Can't Get Two-Thirds Vote

LBJ Must Yield on 4-Year House Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson apparently will have to agree to substantial compromises to get Senate approval of his proposal for four-year terms for House members.

An Associated Press survey indicated today that Johnson cannot now muster the necessary two-thirds majority for a constitutional amendment calling for the four-year election of House members in presidential election years.

The survey reached 88 of the 100 senators. Eighteen declined to make any public commitments and 12 others were not available.

Both Senate and House would have to give two-thirds approval for such an amendment, which would then become effective only if ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Although Johnson argued in a special message against staggering the election of the representatives, 26 senators said they do not favor electing all of the members in presidential years.

Twenty-four senators said they are not in favor of four-year terms. Only 20 generally supported the President's plan, a narrow base on which to build toward the 67 votes which would be needed for passage if all senators voted.

Those who were canvassed were asked:

Do you favor President Johnson's proposal for election of House members to four-year terms in presidential years? If not, do you favor (1) maintaining the status quo or (2) the election of half the House membership every two years?

Nineteen Democrats and one Republican said they generally favor the President's proposal. Some of those, however, had reservations as to how it might be put into effect.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, assistant Democratic leader, said he thinks the amendment ought to be put into effect in 1968 and not in 1972, as Johnson proposed. Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., suggested that eight-year terms for senators be included in the proposal.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said he is opposed to requiring House members to resign their seats if they wish to run for the Senate. He said the amendment ought to be put into effect as soon as ratified by the states.

Eleven Democrats and 13 Republicans indicated they are presently inclined against four-year terms.

State Banks Given OK on Interest Hike

ST. PAUL (AP) — State-chartered banks may pay up to 5 1/2 per cent interest on certificates of deposit, effective immediately, under an order issued Monday.

Acting Banking Commissioner Clarence Lodahl filed the order Monday afternoon, following a hearing.

It raises the ceiling for state chartered banks to meet that of national banks, which were permitted to raise interest rates by the Federal Reserve Board last month.

There will be no change in the 4 per cent rate on passbook savings. The old limit on certificates of deposit — commonly called C.D.s — was 4 1/2 per cent.

The old rate applied to C.D.s of $100,000 or more. The new 5 1/2 per cent rate applies to C.D.s of any denomination, payable 30 days after purchase.

Most large Twin City banks now are paying from 4 1/4 to 4 3/4 per cent on certificates purchased for 90 days or longer. Savings and loan firms are forecasting dividends of 4 1/2 per cent, also.

Gordon C. Donnelly of Wheaton, president of the Independent Bankers of Minnesota, said country bankers will be hurt by the rate war because their type of business does not readily permit increased charges to offset the higher payout.

The independent bankers did not oppose the increase but said they will renew their fight in the 1967 Legislature to close a "legal loophole" which exempts national banks from state interest ceilings.

Fight Poverty In Rural Areas, Johnson Urges

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed to Congress today a many-sided program to fight poverty in rural areas.

In a special message, Johnson announced he will soon appoint a commission on rural poverty charged with making recommendations to him within a year on means of extending the nation's abundance to poverty-ridden country areas.

Meantime, he proposed an extensive planning program, with federal aid and including pilot projects in an unspecified number of rural areas.

In the pilot counties, Johnson said, government departments, especially labor, welfare and agriculture, would join in a concerted effort to bring social services to poor rural communities.

Johnson proposed creation of community development districts and federal grants for:

1. District wide planning of public services and governmental functions where other federal planning assistance is not available.

2. Districtwide coordination of local planning activities with federal programs and private initiative, in a comprehensive attack on rural community problems.

The secretary of agriculture would certify areas meeting requirements for designation as community development districts.

New Peace Plea Made To Hanoi

CAIRO (AP) — The United States has made a new peace overture to Hanoi and offered to hold off resumption of U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam until a response is received, sources in Cairo reported today.

The new offer was conveyed to Egyptian officials by the U.S. ambassador to Cairo, Lucius Battle, in the course of a meeting Monday with the Foreign Ministry's undersecretary, Mohammed Hassan El Zayyat, the sources said.

El Zayyat relayed the new approach to North Viet Nam's ambassador, Nguyen Xuan, soon after meeting Battle.

According to the informants, the new U.S. approach to Hanoi includes an offer to discuss the controversial four-point Viet Cong peace proposal but makes clear at the same time U.S. troops will not be withdrawn until a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam issue is achieved.

The U.S. proposal also expressed willingness to agree to the participation of the Viet Cong in any Viet Nam peace talks, the sources said.

Further, the United States agreed to sit down at the peace table with any other country the Viet Cong may ask either to join it or represent it in Viet Nam peace negotiations, the sources said.

The United States, they added, is ready to extend its current moratorium on the bombing of North Viet Nam until it receives a response to this latest approach.

The new U.S. overture followed the rejection by Hanoi of the current American peace offensive relayed to battle last Thursday, the informants said.

Battle, acting on instructions from Washington, asked Egypt to keep contacts with Hanoi and outlined the new American approach to North Viet Nam.

McNamara Tells Missile Capability

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today that present plans will give the United States enough missile capability to assure destruction of both Russia and Red China, even without the use of manned bombers.

He made that claim at a closed session of a House Armed Services subcommittee which is investigating his plan for a further cutback of the strategic bomber force.

Plane Carrying 46 U.S. GI's Crashes

All Aboard Killed Near Viet An Khe

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. Air Force troop transport carrying 46 Americans and a cargo of mortar shells crashed in dense fog and rain today in the central highlands just after taking off from An Khe. All aboard were killed.

The twin-engine C123 Fairchild Provider slammed into a hillside five miles east of An Khe and the impact exploded the mortar shells. The plane carried a crew of four from the 315th Air Commando Group and 42 soldiers of the 7th Cavalry Regiment.

U.S. officials said it was the worst American air crash in the Vietnamese war.

Ammunition and grenades carried by the soldiers aboard exploded in the tremendous heat.

A search party reached the scene at noon in heavy rain. The cloud ceiling was 300 feet when the plane took off.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known.

An Khe is the staging area for the U.S. 1st Cavalry (Airmobile) Division, which has been fighting the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese regulars in the highlands. It lies 250 miles northeast of Saigon in mountains where Communist snipers occasionally shoot at American planes.

The C123 is a lumbering aircraft with a cruising speed of 190 miles an hour.

The worst air disaster of the Vietnamese war involved a U.S. Air Force C123 which crashed into a peak south of Nha Trang last Dec. 11, killing 81 Vietnamese soldiers and the four American crewmen.

The highest American toll in a plane crash indirectly connected with the war occurred last Aug. 24 when a U.S. Marine Corps C130 transport carrying 63 Marines and two sailors back to the front from a brief leave crashed into Hong Kong harbor. Fifty-eight perished.

The unit killed in the crash today was en route to join one of a number of general offensives launched by the Americans, Australians, South Koreans, New Zealanders and South Vietnamese soon after the lunar New Year truce ended Sunday.

The probes so far have made almost no contact with the insurgents, and a government spokesman said the Allied forces have "completely lost" the North Vietnamese regiments known to have been in the country since before Christmas.

The Viet Cong, in their first major action since the lunar New Year truce, made an intensive 15-minute mortar attack before dawn on the U.S. Marine base at Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon. Three Americans and two Vietnamese were killed, and 11 Americans and 14 Vietnamese were wounded.

The barrage of 42 rounds missed a half dozen jet fighter-bombers parked on the strip but damaged several vehicles and a mobile crane.

The shells included big 120mm mortars, 35-pounders only recently reported in the Communist arsenal. Nine of these miniature blockbusters, which are fired from equipment weighing about 1,000 pounds, landed near a Hawk antiaircraft missile site. A hit on a missile site would have been regarded as a major propaganda achievement for the guerrillas.

U.S. military sources said the 120mm mortar presented a new threat to the base because of their range, about four miles. The Viet Cong have used 60mm and 81mm mortars in similar attacks.

The guerrillas apparently slipped through the base's outlying defenses in the darkness. They ended the attack when the Marines began a counter-mortar barrage, firing more than 100 81mm shells at the suspected enemy positions.

SEARCH FOR VICTIMS OF VIET NAM CRASH . . . Weary rescue workers move through wreckage of a U.S. Air Force troop transport and covered bodies of some of the 46 Americans killed in crash at An Khe today. The twin-engine C123 Fairchild Provider slammed into a hillside five miles east of An Khe just after taking off. Plane carried 42 soldiers of the 7th Cavalry Regiment who were on their way to join a renewed offensive against the Viet Cong. Crew of four from the 315th Air Commando Group was also killed. (AP Photofax by radio from Saigon)

Recognize Viet Cong, Sen. Fulbright Urges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright's suggestion that the Viet Cong be recognized as a major party to any negotiations to end the war in Viet Nam drew mixed reaction today on Capitol Hill.

The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Monday that the war is between the Viet Cong guerrillas, supported by North Viet Nam, and the United States and South Viet Nam.

"It would seem to me a proper party to the negotiations would be the Viet Cong," Fulbright told newsmen.

He said that "the policy of not recognizing the Viet Cong as a major party to any negotiations may be a stumbling block to the peace offensive."

Fulbright made his remarks after Secretary of State Dean

Rusk explained the administration's position at a three-hour closed committee session.

Questioned by newsmen, Fulbright said he had mentioned his suggestions to Rusk, but the secretary "doesn't agree."

A Republican member of Fulbright's committee, Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, said he didn't believe that recognition of the Viet Cong was a major factor.

Case told a reporter, "I assume from what the President said that our position is flexible enough to make it not a major factor in the discussions or affecting the possibility of negotiations and that it is one of those things that is not wrong to leave to the judgment of the people in the executive branch."

Case referred to President Johnson's State of the Union address nearly two weeks ago. The President said the United States is ready to discuss and consider "the views of any group." The reference was broad enough to include the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong guerrillas. Johnson had said previously this issue could be resolved.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., outspoken critic of administration policy in Viet Nam, agreed with Fulbright.

DEMAND READING OF JOURNAL

Filibuster Starts On T-H Repeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foes of the bill to end the right of states to ban the union shop forced a slowdown of Senate business today to block a parliamentary maneuver to get the measure up for debate.

Their first move was to force a lengthy reading of the journal of Monday's business.

The journal was 52 pages long, 30 of these consisting of President Johnson's budget message.

A filibuster was launched Monday even against a preliminary motion by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana to bring the bill up as the pending business.

But Mansfield arranged for a two-hour "morning hour" period at the opening of today's session during which, if he could get recognition, he could make a nondebateable motion to bring up the bill.

It was to forestall this that opponents asked for the reading of the journal. Under Senate rules, the journal reading and several other things must be done before Mansfield would be entitled to recognition.

Normally the Senate agrees each day to a routine motion to consider the journal of the previous day approved without reading.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois is directing the fight against the bill to repeal Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley law.

The section permits states to outlaw union shop contracts under which all employees have to join a union or at least pay dues.

Dirksen, who quarterbacked a successful filibuster against the effort to bring up a 14B repeal last October, started things off Monday with a two-hour, 10-minute speech against Mansfield's motion to bring it up in this session.

And They Call That Cold!

Miami Shivers In Low of 49

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cold weather gripped most of the United States today, penetrating into Florida and the Deep South.

Miami, Fla., had its coldest day of the winter Monday with a low of 49 and a high of 70. The temperature reached 6 below zero Monday in London, Ky. A 70-year-old woman and two grandchildren died in a fire in their rural home near Jackson in eastern Kentucky.

In western New York, hit by a weekend snow storm, two persons died. They brought to 12 the number of deaths in New York state attributed to heart attacks while clearing snow or pushing stalled cars.

Schools were closed in 16 Kentucky counties today because of the extreme cold.

The early-morning low was 15 at Louisville.

The Arkansas State Police said all roads in the state were in very bad condition from snow and freezing rain.

Several public schools were closed today in Arkansas, including all in the Little Rock area.

A car hit a patch of ice near Magnolia in southwestern Arkansas Monday, flipped into a ditch and was upside down with only the tires above water when the two occupants were pulled to safety.

Snow, sleet and freezing rain covered a vast area of the South today. Sleet pelted Mississippi as far south as Jackson and Meridian.

Hazardous-driving warnings were in effect for Arkansas, western Tennessee, parts of Mississippi and Alabama.

Two inches of snow fell in Little Rock, Ark., Monday with one-inch falls in Wichita, Kan.; Tulsa, Okla.; and Pine Bluff and El Dorado, Ark.

The Northeast was smothered under up to two feet of snow from Sunday's storm.

The snow in Maryland ranged from 17 inches in Garrett County to 1 inch in Northeast, Md. Schools were closed in five Maryland counties Monday.

The cold snap continued in the Midwest.

Monday night as the 11th out of the last 12 nights in which subzero temperatures prevailed, and the Weather Bureau said the arctic attack would last through Saturday.

Temperatures were only slightly less severe than early Monday when the mercury skidded to 46 below zero at Bemidji, Minn. This morning's low in that northern Minnesota community was 35 below. International Falls, Minn., registered a -37, and it was -20 in Duluth and -23 in Fargo, N.D.

No Viet Duty For Draftees, Senator Asks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asserting he was free of a presidential restriction imposed last August, Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, introduced legislation today to prohibit the involuntary assignment of draftees to fight in South Viet Nam.

In a Senate speech, Gruening said President Johnson told him at a White House conference Aug. 26 that "if we were not out of Viet Nam by January, I would be free to do anything I pleased."

Gruening offered three separate amendments, all designed to bar the sending of draftees to South Viet Nam unless they volunteer for such service or Congress later authorizes "the assignment to duty in South-east Asia of persons involuntarily inducted" into the armed forces.

He and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., offered the proposals as amendments to the pending $12.3-billion defense supplemental bill for Viet Nam.

Gruening said he told Johnson at the Aug. 26 meeting that U.S. involvement in the Viet Nam fighting was "folly—that it was a war we could not win—that continuation there would lead to greater and greater disaster."

DEAR ABBY:

What Boys Want On Coming Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You asked the troops in Vietnam what kind of homecoming they would like. We, members of Tent 7, U.S. Marine Corps, H&MS-12, Chu Lai, would like to reply: We just want to return home and find our parents, sweethearts and wives happy and healthy. We don't want any brass bands or welcome home banners. What we have seen and done here we'd like to forget, so give those of us who are lucky enough to make it home a quiet homecoming.

Very cordially yours,

Richard B. Owens, Sgt., Orlando, Fla.; Robert C. Packard, Pfc., Pittsburgh, Pa.; George Jones, Cpl., Mpls., Minn.; Ray D. Smith, Pfc., Portland, Ore.; Ray Richardson, Dothan, Ala.; Larry Little, Pfc., Wheelwright, Ky.; George Clouse, Woodbridge, Va.; Howard Dyer, Mentor, O.; Charles T. Briggs, Marion, Mass.

DEAR ABBY: There is this man where I work who is always talking about sex. No matter what is said, he turns it into something having to do with sex. He is married and has a grown family, and if it weren't for this one fault of his he would be a very nice person because he's intelligent, well-read and has a good sense of humor. But he spoils everything by dragging sex into every conversation. What is wrong with him, anyway? REVOLTED

ABBY

DEAR REVOLTED: I don't know. But you can bet it has something to do with sex. When a person constantly talks about sex, it's a fairly safe bet that he's doing all that he can about it — talking.

DEAR ABBY: How does one introduce his father's second wife? I just can't say, "Meet my STEPMOTHER." This woman raised me since I was two years old. I have always called her "Aunt Mary." Now that I am married, when I introduce "Aunt Mary" to my friends, and it turns out she is my father's wife, it is all too ridiculous. Please help me with this awkward problem.

FEELING FOOLISH

DEAR FEELING: It's too bad the fairy tales have made "stepmother" a slur, because whether you can say it or not, that's exactly who your "Aunt Mary" is. Why don't you just call her "Mother"? If she raised you since you were two, even if you don't feel she is really your mother, I'll bet she feels that you are really her son.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please, please print this for me and for all the other mothers of sons who have this problem: What happened to the good old days when boys chased girls? I am the mother of a 16-year-old son and I am bothered all day and sometimes up until 12 o'clock at night with girls calling my boy. When I say he is not home, they keep calling. Often when I answer they hang up in my face. Boys don't like to be called by girls. I've seen my son drop at least four girls because they called him all the time. I have a 14-year-old daughter, and if I ever catch her calling a boy I'll tan her hide. I am almost angry enough to have out phone taken out. And I hope every girl in Highland Park, Illinois, who knows my son, reads this.

BILL MERRILL'S
Something to Live By

I have often heard folks say they don't just believe in arguing religion or politics, and this bothers me a bit. Let's weigh this one out in today's "Something to Live By" column.

In our land of the free, two subjects have enjoyed free reign — religion and politics. In that they both lend themselves to one's convictions, it's possible that they also prove to be closely related to a person's emotions. Perhaps this is the reason that often what starts out as an innocent discussion, buds into an out and out argument and in turn, leaves a bad taste in one's mouth. At any rate, it seems it is almost good taste these days to announce that you never discuss religion or politics; that you believe these are personal subjects and that each man should keep his views to himself.

NOW I TAKE exception to this reasoning, and I'll point out why. May I first explain that I not mean to imply that it's healthy to have a knock-down, drag-out affair over these highly explosive topics. For as matter of fact, it's my conviction that these issues can be discussed with respect to one's fellow man, and most certainly should be, but by the same token, I feel there has been great harm done to government and society by keeping religion and politics completely mum.

Our great nation was formed on convictions surrounding these subjects, and it's a most healthy condition when people can exchange views on what they believe and why. It's by talking out loud regarding convictions that one gains courage, a need for further research on a subject, and some real opposition when your point is weak. Too often, for the lack of communication with others, folks lose identity with any real purpose, convictions digress to mere tradition, and ideas are never exchanged. A fellow votes for one party or another, only because his dad voted this way before him. He has no convictions of his own.

THE HOPE of our salvation nationally is deep-seated religious conviction, and akin to that, is politics. Talk about it. Occasionally I'll admit, there will be a clashing of personalities, as well as ideas, but the fact remains, such discussions usually encourage folks to pursue knowledge. The greatest threat to our way of life is a complacent, ill-formed public, when it comes to religion and politics.

Yes, sir, I believe there is merit in causing others to express their views, and in turn, to speak about your own convictions. Talk about religion and politics, form sound ideas, express them to others, and you will soon find that you are a threat to intruders who could corrupt our way of life.

It'll Be Warmer, But Really Not Very Much

After three days of bitter cold, a little warmer weather was predicted for Winona and vicinity tonight and Wednesday.

Scattered snow flurries are forecast for tonight, becoming fair to partly cloudy Wednesday. A low of 5 to 10 below is the word for tonight and a high of 5 to 10 above for Wednesday.

Slight temperature moderation is seen for Thursday but still well below normal. There will be little or no precipitation Thursday, the weatherman said. Low temperatures here since Sunday look like this:

Sunday -16
Monday -17
Tuesday -13

The drop to -13 this morning was from a high of only 5 above Monday afternoon. At noon today the reading was -2. This contrasts with a high a year ago today of 25 and a low of 4. There was 6 inches of snow on the ground then. Today's snowfall is put at 7 inches.

All-time high for Jan. 25 was 54 in 1944 and the low for the day -27 in 1904. Mean for the past 24 hours was -5. Normal for this time of the year is 16 above.

NO SERIOUS problems have occurred in the city water system from the January cold, Gerald O. Harvey, water commissioner, reported today, although several frozen water pipes have been reported in the past few days. Two calls were received today, he said, one in the west end of the city and another in the east end. In both cases lines leading into houses were frozen.

Harvey also reported that several cases of frozen meters had been reported this month because of cold basements. If a basement is without heat and no water is drawn for a considerable period, Harvey said, there is a tendency for the instrument to freeze.

Frost, he reported, was from 2 1/2 feet to 3 feet in the streets where the snow has been removed and not much more than 1 1/2 feet under the boulevards and lawns where the 7-inch snowfall lies.

THE WINONA fire department, too, reported no trouble with hydrants so far this winter. Acting Fire Chief Ervin Laufenburger reported many lot owners next to fire plugs were keeping the snow away to facilitate easy use if the need arises.

Laufenburger explained after each fire run when a hydrant has been used a water department crew drains the hydrant and puts it in immediate use for the next run.

Below zero weather may have been a little slow in making its appearance this winter but when it did come it didn't take long to catch up to last winter's pace.

There were no below zero days in November and December this winter. In the same time last winter seven appeared. In January last winter eight below zero days were counted whereas in January this year there have been 15 to date, exactly the same for the three winter months to this time a year ago.

FOLLOWING is the list of days when below zero temperatures were recorded this winter and last:

1964-65	1965-66
Nov. 31 - 4	Jan. 3 - 2
Dec. 17 - 12	4 - 4
18 - 10	7 - 5
19 - 8	8 - 17
26 - 1	9 - 10
27 - 11	10 - 10
28 - 8	11 - 10
Jan. 4 - 2	12 - 3
9 - 5	17 - 8
10 - 12	18 - 10
13 - 15	19 - 8
14 - 21	20 - 9
15 - 17	23 - 16
16 - 9	24 - 17
17 - 11	25 - 13

NORTHERN Minnesota points continued to register far below zero marks this morning with a national low of -37 at International Falls, -35 at Bemidji, -33 at Hibbing and -29 at Brainerd. Even Duluth reported a morning low of -29.

At Rochester the morning figure was -13 after a Monday high of -1. La Crosse posted figures of -12 and 5 above for the same times.

Fargo, N.D., where it was snowing this morning, had a low of -27.

WISCONSIN'S numbing cold wave eased a bit today but temperatures, especially in the western part of the state, held to sub-zero levels. The eastern area along Lake Michigan was receiving light, fluffy snow.

The mercury skidded to 29 below zero at Superior during the night and had climbed to only 25 below two hours after daybreak. The overnight minimum at Eau Claire was -24, Lone Rock -22, Park Falls -17, Wausau -16, Green Bay -15, Madison -12, Burlington -8, Racine -2, Beloit zero and Milwaukee 1 above zero.

One to two inches of snow were expected along the Lake Michigan shoreline today.

Racine reached a high of only 10 above zero Monday but was the warmest place in the state. Other highs ranged down to 1 below at Eau Claire.

THE NATIONAL high Monday was 72 at Naples and Pompano Beach, Fla.

Five Cases Settled; Jury Work Feb. 7

Settlement of five civil cases out of court was announced today in District Court to members of the petit jury panel called to begin hearing jury cases of the new January court term.

The case scheduled to be heard today was that of Herbert J. Lehnertz, St. Charles, against Edward R. Hintz, Minneapolis, and Elmer L. Amick, Rochester. The case involved a four-vehicle, chain-reaction collision on U.S. 14 Jan. 7 in which the sheriff reported about $1,750 damage and no injuries.

LEHNERTZ, who was driving his pick-up truck behind Amick's car, was suing for about $700 in alleged damage to his vehicle. The accident occurred near Lewiston in a heavy fog.

The five cases settled today brought to 13 the number of cases stricken from the January calendar for settlement. Judge Hatfield told the jurors that they would not be called back until Feb. 7, when the trial of criminal cases is scheduled to begin.

Settled with the Lehnertz case was a suit arising from the same accident, brought by Amick against Lehnertz, Hintz and the fourth driver, Marian E. O'Meara, St. Charles.

Also settled out of court was the $150,000 personal injury suit of Harold F. Wiese, Fond du Lac, Wis., against Chicago & North Western Railway. Wiese alleged that he received head and spine injuries in an accident at the C&NW yards in Kaukauna, Wis., while he worked as a brakeman July 9, 1964.

Amount of the settlement was not disclosed.

EXACT TERMS of the settlement between William F. Walter, East Burns Valley, for himself and his daughter, Kristine, and defendant Harold Riemann, Stockton, have not yet been worked out. However, the case is settled, District Court Clerk Joseph C. Page was told.

The suit of Win-Turk Inc., a Winona corporation, against Winona Chick Hatchery, 54 E. 2nd St., is the fifth whose settlement was announced today. Terms of settlement were not disclosed.

KELLOGG CUB SCOUTS
KELLOGG, Minn. (Special) — A Cub Scout pack meeting will be held tonight at Kellogg American Legion hall. Boys wishing to join should attend.

Six Scout leaders attended a roundtable in the library of the state training school at Red Wing last Tuesday, where they received recognition for outstanding contributions to the program. Present from here were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schmitz, Donald Schwoeiler, Lloyd Baker, Mrs. Clarence Coates, Mrs. Richard Miller and Gerald Collier.

Charter Commission Barely Makes Quorum

The City Charter Commission moved to invite another guest speaker and to tighten up its internal committee procedures at its Monday night meeting.

The 15-member commission convened with a quorum of nine present, the minimum number of commissioners that can legally proceed. A report on the commission form of city government was deferred because of the absence of Harold Streeter, chairman of the committee.

ON A MOTION by Dan Trainor Jr., the commission voted to invite the city manager of Bloomington to address one of the group's February meetings. Regular meetings will occur Feb. 14 and 28.

In another motion, Trainor proposed that committee study topics be outlined and put in writing. A point of order was raised by Martin A. Beatty who pointed out that a committee report must be in writing if any commissioner requests it. Trainor said his motion was for an advance written outline of each study and did not involve the written summary.

Such prior outlines may be impossible to draw, said Mrs. Virginia Torgerson. She is chairman of a committee charged with inviting city officials to discuss individual departments, duties and organization. There is no way to foretell the direction of such discussions, she said.

A TAPE recorder could be useful to the commission when such reports are given, suggested Steve Morgan. He received an earlier proposal by Beatty to acquire a recorder. Beatty had suggested that commission minutes could be more nearly a complete record of proceedings if a tape recorder were used. Purchase of such a machine should be studied, he said.

Minutes are mostly limited to the list of motions adopted said Duane Peterson, commission secretary. To record all meetings and make up a written report would require several hours of transcribing, he said. Beatty said he meant no criticism of the secretary in his proposal for more detailed reports of proceedings. Mrs. John Woodworth offered to lend a machine to the commission for such use.

Use of a recorder could tend to curb free expression by city officials, objected Mrs. Torgerson. They should be free to state all their opinions without feeling that everything is being recorded, she said.

A unanimous vote then was taken on Trainor's motion calling for outlines.

INFORMAL discussion that followed leaped beyond commission agenda as members applied a few preliminary tests to the present city structure.

It may be unnecessary to go far afield for examples, said CHARTER

"OFFICIAL" ADVICE . . . Be A Professional, Chamber Group Told

The challenge to be a "professional," to set standards of performance instead of just meeting them, was thrown out to 400 Chamber of Commerce members, wives, and guests Monday night at their annual meeting.

Issuing the challenge was Dr. T. Herbert True, an entertaining "philosopher, teacher, research psychologist, humorist and showman," as he describes himself.

DRESSED in referee's black and white striped uniform, Dr. True held control of the audience for nearly an hour with his fast-paced remarks. Emphasizing that the power of a professional is the ability to use "implied neutrality," to be ready to learn, to be interested in the other man's story, he varied his philosophy with quick, witty quips.

"Ask questions," he said, "because it's the quickest way to be liked, to tune in on people's minds, to relieve pressure, to set people on fire with desire and to check understanding."

He explained the referee's suit as a "visual reflection of the most important change in society — the suggestion that we 'officials' ourselves regularly. 'Develop a frame of reference,' he said. 'Your picture of yourself and the picture others have of you determines your behavior, and whether you will ever be a professional,' he said.

Dr. True, a former professor of marketing at the University of Notre Dame and management instructor at the U.S. Army Management School and Army War College, explained professionalism this way: A pro always gives more than 100 percent effort, he has super insights ("sort of a feel"), he sets standards, inspires others, is a team man, is "for" something and pursues knowledge.

"IF I WERE to say something profound, it would be that man grows by overcoming his obstacles. Our problems act as a sieve through which we filter our acquaintances. Those which are too big to filter through, become our friends," he philosophized.

True's final challenge came as a question. "Will you make a decision, will you think about this explanation tomorrow, will you be a professional?" he asked.

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — A meeting is scheduled in Whitehall Feb. 3 at 1:30 p.m. to organize Buffalo, Jackson, Eau Claire and Trempealeau counties into a Community Action organization under the federal anti-poverty program, according to Ernest S. Petersen, who will direct the program in southwestern Wisconsin.

The Eau Claire County Board of Supervisors will meet at 10 a.m. the same date to take final action on a resolution to join the four-county group.

Petersen said he has a letter from the Eau Claire Shelter for the Handicapped expressing interest in applying for a project grant.

PEPIN PATIENTS
PEPIN, Wis. (Special) — Mrs. Leonard Olson is a surgical patient at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Wabasha. Orrin Byington is in St. Benedict's Community Hospital, Durand.

CECILE REITERATED his belief that we realize we cannot win an "ultimate victory" in Viet Nam. We are hardening our positions there mainly in order to have something to bargain with when negotiations come, Cecile believes.

He added that we would probably settle for neutralization of the country as we did in Laos in 1962. "I don't see how we're going to get out," Eddy replied, recalling that laotian neutrality hadn't worked out.

CECILE argued that statesmen habitually use moralisms like the ones being used in Viet Nam to throw a smoke-screen over their real intentions, which are based on the realistic considerations of national interest and power.

In conclusion, Cecile said that he believes the administration already has decided that Viet Nam is not worth the price of increased escalation in the war.

The United States knows it has the power to defeat North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong, but it must ask whether it is worth it to use that power at the risk of starting a general, world-wide war, according to Cecile.

Accordingly, Cecile said that he believes the current peace

Retiring Head Of Chamber Sees Progress

Winona Chamber of Commerce activities for 1965 officially ended optimistically Monday night.

Retiring president William F. Lang handed the gavel to Wayne Hinrich, 1966 Chamber president, with this comment, "We hope to count 1965 as the year of beginning, of new city growth and progress. I believe we are making progress, because the people of Winona in 1965 finally decided to sit down and talk over city problems."

LANG CITED encouraged urban renewal, changed Chamber of Commerce committee work, a successful membership drive yielding 40 new memberships, hiring of an assistant manager, better use of the Chamber staff and increased cooperation with the Winona Industrial Development Association (WIDA).

Incoming president Hinrich said the incoming year would see more emphasis on developing Winona rather than publicizing it, an attempt to achieve national accreditation for the Chamber and its staff, increased attempts to host more small conventions in Winona and a possible increase in board membership to get a better business cross-section.

He added, "We hope to stimulate business ideas and growth, and share them with the citizens of Winona. The city is on the threshold of new developments in urban planning, city charter, schools, city government, tax studies and zoning codes. Let's keep it going," he said.

JAMES GOETZ, President, KAGE radio, received a plaque honoring him as one of Minnesota Jaycees' 1965 Ten Outstanding Young Men. The plaque was presented by Lang.

Certificates of appreciation were given to retiring directors Stephen Sadowski, Paul Pletke, A. E. Stoa and John Glenn. About 400 attended the banquet.

Durand Debaters Win 'C' Division

DURAND, Wis. — Durand High School debaters carried off honors in their last squad tournament of the year Saturday at La Crosse State University.

A team of first-year debaters captured first place in Class C competition. The affirmative, composed of Mary McNaughton and Donna Schober, won all four debates, over Prairie du Chien, Campion, Goodhue, Wisconsin Rapids and Rhinelander.

The negative, Christine McNaughton and Randy Bauer, also defeated its four opponents — Chippewa Falls, McDonnell, Winona Cotter, La Crosse Aquinas, and Viroqua.

The varsity finished in second place to La Crosse Aquinas in a power-matched division. The affirmative, Barbara Morey and Gary Wekkin, defeated teams from D. C. Everest, Osseo and Aquinas and lost to Winona Cotter. The negative, Mary Shafer and John Hess, also won three of four, defeating Menomonie, Wisconsin Rapids and Rhinelander and losing to D. C. Everest.

The B team also won second place in its division. The affirmative, James Forester and Mary Spindler, out-talked Owen-Withee, Wisconsin Rapids and John Marshall and lost to La Crosse Central. Kathy Forslund and Nancy Morey, negative, won all four, defeating Chippewa Falls, McDonnell, Viroqua, Winona Cotter, and Owen-Withee.

The squad was led by John Hess and Gary Wekkin, each scoring 115 points, followed by Barbara Morey, 114, and Mary Shafer, 109.

Next week the varsity enters district debate at Eau Claire Regis.

ARCADIA Derby Delayed
ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — The Buffalo-Decorah District Klonlike derby, scheduled at the Arcadia Country Club Sunday, has been postponed to Feb. 20.

Damage $345 In 2 Crashes

Two rear-end collisions on Broadway Monday afternoon resulted in $345 damage to four vehicles, police reported.

Mrs. Culliton C. DeZell, 214 E. Howard St., and Eugene J. Casterton, 22, 637 W. Broadway, were driving west on Broadway when Casterton's panel truck collided with the rear of the DeZell car at the Milwaukee Road crossing about 1:46 p.m., according to police.

Mrs. DeZell complained of pain after the mishap. Damage was $150 to the front of the truck and $45 to the rear of the DeZell car.

Russell T. Steyer, 574 W. Wabasha St., and Erling L. Nelson, 471 W. Sanborn St., were driving west on Broadway at Grand Street at 4:13 p.m. when Steyer's car struck the rear of the Nelson vehicle, according to the police report.

Damage was $100 to the right front of the Steyer car and $50 to the right rear of the Nelson vehicle.

Buffalo County Surplus Food Schedule Set

ALMA, Wis. (Special) — Surplus commodities will be distributed next week to persons receiving aid from the Buffalo County department of public welfare and others in low income brackets. The schedule of deliveries is as follows:

Feb. 1, old courthouse, Alma, 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3:30 p.m. to eligible persons in the city of Alma and towns of Alma, Lincoln, Maxville and Nelson.

Feb. 3, Mondovi, store building next to the KP hall from 11 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. to eligible persons in towns of Canton, Dover, Gilmanston, Naples and Mondovi.

Mondovi recipients may call at the same place Feb. 4 from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m.

Report on Loan Laws Corrected

Judge Arnold Hatfield's explanation of legal and illegal interest rates was not accurately represented in a story in Monday's Daily News.

Six percent interest is not the legal ceiling on bank loans or on loans made by an individual or company.

Eight percent or more interest is, however, illegal under Minnesota law governing the making of loans, Judge Hatfield said Monday.

Moreover, he pointed out, a company or a person selling a product may charge an installment price which is more than 8 percent greater than the price for a cash sale. And a bank can buy the paper issued under such a conditional sales contract and force collection of it without being in violation of the Minnesota usury law, he said.

It was reported Monday that the loan of money could be made at no greater than a 6 percent rate. This is incorrect.

Two Professors Debate:

Just How Vital Is South Viet Nam?

By TERRY BORMANN
Daily News Staff Writer

Two Winona State College professors provided mutually exclusive views of the importance of South Viet Nam to the United States at a symposium held Monday night in Pasteur Hall.

James Eddy, doctor in social science, argued that we must change our military tactics but stand by our commitments in Viet Nam because that country's fate holds the key to the balance of power in Asia.

Robert Cecil, doctor in political science, said he believes our government has realized that further escalation is not worth it in Viet Nam and is now searching earnestly for the best possible way out of the war there.

Steven Murras, a WSC sophomore who served with the Navy in Viet Nam, offered a sort of pictorial interlude between the talks by Eddy and Cecil. He showed slides of refueling operations at sea, take-offs and landings on an aircraft carrier and several views of the Vietnamese people and their environment.

The symposium was sponsored by the WSC International Relations Club. More than 100 attended.

EDDY BEGAN by sketching the diverse background of Viet Nam, which, he said, has at least six distinct religions and three geographic areas. Indian influence predominates in Cochinchina (the delta area of the south), but Chinese influence traditionally predominated in Tonkin (most of what is now North Viet Nam), Eddy said.

The result is that Viet Nam is by no means a cohesive or unified country, he said. Thus, it was open to easy domination by the French, who came in 1894.

Individual groups who wanted independence for their country went underground after the French arrival; but they found, through the failure of 18 attempts at revolution by 1910, that they would have to go outside the country for their revolutionary doctrine, according to Eddy.

Ho Chi Minh became a Communist in 1920, Eddy said; and he formed the two action principles for his career in 1924: Anti-colonialism and peasant-based revolt.

HO FOUNDED the Indochinese Communist Party in 1930 and led a revolt against French rule, which quickly failed. He was forced underground, but it was the American OSS and the Chinese Nationalists who finally gave him independent status after 1942, Eddy pointed out.

The Americans and Chinese supplied Ho with arms and other aid to oppose the Japanese, who had thrown out the French. By the end of the war, Ho was in a fairly stable position, Eddy said.

When the French tried to reassert their colonial rule, Ho began his guerrilla war in December 1946, according to Eddy. Basic to Ho's doctrine was the idea of a drawn-out war, Eddy told his audience, which he could maintain because he had a cohesive guerrilla army and a mass base of support.

By 1954, the drawn-out war had been won by Ho. The French were tired of fighting a weaker enemy they could never draw out into the open.

HO WAS ABLE to fight a war with no front-line because he had won the support of the rural peasant population, Eddy said.

And Ho had won his peasant support through a long, painstaking process before he even began his war against the French, according to Eddy.

This process was begun again in South Viet Nam in 1957 with the murder of 450 selected village chiefs, Eddy said. Having wiped out much of the previous local authority, the Viet Cong was free to begin building its peasant base of support. By 1964, the Viet Cong were able to launch regiment-size actions against government forces, and the war was ready for outside escalation.

CECILE followed with a different approach to the problem which Viet Nam presents for the United States.

He said that foreign policy consists of just two ingredients: National interest and power. The first is the end, the second the means of foreign policy in any nation, Cecil maintained.

He defined national interest as, at bottom, simple self-preservation. With this, however, go the desire to promote national well-being and preserve national institutions, according to Cecil.

Power can be defined as the ability to influence other individuals and nations, Cecil said. The United States has taken as the starting point of its foreign policy since the end of World War II that communism is basically hostile to our form of government and a threat to our security, according to Cecil.

THIS starting point gives rise to our policy of containment of communism — the purpose of stopping communism wherever we can. A corollary of the containment policy is the "domino theory" in Southeast Asia, that is, that if we don't stop communism in Viet Nam we will eventually have to do so in Hawaii, Cecil said.

Thus, he insisted, the United States is in Viet Nam because it believes it should be there to protect its own physical security, not because it wants to guarantee democracy to the people or to improve their economic lot.

If our foreign policy makers decide tomorrow that it is not in our interest to be in Viet Nam, we will pull out no matter what the consequences for the Vietnamese people, Cecil said.

"If you're thinking in realistic terms, you won't be surprised if moralism (saying we want to protect Vietnamese democracy and economic development) goes out the window," Cecil said. Moralism he added, "is the way the game is played . . . because this is what people want to hear."

CECILE argued that statesmen habitually use moralisms like the ones being used in Viet Nam to throw a smoke-screen over their real intentions, which are based on the realistic considerations of national interest and power.

In conclusion, Cecil said that he believes the administration already has decided that Viet Nam is not worth the price of increased escalation in the war.

The United States knows it has the power to defeat North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong, but it must ask whether it is worth it to use that power at the risk of starting a general, world-wide war, according to Cecil.

Accordingly, Cecil said that he believes the current peace

It Happened Last Night Jane's Daughter Takes Big Pill

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Jayne Mansfield was almost scared out of what she didn't have on at the Latin Quarter the other night. . . she got word after the first show that her daughter Maria, 2, had swallowed a huge 100-milligram sleeping pill she'd found in their suite at the Hotel Americana.

Her husband, Matt Cimber, phoned frantically for a pediatrician, and finally got one who treated Maria. The child had taken the pill, belonging to Matt's mother, Mrs. Fannie Ottaviano, from the refrigerator.

"Jayne didn't feel up to going on for the second show — but she did," Cimber said.

Producer Lou Walters had tried to keep Jayne covered up or under wraps or something last week, pending her official press opening . . . but with Jayne's measurements, that was impossible. She has four costumes in the show, which, if laid end to end, would make some other girl half a costume. Jayne's necklines set a new low.

Congressman Keeps in Touch With Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grocer seeking a small business loan. A dietitian who slipped on the kitchen floor. A youth with a yen to become a biologist.

Via long distance, all these poured their woes or ambitions into the ear of freshman Rep. George W. Grider, D-Tenn., Monday as he inaugurated a kind of Dial-Your-Congressman system.

From 3 to 5 p.m. on Mondays, any constituent with a problem can drop by Grider's Memphis office and speak direct to the congressman.

Grider, a three-career man — submarine skipper, lawyer and now politician — has become convinced since arriving here in January 1965, that congressmen must be conduits.

"The government simply won't work," he says, "unless Congress members act as conduits for citizens to bring their absolutely legitimate problems to the attention of the proper agencies."

A man with a sense of humor, Grider warmed up for Monday's person-to-person exchanges by talking into a dead phone: "What, madame, you say your son wants to go to Viet Nam? There must be something wrong with the connection."

Bloodmobile Set For Wabasha Co.

WABASHA, Minn. — The Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Wabasha next week.

The stops will be at the American Legion hall, Plainview, Monday; at Lincoln High School, Lake City, next Tuesday; at Wabasha Public School Feb. 2, and at Mazeppa Feb. 3.

All stops will be from 1 to 7 p.m. except at Mazeppa, where it will receive donations of blood from noon to 4 p.m.

State DFL Sets Budget Of $400,000

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A record budget of $400,000 — some $140,000 above the previous high — has been set by Democratic - Farmer - Labor officials eyeing the 1966 elections.

The DFL Executive Committee approved the spending proposal at a meeting here Saturday. State Chairman George Farr said it exceeded the previous $260,000 budget and is subject to ratification by the State Central Committee.

The DFL plans to double the present four-man field staff, add a finance director, and expand campaign advertising.

Farr said the party is in the black now and expects to add more to its campaign chest through sustaining memberships of $1 a month or more. Also planned are a $50-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner March 19, and some $100-per-person event next fall.

In other business, the Executive Committee set the date for the state convention back one month. The convention will be held June 23-25 instead of May 20-22.

The new dates are in line with earlier requests from Gov. Karl Rolvaag, whereas the earlier dates were favored by supporters of Lt. Gov. A.M. Keith.

That led to speculation whether the move is a factor in the Rolvaag Keith battle for party endorsement. Keith has said he would be available if chosen by the party's nominating convention. Rolvaag has not announced publicly his decision on whether to seek a second term.

Farr said that Rep. John Blatnik and other members of the congressional delegates had asked for the change in dates. Farr said the June dates would permit incumbents to remain "public officials" longer before they become active candidates.

The state DFL convention probably will be held in Minneapolis, unless the Hilton Hotel is completed in St. Paul earlier than expected.

County conventions were tentatively set for the period March 26 through April 30. District conventions will be held in May. DFL precinct caucuses are set for March 1.

Less Soil Damage From Wind Erosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Soil Conservation Service reported Monday that wind erosion has caused much less damage to soils in the Great Plains this year.

For November and December the first two months of the so-called blow season, only 124,530 acres in 187 counties were damaged. For the same period last year, 613,791 acres in 198 counties were damaged. The 1965 total is the smallest for the November - December period since 1954.

The Conservation Service said a combination of good vegetative cover, soil moisture, and snow cover in the northern plains, combined with fewer wind storms, produced the favorable condition this year.

Three Crews
Preparing for Space Link-up

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The space agency now has three two-man astronaut crews preparing to perform tricky rendezvous and link-up maneuvers in space that must be mastered before Americans head to the moon.

The latest astronauts to draw flight assignments are Navy Cmdr. John W. Young, a veteran of the first Gemini mission, and Air Force Maj. Michael Collins, a rookie who itches to try his hand at space walking.

It was Young who took a corned beef sandwich along on the Gemini 3 flight last year. He was reprimanded as a result.

Young will be the command pilot on Gemini 10. Collins will be the pilot who would take a space stroll during the two- or three-day flight, if a stroll is scheduled.

Gemini project officials hope to wind up the 12-flight program by the end of the year at about the same time the three-man Apollo flights begin. The five remaining Gemini flights are to include rendezvous and docking with unmanned orbiting vehicles.

The space agency is tentatively aiming at a mid-March launch for Gemini 8 during which Air Force Maj. David R. Scott will take a 90-minute space walk, long enough for one trip around the world. Command pilot is Neil A. Armstrong, the first civilian to get a flight assignment.

Civilian Elliot M. See Jr. and Air Force Capt. Charles A. Bassett II are scheduled to head into space about two months later aboard Gemini 9 on a similar docking mission. Bassett is also slated for a space walk, using a back pack for maneuvering instead of a space gun as Scott will use.

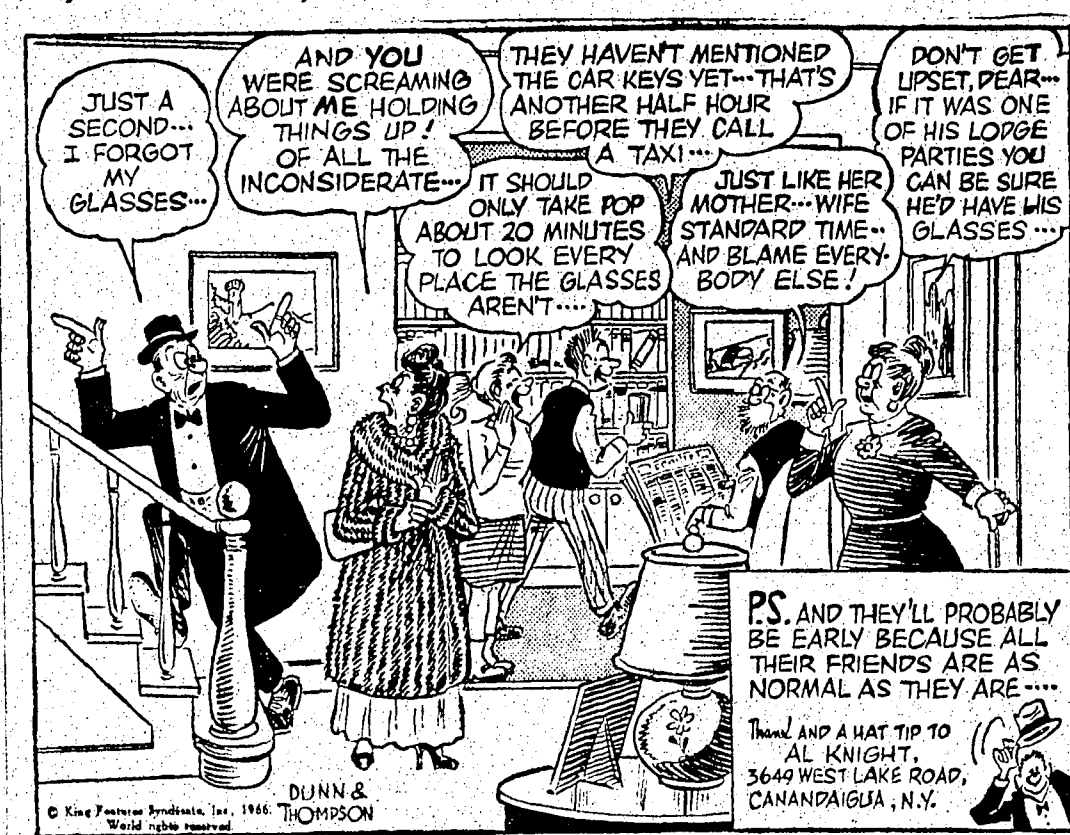

Gemini 10 is officially on the books for the third quarter of this year.

Vocational School
Awarded Pipestone

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Pipestone was selected by the State Board of Education today as the site of a new area vocational technical school.

Social Security Income Rules Liberalized

If you work after you apply for social security benefits and earn $1,500 or less in a year beginning in January, 1966, you will receive all your social security payments for the year, V. E. Bertel, social security district manager in Winona, announced.

Beginning in 1966, if you earn more than $1,500 in a year, the general rule is that $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $2 of earnings more than $1,500 and up to $2,700. If you earn more than $2,700 in a year, $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $1 earned more than $2,700. There are two exceptions to this general rule:

• If for any month you neither earn more than $125 working for someone else nor do substantial work in a business of your own, you will get your benefit for that month no matter how much you earn in the rest of the year.

113 Unhurt in Landing Mishap

NEW YORK (AP) — The nose gear of a Braniff Airlines 707 jet collapsed after the plane landed Sunday night at Kennedy Airport. All 113 persons aboard escaped injury. The flight originated in Bogota and made stops at Panama and Miami.

For months after you are 72 years of age, there will be no deductions from the benefits because of work after you reached 72.

If you work after applying for retirement benefits, your additional earnings may increase the amount of your monthly payments, Bertel continued.

The Social Security Administration will use its electronic computers to determine whether your recent earnings will increase your benefit amount. If so, the increase will be made automatically and you will not have to apply to have your benefit refigured.

Because of this change, you cannot lose by applying as soon as possible for any benefits due you even though you continue to work, Bertel said.

Voice of the Outdoors

Feed the Birds

With temperatures sinking below the comfortable mark for the hardest of fishermen, and sun dogs peeping down in the morning, a thought or two should be given to feeding the birds of the neighborhood or farm yard.

Individuals who maintain feeders know that in sub-zero weather even sparrows head for the feeder as soon as they come from the heart of their evergreen nesting place or building in the morning. Feed is absolutely necessary to keep them from freezing to death and to keep up their body temperature. Much more food is required when it is below zero than under normal climate conditions.

Emil Liers tells us that more birds are coming to his extensive bird feeding project this year than in a normal winter. Emil, of course, does not just provide the usual food. He adds cracked nuts, weed seed, sunflower seeds and suet for the meat eaters or the odd robin that craves a worm and did not have brains enough to join the southward migration. Ears of corn fastened to trees decorate his yard.

wilderness area. Where the areas are easily reached, crews are now at work, assisted by volunteers.

Locally, the deer stay put pretty much during this sub-zero weather. We have had no reports of them tearing down haystacks. Francis Teske, local warden, said. They are staying off the roads and none is being killed by cars. He said there are six deer in the bluff area directly across the lake. A fox trapper reported finding two deer dead in the bluff area with the carcasses surrounded with fox tracks. The deer apparently were wounded during the hunting season and not retrieved.

The Will Dilg Chapter of the Izaak Walton League, through sales to other parks, has reduced its winter carry - over herd to five animals. There will be more with the coming of the spring fawns. Regular feeding, of course, is maintained.

Sub-zero Fishing

Few fishermen were on the open ice over the weekend. Lines froze stiff, but those fortunate enough to have heated houses report fairly good luck. Most large crappies were taken. Occasionally northerns provided excitement.

Incidentally, Minnesota wardens don't like the new law that does not require the fishhouse license number stenciled on the outside of the structure. The law says the license must be posted within the house. The wardens cannot check when there is no one fishing or when the house is locked.

None of the local wardens are doing game bird feeding as yet. We doubt, outside of Trempealeau County, if there are sufficient pheasants or quail in this area to justify any feeding. In the western half of Minnesota, sportsmen's clubs still provide food for pheasants. However, the state does very little of any bird feeding. It is not encouraged by game bird biologists.

North Shore Deer

Ted Shields, Minnesota Game and Fish director, announced that eight snowmobiles have been acquired to transport game department personnel to deer yards impossible to be reached otherwise through the 30-inches of deep snow that blankets the Big Woods in Cook, Lake, Koochiching, and northern St. Louis counties. The crews cut browse in and around such areas.

Department officials forecast a heavy fawn loss since it is impossible to reach all the snowbound deer in such a vast

Psychiatric Examination Set in Slaying

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — A further psychiatric examination has been ordered for a Mankato youth charged with first degree murder in the holdup-slaying of a young service station attendant.

Brian Lee Hendrickson, 17, pleaded innocent Monday in the Sept. 26 shooting of Raymond Dahms, 18, of nearby Rapidan.

A psychiatric examination shows that Hendrickson is competent to stand trial, the court was told.

District Judge Milton Mason granted a defense request for additional tests to determine the boy's mental condition at the time of the slaying.

About $800 was taken from the Rothfork service station near Rapidan when Dahms, the only attendant, was shot to death.

Guard, Reserves
Out for Youths
Facing Draft Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local draft boards have been told that young men under orders for induction cannot be permitted to enlist in the National Guard or Army Reserves, says the Selective Service.

A spokesman said Monday the new order — issued to all state draft directors last week — now means that youths can cancel their induction orders only by enlisting in the regular services — Army, Navy and Air Force.

The revision was based on a recommendation for the Defense Department, the Selective Service said.

Department officials forecast a heavy fawn loss since it is impossible to reach all the snowbound deer in such a vast

Woman Hit by Oliva's Bat Asks $81,000

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy E. Halling of Pine City claims that, while attending a Minnesota Twins baseball game last August she was hit by a bat thrown by Tony Oliva.

In a suit filed in Hennepin County District Court Monday, the woman asks $81,000 from Oliva for face cuts, injuries to her teeth, eyes and brain and nerve damage from being hit by the bat.

The Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc., (the Twins) and the Metropolitan Sports Area Commission, which operates the stadium in suburban Bloomington, also were named as defendants. The suit states that Oliva "negligently, carelessly and repeatedly lost control" of his bat.

Oliva, who won the league batting title last season, played with an injured right hand which team officials said affected his ability to hold onto the bat after swinging and missing.

Twins President Calvin Griffith said his organization has insurance to cover this type of damage suit. Minneapolis attorney Peter Sorsey will handle the case for the Twins and Oliva, he said.

"We regret anyone getting hurt at a ball game. But this is a type of thing which, regrettably, can happen," Griffith said.

Carl Says He's Good For 11 More Years

NOW THAT HE'S made it to 88, poet Carl Sandburg says he has no doubts that he is good for at least 11 more years.

"It's inevitable, it's inexorable, it's written in the book of fate," said Sandburg when he turned 80 in 1957.

"I had two great-grandfathers and a grandfather who died in years divisible by 11. If I don't die at 88 I'll go on to 99."

Sandburg's serene 82-year-old wife sniffs at his prophecy. She suspects her husband does, too.

Mrs. Sandburg forecasts 101 for her vigorous mate largely because he still drinks goat's milk and "that's what makes him live so long."

This is good, jocular, happy talk that one would expect from Mr. Sandburg and spouse.

There was one deviation from normal birthday ritual for Sandburg this year, however, and it worried newsmen.

He didn't lift a heavy oak armchair over his head at his home at Flat Rock, N.C., to show his fitness.

He hadn't been feeling well. Was it serious?

"Of course not," said Mrs. Sandburg. "He did that armchair business until recently. Then when they'd ask him to do it he'd just say it was too much trouble to go out on the porch and get the chair."

AS THE MISSUS said: "Nothing ever gets the better of Carl."—

Red Wing Considers Development Authority

(Red Wing Republican Eagle)

WHEN RED WING'S City Council holds its scheduled hearing Feb. 10 on public housing, the focus will be on construction of low-rent apartments for the low-income elderly. This federal program is the one which seems to have caught the public interest, here and in nearby communities.

The specific proposal before aldermen will be to create a Housing and Redevelopment Authority for Red Wing. This is the city agency through which Red Wing would go into federally financed public housing. And it's also the agency through which Red Wing could enter the federal urban renewal program for improving our downtown.

This last is still a strange animal to small cities in this part of the country. At a recent meeting of Wisconsin planners, it was noted that no Wisconsin city under 25,000 population and only one under 50,000 had yet moved into federal urban renewal. Elsewhere, however, small cities are not so reluctant. About half the urban renewal projects nationally are in cities of 50,000 population or less.

And some "old river towns" akin to Red Wing are warming up to urban renewal as a tool for revitalizing their ancient downtowns.

WINONA IS ONE. Its Housing and Redevelopment Authority has drawn a comprehensive plan for renewing the downtown. Twenty-four leading citizens have resolved that federal funds are the only practical means on the horizon for bringing it about. A four-block retail core bounded by Second, Fourth, Main, and Lafayette streets is to be equipped with covered walkways and more off-street parking and to be closed to interior auto traffic. An "old town" is to be developed in an adjoining section with old buildings preserved in their original styles but spruced up, cleaned up, and strengthened. "Is Winona at long last awakening?" asks the Winona Daily News, an ardent champion of downtown renewal.

Farther downstream, Keokuk, Iowa, has been in the urban renewal business for quite some time. And with a 1960 population of 16,316, it's even closer than Winona to Red Wing's size.

Keokuk began in 1963 when two major department stores threatened to pull out of downtown and move to the city's outskirts. Plans were made, and in the fall of 1964 the city started buying downtown land. Six buyers stepped forward even before the old buildings were torn down. Next spring work is scheduled to start on a $3 million downtown shopping center. At least 14 other downtown merchants are planning major renovations. Real estate values downtown — and the city's tax take — are expected to rise substantially.

HERE IN RED WING, downtown renewal has been proceeding at a pretty good clip under private auspices. The evidence is all about us. Red Wing's downtown is in better shape than Winona's, we suspect. But other portions of our central city are badly deteriorated and detract from the whole. Urban renewal in these locations could speed the whole rebuilding process. This is something which a Red Wing Housing and Redevelopment Authority should examine, too. It's been recommended by the City Planning Commission, but aldermen and merchants and the public generally don't seem to have warmed up yet to the possibilities.

The Viet Cong guerillas don't have a chance. Remember our boys grew up learning how to find automobiles in shopping center parking lots.

But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself... therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.—Daniel 1:8.

WORLD TODAY

Honeymoon May Be Nearing End

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's honeymoon with Congress, marked by last year's unprecedented legislative accomplishments, may come to an end this year.

Some of the President's own top leaders are worried about the outlook.

Publicly they predict that the President will get pretty much what he wants from the top-heavy Democratic Congress he helped elect two years ago. Their private views are not so rosy. "It's going to be a long and a tough session," one of them commented privately. "The President's program includes some really controversial proposals which would be difficult enough to shove through in a nonelection year."

THE REFERENCE was to the fact 1966 is the year in which all 435 seats in the House and about 35 in the Senate will be filled by the voters.

Members of Congress seeking re-election will have to run on their own records, which are made on the floors of the Senate and the House.

Many of the 293 House Democrats believe they will have to defend themselves against Republican campaign charges of fiscal irresponsibility and lack of independence.

GOP leaders have indicated that they will stress their charge that most incumbent Democrats were "rubber stamps" for the President in their support of costly "Great Society" programs enacted last year.

SOME DEMOCRATS seeking re-election think perhaps this is the year to be economy-minded when it comes to financing domestic programs. They have a built-in excuse for not being as cooperative with the President as they were last year. The cost of the war in Viet Nam is mounting and it's hard to cut war appropriations. So the economy drives will be aimed at nonwar spending.

It isn't likely that Congress will shelve any of the new programs approved last year. More likely it will slow them down temporarily by cutting the money needed to keep them going full speed ahead.

Some presidential proposals, new and old, which don't need heavy financing also are in for tough sledding.

WHILE THERE IS widespread support in the House for Johnson's request to change the Constitution and elect representatives for four-year terms instead of two years, it is far from a cinch that the House will approve it.

It takes a two-thirds vote of each branch of Congress to submit a proposed constitutional amendment to the states. That means 290 votes in the House and 67 in the Senate if every one votes. Many of the 140 House Republicans are expected to oppose the proposal. Some influential Democrats haven't been sold on it.

The President's proposals to establish "unavoidable requirements for nondiscriminatory jury selection," to make it a federal crime to kill, attack or intimidate civil rights workers and to prohibit racial discrimination in the sale or rental of housing face formidable opposition.

So do his recommendations in the area of labor, including a new unemployment insurance program, expansion of minimum wage benefits and repeal of a federal law allowing states to ban union labor contracts.

Water Shortage Threatens United States in 14 Years

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — In 14 years the entire United States is in danger of being in the same boat as New York City, which has forbidden restaurants to serve water unless requested because of the water shortage. This is the general finding of the Senate Subcommittee on Water Pollution which, after exhaustive hearings, publishes a prediction that by 1980 — only 14 years away — the American people will be using 650 billion gallons of water daily, yet will have only 650 billion gallons available from our streams, lakes and reservoirs.

If this prediction is true, or even partially true, it means that the United States, once lavish with its water supply, will have to be as careful in its use of water as little Israel.

However, the Senate Subcommittee, under Sen. Ed Muskie, Democrat from Maine, a state with almost as many lakes as Minnesota, has a solution — the cleanup of pollution. Muskie has been crusading against water pollution for many years and his committee has produced some constructive proposals for remedying the danger of a national water shortage.

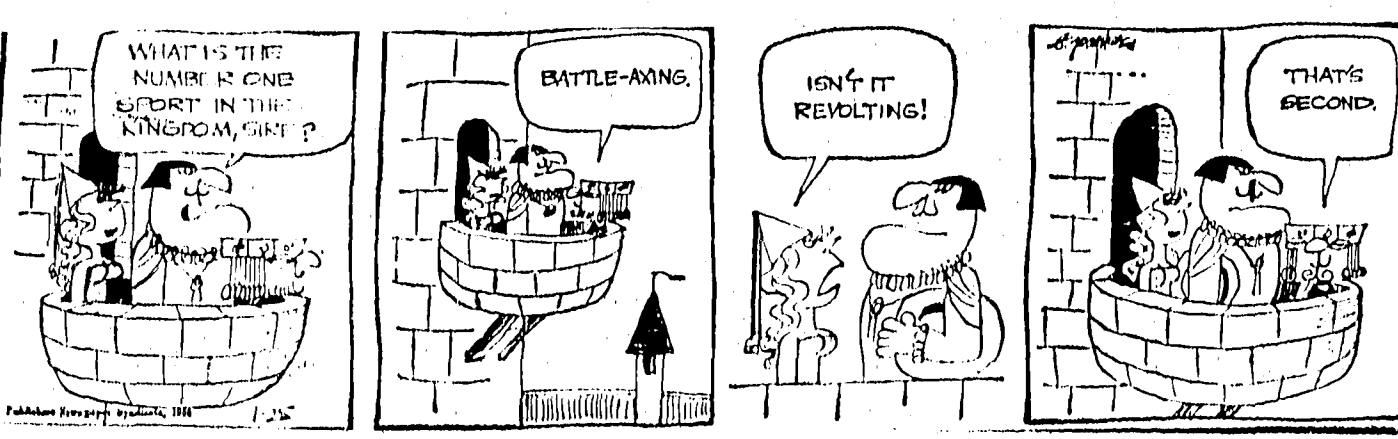

Specifically it recommends the expenditure of $6 billion annually — about six times the Johnson budget for education — to end water pollution.

The committee has carefully compiled estimates of what the 100 major cities of the United States will have to spend to clean up their water sources, and the figure for New York is $789 million in the next six years; for Chicago $572 million in the same period.

SEN. MUSKIE'S committee finds that sewage disposal plants in the United States are 40 years out of date, also that cities and industrial plants cannot afford the cost of cleaning up the waste they have been dumping into the streams. Accordingly, they recommend federal grants, long-term loans and tax depreciation to encourage industrial plants to reform their systems of waste disposal. The committee also recommends that $25 million be made available for research and development of new methods of handling municipal sewage and industrial waste.

To Your Good Health

Various Causes in Dizziness

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am in my early 20's and for the last few months I have noticed that if I bend over to pick up something, or move my head fast I get dizzy and feel like I am going to pass out. This is especially true during my menstrual period. Could it be a brain tumor? — MISS B. W.

Brain tumor, especially at your age, is quite unlikely — and anyway it would give entirely different symptoms.

You do need a physical examination, however, and at your age it would be logical to check blood pressure (suspecting lowness) to investigate whether your thyroid may be less active than normal, and to have a blood count because some anemia may have developed.

Examination covering these items in most cases provides the necessary clues for correcting the trouble in younger people. In older folks, the same causes may be at work, but middle ear trouble, high blood pressure causing dizziness, and some other difficulties may also warrant inquiry.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband, 66, has diverticulosis, but not bad. My husband has always been a big eater, and even likes "a little extra meat" with his cake or pie. Also he wants mustard, vinegar and black pepper on his sandwiches.

I can't convince him that he should eliminate these from his food because they must be irritating. Or maybe I'm wrong. — J. W.

The items you mention shouldn't bother his diverticulosis (which is what is irritated when you have diverticulosis).

Rather, your husband will likely benefit much more by avoiding foods which leave a great deal of residue after having passed through the stomach and upper intestine — bran, nuts, corn and berries with seeds are the principal such items.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 29, and for the last year have been bothered by dry, chapped lips. I have never had this or any skin problem before. In the last couple of months it has become worse. I have tried petroleum jelly and chap sticks and they don't help. Is there anything else to do? — MISS K. B.

First of all, consider the possibility of being allergic to lipstick, or even toothpaste or a mouthwash if you use one. Such sensitivity is a lot more common than you think — common enough so non-allergic lipsticks are available. Or just omit cosmetics entirely for a little while. Change toothpaste.

The second possibility: Do you smoke cigarettes? Or do you smoke a brand with some special type of tip? Just plain ordinary ones can irritate the lips.

If these simple but often effective methods don't help, see a dermatologist (skin specialist).

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it common for boys of 13 or 14 to have soft tumors or "kernels" in the stomach and between the elbow and underarm? The doctor said they weren't anything to be alarmed about. Will you explain? — MRS. J. M.

From your description and the doctor's remark, they sound as though they might be small lymph nodes — lymph glands which have swelled because of fighting off infection.

If that's it, they usually get smaller; if they persist or get larger, then further investigation (including blood count and chest X-ray) would be advisable.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our science teacher told Republicans Trying To Hide Problems

To the Editor:

Minnesota Republicans try to hide their problems, the "right wing mess" and splinter groups they inherited from the Goldwater campaign. This in-fighting has been carefully kept under wraps and away from public views and comments. It invites voters to become "secret" Republicans — kids that campaign literature will be mailed in plain brown wrappers so that none of your friends need ever know.

The suit against the extremists has been dropped and with a flurry and flourish they have been accepted back into the GOP fold. The contribution mailing list on sale to outside organizations including several rightist groups is possibly in violation of Corrupt Practices Act.

Among the splinter groups are the Free Society Association, American Conservative Union, Americans for Constitutional Action and United Republicans of America have obtained the names and addresses on the Republican master contributors list.

Circulation of the Republican mailing list to extremists and the external problem on the right is seen as defeating GOP national chairman Ray C. Bliss' attempt to reunify the party and to wrest control of it from the pro-Goldwater faction.

us if it was necessary in an emergency one could cut open another person and massage the heart by hand. Is this true? — YOUNG READER

Yes, it's true — if you know how to do it. And impossible if you don't. Doctors have saved lives in this manner, and I have talked to one or two people who have been so saved, but only an expert can even begin to do it. The average person can't point to where the heart really is, and has far less knowledge of how to reach the heart (ribs are in the way) and would without doubt hopelessly puncture a lung. This is not for amateurs, and the majority of doctors wouldn't attempt it for fear of doing more harm than good.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a man and was in my late 50's when I learned that I was a diabetic. I lost 25 pounds.

Can I gain some weight back? My blood sugar is normal as I obey the rules. I am 5 feet 9 and weigh 148. It is impossible to gain weight with this condition? — T. J.

You are fortunate to be able to control your blood sugar so readily after having (evidently) allowed the diabetes to progress to a considerable degree.

You are not seriously underweight, and if you start gaining you may have more trouble keeping the blood sugar level normal. With the majority of patients, the problem is to prevent them from gaining weight. If I were you, I'd consider myself lucky the way things are.

Wenonah Players Rehearsing Now for 'All the Way Home'

Wenonah Players' winter production, the Pulitzer Prize and Drama Critics' Award Play, "All the Way Home," by Tad Mosel, will open Feb. 11, it was announced today by director Miss Dorothy B. Magnus.

The show will run five days — Feb. 11 through 15 — at 8 p.m. in the Somsen Arena Theatre.

BASED ON James Agee's Pulitzer Prize novel, "A Death in the Family," the drama had a long run on Broadway beginning in November 1960, and has also been made into a motion picture.

The action of the play centers around a middle class Southern family in Knoxville, Tenn., in May 1915. A composite set serving the three acts of the show will remain in place with only minor property changes, but with lighting variations to point up the action and focus audience attention.

A CAST OF 19 members, including five children from the community, is now in rehearsal. Three of the parts have been double cast. Seasoned actors as well as students making their first appearance in a Players' production are handling the characterizations.

All performances are open to the public.

NEW BRIDE... The former Miss Karl Ann Burow became Mrs. Johannes van Leeuwen, when she married the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. E. van Leeuwen, Sleuwwijk, The Netherlands, Jan. 21. The wedding took place in the Christian Reformed Church at Sleuwwijk, followed by a late afternoon reception at the Jeugdhuys, Sleuwwijk. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Burow, La Crescent, Minn. The newlyweds will live in Amsterdam, where both are employed by Excerpta Medica Foundation.

Philip J. Yakish Weds Miss Kolter At Cathedral

Miss Theresa Mary Kolter, Madison, Wis., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. Kolter, 552 E. 4th St., became the bride of Philip J. Yakish, Milwaukee, Wis., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Yakish, 820 48th Ave., Goodview, Jan. 15.

THE WEDDING was in the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, with the Rev. Florian Mac, Franklin, Wis., officiating. The children's choir sang.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a street-length dress of silk organza over peau taffeta with lace trimming. It was styled with an empire waistline, scoop neckline and bell sleeves. She wore a lace mantilla veil and carried a sheaf of long-stemmed red roses.

Mrs. Thomas Nadeau, Milwaukee, was matron of honor. She wore a street-length dress of gold velvet with a gold satin bow at the waistline, scoop neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. Her pillbox hat was of matching fabric and she carried a long-stemmed white rose.

Roger Koelsch, Milwaukee, was best man. A wedding luncheon was served at noon at the home of the groom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Lohr, New Berlin, Wis.

After a trip to Chicago, the bride and groom are at 12027 Oakwood Dr., Franklin, Wis., where the groom is manager of the Midland Hardware store. He is a graduate of Cotter High School and the University of Wisconsin. The bride, also a graduate of CHS, is a graduate of Winona Practical Nursing School and works at Madison General Hospital.

MISS PHYLLIS WAUGH'S engagement to Richard Frisch, son of Mrs. Carolyn Frisch, Minneapolis, Minn., and the late Cleon Frisch, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Waugh, Stewartville, Minn. A June wedding is planned. Miss Waugh is a teacher at West Concord, Minn., and her fiancé farms near Altura, Minn.

Delta Kappa Gamma Women Hear About Africa From Rupps

Action films and word pictures by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rupp, Caledonia, Minn., brought the Rupps' recent African experiences to members of Iota Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, at a dinner meeting of the organization Monday night in Fellowship Hall, Central Lutheran Church.

The 27th such presentation in the area by the Rupps since their return from a six-weeks excursion into Africa and to points of Biblical and historical interest en route. The Rupps' lecture was unique in its interlacing of political and social facts with information and pictures on African flora and fauna and exciting hunt sequences.

The Rupps opened their illustrated talk with a comparison of the African continent and the United States. Africa is three times the size of the latter, they pointed out, and has a population, in round numbers, of 311 million, compared to the 192 million in the United States.

"The roving spotlight of the world's attention frequently rests on Africa, whose emerging nations are making history day by day," Mrs. Rupp told the group, and observed. "A political and social revolution is going on; Africa is not a 'dark continent' any more." She reminded the group that Africa now has 37 independent nations compared to four in 1950.

THE RUPPS were introduced by Mrs. Paul Klein, Houston, Minn. Following the talk, members examined articles brought back to the states by the couple.

A business meeting of the chapter preceded the dinner and program.

Harold Muller Weds Miss Wahls

SPRING GROVE, Minn. (Special)—Miss Luann Wahls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Wahls, Postville, Iowa, and Harold Muller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Muller, were married Dec. 19 at Postville.

The Rev. A. A. Holmquist officiated.

Maid of honor was Miss Donna Wahls, Iowa City, Iowa, sister of the bride. Colin Fong, Minneapolis, was best man.

A reception for 200 guests was held in the church dining room.

The bride, a graduate of Methodist - Kahler School of Nursing, Rochester, and the University of Minnesota, has a public health nursing position at Minneapolis Combined Nursing Service. The groom, also a graduate of the U of M, is a teacher in Como Elementary School, St. Paul.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Ann Sharon Bartz to Gary Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Goodwin, Elgin, Minn., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Bartz, Elgin. The wedding date has not been set. Miss Bartz, a graduate of Winona State College, is a secretary for Rochester Public Schools. Her fiancé is a senior at WSC.

PICKWICK, Minn. — Guests from La Crosse Chapter 22, Ruth Chapter 23, La Crosse, Winona Chapter 141 and the LaFarge, Wis., chapter saw slides of the International OES Temple in Washington, D.C. at the meeting of Pickwick Chapter 191 Friday evening.

Mrs. Robert McNally, worthy matron, welcomed the 50 persons attending.

MRS. D. V. Boardman, Winona, a chairman of the International OES Temple committee, showed the slides and gave a commentary on the building, which she said is a monument to the high ideals and purposes of the Order of Eastern Star. She explained that each OES member is expected to contribute $1 once in a lifetime, to be used to maintain the building.

Proceeds from a bake sale conducted at the meeting were used to fulfill the chapter's obligation to the Temple.

Honored guests in addition to Mrs. Boardman were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bogart, worthy patron and matron of Ruth Chapter; Mrs. Willard Nimochs and Carl E. Berg, worthy matron and patron of Chapter 22.

Mrs. C. F. Drevess gave the Good Cheer report.

SLIDES ALSO were shown of the orchids grown by Mr. and Mrs. George Hanson, who began raising orchids as a hobby in Chicago, before moving to Pickwick.

Refreshments were served at tables decorated in the Valentine motif, with gumdrop heart trees, cupid and red candles. Mrs. Forrest Clow was chairman of decorations; Mrs. Joe Miner and Mrs. Raymond Sampson, bake sale; Mrs. LaVane Stinson, Mrs. Arlie Morcomb and Mrs. Clow, refreshments.

Senators Get Views of U.S. Military Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators get the Navy, Marine and Air Force view of the Viet Nam war today after hearing Army Chief of Staff Harold K. Johnson outline the possibilities of the war exploding into a much broader conflict.

On the House side of the Capitol, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara continues his marathon testimony to congressional committees after saying the quick U.S. build-up in Viet Nam had no parallel.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said Gen. Johnson included his appraisal in secret testimony Monday before senators weighing the administration's request for $12.76 billion in additional Viet Nam funds this year.

Johnson, Russell said, found "the over-all military situation had improved somewhat over what it was a year ago." Johnson gave much of the credit to "the morale of the Vietnamese people, which has improved greatly," Russell said.

The Vietnamese, the general said, got a big lift from the growing number of American soldiers arriving.

But Russell made clear that Johnson's testimony wasn't all bright.

"Johnson pointed out the possibilities of the war developing into a much wider conflict and defined more clearly the difficulties our soldiers are encountering," Russell said.

HARRIS SURVEY

Public Backs Free Elections For Viet Nam

By LOUIS HARRIS

To achieve a settlement of the war in Viet Nam, American public opinion is willing to accept Communist representation in a "neutralist" South Vietnamese government — as long as it happens through free elections. But the public is opposed — by 2 to 1 — to any deal which would guarantee the Communists minimum representation as the price of a peace settlement.

Within the broad limits of public opinion, it is, therefore, clear that the American people favor efforts to seek a cease fire and are prepared to make compromises to achieve peace. As previously reported, should efforts to find peace fail, there is every indication most Americans would then support an escalation of the war.

A carefully drawn cross section of the American people was asked:

"Suppose part of the settlement of the Viet Nam War was to hold free elections in South Viet Nam which could result in the Communists being part of the government. Would you favor our agreeing to such an arrangement or would you be against such an agreement?"

ment of the Viet Nam War was to hold free elections in South Viet Nam which could result in the Communists being part of the government. Would you favor our agreeing to such an arrangement or would you be against such an agreement?"

Even if it should mean Communist representation in the South Viet Nam government — cuts sharply across party lines. Pluralities of voters who favored either Goldwater or Mr. Johnson in 1964 are now willing to support such an arrangement.

Regionally, only the South stands opposed. The balance in every other part of the country favors free elections as part of a settlement to bring peace to Viet Nam.

Particularly significant is the sharp division of opinion between the better educated, more affluent segment of Americans and the lower income, less well educated people. The more privileged are more willing to take the risks inherent in free elections, while the less privileged are nearly 3-to-2 opposed.

A SMALL merchant in Vinton, Va., summed up much of the opposition to free elections when he said, "All they want is a foot in the door and they'll take it all over. I think it's better dead than Red." In Verona, N. J., a 31-year-old salesman added, "If I was going to kill a snake, I wouldn't hit it on the tail. Letting them in won't stop them. Might as well give them the U.S.A., too."

But a doctor in Seattle reflected the views of the largest number of Americans when he said, "Maybe it would be easier to deal with the Communists if there were a few representatives of theirs in the government." In Aurora, Colo., an accountant added, "It depends on what you mean by representation. In Laos, we avoided a Communist take-over, but they are part of the government." A 46-year-old woman in Hartford, Conn., said "Free elections are fair. If the Communists have that much strength, they should have a voice in the government. We can't occupy them forever."

INHERENT in the notion that the Viet Cong be permitted some representation in South Viet Nam as a result of free elections is the companion hope that South Viet Nam might become "neutralist" rather than aligned on either side of an ideological power struggle. The cross section was asked:

Suppose after negotiations the government of South Viet Nam were neutralist — neither on our side nor on the side of the Communists. Would you favor or oppose that way to end the war?"

This willingness on the part of the American people to abide by elections which might result in Communist representation in a neutralist South Viet Nam should not be equated with guaranteeing the Viet Cong automatic representation as part of an initial peace settlement.

People were asked: "If the only way to end the war in Viet Nam were to give the Viet Cong — the Communists — some minimum representation in the South Viet Nam government, would you favor or oppose such an arrangement?"

The American public clearly wants every avenue of possible peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam conflict explored. The people are willing to take their chances with a neutralist regime or Communist representation in such a government as long as it stems out of a free election. Public opinion will go this far despite the fact that by 5 to 1 most Americans agree that the central purpose of U.S. fighting in Viet Nam is to prevent a Communist take-over of the country by either subversion or force of arms.

Hawkins, British Movie Star, Has Cancer Operation

LONDON (AP) — British movie star Jack Hawkins is suffering from throat cancer, but he is reported making progress after an operation.

"His condition is satisfactory," said a spokesman at London's University Hospital, where the 55-year-old actor underwent surgery over the week end.

In 1962, after eight years of continuous movie making, throat trouble forced him to abandon plans to return to the stage.

He was pronounced cured and went on to make more movies. He has just finished costarring with Sophia Loren in "Judith."

La Crosse Wants To Move a River

LA CROSSE, Wis. — The unusual geography of La Crosse has brought the city two chronic problems — flooding and a need for growing space.

A proposal it has just made to the army corps of engineers is designed to take care of both situations: Changing the course of the La Crosse River would keep it from flooding through the "back door" and open a marshy 1,000 acres of its present bed for land development.

The city is hemmed in by the Mississippi River on the west, towering bluffs to the east, Onalaska to the north and the town of Shelby on the south. About 10 percent of its total area is in the La Crosse river flood plain, and is almost worthless.

Literally moving the river out of the city could make this 1,000 acres worth 10 to 20 million dollars if reclaimed.

The plan not only could give industry elbow room, but also could make up for some of the residential property expected to be lost as La Crosse State university grows out of its present campus.

To get congressional backing, the corps of engineers must show a benefit exceeding the cost.

In the 1952 flood, the worst to that time, water swept into 800 homes, causing 430 to be evacuated. Despite new diking arrangements, the record high water of 1965 came along and flooded 214 homes and 71 business places. Water got into basements over 83 square blocks.

Costs mounted up fast, even with thousands of hours of volunteer help. The city spent $150,000 on diking. Private property owners did an equal amount of work on their own. Seventy thousand cubic yards of sand were hauled, 30,000 sandbags filled.

The La Crosse Telephone Corp. lost $21,000 in revenue in 40 days of disrupted service, and spent $50,000 for repairs. Northern States power Co. had similar losses in gas service trouble. Railroad service was cut off. It cost $11,000 plus labor to repair sewer failures.

Mayor Warren Loveland estimates that diking arrangements by the city prevented six million dollars in property damage — but two million dollars worth was lost anyway, including loss of business.

Looking the flood challenge squarely in the eye, La Crosse proposes:

A dike or sea wall nearly the length of the city along the Black River, which parallels the Mississippi.

Rerouting the La Crosse River from near Highway 16 across the north side of the city to where Interstate Highway 90 crosses the Black. (An alternate plan would be straightening the present channel and diking it to hold the river.)

Loveland notes that the state and city already have taken flood control steps since last spring. Highway 53, relocated earlier to serve as a dike, will get a second lane this year, higher than the first. Raising of another road is planned for the same purpose. A storm water pumping station is being built.

La Crosse feels the federal government should do something. So does Rep. Thomson, R-Wis., who got Congress to include a study of Wisconsin flood problems in the latest rivers and harbors bill.

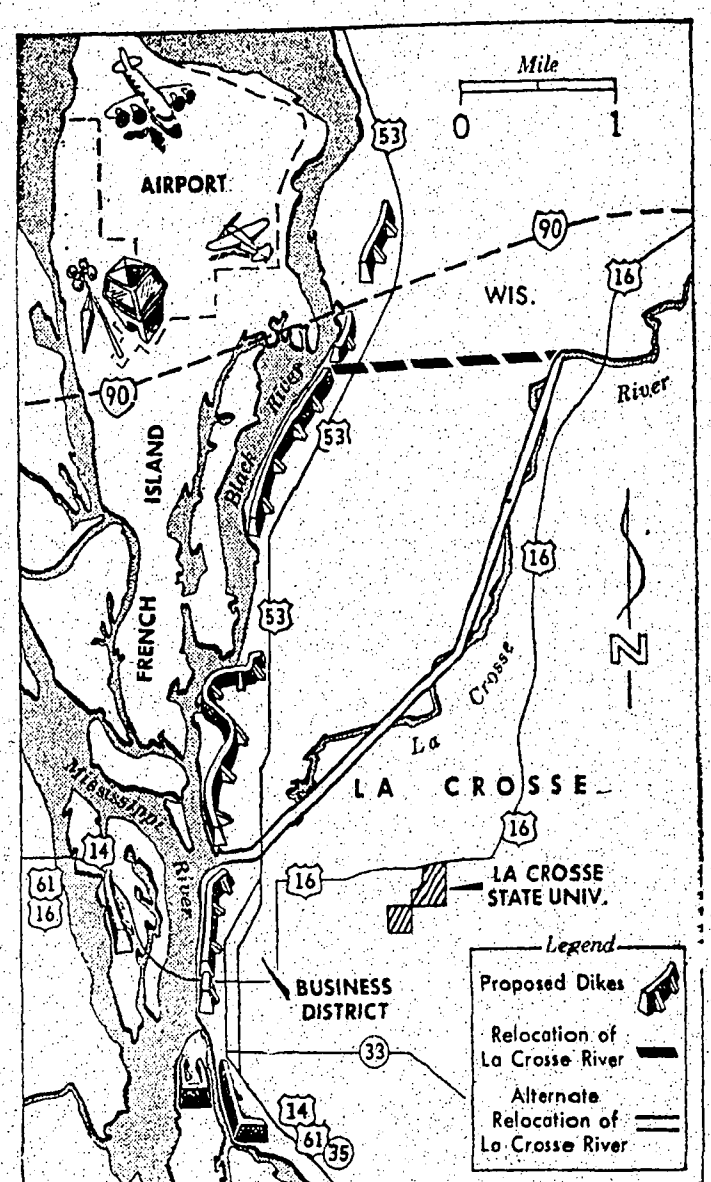

If the army study shows the La Crosse plan to be feasible, the city would have to supply the required land and maintenance. It seems to be willing.

When the plan was presented to the corps this month at a hearing, the Town of Campbell made the only serious objection. It fears the new channel mouth would increase the flood pressure on French Island, one of the hardest hit areas in the 1965 flood.

Because most homes and industry in La Crosse are on high ground — a sort of shelf — the idea of federal diking has not had full favor in the past.

Last year's flood, however, hit closer to more people and there are hints of the possibility of another flood next spring.

Federal flood control projects can take as much as 10 years from idea to completion. Local enthusiasm for the final corps proposal and support by the state and Thomson could speed it up.

LA CROSSE OFFICIALS hope to cut flood losses by one of the three plans indicated in this map—rerouting the La Crosse River over one of two routes or building a series of dikes along the Mississippi-Black River shore. The Army Corps of Engineers is studying the proposals.

Winonan Divorces Wife Who Stayed In Philippines

Judge Arnold Hatfield ordered findings for a default divorce after a hearing Monday in District Court.

Herbert Hundorf Jr., 23, Dakota Box 172, won the divorce from Teresita Cruz Hundorf, 21, Philippine Islands, who did not appear and was not represented at the hearing.

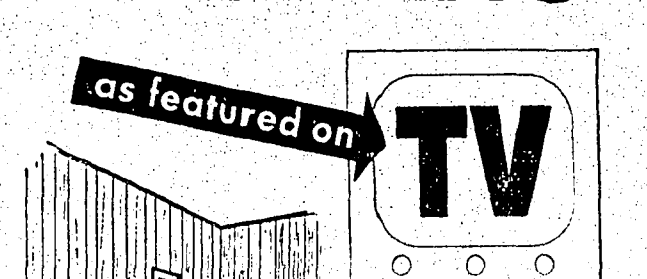

Hundorf testified that his wife deserted him 10 days after their marriage on July 16, 1962, at Manila, Philippine Islands. Herbert E. Hundorf, St. Charles, testified in corroboration of his son's testimony that Mrs. Hundorf had not come to the United States.

The Hundorfs have no children. Attorney Dennis A. Challean represented Hundorf Jr.

Although President Andrew Jackson is remembered as a rough- and- ready frontiersman whose inauguration in 1829 was a mob scene, Old Hickory brought sophistication to the White House. More than $50,000 went into renovations and furniture. Superb food and wine graced his table. In the words of one guest, it featured "every good and glittering thing French skill could devise."

She also told Del White, Buffalo County welfare department caseworker, that Bedell beat her son.
Mrs. Woodruff received rail transportation to the state of Mississippi and has left Wisconsin.

$429 Million for Northern State Roads Proposed

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Plans for a $429.4 million northern Minnesota highway improvement program — to spur tourism, industry and shipping in the area — were announced Monday by Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag.

The plans are contingent on 80 per cent financing by the federal government, under the 1965 Economic Development Act.

Rolvaag said funds for the 4,451-mile program would be sought through a three-state regional planning commission whose members are himself, Michigan Gov. George Romney and Wisconsin Gov. Warren Knowles.

Approval from the President and Congress would be needed, Rolvaag told a 10-member Duluth union committee.

State Highway Department plans for major routes include, he said:

- U.S. 2, four lane expressway from Duluth to East Grand Forks at a cost of $62.3 million.
 - U.S. 53, four lanes Duluth to Virginia, two lanes Virginia to International Falls; $28 million.
 - U.S. 61, four lanes from Duluth to Minn., two lanes to Grand Portage; $87 million.
 - U.S. 169, part four-lane expressway, part two-lane highway with scenic improvements, Elk River to Ely; $47.4 million.
 - U.S. 210, two lanes with two sections of expressway, Duluth to Breckenridge; $19.2 million.
- Rolvaag said he hopes action can be started this year.

WARNING FROM FIREMEN:

Cold Wave Causes Heating Plant Stress

The extended cold wave in Winona gives rise to serious fire hazards from heating plants, Fire Marshal Cleo Keiper warned today.

He recommended that all heating plant engineers and maintenance personnel survey all of the equipment for which they are responsible.

THEY SHOULD see that it is functioning properly, in good repair and that proper clearances are maintained between heating pipes, breaching, chimneys and combustible materials, Keiper said.

Wooden floor structures are an example of the "combustible materials" which present a fire hazard at a time when heating units get heavy use, as they do now, the fire marshal noted.

Tests prove, he said, that wood and similar combustibles can ignite at just 90 degrees more than room temperature, after being exposed to heat over a long period of time. Ignition can occur without an outside source of ignition such as a spark or a flame, Keiper said.

He added that in Winona the majority of buildings are of "ordinary" construction, that is, wood floors and wooden roofs with masonry walls. Much more caution must be exercised with heating units in this type of building, Keiper warned.

THE MATTER of clearances between steam pipes, hot air ducts, breaching and chimneys and the wooden floors, for instance, through which they pass is most important, according to Keiper.

There must be air movement around pipes going through floors or ceilings, Keiper said. A good rule of thumb is to allow clearance equal to one-half the diameter of the pipe or duct, he noted. This distance could be reduced with the use of insulation however, he said.

Storm Blocks Searchers From Reaching Wreck

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — Mist and howling winds today prevented searchers from reaching the wreckage of the Indian jetliner which crashed into Mont Blanc, killing all 117 persons aboard.

"Whatever remains up there was almost certainly buried by drifting snow during the night," said a helicopter pilot after a reconnaissance flight. "It could take months to get everything down."

Mont Blanc, Western Europe's highest mountain, was shrouded in mist and clouds.

The Air India Boeing 707, carrying 106 passengers and a crew of 11, crashed into the 15,781-foot peak Monday as it prepared to land at Geneva on a flight from Bombay to New York.

Five Americans and a Frenchwoman living in New York were among the passengers.

Helicopters of the French Mountain Rescue Service landed at the crash site Monday. The pilots said wreckage and bodies were scattered for miles over the mountain.

One helicopter brought down bits of charred remains before darkness halted rescue operations.

Two Durand Students Win Contest on Soil Conservation

DURAND, Wis. — Barbara Morey, a Durand High School student, and Judith Forster, a St. Mary's School student, were youth and junior division winners of the Pepin County Soil and Water Conservation District speech contests here Friday.

James Forster won second place in the youth division and David Callin second in the junior division.

The winners will represent Pepin County at the nine-county area contest at Eau Claire.

Tree Trimming Program Moves Into Second Half

A little more than half the servicing trees growing both on city and private property.

For the past year, Reed reported, 1,933 trees were trimmed, 45 topped, 476 taken down, 10 cabled and 85 had specialized trimming. These last include those with branches that threaten property or human safety. A total of 553 loads of brush and chips was hauled.

ALL STUMPS have been removed from city land, Reed said, and about two weeks of work this spring will finish up the root cutting program. These operations were by private contractors. The tree shaping and servicing program is in charge of a specially equipped department crew.

New trees, 158 in all, were planted along Mankato and Gilmore Avenues, Reed said. These were to replace older trees removed to make way for street widening and improvements.

Except for emergency situations, tree trimming is laid out on a geographical plan, Reed said. The crew works on a series of sections, each four blocks wide and extending from north to south edges of the city.

TREE CREW work is confined to city property. In this connection M. J. Bambenek, director of parks and recreation, reported a city attorney's opinion. Any tree, according to the opinion, growing with the right of way of a dedicated street is the responsibility of the department, regardless of sidewalk locations. If a tree is partly on city land and partly on private property, the costs of any maintenance should be shared proportionately, the opinion stated.

Street widths vary, the report noted. Some sidewalks are within rights of way and others are just outside. A department rule of thumb had limited work to trees between sidewalks and curbs. The question arose when it was discovered that city land in some places includes boulevard, walks and an extra foot of land inside the sidewalks. Under the attorney's opinion, both city and landowner should share costs of maintaining or

LET'S TALK SPORTS

REPRESENTATIVES of Winona, Cotter, Rochester Lourdes and Austin Pacelli attended a parley of Central Catholic directors in St. Paul Sunday.

Naturally the topic of conversation centered around whether the three Southern Minnesota clubs would be considered for league membership.

The answer is a blunt: "No one knows."

John Nett, Cotter athletic director, reports he isn't at all optimistic, while Joe Mayer of Lourdes appears to feel there is room for optimism.

Sunday's confab marked a preliminary step in negotiations. No formal application for membership was made by any of the three visitors.

Nett, Mayer and the Pacelli representative reviewed their case and were told the matter would be taken under advisement.

That's where it stands today and is likely to stand for some time.

"It was strictly an exploratory step," said Nett. "Nothing more."

SPEAKING OF COTTER and Pacelli, the two teams meet in basketball at Austin Friday night.

We got a call Monday morning saying that several adult fans of the Ramblers were interested in taking a bus to the game.

Anyone interested in making the trip that way can call John Sagen or Ed Holz.

Good rooting!

WE'VE BEEN ASKED BY several Winhawks why we appear doubtful of their chances now and then.

Actually it's not that at all, but more a healthy respect for Big Nine Conference balance.

We admit that many doubts were erased Friday night when the Hawks soundly thumped Austin behind a team effort.

But the present fact still is, there are five league games remaining and no one, most likely, is going to be able to breathe easy until after the final game — unless, of course, something unexpected happens.

It must be noted that the Hawks must make a tougher run down the stretch than Austin.

The Packers play Mankato, Faribault, Kenney Albert Lea and Rochester in that order, while Winona must meet Mankato, Faribault, Northfield, Rochester and Red Wing.

While the Packers play Mankato and Rochester at home, Winona must travel to Mankato, Northfield and Rochester.

"Any of the five teams could be tough on that one night," coach John Kenney has cautioned. "And you know they will be pointing for us."

Yes, Winona did make certain Friday that it chose a favorite's role. But while it is a pleasant path, it can also be rocky.

The proposed formula is there: Win them all. We expect the Hawks want to do just that. The trip to Mankato should tell a bit more of the story.

NOW WE NOW WHAT Dumpy DuBois and Rusty Podjaski spend their lunch hour talking about down at Winona Rug Cleaning.

Those conversations about how wife did on the bowling alley must have been interesting the last couple weeks after both Rusty's Cornelia and Dumpy's Connie entered the 300 club.

It was Cornelia—Corky to most—who gave us the biggest surprise. We noticed she hit a Hal-Rod Pin Dusters League-leading 192 Friday night and also was mentioned at the bottom of the sheet for 388. Combined with her 151 average that gave her a black patch.

Did all that happen the same night?

"Heck no," explained Rusty. "She got the 300 two weeks ago. Last Friday she beat the heck out of me."

The only problem is, Rusty won't tell what he hit.

The best we can do is take the word of a close-quarters observer who said Rusty nearly got one of those patches himself Monday.

Oh yes, Connie got her patch last Friday for a 398. She had a 154 average.

And there are more joiners. Rich Mohan—Westgate Classic—made it with a 381 and a 163 average; Bob Vogelsang—Westgate American—398 with 167 average; and last, but not least, friend Esther Pozanc. She had 393 to go with a 156 mark in the Pin Topplers loop at Westgate.

Though we don't expect it is going to save any spirits, we extend a hearty welcome.

BITS AND PIECES: Rochester basketball coach Kerwin Engelhart probably is never going to set foot outside the house when his team isn't playing. The reason? Though he scouted his team's first three Big Nine foes, the Rockets couldn't win. He didn't see Mankato, and Rochester responded with its first win.

Esther Pozanc, Irene Gostomski, Mary Ann Stalka, Sylvia Hassinger, Clarence Rivers, Harvey Stever, Ed Kauphusman and Andy Kuklinski have drawn the thanks of the Winona bowling juniors. Those people scored the first junior tournament Saturday.

THE SWAMI HIT 35 of 44 to run his total to 328 of 441 and a .744 percentage.

ST. MARY'S over Stout 67-61. "Stout is flying high, but the Redmen will end that."

Wykoff over Spring Grove 73-62, La Crescent over West Salem 61-59, Caledonia over Waukon 66-63, Hayfield over Blooming Prairie 68-62, Whitehall over Durand 73-70, Eleva-Strum over Fall Creek 69-59, Arkansas over Lima Sacred Heart 59-51, Eau Claire Regis over Mondovi 65-57.

AT TWINS' MEETING

Mudcat, Cal Trade Jibes

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Jim (Mudcat) Grant, looking all "show business" in his ermine-white fur coat and down-lined snow boots, breezed into Metropolitan Stadium Monday, but steered clear of Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith's office.

Within the next few weeks, Griffith's office is due to be the scene of Grant's verbal battle for a $29,000 baseball salary raise. He got $21,000 in 1965 when he won 21 games.

"I haven't reached the crossroads yet," Grant said of his impending salary struggle. "I haven't talked to the man (Griffith)." Grant says he must get a $50,000.

He'll have to convince me I should compromise," Grant said of Griffith. "Right now I say I've got to have $50,000 or I won't sign."

Grant and Griffith squared off with verbal barbs at the Baseball Writers' dinner Monday night as each took a turn at the speaker's microphone.

"I just want to say, 'Mudcat I don't believe everything I read,'" Griffith said in reference to statements his pitcher has given the press.

Added Griffith: "You know what I think he's mad about? He didn't ask for more money last year."

When Grant got his turn, he jibed, "Seems to me some other people ought to be in show business besides me."

Grant hinted that more had been made of the salary dispute than he had intended. "The sports writers have had a great time with us," Grant said.

Then to the dinner audience, Grant said, "I'm sure that I will be on the field pitching for you next year."

Mincher, Zoilo Get Top Awards

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Shortstop Zoilo Versalles and first baseman Don Mincher claimed the top awards Monday night at the mid-winter baseball writers' banquet honoring the American League champion Minnesota Twins.

Versalles was named the Twins' most valuable player of 1965 by the writers, while Mincher received the Calvin Griffith Award as the Twins' most improved player of the pennant-winning season. Griffith, the club president, selects the winner of his award.

Versalles' name will be added to the Charles Johnson Trophy, named for the veteran Minneapolis sports editor. Previous winners have been Harmon Killebrew in 1961, Vic Power 1962, Earl Battey 1963 and Tony Oliva 1964.

Other writers' awards went to Jim Grant as top Twins pitcher of '65, Sandy Valdespino as rookie of the year, Jerry Kindall as Upper Midwest player of the year, Oliva for his second straight American League batting championship, Sam Mele as manager of the year and Griffith as baseball executive of the year.

All of the Twins present at the dinner received gold-plated pocket knives as mementos of the pennant season.

In WWBA Tournament

Final Team Bids Fall Short

Pappy's and Winona Industries survived the final round of competitors to hold on to the top spots in the A and B divisions, respectively, in the Winona Women's Bowling Association tournament at Westgate Bowl Monday night.

But the two teams survived in completely different manners.

While Winona Industries was resting leisurely as none of the final four class B teams came close to its winning 2,719 total, Pappy's had to sweat out a pair of determined bids by Winona Insurance and Fenske Body Shop.

RESTING GINGERLY on its 2,896 count, Shirley Lockwood, Diane Huff, Dorothy Walsh, Joane O'Reilly and Beverly Schmitz of Pappy's watched as Yvonne Carpenter paced Winona Insurance to 2,656. The effort was 40 pins short of the leaders, but good enough for third place.

On the same 6:30 p.m. shift Fenske Body Shop came in with a 2,652 spot for fourth place.

Yvonne slapped 191-548 to pace Winona Insurance, and teammate Doris Bay came up with 193-519. Leona Lubinski had 484, Audrey Gorecki 430 and Jean Lubinski 383 for a 2,364 actual to go along with 292 pins handicap.

Fenske's, with 378 pins handicap, had Jan Wiczorek crack 510 and Arlene Kessler 200-507 to lead the way. Carol Fenske clouted 444, Gerry McLaughlin 418 and Ruth Werner 395.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS in the Class A Division were a 207-503 by Pat Ellinghuysen of Haddad's, plus a pair of 508s from Marge Moravec and Marianne O'Brien for Watkins Mary King. The Watkins Mary King team came up with scratch games of 858 and 830 in its bid, but fell to 735 its last game to go with only 180 pins handicap and a 2,603 total.

The biggest effort by a Class B team Monday night was a 2,535 posted by Bittner Oil behind Mardelle Hansen's 457. But the total was well down the list.

And no sooner had the team event breathed its last gasp than the firing in the doubles and singles got under way with one shift at 9 p.m.

Denver Skaters Smash UMD 8-1

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Denver, paced by Jack James' hat trick, exploded for five goals in the final period to whip Minnesota-Duluth 8-1 in a Western Collegiate Hockey Association game Monday night.

Duke and Kentucky, both idle last week because of mid-year examinations, continued at the head of the class in The Associated Press major-college basketball poll today. Falling grades affected the status of St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania, Kansas and Bradley.

St. Joseph's, upset by John's of New York 82-72, dropped two places to fifth. Kansas, sixth a week ago, fell to ninth after losing to Nebraska 83-75 while Bradley, seventh last week, slipped out of the rankings.

Cincinnati, which defeated the Peoria, Ill., Braves 85-69, replaced them in the Top Ten, advancing to the No. 8 position. The Braves were unranked a week ago.

Duke, 14-1, collected 28 first-place votes and 397 points in the latest voting by a special panel of 43 regional experts based on games through last Saturday. Kentucky, unbeaten in 12

ADDING MACHINES are NOT the same. Why are some adding machines priced at $59.50 and others at $99.50? Get the answers by asking for a demonstration. Yes, most DO subtract, divide, multiply as well as add, still there is a difference. That difference is in the PRIMA 20 priced at under $100. Ask to see DIFFERENCE at WINONA TYPEWRITER SERVICE, 161 E. 3rd.
