Gemini Chit-Chat: Walk in Space Described

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Here is the transcript of the conversation among astronauts Edward H. White II and James A. McDivitt and capsule communicator Virgil I. Grissom while White walked in space outside the Gemini 4 spacecraft.

McDivitt: "Tell us what you think."

White: "Looks like we're coming up on the coast of California."

McDivitt: "One thing about it

Major Edward H. White

when Ed gets out there and starts wiggling around it sure makes the spacecraft tough to control."

Grissom: "Is he taking pictures?"

McDivitt: "Not yet."

Grissom: "Take some pictures."

White: "Okay, I'm gonna work on getting some pictures now."

McDivitt: "Okay, get out front so I can see you. I've only got about three of them."

White: "Okay."

McDivitt: "Where are you?"

White: "I'm out front now."

Grissom: "You've got about five minutes."

(White explained to McDivitt he was going to do something, but the transmission was garbled.)

McDivitt: "Do it slowly and I'll take your picture."

McDivitt: "Just float around. Right now we're pointed just about straight down to the ground."

(White made observations that were garbled in transmission.)

McDivitt: "Let me take a close-up picture here."

White: "Yeah."

McDivitt: "Can you see the

(A pause)

McDivitt: "You're smearing up my windshield, you dirty dog."

(A laugh from both)

McDivitt: "See how it's all smeared up there?"

White: "Yeah."

McDivitt: "Looks like there's a coating on the outside and you rubbed it off. That's exactly what you've done."

McDivitt: "Ed, I don't know exactly where we are, but it looks like we're over Texas. As a matter of fact, you know, that looks like Houston down below us."

Grissom: "Gemini 4, Houston."

McDivitt: "Hey, Gus, as a matter of fact it looks like we're right over Houston."

Grissom: "Gemini 4, Gemini 4, Houston."

McDivitt: "Yeah, that's Galveston Bay right there."

White: "Yeah."

McDivitt: "Hey, Ed can you see in your side of the spacecraft?"

White: "Yeah."

camera here?"

White: "Yeah."

McDivitt: "Is it pointing at you?"

White: "No, not now, no. Turn it. I'm not in the picture."

McDivitt: "Which way?"

(A garbled reply from White)

McDivitt: "Now don't get back there where the ah."

White (interrupting): "No, I'm not behind you, I'm out in front."

Grissom, repeatedly amid garbled McDivitt-White conversation: "Gemini 4, Houston; Gemini 4, Houston; Gemini 4, Houston."

White: "I've only shot about three or four pictures."

McDivitt: "All right. I've taken a lot, but they're not very good. You're in too close for most of them. I finally put the focus down to about eight feet or so."

Grissom: "Gemini 4, Houston."

White, laughing but garbled: "I'm not coming in."

McDivitt: "We've got three and a half more days to go, Buddy."

White, reluctantly: "I'm coming."

McDivitt: "Okay."

Grissom: "You've got about four minutes to Bermuda LOS thing about the reference you were talking about — it looks like you're right."

Grissom: "Gemini 4, Houston."

McDivitt: "(garbled) The flight director has got to say."

Grissom, distinctly: "The flight director says, 'Get back in.'"

McDivitt: "Got any messages for us?"

Grissom, urgently: "Gemini 4, get back in."

McDivitt: "Okay. We're going to come back in now."

Grissom: "Roger, we've been trying to talk to you for a while here."

White, upon receiving order to return to the capsule: "I'm just fine."

McDivitt: "No, back in. Come on."

White, laughing but garbled: "I'm not coming in."

McDivitt: "We've got three and a half more days to go, Buddy."

White, reluctantly: "I'm coming."

McDivitt: "Okay."

Grissom: "You've got about four minutes to Bermuda LOS

(Loss of Signal.)"

McDivitt to White: "Okay, okay, don't worry about a thing. Just come on in."

McDivitt: "How you doing there?"

White: "I'm doing great."

McDivitt: "Good."

McDivitt: "Okay, let's ooops, take it easy now."

White: "I'm doing... I'm right on top of it, right now."

McDivitt: "Can't you get a hold there, Ed?"

White: "Yeah, I'm (garbled)." McDivitt, answering a garbled question from White: "Nope, come on in."

White again tells McDivitt something.

McDivitt, insistently: "Ed, come on in here."

White: "All right."

McDivitt: "Okay, let's not lose (garbled)."

White: "I don't quite have it."

McDivitt: "Little bit more."

White: "Got it?"

McDivitt: "Okay, I got it."

McDivitt and White exchange more garbled conversation.

McDivitt: "Come on, let's get back in here before it gets dark."

White: "Okay."

The two exchange more garbled conversation.

McDivitt: "Come on now."

Flight control: "Give him a call again, Gus."

Grissom: "Gemini 4, Houston."

White: "I'm fixing to come in the house."

Grissom: "Gemini 4, Houston Cap-Com."

(A delay and garbled conversation.)

McDivitt: "Any messages for us, Houston?"

Grissom, sternly: "Yeah, get back in."

Grissom: "You getting him back in?"

McDivitt: "He's standing in the seat now and his legs are down below the instrument panel."

Grissom: "Okay, get him back in now. You're going to have Bermuda lost in about 20 (seconds)."

McDivitt: "He's coming in. He's having some trouble getting back in the space cabin — looks like."

Grissom: "You got your cabin lights up bright in case you hit darkness?"

McDivitt gave a garbled reply.

Gemini Control reported signal lost in Bermuda. McDivitt returned to the network a few seconds later and talked to Grissom. It was garbled on the air.

Someone asked Grissom what McDivitt said. Grissom replied:

"He said he was busy and had rather not talk to us."

As White slipped back into the capsule, he said to McDivitt:

"It's the saddest moment of my life."

McDivitt laughed.

Astronauts Settle Down to Space Routine

Viet Troops Joke Before Deadly Battle

By JOHN T. WHEELER

BA GIA, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Vietnamese troops joked casually among themselves as they set out last Saturday for a road security patrol toward the town of Quang Ngai six miles away. An hour later most of them were dead in the opening battle for Quang Ngai, one of the bloodiest of the Vietnamese war.

Nearly 200 government troops were killed and more than 200 were wounded. Many were still missing days after the battle. The Viet Cong suffered about 600 casualties by American count.

The carefree company of the 51st Regiment's 1st Battalion was swinging down the road when a hail of fire broke across it. At the same time a second company of the same battalion was hit at a security post farther down the road.

Lead elements of a Viet Cong reinforced regiment had stuck. The outnumbered government troops sent a desperate call to the Ba Gia outpost for help. A third company was dispatched quickly. It also was ground up.

Rolvag Will Wait Decision on Redistricting

ST. PAUL (AP) — Gov. Karl Rolvag said today that if there is a court test of his right to veto reappointment legislation he will not call a special session until there is a decision.

Some Conservative leaders, including Speaker Lloyd Duxbury of Caledonia, have argued that legislative reapportionment is solely a legislative function and that the governor has no veto power.

Duxbury indicated at the end of the session that he believed there should be a test in the state courts in the validity of the governor's veto of the reappointment bill sent to him in the closing days of the regular session.

Duxbury said today that there have been informal meetings of Conservative leaders to discuss a possible court test, but that no definite plans have been made.

Sen. John Zwach of Walnut Grove, said he would like to see a special session, but hoped there would be a court test before any call.

The governor said today that the timing of a special session—if he decides to call one—would also be affected by action on Congress on the excise tax reduction program.

in fire from carefully prepared ambush sites.

Three Americans with the battalion managed to slip into a cane field. They reached safety one day later.

The final Vietnamese company that started to the rescue also was hit by the Viet Cong and retreated to Ba Gia. They withstood nine attacks in the next few hours.

In Quang Ngai, capital of Quang Ngai Province, frantic radio calls sent government and American officers into action. They knew that an expected Viet Cong push was under way.

Year-Around Jobs Camp For McCoy

SPARTA, Wis. (AP) — The government is considering establishment of a year-around job Corps training center at the nearby Camp McCoy military reservation. Sparta officials and businessmen were told Thursday.

Pat Healey, director of community relations for the Job Corps program, said he was currently trying to determine community response to the plan but if the center were established it would have a constant population of 2,000 to 2,500 trainees. He said it would create about 400 new jobs, divided about evenly between professional staff and maintenance workers.

Healey said the government would expect to spend about $10 million in the first two years setting up the center, and he estimated the economic benefits to the community between $4 million and $5 million annually.

Johnson Asks Russia To Join Peace Quest

CHICAGO (AP) — President Johnson has told the people of the Soviet Union he wants them to withdraw support of aggression and subversion and join the United States in a common search for peace.

Appearing Thursday night before several thousand Cook County Democrats who paid $100 a plate to hear him deliver his first on-the-record speech to a political audience since the November election, Johnson said at the outset: "I do not believe this is an appropriate place tonight for partisanship."

Viet War Has to Be Won On Ground, Humphrey Says

WASHINGTON (AP) Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says air strikes alone won't do the job and the war in Viet Nam will have to be won on the ground by South Vietnamese forces.

Humphrey said in an Associated Press interview he believes that South Vietnamese fighting units — given sufficient time — can subdue their Communist opponents.

He said he thinks the Viet Cong will call it quits once the Communists become convinced the United States is determined to stay to the end in South Viet Nam.

Humphrey said that while a year or two ago he had deep concern over U.S. involvement in the area he now strongly supports the kind of action President Johnson has taken there.

"I'm still concerned, but I know what we're doing is what we have to do," he said.

Some questions and answers on Viet Nam:
Q. Do you really believe we can win there?
A. If we have the patience and the will and the determination, and if we seek no quick and easy answers and any sudden victories, I believe we can win. I think we'll have to win on the ground, and I think we'll have to win in South Viet Nam.

I think that the procedures which are being presently applied show the signs of success. There will be periods of time when it will look rather dismal, but as long as we remember that we're essentially an air power and a sea power, and as long as we maintain secure areas on the coast lines and start to expand that perimeter — seeking to pacify as the South Vietnamese and our forces move inland — I think that in due time, if we stick with it and do not expect too much in a hurry, that we definitely can win.

Q. You said we'd have to win on the ground. Do you mean win with our ground forces?
A. No. I mean that while I do support the bombing — I think this has been a necessary part of strengthening the morale of South Viet Nam and of stopping down and slowing down the flow of goods and manpower into South Viet Nam from North Viet Nam — that ultimately this conflict will have to be won in South Viet Nam. This is where you win this battle. And I'm convinced that we can win it in South Viet Nam, particularly if the South Vietnamese will show some degree of stability in their government and the willingness to make some concessions to the realities of this war.

White Back to Normal After Walk in Space

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON, Texas (AP) — Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White whirled into the second day of their marathon space mission today, their spirits high and their flight plan back on schedule after some hectic early hours during which White strolled in space.

The Mission Control Center said everything appeared favorable for the Gemini 4 spacecraft to complete its full 97-hour, 50-minute mission.

If there are no hitches, America's longest manned space flight will end at 12:06 p.m. (Winona Time) Monday with a parachute splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean 400 miles southwest of Bermuda.

During a pass over the Houston Control Center on the 14th orbit today, White told capsule communicator Virgil Grissom a few more details about his 20-minute excursion into space during orbit No. 3 Thursday.

White described as "vivid blue" the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean. He said he clearly saw Houston and Galveston Bay as he floated on the end of a golden lifeline more than 100 miles above the earth.

He said he even saw Clear Lake, about 3 miles long and 1 1/2 miles wide, near the Houston homes of both astronauts.

White said the jet-gun maneuvering unit he used made it much easier to move about outside the capsule. When he wasn't using it, he said, he had difficulty getting around.

White also said he had walked on the equipment section of the Gemini 4 during his excursion. "It looked like I was right on top of it," he said, "It's kinda hard to get traction."

Then Grissom passed on some news from home. He reported that the Hawks, a Pee-Wee League baseball team for which McDivitt's 8-year-old son Mike plays, defeated the Falcons, 3-2. McDivitt was asleep at the time the word was relayed.

John Hodge, the overnight flight director, told newsmen today that during the night McDivitt and White managed to get back on the original flight plan.

The plan had been disrupted during the first three orbits when McDivitt made a futile attempt to catch and rendezvous with another satellite — the burned-out third stage of the Titan 2 rocket that boosted them into orbit.

After expending about 40 percent of his fuel, McDivitt abandoned the effort. The chase contributed to a one-orbit delay in White's space excursion.

Hodge said that throughout the night, the Gemini 4 was allowed to drift on its orbital path without any expenditure of fuel.

Hodge said two orbit-changing maneuvers would be dropped from the flight and there would be some curtailment of scientific experiments that require spacecraft maneuvering.

He said McDivitt and White were getting used to sleeping in space after initial "tossing and turning" periods. Each slept well on their second four-hour slumber period, he reported.

"Now that we're back on a regular schedule," Hodge said, "we'll be able to start working out compatible, work, sleep and eat cycles for future long-duration flights."

Cotter Achievement Awards Presented

Cotter High School students with outstanding records of academic achievement and participation in extracurricular activities were honored at an awards assembly in the Cotter physical education building this morning.

The all-school assembly — to which parents of award winners were invited — was held on the final day of the school year with commencement exercises for the 141 members of the 1965 Cotter graduating class scheduled for 8 p.m. in the physical education building.

REBECCA Reinarts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Reinarts, 3941 6th St., Goodview, and Dan Pelowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Pelowski, 316 Carimona St., were introduced as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of this year's class.

Becky maintained a scholastic average of 3.54 during her four years at Cotter and Pelowski ranked second in the class with a 3.51 average. Pelowski is the retiring Student Council president.

Named Cotter "Student of the Year" was William Browne, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Browne Jr., 77 E. Howard St. The award is made each year to the student who exhibits outstanding qualities of moral integrity, leadership, loyalty and citizenship. Browne has been president of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade during his senior year and is president of the senior class.

David Steadman and Susan Bernatz were recipients of the American Legion citizenship awards. Kathy Quinlan was designated "Outstanding Girl" and John Nett Jr. "Outstanding Boy." The latter awards are made for character, loyalty to Cotter and respect for authority.

THE JOHN SNEC Memorial Award was presented to Craig Zeches for outstanding scholastic achievement, courtesy and character. The award to a junior boy is made annually in memory of John Snek, a member of the Cotter class of 1963 and was initiated by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Snek.

Kathy Walsh, Marcia Ward and Jean Dorsch received awards for outstanding school spirit and John Weimerskirch, Charles Nixon and Jean Chapita for leadership qualities. Bonnie Chapman, Rosemary Pulchinski, Gregory Jersek, Louise Cunningham, Ellen Casper, Ronald Schneider and Mary Schultz received citations for special help to all during their years at Cotter.

John Nett Jr. was named "Athlete of the Year," Michael Schoener the sportsmanship award and Dan Pelowski the Board Approves Two Variances

Two variance appeals were given unanimous approval Thursday night by the Board of Zoning Appeals.

The Miller firm was given permission to build an addition on the southwest corner of its building at 566 E. Front St. The annex would be in alignment with the existing front of the building and would thus be nearer the front lot line than the regulation 25-foot setback for structures in the zone. The addition will provide loading facilities for adjacent railroad trackage.

Fawcett's application to construct two illuminated signs at its new funeral home, 1476 W. Broadway, was routinely approved. Such signs are not permitted under regulations for residential zones unless variances are granted. Each of the signs, 68 by 42 inches, will be two feet above ground level. One is to face Broadway, the other West 5th Street.

Funny, some days one feels like a million, life is beautiful, and in essence, you'd like to live forever. Then before you know it, aggravation injects itself, you feel emotionally disturbed, tensions form, and you conclude ya should've stayed in bed . . . unless you know how to be happy.

There's something about an even-tempered person that wears well. You probably know someone who, no matter what or when, appears to be always pleasant. Such a person either has no problems, or controls his emotions, so even when under pressure he still is basically happy. The question is: how does he do it? Apparently it's a matter of values.

If a man or woman becomes engrossed in the immediate situation, it could have the same result emotionally as when one holds a pencil up to his eye and can't see a large pillar a few feet away. Often you will hear the explanation, "I'm sorry, I was so worked up that I snapped without thinking." But the question is, how do we achieve such tranquility that even when things go wrong, we sustain a down-to-earth attitude that leaves margin enough to allow one to be civil to his fellow-man?

MOSTLY BY establishing some proper values. When we get up in the morning, we really ought to look around us and reflect all the good things that life holds in store . . . The ability to fulfill our tasks, the blessings of having family and friends; the privilege of being free; being thankful for whatever education we possess and the ability to learn more at will. Now with these and a multitude of other blessings, ours for the asking, one has cause to be happy.

Like a small quarter pound weight can't tip the scale carrying a pound weight, neither can a momentary set-back upset the equilibrium of a happy man bent on appreciating life. Being negative is often the line of least resistance, but it has a way of snowballing into a damaging plague of attitude, predestined to destroy rather than build life.

HE WHO is constantly a grouchy, despondent, and obsessed with his misfortunes, simply has a poor set of values, or he's sick, sick, sick. How about it. Are you happy? If not, or if you're easily upset and your sunny day turns to misery, I suggest you start tomorrow to establish some good values conducive to being happy. Here's how.

Before you retire for the night, write down all your blessings — things you can be happy about, and then the first thing in the morning, read them over two or three times. Get all these good things in your mind, and be happy. You'll be surprised how this good set of values will have a way of sustaining you, even under pressure.

Someone has said that a man wrapped up in himself makes a small parcel. Thought-provoking, isn't it?

A 9-year-old Winona boy who fell 25 feet down the bluff near Devil's Cave in Bluffs Park Thursday afternoon regained consciousness this morning and was listed in fair condition by officials at Community Memorial Hospital.

Meanwhile, a Rollingsstone boy injured in a fall at his home Monday remained in fair condition at the hospital, still only semi-conscious, according to the official.

ROGER MEIER, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald S. Meier, 1129 W. Mark St., was climbing the bluff near Devil's Cave with a younger brother Thursday about 2:15 p.m. when his foot slipped on a loose rock and he fell, according to police.

Peter Flint, a counselor at the Catholic Children's Home, 211 Huff St., was the only adult present when the Meier youth took his fall. He had led two youths from the home on a hike to the cave and there met a group of boys including the Meier brothers.

The two Meier boys started to climb farther up the bluff. Flint heard a noise he thought was a stone kicked loose by one of the boys, then young Meier landed with a thump near the cave mouth, 10 feet from the counselor.

FLINT SENT a couple of boys to call for an ambulance. He himself went to Roger and found him unconscious, lying on his back.

The counselor wanted to avoid moving the fallen youth, not knowing what his injuries were. However, young Meier began to vomit, and Flint had to turn him on his stomach in order to clear the youth's air passage.

In turning young Roger, Flint had lifted the youth onto his knee. He decided to carry him down after all; and, with two boys clearing brush and fallen trees from his path, Flint carefully carried the boy to a road near the foot of the bluff where an ambulance waited.

The police report said that young Meier had no apparent broken bones.

RICHARD STIEHM, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stiehm, Rollingsstone, was still under observation and treatment at the hospital today — the fourth since he fell down a flight of stairs into the basement of his home.

Young Stiehm was reported by Sheriff's Deputy Lamar Fort to have stopped breathing just after the fall. His breathing was restored before an ambulance arrived Monday at about 1 p.m., but he has not regained full consciousness since the accident.

A hospital official said today that the boy's eyes are open and that he will respond to orders to roll onto his side and the like. Although his eyes follow the figures of those in his room, he cannot talk, the official said.

Surgery on the Rollingsstone boy is not contemplated at this time, the official said. Young Richard's condition has not changed since Tuesday morning.

Winonan Fined For Hatching Wild Duck Eggs

Earl N. Madland, 528 E. Front St., pleaded guilty Wednesday in Goodview justice court to a charge of possession of wild mallard duck eggs and paid a $25 fine and $5 costs.

Game Warden Francis Teske brought the charge against Madland after he discovered the Winonan trying to hatch the eggs. A federal permit is required to hatch wild duck eggs, Teske said today.

Justice Lewis E. Albert imposed sentence on Madland, after hearing his guilty plea.

Steamboat Days Buttons Go On Sale Tonight

Steamboat Days buttons, which admit their wearers to all events during Winona's mid-summer festival, go on sale tonight.

Members of the Winona Junior Chamber of Commerce will begin selling the buttons at 6:30 p.m. They will be on downtown streets, at the new Miracle Mall and at Westgate Shopping Center.

At the same time, Jaycees will distribute buttons to business places that will sell them from now until the end of Steamboat Days July 11.

An innovation this year will be "mystery men," who, the Jaycees point out, could be anyone. These mystery men will go about town and wait until someone — a waitress, sales clerk, bank teller or anyone — attempts to sell them Steamboat Days buttons.

They will have 50 cents for each person who tries to sell a button.

Anyone is eligible to win 50 cents in this way, the Jaycees emphasize.

Jaycees emphasized that the buttons for this year's celebration were made here, and all Steamboat Days printing was done locally.

the basis of a complaint made by the owner, William O'Reilly, Minnesota City.

O'Reilly reported today that a carburetor and some other parts had been taken off the unit while it was parked in Goodview between Monday and Thursday.

Temporary Routes Into Dakota Village Explained

DAKOTA, Minn. (Special) — Temporary routing for northbound drivers from I-90 into this village have caused considerable confusion recently.

Only the southbound lanes are now in use between Dakota and Dresbach, since northbound lanes of I-90 still are under construction. To enter Dakota from the south, autos must turn left off I-90, drive up the ramp to CSAH 12, then turn east across the bridge. The arrangement is temporary and will be discontinued as soon as the northbound lanes of I-90 are opened to regular traffic.

Southbound autos entering the village from Highway 61-14 may do so in the conventional way, by turning right at the north end of the village, up the ramp to CSAH 16, then east across the bridge passing over the highway.

State highway department officials estimated the temporary routings will be in effect for about two weeks. After that, they said, northbound lanes should be ready for use.

Watkins Products, Inc., was commended by Vice President Hubert Humphrey today for its prompt action in putting plans into effect for participating in the youth opportunity campaign.

Humphrey also said he would plan to greet the winners of the contest Watkins will be running among its distributors and supervisory personnel in connection with the campaign.

Winners will receive an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C. The two top students in the program will also receive a trip to Washington.

Small Damage In Gas Fire In Mall Store

A gas fire at Montgomery Ward & Co.'s new Miracle Mall store shortly before opening time today caused a small amount of damage before it was put out by company employees with hand extinguishers.

The fire started in the outdoor merchandise section of the store when a plumber uncoupled a gas line without turning off the gas, a company official said.

THE LINE connected to a gas heater whose pilot light ignited the escaping gas and started the fire. The automatic sprinkler system for the affected section went into operation, preventing the fire's spread until employees arrived on the scene with dry chemical hand extinguishers.

Although the fire department arrived at Miracle Mall within five minutes of the alarm at 8:42 a.m., they found the fire had been put out by Ward employees.

Firemen stayed to help get standing water off the floor of the outdoor merchandise section and returned to their station by 9:18 a.m. The entire Ward store was opened for business as usual, the company official said today.

A 10-square-foot area damaged by flames was roped off today while repairs were made, but the official expected the area to be like new by Saturday morning.

CEILING TILES, display paintboard, wall paint and some merchandise were damaged by the flames, according to the official. He would not give a damage figure. The ceiling tiles had been replaced by noon.

The fire department sent two hose companies, a ladder company and the chief's car to the scene. The department got the alarm automatically when the Ward sprinkler system was activated by the flames.

Road Crew Cuts Gas Service Into Lanesboro

LANESBORO, Minn. (Special) — As the result of an accident, 250 gas services were out in Lanesboro Thursday, resulting in hardship particularly in cafes and bakeries.

The main People's Gas line from the west was cut by workmen from Hector Construction Co., Caledonia, who were working on County 8 improvement west of town. It was three hours before the line was repaired.

Gas was turned on again in late forenoon in the business places, and lighting the pilot lights in residences took a good part of the day.

Building in Kenya To Be Named for Preston Woman

PRESTON, Minn. — Gartner Hall, a classroom building, will be erected by the Consolata Sisters at their mission in Meru, Kenya, Africa, in honor of the late Mrs. Ludwig Gartner, Preston.

The money for the project — $2,100 — came from Madonna Plan contributions of the Winona Council of Catholic Women. The fund was donated to the sisters in the name of Mrs. Gartner, past president of the WCCW and second vice president of the national board.

The building will be used for secretarial, teaching and homecraft courses for girls and married women and as a center for other activities. Mrs. Gartner, wife of the editor and publisher of the Preston Republican, died June 7, 1964, at the age of 51.

WSC GRADUATES TOLD:

Take Active Political Role

Graduating seniors at Winona State College were urged today to take an active interest in politics and public affairs, even to the extent of running for public office if the opportunity presents itself.

The advice came in a commencement address by Lloyd J. Severson, Pittsburgh, Pa., director of international raw materials investigations for United States Steel Corporation, who pointed out that political leadership and political decisions are affecting the lives of Americans to an ever greater degree.

"It will be vital to you that they be guided by thinking people," he told the graduating class.

Severson, a native of rural Galesville, Wis., is a former student at Winona State and a 1936 graduate of the University of Wisconsin. One of his eight children is completing her freshman year at Winona State.

Approximately 284 degrees were conferred at Winona State's 105th commencement exercises, according to Dr. Nels Minne, president. Of those, 40 were master of science in education degrees.

THE SPEAKER, Mr. Severson, told the graduates, "Politics needs capable, informed people who are aware of the issues and qualified to discuss them ably and articulately. It needs people who are trained, as you are, for leadership."

He urged members of the graduating class to become active in the party of their choice, "not just as voters but as active workers and even as candidates for office should the opportunity present itself."

Severson said that 36 percent of Americans of voting age failed to exercise their franchise in the 1960 elections.

"And I think it would be safe to assume that of the 64 percent who did vote, a very large number had no clear idea of the qualifications of all the candidates — particularly those running for local offices — or of the various issues which were placed on the ballot for decision," he declared.

"YET THE decisions which they made in the polling place were extremely important, since they were political decisions of the kind which are increasingly affecting all our lives," he continued.

Severson said that politics need not be a full-time interest, "but at least it should be an earnest avocation."

"Politics starts at the grass roots level, and political decisions will be only as healthy as the roots from which they spring. This means that they must be cultivated and developed by thinking people," he said.

Severson said he was convinced that most Americans are staunchly in favor of free enterprise, their right to ownership of private property and the American concept of limited government.

Yet in a recent survey, more than half the high school students questioned said they thought industry should be owned and operated by the government. Forty percent of the youngsters also could name no advantages of capitalism over communism.

This, he said, was not the fault of the schools, teachers or politicians.

SCHOOLS cannot schedule courses which don't exist, he pointed out, and teachers seldom teach what they themselves haven't been taught. And as for politics, "our political direction is determined by the consensus of American voters, expressed in the polling place," Severson said.

"There can be no doubt that in recent years we have indicated plainly a preference for widened programs of social welfare, increased government spending and broadening of centralized government controls. Time after time we have elected officials committed in this direction, and have rejected those who are opposed," he continued.

He said, however, that there is a paradox in this situation, since many Americans question-

Mankato Dike Being Modified

Modifications now are being made on the temporary Mankato Avenue dike between Shiva Road and East Mark Street.

Supervised by the city engineering office, graders are flattening the interior slope of the dike and lowering the crest to some extent. Low areas behind the dike will be graded to provide uniform drainage to pipes which will carry runoff beneath the dike, discharging on the riverward side.

When grading is finished, a layer of black dirt will be applied at some points. Portions of the dike have almost completely covered back lots of several Mark Street residents. The homeowners have complained they are unable to plant vegetable gardens and furthermore that the basins created from dike construction are becoming highly productive sources of mosquitoes.

City Council members walked the dike to inspect the damages in an informal tour last week. The application was filed Oct. 6, 1964.

New Albert Lea Bank Denied Permit

ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Commerce Commission today denied applicants permission to open a bank to be known as the Skyline State Bank in Albert Lea.

The commission said public need for such a bank was not shown. The bank would have been located in the city of Albert Lea, which is in the state of Mississippi. The commission said it had no information as to whether the bank would have been able to attract deposits or if it would have been able to operate profitably.

Inch of Rain Possible Tonight

Variable cloudiness and rain, perhaps as much as an inch locally, is predicted for Winona and vicinity tonight.

The precipitation, said the weatherman, will be in occasional showers and thunderstorms. A low of 62 is forecast for tonight and a high of 70-75 for Saturday.

Sunday will be cool and partly cloudy, said the forecast.

THE EXTENDED forecast for the next five days indicates temperatures will average 4 to 8 degrees below daytime highs of 73-77 and nighttime lows of 50-55.

The weatherman expects a little cooler weather at the beginning of the period with generally no important changes near the end.

Precipitation through Wednesday is slated to average up to an inch with the possibility of more in Southeastern Minnesota and Western Wisconsin. Showers and thunderstorms are seen at the beginning of the period and again after the first of the week.

The temperature rose to 70 Thursday afternoon as predicted showers failed to materialize and dropped to 57 overnight. At noon today the reading was 73.

A YEAR AGO today the high was 76 and the low 41. All-time high for June 4 was 94 in 1934 and the low 22 in 1935. Mean for the past 24 hours was 63. Normal for this time of the year is 66.

Rainfall slacked off in Minnesota in the past 24 hours but some fell in the northern half of the state with 17 of an inch at St. Cloud, 15 at Bemidji and 05 at Duluth.

Lowest temperature this morning was 44 at Duluth. Rochester posted a low of 59 after a Thursday high of 69 and La Crosse had 59 and 67 for the same times.

The recent rainfalls were making themselves felt in the main channel of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER with the recent rise in the Whitman to Trempealeau sector today. The stage at Winona today was 10.2, up .4 of a foot since Thursday.

River forecasters said the stage would go to 10.3 Saturday, 10.2 Sunday and 10.1 Monday.

No immediate warmup was in sight for WISCONSIN as temperatures continued below seasonal normals throughout the state today.

Overnight skies were fair in southern sections while light showers fell in the northwest area. Park Falls reported .06 of an inch and the Duluth-Superior area reported .05.

Thursday's high reading was 72 degrees in the Rockford-Bellevue area.

The lowest temperature reported in the state Thursday night was 44 degrees at Superior.

It Happened Last Night Space Ships, Da, Elevators, Nyet

By EARL WILSON

MOSCOW — The Beautiful Wife and I flew here for a 5-day look at Russia under the New Two — "K & B" — Kossygin and Brezhnev — and I heard a rumor that the Soviet space scientists were trying something more startling than sending people to the moon.

They are going to try to send a man to the top floor of the Hotel Ukraine in two weeks.

"They can never make 31 stories in two weeks, though To-varich," muttered Dmitri Vasilyevskaya, a retired borscht-taster, "it is much too fast."

We were on the 11th floor waiting for the down car and had been for 15 minutes.

"One of the great occupations of this people's paradise is waiting for the elevator," old Dmitri groaned. "You see that three or four easy chairs are placed near each elevator. While waiting, we eat, we sleep."

Old Dmitri nibbled a caviar and blini sandwich, then fell asleep while reading Pravda, then leaped up with a start, for the elevator had actually arrived. Old Dmitri sat right back down and dozed again.

It was the up car.

THE B.W. and I found Moscow so changed, so improved, since we came here in 1956 with the first wave of tourists, that the slow elevators stand out among the unimproved.

And since LBJ wants you to stay home this summer, I decided to give you a vicarious look at modern Moscow. It's got an increasing American influence. There's an "American bar" or "dollar bar" at the Hotel National where you can buy scotch — but not bourbon — for U.S. money.

There's even a so-called "dollar store" where you can buy the best Scotch whisky for 1.85 rubles a bottle (that's about $2) and American cigarettes at $2 a carton. There's now an "American House," where people do the twist and the frug and indulge in other American cultural pursuits like that.

AND NOW, of course, since Petrocelli Clothes put on that men's fashion show at the Hotel Sovetskaya, with Comedian Joey Adams demonstrating a "smuggler's jacket" with 16 pockets, we may see Russian men fancying up in narrow lapels and convex shoulders, in burgundy shades, as suggested by Sam Eisenberg, the Petrocelli boss.

"Why do you think the Russians gave you permission to do the show?" I asked Eisenberg — who'd been warned it would never come to pass.

In fact, permission was withdrawn, then re-granted.

"I think they just wanted to learn all they can about our methods of making clothes," he said.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: George Schindler described a birthday gift for a rich youngster: A chauffeur-driven skate board.

They'll Do It Every Time

"How's Fishing?" This seven-pound eight-ounce beauty, taken Thursday below the Winona dam, is evidence that big walleye are still hitting in the river below the dams, and according to our reports, in Lake Pepin. Willis Kruger, Wabasha warden, said one of the benefits of flood is that it brought fishing back to Lake Pepin.

It is doubtful if the heavy rains upriver will have much effect on fishing conditions below Lake Pepin. The stage probably will go up half a foot or over 10 feet, which will cause only slight fish movement. The water may be slightly cloudy if there are local rains. Lake Pepin will settle silt coming from above.

"Gene" Bell, 507 Winona St., caught the seven-pounder, pictured above. It actually looks larger than that weight. He got it Thursday morning on a jig below the Winona dam.

Here are the reports of the river wardens from Wisconsin on how they found fishing during the midweek period:

Trempealeau County — Wardens Frederick Gardner and Harold Kubisiak: Largemouth bass fishing good in backwaters of the Mississippi River on shallow running lures. Catfish biting on the Trempealeau River on cheese bait. Trout fishing fair. Walleye, northern and pan-fishing slow, crappie fishing with live minnows producing best results. Water in the Mississippi River is high and the current fast.

Pepin County — Warden Marion Kincannon: Walleyes biting very well on Lake Pepin. Excellent catches taken by trolling minnows or stillfishing. Two walleyes, one 7 1/2 lbs. and one 8 1/4 lbs., were the big fish this week. Smallmouth bass and walleyes fair on Chippewa River with night crawlers and minnows as best bait. Chippewa River and Lake Pepin still above normal, but fairly clear.

La Crosse County — Wardens Carl Frick and David Hammes: Panfish are still good in most areas. Sunfish hitting poppers on Lake Onalaska. Northern fishing has been getting better, walleyes remain spotty. Water still high and fast in the main river.

Jackson County — Wardens William Barton and Werner Radke: Walleyes good on streamers and rap-palas. Muskies and north-erns slow. Catfish showing promise, panfishing on the increase, trout fishing fair. Waters normal.

Buffalo County — Wardens Stanley Apel and Elliot Peterson: Fishing in Mississippi River continues good on all species. Some limits of walleyes taken. Buffalo City and Merrick Park areas probably best at present time. Some good catches of trout were also taken over last weekend. Water continues to fall and is dirty in some places.

Vernon County — Warden Homer Moe: Walleye activity good in some areas of Mississippi. Bass and north-erns being taken on minnows and spinners. Panfish action increasing as water level drops. Trout fishing good, but spotty. Mississippi River high and cloudy, most trout waters normal to high.

Pierce County — Warden Maurice Black: Walleyes hitting in the Bay City and Prescott areas on minnows and artificial lures. Panfishing slow. Water above normal.

Crawford County — Warden William Heiberg: Trout fishing good. Most fishing slow on the Mississippi River. Some panfish being taken on minnows and worms in back areas. Not much bass or pike activity on plugs, jigs or bait. Some catfish being taken on bait in the Wisconsin River.

Mississippi and Wisconsin rivers still above normal and dirty because of recent rains.

Field Trial Notes Billy Wunderlich, top national trainer and former Winona boy, is the trainer with the dogs to beat this weekend at the all breed Tri-State trials at Weaver, he has won four straight "firsts" in the open-all-age stake, a national record.

This year the annual banquet, the social event of the trial, will be held at the new clubhouse of the Westfield Golf Club. It opens with cocktails at six. Field clothes are the order of the evening.

Two events will be run at the same time beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday. The trial opens with the open-all-age at 2 p.m. today at the Dorset pool in the Whitewater Refuge near Weaver. Take U.S. Highway 61 to Weaver, then Highway 74 to where the station wagons are parked.

Durand Photographer Shows 'Best' Print

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — A Durand photographer won the highest award among some 100 professional photographers assembled at a show at Stevens Point last week.

Vince Beaton, owner and operator of Beaton's Color Studio, received a blue ribbon for his picture of Gingham Bauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Bauer, rural Durand. It was named the best print in the show.

Beaton also received a blue ribbon for a portrait of Mrs. Karl Goethel, wife of the Pepin County district attorney. All pictures were direct color prints made in Beaton's new laboratory.

Chatfield Says 'No' to Federal School Grant

CHATFIELD, Minn. (AP) — The school board of this South-eastern Minnesota community voted Wednesday night to pass up with thanks a $12,575 federal grant for a summer school project.

"It was a misunderstanding," said Supt. G. R. Halvorson. "We didn't want to label anyone."

The project would have been a pre-school summer program to prepare children for the first grade next fall. But when the board and the superintendent learned they would have to show at least 85 per cent of the children in the program were from families with incomes of less than $3,000 a year, they backed away from it.

Chatfield was in a drought disaster area last summer. The superintendent said application for a grant toward the summer school project was made in the belief it might be extended on the former basis. The grant, it developed, would have been available under the antipoverty program.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Albany Times-Union received a telephone call Thursday night from a man who asked if astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II were to remain aloft for four days.

SUMMERTIME FUN . . . A style show, dear to the heart of every woman as seasons change, was being emceed here by Mrs. Laird Lucas, right, while Mrs. Alden Ackels, model, poses on the Country Club stage in a handsome green silk suit. To add fun to the party, Mrs. Lucas appeared in a quaint old bathing suit with a flat bow on her head. Pin-ups for backdrop decorations were coordinates and accessories for casual summertime wear. At the left on stage was posed a manikin in a swim suit, reclining in a chaise-lounge, pool-side chair. (Daily News photos)

Casual Styles Seen at CC Luncheon

By JEAN HAGEN
Daily News Women's Editor

Casual was the word for the annual spring fashion show at the Country Club. It was so late this year, because of the flood, that they called it the "Good Old Summertime" style show.

CASUAL were the shifty silhouettes, many of them with dropped waistlines and skirts in the new easy A-line style. Casual was the show's presentation, with the pretty commentator dressed in a quaint old bathing suit. Casual and friendly was the good fellowship among the guests, ready now after a long, hard winter and spring to enjoy the summer.

Although the weather was a little nippy, so that the 250 members and guests scurried into the clubhouse from the parking lot, the atmosphere inside was a summery one. In the entry hall, flanking the doorway to the dining room, there were show-window arrangements of swim suits amidst palm leaves and stylized tropical foliage. A fetching suit was pale yellow overlaid with white lace in a bikini style.

Forming a backdrop on the stage where the models paraded were colorful sports clothes and accessories. A fish net was draped over the piano and beside it was a white-branched tree, hung with summer hats and caps.

HANGING BASKETS above were studded with bright flowers and tables had gay centerpieces of vivid pink geraniums in sand pails with little shovels. At each place were favors of bags of tiny gumdrops for happy summertime munching at a beach party.

The luncheon was summertime fare, including luscious lobster salad.

Mrs. J. L. Jeremiassen, chairman of the Women's Golf Association, sponsor of the party, welcomed the guests and introduced the entertainment performers. Two numbers from the recent Paint the Town Pink benefit show of the Community Memorial Hospital Auxiliary were presented.

MRS. ROBERT OLSON sang "Hello Dolly" and "These Are My Favorite Things." The Discotheque group of teen-age dancers sang and danced, dressed in their charming Discotheque gray dresses, with black stockings and shoes. They pleased the crowd by circulating between the tables as their finale. They were Randee Rian, Pam Johnson, Karen Olsen, Janet Waite and Ann Werner. Fred Heyer played the piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Laird Lucas, who was commentator, was attired in an old, old summertime outfit—a real '30s cover-up bathing suit of dark blue with a sailor collar and puffed sleeves trimmed with white braid. She wore long black stockings and a fun ny flat white bow on top of her head as "ladies" who went "bathing" long ago supposedly did.

Fashions from Nash's store were modeled by Country Club members, of whom Mrs. Lucas said, "Our models are so lovely, there were no problems fitting them."

CASUAL-type summer things were shown and it was notable that muted colors predominated. These included such off shades as pink taupe, smoke, charcoal gray, oyster white, and dull blues, all suggestive of casual ease and comfort for the good old summertime.

However there were some crisply colored stripes, such as a pink and white striped seersucker suit suggestive of peppermint candy. Also a cool gray and white striped shift with a demure white collar and bow in the fashionable Chelsea manner. Popular with the spectators was a striking black and white number in bold checks, with a wide scoop neckline and ruffled sleeves. Another smart costume was a green silk suit, simply cut, with a chanel jacket. A slim shift dress of navy blue was accented with a white collar of pointed petals.

A NEW FABRIC, "whipped cream" was seen in a sleeveless beige shift and an old fabric, dotted Swiss, which is making a comeback this year, was used in a two-piece, pale blue dress. One of the prettiest dresses shown was an embroidered linen shift, whose high waistline was marked by fringe, as were the sleeves.

Creating comment was a boating outfit—white deck pants and a bright red velvet shell, covered by a red polka dot sailing shirt. Another leisure-time ensemble was pink cotton stretch pants with matching terry stretch knit shirt.

A pink-brown jacket dress (which looked gray) was worn with a pink blouse. A dressy number was a black crepe sleeveless shift, whose trim was a frilly ruffle around the scoop neckline.

THE ONLY swim suit modeled was really something! It looked like black satin, briefly cut, and had a bare midriff of filmy black fishnet.

"It's so nice to be feminine," commented Mrs. Lucas, as the models concluded their parade of lovely summer fashions for Winona's Good Old Summertime.

Mrs. William Schuler was general chairman and Mrs. Paul Miner and Mrs. Harold Nystrom did the decorations.

Highway Beauty Gets LBJ Support

THE AUTOMOBILE, as President Johnson puts it, "is a central feature of American life," essential to our growth and prosperity. It also has produced ribbons of concrete bars of roadside beauty, lined with ranks of garish billboards and flanked by rusting auto graveyards.

Now the president has proposed to Congress four bills "to restore beauty where it has already been destroyed" and create a highway environment which will "enrich the journey."

Most urgently needed is the proposal that states, to get federal highway aid, be required to ban billboards within 1,000 feet of federal interstate and primary roads "except in areas zoned for commercial or industrial use." This exception, however, could be a fooler.

The "voluntary" approach to billboard control hasn't worked. Ever since 1958, states have been eligible for a bonus of five-tenths of 1 percent of the cost of their 1-road construction if they agreed to regulate outdoor advertising. Only 20 states have entered into the needed agreements. Only eight, Wisconsin included, actually have qualified for the bonus.

AT LAST COUNT there were 17,726 auto graveyards, junk yards and like eyesores along 265,000 miles of federal aid primary roads. The president asks that states, again as a condition to getting aid, be required either to eliminate these visual blots or effectively screen them. The federal government would pay a share of land purchase or condemnation cost.

The proposal raises some problems. Junk yards in hilly terrain often cannot be screened and would have to be bought or condemned at considerable cost. The screening requirement could put an additional and unexpected burden on a legitimate industry. Screening and removal would only sweep the problem out of sight, not solve the knotty problem of junk disposal.

THE TWO OTHER bills would require use of some federal highway funds for landscaping and beautification of federally aided highways and to acquire scenic strips of land beside them.

Don't Let Downtown Business Area Die

ONE SUBJECT that has been on the back burner of Red Wing progress lately is the subject of remodeling, rebuilding, and improving Red Wing's downtown. This is a front on which we need to keep making progress.

An architect from Fort Dodge, Iowa, was invited to Fairmont, Minn., the other day to speak with the authority of one who has seen in his own community what can happen. The heart of architect Stanford Griffith's message to Fairmont was summed up in a single sentence: "Don't let downtown die."

For Griffith's home city did. "Fort Dodge locked the barn after the horse was stolen," he said. The city talked instead of acting when downtown retail firms started moving to the outskirts, and now "there is a 72 percent vacancy on Main Street . . . The main street looks like a World War II battlefield."

GRIFFITH SPELLED out clearly why downtown's vitality is a subject for concern of every taxpayer, not only downtown businessmen. Sears moved out of a $500,000 downtown building to go into a shopping center, he related. The building was structurally perfect, but "the mortgage holder spent two days in my office begging me to take the building over for $40,000 and at any kind of terms." The taxes collected from this building will drop from $18,000 last year to $1,000 next year. Guess who makes up the difference?

Fairmont businessmen want Griffith to design a downtown mall for them, and he's willing. But a mall is no magic cure-all, he warns. "Updating exteriors and interiors of stores, reviewing sales and merchandising methods and updating stocks—these factors make a mall work."

And then Griffith added the clincher. The real key to saving a downtown district, he said, emphasizing this point several times over, is "acres of easy and free parking."

DOWNTOWN Red Wing has seen some splendid improvements in recent years, but it's necessary to build on this momentum. Nobody who contemplates the competitive future in retailing, the need for jobs and the need for tax base, can possibly think this is a time for downtown to rest on its oars. — Red Wing Republican Eagle.

TODAY IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Isolationism Marches Again

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A great deal of argument that is superficial, and possibly dangerous in its consequences, is being heard not only outside but inside this country concerning policies of the United States government in world affairs. Much of it overlooks some unpleasant truths — namely, that both the United Nations and the Organization of American States, which are frequently urged as a logical means of achieving world peace, are themselves torn asunder by Communist intrigue and are not as effective as they might be in solving international troubles.

Also, an increasing number of people in America are being misled today by what are called "neo-isolationist" groups. These are persons in academic life as well as in Congress who have decided that, because the United States cannot by itself possibly police the world, the thing to do is to withdraw from Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic and everywhere else and to let the rest of the world get along as best it can.

UNFORTUNATELY, these exponents of isolationism are unmindful of the fact that two world wars were indirectly the result of exactly such a philosophy. Almost up to the outbreak of each of the major conflicts, there were isolationists in the United States who were demanding that there be less preparedness and also that Americans stay out of foreign alliances altogether. Nevertheless, the end result in each case was a war in which many Americans lost their lives. The same kind of isolationism which ignored the evolution of conflicts that ultimately caused direct attacks on the United States now is shaping up as a potential danger to the American people.

It is true that the United States does not have the resources to police the entire world or even to sustain it economically. But this does not justify an abandonment of the crusade to bring about a better life among the smaller nations, including the peoples behind the Iron Curtain, or a discontinuance of the effort to impress the peoples of the larger nations that their destiny is wrapped up in what can be done by the United States, together with free governments in their own countries, to develop a lasting peace in the world.

THE RISE of German imperialism in the early part of this century met with indifference just as did the steady aggression of Hitler's imperialism in the 1930s. Today, another enemy of the same type — Communist imperialism — is spreading its tentacles to almost every region of the world. The isolationists, however, would, in effect, run up the white flag and remove from the scene the biggest single force that could thwart the ambitions of the Communists — namely, the military and economic power of the United States.

Neither in Viet Nam nor in the Dominican Republic does a civil war itself present a direct threat to the American people. The menace is the backing given by the Red Chinese and the Soviet governments, respectively, whose agents have infested all the capitals of the world and have infiltrated also inside the United States.

Today's world is not safe for large or small nations. The Communist imperialists are not bound by any code of morals, nor do they respect international boundaries. Just because the threat to America is not clearly defined in the day-by-day debate, there are lots of persons who think that "neo-isolationism" or isolationism is the right course to pursue.

WHAT IS surprising is that many persons who know the history of the periods preceding the first and the second World Wars are in the forefront of the discussion today in trying to drag their own nation into an isolationism which can in itself furnish the very conditions that may plunge the United States into a war against its will. For enemy governments misconstrue such isolationism or pacifism as a sign of weakness or fear, thus encouraging aggressors to take chances. Whether the isolationists are members of Congress or professors on the campus, they are giving encouragement, though unintentionally perhaps, to the Communist cause.

It is unfortunate that the true enemies in the "cold war" are not clearly marked out. It was only a few days ago that President Johnson called Red China the real enemy in Southeast Asia. It may be wondered how long it will be before the Soviet government, too, will be painted in its true colors.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Viet Nam War Lonely One for U.S. President

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — War, no matter what the circumstances, is tragic business. However, the war in Viet Nam has become a lonely war and to some extent a personal war for one man.

This is not because the President began it. It began 18 years ago under the French, was picked up ten years ago by Eisenhower, and increased four years ago by Kennedy.

It's become personal today because the President feels it so keenly and directs it so carefully. Every morning at three he wakes up and calls the White House security room. Three in the morning is about the time the news is in from Viet Nam on the casualties and the hits after each bombing raid.

The President worries over these, broods over them, wants to know, no matter what the hour of the night, just what has happened. If a Cabinet member or sub-Cabinet member calls him at two or four in the morning, he doesn't complain. He has given instructions that they should call no matter what the hour.

ONE REASON for this personal direction is that the President is worried over the possibility of enlarging the war. He knows how easy it is for bomber pilots to make a mistake, or how dangerous it can be to let his bombs on their way home.

On the usual wartime bombing raid, a mission will fly over a target, attempt to knock it out; but if the clouds are low or an enemy plane gives trouble, the bombers may drop their payload indiscriminately on the way back, regardless of military targets.

Not, however, with the war in Viet Nam. Johnson has given strict orders that only the targets he picks out are to be hit — and these are bridges, ammunition dumps, railroad centers, and military installations.

"We're knocking out concrete, we're not hitting women and children," he has frequently told his aides. And he means it.

At first he griped that the Air Force wasn't able to hit a bridge carrying supplies down from North Viet Nam. Smarter Air Force commanders replied that if they were planning the raid themselves they could knock the bridges. So they sent as many as 22 planes on some raids, literally peppering a bridge with a holocaust of bombs.

SUBSEQUENT photos showed that the bridge was knocked out all right, and the Army ribbed the Air Force for using so many planes. But the President, who studies every aerial photograph, considers it important that no civilians were killed.

In addition to his care to avoid civilian casualties he is concerned over any bombing mission which might stray over the line into China, or give the Communist Chinese the slightest provocation to enlarge the war.

This is why the war in and over Viet Nam has been a lonely war, a personal war directed by a man who goes to bed well after midnight, but wakes up automatically at 3 a.m. to check on the military targets he has personally pin-pointed.

Under the Constitution, he tells friends, he is charged with the conduct of war. But regardless of the Constitution, he knows that if there are failures, or if the war spreads, he will get the blame. So he is taking the responsibility.

WHEN The President outlined his Ballmore peace proposals they were also personal, especially his plan for a giant series of dams on the Mekong River to benefit all the Indo-Chinese countries, including North Viet Nam.

Dams and reclamation projects are something very close to his heart, he having been the father of the Little Colorado project in Texas when a young congressman.

Johnson had hoped that this, coupled with his offer of unconditional peace talks, plus joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. aid, might induce the other side to sit down at the conference table. It didn't, for three reasons:

1. North Vietnamese have been winning. Our bombing raids have not stopped the supply of troops and supplies from going south or the guerrilla raids by the Viet Cong.

2. The Russians, who normally might have acted as intermediaries, were put on the spot by our bombing of the north. The Chinese have chided them with being too friendly to the United States in the past, and with forsaking their alleged former role as the champion of small nations. So it's difficult for them to side with the United States now.

3. The Chinese are delighted at the predicament of both Moscow and Washington. They don't want the Vietnamese war to end. The longer it lasts, the more the United States and Russia become at swords' points, and the more the smaller nations of Southeast Asia pull away from the United States into the Red Chinese camp.

IN BRIEF, THE military advisers who sold the President on the strategy of bombing North Viet Nam failed to understand Oriental politics. Though he inherited the Vietnamese problem, they sold him on enlarging it into a mess that could either lead to world war or is almost insoluble without serious loss of face.

The CIA is using a mysterious airline that calls itself Air America, to drop weapons and supplies to our guerrilla fighters in Communist-held areas of Laos and Viet Nam. The CIA is trying to give the Reds a taste of their own guerrilla medicine . . . Senate investigators have discovered that the Central Intelligence Agency not only watches suspicious mail, but actually opens the letters as part of its secret intelligence work. However, senators will protect the CIA, will not reveal this in their probe of government eavesdropping.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Foreign Policy Support Wide

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — By any test President Johnson had had broad bipartisan support for his major ventures in foreign policy. Members of Congress have come to the White House for literally dozens of briefings on the trouble spots. As the master builder of consensus Johnson hammered out a coalition that seemed until quite recently to be solid.

On the Sunday evening when he called congressional leaders to brief them on the Dominican rebellion, the President greeted Rep. Gerald R. Ford with, "Well, Jerry, if you keep on supporting me like this there'll be a Republican Congress elected in 1966."

Whether intended as irony or just good-natured rallyry Ford took it as a tribute. He replied that the motive for his support was not political, but if triumph in 1966 was a fringe benefit then he would be happy to accept it.

Privately some Republicans have been disturbed over the all-out enthusiasm for the Johnson policy. Wasn't this giving away the whole foreign policy issue which, in view of the President's amazing success in domestic legislation, might be the only lever for '66 and '68? That was the fear of those who saw the G.O.P. becoming a "me, too" party in a sense that Barry Goldwater could never have foretold.

BUT PARTNERSHIP in foreign policy is an appetite that feeds on itself. This is especially true of right-wing Republicans who have been ardent in their support of policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. Increasing indications are, however, that they will not be satisfied with halfway measures. It is possible a foreign policy issue will develop with the charge that the Johnson Administration has gone only part of the way.

Other Presidents learned that the bipartisan road can get rough and uncertain in a hurry. The claim to be in on the take-offs as well as the crash landings overlooks the kind of instant crisis that occurs in a situation where, despite constant watchfulness, violence and sudden death erupt.

It ignores the duty of the President under the Constitution to formulate and carry out foreign policy. He must initiate the take-offs and no amount of confronting, conferring and consulting with Congress can absolve him of his responsibility. This means that at times he must take unpopular decisions drawing condemnation in Congress. That is another lesson earlier Presidents have learned.

Having to vote huge sums for defense and for the prosecution of the cold war, Congress feels frustrated and in frustration the more aggressive members push into the foreign policy field and encroach on the President's prerogatives. Nowhere is this more evident than on Cuba which ever since the Communist-dictatorial nature of Castro's regime became evident.

IF BLOWUPS occur in any one or more of a half-dozen likely spots—Guatemala, Venezuela, Colombia, Haiti—the frustrations will grow and so will the demand for direct action. That will be a test for the President who may have to decide on balance between a broad Congressional consensus for a strong line and a decision to try to preserve a precarious peace in a manner his current admirers would denounce as "appeasement."

The House subcommittee on inter-American affairs wrestled with the Cuban problem in a series of hearings this spring. Fretful members wanted a witness, Lt. Gen. Alva R. Fitch, deputy director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, to tell whether Cuba as a source of Communist infection had in fact been quarantined. He testified to the cash, the arms and the subversive agents being sent from Cuba into other Latin countries. This has been no

Diabetes Can't Be Temporary

By J. G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a blood glucose test show "temporary diabetes?" I have gone to a competent doctor for the last four months. He did not find that my blood tests were anything but normal. He advised me to go ahead and eat anything. — M.J.

I think you've left something out of your letter. That is, I gather that sometime or other in the past you had a test with suspicious results.

It is possible to have abnormal results in a blood sugar (or blood glucose) test under certain circumstances: If your diet preparatory to the test was not correct; if you were suffering from some infection at the time of the test; or if any of various drugs happened to be in use at the time of the test.

Briefly, temporary diabetes is a bad term and might better not be used. Either you have diabetes or you don't. It is possible to have somewhat elevated sugar levels from time to time that do NOT mean diabetes. They may, in some cases, be a warning, however, that diabetes may actually develop later. Therefore, if you have in the past had an abnormal reading, you should have further checks at reasonable intervals to make sure that diabetes will not develop — or to be ready to start treatment for it without delay. The sooner a case of diabetes is put under control, the less risk there is of developing serious or dangerous complications.

Generally, being checked once a year should be satisfactory unless, for some special reason, your doctor sees a reason for more frequent ones. In your case, M.J., if future tests are normal, I would suspect that you are in the clear.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking birth control pills. A few weeks ago my uterus and cervix were removed, and I am still taking the pills. Can they harm a person after such surgery? This has me terribly worried. — Mrs. E.W.

Well, stop worrying, because they won't harm you. But with the uterus removed, you cannot become pregnant, so you might as well stop taking the pills and save your money.

This is a day of congratulations... a time for the rewarding of those who deserve it. They have finished a job. It is also their Commencement... young graduates must survey their individual and personal futures. It is beginning time for each. Unless they have learned well to do their duty instead of demanding their rights... unless they are qualified to take prosperity without pride, and adversity without anguish—they are unprepared for the future God has for them. This is a glad time, but it is also a most frightful, serious occasion. Eternal vigilance is the demand made by the world on those reaching this commencement hour. Today the pattern is formed, the die is cast. May every graduate from something-to-something in America, remember the words of St. Paul, who said: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any praise, think on these things. Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of peace shall be with you," through Your Future.

District Judge Warren F. Plunkett was elected chief judge of the Third Judicial District at a meeting in the Winona County Courthouse Tuesday, according to Judge Arnold Hatfield.

Judge Hatfield said that the district's chief judges are elected to the position in order of their seniority each year. Judge A. C. Richardson served as chief judge during 1964-65.

Judge Donald T. Franke was elected secretary of the judges' group, taking over the office from Judge O. Russell Olson. Judge Hatfield explained that the "freshman" judge of the half dozen serving the district traditionally is assigned this job. Judge Franke was elected to the bench last fall.

Judges of the district meet several times each year to confer on problems of procedure which arise in their courtrooms, to swear in new judges and so forth.

Another Trial Ordered in Highway Case

A new trial has been ordered in a highway condemnation case tried by a District Court jury March 1, Court Clerk Joseph C. Page announced.

Judge Arnold Hatfield who had presided at the trial granted the motion of Attorney C. Stanley McMahon for a new trial, ruling that a state's witness had been improperly allowed to testify about negotiations for a settlement in the land case.

THE TRIAL March 1 had resulted from appeals of the land commissioners' award for a 4½-acre parcel of land on Highway 248, 3 miles west of Rollingstone.

The commissioners awarded Paul Kronebusch, Rollingstone farmer, $947 for the land. The state appealed the award, alleging the land was only worth $255. Kronebusch appealed, asking $1,200.

The District Court jury brought in a $450 verdict, less than half the land commissioners' award, although still $200 more than the state had said the land was worth.

McMahon and Special Assistant Attorney General Winston Ehrmann, St. Paul, argued the motion for a new trial before Judge Hatfield April 26.

McMAHON held that another state attorney, John A. Lebanks, St. Paul, had inflamed the jury with his emotional account of negotiations with Kronebusch for a lump sum settlement on two parcels of land to be taken by the state for Highway 248 improvement.

Lebanks had testified that Kronebusch offered to accept $10,000 for the two parcels. Lebanks also had said that Kronebusch divided this into $500 for the 4½-acre parcel and $9,500 for the other.

Judge Hatfield ruled that this "off-hand" division by Kronebusch "should never have been known to the jury." Kronebusch would have accepted $500 for the one parcel only if getting $9,500 for the other, Judge Hatfield indicated.

(THE STATE refused Kronebusch's offer for a $10,000 total settlement, and both parcels were the subject of jury trials in District Court during the January term. The verdict on the 4½-acre parcel is the only one affected by the order for a new trial, however.)

Ehrmann had argued April 26 that, although the trial may not have been perfect, the verdict had been just and the jury not unduly influenced by Lebanks' statements.

The new trial ordered by Judge Hatfield could take place in this term of court although it is not on the calendar, Attorney McMahon indicated. However, it is likely that the other cases on the spring court calendar will occupy the court until a new calendar is compiled in September.

17 9th Graders At St. Martin's To Get Diplomas

Seventeen ninth-graders will be graduated from St. Martin's Lutheran School at exercises Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the school auditorium.

The principal speaker at the program will be the Rev. Ronald Farah, Rochester, and a graduation banquet will precede the exercises at 6 p.m. Members of the eighth grade class and their mothers, under the direction of Mrs. James Wetzel and Mrs. Lorena Prigge, will prepare and serve the banquet.

Robert Young will serve as toastmaster for the brief program arranged in conjunction with the banquet.

Gwen Blumentritt will give the class will, Nancy Ellinghuysen the class prophecy and Principal F. H. Broker will present the class informally.

During the graduation exercises the salutatory address will be given by Jayne Boettcher and the valedictory by Sandra Gritler.

Gaylord Aldinger, chairman of the St. Martin's Board of Education, will present diplomas. Music will be furnished by all grades at the school.

And don't overlook the old-fashioned arrangement in an antique container, nor the miniature class for arrangements of not over five inches. These two classes are always very popular at the shows and should draw many entries. Use your garden flowers here, also.

So, exhibit your peonies, if you have some, and your irises, but by all means make up a number of arrangements. Let this be an outstanding show.

DEAR ABBY:

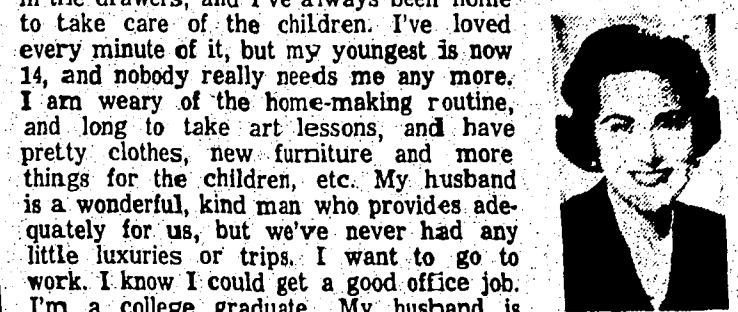

French Poodle Party Planned

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My French poodle is going to be four years old next Sunday. I would like to give her a surprise birthday party and invite some of her little playmates. Cheri isn't just an ordinary dog. She's an aristocrat and I have the papers to prove it. What should I serve? Have you any cute ideas for a party of this kind? CHERI'S MADAME

DEAR MADAME: If you really want to put on the dog, make it black tie. Serve a "birthday cake" made of ground sirloin, and decorate it with crushed dog biscuits. And as for Cheri's "papers," better put them on the floor.

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a tremendously serious problem which faces many women today, I'm sure. I've been married 25 years and have been a good wife and mother. There were always cookies in the cookie jar, freshly done laundry in the drawers, and I've always been home to take care of the children. I've loved every minute of it, but my youngest is now 14, and nobody really needs me any more. I am weary of the home-making routine, and long to take art lessons, and have pretty clothes, new furniture and more things for the children, etc. My husband is a wonderful, kind man who provides adequately for us, but we've never had any little luxuries or trips. I want to go to work. I know I could get a good office job. I'm a college graduate. My husband is against it. He wants me to wait until the youngest is gone. I'll be 50, and who would hire me then? Isn't it unfair of him to expect me to stay home and bake cookies that nobody wants anyhow, and keep on cleaning a house over and over when I could hire someone else to do it for me? With the extra income we could have two children in college comfortably. What do you think, Abby? RARIN' TO GO

DEAR RARIN': WHY does your husband object? (This is important.) I think he is wrong if he wants to keep you close to home for only selfish reasons. But the most important thing in your life is your relationship with your husband. And if you can't make him see it your way and let you go to work with his sincere approval, then give up the idea.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since Bud and I have been married we have invited his parents to our home every Sunday for dinner. Bud told me that next Sunday some of his business friends will be in town with their wives, and he wanted me to prepare a nice Sunday dinner for them. He asked me please to call his mother and ask her and Dad if they would come to dinner on Friday instead because we were going to entertain some business friends on Sunday. I did as Bud asked me to do, and his mother said if she and Dad weren't good enough for Bud's business friends on Sunday, they didn't care to come on Friday. Then she slammed the receiver down. I tried to call her back but she wouldn't answer the phone. Why should she be so unreasonable? She knows we have a small apartment with only six dining room chairs. I called my husband and told him what happened and he told me to forget it! How can I forget it? I don't want hard feelings with my in-laws, Abby. I'm just sick over it. What should I do? BUD'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: We all have "off days." Your mother-in-law apparently had one. Listen to your husband, dear. He knows his mother better than you do.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. IN MIDDLEFIELD: Honesty is, and always will be, the best policy. Tell your boy friend that the biggest block to success is his head.

JIMMIE HALL
Setting Hot Pace

OUTFIELDER FLIES AT 'HOT' .421 PACE

Griffith Happy Finley Didn't Want Hall

ST. PAUL (AP) — Some baseball men insist the best trades are those which are never made. Minnesota Twins' President Calvin Griffith has no quarrel with that thesis at the moment. In fact, he's thanking his fortune for the trade that didn't pull off that deal with Kansas City two weeks ago.

Griffith dangled outfielder Jimmie Hall in front of Athletics' owner Charles O. Finley for nearly a week as trade talk blew hot and then fizzled.

In the intervening two weeks, Hall has collected 16 hits in 38 times at bat for a .421 pace, raising his batting average 34 points to .316. He leads the Twins with nine home runs, has driven in 20 runs and scored 27.

Hall's two hits Thursday helped the Twins edge Boston 4-3, pushing Minnesota 1½ games in front in the American League race. Hall was on base with a single when Bob Allison stroked a home run in the second inning.

"I can't trade Hall now," Griffith said. "We might get something to help us, but would sure hurt us now to give him up. I talked to Finley the other day, but it's not very serious talk now."

Hall denies the trade talk initiated his current spurt, but he can't remember ever having as good a streak as he's now enjoying.

"When the hits are falling, they're falling," the 27-year-old North Carolinian said. "I just hope they keep falling and we stay on top."

"I don't think the trade talk bothered me. It bothered my family — the thought of moving and all. Since we're a contender, I've got to like it better here."

Twins' Manager Sam Mele thinks another factor may have served to spur his center fielder to greater things.

"The fact that we're using the other kid (rookie Joe Nosssek) out there occasionally may be making Hall compete a little harder," Mele said. Nosssek was substituted for Hall in a few games against left-handed pitching, which still bothers Hall.

Hall has no objection to a little platooning, but like any regular is jealous when anyone talks about it becoming a standard procedure.

"It never hurt anybody to rest once in a while," Jimmie said, "but I don't want to stay out too long. I don't care if Nosssek plays a few games, but the position is mine and I intend to keep it that way."

Hall makes no predictions about breaking his personal high for home runs of 33 in 1963 when he became the Twins' center fielder.

"That was a lot of home runs for me," he said. "I'd be satisfied to hit .290 and hit at least 25 home runs."

He whacked 25 homers last year.

UNBELIEVABLE BUT TRUE

Longest Win Streak? Mets Have It

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Who's got the longest winning streak in the National League? Why, the New York Mets, winners of 3 games in a row.

The Mets, unbeaten in four games including a tie with the Chicago Cubs last Monday, replaced Pittsburgh as the team with the longest current winning streak by knocking off the Pirates 8-5 Thursday night and ending their string of successes at 12.

But it was that kind of night. Sandy Koufax started for the Los Angeles Dodgers and wound up one of nine shell-shocked pitchers as the Dodgers finally whipped St. Louis 11-10 and boosted their first-place edge to five games — longest of the season.

Meanwhile, hardly anyone was looking as the Milwaukee Braves crept into second place, downing San Francisco 10-3 despite being held hitless after the third inning.

In the only other game scheduled, Houston defeated Cincinnati 8-3.

At Pittsburgh, the Mets would have added 10 years to Casey Stengel's age if he weren't already 74.

They scored two runs in the third inning, then exploded for six more in the fourth as Ed Stengert and Joe Christopher each drove in a pair. With an 8-0 lead it looked easy, and it was until the eighth inning when Galen Cisco started to play ricochet with the Pirate bats.

Roberto Clemente tripled, Willie Stargell homered, Ed Stengert, Enter Larry Miller. Three singles, another run, another Met pitcher, Tom Parsons. Parsons held Jim Paggiaroni to a sacrifice fly and Jerry Lynch to a two-run homer, the 17th pinch-hit shot of his career. Parsons got out of the six-run inning and then retired the side 1-2-3 in the ninth.

Koufax never got past the third inning at St. Louis as the Cardinals pulled out to a 7-3 lead. But there were a few hits still to come. There were 29 in all, 15 by the Dodgers.

After four innings the score was tied 7-7, but the Cardinals

Then it was the Dodgers turn again. They scored one in the seventh and pulled out front to stay in the eighth when pinch hitter Wes Parker doubled.

TWINS WIN AGAIN

Pascual Eying Series Salary?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Camilo Pascual, $500 poorer than he would like to be, is busy trying to make himself and his Minnesota Twin teammates several thousand dollars richer come October.

Pascual, who fought off an attempted $9,000 cut in his almost annual salary squabble with Minnesota owner Cal Griffith, won his seventh straight game Thursday and vaulted the Twins 1½ games in front of Chicago in the American League race.

Minnesota's 4-3 victory over Boston was the only game played in the American League.

When Pascual got his 1965 contract offer from Griffith last winter he went into a rage. "I should have asked for a raise," said the Cuban hurler who was 15-12 last year after two straight 20-victory seasons.

The pitcher finally prevailed and although he made overtures at a $500 hike, Pascual finally settled for $46,500 — the same salary he received in 1964.

The way he's pitching right now, Pascual must be thinking about some extra cash for October, like a World Series share perhaps.

The Twins ace has a 2.54 earned run average to go with his 7-0 record. He has struck out 55 in 81 innings of work.

Bob Allison's two-run homer gave him an early working margin Thursday and late-inning help from Johnny Klippstein and Mel Nelson secured the triumph.

CLIMB INTO SECOND BEHIND NINE-RUN THIRD

Braves Stealing Giants' Hitting Thunder

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The San Francisco Giants are rated one of baseball's heaviest hitting teams, but the Milwaukee Braves are stealing their thunder.

The Braves, who swept a three-game series at San Francisco last week, unleashed their heavy artillery again in an explosive nine-run third inning Thursday night in belting the Giants 10-3 behind newcomer Ken Johnson's six-hit pitching.

The shelling left the Giants in a state of shock, while the Braves moved into second place on a percentage basis, five games behind the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers, who check into town for four meetings with the Milwaukee slugger starting tonight.

The Braves weren't concerned by the fact they were held hitless after Eddie Mathews capped the big outburst with a two-run homer with one out in the third. Figures told the story.

In four games with the Giants this season, Milwaukee has collected 38 runs on 47 hits, including nine homers, seven doubles and two triples. San Francisco has managed only 11 hits.

"It certainly is nice to be with hitters like this club has," said Johnson, acquired May 23 from the Houston Astros. "It's kind of easy when you're given such a big early lead."

The big right-hander, who will be 32 June 16, breezed to his first Milwaukee triumph and fourth in six decisions this year. After a shaky start, he settled down, allowing only two hits, one a bunt, in the last five innings.

"I haven't pitched too much lately and was a little rusty," Johnson said. "I might have been a little over-anxious, too. I wanted to do a good job here. This is a great opportunity and I want to make the most of it."

"The Braves have some great hitters and I should win many of the low-run games," he said. "I figure that if I do a good job I can make myself some money. And that's what I'm in baseball for."

He has paid his first dividend — and he's going to pay a few more," Milwaukee Manager Bobby Bragan said.

The Braves sent 13 batters to the plate against three San Francisco hurlers in the decisive third. Then they were stopped cold by rookie Bill Hands, making his major league debut after posting an 8-0 record with Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League, and veteran Bob Bolin.

However, Johnson, nicked for an unearned run in the third, allowed two more tallies in the fourth and was just as tough as his mound opponents the rest of the way.

Kulas, only 16, was relieved by Leroy Anderson in the fifth and last inning of a game shortened by the 10-run rule.

The two Lang's pitchers gave up only three singles but yielded nine walks, five in the third, when Fiberte pushed across three of its runs.

Clem Ehlers was the loser for Fiberte. He was relieved in the third by Mike Deep.

For Lang's, Jerry Wineski doubled and singled in two trips, Hank Gerth and Rich Brown doubled, and Anderson went 2-for-3.

Oasis bombed Local 390 behind the pitching of Gene Garrison, who slammed a bases-loaded home run. Catcher Bob Winesstoffer also homered for the winners.

Frank Pomeroy was the losing pitcher for Local 390. The game ended after five innings under the 10-run rule.

Garrison was hurling a shut-out until the fifth, when Local 390 scored two unearned runs on errors.

RIVALRY WILL BE RENEWED

Family Affair Slated For Belmont Stakes?

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Rolfe and Dapper Dan, who made a family affair of the Preakness three weeks ago with a torrid duel over the final yards, renew their rivalry Saturday at Aqueduct in the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes, with Rolfe to All and four so-so performers seeking to break up the monopoly.

Both Tom Rolfe, a midjet alongside most thoroughbreds, and Dapper Dan, who strikes terror in his rivals with home-stretch charges, were hailed to All and four so-so performers seeking to break up the monopoly.

Dapper Dan and Tom Rolfe first hooked up in the Kentucky Derby May 1. Dapper Dan staged his patented finish but failed by a neck to catch Lucky Debonair, with Tom Wolfe two lengths back in third place.

Two weeks later they met in the Preakness. This time Tom Rolfe took the lead midway of the home stretch and went all out to hold off Dapper Dan's surging drive by a neck. Lucky Debonair wound up far back because of leg injuries.

Since then the supporters of Dapper Dan have claimed all he needs is a longer distance. He gets it in the 1½ miles of the Belmont, a race that is one-quarter mile longer than the Derby and five-sixteenths of a mile longer than the Preakness.

Post time is 4:15 p.m. EST. The race will be nationally televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System from 4:40 p.m. EST and carried on radio from 4:10-4:30.

ATHLETICS SET SATURDAY DRILL

The Winona Athletics will work out Saturday at 4 p.m. in preparation for their Tuesday exhibition game at Caledonia.

The Athletics' home opener is set for June 13 against the Rochester Travelers in a Southern Minnesota League game.

Pete Noll went the distance for the victory, allowing six hits. Bill Glomski and catcher Gerald St. Jacques led the winners' attack with 3-for-4 performances. Mike Chickner was 2-for-2.

The game was a league opener for both teams.

NASON ON EDUCATION

Reading Faster Takes Practice

By L. J. NASON, Ed. D.
U. of Southern California

Dear Dr. Nason:

I would like to be able to read faster. I have read several books on the subject, none of which has helped me so far. I need to hear the words in my mind's eye without saying the words aloud. If I try reading without this simulated "hearing," no understanding comes through. It is as if I had looked at a blank wall. Can I learn to read faster? If so, what steps must I take?

M.S., Holladay, Utah

Answer: Dependence on simulated hearing can be eliminated only through the development of another habit. This can be done with sincere effort and much practice. The following procedure has worked for others.

First, study a paragraph until you know its meaning. Second, read the paragraph as rapidly as possible, insisting that your mind "see" the meaning without the simulated hearing. Read the same paragraph over and over, increasing your reading speed — not just reading words but actually seeing what the words mean. As you increase your reading speed, the simulated hearing will be less and less necessary and will finally disappear. Do not expect complete success in the first few days. Your old habit took years to become fixed.

Dear Dr. Nason:

You say a child should be started acquiring good learning habits early. So, a child needs to be lucky and have a good teacher who helps him stop his bad learning habits in the first grade. But suppose he isn't lucky and he gets into college before he discovers a bad habit. Isn't it very difficult then for him to break it?

S.R., Culver City, Calif.

Answer: Long held, deep rooted habits are always hard to break. It is possible, however, to substitute better ones at any age if the person will exert enough effort.

Dear Dr. Nason:

My son graduated from a small college with an AB degree, having majored in Psychology. He is desirous of entering a university to work for his master's degree. However, he has not been accepted by any of the three to which he has applied.

Are there organizations that, for a fee, put such students in touch with universities that have openings?

N.M.M., Pen Argy, Pa.

Answer: If your son forwards full information regarding his records, together with $15 application fee to the Catholic College Admissions and Information Center, 3805 McKinley St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20015, it should be able to advise him.

Dear Dr. Nason:

I purchased a copy of your booklet "You CAN Get Better Grades" for our oldest son and now have another boy going to school. In view of the fact there have been many changes of late in the curriculum and the approach to education, do you feel that the outlines you have suggested in your book are still valid? Do they still hold true?

S.S.S., Los Angeles, Calif.

Answer: The principles that are set forth in the book still work. The emphasis of school people is changing toward learning to learn as set forth in my book.

We have had an explosion of information in the last ten years. It is estimated that we have picked up as much new knowledge in that period as the human race had acquired in all the time up to then. This means that a student can't depend on just learning the subject matter in high school, he might just find that when he reaches college things have changed a bit — and lots more have been added. So, how well a student learns to learn becomes far more important than it was a few years ago.

Caledonia Firm Low on Addition To Courthouse

CALEDONIA, Minn. — Nelson Construction Co., Caledonia, was low bidder at $41,140 on construction of an addition approximately 23 by 49 feet to the north end of the Houston County courthouse here.

Bids were opened at a special meeting of the County Board of Commissioners Wednesday. Engen Construction Co., Mahel, bid $43,300.

W-SMITH Architectural & Engineering Services, Winona, which drew the plans, will study the bids, and the board probably will accept the low bid at its regular June meeting Wednesday.

The one-story and basement structure will enlarge the clerk of court's vault, provide a vault office for the register of deeds, and provide new restrooms on the first floor. The basement room will be additional vault space for other offices.

The exterior will be Winona stone to match present stone on the present stone building as closely as possible.

The board heard the engineer's report on inspection of flood damage. Because of South Fork flooding, repair of the Yucatan bridge on CSAH 15 cost $2,427.12; repair of Mound Prairie bridge on CSAH 25 cost $8,466.85 because of Root River flooding, and a concrete box culvert had to be replaced near Sheldon on CSAH 10. Application for emergency relief had been made for the Highway 25 and 10 bridges.

Local municipalities, such as La Crescent, Houston Village and Township, also incurred flood damage.

THE BOARD will advertise for bids on sale of the county poor farm about a mile west of Caledonia on old Highway 44. Bids will be opened June 30. This is a 40-acre farm. Evergreen Rest Home stands on it and is operated by Mrs. Cyrella Esch, who has 13 or 14 residents. A small farming operation is carried on.

The board will open bids Wednesday on air conditioners for courthouse offices and will take final action on school dissolution petitions.

LOCKING SPEEDED UP Somewhat at Lock 5A

Some tows have been able to take advantage of an easing in lockage restrictions this week at Dam 5A — and some have not, Lockmaster Wally Voss said today.

A letter from the St. Paul office of the Army Corps of Engineers Tuesday, in effect, opened the lock facilities at Dam 5A to double locking procedures by two companies. However, the companies were warned that they must assume full liability for any resulting damage to the lock and dam or to their own vessels.

UNDER a policy established in 1960, Voss said, tows were required to follow a single locking procedure whenever flow at Dam 5A rose above 40,000 cubic feet per second.

Single locking means that the tow boat takes the first section of his tow all the way to Fountain City, Wis., before mooring it and returning to Winona for the second half.

Double locking, the ordinary procedure, involves mooring the first section to the lock guide walls immediately upstream from the lock, then making up the tow as soon as the second half has been locked through.

With flow at Dam 5A still above 70,000 cubic feet per second and likely to remain above 40,000 for some time to come — in view of recent heavy rains and flooding on the upper reaches of the Mississippi — tow companies were chafing at the time-consuming single locking procedure, according to Voss.

THE TUESDAY letter from St. Paul continues to recommend single locking for as long as a high flow creates dangerous currents on the upstream side of the dam.

However, the 1960 policy is now partially reversed, and tows can be double locked through — at the companies' own risk. Tow haulage facilities at Dam 5A remain unavailable above 40,000 cubic feet per second.

Voss said that tows are using the double locking procedure, depending on their make-up.

For instance, he said a tow with 15 barges may lock three through and moor them above the dam on the lock guide walls. Then six more barges are locked through, and the tow boat takes the nine barges to Fountain City before returning for its remaining six.

Blood Totals May Miss Goal

Going into its last day this morning, the Red Cross blood drive was 32 pints short of its three-day quota.

This means that — for the drive to reach the goal of 500 pints set for the four collecting days this week — a total of 157 pints would have to be collected today.

"We'll never do it," a Red Cross worker predicted this morning.

HALF AN HOUR before the start of today's collection, there were only 18 persons signed up to give blood. No appointments were to have been taken after 2 p.m.

The blood drive here got off to a relatively slow start Tuesday, when 90 pints were collected for Winona County. The quota was passed Wednesday, however, when 142 pints were collected.

Thursday's donors gave 102 pints of blood, and nine would-be donors were rejected. They counted toward the quota, however. There were 13 first-time donors, Mrs. Carl Breitlow, blood chairman, said.

Leading the list of Thursday's donors were Mrs. Harold O'Dea and Earl Eggers, both of whom have given more than five gallons of blood to the Red Cross.

Other repeat donors Thursday were: Warren Shinnick, Sylvester Kammerer, Lyle Jacobson, Mrs. Donald Hittner, Harlan Pronschinske, Gerald Grunz, William G. Becker, Duane J. Kosidowski, Ted Bernatz, Mrs. Jean Hauer, Stephen J. Michalowski and Edward S. Staricka.

One gallon or more — O. J. Fawcett, William Doerer, Mrs. Harold Yeadek, Gerald Schultz, Charles G. Arnold, Gerald B. Wordrow, Richard J. Thill, Alvin R. Beeman, George F. Kratz, Virce A. Miller, Mrs. Stephen Kronebusch, Mrs. Patricia A. Foster.

Wayne L. Kramer, Charles B. Henry, Clarence Currier, Paul Thill, Leonard Mastenbrook, Mrs. Joseph V. Bergler, John Woodworth, L. R. Woodworth, Mrs. James Silgin, Esther M. Schmidt, Richard Falb, William H. Pelzer and Mrs. Stan Sharkey.

Police Looking For Dog Which Bit Child, 5

Police today requested Winonans in the neighborhood near East King and Franklin streets to be on the lookout for a collie-like dog that bit a 5-year-old girl Thursday afternoon as she tried to pet it.

The girl, Mary Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kramer, 264 E. 5th St., was playing with a friend Thursday between King and Howard streets and Franklin and Kansas streets when the incident occurred.

The dog, known in the neighborhood although no one knows who owns it, was near the children and little Mary tried to pet it. The animal bit her in the fleshy part of her right leg, just above the knee, according to Mrs. Kramer.

The girl was given a tetanus shot when it was discovered that the bite had made a puncture mark in addition to a scratch. Today, Mary was suffering more from the effects of the shot than of the bite, Mrs. Kramer said.

Police want to locate the animal so it can be tested for rabies. Chief James W. McCabe said today.

In Memoriam

IN LOVING MEMORY of Mrs. Wilfred
Hunt, who passed away 5 years ago
today, June 4.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell.
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep.
Her memory we shall always keep.
Husband and children.

In Loving Memory of Irwin A.

Irwin A. who passed away 1 year ago
today, June 4.
One year ago you left me.
Your home, your life, your love.
You place at the table is empty.
It doesn't even seem like home.
There is no one to talk to.
Or Robert to play with.
But I know someday.
You will be waiting for me.
Sadly missed. Your wife,
Iris, and children.
