SMILING GRANDFATHER . . . Flying grandfather Max Conrad flashes a big smile as he landed in New Orleans Sunday afternoon after setting a long distance flight record for small planes on Saturday. Conrad flew from Capetown, South Africa to St. Petersburg, Fla., non-stop to claim an excess of the 7,688-mile non-stop record for light planes. His original destination was New Orleans but the 61-year-old pilot decided to land at St. Petersburg when he thought he was running low on fuel. (AP Photofax)

Conrad Letter Missing

Minor Snafus On Record Hop

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Things continue to slip just a bit away for Max Conrad, the flying grandfather who has had his share of minor snafus lately.

Conrad, who is 61, landed here Sunday to deliver a letter from the mayor of Capetown, South Africa, to the mayor of New Orleans.

Alas, the letter was nowhere to be found.

By that point, Conrad was resigned to the small jinx which has pursued him recently.

"I'll mail it to you when I find it," he promised Mayor Victor Schiro.

The veteran flier's trial ended by error started on his planned non-stop flight from Capetown to New Orleans. He was out to break his own record for light plane long distance flights.

His first attempt was aborted

The report said the East German guards spotted the man shortly after dawn and opened fire with submachine guns. He lay motionless in the snow for some time before the East Germans carried off the body.

More Than 550 Die in Holiday Road Mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
More than 550 persons lost their lives in highway accidents during the three-day Christmas weekend.

The toll was well below the 1955 record of 609 deaths, but within the range predicted by the National Safety Council.

The final tabulation had 555 persons killed on the highways during the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday. The safety council had estimated that between 550 and 650 holiday travelers could perish.

Only five states — Alaska, Hawaii, Maine, Montana and Washington — reported no fatalities. In at least five states, holiday accidents helped set 12-month records.

While traffic deaths mounted at an alarming fast pace during the early hours of the holiday period, they slackened off during the closing hours, despite the homeward rush in many areas in fog, rain and snow.

Multiple deaths pushed the toll upward in several states.

11 Dead in Minnesota Accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Eleven Minnesotans died in highway accidents over the Christmas holiday weekend, pushing the state toll to a record 820. The old record was 801 last year.

Four of the weekend crashes took two lives each.

An Excelsior man and a former East Grand Forks woman died in out-of-state accidents.

A collision in the Twin Cities suburb of St. Anthony took two lives Sunday night. Mrs. Irene Buelow, 43, died in the crash; Dr. Henry Kvitrud, 78, died in a hospital five hours later. Both were from Minneapolis.

A car-train crash north of Albert Lea took the lives Sunday of Mrs. Helmer Hendrickson, 60, and her son Rodney, 18, of Hartland, Minn. Another son, James, 26, who was driving, was injured.

In other accidents: Stephen J. Fischer, 19, rural New Ulm, died Sunday of injuries suffered in a Saturday night collision near Courtland. LeRoy Holm, 25, rural New Ulm, died in crash.

Robert G. Jacobson, 26, Kirnball, killed Saturday in collision with truck near Buffalo.

Chester O. Bishop, 46, Denver, Colo., and Germond Homme, 63, Evansville, died Saturday night when Bishop's car skidded into ditch at Evansville.

Priscilla Ann Poppler, 22, St. Paul, killed in Saturday collision in West St. Paul.

Nickolas Hubert, 2, Brown-ton, killed in car-train crash at Brown-ton Friday night.

Three victims of a Sunday crash near Braceville, Ill., included Helen A. Gangelhof of St. Louis, formerly of East Grand Forks, Minn. Other victims were Judith Antonick of Brown Deer, Wis., and Charles Hunt of Joliet, Ill.

Arthur R. Anderson, Excelsior, was fatally injured in one-car crash near Pattonsburg, Mo. Saturday. He was retired owner of the Excelsior Credit Bureau.

MOTHER, SON DIE IN WRECK . . . Mrs. Helmer Hendrickson and her son Rodney, 18, of Hartland, Minn., were killed Sunday when their car was struck by a Chicago and North Western freight train at Hartland, north of Albert Lea. Another son, James, survived. (AP Photofax)

Heavy mountain snows and gusty coastal winds lashed the northern California flood area Sunday at the end of a week of unprecedented torrential rains, adding to the suffering of hundreds still marooned and hampering relief and rescue work.

Jumping Nurse Brings Help to Wounded Men

Paratroop Nurse
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam has its own Florence Nightingales of the air, a platoon of hardy girl paratroopers trained to jump with the troops in combat.

They are all trained nurses. Their talents were demonstrated in a recent exhibition when they leaped out of lumbering C-47s high over Saigon and landed in the Saigon River.

They were right on target.

Dragging waterproof medical kits behind them, they swam to the river bank and were soon administering first aid to several paratroopers who were injured in the jump.

But not before they showed they were women first. They attended to such feminine requisites as lipstick and combing their hair before tending to first aid.

No doubt they were working on the premise that a wounded soldier wants a nurse as beautiful as she is competent.

16,300 Homes Hit

Colder Weather Brakes Raging Western Rivers

put a brake on rivers that had rampaged from the mountains to the Pacific Ocean in the hardest hit area — Oregon and northern California.

More snow in the mountains and wind and rain below were forecast for today.

The Columbia dropped enough in Washington to permit start of cleanup work. The flood threat appeared over in Idaho but the little town of St. Joe, population 75, in the Panhandle, still was without electricity. In Nevada the Truckee River withdrew its threat to Reno.

California counted 19 flood dead with the confirmation Sunday that four had drowned when a helicopter plunged into the Eel River 40 miles south of Eureka Saturday. Seven died in another California 'copter crash last Tuesday north of Eureka.

Oregon reported 18 deaths from flood action.

The Red Cross listed 16,300 families as suffering major losses to homes, businesses or farm in Oregon, California, Idaho and Washington.

No official estimate of damage was available, but rough guesses by leaders of relief and rescue operations put it at close to $1 billion.

Five-hundred persons — miners, loggers and their families — were marooned in several communities along the Klamath and Salmon rivers at the northern tip of California.

"They're beginning to run short of food," reported William Sowle, Civil Defense director at Yreka. A storm that dropped two feet of snow on Eureka Sunday halted helicopter flights in the area. The prediction was for continued snow today.

About 100 passengers on two Greyhound buses found themselves stranded by highway washouts last Monday after a lunch stop at the Terrace Gardens resort 10 miles south of Garberville on U.S. 101 in California's Humboldt County and about half of them still were awaiting rescue today.

Some walked or were lifted by helicopters to Garberville and others were flown to Eureka farther north. Those who stayed spent Christmas crowded into the resort's motel quarters.

"We were a little cramped," said Bill Flynn, a Greyhound representative who was among the marooned, "and while we weren't starving there was only enough food for us to eat twice a day — at 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. We didn't get fat."

Food shortage was the problem throughout the northwestern corner of California. Slick Airways has flown 320,000 pounds of foodstuffs to Eureka and scheduled another flight today with 200,000 pounds aboard a Constellation.

Six C-119 cargo planes were to fly today from McClellan Air Force Base near Sacramento to Arcata near Eureka with 21,000 pounds of telephone repair equipment, three fire trucks and four utility vehicles.

Pacific Telephone said its facilities in northern California were damaged to the extent of almost $1 million during the Christmas week storm. It had about 550 repairmen at work on the 24-hour-a-day job of restoring telephone communications.

In Del Norte County at the north end of the 1,200-mile-long California coast about 3,000 persons either lost their homes completely or sustained major damage, Red Cross representative Karl Mahler reported. The relief agency moved a majority to emergency shelters, but many persons chose to stick it out in their damaged homes, Mahler said.

"We're sending in meals," he said. The reluctant ones may yet have to move out. "They have no good drinking water, no sanitation, no heat."

In Oregon, the State Board of Health began getting queries on how to prevent typhoid fever. The board said it had plenty of vaccine on hand. The Oregon State Police reported their operations had returned to normal.

COAST GUARD TO THE RESCUE

The captain and three members of the crew are removed from the badly listing freighter S. S. Smith Victory in a long boat from the Coast Guard cutter Rockaway in the South Atlantic last week. Earlier 34 other crew members and four dead were taken from the ship following a rupture of a seam and the shifting of its grain cargo in heavy seas. The ship sank yesterday while being towed to Bermuda by the British tug Marina. (U.S. Coast Guard Photo via AP Photofax)

Viet Forces Overrun Red Position, Kill 67

(Editor's Note: Free-lance photographer James Pickereil, wounded by the Viet Cong in November, was assigned by The Associated Press to accompany Vietnamese troops who overrun a major Viet Cong guerrilla position Sunday. Here is his report.)

By JAMES PICKEREIL
DAI NGAI, South Viet Nam

(AP) — Government forces overran a major Viet Cong position Sunday, killing at least 67 guerrillas and capturing 10 others as well as a large stock of weapons.

It was one of the most significant government successes in the past year. U.S. officers believed that the position, 75 miles southwest of Saigon, was a Viet Cong zone command headquarters. The Communists have divided South Viet Nam into seven zones.

The government forces suffered 11 dead and 42 wounded. Among the wounded were seven U.S. Army helicopter crewmen hit by small-arms fire.

(Ten other Americans were reported wounded in other actions in the Mekong delta Sunday. Two were reported in serious condition.)

Capt. Robert W. Butler of Frederick, Md., who went into action at Dai Ngai, said of the government success: "This is as good as Christmas present as I could have wished for."

A radio he had carried on his back was smashed by a machine-gun bullet. He was not hurt.

The attack began when militiamen in the rice land hamlet beside the Mekong River called for help after exchanging fire with the guerrillas.

Thirty-six helicopters, half of them armed with rockets and heavy machine guns, dropped on top of the Viet Cong position, discharging two battalions in seven quick waves. Air force planes poured bombs and cannon fire into the area. About 650 government troops took part.

Viet Cong strength was estimated at two battalions under the command of a major general. It was not known whether he was among the dead.

Government troops were still recovering bodies today as sporadic fighting continued.

Los Angeles Priest Silenced On Racism Going Into Exile

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest says he is going into "self-imposed exile" from the Los Angeles archdiocese "as the strongest protest I can make" because "I was ordered to maintain a silence on racism."

The Rev. John V. Coffield, 49, called his departure "a solution to an impasse between my cardinal (James Francis Cardinal McIntyre) and myself."

The cardinal was not available for comment.

Father Coffield said in a farewell statement to his parishioners that he was ordered to take a five-month "enforced vacation" from California earlier this year because he had spoken out against controversial Proposition 13.

The proposition, upheld by voters last November, amended the state constitution to prohibit any abridgement of an individual's choice to whom he might sell or rent a home or apartment. In effect, it nullified state antidiscrimination housing laws.

"Scarcely anyone knew of the shocking way I was ordered out of California after I had spoken out against Proposition 13," Father Coffield said in his statement.

"I was ordered out on June 22nd and was not allowed back until November 15th," he said. "I was hopeful that silent acceptance of the injustice to me and my parishioners would help defeat the proposition. I was so wrong. I should have fought it openly."

"I want to have no part in the continuing silence and lack of repentance which is daily driving away many excellent people."

"On Saturday, Nov. 14th, I was ordered to maintain a silence on racism. I chose instead a self-imposed exile from the diocese as a gesture of protest against, and rather than be a part of, the continuing evil of silence.

"I also accept my exile as a solution to an impasse between my cardinal and myself."

Emil Seliga, a layman and spokesman for the priest, said the priest would go to Chicago for a period of three to six years to do missionary work, particularly among Latin Americans.

Father Coffield, a priest in Los Angeles since his ordination 24 years ago, has been pastor of the Ascension Catholic church for three years.

Seliga said that during the enforced "vacation" referred to by Father Coffield, the priest took courses toward a doctorate at the University of Arizona and worked with Roman Catholic agencies in Chicago.

The principal organization with which he will work in Chicago will be the Inter-American Cooperative Institute, Seliga said. The priest's leave officially begins Jan. 1, he added.

"A Buddhist monk could use self-cremation as the strongest form of protest," the priest said. "It isn't open to me."

"I deeply love the Church that is trying to silence me," Father Coffield said. "I want to be obedient to her."

Winona-Made Space Material Passes Test

Fiberite Corp., a manufacturer of specialized plastic moulding compounds for aerospace and commercial use, today revealed the successful testing of a rocket exit nozzle fabricated with new materials and techniques developed by the company.

The test was the first in the current series of Skybolt missile test firings being conducted at Edwards Air Force Base in California to evaluate new or improved materials and processes which offer a high degree of reliability for the large U.S. aerospace program.

THE AIR FORCE Rocket Propulsion Laboratory at Edwards Air Base reported the Skybolt missile firing and the Fiberite-produced exit nozzle performance as being completely successful.

Estimates by Fiberite officials indicate that the new "Snap-Cure" method of fabrication will result in 20 to 30 percent savings due to the increased reliability of "Snap-Cure" produced components.

Under test conditions the "Snap-Cure" materials showed significant improvements in thermal stability and degradation rates over conventional materials.

The new Fiberite-developed technique of missile component fabrication reduces the high cost of manufacturing large missile parts through the elimination of several complex operations that are required when the parts are produced either by press molded or pressure vessel curing methods.

The "Snap-Cure" process consists of a method of simultaneously wrapping and curing the material as the part is being produced.

AS A RESULT of the successful Dec. 14 Skybolt test firing, Fiberite has a new, proven material and technique of fabrication that will provide a high degree of reliability at greatly reduced production costs, a company official said.

Fiberite's development of the "Snap-Cure" process was prompted by a request from the Air Force for a method of fabricating large rocket motor nozzles without the use of expensive auxiliary pressure vessels.

According to John E. David, executive vice president of Fiberite, the successful new technique will be made available to other companies that will be fabricating the hardware for the large U.S. rocket motor program. Fiberite will supply other materials used in the "Snap-Cure" process.

The new process will have aerospace as well as military applications.

Police Check 3 Hit-Run Crashes

Four accidents, three of them hit-run, caused more than $375 damage in Winona over the weekend.

A collision at Hamilton and King streets Saturday at 12:53 p.m. caused more than $250 of the damage.

GAYLAN M. Meier, 17, 1129 W. Mark St., was driving west on King Street, and Eugene S. Kerrigan, Rochester, was driving south on Hamilton Street when their two cars collided in the intersection.

Miss Meier told police she thought she had time to get through the intersection ahead of Kerrigan. Kerrigan told police that he was unable to stop in time to avoid the collision.

Damage was more than $200 to the right side and rear of the Meier vehicle, and more than $50 to the front of the Kerrigan car. Patrolmen Rodney J. Pellowski and Milton Ronnenberg investigated.

THE FIRST hit-run case occurred sometime Saturday, Virginia J. Senne, Minneapolis, owner of a car parked at the east curb of Washington Street, 75 feet south of 4th Street, discovered the damage Sunday at 9:45 a.m.

He told police that more than $50 damage was done to the left front of his car. Blue paint had flaked off onto his car, apparently from the hit-run vehicle, Senne said.

A second hit-run incident occurred Sunday between 2 and 3:45 p.m. in the Westgate parking lot. Anthony Kammerer, 553 Olmstead St., parked his car in the lot while he went bowling. When he returned, there was about $25 damage to the left front fender of his car, he told police.

A THIRD such incident occurred between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday in a restaurant parking lot at 3rd and Huff streets.

Danny Forstrom, 17, 1069 W. Howard St., told police that he returned to his car in the afternoon to find more than $50 damage to its left rear fender. Police are investigating each incident.

Hoosier Ridge Accident Causes Injuries to Two

WEAVER, Minn. (Special) — Two area young people apparently escaped serious injury in a one-car accident on Hoosier Ridge about 2 1/2 miles west of Weaver at 1 a.m. Sunday.

Bonnie Staudacher, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wells Staudacher, Hoosier Ridge, reportedly was a patient at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Wabasha, several days. John Hager, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hager, rural Kellogg, received cuts on the face requiring stitches.

The Wabasha County sheriff's office is investigating the accident, which happened near the C. P. Maringer farm.

Lake City Phone Hearing Jan. 8

LAKE CITY, Minn. (Special) — A hearing has been scheduled by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission at the Lake City Hall Jan. 8 at 10 a.m. on the application of Pioneer Telephone Co. to increase rates.

The company proposes to raise one-party business phones at Lake City from $8 to $9.50 monthly and one-party residence service from $4.95 to $5.50.

At its Zumbro Falls exchange, it proposes to raise one-party business phones from $5.25 to $6 and one-party residential, $4.45 to $4.70.

When extended service becomes available from Lake City to Millville and Zumbro Falls, and from Zumbro Falls to Millville, Lake City and Rochester, the company asks to increase one-party business phones from $8 to $10 monthly and one-party residence phones from $4.95 to $5.50 in Lake City.

In Zumbro Falls the increases asked are from $5.25 to $12.50 for one-party business and from $4.45 to $8 for one-party residential. Lower rates are asked for party lines, which will run to 10-party service in rural areas.

A Lewiston man whose driver's license was confiscated Dec. 21 by Sheriff George Fort pleaded guilty Saturday to driving with no valid driver's license in Lewiston.

Sheriff Fort had taken the license by an order from the state. However, Prigge was using a duplicate Saturday night.

Pilot Killed Instantly, Coroner Says

Cal Brown, the 40-year-old pilot of a light private plane which plowed into the ground on a farm near Nodine late Wednesday afternoon, died almost instantly in the crash, Dr. Robert Tweedy, Winona County coroner, said today.

Brown remained strapped in his seat. Injuries were numerous.

Brown, from Rosemont, Ill., near Des Plaines, was en route from Roselle, Ill., to St. Cloud when he radioed the La Crosse Flight Service station during poor flying weather, and reported instrument failure. It was the last word heard from Brown.

THE WRECKAGE was sighted Saturday during a Civil Air Patrol search.

Winona County Sheriff George Fort, his deputies and the Minnesota Highway Patrol were called to the scene. The sheriff's department guarded the plane Saturday evening until arrival of Federal Aeronautics Agency and Civil Aeronautics Board authorities who investigated Sunday.

The plane apparently hit the top of a knoll before plunging into the ground. One wheel and the plane's propeller were found about 100 feet away from the plane.

ROY EVETT, communications chief of the Winona Civil Defense organization, said the Civil Defense Citizens Emergency network was set up with stations here, at La Crosse, Onalaska and Holmen.

The Winona unit was helping with receiving and sending messages to the CAP and ground search parties.

Evett said there were three reports checked out by the CAP. One was from Rochester where a woman had reported hearing a low flying plane which sounded as if it were in trouble; a second was from Bangor, Wis., where a party reported sighting a low flying plane Thursday evening following the railroad tracks, and the third was the actual sighting of the downed plane.

Through communications from the planes to the CAP rescue unit at Max Conrad Field, the Civil Defense radio network, and the sheriff's office, ground rescue units were directed to the scene.

THE CAP rescue unit, from Waseca, had departed there Friday at midnight. Evett said a total of 17 planes participated in the search from Winona. The search also was being conducted in Wisconsin and Illinois.

The plane flown by Brown was owned by the Elgin Flying Co., Inc., Elgin, Ill.

Hoveland Won't File for Council

Howard Hoveland, a public school instructor, said today he would not file for 3rd Ward alderman because the positions would be incompatible.

Hoveland, who lives at 68 W. Wabasha St., said he has been so advised by City Attorney George M. Robertson Jr., who had asked an attorney general's opinion. A written opinion has not yet been obtained but the attorney general's office advised Robertson informally last week by telephone.

Last spring 300 voters signed petitions asking Hoveland's appointment following the resignation of A. Del Schneider. Ald. Harold Thiewes was named to the position by the City Council.

The 3rd Ward term expiring next April is that of Ald. Clarence Tribell.

David F. Wynne

David F. Wynne, 39, 556 W. Sanborn St., this morning filed for re-election to a two-year term as director-at-large on the Winona Board of Education.

A native of Minneapolis who has been a resident of Winona since 1955, Wynne is vice president in charge of administration for Bay State Milling Co. He was elected to the school board in 1963.

Wynne was graduated from Southwest High School, Minneapolis, received his bachelor of arts degree in economics from Amherst College in 1949 and a master's degree in business administration from the Harvard University School of Business in 1951. He is a veteran of World War II.

The Wynnes have four daughters, 5 to 13.

He is a member of First Congregational Church, where he's serving as a deacon, and a former president of Madison School PTA.

Loss $35,000 In Arcadia Fire

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — Ben Baucht, owner of the Baucht Motor Sales Garage, estimates his loss in a fire that virtually destroyed the building and contents Sunday at $35,000.

He said about 75 percent is covered by insurance.

BEN AND his son, Wayne, 22, home on vacation from American Motors, Kenosha, were standing at the front of the building looking at a 1965 Plymouth when Baucht said he heard a noise like tin cans tipping over. He looked to the rear of the garage and saw flames near the furnace.

He put the fire out with an extinguisher but when flames flared again, he called the fire department. He discovered the fuel line was broken.

Fortunately he had only about 25 gallons in the oil tank that feeds the furnace, otherwise the homes of Mrs. Jennie Theisen and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Filla, on each side of the garage, might have been burned, too. The volunteer fire department, called at 12:15 p.m., contained the flames within the building.

Baucht said all his tools and equipment were burned. The brick walls are standing but there are holes in the roof which firemen used for their hoses.

A metal box in the office, holding cash, was not burned.

THE STRUCTURE is about 35 years old. In 1963 Baucht remodeled the interior. This year he replaced the garage door, built a new chimney, installed new wiring, and replaced the flues and motor in the boiler and furnace.

The new car and three used cars ready for sale were saved but a 1957 car was destroyed.

Wayne, overcome by smoke, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was a patient until 5:30 p.m.

Goodview Man Crawls Out of Sinking Car

A Goodview man, Leon Bronk Jr., crawled safely out of his car shortly before it plunged through the ice of Airport Lake Sunday afternoon.

Bronk, who had been fishing, was on his way home about 3 p.m. He was alone in the car, a 1956 Buick. He said he was following tracks made by other vehicles as he felt ice giving way beneath him. He was about 150 feet west of the lake's island.

The car settled slowly through the 3-inch ice which held doors closed. Bronk rolled down his window and crawled out just before the car disappeared in some 12 feet of water.

Although most of the lake's ice cover is much thicker, active springs apparently had set up currents at this point which kept the ice relatively thin. Some parts of the lake, a former gravel pit, are 50 feet deep.

Salvage operations were successful about noon today. A wrecker crew grappled for the car, attached a cable and towed it to an area where ice was thick enough to support it. Then the car was raised to the surface and towed to a garage.

Falling Rocks Hit Two Youths On Lanesboro Hill

LANESBORO, Minn. (Special) — Another accident occurred Saturday on the bluff road project west of Lanesboro where Lloyd Oelkers, Mazeppa, recently went halfway down a 150-foot drop as his bulldozer rolled off the top of the hill.

Roy Musselman, 19, and Jerry Haugen, 17, were walking to go hunting at 9 a.m. when a pile of rocks pushed from the new grading fell on them.

Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Musselman, received a severe shoulder injury and was to be examined today by an orthopedist. He is a patient at Johnson Hospital here.

Jerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Hauger, received lesser injuries to his shoulder, arms and back and didn't require hospitalization.

The boys were walking along Old County Road 8 at the foot of the bluff. The new road is being carved out of the hill from the top down. Oelker's bulldozer dropped from the top to the roadway where the boys were walking.

Carrier Retiring 51-Year Mondovi

MONDOVI, Wis. — A rural carrier out of the Mondovi Post Office will cover his last route Wednesday after serving many of the same customers 51 years.

Eddie Perry doesn't want to retire but reached the mandatory age this month. His plans for the future aren't definite and he's concerned about how he will adjust, but his wife thinks he'll learn to enjoy it.

Douglas Ward, city carrier who has been on the staff since the end of World War II, will take over the route Thursday.

He'll have time to think about his 68-mile route and reminisce about associations with Hartwell Halverson and George Britton, who have died, and C. R. Nelson, Fred Lee and Earl Silverness, retired carriers.

When Mr. Perry started carrying mail there were seven routes, today there are four. He got his first Model T Ford in 1916 for $350, switching to horses and sleigh in winter. When cars came into general use he bought a new one almost every year.

Suit Over Motel Deed in Court

Trial of a fraud charge involving sale of land for the proposed Winona Holiday Inn began this morning in District Court, Judge Arnold Hatfield hearing the case without a jury.

Mrs. Edgar F. Witzig, Eau Claire, Wis., testified in behalf of the action brought by her husband and herself. She said that Attorney Roger P. Brosnahan "won my utmost confidence" while arranging the signing of a "quit claim" deed on the disputed land for $100.

PRE-TRIAL filings in the case allege that Brosnahan arranged "sale" of the land at U.S. 61-14 and Huff Street for $100, which was paid to the Witzigs. The Witzigs claim that the land is now worth about $50,000 because of its proposed development as a Holiday Inn.

The Witzigs seek return of the quit claim deed from the developers and defendants, A. Perry Phillips and Sidney Neate, Columbia, Mo., for the original $100 price. Attorneys Harry H. Peterson and William Skemp, La Crosse, represent the Witzigs.

Mrs. Witzig's testimony was halted in court this morning by the objection of Attorney L. L. Duxbury Jr., Caledonia, that Mrs. Witzig's ownership of the land in question has not been proven. Thus, Duxbury maintained, Mrs. Witzig could give no estimate of the land's worth.

Judge Hatfield sustained this objection, and Skemp temporarily suspended his questioning of Mrs. Witzig while he examined Brosnahan concerning the ownership of the parcel in question.

BROSNAHAN testified that his law firm had obtained a conditional option from the city to purchase the tract at U.S. 61-14 and Huff Street. The city held a park easement on the land.

He continued, under Skemp's questioning, that he was asked to do research on the parcel's title abstract. "There was a possible cloud on the title," Brosnahan testified, because Mrs. Witzig might have an interest in the property.

Brosnahan concluded on Feb. 13, 1964, that the least expensive way to remove the "cloud" would be to get a quit claim deed from Mrs. Witzig. He did not obtain such deeds from anyone else, Brosnahan concluded.

Mrs. Witzig had testified that Brosnahan visited her and her husband Feb. 14. She told the court that the attorney said his firm represented developers who wanted to build a Holiday Inn in Winona.

State of the Mind Better

Americans Feel Strong Country Can Keep Peace

By LOUIS HARRIS

Many times during past Christmas seasons, "peace on earth, good will toward men" has been little more than a pious hope. Probably the most hopeful news of 1964 is a state of mind.

THE HARRIS SURVEY

Americans no longer feel that war is inevitable; they believe that peace is possible and that negotiation from strength to ease world tensions should be pushed to the limit.

In prior years, world affairs dominated American public opinion only during periods of international crisis or when the nation was at war. In 1964, foreign policy and the issues of war and peace soared to a top place in people's concerns. But the change was not that of a people yearning for war, but rather that of an evolving hope for finding ways to peace.

By 9 to 1, Americans now believe that war can be avoided if the United States remains strong militarily.

By almost 3 to 1, people favor negotiation with the Communists and feel the chances are reasonably good that some positive steps can be achieved.

Specifically, 74 percent of the public wants to see negotiations initiated for a world wide ban on nuclear testing—including Red China. In retrospect, 83 percent believe it was right for the United States to have signed the test ban treaty with Russia.

When asked how the United States should deal with the new rulers of Russia, the people reject the approach of getting tougher with the Soviet Union. Instead, a majority wants to see the United States continue to negotiate in any areas of potential agreement.

In 1964 the most powerful issue working for President Lyndon Johnson in the election was peace. When asked to name the stand they would most like to see their party take, Republicans and Democrats alike put "peace, working against war" at the head of this list. By the same token, when asked what would be the worst stand their party could take, the foremost category volunteered by members of both parties was "getting the country into war."

Insight into current public thinking is found in the fact that most Americans no longer think in categorical terms of war or peace. Gen. George C. Marshall said back in 1948 that the biggest national problem was not the capacity of this country to withstand the Communist onslaught in the cold war, but whether the American people would have the patience to live through a generation of neither war nor peace.

Buttressed by a potent military capability, Americans seem to have learned patience and to have developed the will to seek small gains for peace—despite the constant frustration of Communist deceit, provocation and treachery. Most Americans believe they do not have to like the Russian system nor be deluded into a softness of thinking about communism in order to hew out agreements working for peace.

These are some of the key questions put to cross-sections of the American public on which the above conclusions are based.

"Do you feel that if the United States remains strong militarily another world war will be avoided, or do you feel war is inevitable?"

Air Strikes Play Big Part In Viet War

Editor's Note: Helicopters have been used so freely in Viet Nam that it is sometimes called a helicopter war. But air strikes by conventional aircraft play a big part in operations, as this story of a typical strike discloses.

By PETER ARNETT

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam (AP)—The quartet of Skyraider fighter-bombers cruised the leaden Mekong River delta skies like sea gulls.

Suddenly they became hawks. One of the chunky, gray planes peeled off from the formation and dived abruptly at a tangle of trees and huts at a canal intersection in the paddy fields 5,000 feet below.

The young Vietnamese pilot smiled grimly as he rammed the stick forward in the screeching power dive. U.S. Air Force adviser Capt. James T. Harwood of Jonesboro, Ark., already had selected the armament.

It was the fiery death, napalm.

"Keep your eye on the far tree line," Harwood told the pilot over the intercom as he watched the altimeter. As the ground rushed up at them there was the familiar crackle of Viet Cong ground fire.

At 100 feet, the pilot jerked back on the stick, his face contorted with the G-forces dragging at him.

A split second later, at 300 knots, they were over a cluster of huts. Two cylinders dropped from the Skyraider's wings.

For 20 seconds a ball of fire raced among the huts as the jellied petroleum sought out holes and crevices where the Viet Cong were hiding.

The Skyraider was well on its way, climbing steeply above the cloud of black smoke on the ground.

"You rolled that stuff among them pretty well," Harwood told the pilot.

The second of the death-dealing quartet already was on its way down.

It was loaded with 500-pound bombs known as "daisy cutters" because of the steel probe welded onto their noses. They detonate before they penetrate the ground.

The Vietnamese pilot was cautious. He released a bomb at 2,500 feet and then pulled out of the dive. Five seconds later the plane trembled as the bomb exploded, leaving a huge crater where a hut once stood.

The two remaining planes were figure-eighting their way onto the target on strafing runs.

Three passes later the quartet left the shambles and flew back to Bien Hoa base.

This mission was over. The results?

The forward air controller, who had pinpointed the target with smoke rockets thrown from a tiny spotter plane, reported 10

It Happened Last Night Mr. Murphy Lifts Status of Actors

By EARL WILSON

LOS ANGELES—Senator Murphy returning your call... a voice on the telephone sang out cheerfully.

Song-and-Dance Man George Murphy wouldn't be sworn in for over a week, but at least some of his staffers were functioning as though he had already been seated in the U.S. Senate. The senator-elect got on the phone himself and gave off with a groan, or maybe a sigh.

"Gee," he said, "I thought the campaigning would be worse, but I don't know. I'm starting to get those 'fringe benefits'."

"All those people who have just got to see you," he explained. "The mail piles in at about 400 letters a day. If I can get sprung here, I'll be on, 'I can meet you.'"

"You're too busy," I said. "Just tell me a few things..."

When "Mr. Murphy goes to Washington" it will be rather simple and dignified — no big pilgrimage as had been reported. There'll be the Murphy family, including George Murphy's son Dennis, 25, a former cameraman at the Disney studios who will be on his father's Washington staff, and a brother, "Mike" Murphy, a Detroit steel executive, and a sister from Grand Rapids. They'll be going to the capital Jan. 2 for the swearing-in... the first time, so far as anybody can remember, that an actor will have become a U.S. Senator.

"DOES THIS mean that other show people might get into politics and run for office in California?" I asked Murphy. "Reminding him of a Friars Club joke that Ronald Reagan and Milton Berle might oppose each other for governor."

"I don't know," Murphy said. "I never thought about running myself till about a year ago. But with a little good luck I think I can do some good. I know the problems of the state which is the reason I was elected."

Anyway, George Murphy's going to raise song-and-dance guys... hoofers... vaudevillians... greasepaint guys... to a lofty new status.

RONALD REAGAN, who is thinking seriously about whether he should run for governor, pointed out to me that in the campaign here "some of the opposition tried to make an issue out of Murphy being a song-and-dance man... they tried to make it sound like a nasty thing. But the voters wouldn't buy it."

On to Washington. Strike up the band!

Monique Van Vooren was approached in La Scala the other night by a man who said "Don't you know me?" Monique said, "You do look familiar..." The man replied, "I should. I was your first husband..." He was Burton Jacobson of San Francisco, and he was her husband in 1950 for a few months.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Ronnie Martin claims the department stores are a little too helpful this time of year: "The other day I broke my ankle—and they aut-wrapped it."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: New Year's Eve note from H. E. Martz: "Glasses can impair your vision—if you empty too many of them."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Some people are as proud of their ancestors as if they were responsible for them."—Pic Lar-mour.

EARL'S PEARLS: Jackie Kannon described a table-hopper at his cafe: "He got around more than a virus."

One thing is sure about the presidential inauguration, says Shelby Friedman — it'll be SRO. Sad Republican Occasion... That's earl, brother.

Frozen Body Of Hunter Found Near Albert Lea

ALBERT LEA, Minn. (AP)—The frozen body of a hunter was found in a heavily wooded area about 2 1/2 miles northwest of Albert Lea Sunday.

He was identified as Roger Fisher, 24, Glenville.

The Freeborn County coroner's office said he died apparently when shot with his own .22 caliber automatic rifle as he stumbled.

The coroner's office said he had been dead several days. Officers quoted an area resident as saying the man's car was seen parked nearby several days before Christmas.

The body was discovered by other hunters.

Long Prairie Home Burns

LONG PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP)—Fire destroyed a four-room farm home Sunday night, forcing a teen-ager and her father to flee through a window.

The fire destroyed the partly-remodeled home of Lee Eaton, nine miles west of Long Prairie, also destroying all the family's household goods and their pet dog.

Eaton and his daughter Colleen, 17, escaped through a ground-floor window. Another daughter and Mrs. Eaton were not at home. The fire was discovered in an entryway about 10:15 p.m.

Wisconsin Man Dead of Burns

PLYMOUTH, Wis. (AP)—Frederick Schaaf, 79, died in a Plymouth hospital Sunday of burns suffered Dec. 9 in a fire in his room where he lived alone.

Authorities said the fire apparently started when smoking material ignited the bedclothes.

Wisconsin Has 8 Deaths Over Yule Holidays

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight persons, including a soldier on leave and his two girl companions, were killed on Wisconsin highways during the Christmas weekend, raising the state's 1964 record toll to 1,048, compared with 896 on this date one year ago.

Army Pvt. Joseph Poncezoch, 22, Helen Kozicki, 17, and Susan Hein, all of Wisconsin Rapids, were killed early Sunday when the car in which they were riding and another auto collided in Wisconsin Rapids. Poncezoch's brother, James, 20, the driver, and Donald Homman, 21, of rural Rudolph, operator of the second car, were hospitalized.

FERDIE J. Zartman, 39, of Beloit was killed early Sunday when his car veered off Interstate Highway 90 and struck a pillar on Highway 15 in Beloit. Judy Siemsen, 18, of rural Marshfield died Sunday when her car and another auto collided on Highway 97 about five miles northeast of Marshfield.

Lucio L. Chisum, 16, of Cedar Grove was killed late Saturday when the car driven by his stepfather, Fabia Ponce, 26, collided with a flat-bed truck which stalled while trying to back into a driveway on Sheboygan County Trunk E, just west of Oostburg.

George Bock, 53, of rural Pittsville was killed when his car crashed into a ditch in Wisconsin Rapids Friday.

James D. Sammarco Jr., 40, of Milwaukee, the father of seven children, died Christmas morning when his car left the Stadium Freeway in Milwaukee and crashed.

Henry Korop, 81, of Green Bay died Saturday from injuries suffered when he was struck near his home Dec. 8.

Student Nurse Killed in Fall

SLAYTON, Minn. (AP) — Investigation continued today into the death of a student nurse who fell or jumped from her fiancé's car Saturday night.

Diane Fresk, 20, of Hadley, Minn., was dead on arrival at a Slayton hospital after the incident on Highway 30 between Slayton and Hadley about 8:30 p.m.

She had been riding with Robert Warner, 22, of Waseca, who she was to have married Jan. 9.

Dr. Hugh D. Patterson, Murray County coroner, said results of an autopsy would not be known for several days. He said no inquest had been scheduled.

Paul Fling, Murray County attorney, said Warner had given a statement about the incident. Fling would not release details.

Miss Fresk had attended St. Olaf College and was taking training at Fairview Hospital in Minneapolis as part of her studies. Warner was employed by a suburban Minneapolis firm.

Union Endorses Reynolds for Judge

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Wisconsin State AFL-CIO Sunday endorsed Gov. John W. Reynolds for appointment as federal judge in the state's western District.

The labor organization's top officials sent telegrams urging appointment of Reynolds to President Johnson, Wisconsin's Democratic congressional delegation and George Meany, national AFL-CIO president.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., has said that he recommended either appointment of Reynolds or Madison Atty. James E. Doyle. Reynolds was defeated in a bid for re-election by Republican Warren Knowles Nov. 3. Doyle is a former Democratic state chairman.

Wounded State Patrolman Dies

ST. PAUL (AP) — Minnesota Highway Patrolman Glen Skelman died of bullet wounds Sunday, the first shooting victim in the history of the patrol.

The 29-year old officer died without regaining consciousness in the 10 days since he was gunned down by a driver he was questioning in a car near Forest Lake.

Held in the shooting is Edward W. Brown, 28, of Minneapolis, who police say has admitted blazing away with a .22 pistol "until the gun was empty."

Skelman was shot four times in the head and neck.

Howard Johnson, Chisago County attorney, said he would ask that a grand jury hear evidence against Brown, who is held on $10,000 bond.

Chief Leo M. Smith of the patrol said three officers have died in vehicle accidents and one of a heart attack while on duty. There have been cases where patrolmen were wounded by gunfire, but no previous shooting deaths in the more than 34 years the Patrol has policed Minnesota highways.

Funeral services for Skelman were being completed today.

He leaves a wife, Mary Ann, 26, and 3 children. Mrs. Skelman was en route to St. Paul's Ancker Hospital Sunday when the patrolman died. Saturday night was the first night she had failed to spend at the hospital. She had gone home to rest at the insistence of doctors and friends.

Brown has been a patient in the St. Peter State Hospital and has been convicted of burglary and grand larceny.

The shooting occurred in Wyoming, Minn., north of the Twin Cities.

From Brown's statement and other evidence, police said the incident began when Brown's car became stuck in a ditch. A school bus driver helped push it out and Skelman then stopped to investigate.

He had requested a check on Brown's driver's license, and the suspect was later located through license numbers on the officer's notepad.

Brown told police he was going to Rush City to deliver a small dog and some Christmas presents to the home of friends. Brown's car was abandoned, the gifts, the shivering puppy and a bottle of whisky inside.

After hitching a ride to Minneapolis, Brown was arrested after police tipsters turned up his whereabouts in a north side house.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag offered deepest sympathies to Skelman's family and saluted the entire Highway Patrol. Said the governor:

"As a Minnesota highway patrolman, Skelman knew what it was to work for long hours and low pay on a pitifully understaffed patrol. But these did not deter him from his duty. They only strengthened his resolve to do a better job of law enforcement for the people of Minnesota."

A fund for the Skelman family has been started at the Forest Lake State Bank.

Youth Killed In Toboggan Accident

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — One youth was killed and two injured in a toboggan accident at the Bush Lake hill in suburban Bloomington Sunday evening.

William Igel, 17, Minneapolis, was dead on arrival at a hospital. Hospitalized in satisfactory condition were David Cardinal and Maynard S. Stucki, 17-year-old Minneapolis companions of the dead youth. Both suffered facial injuries.

Cardinal and Stucki drove Igel, who was unconscious, to the Edina police station in a pickup truck. Police tried arti-cial respiration on Igel, then took the three to the hospital. Bloomington police said the youths apparently had ridden the toboggan down the steep hill below the Bush Lake ski jump and hit a steel cable and snow fence at the bottom. Police said Cardinal and Stucki may have been unconscious some time after the accident.

NSP Plant Case

Headed Toward Congress

WITH INCREASING frequency proposed developments along waterways raise disputes caused by conflicts of interest between groups of citizens.

Sometimes plans for industrial expansion or commercial utilization of property run into opposition from those who fear that recreational uses will be endangered.

Quite often projects are strongly advocated by residents of one locality that would receive direct and immediate benefits and opposed by people of other localities who feel they would suffer either directly or indirectly in the long run.

Sometimes the matter revolves around conflicting philosophies — local home rule against controls promulgated by higher echelons of government. And neighboring states often find themselves on opposite sides of the firing line. In some cases they have welcomed the participation of the federal government as an umpire in the dispute.

ALL THESE FACTORS and others are involved in the controversy over the contemplated construction of a $68 million power plant by Northern States Power Co. on Lake St. Croix near Bayport, Minn.

The local community stands to gain because the plant would add materially to its tax base. Oak Park Heights, proposed location of the plant, could supply present services to its residents with a tax rate as low as half a mill on real and personal property. Taxes for the Stillwater school district would be cut in two. The tax burden on all Washington County property would also be reduced, but to a lesser extent.

On the other hand, residents on the Wisconsin shore feel that they would be adversely affected. Residential property values might decline if the Minnesota side of the lake were industrialized, they say.

Tax benefits and a boost to local employment resulting from the construction of the plant would be offset by a deterioration in the recreational assets that the lake provides nearby residents of the Twin Cities, it is argued.

SO MINNESOTA as well as Wisconsin recreationists look with jaundiced eye on an anticipated increase in barge traffic that, with a possible raise in water temperatures, could make the lake less desirable for boating, fishing, swimming and water skiing.

There is the question as to the effect of the construction of the plant on electric rates. And the problems of finding another site for NSP as the company maintains that the power needs of the nearby metropolitan area necessitate additional large scale generating facilities close to the Twin Cities.

Communities downriver from the St. Croix will, of course, be far less affected by the outcome of the dispute than those in the immediate vicinity. But determinations arrived at in this controversy will undoubtedly have far-reaching effects.

Take the matter of water pollution. The Mississippi River at Winona draws its water from both Minnesota and Wisconsin. Hydrologic records show that slightly over half the flow at this point originates in northern and Western Wisconsin watersheds.

CONDITIONS THAT determine the quality of the water here depend on what happens upstream. Regulations imposed by either Wisconsin or Minnesota authorities on what is allowed to develop on Upper Mississippi tributaries within their borders deeply concern dwellers along the interstate waterway in this section.

It appears what is needed to protect these communities is an overall agreement between the states and the federal government clearly defining desirable water standards and fixing the responsibilities of local communities, states, and the federal government in meeting these standards.

This matter will surely be discussed in the halls of Congress. For Senators Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin and Lee Metcalf, Montana, attended hearings on the NSP proposal and have stated that they will seek formulation of a national policy.

Many Americans are strongly and rightly opposed to federal interference in local affairs. But some matters hitherto tagged as local in character have far wider impact.

IT IS BEING demonstrated that water pollution problems are by nature almost always of interstate importance. Proper solutions fair to all parties concerned can hardly be arrived at without including the federal government in their determination. So people of this area will watch with interest what transpires in Washington as the result of action taken by Nelson and Metcalf.

How Unsafe Is Society Today?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — This is the story of a single life lost in the unsafe society of today. But it has significance for the lives of many other persons who could face the same dangers.

Charles W. Fitzmaurice enlisted in the Marine Corps as a private in 1936 and became a second lieutenant in 1943. He served 18 months in the Pacific area during World War II, and participated in the campaigns on Saipan and Iwo Jima. In 1952 and 1953, he fought in the Korean War. He was given several citations and battle stars, became a lieutenant colonel, and was regarded as an outstanding officer in the Marine Corps.

The colonel and his wife and four children were in their home in a Virginia suburb of Washington on Saturday night, Dec. 12, when there came a knock at the entrance. As the colonel opened the door, he was shot in the abdomen and killed. Later, police said the weapon used was a shotgun.

THE ASSASSIN HAS not yet been found. Since Col. Fitzmaurice was serving as assistant head of the promotions branch in the personnel department of the Marine Corps at the Navy Annex in Arlington, Va., it is being widely speculated that perhaps the killing was done by someone with a personal grudge connected with the colonel's work.

Another possibility is that a deranged mind — similar to that of Lee Harvey Oswald, who killed President Kennedy — was responsible for this heinous crime. The Marine colonel was not a national figure, so there will be no memorial centers or monuments built to honor him. He will doubtless soon be forgotten — though he served his country faithfully and with distinction both in war and in peace.

The bereaved family has received the condolences of the community, but for them and the rest of the country the unanswered question is why nothing has been done since the assassination of President Kennedy to prohibit the continued possession of lethal weapons by individuals who ought not to be permitted to own or rent them.

THERE IS, of course, widespread opposition to any limits being placed on the sale of weapons intended for lawful use. It would be unwise to abolish altogether the possession of guns for protection against marauders or for enjoyment in sports. But certainly there is a rising public opinion in favor of requiring licenses for all those who own guns, and periodic examinations to determine whether the individual can be expected to refrain from using such weapons improperly.

Every driver of an automobile, before obtaining a license must appear for examination to determine whether he knows how to operate a car and has no impairment of his faculties that would make him an unsafe driver. This rule has for years been in effect in all states of the union, and the purpose is to protect society against individuals who are physically, mentally or emotionally unfitted to drive a car safely. A license often is suspended or revoked after a conviction for such violations as reckless or drunken driving. Many states also require periodic examinations for retention of a license.

The states have a right to impose restrictions on the use of rifles, pistols, shotguns, or any other firearms. Certainly if licenses to own firearms were issued only after a medical certificate were furnished, the community would be better protected than it is today.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Capitol Hill Reservists Fear Loss of Free Trips

By JACK ANDERSON

(Today's Merry-Go-Round is written by Drew Pearson's associate Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Here are the travel logs and military privileges of the soldier-solons who have been bellyaching over Secretary of Defense McNamara's order to abolish the Army Reserve Reserves and crack down on overseas junkets.

The most outraged roar came from Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who doubles as a major general in the Army Reserves and marches through Capitol corridors as if leading an invisible parade.

It happens that Sen. Thurmond is the Senate's most outspoken champion of states' rights. It was states' rights, he declared last September, that persuaded him to desert the Democratic party and enlist in the campaign of his fellow major general in the Reserves, Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Yet this month Thurmond came out against states' rights when they threatened his own military standing and travel privileges. McNamara's action would take army reservists out of federal control and put them in the National Guard under state control. Thurmond called this "presumptuous."

REAL REASON he is opposed to states' rights in this case is that it would disband his own reserve unit in the Senate of which he is the commanding officer.

This column has reported from time to time on the junketing of Sen. Thurmond's reserve unit. Its members have followed a pattern of serving their active duty by inspecting world pleasure spots, enduring the rigors of such outposts as Paris, Rome, and Hong Kong. Usually Thurmond organizes two trips each year, so his Capitol Hill "Troops" can take their choice of Europe or Asia.

He chose Madrid, Rome, and Casablanca for his own active duty this year, and left the weekend immediately after the election. It was his second junket of the year. Before the election, he had flown to Stockholm at the taxpayers' expense.

pense. Thus he spent three weeks in Sweden during August, another three weeks touring the Mediterranean during November.

Thurmond's record as a two-junket-a-year man dates back to 1962 when he took off for three weeks of "active duty" in Europe and the Middle East within a week after returning from a jaunt in Mexico. The taxpayers paid for both trips.

THURMOND is now a Republican. Sen. Ralph Yarborough of Texas is a staunch Democrat. They agree on hardly anything. And Yarborough, a reserve colonel, has been wary of his commanding officer ever since Maj. Gen. Thurmond wrestled him to the floor in a Senate corridor earlier this year.

But there is one point on which these two solons do definitely agree. Both are opposed to McNamara's plan to abolish the reserves and reserve junkets.

While Thurmond was leading an expedition to the Mediterranean this fall, Yarborough took command of an expedition to the Far East. He got back on Dec. 13, just in time to blast McNamara for trying to break up their cozy Capitol Hill corps. Yarborough indignantly called McNamara's order "a departure away from the long-accepted status of the citizen soldier." Cong. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., a reserve Army major, got off the same plane from the Far East in an even more temperate mood. With righteous rage he called McNamara's action "typically arbitrary" and told how the suffering, reservists had spent one day of their junket "in 15-below weather in Alaska watching our ski troops in training."

MacGregor didn't mention that he had spent many more days in more pleasant climes. Altogether, he has managed to squeeze in three overseas junkets this year.

On March 26, MacGregor took off for two weeks of "active duty" in Europe. He went back again Nov. 5 to 15, for Air Force briefings in Spain and Germany. He had hardly got home before he headed in the opposite direction Nov. 28 for more "active duty" in the Far East.

Still another bitter blast at McNamara came from Cong. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., a reserve Army major, who also turns out to be a two-junket-a-year man.

He accompanied Thurmond to Sweden in August, joined up with him again in the Mediterranean during November. Last year, Derwinski spent March in Mexico, September in Europe.

"Well, REALLY!"

WASHINGTON CALLING

Old Charlie Being Pushed

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
(For Marcus Childs who is on vacation.)

WASHINGTON — They have got "Old Charlie" sweating, though not actually in panic, and if they do bring him down, they will have upset the hierarchy as it has rarely been upset before.

This describes the present position in a developing War of the Roses — in this case both being conservative roses — for the top Republican leadership of the House of Representatives.

Sixty-four-year-old Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, for six years the hard-handed and highly effective floor boss of the Republicans, is under challenge for his job by Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan. The holiday season around the House is, in consequence, showing nothing whatever of peace and very little of good will toward men.

Old Charlie himself is grimly determined and pretty well shaken up. Still, it must be said for him that this man who has so long known how to dish it out is showing that he can take it, too. There is a wry, if cussing, tolerance in his private attitude that proves as much.

Ford's claim is ostensibly built around certain appealing if vague, concepts dealing with the desirability of new brooms, of youthful vigor at the top, and all that. But if Old Charlie is undeniably an old Republican — though far from his dotage — Ford is no pristine example of any Republican youth movement.

THOUGH 13 years younger than Halleck, he is all the same no fresh-eyed stripling at the age of 51. Moreover, there is no real difference ideologically between the two. If Ford is to create some "new Republican image," he will first have to change an old political attitude of his own, which is substantially the same as Halleck's.

Actually, therefore, when all the slogans are dismissed, Ford is fighting for Ford's ambitions. And he is being assisted by many Republicans for quite another purpose. This is to disassociate themselves from the traumatic defeat of the Republican Presidential ticket of Barry M. Goldwater.

They have in Ford a symbol through which on the outside they can proclaim a high resolve to "improve the Republican image," where on the inside their true and simple wish is just to get off the hook of Goldwater's shattering defeat. It is a case, actually, of a community effort at hand-washing from what happened in November. The inconvenient fact that it wasn't Old Charlie's fault is something else again.

THUS, notwithstanding Ford's decency and competence, what is going on has a strong flavor of running out on a seaway ship (Halleck's) because another ship (Goldwater's) sank some time ago.

No parallel to this situation has been seen since early 1949. Dazed at Harry S. Truman's defeat of the pollsters and Thomas E. Dewey for President, a group of Senate Republicans opened a like putsch against the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. They decided that "Old Bob" had to go as chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, not for any assignable sin but, as the saying went then, too, in pursuit of the principle of new brooms, youthful vigor, et cetera.

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts was the leader of this rebellion. It did not get far—but it did drive a wedge of bitterness within the G.O.P. that lives to this day. Had it never occurred, Lodge might well have been nominated for President in 1964.

OLD CHARLIE would be somewhat handicapped in calling up this episode in his defense by the circumstance that he himself unseated Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts for the leadership six years ago. Still, the circumstances were wholly different, notably in the fact that a powerful Republican President, Dwight D. Eisenhower,

To Your Good Health

Wrinkles Hard to Remove

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 50 and my chin and neck are starting to look flabby.

My physical culturist teaches that you should twist and stretch neck muscles to tone them up. However, some beauty experts advise against exercising the neck, claiming that one should avoid stretching the skin, but that proper carriage of the head in time will eliminate some of the droop.

These two schools sound contradictory. Which in your opinion is more apt to be helpful?—Mrs. V. S.

Both kinds of advisers have to make their living, and naturally try to convince people that they have methods that will unflinch the flabbiness.

Some events we just have to accept. After 40 or so, the tone of the skin changes. So does the fibrous tissue under the skin. That's what leads to wrinkling, flabbiness and droop.

Another factor is that the texture of skin varies with people. We can't do much about that.

FOR STILL another, if we put on extra weight and later (wisely) lose it, we have also stretched the skin and then let it sag when the fat departs. Early in life, this is tolerable. The skin is elastic. Later it doesn't snap back to its original tautness.

As for exercise (while I approve of it in reasonable doses), I doubt very much if this can make the muscles bulge and undo the flabbiness of the skin. But conversely, I have the most vigorous doubts that any neck exercises would stretch the skin.

Exercise, besides keeping you limber and feeling fit, won't have much to do with your skin. But it WILL help you along in developing or maintaining proper carriage of the head. And yes, that does improve the lines of neck, bust and shoulders.

SO I SAY that both the physical culturist and the beauty experts have some things that are helpful. The trick is to sort out which is which.

Exercise? Yes. It won't stretch the skin, but its principal benefit will be in improving posture and making you feel better.

For unduly dry skin (which wrinkles faster) massage creams into it. This won't help overnight, but it may in the long run.

Second, develop good posture, if you haven't already.

Third, appropriate earrings, necklaces and necklines can help distract attention from wrinkles or sag. As we get older, we all have to accept a certain amount of such problems.

wanted Halleck and not Martin.

But this time there is no Republican President to urge Ford on the House. The rebels thus are playing with oddly tricky explosives, and most of all, because they have got no purely rational complaint at the Halleck leadership.

Smart Styling Features Economy House

By ANDY LANG

A composite quote of what some recent letter writers have been telling us might sound something like this:

"Give us a house in which economy of construction is the dominant feature. It should have at least two bedrooms and a sizable living room—the kind of house that could be used as a regular home for some persons, a lakeside or mountain retreat for others."

"BUT DON'T wait until the spring or summer to show it to us. We want to see the plans during the winter so we can get going on it several months ahead of time."

And then the almost unanimous comment:

"Just because it's a small house that isn't expensive don't overlook appearance. We want a house that looks nice as well as costs less."

We asked architect William G. Chirgott what he could do about these requests. In Design H-63, he has given the answer—an attractive five-room house, with contemporary styling, maximum use of floor space and tidy over-all dimensions of 36' by 34', with 864 square feet of living area.

THE FRIENDLY exterior of this latest House of the Week features a low-pitched roofline which continues over a full porch and a decorative brick planter that extends beyond the corner of the structure to give an added appearance of width.

Although other materials could be substituted, the outside is a pleasing combination of brick veneer and either redwood or cedar vertical siding capable of taking stain for a minimum of future upkeep. A white gravel asphalt rolled roof is specified for economy of material as well as for its reflective insulating value.

The covered porch provides a welcome introduction to the house and also serves as an outdoor living area with full-length sliding glass doors which extend almost the visual length of the L-shaped combined dining-living room.

THESE LARGE full-ceiling glass doors are framed in aluminum runways to insure ease of operation.

A beam cathedral ceiling over the living-dining area is ex-

OPTICAL ILLUSION: While the over-all dimensions of this two-bedroom house almost form a square, the low-pitched roofline, full porch and brick planter combine to give a desirable appearance of width.

FLOOR PLANS: Every bit of floor space is utilized in Design H-63, with a total of 864 square feet of habitable area, not including the long front porch.

plotted for its natural attractiveness. This technique adds height to the rooms as well as setting an informal note for interior decoration. The stone-faced fireplace at the end of the 23-foot length of the living room is flanked by bookcases, with plenty of other wall space for desired furniture arrangements.

A folding partition separates the kitchen from the dining area. There is a full complement of appliances, arranged for saving steps, with an exit to the rear.

The two bedrooms are separated by a spacious bathroom. Both of these rooms have cross-ventilation.

INCIDENTALLY, architect Chirgott recommends year-round air conditioning, automatically fired by oil or gas, depending on the economy of gas in the locality where the house will be built. A partial basement for the heating unit and storage is located under the living room. If electric heat is economically expedient, the partial basement may be omitted unless needed for extra storage.

While this house is a simple rectangle, with no costly jogs or breaks in the foundation or roof, we think you'll agree that a boxy appearance has been avoided by smart exterior design.

H-63 Statistics

Design H-63 has a living room, dining area, kitchen, two bedrooms, a spacious bath and a porch running the width of the house. There are 864 square feet of living area, not including the porch.

Overall dimensions, which do include the porch, are 34 ft. by 36 ft. The plans call for a partial basement under the living room to handle the heating unit and provide extra storage space.

New Building Lagging at Year's End

Last week turned out to be a holiday, too, as far as new building activity in the city of Winona was concerned.

City Engineer James Baird reported that there were no new building permits issued by his office last week, the second consecutive week in which the permit calendar went blank.

With four days remaining in the year, however, the city is still assured of a dollar volume of new building in 1964 exceeding that of 1963.

The total now stands at $6,824,719, compared with $5,440,188 in permits for new construction, alterations and improvements issued at this time a year ago.

There have been 53 new house permits drawn, one more than in 1963.

Pair Found Shot to Death In Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A Navy chief petty officer and his wife, married Dec. 19 after a whirlwind romance, were found shot to death Sunday in their blood-spattered honeymoon apartment on Milwaukee's West Side.

The county medical examiner's office listed the deaths of Roger W. Garde, 39, and his wife, Shirley, 36, as "apparent murder-suicide." They had been dead since Tuesday.

Investigators said that Garde apparently shot his wife in the back as she slept and then turned the 44 calibre rifle on himself, firing a bullet into his head.

The bodies were found by relatives and two members of the Navy's shore patrol, who broke into the apartment after failing to contact the couple. Mrs. Garde, dressed in a nightgown, was in a sleeping position in bed. Her husband was on the floor with the rifle under his legs.

Garde, a native of Orfordville, Wis., and his wife, the mother of a 6-year-old daughter by a former marriage, met after he was transferred from the Great Lakes, Ill., Naval Station to take charge of the shore patrol office at the Milwaukee Safety Building Oct. 5.

Mrs. Garde's daughter was left in the care of the bride's parents in Milwaukee after the wedding.

Nelson Plans Bill to 'Save' St. Croix Valley

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said Sunday he will draft legislation to preserve the St. Croix River as a national scenic waterway.

Nelson said his bill would provide for multiple use of the river and its shoreline in the pattern of the Cape Cod National Seashore Park.

Nelson recently conducted a hearing at Stillwater on the proposal of Northern States Power Co. to build a $68 million coal-burning power plant near Stillwater. The St. Croix divides Minnesota and Wisconsin in that area.

"The beginnings of industrialization on the lower St. Croix make it clear that federal legislation will be needed if we are to preserve the balance of this river, the last clean river near a metropolitan area," Nelson said.

The Minnesota Water Pollution Control Commission and the State Conservation Department resume hearings on the NSP proposal next month.

Charge Space Agency Yielding Valuable Patents

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new investigation is brewing in the Senate on charges that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is giving away valuable patent rights which belong to the taxpayers.

Complaints by some Senate and House members picture NASA as signing away to business firms the rights to patents developed at public expense and worth untold millions of dollars. They contend a recent policy change made the situation worse.

James E. Webb, NASA administrator, has countered with a claim that the agency is following federal law and guidelines laid down by President John F. Kennedy shortly before his death.

The patents in question were developed under government-financed research contracts with commercial and other institutions.

A spokesman for a Senate Small Business subcommittee headed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., told a reporter it will meet shortly after Congress convenes Jan. 4 to consider senatorial requests for an investigation.

Long has been an outspoken critic of the differing patent policies employed by various government agencies under special laws.

Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., both contend that the new NASA policy permits its contracting officers to negotiate patent waivers at the time they sign research contracts, thus giving away patent rights before even learning what they may be.

Morse has advised Long's subcommittee that this is contrary to both existing law and the Constitution.

The forthcoming Congress session also promises investigations on many other fronts. The financial dealings of Bobby Baker, alleged "snooping" on government employees by their bosses, and the controversial contract for the development and production of the F111 warplane—formerly known as the TFX—are among investigative problems awaiting the new Congress.

The House has a less busy schedule of probes ahead. Its main one will be a study of soaring costs of the new Sam Rayburn House Office Building. Originally intended to cost $10 million or less, it is winding up as a more-than-$86-million project—the costliest public building in history.

ETTRICK PATIENT HOME

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — Emil Helstad came home for Christmas from a La Crosse hospital. A maintenance man for the village of Ettrick, he was critically injured the last of November when he fell from a high platform mounted on a truck while assisting in hanging Christmas greens across the village streets. He suffered a fractured pelvis, a shattered elbow and a skull fracture. He is able to get about the house with the aid of crutches.

Warren Peterson was taken to a La Crosse hospital Saturday morning.

Reds in Viet Nam Claim Half of Country

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaders of the rebel Viet Cong claim the guerrillas fighting the government of South Viet Nam control three-fourths of the country and more than half the people as the year nears an end.

Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho made the claim in a statement to the ruling Politburo of the Viet Cong Central Committee.

The statement would be difficult to challenge.

He added that the balance of forces was shifting in favor of the Viet Cong, and this, too, coincides with available information on the Saigon side.

On Dec. 20, 1960, when the Viet Cong formally organized itself, the guerrillas had at most 2,000 men under arms, opposing national armed forces of some 400,000. Today, Viet Cong strength is estimated at around 120,000 against a government force of some 615,000 men under arms, including police. Although the government still holds the numerical edge, its ratio is worse.

Each time during the past four years that the government has sought to wipe out the guerrillas in some given area, Saigon has bitten off more than it could chew. The mobility provided U.S. troop-carrying helicopters has helped, but not enough.

The operation was a nearly complete failure, and the Viet Cong now is stronger in the area than ever.

Later in 1962 and 1963, the government and U.S. advisers launched the nationwide "strategic hamlet program," aimed at bringing one community after another under government control.

Until President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown in a military coup Nov. 1, 1963, the statistics from this program looked encouraging. But U.S. officials found at that point that only a very small fraction of the hamlets supposedly pacified were really in operation.

Then came Premier Nguyen Khanh's "pacification plan" in February. It concentrated on only 13 provinces in the Mekong River Delta. But even this concentration proved inadequate.

Three months ago, the area was whittled down to five provinces, all suburbs of Saigon, to be pacified under the "Hoc Tap" — cooperation — plan. To help out, most of the 25th Division was pulled out of central Viet Nam for service in the Hoc Tap area.

Since then, central Viet Nam — roughly the northern half of the republic — has deteriorated at an alarming rate, at least partly because of increased Communist infiltration in the area. And the delts and suburbs of Saigon, the key targets of the new government program, show little if any sign of improvement.

While the Viet Cong apparently has had no difficulty maintaining a united drive against the government, Saigon has been beset with constant political upheavals and coups, leaving its base of military resistance in chaos much of the time.

By all appearances, the war is being lost.

Armed Indonesian Invaders Crushed

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Antiguerilla operations in southwest Malaysia have been called off following the breakup of the latest band of armed Indonesian invaders.

A government spokesman said a 50-mile stretch, considered the most likely site for further Indonesian landings, was being kept under cluck-to-claw curfew.

The first Christmas party in the White House, Mrs. John Adams wrote, "was a frost." Twenty cords of wood were burned in 13 fireplaces in a futile effort to dry out the damp walls. The shivering guests stayed only briefly.

Color Harmony In The Garden

IN speaking of color harmony in the garden, one cannot escape the fact that it is a personal equation in the terms of the viewers. First, let us talk about a color scheme carried out wholly, or in part, with flowers of a particular color, or in tones or tints of the same, which is usually dictated by the taste or preference of the gardener.

Such gardens may be defined as a white garden, red garden, or of whatever the color might be. A garden, or a portion of it, planted to the same color of flowers may be very pleasing to one observer, but to another it may lack the variety and distinction necessary for the color harmony that is most desired.

White flowers have a cooling effect on the senses and tend to give the mind a feeling of tranquility and peace. A bed of white petunias close by the house bordered with white alyssum give this impression on a hot summer day to a marked degree. The same feeling is imparted by a hill-of-snow hydrangea planted at a corner of the house.

On the other hand bright red, or scarlet, flowers are more exciting to the senses and appear harsh and glaring, unless softened, or toned down by more subdued colors. Dark red, rose, or maroon flowers are more adaptable and can be used in connection with bright scarlets to soften the latter, or other colors can be used effectively.

YELLOW FLOWERS, or those that border on orange, or a deep orange, show up best in bright sunlight. However, like all deeper colors, they should be relieved by less intense, or more subdued, colors, including white.

In all gardens, or portions of same, it is advisable, in fact necessary for good harmony, to have suitable backgrounds of green foliage in order to soften the over-all effect. Strictly speaking, the so-called one color garden is seldom attained unless all of the accessories such as trellises and garden furniture are in harmonizing colors. The foliage of the plants themselves break into the color scheme and tend to lessen the harshness that may be prevalent in any one color planting.

WHILE ELABORATE color schemes may be indulged in by some enthusiastic and assiduous gardeners, they offer little to the home gardener who may find that the efforts to attain a particular scheme quite disappointing. After all, flowers are to be enjoyed and a gardener should not be frustrated in this enjoyment by being tied down to a color scheme that may be wholly unattainable.

This does not mean that color should not be given very careful consideration in the garden plan. As a rule a strong color does not combine well with another strong color in close proximity, unless toned down by lesser tints, or complementary colors, or by white, or plenty of green foliage. In working for color effects in the garden thought should be given, also, to the season of bloom and the relative heights of the plants to be used.

ABOVE ALL, we expect to find beauty in the garden whether from a planned color scheme, or from a haphazard planting. The dictionary defines beauty as that quality, or aggregate of qualities, in anything which gives pleasure to the senses, or that pleases the mind, or spirit. Also, beauty is the condition of physical, moral, or spiritual loveliness. Thus beauty may be inherent and sensed in any number of phases in animate beings, or inanimate objects and substances in many forms. Individual ideas and concepts of beauty vary and its appreciation may differ in kind or degree according to the impression made on the senses by the one who sees it.

Perhaps, we should take a lesson from Mother Nature. A carpet of wild flowers covering a woodland floor is never out of harmony with the surroundings.

Lewiston Women Hurt in Collision

LEWISTON, Minn. (Special) —Two Lewiston women were injured Sunday when their car was struck on the left side by Donald Yarwood, Rochester, who was en route to Rushford on a county road through here. Mrs. Arthur Radatz, who was driving, received torn ligaments in one knee and bruises as she was thrown into the steering wheel post. She also complained of neck and chest pains.

Miss Alice Stickney, her passenger, received a deep cut on one knee as she was thrown into the dash. Yarwood and his passenger apparently weren't hurt.

The women started from Lewiston at 12:15 p.m. for Rochester where they planned to visit a relative of Mrs. Radatz in a hospital. They proceeded east on the main street and stopped at the arterial at the Matt Licher corner before turning left onto the county road leading north to U.S. 14.

Yarwood was driving south when the impact occurred. The Radatz car was whirled around on the snow-covered road. Friebert Sackler, living in the area, took the women to a doctor at St. Charles. They were to return there for further examination today. About $250 damage was done to each vehicle.

World Today

Congo, Viet Nam 'Sticky' in 1964

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The world was still sticky in 1964 but at home there was steady movement forward and the air was cleared a bit, politically, and otherwise, leaving President Johnson to face his first full term at ease on many issues.

Overseas the Berlin wall still stood, a reminder that East-West differences were as stiff as cement. But the United States and the Soviet Union accommodated themselves a little better to the idea that both have to live on one earth.

The Congo was a mess but there was an even worse mess in the American-backed war against communism in Viet Nam.

Egyptian President Nasser, like others this year, rebuffed the United States. He said anyone who didn't like Cairo's attitude could "drink from the sea," and Egyptian way of saying "go to hell."

The 15-member NATO alliance stayed intact but the partners began to feel free to cut their individual capers, now that danger from the Soviet Union has dwindled. It was like a poker game with 15 decks of cards.

The grunts and groans coming out of the split between those one-time allies, the Soviet Union and Red China, added little to enlightenment. They sounded like a couple of used-car salesmen trying to convince a customer on a washboard road.

The new men in the Kremlin ever since throwing out Premier Khrushchev, have been shuffling around in a kind of soft-shoe act, waiting for the music to start.

The west doesn't know what they'll do, what direction they'll take, or whether Khrushchev's departure was a turning point in history.

But at home the economy was booming for a record fourth year in a row. To top it up even more Congress gave it a blood transfusion with the biggest tax cut in history.

In the long view the achievements in the field of citizens' rights, civil and political, perhaps will be most memorable.

In a year in which three civil rights workers were murdered in Mississippi and Negroes rioted in Northern cities, Congress passed the most far-reaching civil rights act of the century.

Then, with extraordinary speed, the Supreme Court supported it a couple of weeks ago by upholding the new law's ban on racial discrimination in places of public accommodation, like hotels, or motels, or restaurants.

Gradually opposition to desegregation was melting. It was the court which started the melting with its decision against public school segregation 10 years ago.

But, even without the civil rights ruling, the court would have made this a memorable year. For half a century injustice had been piling up in the states where city people were getting less representation in state legislatures than country people.

Neither Congress nor the legislatures would correct it. The Supreme Court stepped into this vacuum of responsibility and ordered reapportionment so that each man's vote means as much as any other's.

But it was the presidential election which settled, for years to come, the direction this country will take.

Because Democrats and Republicans for decades looked like twins, the presidential races began to resemble personality contests rather than different views of life and government for voters to choose between.

This year the voters got a clear choice between the conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater and the much more moderate Johnson. The President won with the greatest plurality in history, 43 million to 27 million votes.

As a result, the two parties' candidates for a long time are likely to be liberals or at least middle-of-the-roads.

Jobless Climb In 1965 Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — An easing of the rate of business expansion in the last half of 1965 could cause unemployment to begin climbing again.

This warning light was flashed Sunday by the National Planning Association, a privately supported research organization.

Treasury Ruling To Aid Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of businessmen will benefit from a Treasury tax ruling scheduled about mid-January. It was learned Saturday that the ruling will liberalize the regulations which govern how much businessmen may deduct for cost of equipment.

Miller Offers His Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the Republican vice presidential nominee this year, is willing to serve the GOP in any capacity — except as a candidate for elective office.

Miller said in a radio interview on Storer Broadcasting Company's "Report to the People," Saturday that he planned to practice law in his hometown of Lockport, N.Y., and in Buffalo, N.Y.

Good Expression Improves Grades

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.
University of Southern California

"How can you question my son's ability to express ideas?" demanded the parent. "He talks on the telephone for an hour at a time!"

The teacher replied: "It is not his flow of words I am deploring, but his inability to control his thoughts and express them in writing."
The inability to write letters, reports or even intelligible memoranda is often charged against high school graduates by employers. Even college freshmen are not free from criticism in this regard. Their first attempts at composing a paragraph on specified subjects leave much to be desired. Evidence of lack of the ability to express thoughts in writing can be found in college students' notebooks. After a day or two, when the notes are "cold," the student himself often has difficulty making sense out of them. Yet, good note-making skill is always an asset.

SCHOOLS FACE a complex problem in providing a remedy. Note-taking is a complicated process for some students. At one and the same time, a student must understand what the professor is saying and summarize it in his mind, and translate these thoughts into writing.

To use several skills simultaneously, the student must have gained facility through practice in each. His ability to write good notes thus depends on the amount of practice he has given himself in translating ideas from books and lectures into his own words. It depends even more heavily on his facility in writing, which can be gained only through practice.

The student who is a poor writer not only fails to practice, but avoids writing at every opportunity. Unfortunately, students are too often allowed to do this.

Recently I reviewed two notebooks prepared by junior high school boys. Although both notebooks received above-average grades, neither contained more than a half dozen lines of written material. They were filled with pictures and charts either cut from magazines or drawn by the student. In one notebook, the student did sign his name in cursive writing. The other few lines were handwritten rather than written.

While this inability to express thoughts in writing was overlooked by the teacher's grading of the notebooks, it was the major cause of the boys' generally low grades.

BOTH MADE rapid improvement in their school grades when they took the following steps:

They practiced 10 minutes a day training their hands to write easily and well. In addition, they practiced writing numbers.

They wrote and rewrote assignments, striving for clarity of statement and neat appearance. By writing each assignment two or three times, they could first center their attention on WHAT they were saying, then on HOW they were saying it and, finally, on the mechanics of writing legibly.

They restated in their own words the ideas presented in reading assignments. Each day they wrote out a few of the statements just for the practice.

In preparing for tests, they practiced formulating questions and writing out the answers.

Report Mao May Leave Red Post

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung, last great figure of world communism, became 71 Saturday amid talk that he soon may step down as chairman of the Red Chinese party.

A Peking broadcast said Mao had cordial talks with members of a five-man Algerian military delegation in Peking but otherwise was silent on his activities.

At 71, Mao is idolized by many Chinese who regard him as the father of modern China. He is reviled by others.

Internationally, the stubborn, unyielding policies of violence and revolution he advocates have earned him the fear and enmity of not only the United States and some Western powers but the Soviet Union.

Lion Ignores City Deadline

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP) — The deadline passed Sunday for Leo the lion to leave town. But Howard Sautter's pet still was in his heated quarters today.

Abington Township's commission recently passed an ordinance banning wild animals as pets. The ordinance was inspired by objections of some of Sautter's neighbors. They complained that Leo made them nervous.

Sautter said that when he receives formal notice from the township asking why Leo is still around, he will turn the matter over to his attorneys. Sautter argues that Leo is harmless and looks harmless as lions go.

"Just because one man kills somebody, you don't outlaw all people," Sautter said. "So why should my lion go?"

Inaugural Ball Themes Selected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Decorations of the inaugural balls at four Washington sites next Jan. 20 will be based on the imagery in phrases of the song "America the Beautiful."

"From Sea to Shining Sea" will be the theme at the National Guard Armory where 12,000 persons are expected to fete the new president and vice president and their wives. A total of 25,000 is expected at the four sites.

At the three other hotel sites, themes will be taken from such phrases as "Spacious Skies," and "Amber Waves of Grain."

The color scheme for all will be white and gold with a blue background. Mrs. E. William Henry, decorations chairman, told a news conference.

Foreigners Lead Congo Rebels, Tshombe Says

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Premier Moise Tshombe has told the United Nations Security Council that Egyptian and Algerian officers are commanding Congolese rebels along the country's north-east frontier.

Tshombe also said his government has "irrefutable proof" that the two countries are supplying war materials to the rebels and asked that these charges be added to the Congo's bill of indictment against Al-geria, the United Arab Republic and the Sudan already before the council.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"Hi, Dad! Mom sent me with the umbrella!"

BILL MERRILLS..

Something to Live by

MAIN Street, USA is a far cry from the Indian trails of the 1800's. Yet, when one considers this span of time compared to the generations of old, it's just a hop, skip and a jump. Join me in some interesting reflections.

Some young people watching a film story portraying a battle between the Indians and the whites, included an Indian lad, who kiddingly stated, but perhaps, with some sincerity, "Why do we have to always lose?"

And I wonder! What kind of an image do these true Americans have of their white brothers, who outnumber them, not only are prospering all about them on their forefather's soil, but trump up stories of early Western adventure that nearly always puts the Red Skins in a bad light as savages, or pictures them on the run with the soldiers heroically chasing them over a hill.

I was impressed recently as I parked my auto on a spot that was once the location of a tribe of Winnebago Indians. The prairie just over the hill was then a flat natural park where the Indians played games, as well as fished and headquartered while hunting and trapping. All of this has now given way to billowing clouds of smoke, the noises of traffic, and 20th century purr of progress. On a sign in the park is the account of a 20th century story of a brave Indian warrior — not a savage — not an enemy of the Whites, but quite to the contrary — a defender of his white brothers. The account on the sign identified the park as Red Cloud Park, stating that it is on the site of the one-time Winnebago village. The sign went on to tell of a heroic descendant of the Winnebagos, a corporal Mitchell Red Cloud Jr., who, while fighting in Korea in 1950 as a member of the 34th Army Division, bravely held off an enemy attack with machine gun fire until his death, thereby saving

Tooth Decay Disease of Civilization

By FRANK E. CAREY Associated Press Science Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — An American government dental researcher reported Saturday new evidence that tooth decay "is a disease of civilization" with the United States and other highly developed countries near the top of the list.

Dr. Albert B. Russell of the U.S. National Institute of Dental Research, Bethesda, Md., told an international meeting of scientists that a study of tooth decay showed white people in Baltimore rank almost as poorly as the urbanized Aleuts of Alaska's National Guard.

The Aleuts have a record of missing and filled teeth about 60 times worse than people in Ethiopia.

The latter country — and nations of the Far East — take the honors for having the fewest decayed molars and other teeth, reported Dr. Russell.

He said there is other evidence to indicate that the Baltimore findings "can be taken as reasonably representative of the United States as a whole." He offered no views on where the Russians stand in the dental parade.

Russell said these and other findings of the global study — some of them marked by seeming paradoxes — tend to fortify the view that there is no single explanation for tooth-decay.

In particular, he indicated the findings re-emphasize the view that relative freedom from tooth decay among primitive peoples is due to something other than their nutrition and dietary status. He said such people enjoy such a record despite the fact they do not eat the so-called tooth-protective foods, nor brush their teeth.

Russell told about it in a report prepared for the 131st meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science — the world's largest general-science organization — whose yearly Christmastime conclaves are sometimes referred to as the "world series" of science.

DEAR ABBY:

Loose Talk Flows Freely

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been best friends with the couple next door for years. We play bridge together, have taken trips together and our children play together. One night (a few weeks ago) the husband went to bed early, so his wife came over to watch TV with us. She went home around midnight, but forgot her house key and was locked out. Her husband, being a very sound sleeper, didn't hear the doorbell. She came over to our bedroom window (not wishing to awaken our children by ringing our doorbell), and shouted up to us to help her get into her house. My husband put on his bathrobe and went outside to try to find an open window in their house while I kept ringing their phone, hoping to wake up her husband. I finally succeeded and my husband was home in five minutes.

One of the neighbors must have seen my friend under our bedroom window, and watched my husband join her in his bathrobe, and now we find ourselves in the middle of a big scandal! Some say we've been switching mates for years. Others say this woman is trying to break up my home. Anyway, the talk is all over town and we are afraid our children might hear it from their playmates. I can't go up and down the streets yelling it isn't true. What can we do? We can't all leave town. We own our homes, our husbands' jobs are here, and we can't afford to move.

INNOCENT VICTIM

ABBY

DEAR INNOCENT: Don't do anything. If you could afford to leave town, the move would only make you appear guilty. Worthwhile people neither believe gossip nor spread it. And the most wholehearted denial has yet to still one vicious tongue. Stay where you are and keep your sense of humor.

DEAR ABBY: I am disgusted with women. My husband plays with a well-known band. Women call him up and write to him from all over the country. Some of them are old enough to be his mother. I often travel with my husband and have actually seen women follow him to the door of the men's room! Any time now I expect to see one go in after him. Whatever happened to decent women? LISA

DEAR LISA: Decent women are still with us, so don't judge the entire sex by the women you've seen chasing your husband. Musicians are constantly being pursued by man-hungry women, but those who don't want to be bothered need only to ignore the glances, messages and overtures as soon as they get the pitch.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother of the 17-year-old boy, who tried to tell her that he should be allowed to stay out until midnight every night because "all his friends" could, fascinated me. I am the mother of five sons. My eldest (now married) tried the same stunt with me. I asked him for the names of the boys who had all the privileges he wanted and I telephoned their mothers in front of him. It turned out that all the boys were using the same story. They said OUR son had all the privileges THEY wanted. The other mothers were glad I called. Once my son learned that Mother could not be fooled, he quit trying.

A THANKFUL MOTHER

Cleveland Ends Rule of West in National Football League

'EVERYONE HAD A GOOD DAY'

Collier: 'Magnificent Effort'

CLEVELAND (AP) — His close friends call him George and he shakes hands with his left hand "because it's the one closer to my heart."

He's Blanton Collier, head coach of the National Football League champion Cleveland Browns—and he shook lots of hands Sunday after the Browns beat the Baltimore Colts 27-0 for the NFL title, their first since 1955.

Friends and well-wishers crammed the Browns' locker room to congratulate the bespectacled 58-year-old grandfather who was named head coach two seasons ago.

In a sometimes clipped Kentucky accent, Collier said, "I know it's corny, but it really was a magnificent team effort. The defense was just great and you've got to give them a lot of credit."

In two years, Collier has skippered the Browns to a 20-7-1 record and a championship. He is no stranger to Cleveland, however. This is his 11th season with the Browns and 36th year in coaching.

"I'm just a football nut," he said.

Collier's coaching thread winds back to Paris, Ky., high school, where he began studying pro football tactics by watching the Philadelphia Eagles work on the T-formation at nearby Bainbridge.

He devoured football knowledge. As an athletic specialist at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center in World War II, Collier used to hang around the practice field watching a coach named Paul Brown.

Brown wondered about the curious observer taking notes and it was the start of a long friendship.

Collier was on the ground floor as an assistant coach when the Browns broke into the All-American Conference in 1946.

Collier stayed with the Browns until 1954, then returned to his home state as head coach to succeed Paul Bryant at the University of Kentucky.

During his eight-year stay with the Wildcats, Collier had a young assistant who, he said, had the makings of a fine pro football coach. He was Don Shula, head coach of the Baltimore Colts.

Brown asked Collier to come back in 1962 and he did. That year the Browns had their second worst season (7-6-1) in 18 years of professional football. Art Modell, who bought the club in 1961, decided to change coaches.

He named Collier and it was typical of the man that he didn't accept until he first talked to Brown—his friend for 15 years.

Surrounded by newsmen Sunday, Collier fielded their questions on the fly, and, as has been his policy this season, didn't single out anyone or special praise.

"I can't think of anyone who didn't have a good day," he said. Quarterback Frank Ryan certainly did, and it was Collier who tutored the ex-Los Angeles Ram when Ryan came to Cleveland in 1962. He made Ryan a starter last season, and Frank refers to him as "the most complete coach I've ever known."

NO CHEER FOR LENNY . . . Unmindful of Baltimore Colts back Lenny Lyles (43), left, Cleveland Browns salute one another because they're National League champions. Knot of Browns includes linebacker Vince Costello (50), tackle Dick Schafrath (77), and subject of all the whoopla, and Gary Collins (only 6 shows). Collins scored three touchdowns in defeat of Baltimore by 27-0 score. (AP Photofax)

ONE-PUNCH BRAWL

Rainbow Meet: Quite a Fight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Eight of college basketball's Top Ten teams, led by Michigan and Wichita, must protect their high rankings in holiday tournaments tonight, but none is expected to have the in-law trouble that Coach Ladell Anderson of Utah State encountered in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu. Michigan, the No. 1 team, meets Manhattan in the first round of the Holiday Festival at New York. Second-ranked Wichita, which has lost only to Michigan, plays Villanova, one of nine major unbeatens, in the Quaker City semifinals at Philadelphia.

Six other teams play in five tournaments tonight while Minnesota No. 3, was scheduled to play an afternoon game, leaving sixth-ranked Duke as the only Top Ten team idle.

Utah State's Anderson was anything but idle Saturday night following his team's 94-91 overtime loss to the Hawaii Marines in a first-round game of the Rainbow tournament.

Upset with what he termed "poor officiating" Anderson rushed onto the floor immediately after the final buzzer and engaged in a midcourt conversation with one of the referees, Creighton Richards.

Suddenly, Jimmy Aiona, Richards' father-in-law, charged out of the stands, onto the floor and dropped Anderson with a right hook to the face.

His conversation ended, Anderson was taken to a hospital for treatment of a bloody nose and said:

"It was just one of these things that can happen in the heat of battle. I was upset over some bad calls, and now I'm sorry about the whole incident."

Aiona, a retired referee who heads the local referees organization, was arrested and charged with assault and battery after receiving a severe tongue-lashing from Mayor Neal S. Blaisdell of Honolulu, who witnessed the one-punch fight from the stands.

When the outburst finally was quelled, Wisconsin met Boston College and won 70-69 on Paul Moren's jump shot with 14 seconds left. The Rainbow's last two opening-round games are set for tonight.

Also on the schedule are games in 12 other major tournaments. Among the most interesting is the Quaker City Classic.

Wichita, 6-1, plays Villanova, 8-0, after annihilating Pitt 109-58 Saturday. Villanova defeated Penn, its Philadelphia neighbor, 32-47 in overtime.

In the other semifinal, seventh-ranked Illinois, 7-1, will try to halt St. Joseph's unbeaten string at eight. Illinois trampled NYU 102-79 while St. Joseph's whipped Holy Cross 82-63.

Michigan, 6-1, goes into the Holiday Festival as the favorite in a field of eight. The Wolverines, who lost to Nebraska, haven't played since they beat Butler last Wednesday.

The Los Angeles Classic has two Top Ten teams — Minnesota and fourth-ranked UCLA, which has lost only to Illinois in seven games. The Bruins meet Arizona in a first-round game tonight while Utah, 8-0, takes on Michigan State, Minnesota, 6-0, was paired with Washington in the afternoon.

One highly ranked team will fall in the Memphis State Classic at Memphis when eighth-ranked Indiana, 7-0, battles ninth-rated St. Louis, 6-1.

Explodes Myth Of Super-Team

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland has ended the rule of the West in the National Football League by exploding the myth of Baltimore's super-team on a grey, wintry Sunday afternoon.

When Frank Ryan, Gary Collins, Jim Brown and Co. finished rambling over the shocked Colts 27-0, they had exposed Johnny Unitas and Lenny Moore as ordinary mortals, not supermen.

Because Baltimore rolled to 11 straight victories in the West and wound up with a brilliant 12-2 record, the Colts had been installed as solid seven-point favorites to chase the Browns into Lake Erie.

The Colts' supermen were supposed to rush Ryan so fiercely that he would spend the day flat on his back, scanning the snow clouds overhead.

Baltimore's well-balanced offense was expected to shatter the Browns' defense, poorest in the league in the season statistics, and expose their pass defenders as inept pretenders.

To the contrary, Ryan was thrown for a loss only once. The mathematical wizard threw three touchdown passes and outplayed the great Unitas.

Collins set a playoff record by grabbing three scoring passes and Brown bulldozed the Colts' league-leading defense for 114 yards on 27 carries and also caught three passes for 37 additional yards.

Just to rub it in, 40-year-old Lou Groza kicked two more field goals and ran his point total to a record 49 in eight championship games.

All of this was a delight to most of the 79,544 fans in the vast wind-swept stadium on the lake front. In the final seconds, they demolished the goal posts at one end of the field while the officials let the final 26 seconds tick away.

The West had won six of the last seven title games and had humiliated the East by running up a 10-4 score in inter-conference play during the regular season.

Until the aroused Browns ended the string, the only Eastern triumph since 1956 had been Philadelphia's 17-13 squeaker over Green Bay in 1960. Detroit, Baltimore, Green Bay and Chicago all had taken turns, deflating the pride of the East.

Both Coach Blanton Collier of the Browns and Don Shula of the Colts, a unique teacher-student combination, had based their game plans on ball control. Each tried to establish — to use a coaching word — their ground game. Collier succeeded and Shula didn't. It was as simple as that.

After a scoreless first half, the Browns struck quickly for 17 points in the third quarter with the help of two short punts of 25 and 27 yards by the Colts' Tom Gilbourn against a 20-mile-an-hour wind.

Groza's 43-yard field goal was the first blow. Then came Ryan's 18-yard scoring toss to Collins, the 6-foot-4 flanker from Maryland, and Ryan's 42-yard TD pass to the same powerful receiver.

When the Colts dug in and stopped the Browns on the goal line early in the final period, Cleveland had to settle for a nine-yard field goal by Groza.

Ryan's 51-yard pitch to Collins, who made a most remarkable catch in heavy traffic, concluded the scoring.

It was the Browns' first title since 1955 and the first since Jim Brown joined the club as a rookie in 1957. They were beaten by Detroit in that '57 game. In fact, the West still holds a lopsided 20-12 edge in the annual championship game series, thanks largely to the Bears and Packers.

Ryan's abilities as a quarterback had been questioned by many, including some Cleveland fans, during several in-and-out performances. No more. Ryan hit with 11 of 18 for 206 yards, Unitas with 12 of 20 for 95 yards. "They just couldn't stop Jimmy (Brown) and that slowed up their rushing on me," said Ryan. "If Jimmy wasn't human, I would have run him on every play."

"As I've said before, there's no team in the NFL that can defend the Cleveland Browns. When we lose, we beat ourselves."

The Browns, who had smarted under the lash of their many critics, broke into the dressing room yelling, "How's that for laugh chumps?"

An unnamed NFL coach allegedly had made such a disparaging remark about the Browns earlier in the season.

"Everybody picked us to lose," said Dick Modzelewski, who had known titles before when he played with the New York Giants. "We shut them out. That's the best part."

Collins won the car that is awarded by a magazine to the outstanding player but it was difficult to single out any one Cleveland player. Ryan was superb. So was Brown. The offensive line gave Ryan great protection and the defense outdid itself.

Shula pointed to his team's failure in giving up the ball twice on fumbles and twice on interceptions. Unitas had been intercepted only six times during the regular 14-game season.

"We had zero points on the scoreboard," said Shula. "I wasn't satisfied with anyone. Their defense did a heck of a job but we couldn't get anything done. They got us backed into the corner and we couldn't get out."

If it proved nothing else, the game proved that teacher sometimes knows best. Collier used to be Shula's boss when he was head coach at Kentucky and Shula was an assistant.

ANOTHER FIELD GOAL . . . Up goes ball from toe of Browns' kicking ace, Lou Groza (76), during National Football League championship game with Baltimore Sunday.

Groza's field goal — one of two — and three extra points ran his title game record total to 49 points, tying record set by Andy Robustelli of New York. (AP Photofax)

Cotter Meets Minnehaha In Tournament Tonight

By GARY EVANS
Daily News Sports Editor

Cotter, seeking to enhance its position as a coming-out-state basketball power, molds the hot hand of a junior forward and the rebounding prowess of a high-stepping senior into its foundation for success in the second annual Cotter Invitational Tournament.

The frenzied two-day tournament sings its beginning at Winona State's Memorial Hall tonight, the Ramblers assigned to the dismantling of Minnehaha against Minnehaha Academy in a 7 o'clock game.

To complete the debut the game being billed as a "big one" by all connected with the meet will send Rochester Lourdes against Minneapolis DeLaSalle at 9.

IF THINGS go according to form, the Ramblers will tackle DeLaSalle in a repeat of the two teams' meeting for third place in last year's state tournament in Tuesday night's championship battle. The consolation finals are scheduled for 7 o'clock Tuesday.

Cotter will be one of two city cage teams in tournament activity tonight. St. Mary's carrying a 5-2 record, bounds into the Nebraska Holiday Tournament at Fremont, Neb. Ken Wilgen's Redmen tackle Dana College at 7 p.m. with Midland, the host school, meeting Kearney State at 9 p.m.

Winona State bounces into action Tuesday night in the Carleton College tournament. The Warriors will go against host Carleton at 7 p.m. with Midland and Beloit playing at 9.

Back to the local scene, Cotter has discovered a new combination in victories over St. Paul Hill and Rochester Lourdes prior to Christmas.

THE NEW Rambler look has Chuck Kulas, who has 13 and 16 point performances in his last two games, and Dan Pelowski as its principal figures.

plete the front line with center Pelowski, Captain John Nett Jr., and Bob Allaire form the back-court tandem.

"The kids are coming along much better than I expected," Nett has said, showing he is pleased with his club's present 4-2 record.

The Ramblers will be meeting a team that has lost six straight, Minnehaha Academy is coached by Wendell Carlson. In the tournament a year ago, the Indians were beaten by Lourdes in the first round, but rebounded to upset St. Paul Cretin in the consolation tilt. Cotter went on to the championship with a 32-28 decision over Lourdes in a game that was thrillingly close in spite of the low score.

THE RAMBLERS were forced to combat a slow-paced Lourdes crew that was content to hold the ball, the win finally coming in an overtime session.

Although Cotter, which went on to compile a 22-3 record and finish third in the state tournament, was favored to win last year's meet, DeLaSalle is the ranking power in this year's affair.

Dick Reinhard's Islanders have a 4-2 record after losses in their first two games. They climaxed their pre-Christmas schedule with a win over defending state champion Benilde.

Alma, Wabasha St. Felix and Ellsworth doubleheaders also get under way tonight.

AT ALMA, Cochran-Fountain City opposes Taylor in a 7 p.m. game with the unbeaten Rivermen following against Arcadia at 8:30. St. Felix collides with Peplin tonight at Wabasha after Arkansas and Rollins-Holy Trinity meet in a game scheduled for a 7 o'clock start.

At Ellsworth, Red Wing and River Falls play at 7:30 with Prescott and Ellsworth following at 9 p.m.

In addition to Tuesday finales to the tournaments and doubleheaders that begin tonight, action is scheduled at Mabel, Cannon Falls and Plainview Tuesday.

SIX CLASSICS TO BE SHOWN NATIONALLY

Set for Weekend Marathon?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While a quartet of seniors on Georgia's Sun Bowl winners looked forward to bright futures in professional football, storm clouds lingered over the Blue-Gray all-star game at Montgomery, Ala.

Arm chair quarterbacks, meanwhile, savored the prospect of a television marathon New Year's Day and Saturday, when six classics — Rose, Cotton, Orange, Sugar, Gator and East-West Shrine — will be beamed nationally.

Ray Rismiller, Jim Wilson, Frank Lukewicz and Wayne Swindford signed National Football League contracts last Saturday after leading the Bulldogs past Texas Tech 7-0 in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.

The Philadelphia Eagles signed fullback Landrewicz, who scored the game's only touchdown on a two-yard plunge and 225-pound tackle Rismiller, their second-round draft choice. Wilson, a 245-pound tackle who spearheaded Georgia's tenacious defense in the Sun Bowl and was named the outstanding player in the game, and Swindford signed with the San Francisco 49ers.

Jim Zanios, Texas Tech's 210-pound fullback, agreed to terms with the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL.

At Montgomery, where Penn State quarterback Gary Wyden pressed the Blue stars to a 10-6 victory over the Gray in the rain, game officials, facing a loss of prestige because of their segregation stand, pondered a possible lifting of the racial barrier which has cost them a national television contract.

A Blue-Gray source said Sunday he believes the future of the 27-year fixture will be insured only if Negro gridgers are invited to participate.

The National Broadcasting Co. discontinued its telecast of the game last year after officials refused to alter their racial policy.

Saturday's game, which drew a crowd of 16,000 and was televised regionally into six states on a special network, was a defensive battle decided by Wyden's 30-yard scoring pass to Bill Cronin of Boston College in the third period.

The Orange Bowl pairing of Texas and Alabama, the 1963 and 1964 national champion, respectively, heads the New Year's bill and completes an NBC triple-header. The Miami attraction, to be played for the first time after dark, has an 8 p.m. EST kickoff.

The Crimson Tide, unbeaten in 10 regular-season games, and the Longhorns, winners in nine of 10 starts, follow an afternoon card that matches Louisiana State, 7-2-1, and Syracuse, 7-3, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans; Arkansas, 10-0, and Nebraska, 9-1, in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas and Michigan, 8-1, and Oregon State, 8-2, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.

The Sugar and Rose classics will be aired by NBC, starting at 2 p.m. EST, and 5 p.m. EST, respectively. CBS will carry the Cotton Bowl scrap beginning at 2 p.m. EST.

Florida State, 8-1, meets Oklahoma, 6-3-1, in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., and the East and West All-Stars clash in the Shrine Bowl at San Francisco on Saturday. The FSU-Southern game can be seen on ABC-TV, starting at 2 p.m. EST. The West Coast action, beginning at 5 p.m. EST, will be televised by NBC.
