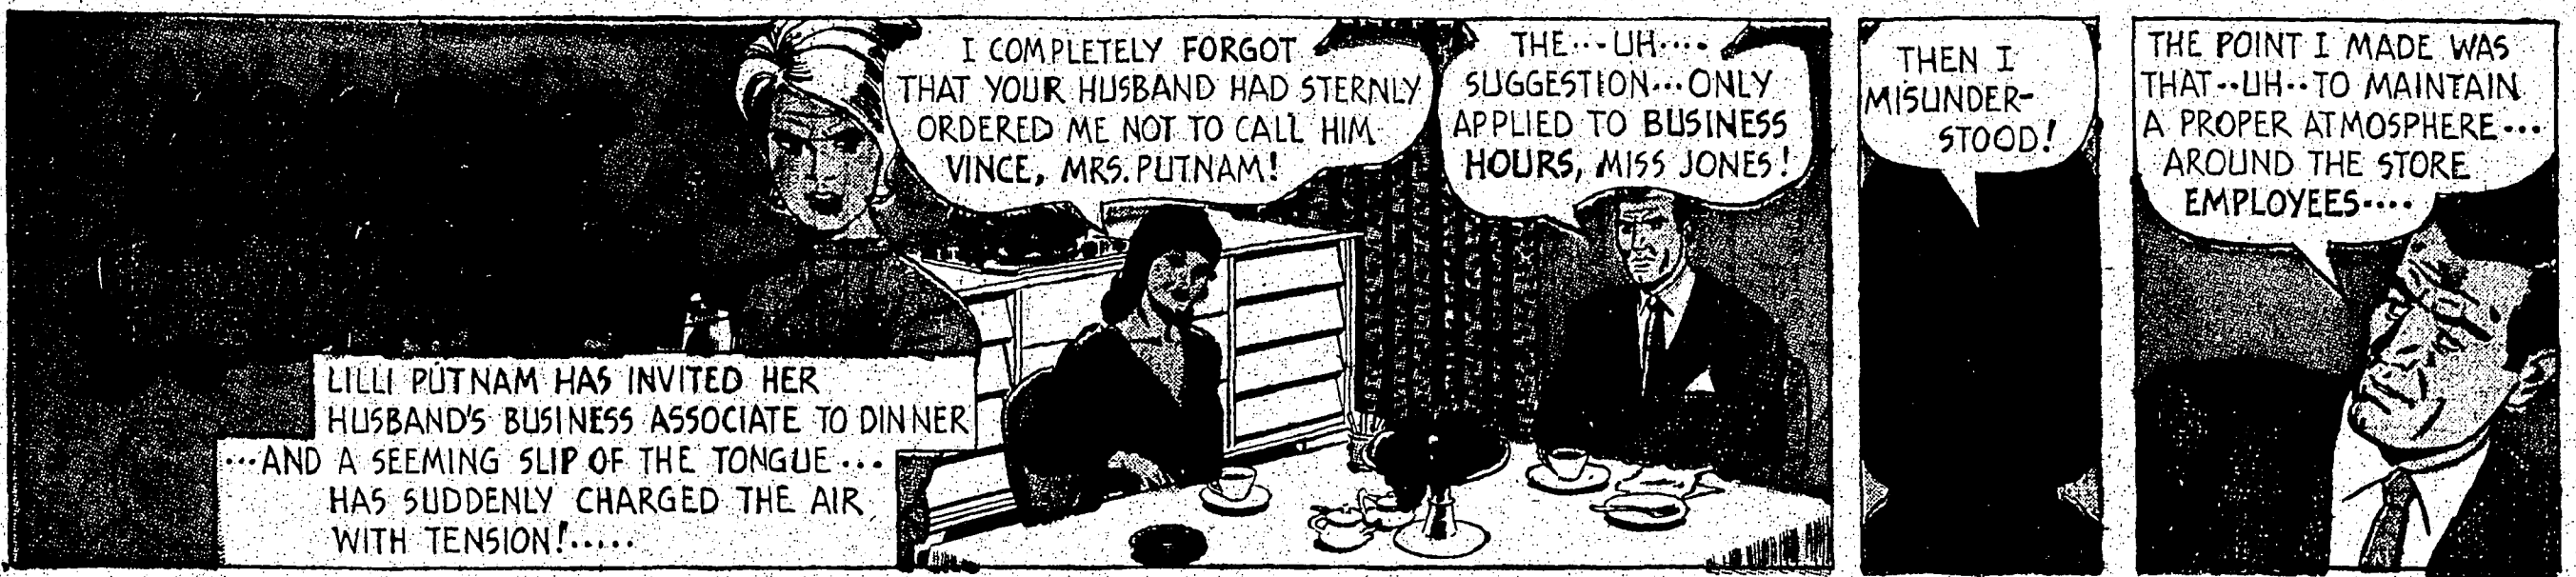

DEAR GALS:
This woman is really a brain!

What you consider junk might be exactly what your neighbor is in need of. So . . . when you clean out your closets, garage and kitchen cupboards, pile it all in the garage or porch, then invite all the gals over for coffee. Be real tricky about it though . . .

Ask all the gals when they are going to have their sales, because they might have something you need.

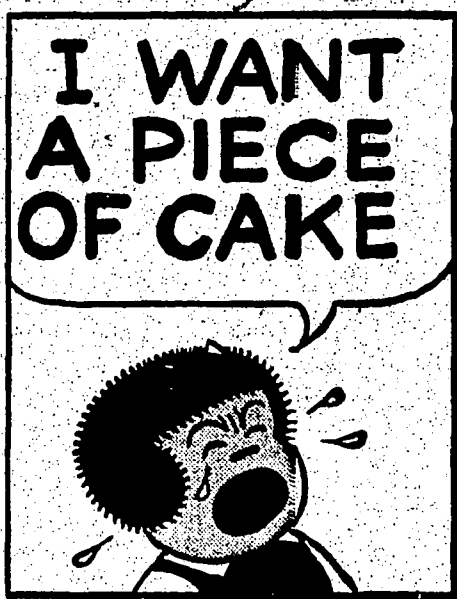

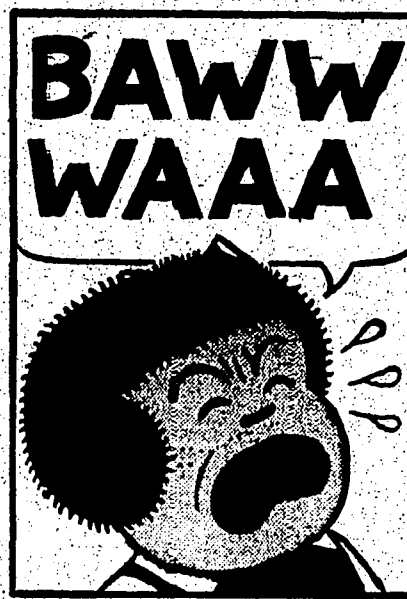

Heloise

This feature is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper.
