HISTORIANS MEET AT EAU CLAIRE

Early Lumbering Fight Told

Here's a subject that ought to catch your eye. It's "Love, Marriage and Money." When you stop to think about it, it's a big decision asking someone to share your pay-check. Oh, I suspect that's a crude way to put it, but nevertheless, when a fellow says to a lass, "I love you, dear, will you marry me?" he is saying in a sense, "I will share my paycheck with you."

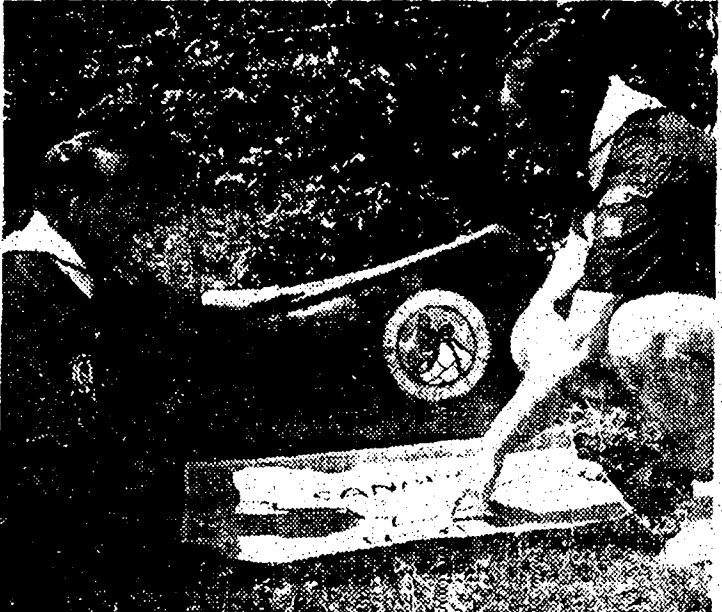

Sometimes it's watered down with sweet nothings like "Two can live as cheaply as one," or "We'll live on love," but ask anyone who has tried. It just doesn't work that way.

I rather suspect that most young couples have endured some rough spots in their marriage when it comes to money matters. The problem is apt to begin with two different sets of values, mixed with a difference in taste. It isn't always the big items like the car, furnishings, etc. that lights the fuse. It's the inability of the paycheck to care for those things and take care of the Friday night or Saturday trip to the store, pay the rent, buy the clothes, care for the utilities, and supply the wants of young hearts which often prove to be heavy on desires and short on self-denial.

FRUSTRATION will often follow, causing each to blame the other, and in the case of the really immature, this battle of the sexes degenerates to the point that if the man spends foolishly, the woman finds an item of equal value and buys it for spite.

Now a word to the wise — the best place to correct this problem is at home. The time is before you get your next paycheck. By the way, there's no age limit on this system. Old married couples that are still wrangling on the subject of money couldn't find a better time than the present to face their problem.

List all of your bills, leaving nothing out. Now list your living costs — the groceries, utilities, gas for the car — everything. Now add it up. Subtract it from the amount of the paycheck. Chances are there isn't much left. Now why scold each other? Together you created this situation — together you can correct it. If payments are too high, you may have to get rid of something. It's only a temporary condition, and you will accumulate the better things in time. Perhaps it's just a matter of shutting off all foolish spending and further charges. Such discipline is good for the fiber of growing adults.

THERE MAY be many other answers, depending on the problem. The point is, look at the situation together and together lay plans for correction. Instead of sharp words, show kindness and rekindle the love that formed this union in the first place. Typical is the wife that complains she just can't make ends meet, and husband that comes back with, "What do ya expect a fellow to do? I earn good money, but no matter what, there's never enough." At which the wife says something about "Oh sure, now it's all my fault, isn't it?" And then she begins to cry.

Tender moments — this kind of deal will send the memories of those courting days into oblivion. So, don't risk it. Face the problem before it gets worse. Work out a plan and EAU CLAIRE, Wis. — An Eau Claire historian told this area's version of famous Beef Slough to 56 members of the Winona County Historical Society when they paid a return visit to the Chippewa Valley Historical Society at Carson Park here Saturday afternoon.

The Chippewa Valley society, comprised of Eau Claire, Chippewa and Pepin counties, had visited the Winona County museum and the Wilkie last summer.

MRS. LOIS Barland, author of "Sawdust City," talked at a dinner served under the pines in the Paul Bunyan replica of the logging camps in 132-acre Carson Park of the Wisconsin city. Miss Jenny Webster, former Eau Claire superintendent of schools, talked to the group at Sunnyview School, a rural school that has been moved into the park as a museum of the country schoolhouse.

Eau Claire was a "Sawdust City" for 84 years, Mrs. Barland said, and at one time led the lumber trade in the U.S. The Chippewa River was the main waterway, bringing millions of board feet of felled pine from the west and north to the Eau Claire mills, and carrying other logs down the busy stream to its outlet into the Mississippi River at Reads Landing.

According to Mrs. Barland's research, the first lumber raft was run down the Chippewa River in 1835 by L. Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederacy, who had been sent from Fort Crawford at Prairie du Chien up the Mississippi to obtain lumber for rebuilding the fort.

L.T. DAVIS got the raft together. Below Durand he turned left into Beef Slough, thinking the broad expanse of water there was the main channel, and the raft was broken up.

At one time — before the Mississippi River lumbermen who owned vast tracts of timberland on the Chippewa River and its tributaries built sawmills at Dubuque, Muscatine and Clinton, Iowa, and other points — a pioneer Eau Claire lumberman urged the lumbermen of the Chippewa Valley to get together and jointly buy outright or obtain by lease or otherwise, control of Beef Slough. This would have compelled the Mississippi River lumbermen to build their sawmills at Eau Claire or Chippewa Falls as they wouldn't have been able to float their logs through Beef Slough.

The slough, a nearly stagnant backwater, made a good place for piling logs.

BY 1868, Eau Claire mill men had secured rights to the slough, but the downriver mill men who wanted the logs floated all the way down to Alma before being sorted, organized the Beef Slough Manufacturing Booming, Log Driving and Transporting Co. and contracted to deliver 60 million feet of logs down the Mississippi.

The legislature defeated the bill which would have allowed the Beef Slough company to organize. "Eau Claire mill men sent 100 of their toughest river rats down to dam the mouth of the slough to prevent its use," Mrs. Barland said. The booming company applied for a restraining order, which didn't come through in time to prevent the building of the dam.

"The booming company retaliated by having the adjacent land condemned on the pretense that a public highway was going through. A man from downriver, identified in the papers in Eau Claire as Mr. Bacon, said he had 60 million feet of logs and wanted his identical logs, not exchanged ones, as was the custom.

"On May 1, 1868, backed up by a crew of 100 of the toughest log drivers he could find, this Mr. Bacon, whose real identity was never named, came to Eau Claire and cut all the booms, sending all the logs down to the Mississippi. One mill owner above Eau Claire lost $20,000 in property and other mill men lost millions of feet of timber.

"EAU CLAIRE retaliated with 200 men marching down the river, and the Beef Slough men retreated. The battle was costly to both sides and the victory doubtful. By 1870 the Beef Slough company was on the verge of bankruptcy but Frederick Weyerhaeuser came along at this time with a seemingly endless supply of money.

"The Eau Claire mill men sued on the grounds that the booming company was obstructing traffic on the river. The affair was settled in 1880 by a compromise log sharing plan.

Mill men had a choice of joining or going out of business. The logging industry wasn't dead, but many of the mills changed hands.

One of the earliest successful loggers was J. G. Thorp, Mrs. Barland said. He became a state senator from Eau Claire. His Madison home later was used for some time as the governor's mansion. Thorp's daughter, Sara, married Ole Bull, the great Norwegian violinist. His son, Joseph Thorp Jr., married Annie Longfellow, youngest daughter of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The village of Thorp, northeast of Eau Claire, was named for the lumberman.

Miss Lois Williams, president of the society, took the Winona group on a tour of the city prior to their return.

Firemen Burn a House to Learn

By TERRY BORMANN
Daily News Staff Writer

RUSHFORD, Minn. — Volunteer firemen from all over Southeastern Minnesota practiced their "knockdown" and their "overhaul" techniques at a house-burning here Sunday.

For some of the volunteer departments, the terms and the techniques did not come easy. For others, it was a matter of going in and doing a tough job with relative speed and thoroughness.

THE 100 MEN from 22 volunteer departments were attending a Southeastern Minnesota Fire Department Association school hosted by the Rushford volunteer fire department.

A house abandoned by its owners in the wake of the Root River's umpteenth flood served as the site. Eight fires were put out by five-man teams from individual departments and similar teams made up of members from two departments simulating "mutual aid" situations that arise when a fire is too big for one department.

Four instructors accompanied the teams in relays to check on their procedure and to take over in case the fire got out of hand.

The still-standing house near the Root River is the evidence that none of the volunteers allowed the fires they faced to get out of control. Average time for knockdown and overhaul of the eight fires was 15 minutes.

IN A FILM shown after the drill, the laymen in the audience learned that "knockdown" is the initial subduing of flames, knocking them down to the smoldering point.

"Overhaul" is the hunting out of places the fire might have spread from its starting point and the extinguishment of these places if they prove to be the smoldering sources of new fires.

The instructors — including Cleo Keiper and Bruce Johnson of the Winona department — agreed that the volunteers' biggest failing in attacking the fires was poor water distribution.

Ermet Phifer, Austin, of the state Department of Education, and Ward Willford, St. Paul, head of the state firemans' training program, time and again criticized the volunteers for using too much water to douse the fire they faced.

As they explained and as the film showed, firefighting requires a good deal of practical knowledge about physics and chemistry.

FOR INSTANCE, is it not always necessary to shoot water directly on a fire. If the air in a room is hot enough, a fireman can simply spray water into the air to form a smothering blanket of steam.

A very little water can be sufficient to suffocate a fire confined to one room of a house — as most were at Rushford, the instructors pointed out. Addition of water can condense the steam and give the flames a new opening.

Keiper noted that 75 percent of all fire loss is from smoke and water damage. Insurance rates are most affected by this high percentage of damage that does not come from flames at all, the Winona fire marshal pointed out.

Throughout the afternoon in Rushford, the emphasis was on skill. Alfred Cordes, Rushford fire chief, and Charles Berg, assistant state fire marshal and member of the Rushford department, both vouched for the hard work on fire drills they believe is necessary to build an effective department.

SKILL AND technique were emphasized in demonstrations, before the house-burning, of ways to control propane gas fires.

Using gas and a "pipelime" supplied by the Tri-County Co-op Oil Association, members of the Rushford and Lewiston departments demonstrated the proper techniques for putting out the fire using dry chemical extinguisher and an interlocking pattern from fog nozzles on 1 1/2-inch hose lines.

The interlocking pattern of water spray probably was the more complicated operation. In it, two men each on the hose lines advanced with their nozzles producing a wide spray pattern, the patterns forming a MOVE IN . . . Spectators saw a lot of smoke, but most of the action went on inside this house used for eight fire drills Sunday afternoon at a school for Southeastern Minnesota volunteer firemen. As instructors pointed out, you can't fight a fire unless you can see it. To see a fire in an interior room, you've got to go right into the room. Here, a volunteer team moves a hose line into the house while instructors (white helmets) watch their performance. (Mrs. Manion photo)

Summer Begins; Rain This Week

This is summer.

And for once the weather and the calendar cooperated. The official arrival was at 8:56 a.m. today and it'll be around until 12:06 a.m. Sept. 23.

AFTER A pleasant weekend in which the temperatures rose to a high of 82 Saturday afternoon and 85 on Sunday, scattered showers or thunderstorms are predicted for late tonight or early Tuesday. It'll be a little warmer tonight, probably no cooler than 55-60, the weatherman said. A high of 72-78 was predicted for Tuesday.

No precipitation and temperatures a little below normal is the outlook for Wednesday.

In addition to the showers predicted for late tonight and early Tuesday, intermittent rain is expected through the next five days with the total amount nearing three-quarters of an inch.

Temperatures through Saturday will average near daytime normals of 78-83 and nighttime lows of 57-61, the extended forecast indicates.

THE TEMPERATURE dropped to 66 Sunday morning and 53 this morning. At noon today the reading was 75.

Rain fell over most of the state Sunday with .05 of an inch at Rochester where Sunday afternoon high was 79. Low this morning was 49. A brief shower here Sunday noon amounted to .06 of an inch. Wind was strong for a brief period.

A storm hit at La Crosse Sunday afternoon, dumping rain and hail measuring .38 of an inch in moisture. High temperature there was 85 and the low this morning 50.

An electrical, wind and rain storm hit the DAKOTA area early Sunday afternoon. Dakota where they came together. In the V, one man moved along the pipeline to the valve, which he turned off.

The firemen had to be careful not to put the burning gas out with their spray nozzles. The reason for this was that they must make sure the closing of the valve is actually shutting off the gas supply.

It was an afternoon for learning skills and for keeping known skills in practice.

THESE DEPARTMENTS took part in the drills: Host Rushford, Blooming Prairie, Lewiston, Elletts, Peterson and Minnesota City.

These departments sent representatives to observe: Altura, Albert Lea and Austin (paid departments), Caledonia, Dover, Adams, Canton, Elba, Houston, Lanesboro, Hokah, Mabel, Owatonna, Plainville, Spring Grove, Spring Valley, Wammingo and Zumbrota.

3 Slightly Injured in Crashes Here

Three minor injuries and $1,350 damage resulted from two two-car collisions on Winona streets over the weekend, police reported.

The injuries resulted from a collision at Wabasha and High Forest streets Saturday at 11:30 p.m. John F. Cisewski, 751 E. 2nd St., was driving north on High Forest Street, and Virginia L. Huff, 304 E. 4th St., was driving west on Wabasha Street, according to the police report.

CITY ACCIDENT BOXSCORE

	To Date—	1965	1964
Deaths	1	1	1
Accidents	269	191	191
Injuries	85	80	80
Property damage	$92,125	$35,380

IMPACT OF the collision drove the Huff car to the north-west corner of the intersection with the front of the Cisewski car tight up against the left side of the Huff vehicle.

Mrs. Cisewski and a passenger in the Huff car, Jane Kramer, 27, 371 Liberty St., complained of pain after the accident. Beverly Suffrins, 28, Lamolite, received bruises; she was also riding in the Huff car. None of the injured required medical attention.

Damage was $500 to the front of the Cisewski car and $300 to the left side of the Huff car, according to investigating patrolmen Sylvester J. Rotering and Joseph F. Bronk.

Robert O. Skogberg, 23, Sacred Heart, Minn., was driving south on Clark's Lane Sunday at 11:46 p.m. when he reached for a cigarette lighter and pulled the steering wheel of his car so as to collide with a parked vehicle, according to police.

THE PARKED vehicle was at the west curb of Clark's Lane, facing south, at the time of the collision. It is owned by Delmer C. Bunke, 789 Clark's Lane, and was parked in front of his home, the police report said.

Damage was $350 to the right front of the Skogberg car and $200 to the left rear of the Bunke vehicle. Patrolmen Edward E. Mathees and Milton Rornenberg investigated.

Driver Asleep At Wheel, Suffers Cuts

A Minneapolis man received multiple cuts on his head, arms and legs after he fell asleep at the wheel of his car Sunday morning on County 29, three miles south of Lewiston, according to Sheriff George L. Fort.

Norbert G. Bialka, 26, was listed in satisfactory condition today by an official at Community Memorial Hospital. He had been rushed to the hospital shortly after the accident at 12:15 a.m. when a Mr. Reys and another man from Lewiston found him standing at the roadside near the wreck of his automobile.

According to Deputy John J. Schneider, Bialka was driving south on County 29 when he fell asleep. His car drifted 393 feet in the northbound lane, 438 feet in the left ditch and came to an abrupt halt against a tree. Bialka was able to get out of his car and walked to the side of the road where he was discovered by the passersby. Damage was $1,200 to Bialka's 1963, four-door sedan — a total loss according to the sheriff.

City Traffic Survey

A state highway department traffic survey remains in progress in Winona, Assistant Police Chief Marvin A. Meyer said.

Checkpoints on Broadway at Lafayette, Walnut, Market and Franklin streets were manned today by local youths working for the department.

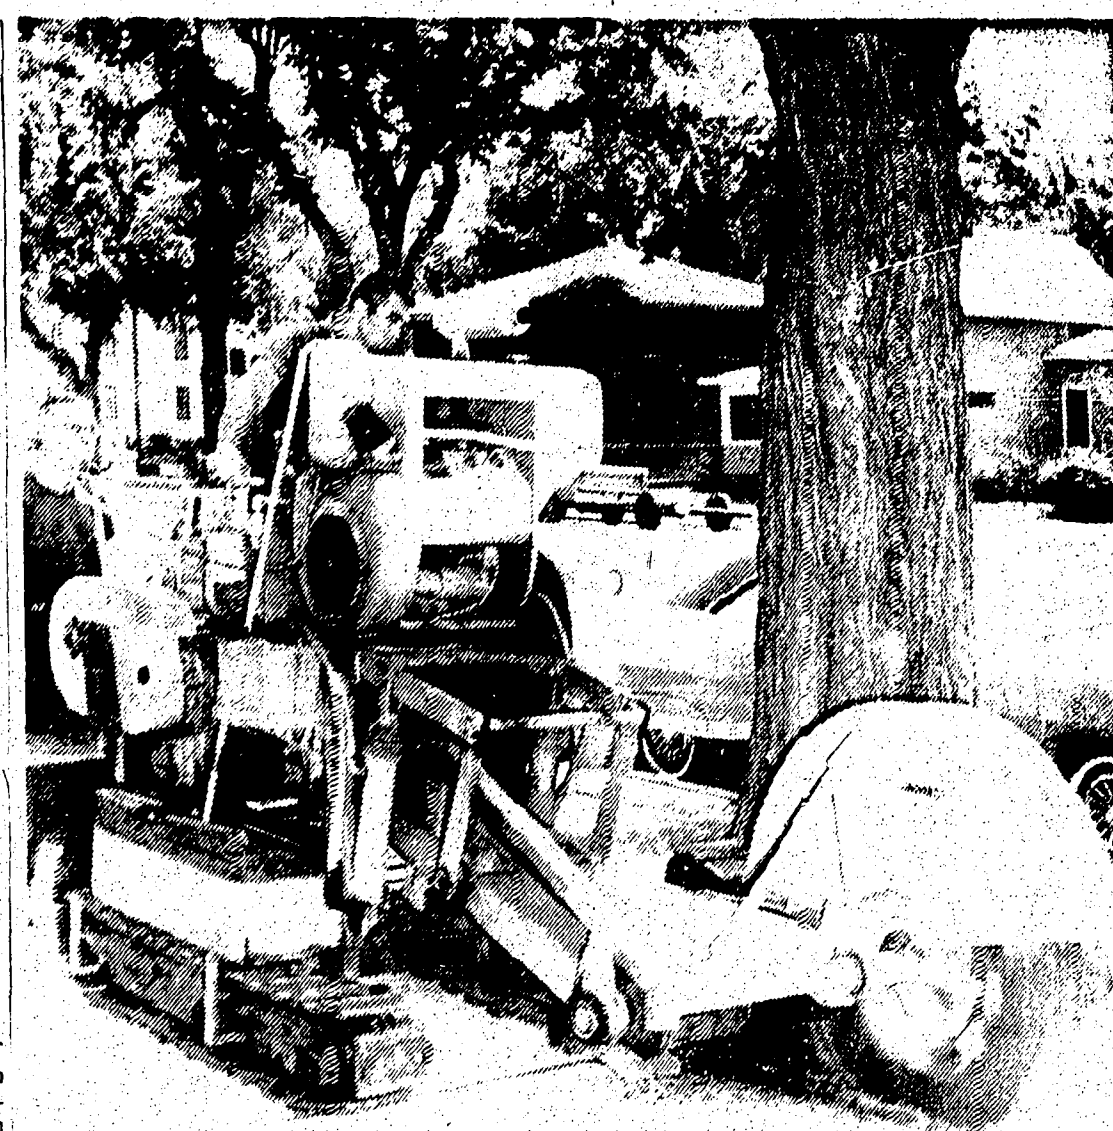

They are to stop all motorists approaching Broadway from the north on the cross streets and ask them four questions: Where have you just come from, where are you going, where do you work and where is the vehicle you are driving kept when not in use?

Purpose of the traffic survey is to determine whether the present layout of Highway 43 in the city is efficiently handling traffic flow, according to Chief Meyer.

Further checks will be made Wednesday and Thursday and next Monday, according to Meyer.

Wednesday, the checkpoints will be set up on Broadway at Center, Washington, Johnson and Main streets. Thursday, on Broadway at Winona and Huff streets and at 5th and Harriet streets. Next Monday, Harriet Street at 2nd, 3rd and 4th streets will be checked.

Cutting of Tree Roots Expected to Be Saving

A two-ton buzz saw now chewing its way through tree roots on city boulevards may save property owners thousands of dollars in sidewalk repairs, the park-recreation department believes.

The machine, operated by Eugene Olson, 900 E. Wabasha St., began work April 12. Olson, 35, and his father, Henry Olson, have a contract for 1,000 hours of root-cutting at a figure of $11,000.

THEY HAVE worked for 50 days without interruption because of favorable weather, running up a total of slightly more than 500 hours. About 20 to 25 percent of the city has been covered, said the elder Olson, and it is likely that an additional contract will be needed to finish the job next year, he believes. About 3,000 cuts have been made, Olson says.

On the first pass, the Olsons moved along a two-block swath, between Broadway and Sanborn Street, from east to west limits. At present, they are about halfway through a similar portion lying between Broadway and 4th Street.

The objective is to slice off tree roots which grow laterally from boulevards, raising sidewalk sections as they become larger. A cut is made parallel to the sidewalk and 12 to 15 inches deep, after which the narrow trench is filled with dirt by the contractors.

BRUCE REED, superintendent of trees and parks, says damage to walks from growing roots will be reduced 75 or 80 percent. It will be necessary to repeat the operation no oftener than once in five years, he estimates, thus spreading the cost over several years and reducing it accordingly.

Exceptions are those places where trees grow too close to the walks to permit machine operation. Here, says Reed, the upheavals will continue as long as the trees remain. About seven inches of clearance between walk and tree are needed. This is the width of the steel guard that covers the 40-inch cutting wheel. About five minutes is needed to cut the roots of a 15-inch elm tree, observers noted.

ASKED WHETHER such cutting injures trees, Reed replied: "The trees aren't hurt. This is a much better method of cutting off roots than using an ax or chopping tool. The machine makes a clean cut which will heal the root system is then forced to go deeper in place of spreading horizontally."

Redeemer Lutheran Church and James Bodurtha, Troop 57, Plainview Jaycees, who served as camp bugler, Junior leaders from 34 troops of Gamewatch Council attended. Tom Manko, Sugar Loaf District Scout Executive, directed the course, assisted by the summer staff of Camp Hok-Si-La.

so no real damage is done."

A few sidewalks have been damaged by the heavy machine, which inches slowly along on caterpillar treads. Generally this happens because of inferior construction which seems to have occurred on many older walks, Olson said. Some walks have only an inch or so of concrete, he said, and crack easily under weight or when they are pushed up by roots.

A wide variety of underground obstructions rattles off the steel guard. Churned-up materials include a steady drumfire of stones, an occasional pipe and a few horseshoes. Part of an old gravestone came up once.

IN MOST CASES, subsurface utility connections have been avoided, Olson said, though on at least one occasion a cable on the city fire alarm telephone service was cut. Since the maximum depth of the cuts is 15 inches, most of the wires, conduits and pipes are below the danger area.

Assured by the manufacturer that the standard steel guard was adequate, the Olsons soon found themselves ducking all manner of flying objects. When a rock raised a large lump on Eugene's leg, they fashioned an additional metal skirt which now traps most of the flying debris.

Keeping curious children out of harm's way is sometimes a problem, says Henry. In general, there are two ways to accomplish this, he observes. One method is that of friendly persuasion, which has produced mixed results at times.

ONE DAY, seeing three youngsters wander a little too close to the growing machine, Henry reached into his pocket and produced three nickels which he distributed along with words of diplomatic warning.

Moments later he turned around to find a cluster of children looking at him expectantly. Olson asked one of the original trio how many children lived in the nearby house.

"Twenty-two," chirped the young resident of St. Joseph's Children's Home.

Chilly But Not Waiting at Fair

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — My mother and attractive 18-year-old niece Jane Witte from Fort Wayne are visiting us so I took them out to the World's Fair to ride the Monorail, see the Amusement Area, and the Florida Citrus Water Ski Show on a day so chilly they could almost have worn snow skis.

A shot rang out signaling the start of the show. "You hear that shot?" said an announcer. "That was one of our waterskiers when he heard today's temperature."

The orange drinks served in the VIP Lounge had snowdrifts on them. But there was an advantage to the weather. There was a "No waiting" sign at the General Motors exhibit. And the Monorail ride (on the "Earl Wilson Express," as they called it for just one trip, to please my mother) was pleasantly uncrowded... so take a tip... and go to the Fair now.

Maitre D' Felix was so pleasant at the Granada restaurant that I didn't eat anything but Caldo Gallego, Gran Villagodio with peppers, and Crepes Granada, with such lubricants as margaritas, rioja, sangria and Spanish brandy.

"Where's Slugger?" Felix asked. "MY SON," I replied, with pride. "is taking his driver's lesson."

"What kind of a driver's course is he taking?" Felix asked. "A crash course," the B.W. said.

Sydney Chaplin told me in his dressing room at "Funny Girl" that he's leaving the show because "The producer (Ray Stark) and I didn't get along. I don't like him and he doesn't like me." Chaplin scoffed at the "official" explanation that he's leaving to do an already committed movie. "My old man's talking to Carlo Ponti about a movie with Sophia Loren and me, but it's indefinite," he said.

"I'm leaving because 500 performances is enough agony."

TODAY'S WORST PUN: Chris Bastis met a fellow who had to sell his racehorse. He couldn't afford the fodder for the mud-

der. WISH I'D SAID THAT: There are a number of golfers who play a fair game — that is, if you watch them closely.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "In some restaurants the chef is just a guy with a big enough vocabulary to give the soup a different name every day." — Anon.

EARL'S PEARLS: An antique dealer told about his job: "The older the item, the more modern the price."

Shelby Friedman of Dallas says the local cops are rough on traffic violators: "They gave me a ticket for turning a corner on two wheels — and I was riding a bicycle." That's earl, brother.

Three Drown In Wisconsin

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three persons lost their lives in widely separated waters of Wisconsin during the weekend.

John Olson, 28, of Meadowdale, Ill., drowned Sunday when a boat overturned as he and his father-in-law were fishing in Lake Elizabeth, near Twin Lakes. Conservation wardens rescued his father-in-law, Frank Hruby, 52, of Hampshire, Ill. Olson's body was recovered some hours later.

Theodore L. Hetzel, 23, of Plain, drowned Saturday when he tried to retrieve a water ski that had slipped into Lake Wisconsin near Sauk City. Authorities said Hetzel, who could not swim, had removed a life jacket.

Kathy Ann Ebel, 8, of Neenah drowned in Baetler Lake of Portage County Saturday while she and a companion were waiting.

Summer Theater Opens With 'Charley's Aunt'

"Charley's Aunt," the first play in the College of Saint Teresa summer theater's series of comedies, opens at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in the college's newly air-conditioned theater.

The play's central situation is one of the oldest, most frequently-used devices in the theater—that of a character assuming the identity of someone else, yet it is one of the most popular comedies in the English language.

SINCE ITS first production in 1892, this Brandon Thomas farce has been produced more than 100,000 times — more times than any other play, with the possible exception of "Hamlet" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," some estimate.

According to John Marzocco, who has done some research on the subject in connection with his production of "Charley's Aunt," the device of assumed character was used by the Romans, and it figures in many Renaissance plays. Boccaccio's works, for example, are full of boys masquerading as girls, or vice-versa, Marzocco pointed out.

Shakespeare put Rosalind in "As You Like It" into man's attire, had Viola in "Twelfth Night" disguise herself as a page boy, and masqueraded other characters in "The Winter's Tale," "The Comedy of Errors" and other plays. Moliere had characters masking as others than themselves in nearly every comedy he wrote, Marzocco said.

That the device has not declined in favor in modern times is proved by its use in the operas "Rosenkavalier" and "Die Fledermaus" and in Moliere's comedy, "The Guardsman," in which a jealous officer pretends to be an Army officer and makes love to his own wife, he said.

THE MAIN JEST of all such instances is that the audience always knows the true identity of the masquerading character, but the characters in the play are fooled. In "Charley's Aunt," the young man in the absurd old-fashioned clothes that he imagines will make him appear to be a long-absent aunt from Brazil, convinces all who meet him that he is truly a prim old lady, but his occasional lapses into his regular masculine habits seem unfunny because they seem unaccountable to the people who believe his masquerade.

In the summer theater production here, Steven Andersen will be seen as the young scamp who poses as his aunt.

Tickets for "Charley's Aunt" are available, but all seats are reserved. Tickets for the season of the summer theater may be had singly for each production or by subscription for the season. On the season ticket are included Moliere's "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," opening July 8 for a four-night run, and the musical comedy, "The Boy Friend," which will play July 22 through 26.

All productions of the theater will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Student Pilot Dead in Crash

NASHVILLE, GA. — Second Lt. Neil A. Leitner, 26, of Manitowish, Wis., an Air Force student pilot, and his instructor were killed Saturday in the crash of their T-37 jet trainer near here. The instructor was 1st Lt. William B. Pope, 27, of Cynthia, Ky.

Holiday House in Milwaukee Burns

MILWAUKEE — The Holiday House, downtown theater restaurant, was swept early Sunday by a fire believed to have been caused by smoldering cigarettes in a trash can behind the bar.

Battalion Chief Edmund C. Cronshaw, who estimated damage at $80,000, said a gas line broke in the basement and acted as a torch to spread flames through the building.

The rebels also want a permanent government elected in less than six months while the OAS plan calls for elections in six to nine months.

The rebels also want more than 30 officers removed from the armed forces before rebel soldiers rejoin the army and civilians give up their arms, as the OAS proposes.

Rebel sources reported work already has begun on an "institutional act" under which the provisional government would operate until elections.

Compromise Sought on Voting Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — A search is under way on Capitol Hill for a compromise between the House and Senate voting rights bills that would cut down the chances for further delay in its passage.

At the same time, efforts are being directed toward healing the rift between House Democratic and Republican civil rights supporters over the legislation before it comes up in the House, probably soon after the July 4 holiday.

The key difference between the bills is their treatment of poll taxes, and the hoped-for compromise would find the House yielding on the outright ban on such taxes in state and local elections. Such a ban was voted by its Judiciary Committee.

The Senate, after a fight that split supporters of the bill down the middle, declared poll taxes have been used to discriminate against Negro voters. But the bill it passed calls for a prompt court test of their constitutionality, rather than outlawing them by statute.

The administration and the joint Senate leadership fought against a statutory ban and are expected to continue their opposition if the House insists on supporting the Judiciary Committee's position.

Civil rights groups and scores of their backers in the House want the committee upheld. And speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., strongly endorsed the ban when the committee acted.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who played an important role in the Senate's action, will probably be enlisted to help bring the House and Senate into agreement.

The compromise talk has only begun to be heard, but what those most actively concerned want is to put the Senate poll tax provision into the House Judiciary Committee bill and have the Senate accept the resulting package.

That would eliminate the need of a joint conference to work out differences in the bills. In such a conference the Senate conferees would be represented mainly by Southerners hostile to the legislation. The Senate would still have to vote to accept such a package, but the possibility of the bill dying in a stalemate conference would be avoided.

The chance for such a compromise would be vastly improved if it had the support of Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, the ranking GOP member of the Judiciary Committee.

McCulloch helped write the 1964 Civil Rights Act and fought shoulder to shoulder with the Democratic leadership to get it through the House unscathed. But now he is sponsoring a Republican alternative insisted on by the new, ambitious House GOP leadership, which wants to avoid the tag of being a rubber stamp for the administration.

The House Rules Committee has not yet scheduled a hearing on the voting rights bill to clear it for a vote. Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has acted under a new House rule to bypass the Rules Committee. On July 12, whether the committee has acted or not, the voting bill can be called up.

Gen. Olson Reviews Troops At Camp McCoy

CAMP MCCOY, Wis. — The men of Wisconsin's 32nd National Guard Division paraded in the Governor's Day review Sunday with the guest of honor absent.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles was not able to view the ceremonies due to an illness which hospitalized him last week.

He was represented by Maj. Gen. Ralph Olson, the adjutant general for Wisconsin, at the parade which marked the halfway point in the two-week summer encampment for most of the Red Arrow Division.

It also marked the end of training for some 1,100 men of the Second Brigade and the First Reconnaissance Squadron, 105th Cavalry, who arrived in camp June 5.

DEAR ABBY:

Price of Pride Often Too High

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the expectant mother who didn't want her husband to see her without dentures, so she refused to take them out and give them to the nurse. I am a surgical nurse and I know the importance to the patient, I have yet to find one who would not readily remove them. If a patient receives anesthetics, or loses consciousness even temporarily, instruments may have to go into the mouth. Artificial teeth may break or become dislodged, and it's entirely possible for a patient to swallow a piece of broken denture or to gag and choke on it. This is a mighty high price to pay for pride. ST. LOUIS NURSE

DEAR ABBY: I, for one, was glad to see that letter in your column about people who insist on keeping their false teeth in their mouths during surgery or delivery. I work in the laundry at St. Mary's Hospital, and I wish I had a dime for every time we got a call from upstairs asking us to look for some idiot's bridgework or dentures. Some patients will actually lie when they're asked if they have any removable plates in their mouths. When they are discovered and we take them out, they either get lost or mixed up with the sheets, and the patients yell their heads off about OUR carelessness!

ABBY DISGUSTED AT ST. MARY'S

DEAR ABBY: I am also a nurse who didn't take up nursing to fight the patients, but I have fought a few in my time. I'll never forget the wrestling match I had with a 240-pounder who refused to take off his money belt when we were preparing him for an emergency kidney stone operation. R. N. IN RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Navy hospital corpsman, writing in reply to the letter about dentures. It is the policy of most hospitals to require all patients to remove all prosthetic pieces (false teeth, eyes, eyelashes, fingernails and what-have-you), before entering the delivery or operating room. In some cases wedding rings or religious medals are permitted, but they are carefully taped to the patient. The nurse was correct in insisting that the lady surrender her false teeth for her own protection. If she had choked on them during delivery, it would have been too bad. ABOARD THE U.S.S. BRYCE CANYON

DEAR ABBY: This happened in the days before they had such strict hospital rules, but it happened nevertheless. One of our leading society ladies went into the local hospital for some supposedly "minor" surgery. I don't know if she was trying to get away with passing off her false teeth as her own, but she had them in her mouth during the operation. They became dislodged somehow, interfered with her breathing, and the woman died on the operating table. S.S. IN ASHLAND, Ky.

DEAR ABBY: Please forward my apologies to Celia's sister, who had the run-in with the nurse over the way the nurse demanded that she remove her dentures before going into the delivery room. If nurses were EDUCATED in colleges and universities and not TRAINED in service institutions, such disgusting incidents would not occur. It's regrettable that such cruel and unfeeling nurses are permitted to run around loose. I am an instructor in Obstetrics, and I teach my student-nurses that emotional and spiritual is as important as the physical.

There are so many fine nurses who are working hard to improve the quality of nursing care, it is a shame that one nurse can disgrace the whole profession by her mean and bossy attitude. Women without compassion should not be allowed to practice nursing. But what can we do? We are SO short-handed! No name, please. I still—

NASON ON EDUCATION

Good Coordination Can Help Grades

By J. J. NASON, Ed. D., U. of Southern California
Help your child develop his physical coordination this summer; he will be happier on the playground, and will have a better chance too for success in the schoolroom.

Children with high motor proficiency and make higher grades in reading and writing than children with poor coordination.

Repeated practice will help him gain control over his hands and increase his coordination. But don't push too fast.

ENCOURAGE him also to draw pictures and do be careful not to be critical. In extreme cases, better ask him what it is before you hazard a guess.

Only through activities in which he is trying to improve his skill and get better control will his development of coordination be speeded up.

He should be encouraged to run and play. Someone with great patience should play catch with him and encourage him to play on the Jungle Jims and other equipment in nearby parks.

IF MOTHER is too busy to supervise some of these activities an older child can be a good substitute. In fact, this is part of the preparation for a successful school life. Every child must learn to accept the authority of persons other than parents. This may be an opportunity for the prospective kindergarten to learn other things like taking turns and assuming responsibility for his own behavior.

Parents should start early with the late bloomers. A child whose lack of coordination makes it difficult for him to gain skill in school tasks at the very beginning often remains handicapped.

A child who is late in cutting his teeth or in learning to walk will be awkward in throwing or catching a ball and in other skills involved in group playing.

THIS SAME child will have difficulty in drawing pictures and, later, in learning to write. His lack of skill may still be evident and still be a handicap in the higher grades.

The late bloomer needs patient help and continued encouragement. Drawing may continue to be difficult for him through kindergarten and the first grade, and learning to write may present an unusually difficult hurdle for him. But he should continue to practice until success is attained. It just takes longer for such children.

In cases where the development of these skills has been neglected and the child is still handicapped at upper grade levels, all is not lost. These skills can still be developed with persistent effort.

Attention to this factor is important at every level.

Hartley Gives Views On Repeal of 14(b)

FORMER CONG. Fred A. Hartley Jr., says the reason today's unions want to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley act and "destroy" Right to Work laws is "money and the political power it gives the union official."

Hartley is serving as honorary chairman of the Citizens Committee to Preserve Taft-Hartley, a group of nationally prominent leaders representing all sections of the country and both major political parties.

"Why should voluntary union membership — the principle upon which unionism grew and prospered — be so bitterly attacked by union officials and their adherents?" Hartley asked. "The answer," he said, "is money."

The co-author of the National Labor Relations act said unions now are taking in approximately one billion dollars each year in dues revenue from members, and that a substantial share of this goes into political spending — either directly or indirectly through the use of union staff personnel.

POINTING OUT that by "suggestion" of AFL-CIO President George Meany, a major part of union staff people, representing a payroll of approximately $34,000,000 per month, were used in political action programs last fall, Hartley declared that "unions probably were responsible for spending as much money on the national political campaigns as either party at the height of the campaign."

"At the time the Taft-Hartley act was enacted, those of us working on it thought we had plugged all loopholes for political spending by unions," the former New Jersey congressman said. "Subsequent court decisions and rulings by the NLRB, coupled with lack of enforcement, have all but made those provisions of the law useless."

AS AN EXAMPLE of how forced membership or fees from employees increases union income, Hartley cited an NLRB reversal in a case in Indiana in 1961 which permitted "agency shop contracts," in which all employees must either join the union or pay an agency fee. This meant additional annual revenue of more than $1,000,000 to just one union, the United Automobile Workers, in only one state, according to Hartley.

"If 14(b) is repealed, union income will increase tremendously; the use of forced union dues dollars for political and legislative activity will increase many times," Hartley said. "The stakes are high. The political future of America and the domination of our government by union officials is at stake in the 14(b) decision. This is what the fight for 14(b) is all about."

HARTLEY WHO resides at Milford, N.J., says he is proud of his long and close association with the labor movement. He said he was a former union member who had marched in a picket line and for 12 of the 20 years he served in Congress was spokesman for the American Federation of Labor on the Republican side of the House.

Area Economy Parallels U.S. Rate

BUSINESS ACTIVITY in the Ninth Federal Reserve district has been expanding at approximately the same rate as nationally, the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis says in its monthly review of economic conditions.

Parallels have showed up in increases in nonagricultural employment as well as in declines in the number of persons drawing unemployment compensation. The district unemployment rate — 3.6 percent in March, seasonally adjusted — was at the lowest monthly level for which data are available; in the nation the rate was 4.7 percent, the lowest level since 1947.

The bank reported an estimated 8 percent district increase in the output of manufactured products in early spring, about the same as the national rate.

The dollar volume of district retail sales in the four-week period ended May 15 was about ten percent ahead of the same period in 1964.

TOTAL DISTRICT checkbook spending (bank debits) expanded about eight percent between April 1964 and April 1965. Since the first of the year the expansion of the district debit series has lagged that of the nation by only a small margin.

The Federal Reserve Bank also said that credit expansion at district banks, after proceeding at an unusually vigorous pace during early 1965, gave way to a more subdued growth in the latter part of April. The expansion may have been due to a need for funds to meet unusually heavy personal income tax liabilities which were created by the underwithholding of taxes during 1964. Since April 15 there has been little change in loans at city banks.

AT COUNTRY banks loans did spurt during the first two weeks in May, perhaps because of delayed warm weather. But the jump resulted in no increase in total credit at country banks. Holdings of U.S. government securities were drawn down to meet the increased loan demand.

Johnson sends Lodge to discuss Vietnam in six Far East countries — which no doubt will all lodge protests against our policy.

TODAY IN NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Well-Educated In Crime, Too

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — There is a tendency nowadays to blame crime on a lack of education or on poverty or on the absence of parental care. But what shall be said of the two youths — one white and one Negro — conspicuous in the headlines of a few days ago, both of whom had plenty of education, and, indeed, had distinguished themselves in school? Yet they are accused of grave crimes — in one instance three murders, and in the other case a series of assaults on young girls after threatening them with a knife.

Duane Pope, age 22, graduated a few weeks ago from McPherson College in Kansas where he had been co-captain of the football team. Police declare he has admitted that on June 4 he entered a bank in Nebraska, killed three officials of the bank, and ran away with $1,500. He later gave himself up.

Last weekend, the police announced that a 19-year-old scholarship student at Brandeis University, Alfred L. Gonzague, had been arrested and had confessed to raping or assaulting about 30 young girls in the past year and a half in apartment houses in New York City. This boy, a Negro, had a good education. He was not only a track star in high school but an above-average student. He specialized in political science at the university.

DUANE POPE, the white youth, had taken a criminology course at college. Upon hearing of the tragedy, the professor who had taught him, said:

"Of all the people in my class I have to say that Duane is the very last I would think could do anything like what he is accused of. If it was Duane, it was a Duane I don't think I know any longer. Something must have snapped, I feel. Or did any of us really know the real Duane?"

What caused these two promising young men to go astray? The problem of society today is to detect mental irregularities and to protect other human beings against criminal behavior that is the direct result of a disordered mind.

Plenty of money is being spent by the federal government and by the states for education, and lots of it is going into the field of science with the idea of finding ways to improve human life. But the real question is whether enough funds are being devoted to research on the biggest puzzle of all human behavior — mental irregularities. State institutions are filled with human beings who have become a menace to society, and innumerable instances community life has been protected against acts that might have ensued if the criminally minded had not been institutionalized.

ONE OF THE unfortunate developments today, however, is that many of these same types of persons are released after brief periods in an institution, and they sometimes revert to their original tendencies. As a result, innocent persons are injured or murdered.

When Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President Kennedy, this correspondent and others suggested that the time had come to control firearms so that only persons mentally well-balanced would be licensed to possess such weapons. Just as the state governments have the power to issue licenses to automobile drivers and to punish reckless drivers, by the same token persons who possess mental characteristics that are potentially dangerous could be refused the use of pistols and guns.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Enough Congressmen in Paris to Hold Sessions

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The biggest junketing party in congressional history — about 50 House members, senators, and committee staff aides — took off last week for the International Air Show in Paris. They used two special Air Force planes, and various others left by commercial planes — all, however, at the taxpayers' expense.

There were so many congressmen in Paris that Pan American Airways, which handled many of them, cabled Washington to get a special public relations man to make a quick trip to Paris to hold their hands and make sure the solos were happy.

The record junket was led by Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, just a day after his committee had voted a whopping salary raise for the armed services, double that recommended by the Johnson administration. Having done this, several of the committee members dropped any concern about congressional problems and hopped aboard the Atlantic on a special Air Force plane to enjoy the relaxation of Paris.

THE RECORD junket took place despite the fact that President Johnson has urged Americans not to travel abroad but to see the United States during their vacation period in order to curb the outflow of dollars. The junket to Paris also took place at a time when President De Gaulle had been undercutting the United States in various parts of the world and had even instructed French ambassadors in five Latin-American countries to work against the policies of the United States in the Dominican Republic.

Heading the House armed services junket with Rivers were: Philip Philbin, Mass.; Forter Hardy, Va.; Lucien Nedzi, Mich.; William Randall, Mo.; Floyd Hicks, Wash.; and Don Irwin, Conn., all Democrats; Bob Wilson and Charles Gulser, Calif., and Alexander Fierme, N.Y., Republicans.

Robert Leggett, also of California and a member of the House committee who helped to vote the pay increase, left ahead of the group by commercial plane.

THE HOUSE Interstate Commerce Committee also got into the act. They figured it was important for the transportation of the United States that they see the new planes exhibited in Paris, though just how the ordinary expert on legislation can learn much about supersonic aviation is hard to understand.

At any rate, the roll call of commerce committee members who left by commercial airplane for Paris included: Chairman Oren Harris, Ark.; Walter Rogers, Tex.; Torbert MacDonald, Mass.; J. J. Pickle, Tex.; and John Murphy, N.Y., all Democrats; Samuel Devine, Ohio; Hastings Keith, Mass.; William S. Curtin, Pa., and Glenn Cunningham, Neb., all Republicans; with staff members Ed Williamson and William Dixon.

One senator who took a dim view of the junket was Dick Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who refused to authorize the trip for members of his committee.

However, Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., a reserve

brigadier general in the Air Force and a member of both the Armed Services Committee and the Space Committee, went anyway.

THE HOUSE Space Committee also got restless and decided to take time off from its legislative duties. As a matter of fact, Chairman George Miller of California had OK'd the junket ever since May 21. On that date, John Carstarphen, chief clerk of the Space Committee, circulated a memorandum to all committee members reading:

"Chairman Miller has authorized a committee trip to Paris, France, to attend the air and space exhibition June 17 through June 21. Transportation will be furnished by the Department of the Air Force, and Chairman Miller has authorized counter funds for expenses."

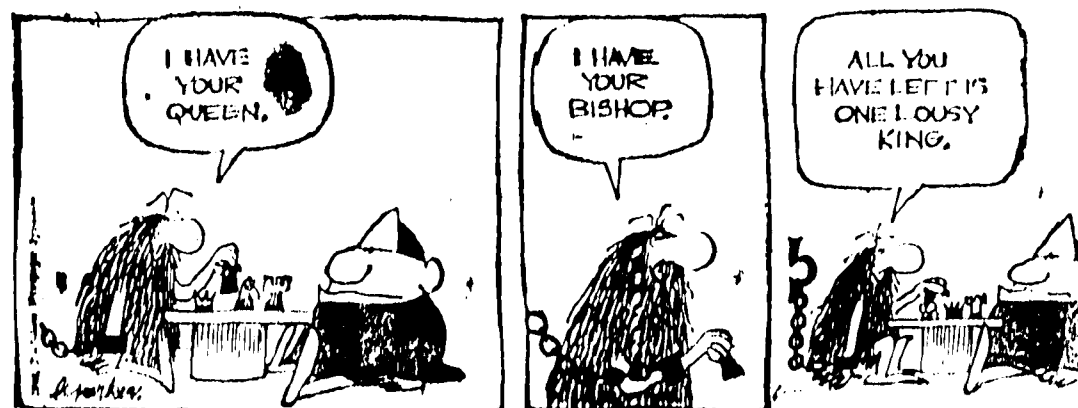

Since the request was made by the committee chairman, it does not fall under the Defense Department revised regulation assessing points against the service for each day that a congressman is entertained.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Influence of Arts Festival

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — It may one day be called the Pact of the Arts Festival. While poets, artists, singers and other assorted practitioners of the arts were performing on the White House lawn, in the East Room President Johnson in the quiet of his office was holding a conference that may well be a turning point in foreign policy.

Early that morning he had called Sen. J. William Fulbright at his home to ask if Fulbright could stop at the White House on his way to the Senate. The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had not received such an invitation in many months.

While he had attended sessions with other Congressional leaders it was no secret that the President was distinctly annoyed with Fulbright's doubts over the Administration's course in Vietnam. Those doubts had been expressed in public with considerable reserve in contrast to the blasts from such all-out critics on the Democratic side as Senators Wayne Morse of Oregon and Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

But Fulbright's reservations about the bombing of North Viet Nam and the escalation of the ground war were nonetheless deep-seated. Along with many members of the Senate who have kept silent he was fearful that catastrophe in an interminable Asian land war lay at the end of this road.

BEING intensely partisan and resentful of all opposition from whatever source, the President in private several times spoke scornfully of the pause he had ordered in the bombing of the north between May 14 and May 17. That was done just to satisfy Bill Fulbright and to show him it wouldn't be any use at all.

What is really important, therefore, is that the chairman of the key committee in the Senate and the President sat down to talk out their differences and their agreements. While it is wide of the mark to say the President "approved" the Fulbright speech, they understood each other on the point of greatest peril and uncertainty in America's role in the world. By recent estimates the Fulbright position is that of at least a majority of the Senate.

For the sober position that Fulbright took in his Senate speech was not, contrary to the efforts of those who try to undercut every proposal for an honorable negotiated settlement, "scuttle and run." He advocated holding the military line, opposing anything that might look like unconditional surrender. He frankly recognized the trials ahead with the monsoon weather and the new build-up of Communist guerrilla forces. And with this went frank recognition that the bombing of North Viet Nam has accomplished very little in checking the build-up.

HOPEFULLY the understanding out of which came the Fulbright speech covers more than merely the settlement of long-standing personal differences. It can mean the renewal of a vital relationship with Congress. A relationship, that is to say, which is not limited to interminable briefings with Congressmen sitting like schoolboys or to hearing with scarcely an interruption invocations from the President.

The President on Monday wanted to listen to Fulbright. He was in a calm and reasonable mood. The long weekend at his Texas ranch had given him a much-needed breather from the incessant pressures of continuing crisis. The opportunity for reflection and at least a measure of relaxation in the setting he loves had worked the kind of change his associates have wanted to see in a leader who drives himself at a pace seemingly beyond human endurance.

By coincidence on the day the two men met a noteworthy signal came from the Republican minority who have until now been supporting the President's policy. Rep. Melvin R. Laird, chairman of the Re-

Attack of Pancreatitis Is Painful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Last winter my mother, who is in her 70's, was hospitalized with a temperature of 104. She was very ill for about 10 days and we were told that the pancreas juices had backed up with toxic results.

Thank goodness she recovered nicely but she must watch her diet very carefully, as there is no guarantee that this could not happen again.

Is it necessary for her to diet the rest of her life? What are the chances of recurrence? —MRS. W.A.

The pancreas, a gland deep in the abdomen behind the stomach, has two major functions. One is the production of insulin. The other is to supply certain digestive juices. (These drain into the digestive system at a point close to that at which bile reaches the intestine from the gall bladder and liver.)

An attack of pancreatitis, such as your mother experienced, is very painful, and is associated with fever, vomiting and extreme tenderness of the abdomen. The patient is, indeed, desperately ill.

IN YOUNGER patients, excessive and prolonged consumption of alcohol is commonly found to have occurred. I do not say that this is the cause, but it certainly seems to be a factor.

In older people (although the same factor of alcohol may, of course, be present) a quite different condition is frequently discovered: Chronic gall bladder disease and gallstones.

Hence it is customary (and wise) to investigate the condition of the gall bladder after the pancreatitis symptoms have subsided. If gallstones are found, or the gall bladder is functioning poorly or not at all, removal of the gall bladder gives excellent results in minimizing the risk of further attacks of pancreatitis. (It also avoids the risks inherent in allowing a diseased gall bladder to remain.)

When such gall bladder conditions are not found, then use of a low-fat diet is helpful in preventing recurrence of pancreatitis. Yes, such attacks can recur, and there is one condition known as chronic relapsing pancreatitis. It is difficult to say just what causes it.

publican Conference of the House, issued a statement saying the time was "dangerously close" when Viet Nam policy could no longer be supported. Republicans, said Laird, had not bargained for a large ground war at the very time the President was restricting the bombing in such a way that it could not succeed.

Mrs. L. E. Brynestad Given Honors, Gifts by Girl Scouting Friends

By JEAN HAGEN
Daily News Women's Editor

A touching tribute to Mrs. L. E. Brynestad, dedicated Girl Scout worker, was given Saturday afternoon.

A TEA in her honor at the Guildhall of Central Methodist Church, given by Girl Scouts and adults with whom she has worked for the last 23 years, was attended by about 100 persons. Distinguished out-of-town guests included Girl Scout executives from Rochester, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Clinton, Iowa, and

Mrs. Brynestad's daughter, Mrs. T. Dean Gillund, St. Paul, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Loren Brynestad, Minneapolis. A program arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. Leo F. Murphy Sr., included a ceremony by Mrs. Brynestad's Girl Scouts of Troop 615 of Central Lutheran Church, vocal solos by the Misses Margaret McGrath and Georganna Loomis, the presentation of gifts to Mrs. Brynestad, the reading of congratulatory letters from Girl Scout friends unable to attend and comments of guests.

Mrs. Brynestad's Girl Scouts gave her a corsage of yellow roses, the Girl Scout flower, and a canoe paddle, with their names burned on the blade. The vocalists, who were accompanied by pianist, Miss Marjorie Beckman, sang several art songs, including a Spanish lullaby and Spanish folk song.

MRS. E. S. Kjos, with whom Mrs. Brynestad has worked closely in Girl Scouts since its inception here 23 years ago, made the presentation of a gift from the group. She said it was something to cherish and keep in Mrs. Brynestad's new home in Northfield, to remind her of the happy days with Girl Scouts on canoe trips.

It was an original oil painting by Edward S. Korpela of a woods scene and stream, with the focal point a red canoe. It seems Mrs. Brynestad has a strong penchant for red canoes, as Mrs. Kjos pointed out.

Mrs. Brynestad, who said she was speechless with gratitude for the beautiful gift, had previously made a brief speech in which she described this part of her Girl Scouting work as the "sunset afterglow." She commended all her co-workers in what is called the "Old Guard" of Winona Girl Scouting and also the more recent ones for their contributions to a good cause.

"We are here to love God and give service to and love other people," she said. "What better way is there than working with young girls?"

An appreciation gift was presented to Mrs. Brynestad by Miss Adele Swenson, Rochester, executive director of River Trails Girl Scout Council.

COFFEE AND punch with sweets was served from a table centered with arrangements of long-stemmed white spider mums and white tapers in silver candelabra. Past presidents of the Winona Girl Scout Council poured. Mrs. Kay Goergen was in charge of the kitchen, assisted by the Mmes. Herbert Honer, Ralph Williams and Philip Baumann.

Massed vari-colored peonies decorated the window sills of the hall and on the stage were boxed pink geraniums and tall cut-leaf philodendrons.

Mrs. A. L. Kitt was general chairman of the tea.

Dean Gillund, St. Paul, who came to the Girl Scout party for her mother. Winonan Urges Lawyers To Support Court Reform

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Reorganization of Minnesota's courts apparently "will come from the lawyers and not from the laymen," a Winona attorney charged here last week.

Taking members of the Minnesota State Bar Association to task for failure to support a court reform measure presented to the last legislature was C. Stanley McMahon, chairman of the bar's Section on Court Organization and Administration.

The bill was one that would have created a system of county courts by eliminating justice of the peace and municipal courts, and giving appellate powers to the district courts. The bill failed to get out of committee, which was made up of attorneys.

"It seems peculiar to me," said McMahon during the final business session at the Kahler Hotel, "that a matter of such importance to our profession cannot even get a hearing from a legislative committee composed of its own members." It was "discouraging — but typical," said McMahon, who announced that his section now plans to call a 100-member citizens group to study complete court reorganization next spring or summer.

"I think it will be our last hope," said the Winona attorney, who reminded the delegates that only a few hours earlier one of the nation's leading proponents of court reform had told the convention that the courts face "bankruptcy" because of their ever increasing backlogs.

The citizens group, said McMahon, will study several major areas of court reform, adopted in part or in total by 14 other states:

One of the proposals would take all of the state's now-separate courts and combine them into a one-court system. Separate divisions (concerned with traffic violations, trials and so on) would be staffed by judges assigned from a central office in a step designed to make the most efficient use of judicial manpower.

Other suggestions would have the public retain judges with a "yes" or "no" vote. There would be a majority of "no" votes would be replaced by the governor and an advisory panel, and not just by the governor as at present. The judges also would be subject to review by a "qualifications" panel.

Our courts now represent "phenomenal wastes" of money and personnel, claims McMahon, who admits the exact amounts are not known.

To adopt any or all of the changes a citizens committee might back, a Constitutional amendment is needed, McMahon believes. He said an amendment could be ready for voters by next fall's state elections, following a campaign "to educate the voters."

ALC President Issues Challenge In SE District

Three from Central Lutheran Church are attending the Southeastern Minnesota District convention of the American Lutheran Church today and Tuesday at St. Olaf College, Northfield.

They are Dr. L. E. Brynestad, Central Lutheran's pastor; the Rev. Gerhard Huggenvik, pastor elect, and Lester Peterson, Wincrest Drive, delegate.

In the president's message, the Rev. Melford S. Knutson pointed out the major areas of concern for the convention's theme: "The People of God in the World of Men."

"Education," said Dr. Knutson, "is the biggest business in America and some states are already spending a third of their tax money for it. The more complicated and expensive life becomes, the more expensive and complicated Christian education will be."

The problem for churchmen, as Dr. Knutson sees it, is "that we excuse ourselves and feel sorry for ourselves, and have returned to the old 'pocket book protection' spirit. Even pastors are saying, 'Well, our people are giving all they can, and they have lost the joy that comes to one when he realizes he is a partner with God.'"

Dr. Knutson chided pastors and churchmen for the do-nothing policy, which has too often prevailed in the church. "We have done little about the poor except to give food and clothing at Thanksgiving and Christmas; we have done nothing about sex education; we have kept ourselves aloof from the race problem and we have condemned the alcoholic."

He advocates greater zeal and knowledge on the part of all Christians, especially the men of the church. As an example, he said, "The only person who can give a child proper direction in both religion and sex is the child's father — that he is the most important person in the life of a child has not been said very often by the church."

Dr. Knutson accused the church of going the way of American culture in its use of the laity. "A man's wife often uses her husband mainly as the bread winner and keeps him occupied with trivial

La Crescent Scouts To Take Four-Day Canoe Trip on Root

LA CRESCENT, Minn. — Boy Scout Troop 98, La Crescent, will take a four-day canoe trip on the Root River this week.

As a result of the official Trailblazer trip on the Root over Memorial Day, the adult leaders of the troop decided to take the canoe route beginning Thursday. They'll start at Chatfield where the first 60 canoes pushed off but will travel farther, with Hokah as their destination.

Approximately 17 boys in this Gateway Area Council troop will be accompanied by John Hurm, chairman, Chester La-check, Carlos Robinson, Bill Gilles and Church Pezels, La Crescent. They plan to camp the first night above the old Brightsdales power dam north of Lanesboro and will spend the next two nights on State Hardwood Forest campsites downstream.

The Root River Canoe Trail Association originally promoted the picturesque river for canoeists.

Battle of Waterloo Costume Ball Held

LONDON (AP) — London socialites gambled Saturday at roulette, bingo and one-armed bandits in the sober and stern Royal Courts of Justice.

It was part of London's big Waterloo costume ball to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the great battle.

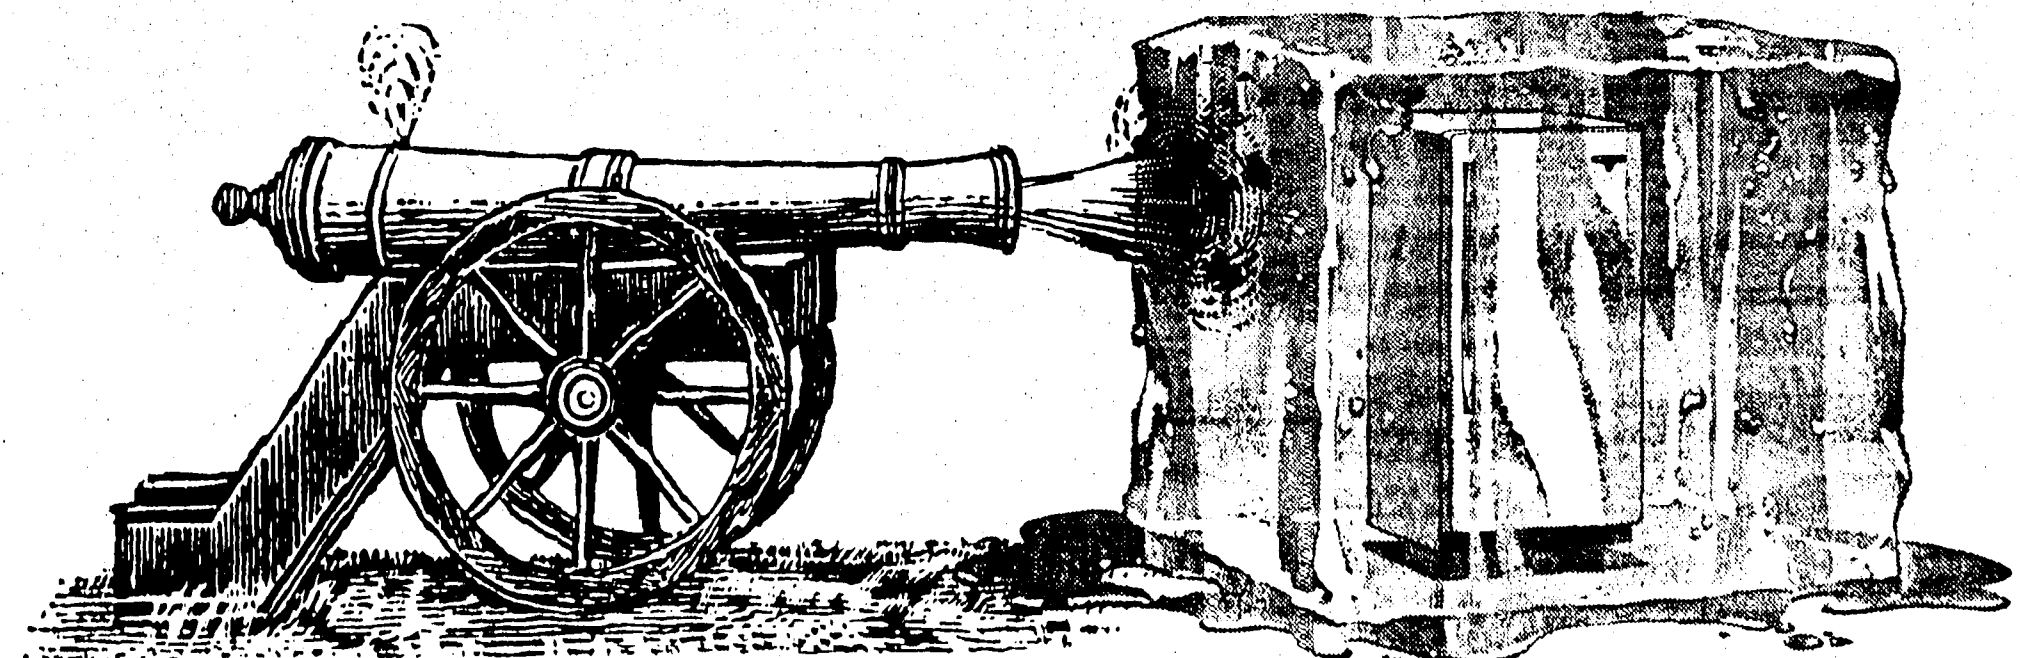

Syngman Rhee's Condition Grave

HONOLULU (AP) — Syngman Rhee, 90-year-old exiled former president of the Republic of Korea, remained in "guarded condition with some slight improvement" today, his doctors reported. He was hospitalized Saturday when he began bleeding internally.

Things in the church we often do the same — we use him for ushering, counting money, and running errands."

He challenged the clergy by stating: "No pastor should begin a service until he has done everything possible to encourage the head of the family in worship. There are exceptions, but usually there is no use to begin a service without a preacher and there is no use to begin a service without the head of the family being present, for he is the priest that God has assigned to the home."

House of the Week

Look of Bigness Graces Modern Ranch

By ANDY LANG

"I don't want a big house, but I want it to look larger than it is."

This is a familiar request to architects who specialize in residential design. Such requests can be handled without too much trouble, especially where the plot permits construction of a house with a long, low look, so stylish these days.

BUT TOO often this illusion of spaciousness stops at the front door. What seemed to be a big house on the outside appears to shrink on the inside.

In the latest House of the Week, architect Samuel Paul has designed a modest home (1474 square feet of living area) which not only looks larger on both the outside and the inside, but more important, lives larger. Good open planning and precise zoning are combined to produce these effects.

A nice-sized foyer serves as the formal entry. It is fairly open to the adjacent living room, thereby visually increasing the living room, yet it is separate enough to act as a fine "weather stop" and reception hall. The living room features an attractive fireplace and bow style window overlooking the front portico.

TO THE LEFT of the foyer, there is a short hall with a guest closet, family closet and linen closet. This leads to another foyer which serves as the circulation area between the three bedrooms and the large main bathroom. In this bathroom, the water closet has been separated from the bathing and washing area.

In addition, it has been located so that it can also be entered from the rear — a most handy arrangement since it is only two steps from the rear door and kitchen. There is a long vanity with dual basins. The master bedroom has a separate bath and generous closet space.

The balance of the home is made up of a 32 ft. 8 inch expanse of kitchen, dining and family facilities stretching across the rear of the house. Note the absence of partitions in this area.

THE KITCHEN counter and hanging cabinets together serve as an effective physical divider, yet retain the quality of openness. The flexibility of this arrangement is such that, if the occasion arises, it is possible to arrange an enormous banquet table in the dining area because there is no problem of walls separating it from the family room.

Eating space also is provided within the kitchen; this space is large enough for a small table for everyday family meals. The kitchen itself is roomy, attractive, efficient and as convenient as could be from any part of the house.

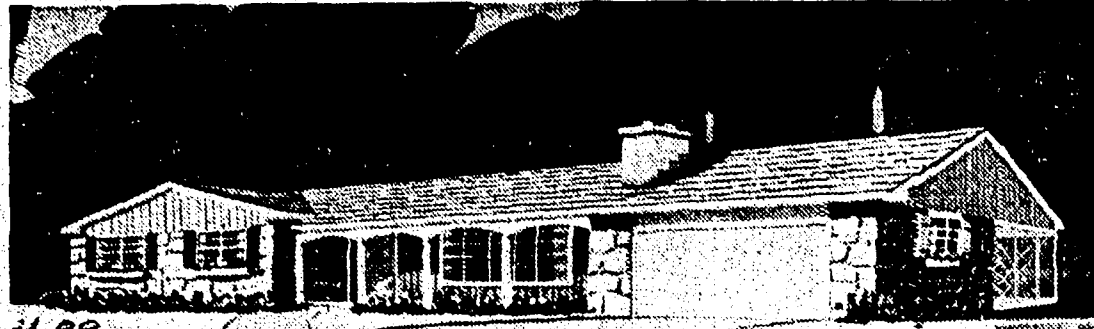

Another point of interest is the pair of folding doors separating the dining - family ensemble from the formal living room, thus permitting the two spaces to be joined if the need should ever arise.

AN IDEAL outdoor complement to this home is the large screened porch adjoining the family room, with a sliding glass door separating the two. The porch is located in back of the two-car garage, which has a door there and another off the front portico.

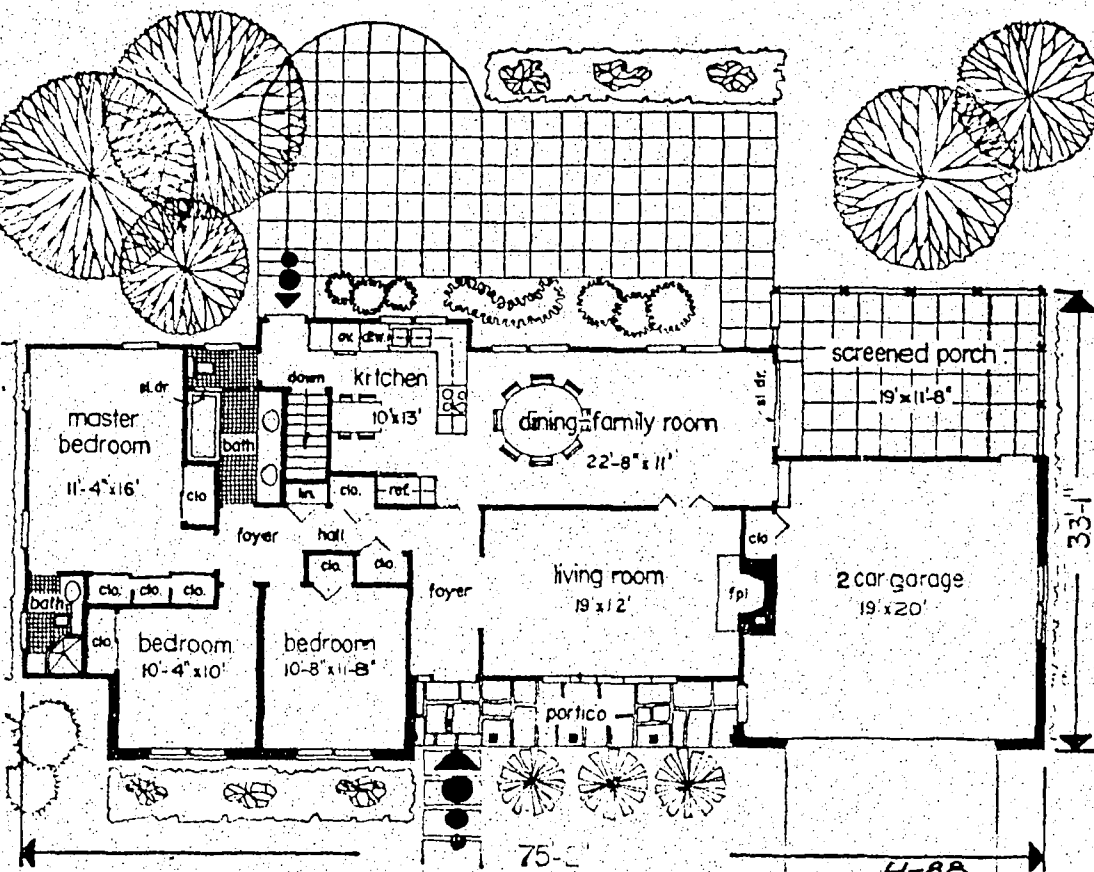

The exterior is a tasteful blend of stone veneer and vertical boards. For accent it has the previously mentioned front portico, which is arched, and several shutters. The over all styling is subdued, an attribute common to more expensive homes.

FRESHENING UP VIOLETS

As temperatures get warmer, it's good to freshen up your African violets at least once a week by standing their clay pots in room temperature water, until the pot's capillary action draws moisture from below to the top soil.

SUBDUED STYLING... There's nothing pretentious about the tasteful exterior of this ranch, even though it was designed with the deliberate intention of appearing to be larger than it really is; open planning features the interior layout.

FLOOR PLANS... The 1474 square feet of living area in this three-bedroom ranch house are divided into specific zones, yet have the kind of open effects which are so marvelous when extra space is needed for entertaining.

His car spun around on a corner and flipped over, pinning him beneath flaming wreckage. He died of a severed neck artery.

Twins Stop Yanks in 2, Build Lead

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins, jubilant after a doubleheader sweep over the New York Yankees Sunday, invaded this major league baseball-hungry southern metropolis today to provide the opposition for the Atlanta-bound Milwaukee Braves in an exhibition game tonight.

The Twins, conquerors of the Yankees by 6-4 and 7-4 scores in Yankee Stadium Sunday, had reason to be exuberant.

The double victory restored their American League lead to one full game over the Chicago White Sox, and they prepared to make their final stop on the current road trip at Cleveland with six victories and five losses on the tough mid-season foray against the league's top teams.

Tuesday, the Twins open a three-game series at Cleveland against the torrid Indians, who have reeled off nine straight triumphs.

The double triumphs in New York were particularly satisfying to the Twins because they beat the Yankees with two of the Bombers' favorite weapons in the good old days—power and taking advantage of the opposition's mistakes.

The Twins bashed three home runs, two triples and eight doubles in the twinbill to the Yankees' two homers and two doubles. Minnesota also scored its winning runs in the first game on a passed ball and wild pitch and got two insurance runs in the second game because of a Yankee miscue.

Harmon Killebrew led the assault on the Yankee pitching, blasting his 12th and 13th home runs of the season and adding two doubles. Jimmie Hall hit his 12th homer, as well as a double and triple. Tony Oliva had a double and triple and Zoilo Versalles got two doubles.

The Yankees answered only with Roger Maris' eighth homer and Ray Barker's second, plus doubles by Elston Howard and Bobby Richardson.

Still, both games were touch-and-go until the ninth innings. The first game was tied 4-4 after a Killebrew homer knotted the count following Maris' two-run blow for a 4-3 Yankee lead.

In the ninth, however, the Twins loaded the bases on two walks sandwiched around a single by Sandy Valdespino. Yankee reliever Bob Tiefenauer threw a knuckleball and it got away from Elston Howard to let one run score. An intentional walk loaded the bases again, and Hal Reniff then uncorked a wild pitch to let in another tally.

After an early explosion for a 5-0 lead against Al Downing in the second game, the Twins nursed a 5-4 lead into the ninth. That's when Yank catcher Doc Edwards let a third strike on Versalles get away from him to put Zoilo on base when Killebrew (Continued on Page 15)

NAGLE PLEASED TO BE IN PLAYOFF

Player Blows Lead, Still Smiles

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A couple of foreigners — Gary Player and Kel Nagle — squared off in an 18-hole playoff for the U.S. Open Golf Championship today — each with different goals.

Nagle, a 44-year-old globe-trotting Australian, was shooting for his first tournament victory ever in the United States. If he makes it, he also will become the oldest player ever to win the Open.

Player, the precise, blackhead little giant from South Africa, sought to add his name to the tiny roster of Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan as the only men ever to win all four of the world's major golf titles — the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and the PGA.

Either will be the first foreigner to win it in 45 years. Should they tie after 18, a sudden-death playoff would begin immediately over the 7,191 frustrating yards of the Belle River Country Club course.

The playoff was scheduled to begin at 1:15 p.m. EST.

Player, strangely, was all smiles, even talking about his luck, after blowing a three-stroke lead — and perhaps the chance of a lifetime — in the last three holes and falling into a tie with Nagle at 282. "The way it worked out," said

Player, "I'm lucky to be in a tie after having it locked up."

The tourney had dragged, through most of four days, largely lacking in interest with the collapse of Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer's failure to make the cut and the vast, sprawling course which limited the number of sub-par rounds. But the final four holes, played before a gallery of 17,430 and a national television audience, turned into a gripping duel.

SANDY FIRES ONE-HITTER FOR 11TH

Mets Finally Catch Don; So Does Sandy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Mets finally caught up with Don Drysdale. And so did Sandy Koufax.

But neither the rain nor the Milwaukee Braves could catch up with the St. Louis Cardinals, who overcame the first stall-in of 1965 by playing an ingenious game of surrender.

The Mets, handcuffed by the Koufax-Drysdale combine in 24 consecutive losses to the Los Angeles pair, rose up in the nightcap of a doubleheader Sunday, chipped away at Drysdale for nine hits and whipped the National League leaders 3-2.

Koufax had played catch up in the opener as he set the Mets down 2-1 on one hit — Jim Hickman's fifth-inning homer — tying his pitching partner at 11 victories for the season and 12 in a row over the New Yorkers.

The split upped the Dodgers' lead to four games over the Braves, who lost to St. Louis 6-4 despite the rain-making efforts of Milwaukee Manager Bob Bragan.

Elsewhere, Willie Mays stroked seven hits as San Francisco swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 4-3 in 15 innings and 7-3, Philadelphia downed Houston 3-2 and 7-1 and Cincinnati gained a split by beating the Chicago Cubs 9-8 after losing the opener 8-5.

Koufax, now 11-3, walked only two and struck out 12 for a major league-leading total of 147. Ron Fairly provided the only Dodger runs with a two-run double in the sixth inning off Warren Spahn, 4-9.

Drysdale, 11-5, was tagged for the loss when the Mets pushed across a run in the eighth on a single by Charlie Smith. Hickman's double and a squeeze bunt by Roy McMillan.

Jim Hart put the opener away for the Giants with a leadoff homer in the 15th inning off Al McBean. Each team had scored a run in the 11th but Ron Herbel kept the Pirates away from the plate after that with four innings of one-hit relief work.

Mays collected three of his hits in the nightcap, stroking a single in the third and scoring what proved to be the decisive run on a wild pitch.

Ol' Man Weather Watches Fiasco With Dry Humor

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals' walk-in waltz out-hoofed the Milwaukee Braves' rain dance as Ol' Man Weather watched with dry humor.

The carnival of strategy, making a farce of baseball rules, came in the top of the fifth inning with the Cards in front 5-0 Sunday as storm clouds hovered over County Stadium.

In the weird half inning, two St. Louis base runners trolled into outs as the Cardinals tried to speed things up to get in an official five innings.

The Braves, hoping the skies would open and wash out the game, stalled by using three pitchers and second baseman Frank Bolling committed an intentional error to avoid tagging a St. Louis runner.

All strategy was wasted in the 18-minute half inning. Thunderstorms skirted the area and only a few sprinkles fell in the eighth inning.

With one out in the St. Louis fifth, Milwaukee Manager Bob Bragan summoned Phil Niekro from the bullpen to replace Hank Fischer, who had blanked the Cards for 2 1/3 innings in relief of starter Denny Lemaster.

Dick Groat greeted Niekro with a single, Groat rounded first and trotted toward second, where he was tagged out by the reluctant Bolling.

Dick Kelley then replaced Niekro and walked Lou Brock, who promptly took off for second at a snail's pace. Kelley threw to Bolling, the National League's top fielding second baseman in three of the last four seasons. Bolling dropped the throw and then returned the ball to Kelley.

Brock casually walked in the general direction of third base, and Kelley threw to Eddie Mathews, who ended the travesty by tagging Brock for the third out.

As the threatening storms bypassed the stadium, the Cards went on to a 6-4 victory, hanging on at the finish and probably wishing they had tried to score in the fifth.

"It's a bad rule that cancels a game in such situations," Bragan said. "The rules have to be changed so that teams pick up where they leave off the next day. Let the players know they're going to pick it up and they'll play the game. Baseball is responsible for such maneuvering. The rule has to be changed."

Sentinel Writer Is Barred for 24 Hours

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The clubhouse ban on Milwaukee Sentinel baseball writer Lou Chapman was lifted by the Milwaukee Braves today after the club rolled out the red carpet in a "save face" move to take the sting out of abrupt action.

Chapman's exile lasted only 24 hours. The Braves announced he was barred from their clubhouse Saturday night because of his stories which the club believed "of a negative nature."

Birdie's Wish Is Granted, Pitchers Become Tougher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Birdie Tebbetts rubbed his magic lamp during spring training and made a wish.

"We hope we have good pitching," the Cleveland manager said, looking toward the American League race this season.

The Genii never came through as well for Aladdin.

Cleveland pitchers pulled two more brilliant performances out of Birdie's lamp Sunday as the Indians extended their winning streak to nine with 5-0 and 3-1 victories over the Los Angeles Angels.

The sweep tied the league's longest winning streak this year and kept the third-place Indians 1 1/2 games behind the league-leading Minnesota Twins, who took New York 6-4 and 7-4.

Sam McDowell fired a two-hitter in the opener for his eighth victory against three defeats, giving the Indians four shutouts in five games. Lee Stange gave up a run in the nightcap but held the Angels to five hits.

Thus, in the last six contests, Indian hurlers have allowed only three runs. And excluding Friday night's 3-2 triumph over the Angels, the opposition has touched them for only 14 hits since last Wednesday.

The most glittering product the Genii has turned out for Tebbetts as the 22-year-old McDowell. The left-hander leads the AL in strikeouts with 122 and the team with a 2.53 earned run average.

Elsewhere in the AL Sunday, Chicago edged Boston 4-3 in 10 innings before rain washed out the second game. Detroit ran its winning string to eight by beating Kansas City before dropping a 2-1 decision and Baltimore crushed Washington 13-2.

McDowell held the Angels hitless until the sixth inning when pitcher Marcelino Lopez led off with a double. Jim Fregos beat out an infield single later in the inning.

Directors Play Opening Round

By MRS. VERNAL SOLBERG
Daily News Correspondent

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — At 6:30 Saturday evening, the first ball on the recently completed Arcadia Country Club project was hit by the Very Rev. Joseph Andrzejewski, pastor of St. Stanislaus Catholic Church.

He was the first secretary of Arcadia Country Club after its organization in 1924. President at that time was the late supreme court justice Elmer Barlow. Treasurer was William Luevke, then cashier at Farmers' Bank.

Father Andrzejewski, who hasn't hit a ball for 10 years, recalled that he was a 40s shooter, over the original course, which covered 28 to 30 acres, and was planned by Ben Knight of Winona Country Club. The present course covers 55 acres.

Par for men is now set at 35, with women's par lodged at 38. That compares to 33 and 36 on the old course. Cost for greens and fairways on the new course was $24,400 and irrigation total- ed $16,000.

Following the ceremonies, present board of director members president Lyman Maloney, vice-president Howard Reedy, secretary-treasurer Gile Herrick and directors Don Berzinski and Robert Gamoke played the first round.

First choice on the par-three fourth hole was by Mrs. Charles (Donna) Nettel. Dave Sabota later picked up a ducen on the par four first hole. Jim Killian had the low round of 34 for the weekend.

The present clubhouse will be used for equipment and cart storage. The parking lot will hold a new clubhouse. The 50 by 100-foot building is expected to be finished by the end of August.

LeJetz Answer Questions, Bounce Eau Claire in Two

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. — Winona's rampaging LeJetz, using superb pitching, powered their way to a pair of victories over a strong Eau Claire Legion team here Sunday.

The LeJetz ran their record to 4-0 with 6-2 and 5-2 triumphs, and now will rest until meeting Houston Wednesday night.

JOHN Ahrens breezed in the first game win for Winona, going four innings and allowing Steve Styba to finish. Todd Spencer went the route in the nightcap, giving up three hits.

Winona pitching did not allow an earned run all day. Bill Allaire, coach, credited Styba and Mike Lee with fine reserve role performances, but was dissatisfied with the overall defensive play.

Winona drew first blood, scoring in the third on a single by R. D. Boschulte, walks to Gary Addington and John Nett Jr. and a fielder's choice. Two came over in the fifth on a double by Nett, single by Loren Benz, single by Chuck Kulas and a third consecutive safety by Bob Allaire.

THE LEJETZ tied the victory ribbon on the package in the seventh as Kulas was on an error, Allaire singled and Lee's bunt attempt was thrown into right field. Two scored on the play, and Lee romped across on a later throwing error.

"Once we forgot about the fences, we hit the ball," said Allaire. "It was our outstanding hunting and base running that won both games."

Perhaps the thing that pleased Allaire most was when he got the answers to most of the questions that worried him through the opening games.

Winona didn't wait long to get going in the second game, Spencer tripling in the second and Ahrens singling him home.

In the third, Benz singled, took second on an error and came home on Spencer's second hit, a single. A single run also scored in the fourth as Curran walked, Boschulte singled and Curran came on a "suicide" squeeze by Allaire.

IN THE sixth, Curran doubled and scored when Boschulte's grounder was booted. Allaire beat out a bunt, Addington walked and Boschulte scored on another squeeze.

Allaire was the hitting star of the day, winding up with a 4-for-7 afternoon. Benz was 3-for-6.

unloaded his other homer for the 7-4 margin.

Relief pitcher Al Worthington got credit for the first game victory and is 3-2. He held the Yanks hitless for 1-13 innings.

Starter Dave Boswell benefited from the Twins' early barrage in the nightcap to claim the win, and is 4-3. Boswell yielded four hits and four runs, three earned, in 5-2-3 innings. Dick Stigman finished up for him, holding New York hitless for 3-1-3 frames.

Tonight, Denver farm hand Jim Merritt, a young left-hander, will pitch for the Twins against Milwaukee in a benefit for junior baseball in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The Twins plan to use recalled infielder Bernie Allen at third base tonight. He was to be placed on the Twins' roster today, and likely will start at Cleveland Tuesday night. Frank Kostro is being farmed out to Denver.

Stock Market Sags in Quiet Trading Day

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sagged in quiet trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks were down from fractions to a point or so.

The list was mixed in early trading but demand was lacking and the price level wilted.

First-hour volume of 850,000 shares was below the million-share level for the first time in weeks.

A mixed background of economic news as well as the fact that the huge offering of six million shares of Ford stock overhanging the market were dampening factors.

Also borne in mind by stock technicians was the general expectation that the market would have to "test" the lows reached last Monday before the climactic Tuesday session when a vigorous rally got under way.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .5 at 320.9 with industrials off 1.3, rails unchanged and utilities unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 4.67 at 874.50. Last month the average closed at 868.71, the intermediate low being watched by chartists.

IBM was off 4 points and losses of a point or more were taken by such stocks as Du Pont, United Aircraft, Polaroid, Boeing, Xerox, Control Data and Zenith.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds were mostly unchanged in light trading.
