Churchill Weaker, Life Slowly Ebbing Away

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill, 88, is recovering slowly from a heart attack, a physician said yesterday, but his illness had added to his labors, a new medical bulletin said.

The cause of the illness is still being worked out by medical boards. It is known that there were no underlying medical conditions.

The place of his life is still under investigation by the medical boards. It is known that there were no underlying medical conditions.

HARRIS SURVEY
Poll Shows Popularity Of LBJ High

By LOUIS RAMBER
Special Correspondent

As President of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson enjoys the highest popularity rating ever given a chief executive by the public. His policies and judgment are regarded differently by the public than at any time since he became President. The reason is that the public is beginning to believe in his leadership. (November 1963)

The following table compares the public's reaction now:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>POLL SHOWS</th>
<th>1963</th>

A profile of Mr. Johnson as seen by the public distinguishes his strong qualities and weaknesses:

- Integrity: See him as a man of action, not a politician.
- Leadership: He is the most effective President in office.
- Credibility: He is believable and trustworthy.
- Personal Strengths: He is strong, confident, and decisive.
- Personal Weaknesses: He is too Southern, too corny, and not strong.

Student Killed at Gainesville

GAINESVILLE, Wis. (Special) - Three University of Wisconsin-Gainesville students were killed in a car crash that occurred on Highway 51 near Gainesville on Friday.

According to the University of Wisconsin-Gainesville spokesman, the students—Evelyn Johnson, 21, from Madison; Sarah Miller, 20, from Cottage Grove; and Brian Anderson, 22, from Madison—were killed in the crash.

The crash occurred on Highway 51 near the Gainesville exit, according to the Wisconsin State Patrol. The patrol said the crash involved a single vehicle and occurred around 6:30 p.m.

The students were returning from a trip to Madison, according to the University of Wisconsin-Gainesville spokesman. The on-duty police officer at the time of the crash was off-duty at the time of the crash.

The campus was closed on Saturday in honor of the students.

The cause of the crash is under investigation.

In other news, a local police officer was injured in a car accident on Highway 51 near the Gainesville exit on Saturday.

The officer, who was off-duty at the time of the crash, was taken to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

Closed School Districts Nearing July 1 Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Washington Superior Court judge was considering Monday whether to issue a temporary restraining order to prevent the state from meeting its July 1 deadline to end 10 school districts.

There were no immediate indications that a restraining order would be sought.

Today's decisions will be largely symbolic as the state's courts have already set a July 1 deadline for the district's closure.

Districts that don't meet the deadline could face legal challenges, but there have been no reports of such action.

In the past, the state has had a policy of allowing districts to remain open in areas where the population is expected to grow.

The move to close the districts is part of a larger effort to reduce the number of school districts in Washington, which has the highest number of districts in the United States.

The state has argued that having a large number of districts leads to increased costs and inefficiencies.

However, many districts have argued that they are essential to serve the needs of their communities.

Today's decision by the court is expected to be closely watched by other districts that are facing similar deadlines.

The court will likely consider whether the state's actions are constitutional and whether the districts have sufficient time to appeal the decision.

The state has said that it is committed to providing a quality education for all students and that the action is necessary to achieve this goal.

However, some districts have argued that the state's actions are arbitrary and that they are being forced to close schools that they believe are providing a good education.

The court is expected to take several weeks to make a decision.

In the meantime, the districts will continue to operate until the court's ruling.

The state has said that it will continue to work with districts to help them meet the deadline and that it will provide additional time if necessary.

The court's decision is likely to be appealed and the case could end up in the Supreme Court.

The outcome of the case could have significant implications for the future of school districts in Washington and other states.

By George McConnell

The closure of the districts is a complex issue that involves multiple factors, including population trends, economic conditions, and political considerations.

The court will likely consider the impact of the closures on students, teachers, and communities.

The court will also likely consider the constitutional implications of the closures, including the right to an education and the right to be free from arbitrary government actions.

The court's decision is likely to be closely watched by other districts that are facing similar deadlines.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

SPLIT LEVEL TO PLEASE A LARGE FAMILY

By John Land

For nearly 60 years, split level homes have been the most popular in all sections of the country as a house which offers a revolutionary solution to the problem of getting two or more bedrooms into a single floor. The architect is S. H. Russe of the design bureau of the House of the Week series

As a part of an "all-curves" trend in the lower level, a split bedroom is ready if the family's needs in area to some extent. This design has been achieved in the "Dine En Esperance Home," presented by the Electro Home for the March 1965 issue of "Building Record." The layout is shown in the diagram on page 10 of "Building Record." Among the features of this house are the following:

H-56 Statistics

Design H-56 has a living room with a fireplace, a spacious dining room, a family room, a kitchen and a laundry room. A garage is also included. The living room has a bay window with a view of the outdoors. A separate entrance from the garage leads directly into the living room. A beautiful fireplace which can be closed off with a door is located in the center of the living room. A built-in bookcase is provided for storage of books and other items. The split level home is one of the most popular types of homes in the United States. It offers a variety of advantages, including: lower cost of construction, easier access to all rooms, and a more efficient use of space. The split level home is a two-story house with a lower level and an upper level. The lower level usually contains the bedrooms, bathrooms, and laundry room, while the upper level contains the living room, dining room, kitchen, and garage. The split level home is a popular choice for families with growing children, as it provides plenty of space for everyone. However, it is important to keep in mind that the split level home may not be the best choice for everyone. It is important to consider the needs and preferences of the family when choosing a home. NASON ON EDUCATION

TV, Homework Won't Mix

By KELSEY J. NASON, ED. D. 9 CHARLES

Your television set helps serve you well with an array of valuable educational programs. But it can also be a harmful tool for children, especially for those who spend too much time in front of it.

In the classroom, it is a great way to enhance learning and motivation. It can help students to learn new concepts and techniques, but it can also be a distraction. The key is to use television in moderation and to provide other educational activities to complement it.

For example, children can use television to learn about history, science, and other subjects. They can also watch educational programs that feature experts discussing current events or teaching about different cultures. These programs can help children to expand their knowledge and understanding of the world around them.

On the other hand, it is important to be aware of the negative effects of too much screen time. Too much television can interfere with children's sleep and cause physical problems like obesity. It can also lead to decreased attention spans and decreased academic performance.

In conclusion, television can be a valuable tool for education, but it must be used wisely. By providing a variety of educational activities and limiting screen time, we can help children to reap the benefits of television while avoiding its potential drawbacks.

I hope this information is helpful to you.

Sincerely,

Kelsey J. Nason, Ed. D.

Dramatic Putt Helps Ellis Win Tournament

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — The dramatic putt meant the world to Ellis. It helped him win the California Open golf tournament, which he had long sought.

Ellis, a 32-year-old resident of Los Angeles, holed out a 12-foot putt on the 18th green to win the tournament by one stroke over Tom P italiano and Tom Weiskopf.

The win is the third of Ellis's career and comes after he had come close to winning several other major tournaments in recent years. He now joins the ranks of golf's greats.
