Bob Kennedy Wants Reds in Viet Coalition; Let Bombers Hit Oil Stores, Symington Says

British Navy Minister Quits

LONDON (AP) — Fierce controversy over Britain's future military role in the world popped into public view Saturday with the resignation of Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew. Several top admirals also may quit.

Christopher Mayhew
Policy Displeases

"auxiliaries rather than allies." He described government defense policy decisions as "dangerously mistaken."

This was the public climax to a secret struggle under way between the admirals, the air marshals and the politicians in preparing a government white paper outlining British military strategy through 1970. It is to be published Tuesday.

Defense Secretary Denis Healey is resolved to cut back by one-third, to an annual defense budget of two billion pounds — $5.6 billion — by 1970 and to reform British military strategy in the process. Something had to go under, and it appears to have been the demands of the once-proud Royal Navy.

The dispute lay between buying F111A long-range nuclear fighter-bombers from the United States or building a new aircraft carrier for about $196 million. The navy appears to have lost. The British military presence east of Suez now is expected to be reinforced by stationing the F111s on a chain of Indian Ocean island bases instead of dispatching a more mobile, but sinkable, carrier force.

Winter Slaps Middle West

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A pool of arctic air covered the north Saturday from the Rockies to New England, driving the temperature below the zero mark in 13 states.

The mercury sank to 44 below zero in Roseau, Minn., and to 43 in International Falls, Minn. Farther east it didn't get down nearly that far, stopping at 15 below in Sault Ste Marie, Mich., and 5 below in Burlington, Vt.

The winter-conditioned residents of International Falls marked off a string of 108 consecutive hours of subzero cold at 7 a.m. CST, and the end of the chain wasn't in sight.

There was a scattering of snow in the zero belt. Most of it was light. More than two inches fell in six hours in Rochester and Buffalo, N.Y.

One below-zero belt covered areas in Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa and Nebraska. Near zero was reported in northern Illinois.

As the cold air and snow moved into the Northeast, temperatures dropped to zero in parts of Maine and Vermont and to near zero in other sections of northern New England and northern New York.

Snow piled up to nearly a foot in Milwaukee but tapered off during the night. At least seven deaths were attributed to the stormy and cold weather in Wisconsin including five who died while shoveling snow and two who were killed in a car-truck crash on a snow-covered highway.

Snow fell in parts of the extreme Midwest cold belt, including areas in Nebraska, the Dakotas and Montana. Snow also was reported in northern Ohio, parts of Michigan, northern Indiana, northern Illinois, northeastern Missouri and southeastern Iowa and in sections of the Northeast. Two inches fell at Buffalo, N.Y., during a six-hour period.

Gusty northeasterly winds fanned areas in the Midwest and driving conditions were hazardous from northern Illinois and Wisconsin across lower Michigan to the eastern Great Lakes region.

In other parts of the nation, rain splashed coastal sections of California and in parts of the Southeast. Clear, cool weather prevailed in most of the South-west.

More than 150 residents in the Davenport, Iowa, Rock Island, Ill., area on the Mississippi River were forced from their homes by flood waters caused by a seven-mile ice jam. The river divides the two cities which have a population of some 90,000. The river was nearly two feet over flood stage of 15 feet Friday night. Near zero cold added more ice to the huge gorge, which was reported by Army engineers as "solid to the bottom."

Humor in Nature

Nature had a sense of humor (notes Arnold Glasow) to let housecleaning, gardening and spring fever come at the same time. . . . A woman's idea of traveling light is to have her husband carry all the luggage. . . . A careful driver, we're told, is one who just saw the fellow ahead of him getting caught. . . . Some people are hard to understand — they yell all week for more steam heat, then spend the weekend skiing.

Humphrey Warns Free Men Can't Surrender

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — "The first time you retreat" before Communist aggression, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey declared Saturday, "the first time you fold up your tents, on that day no one will ever believe in free men again."

Speaking at a luncheon at which Prime Minister Harold Holt of Australia was host, the U.S. traveling vice president also declared that he felt every anti-Communist nation should be represented in Viet Nam, even by as small a presence as a single doctor. If there is such a symbolic presence showing unity, he added, "the Communist juggernaut will be halted."

During the day, Holt announced the Australian government is "actively" considering increasing the number of its troops in Viet Nam. He made the statement at a joint news conference with Humphrey after the vice president met his first hostile reception in a 21,000-mile journey that has taken him to six countries. He moves on to New Zealand Sunday.

Holt said the matter of more Australian troops for the Viet Nam war is "actively under consideration," but that no conclusions have been reached yet.

"We have been considering for some time what more Australia can do in Viet Nam," Holt said. "We hope to announce soon what Australia can do to supplement our present forces in South Viet Nam."

Both Humphrey and Holt denied Humphrey put any pressure on Australia, but it was obvious the troop situation was a prime topic in their nearly three-hour discussion at Parliament House. At present, Australia has about 1,500 men in the Viet Nam field, most of them in a battalion of infantry which has seen considerable action against the Communists.

After attempts to start a fire failed, Jeffries and Le Compte struck out again for the ranch. Le Compte fell behind.

Jeffries froze his feet in walking to the ranch. He was hospitalized at Gettysburg. Dewey county sheriff Frank Ross said bodies of the two women and the boy were found huddled around the rake. Le Compte's body was found between the rake and his ranch.

Marines Trying To Trap Viet Cong Regiment

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Helicopters poured thousands of U.S. Marines into battle Saturday against the Viet Cong in the Phuoc Valley, 350 miles northeast of Saigon. Striking through light sniper fire, they hunted the enemy's hard core 1st Regiment.

U.S. Navy fighter-bombers flew in support of the Marines. They streamed in from the carrier Valley Forge in the South China Sea.

U.S. B2 jets carried the war to the Viet Cong on the other side of the country. They attacked points only two miles from the Cambodian frontier with a one-two punch and a new fusing device intended to let bombs bore deep into enemy tunnels before they explode.

Four aircraft were lost in operations against the Communists in other areas. One was a U.S. Navy A6 Intruder that failed to pull out of a bombing run Friday over North Viet Nam.

Two American helicopters were felled during fresh operations of the U.S. 1st Cavalry. Airmobile, Division around Bong Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon, that accounted for 37 Viet Cong dead.

Ground fire downed a South Vietnamese army L19 spotter plane 12 miles south of Da Nang, the U.S. Marine headquarters and air base, and its two Vietnamese crewmen were killed.

There was another spurt of terrorist activity in the Saigon area. A homemade bomb exploded in a restaurant in Hoc Mon, about 10 miles north of Saigon and police said 10 Vietnamese servicemen and four civilians were wounded.

Among minor incidents elsewhere, Saigon police arrested four men they identified as Viet Cong liaison agents. The four were said to have been discussing plans for further terrorism. The U.S. Marines' Phuoc Valley campaign was set off by intelligence reports of the sighting there of three battalions of the Viet Cong's 1st Regiment, which eluded the sweep launched by American and allied forces on the central coast last month.

Four battalions of Leathernecks, each far bigger than the Communist standard of 400 to 600 men to a battalion, were engaged. Two of the Marine battalions had just spent three weeks in the field in Operation Double Eagle, one phase of the coastal offensive that closed Thursday.

The fresh strike is intended to cover a zone of about 90 square miles that includes both coastal plain and abruptly rising mountains. It centers 11 miles west of Tam Ky, which lies between the Marine bases at Da Nang and Chu Lai.

NURSE KILLED . . . Lt. Carol A. E. Drazba, 22, of Dunmore, Pa., was killed Friday in a helicopter crash in Viet Nam. Lt. Drazba was the first U.S. nurse to die in Viet Nam. She had been in Viet Nam for about six months. (AP Photofax)

Blood Found on Powers' Jacket, Witness Testifies

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A chemist has testified that stains of blood were found on a jacket and pants belonging to Melvin Lane Powers a few days after multimillionaire Jacques Mossler was slain.

It was fairly fresh blood, Houston, Tex., chemist Floyd MacDonald testified Friday, but the stains were not large enough to determine the blood type.

Powers, 29, and his aunt, blonde Candace Mossler, who gave her age as 40, are accused

Chatfield Woman Witness at Trial

A Chatfield, Minn., woman was one of the witnesses called in the Mossler trial.

She is Linda Jean Sullivan, who was employed by Mrs. Mossler at Rochester, Minn., as a governess of her children. She testified that she saw a letter on a table, read parts of it and later was instructed to stay out of Mrs. Mossler's room.

of first-degree murder in her husband's death. The state claims that Powers murdered Mossler with his aunt's connivance to further an illicit nephew love affair and gain access to Mossler's wealth.

MacDonald said he found blood stains on a dark jacket and a pair of dark pants in Powers' closet in the Mossler mansion at Houston. A Miami policeman identified them as the clothing Powers wore at the Miami airport on the morning Mossler was slain.

River Trying to Find Way Around Davenport Ice Jam

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — No relief was in sight Saturday for this Iowa-Illinois community, plagued by meandering waters of the Mississippi River that were trying to find a way around a seven-mile ice jam.

Mobilized for a serious flood threat, officials said more than 150 persons have been removed from the residential areas near the river banks.

The Mississippi divides Davenport and Rock Island, Ill., where 90,000 persons live.

The river crept to nearly two feet over flood stage of 15 feet Saturday. Near zero weather added more ice to the huge gorge which rested like a block of granite on the bed of the channel for seven miles.

The Scott County Disaster Committee said that with the aid of the Red Cross full precautionary measures have been taken.

Several methods of breaking up the ice were proposed but all had drawbacks, including fear that the force needed to blast loose the ice would damage homes.

The dynamiting of a two-mile long ice jam in the Fox River Friday caused further flooding and forced evacuation of about 30 persons from homes in low-lying areas near St. Charles, in northern Illinois. The river rose three feet in four hours after the blasting of the 150-foot wide ice jam.

Rep. John Schmidhauser, D-Iowa, said in Washington that he was trying to enlist help of demolition experts from the 5th Army at Chicago to help clear the Mississippi jam.

Army engineers at Rock Island said it was doubtful whether Coast Guard ice breakers could make a worthwhile dent in the gorge.

"The ice jam is now solid to the bottom," said Richard Gustafson, corps public information officer at Rock Island.

Fulbright May Call McNamara And Humphrey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., urged President Johnson Saturday to invite Viet Nam negotiations on the basis of accepting some Communists in a coalition Saigon government.

Calling for limited use of U.S. military power, Kennedy said any effort to destroy the "objectives and forces" of North Viet Nam probably would result in massive Chinese intervention in the war.

The brother of the late President John F. Kennedy expressed some reservations about the course Johnson is pursuing. He said, for example, that he has such reservations about the resumption of the bombing of North Viet Nam because he is unsure of its limitations and objectives.

Kennedy, who is not a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and thus did not share in its televised hearing made his views known at a news conference.

The committee wound up its public sessions Friday with an invitation from Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Congress to vote on Viet Nam policy "if there is any doubt" about it.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said he sees no need for further public hearings. The committee is to decide at a Monday meeting whether to ask Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to appear at closed session. Both have declined to testify publicly.

The major focus of the policy dispute shifts to the Senate floor Monday in consideration of a $4.8-billion Viet Nam military authorization bill.

A protest against what he called "almost unbelievable target restrictions" for U.S. pilots bombing North Viet Nam came Saturday night from Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

An inspection report on Viet Nam battle centers by the Missouri senator urged that U.S. pilots be permitted to blast "such military targets as power plants, oil stores, docks, etc."

"Air operations against North Viet Nam have been largely ineffective," Symington, a former secretary of the Air Force, said in his account of a 10-day inspection in Viet Nam made public Saturday night after numerous deletions by Pentagon censors.

The senator indicated his belief it is not worth while risking skilled U.S. pilots and their costly warplanes on North Vietnamese targets limited to bridges, roads and supply trails.

Symington wrote: "A pilot flying an F105 single-engine jet (words deleted by censors) must fly the ship, watch the weather, avoid the SAMs and AA, fight if necessary and place his bombs on target."

"But in addition, he has to observe a mountain of rules as to what he can and cannot do." He said the effort to cut enemy supply lines had been ineffective "because of enemy defenses, enemy recuperability and, primarily, target restrictions."

"For true effectiveness, we must have current target restrictions eliminated."

Kennedy said that in the unconditional discussions the President has expressed willingness to undertake, both sides would bring at least one irreducible demand.

For the United States "it must be that we will not turn South Viet Nam over to the North," he said.

"For North Viet Nam it must be that they will not accept a settlement which leaves in the South a hostile government, dedicated to the final physical destruction of all Communist elements, refusing any economic cooperation with the North, dependent upon the continued presence of American military power."

Antitoxin Flown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Red Cross reported Friday night it had airlifted 600,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin to the Dominican Republic to combat a threatened epidemic of the disease there.

SERVING IN THE ARMED FORCES

High Priority Guard Unit Trains

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — Activities of Arcadia's Select Reserve Force Unit since being designated a high priority National Guard unit Nov. 1 have been varied, intensive and accelerated.

Although no strength increase was authorized this part of Headquarters Company 1st Battalion (Mech.) 128th Infantry on reorganization, the two platoons manned here now are at 100 per cent full table of organization strength. Arcadia has been at full strength since Oct. 13, 1963, and has continually accepted enlistments for other units in the battalion.

Lt. Braun is assigned as local contingent commander besides heading the Anti-Tank Platoon. Capt. Thomas P. Chisholm, a local physician, directs the procedures of the medical platoon.

IN DECEMBER, preliminary preparation of both administrative and medical records began and formal completion of these phases has a target date March 1.

Formal accomplishment of the SRF physical for the Arcadia unit was on Jan. 29 when members were examined at Camp McCoy by personnel of the 13th Evacuation Hospital, Madison, Wis. Unit traveled to McCoy by military bus. No report of any disqualifications, if any, has as yet been received in the unit's headquarters.

Sp. 4 Orin D. Brommer, Waukegan, and Sp. 4 Dennis M. Grossman are currently attending a 64-hour noncommissioned officer academy at the Eau Claire Army during the multiple unit training assemblies.

Pfc. Cyril and Francis Pehler, Dodge, recently completed a 32-hour driver-maintenance training school on track vehicles at the Eau Claire Army. The 1st Battalion 128th Infantry, fully mechanized, with armored personnel carriers, track-motor carriers and tanks requires numerous qualified individuals to operate these assigned vehicles and weekly schools are scheduled on a continuing basis to train as many as possible prior to annual field training in June.

Pfc. Dennis M. Benusa has applied for admission to the Wisconsin Military Academy. The academy is the state's officer candidate school to qualify enlisted men for Second Lieutenants.

LAST weekend administrative processing took place. Administrative processing teams composed of personnel from the 32nd Administration company were here to assist in completing active duty forms required for mobilization. Typists and interviewers will seek and record required information.

Nine men of the medical platoon took military occupational specialty at the Eau Claire Army. Tests and ratings are used to give each soldier an opportunity to show how proficient he is on his job. The test is the same administered to all Departments of the Army personnel, both active and reserve, once yearly. The evaluation score received shows the results of one's evaluation as compared to others in the same skill level and MOS.

Chief Communications Technician JOHN E. PETERSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill A. Peterson, 1277 W. 5th St., has reported for duty with the Navy at its communications station in San Miguel, Philippine Islands. The station provides major communications support for ships and units of the Seventh Fleet operating in the South China Sea.

Radioman Seaman MARK A. MROZEK, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Mrozek, 520 Garfield St., is participating in "Exercise High Time," a three-phase exercise being conducted in the Atlantic and Caribbean to test combat efficiency and improve anti-submarine, anti-air, mine and amphibious warfare techniques of some 50 units of the Second Fleet, the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force and the Atlantic Fleet Marine Force.

DAKOTA, MINN. (Special) — S. Sgt. T. L. Solem is spending a 30-day leave here after completing 13 months of duty with the Army in Korea. It was his second tour in Korea, the first in 1948-49.

Solem was met on his arrival at Max Conrad Field, Winona, by his wife, Lilah, and four children. The family purchased a home here about a year ago. He plans to remain in the Army two more years.

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. (Special) — Capt. Erling R. Drangstveit, son of Mrs. Arthur Drangstveit, Strum, Wis., is a flight commander of the Air Force 38th Air Rescue Squadron which recently received a Presidential Unit Citation for life-saving helicopter missions in Viet Nam.

The citation was given in recognition of achievements by the squadron in rescuing downed airmen from mountain and jungle areas and the sea.

Pvt. Kenneth J. Klimek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roman Klimek, has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and is on a 14-day leave. He will next be assigned to Fort Bliss, Texas, where he'll attend a school for missile mechanics.

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — Trempealeau County's March Selective Service quota is five for induction and 21 for pre-induction examinations. Miss Phyllis Tangen, county selective service officer, has announced. They are to report March 7.

Among 12 from this area who recently enlisted in the Army through the La Crosse recruiting station were Robert Eid, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Eid, Whitehall, and Bruce Rittschof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rittschof, Taylor Rt. 1, Wis.

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Pvt. Gregory M. Berg, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Berg Sr., arrived in Germany Jan. 21 and is stationed in Munchen where he's a clerk typist in a hospital. His address: Medical Attachment, 225 STA. Hospital, APO New York, N.Y. 09407.

The address of Pvt. Richard F. Boe is 3rd Field Hospital, APO San Francisco, Calif. 96307. He's been in Viet Nam since Jan. 27 and is stationed near Saigon. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Floren Boe, rural Blair, he received medical training at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

EYOTA, Minn. (Special) — Daniel Froelke, formerly of Eyota and the grandson of Mrs. Joseph Rice, is receiving basic training in the Marine Corps at San Diego, Calif.

GALESVILLE, Wis. (Special) — Airman Daniel G. McDonah, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. McDonah, Galesville Rt. 2, has been selected for training as an Air Force aircraft maintenance specialist at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

He is a 1964 graduate of Trempealeau High School and recently completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

ALMA, Wis. (Special) — Four men were inducted into the Army recently from Buffalo County.

They are Allen D. Engel, Cleus L. Ziegler and Donald G. Borr, all of Fountain City, and James A. Waidelich, Mondovi.

Fourteen other Selective Service registrants accompanied them to Minneapolis for pre-induction examinations.

ELGIN, Minn. — A3C. Thomas L. Survis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Survis, has been graduated from a course for Air Force weapons mechanics at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

PEPIN, Wis. — Lloyd M. Jahnke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Jahnke, has been promoted to airman second class in the Air Force. He's a graduate of Pepin High School and is a pavements specialist at Ellsworth Air Force Base, S.D.

Arnold A. Seifert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Seifert, Pepin Rt. 1, a sanitation specialist at Ellsworth Air Force Base, S.D., has been promoted to airman second class. He's a graduate of Pepin High School.

DRESSBACH, Minn. (Special) — Dennis Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan W. Moore, has been promoted to airman second class at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont. His address is 341 Transportation Squad, Box 44, Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont.

PLAINVIEW, Minn. — Pvt. Peter J. Weis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Weis, Plainview Rt. 2, has completed a five-week course at the Army Finance School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. A 1962 graduate of Plainview High School, he entered the Army last October and received basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

CALEDONIA, Minn. — Dennis L. Conniff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. Conniff, Caledonia Rt. 2, has completed a combat engineer course under the Reserve Enlistment Program at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

He will return to his Army National Guard unit, the 173rd Engineer Battalion, Onalaska, Wis., at the completion of his six-month tour of active duty. Conniff is a 1961 graduate of St. Peter High School, Hokah, Minn., and attended La Crosse State University.

Judge Explains Giving by Legacy At Alma Meeting

ALMA, Wis. (Special) — The Buffalo County unit of the American Cancer Society heard a talk on legacies by Judge Gary B. Schlossstein Tuesday night and made preliminary plans for its annual cancer crusade, April 11-16.

Mrs. Marvin Fugina, Fountain City, presided at the meeting in the American Bank reception room here.

Judge Schlossstein explained three methods by which an individual can name the cancer society as a beneficiary: Direct gift of money or property; residuary gift, the donor leaving the society all or part of what remains after specific provisions for family and friends have been met, and a gift in trust providing for family or others in their lifetimes but keeping the estate intact for later use in the fight against cancer.

"A will is definitely a security for your estate," he said. "To remember the American Cancer Society may be a gift of life for many in future years."

Training sessions for crusade workers will be held for Alma and Nelson, March 7; Fountain City, March 14, and Mondovi area, March 21, all at 8 p.m. A crusade committee — Mrs. Stanley Bond, Fountain City; Mrs. Arthur Hubbard, Mondovi, and Mrs. Erwin Gehrke, Alma Rt. 2—assists the Rev. Gene Krueger.

Mrs. Gehrke, reporting on the education program, said six films had been shown to 93 persons and 182 pieces of literature, 1,000 copies of the comic book, "Where There's Smoke," and 1,000 booklets, "Best Tip, Don't Start," had been distributed.

MRS. HARVEY Schweltzer, publicity chairman, reported on news releases. Mrs. John Burg, chairman of information and counseling service, reported no requests for dressings were received and four articles from the loan closet were used by three persons.

Mrs. Ed Linsie, Mondovi, memorial chairman, reported she enclosed memorial cards with her Christmas cards and received $19 in memorials.

Mrs. Bond was presented with a pin for eight years of service to the society.

Historian Tells Of River's Early Dual Meaning

Dual nature of the "old time Mississippi River" was recalled Saturday at the Winona County Old Settlers annual meeting by Henry Hull, assistant history professor at Winona State College.

It was both a "beautiful, happy river" and a "grim, wild monster in flood times," Hull said, speaking to about 450 association members at the Red Men's Wigwam.

SOVEREIGNTY of the United States over lower reaches was defended by Andrew Jackson in the War of 1812 and by Admiral Farragut in the War between the States. Memories of the old flatboat men and the fur trade are invoked as travelers pass St. Louis, the shores of Illinois and Iowa to reach this region, he said.

Transportation evolved from the Indian canoe through the missionary's pirogue, bateau and Mackinac boat, said Hull. Establishment of Ft. Snelling, muscle-cracking work of the keel-boat men, Indians were terrified when the first steamboat, the Western Engineer, appeared. The shallow draft steamer developed by Henry Shreve made large scale navigation of the upper river possible.

It was in the "great age of steamboats on the old time river" that Wabasha Prairie became Winona more than 100 years ago, Hull recalled. He described cargoes and the passengers who arrived to settle the valley, surmounting hazards by great efforts.

ANOTHER GREAT age opened with development of lumbering along the river. Hull told of the early rafts, the use of steamboats and the heyday of Winona's lumber industry. One of the "great raftsmen" was Samuel R. Van Sant, later a governor, remarked Hull. Van Sant fought the attempted establishment of a great railroad monopoly, said Hull, defending concepts of freedom he learned while working on "the old time river."

Today the river has a deep channel and modern barges, said Hull. He concluded: "The memory of the old time river is still very real to old settlers and their descendants. It is a living force in the history of our city, our state and our country."

Officers for 1966 are Harry M. Johnson, general chairman; Carl G. Breitlow, president; Joseph C. Page, vice president; Arthur Walz, treasurer; H. M. Johnson, secretary, and directors, Roy McElmury, Edward Blair, C. A. Risser, Henry Parks, Walter Hoppe, Thomas Stuck, Harry Einhorn and Mrs. Ray Laufenburger.

Entertainment consisted of music by the Braatz Trio, songs by Merrill Peterson and the Sweet Adelines, songs and instrumental selections by Gene Corey and his daughters Lyn and Sherry, and selections by Robert Schull and Fred Heyer and the Jimm Nepmann Trio.

Preparedness Classes Tuesday, Wednesday

Classes next week in the civil defense preparedness training course will be held at six alternate locations Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. A student may select any one of the locations. Students at Winona Secretarial School, Cotter and Winona Senior high schools will attend daytime sessions.

To obtain a certificate in the course an individual must attend four of the five classes in the series. One class was held Tuesday which means that a person who missed it must attend the remaining four.

Father Jailed For Nonsupport

Howard B. Peterson was still in county jail Saturday noon after Judge Arnold Hatfield found him guilty, Friday, of contempt of court for failure to make support payments. Judge Hatfield ruled that Peterson could win his freedom if he paid $300 toward delinquent support payments. Otherwise, he would have to serve the full 60-day term of his contempt sentence.

Peterson was arrested Tuesday by Sheriff George L. Port on a bench warrant after he had failed to appear in District Court Monday to answer the contempt of court charge. Judge Hatfield ordered the 60-day term to be effective from Tuesday, the day of Peterson's arrest. He warned the defendant that he would be liable to re-arrest if he did not keep up his support payments when he regains his freedom.

Electric Drill Taken

A quarter-inch electric drill was stolen from a parked car owned by Earl C. Blood, 701 Johnson St., sometime between Tuesday and Friday, police reported Saturday. Blood told police that the car was parked in front of 159 E. 4th St. during the period when the theft took place. He valued the drill at $25.

Snow Keeps Police Busy On Collisions

The accident pace set Friday morning on Winona's snow-covered streets was continued right on into the afternoon and evening, police reported.

Five mishaps resulted in $725 damage and two minor injuries, according to police.

ABOUT $200 damage resulted from a hit-run collision with a parked car on West Sanborn Street Friday at 9:55 p.m., according to the police report.

Mrs. Alfred M. Berndt, Latsch Island, reported to police that her car was parked at the south curb of Sanborn Street, facing east 75 feet east of Washington Street, when a hit-run driver apparently struck the left rear of her vehicle.

Impact pushed the parked car through a snow bank and into a tree on the boulevard, damaging the car's left front.

PETER J. Sterling, 21, Austin, Minn., was driving north on Carmona Street about 9:14 p.m. when he failed to stop for a Milwaukee Road switch engine that was moving west on the railroad's tracks.

Sterling drove into the left side of Milwaukee Road switch engine no. 946, causing $150 damage to the front of his car but none to the engine. The engineer was H. W. Bohn, 622 Walnut St.

A CAR-TRUCK collision at East 3rd and Franklin streets at 5:50 p.m. resulted in $200 damage to the car and none to the truck, police reported.

The collision occurred as Eugene A. Chadbourn, Winona Rt. 2, drove a truck owned by Gateway Transportation Co. west on 3rd Street and attempted to make a left turn at Franklin Street across the path of Richard J. Paul, 21, 728 E. 3rd St., eastbound on 3rd Street.

There was no damage to the truck and about $200 to the right front of the Paul car.

A REAR-END collision involving a car and a 2-ton truck resulted in $125 damage to the car Friday at 2:50 p.m., police said.

Walter Haase, 215 Kansas St., and Richard D. Oswowski, 6174 E. 2nd St., were both driving west on 4th Street when Haase stopped at Walnut Street and Oswowski was unable to stop in time, according to police. Damage was to the rear of the Haase car. There was none to the truck.

A DRIVER and her passenger both complained of neck pain following a rear-end collision at West Sarnia and Main streets Friday at 11:45 a.m., police re-

Ettrick Family Finds Temporary Living Quarters

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — The Angus MacConnells, who lost their home and all its contents in a fire Thursday morning, are spending the weekend with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Olson, Mindoro.

Having lived about six miles east of Ettrick in South Beaver Creek nearly 10 years, they are seeking a house they can rent in the area. They have 14 children, two of whom are at home. Also living with them was a widowed daughter, Mrs. Bonnie Steege, and her six children.

The Trempealeau County Red Cross chapter took care of the immediate needs of the family ported. No damage to the cars resulted. Mrs. Fred R. Rettkowski, 50, 578 E. 5th St., and Mrs. Fred M. Kaehler, 368 Carmona St., were both driving east on Sarnia Street when the Kaehler car struck the rear of the Rettkowski vehicle, according to police.

Both Mrs. Rettkowski and her passenger, Mrs. Robert J. Stark, 32, 853 E. Broadway, complained of neck pain following the mishap. Neither car was damaged.

weeks as a cooperative project of the newspaper and sponsoring advertisers. Bingo cards are available free from each of the advertising sponsors to all persons asking for them. Each week the cards will be issued in a separate color.

Numbers will be drawn from a bingo device each week at the newspaper office. They will then be displayed by means of "bingo bugs" which will appear in sponsors' advertisements in the paper.

Players watch the paper for numbers and when they find one that is on their cards, the number is crossed off on the cards. When all numbers on a card have been matched, the card is a winner.

A winning card must be brought or sent to the Daily News office no later than Wednesday following the week in which it was filled. A game begins on Monday and ends Friday for each of the 17 weeks. Players may use as many cards as they wish.

Employees of the Daily News and their families are ineligible to play in these games.

Prepared by Market Research Associates of Minneapolis, newspaper bingo has been offered by more than 100 newspapers across the country.

Three Accidents Saturday on City Streets

Three minor accidents occurred Saturday afternoon, two within five minutes.

At 2:50 p.m., a vehicle driven by Carol Becker, Sugar Loaf, collided with another car on East Burns Valley Road. The other vehicle was traveling east, hit an icy patch, and slid into the Becker vehicle, causing about $100 damage. The accident report was not complete early Saturday night.

At 2:55 p.m., about 150 feet east of Walnut Street on 3rd Street, an auto driven by Aloysius Vatter, 4145 7th St., Goodview, was struck in the rear by a car driven by Thomas Knappick, 817 W. Wabasha St., as Vatter pulled away from a parking space into traffic. Damage to Knappick's vehicle totaled $150. The estimate on Vatter's vehicle was not complete Saturday night.

Later Saturday afternoon, two vehicles collided at the intersection of Wabasha and Gould streets. One was moving south on Gould; the other west on Wabasha. The accident report was not complete early Saturday night.

Brother Gregory At Protestant School Meeting

The president of St. Mary's College was one of three Catholic observers and participants last week at a national conference on Christian education sponsored by the National Council of Churches.

Brother Gregory attended the Louisville, Ky., conference at the invitation of the Minnesota Council of Churches. More than 2,000 delegates representing 31 Protestant denominations were present. He was not a delegate.

The topic for the week-long meetings was "The Person in a Technological Society," and, according to Brother Gregory, "grave concern was expressed for cooperation among all churches in solving the problem of religious instruction for all citizens of the country who would like it."

The interest in solving the problem of no religious instruction in the public schools was "very great," said the St. Mary's president.

The national council is presently investigating two possibilities: Teaching about religion in public schools under the law without any proselytizing or any sectarian propaganda, and supplementing the curriculum of the public schools in science, history, society and personality development.

One of the sections he attended involved considerations of weekday religious education: Released time, shared time, dual enrollment and dismissed or reserved time.

Brother Gregory "particularly felt the respect held for the Catholic school system. However, the Protestant group has advanced much further in curriculum work and in released and shared time." "Great cordiality" prevailed, said Brother Gregory.

CHANGES AT NELSON NELSON, Wis. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kolhepp, who resided on High 35, Pepin, have moved to the upstairs apartment in the Romeo Busch house on Main Street, Nelson. Mr. and Mrs. Serum moved back to their farm in Church Valley in December.

Waseca Girl Wins Legion Oratory Meet

Ann Marie McLoone, a Waseca Sacred Heart High School student, won first place Saturday in the American Legion District 1 oratory contest. She won out over nine other contestants. The contest was held at the YMCA.

Runners-up were two Winona students — George Hoepfner Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hoepfner Sr., 428 W. King St., and Joy Hittner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hittner, 175 McCannan Dr. George is a student at Cotter. Joy attends Winona Senior High.

Miss McLoone next competes in the sub-state contest at Faribault in early March. Two of the four contestants at that event, which will include the southern half of Minnesota, will be chosen to compete in the state contest later in March.

OTHER contestants, and their high schools, were: Rita Wetzel, Owatonna; Murray Hansen, Albert Lea; Paul Prindle, La Crescent; Cynthia Wise, Austin; Mike Shimpack, Owatonna; Marian; Barbara Speltz, Rollingstone Holy Trinity; and Nancy Wagner, Caledonia-Korsetto.

All contestants gave an 8- to 10-minute prepared oration, and were required to be able to present a 3- to 5-minute extemporaneous talk on some aspect of the United States Constitution if called upon.

Judges were Miss Viva Tansey, social science instructor at Winona Senior High School; Robert Clayton, Senior High English instructor; A. L. Nelson, Winona superintendent of schools; Duane Peterson, local attorney, and Donald Stone, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Norman Indall is District 1 chairman of the oratory contest. Winona Senior High School students acted as ushers and guides.

Chinese Believe They're On Way Up, Reporter Says

If life in China today is poor and drab by American standards, the Chinese at least have a feeling that they escaped something worse and are now on the way up.

This was the assessment of an American reporter who visited six cities in China during a three-week tour of the country last spring. Mrs. Lisa Hobbs, a reporter for the Hearst newspapers, told about her trip Friday night at Winona State College.

FURTHERMORE, she said, instead of isolating China from the rest of the world as we sought to do, the United States has succeeded only in isolating itself from China.

Mrs. Hobbs told of seeing a Chinese trade fair in Canton last April at which 30,000 Chinese-made products were on display for hundreds of businessmen from all over Europe, Africa and Asia.

Businessmen she talked to said that Chinese manufactured products had improved in quantity and quality during every year they had attended the trade fair. The Chinese, Mrs. Hobbs noted, earn at least enough through foreign trade to have been able to lay down $403 million in cash for Canadian grain last year.

Mrs. Hobbs, an Australian citizen who married an American and has lived in San Francisco for the past 12 years, said that she received two shocks upon first entering China at Canton.

THE FIRST was when she announced to her government interpreters, rather belligerently, "I want to go for a walk," expecting to be turned down. The interpreters told her not to get lost, and wrote down the name of the hotel on a piece of paper in case she did.

Mrs. Hobbs found that she was free to move freely, without the official interpreters or the party official who accompanied their group, within the city limits of the places they visited.

Her second shock, Mrs. Hobbs told the WSC audience, was when she took her walk. In her travels through Asia, she said, she had become used to seeing thousands of people literally living in the streets. She had seen women giving birth in the streets, and men dying there.

But, as she walked the streets of Canton, which are dirty enough still, she noted, Mrs. Hobbs said that she was amazed to find the streets clear of beggars, serving only as thoroughfares.

WHEN THE group moved on to Peking after five or six days, Mrs. Hobbs said that she was struck again by the never-ceasing discrepancies between the American image of China and the reality.

The Chinese have a good sense of humor, she said, and appeared to her, at least, to be cheerful.

Moreover, they don't appear, at least, to feel oppressed by the restrictions of the Communist regime. The Chinese she saw in Peking walked with a dignity and vitality in their bearing which she had not been led to expect, Mrs. Hobbs said.

THE CHINESE weren't intimidated by their police, Mrs. Hobbs said. She often saw Chinese running across the street against lights, ignoring the angry shouts of the traffic cop at the corner.

And, finally, they weren't afraid to talk to her even in situations where she was exercising her freedom to wander the cities alone.

The propaganda which seems ridiculous and oppressive to us has gotten through to the Chinese people. We laugh at balloons like the one entitled, "The Red Army Women's Detachment"; but its performances are moving to the Chinese because it is rooted in their oppressed past, which they feel they have escaped, she said.

Mrs. Hobbs said that even her party of tourists was affected when they saw the ballet in Shanghai. And the audience of Chinese, when the ballet had reached its climax with the burn of a Communist, actually rose to its feet and groaned with emotion. Their interpreters were too moved to speak, she said.

A WESTERNER in Peking has the feeling of being in the midst of history in the making, according to Mrs. Hobbs. The Chinese are conscious of the great upheaval which they are spearheading, she added.

Moreover, while the Chinese masses are aware that their nation is still in the painful process of hauling itself out of the sixteenth century, they feel a real pride in the few small accomplishments they have achieved so far.

Factory tours, while undoubtedly "staged" to impress visitors, impressed Mrs. Hobbs in a way divorced from material accomplishments. She had the feeling that the workers who proudly showed off their work were actually talking in terms of a better future which they felt confident of achieving.

Largely because of the government's propaganda, workers and peasants are always striving for better ways to do things. Peasants earnestly read Mao Tse-tung's writings during their lunch breaks, searching for inspiration.

THE ONLY thing which struck her as really nightmarish about China was its students, Mrs. Hobbs told her audience.

The university students are alarmingly isolated from objective facts about the west, she said. They feel a real moral indignation about conditions for workers in the West, having been taught about the sweatshops and child labor of the turn of the century in terms of the present.

Students in China are also alarmingly isolated from the coldness and joy in life which we associate with young adults, according to Mrs. Hobbs.

The minimum age for marriage is 18 among women and 25 among men, she said. There is talk of raising the minimums to 25 and 30 for women and men, respectively.

What alarms her, Mrs. Hobbs said, is that such an increase in the minimum age for marriage would probably be accepted quietly by the students. Flirting between the sexes is simply not a part of their lives, she said.

CHINA IS not the aloof giant it was in the '50s, Mrs. Hobbs said. The country had only 2,000 tourists during 1965, but it is vigorously promoting tourism, and the facilities she and her group used during their three-week trip were both comfortable and capable of handling far larger numbers, Mrs. Hobbs reported.

While propaganda about Viet Nam is both constant and belligerent, Mrs. Hobbs said, it does not seem to strike the people really deeply. For instance, wherever they went, school children would sing propaganda songs to them, then express the wish that they would return again.

ONE SONG went, "I get up in the morning to go to the parade. Mother holds a gun in her hand. And father shouts, 'Get the U.S. aggressors out of Viet Nam.'" But it was not sung with malice or in a menacing way.

The presence of the Nationalists is a much more fearful thing to the Chinese than the presence of the Americans in Viet Nam, Mrs. Hobbs concluded.

Federal Grant For Arkansasaw Reading Plan

ARKANSAW, Wis. — A remedial reading program will go into operation at Arkansasaw School Feb. 28 under the leadership of Frederick Snyder, Appleton, who has been hired for the federally financed project under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

An in-service program also will be conducted during five meetings at Arkansasaw Elementary School during the remainder of the term. Starting Thursday, Dr. Wilbur Kalinke, director of the Ames laboratory school at River Falls State University, will hold a meeting for both grade and high school teachers from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Dr. Kalinke is a special consultant in reading problems.

Snyder, graduate of River Falls university, took graduate courses at George Peabody University in his special field of remedial reading. His course, offered to students in grades 1-12, will be conducted in an especially equipped room in the elementary building and in the high school.

Arkansasaw district has been allotted $10,982 under the federal act, based on the 1960 count of 39 children from families with less than $2,000 per year.

Great Lakes Planning Council Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department announced Friday that it will establish an Upper Great Lakes Planning Action Commission to determine whether more than 80 Minnesota, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan counties have been getting federal aid they deserve under existing programs.

The commission reportedly is to include governors of the three states and a federal representative to be appointed by President Johnson.

The commission also is to recommend new programs it feels necessary and develop a comprehensive plan for the region.

District Oratory Contest Monday At Arcadia High

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — A banquet will be served by the school cooks at Arcadia High School dining room Monday at 6:30 p.m. preceding the 10th American Legion oratorical contest, which will be at 8.

The ticket committee, consisting of David Krett, Ray Klink and Paul Tyvand, urged the public to attend to show appreciation and give support to Barbara Creeley, Arcadia senior, who won the Trempealeau County contest Wednesday.

Barbara, daughter of Walter Creeley and the late Mrs. Creeley, will compete in the district event with representatives from the other counties in the district. Last year Barbara won the 10th District event and placed third in the regional.

Paul A. Lund, Ellsworth, is contest chairman. A $50 bond will be awarded the district winner and all contestants will receive certificates of participation. Speeches are on the U.S. Constitution.

Judges have been tentatively secured from Winona State College. Tickets for the ham dinner may be secured from Donald Stevenson, Joseph Fernholz, Myron Scow, Vilas Hanson, George Glazner and Iggy Sossalla.

Three Announced Candidates for St. Charles Posts

ST. CHARLES, Minn. — Two St. Charles officials who didn't file for re-election by the deadline Feb. 1 have announced they will be write-in candidates.

They are Mayor Donald Hankerson and James Wilson, councilman.

Only filing for the council is Cyril Persons. The post held by Wilson and Dean Gaulke are open. Robert Rendernick has announced he will be a write-in candidate for council, so there are three candidates for two council positions.

A municipal judge will be elected. The filed candidates are Dennis Challen, present special municipal judge, and Alton Bergh. Both are attorneys.

Now is the best time to buy whole-house electric air conditioning.

Here are some facts to think about before 1:00 a.m. on a muggy mid-July night when it's too hot to sleep.

There are really two reasons why we talk to you about whole-house air conditioning at this time of year: First, you'll have time to make a comparison and careful decision. After that first sweltering week of summer, you might be tempted to take any kind of air conditioning just to have it.

Secondly, dealers aren't rushed. The busy heating season is just ending, and the cooling-season rush isn't in full swing yet. They're inclined to make you a better proposal at this time of year by offering pre-season bargain prices.

You probably have half your system installed!

If you have a forced-air heating system, you're ahead of the game already. Whole-house electric air conditioning can cool your home through the same ducts that carry warm air.

Electric air conditioning is penny-cheap to operate.

The average annual operating cost for a three-ton capacity air conditioner varies from $25 to $40. This low operating cost is just one reason why 96% of 2 million air conditioned homes in the United States are electrically air conditioned.

Electric air conditioning is efficient.

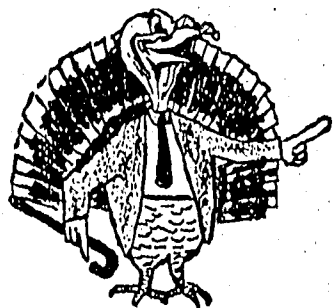

To you, that simply means electric units are small, so they're easy to conceal.

Now, how about the price? Obviously it varies, but just to let you know what kind of money we're talking about, your cost for equipment and installation would run about $15 to $25 a month on a 3-year FHA Home-Improvement Loan.

Call now for a free estimate.

At that price, is it worth suffering through another summer without it? Call NSP Builder Sales Department to arrange for a free estimate. Nobody will think it's strange. We know this is the best time of year to think about air conditioning.

Liver said some livestock was lost, some rice was burned and four villagers were wounded. The rice was replaced, livestock was paid for by a South Vietnamese official, and the four wounded were treated by American medics.

"All this occurred the day before the lunar New Year which has great religious significance for the Vietnamese," Linver wrote, adding: "We now 'own' another village, and it all started with a few bars of soap."

Mrs. Schwartzfeld said she paid only $2 for the soap. "Others have sent soap, too. Mine just got there first," she said.

Thoughts at Random — From Editor's Notebook

ONE GUESS who's running for the GOP gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania. Right. That hardest political perennial, Harold Stassen.

Like the New York Mets, Juan Peron, the Italian Army and Joe Blitsk, the former governor of Minnesota is always out for a come-back.

Perhaps he will make it this time. In the unhappy past Mr. Stassen's detractors, who always proved to be many and tireless, dismissed him as "Childe Harold."

We note from the announcement, however, that Harold Stassen is pushing 58. It is now, or never — or at least not until the next time.

APPARENTLY Minneapolis and Winona barbers have not heard of the guideposts for wage-price hikes as set up by President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers. These guideposts state that wage or price increases should not exceed 3.2 percent in the interests of the country's economy. Most unions and industry have pretty well followed the pattern. But the increase in the cost of a haircut in Winona from $1.75 to $2, effective Monday, represents a price hike of 14 percent!

THESE ARE happy days for Americans who cherish the right to work without paying tribute to a labor union. A long-standing threat to that right has been axed by the United States Senate.

The bill in question would have repealed Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act. The section permits states to ban "union shop" labor contracts which require workers to join a union within a specified period, usually 30 days, after being hired. Nineteen of the 50 states have such "right-to-work" laws.

Repeal of 14-B has led the AFL-CIO's list of demands for congressional action for some time. President Johnson endorsed the move as a payoff for organized labor's backing in the 1964 election.

The outcome was foreshadowed last October when the Senate voted against ending debate on the repeal measure. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., led a second filibuster with a resounding victory for his side. This leaves states free to outlaw the union shop.

The "Second Battle of 14-B" was shadow-boxing. Some union leaders admit the law has not inhibited their work. The AFL-CIO apparently wanted the repeal to demonstrate its power in Congress to dues-payers and prospective dues-payers.

The defeat handed to the AFL-CIO and the Johnson administration casts a shadow over the fate of two other measures backed by labor leaders. One would raise the minimum wage and extend it to more workers. The other would increase payments to the jobless.

Asked if he would mount filibusters against these bills, Dirksen's stand was that "I feel equally strongly about them." However, he is waiting to see the final formulas in both cases.

By refusing to repeal 14-B, the Senate regained a bit of its proper stature as a deliberative body instead of acting as a rubber stamp for the White House.

AS NOTED in this column a couple of weeks ago, we're glad that popular Cong. Al Quie has exercised his personal prerogative to remain out of the Republican gubernatorial race although he would have made a strong candidate.

He will have no trouble in being re-elected 1st District representative in the fall election and will begin his tenth year in Congress next January. He is third ranking Republican on the Education and Labor Committee and fourth on the Agriculture Committee and is close in line after Gerald Ford for House minority leader.

He has publicly had his investigating thumb on the Job Corps, the Teachers Corps and the postmaster scandal in 1965 as well as insisting that the Post Office Department release the names of temporary employees hired under the poverty program.

His record has won him respect and influence among House Republicans, who urged him to retain his seat rather than run for governor and we agree with the St. Paul Pioneer Press when it says:

"In his present position Quie will continue to perform valuable service for the Republican party and for his constituents in the 12 counties of the 1st District. If at some future time he decides to seek a statewide office, he will have a strong background to recommend him."

WE HAVE JUST returned from five exciting days, and, more importantly, five adventuresome nights at fabulous Las Vegas, Nev., where we were the guest of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. J. Klonowski, former residents of Winona who now live there. He recently was retired from the U.S. Air Force.

It was our first visit to the city of bright lights, dancing girls, blackjack, dice, slot machines, freshets of liquor and free flowing money and we plan to write about it in detail in the Sunday News magazine. The first installment will appear March 6.

How to Reach North Viet Nam

By DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — A headline one day tells of 40 to 50 Americans killed in Viet Nam, and a headline not many days later tells of 1,400 Viet Cong Communists slain as a result of air strikes, ambushes and counter-attacks by troops of the United States and South Viet Nam. Do the leaders of the North Viet Nam government realize the true meaning of these tragedies? Do they know that in America the people are saddened by the casualties suffered on both sides in a war which brushes aside the age-old commandment that man shall not kill his fellow man?

Communication is today's biggest single problem. Billions are being spent to get to the moon and survey other planets, but communication between the peoples of the earth is still inadequate. It can hardly be doubted that, if the people of North Viet Nam could reveal what is in their hearts, they would express their grief over the deaths of their fellow countrymen in the south, just as the South Vietnamese would manifest the same sorrow over the losses of other human beings of their own nationality in the north.

BUT HOW IS the spirit of humanity to be conveyed and made a potent influence in shaping the destiny of countries large and small? The present tendency is to rely on the sword or the bomb — military force. There is ample justification for its use in the cause of self-defense and self-protection. But this does not rule out efforts to express a humanitarian attitude toward the people on the other side.

Basically, the peoples of Southeast Asia have for ages past worshipped a mysterious life-giving force. Many books have been discovered that reveal the identical principles which have guided human beings in various religions in Asia originating from 1,000 to 5,000 and even 10,000 years before the Christian religion was founded. It is significant that the words "Thou Shall Not Kill," which Moses proclaimed, are paralleled in the many religions of Asia. The principle exists, for instance, in the Jain scriptures of the Sixth Century B.C., which speak of "five resolves," among them "to refrain from taking human life."

UNFORTUNATELY, many of the churches of today have not found a means of really reaching other peoples with spiritual messages. There have been, to be sure, some wonderful achievements by missionaries from America and other countries. They began many decades ago to make sacrifices to aid fellow human beings in jungles and primitive areas in far-away lands. But the work is still too limited in its scope.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Fanciest Officers' Club Goes Up at Cam Ranh Bay

By JACK ANDERSON
(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson's column today is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — The private contractors who are building the huge U.S. military complex in South Viet Nam are adding a few extra touches that the taxpayers haven't been told about.

At Cam Ranh Bay, for example, Viet Nam builders, a subsidiary of Morrison-Knudsen, Inc., has fashioned a former French villa into the fanciest officers' club in the Far East. The cost was merely added to the military construction charges at Cam Ranh Bay.

The Neptune Officers' Club, as it is called, overlooks the sea. Viet Nam builders has rewired the whole villa, installed air conditioning, replaced the plumbing, added a sophisticated drainage and seepage system, refurbished the kitchen, installed showers for bathers, built a stairwell, and opened up a roof garden for dancing.

A portion of the former servants' quarters has been turned over, rent free, to the company's construction chief, who put his crews to work creating a plush apartment for himself.

THE LABOR was charged to the Navy, the materials taken from those programmed for military construction.

Note: The long brass rail on which the officers prop their feet at the Cockpit Club in Nha Trang was also donated by Viet Nam builders. Incidentally, M. Sgt. Donald Duncan, who sounded off against the special forces in Ramparts magazine, has revealed that several officers and GIs, who can get out of the Army, are signing up with Morrison-Knudsen at inflated salaries.

With all the secrecy of a military operation, 26 top-drawer American business executives slipped below the border a few days ago to discuss with Mexican counterparts how to keep the Mexican government from interfering with their profits.

The four-day conference was held at a plush inn, La Posada Las Jacarandas, in the resort town of Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of Mexico City.

THE WHOLE affair was so hush-hush that no one else was allowed in the inn while the tycoons were there. The list of participants was kept strictly confidential. The sponsors even shelled out 50,000 pesos ($4,000) in "gratuities" to Mexican aviation officials to omit registration of the private planes in which most of the U.S. contingent arrived.

The meeting was arranged and bankrolled by the National Industrial Conference Board, a 50-year-old body noted chiefly for its opposition to organized labor. Its chairman is U.S. Steel's Roger M. Blough, who presided at the Cuernavaca conclave.

The roster of those who flew down reads like a who's who of the U.S. industrial and banking worlds. Among the participants were Stephen D. Bechtel, Jr., president of Bechtel Corp., world's largest contracting firm; John S. Bugas, vice president, Ford Motor; Dudley Dowell, president, New York Life Insurance.

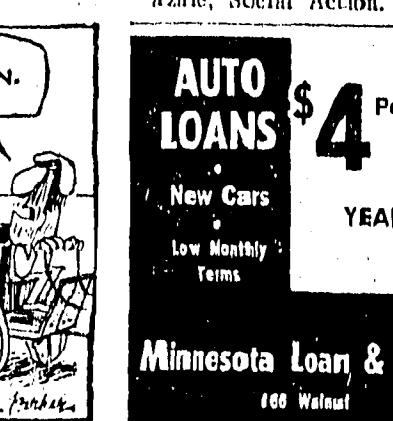

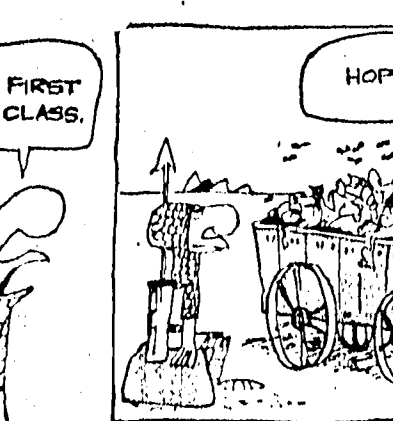

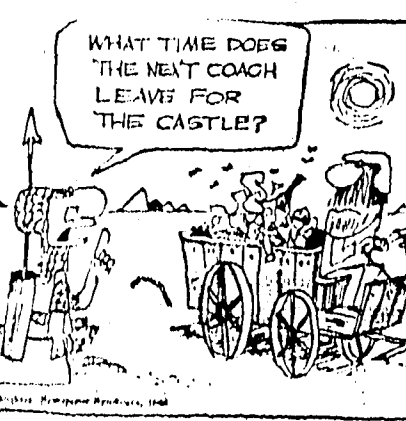

THE LIST continues with William H. Draper, Jr., board chairman, Pension Corp.; Joseph A. Grazier, president and chairman, American Radiator and Standard Sanitary; Harold J. Helm, chairman of the executive committee, Chemical Bank New York Trust; J. R. Kennedy, vice chairman, Celanese Corp.; John R. Kimberly, president, Kimberly-Clark; Robert J. McKim, board chairman, Associated Dry Goods. Also attending were Richard S. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee, First National City Bank of New York; Donald J. Russell, chairman, Southern Pacific; Henry B. Sargent, president, American & Foreign Power; Charles M. White, honorary chairman, Republic Steel, and J. R. White, vice president, Standard Oil of New Jersey.

All these men head companies which have vested interests in Mexico. The purpose of their gathering was to explore means of combatting the Mexican government's alleged "socialistic" trend.

U.S. Educators Worry Over Cheating Rise

By JENKIN LLOYD JONES

THE rise of cheating among our school and college students is worrying educators.

Schools that once proudly boasted of "honor systems" under which teachers wrote the exam questions on the blackboard and walked out of the room are now having second thoughts.

Doctor William P. Hoffman, director of the Cleveland secondary schools, recently said that at his recommendation schools in suburban Shaker Heights and Lakewood were abolishing the honor system and going to strict proctors.

"It takes the pressure off the student," one Cleveland educator remarked, and so it does. For there is nothing more unfair than a dishonorable honor system.

THE gay cheater knocks off splendid grades. Disgusted fellow students hesitate to report him because Americans have always been more tolerant of the horse thief than of the snitch.

A recent New York Times survey reported cribbing on the rise among New York City schools, "particularly among those near the top of their classes competing for college." And Brother Andrew, principal of Trinity Roman Catholic High School near Harrisburg, Pa., confirms that "the temptation to cheat is particularly prevalent among the better classes." Obviously, Brother Andrew is using "better" a little loosely.

EVERYBODY seems to agree as to the cause. It is the "pressure." Pressure to pass the College Boards, pressure to produce a transcript that will impress Ivy League admissions deans, pressure to keep grade points high enough to stave off the draft board. Some educational theorists have pleaded that grades be eliminated to relieve the pressure.

BUT THERE are no ways to assess the admissibility or promotability of a student than to examine the quality of his work and the depth of his knowledge. A test is a somewhat fallible but mechanically convenient measuring device. Since we can't put an electrode in each ear and take a brain-power reading we must keep some form of testing and grading. Otherwise, we will have to throw out all qualifications and try to lead through the jungle of calculus those who haven't yet mastered the multiplication table.

HONESTY is merely that degree to which the individual resists the temptation to be irresponsible or to take unfair advantage. Without temptation there is no morality. One would hardly compliment an oyster for staying sober. Caesar cynically remarked that "Every man has his price." Perhaps. Who wouldn't milk a cow through the fence if there were no other way to get food for a starving baby? But the price is all-important. The level of temptation required before a person does a devious or furtive thing is the measure of his character.

The pressure on a quarry laborer to steal some of the goods of his boss is far lower than that on a diamond-cutter. The change girl in a penny arcade is not under the same temptations as the teller in a bank. It has been said of juvenile delinquents that in general they can't stand frustration. What they covet they must have. The honest man is a guy who can take all kinds of frustration.

ADMITTEDLY, we adults haven't given the best example to our children. We need look no further than the recently announced national budget where a "cash surplus" was triumphantly forecast after prepaid taxes were added in as though they were a continuing asset and the debasement of the metal in our once-silver coins was treated as though it were a normal form of tax income. Had the U.S. budget been a financial report on a private business it would have never gotten past the Securities and Exchange Commission.

ARCHBISHOP Richard Whately said, "Honesty is the best policy, but he who acts on that principle is no honest man." True enough, for the completely moral man asks no reward. But if we are, indeed, raising a generation that regards cheating with tolerance and corner-cutting with amusement it will do no harm to remind ourselves of the possible penalties.

THE whole American business structure relies on a high degree of honesty. A credit system can stand only a limited amount of loss. If shoplifting goes beyond a certain point self-service stores will close. If we must go back to biting coins in order to test their genuineness the tempo of trade will crawl.

A prosperous America requires a pressure-resistant people. The solution is not to eliminate pressure upon our children but to build up their honor reflexes.

The cheater does more than rob his honest competitor. He can endanger us all. Who wants to be up in a plane with a pilot who cheated to get his instrument rating? Who wants a doctor who bought the state medical exam answers from a safe-cracker?

If our youngsters are talked to plainly, most of them will get the idea.

NASON ON EDUCATION

Daydreamer Needs Help

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.
University of Southern California

Dear Dr. Nason:
Teacher reports that our 9-year-old daydreams so constantly that he seldom has his work done on time. Even when it is completed, it is of such inferior quality that it is obvious he gave it very little attention.

How can we help him overcome this?
R.S., Costa Mesa, Calif.
Answer:
It would be easier to suggest a solution if the basic reasons for his daydreaming could be determined. He may be shutting out the world and making one where he is happy. This is usually a home problem. Or he may feel inadequate for the schoolwork demanded, or on the other hand, he may be bored. These are definitely school problems.

In any event, specific projects and assignments for which he must plan and put forth unusual effort are often effective in breaking the daydreaming habit. A creative writing assignment or a major part in a play, a special report to the class as a whole, are other suggestions.

Proceed slowly and with caution, since daydreaming resulting from lack of self-confidence cannot be cured by pushing.

Dear Dr. Nason:
What is the purpose of detention? I honestly can't see where it serves any purpose. Our local school gives out detentions for trivial reasons. It is as if they were trying to win some kind of a reward for giving out the most. Every day there are 20 to 50 students in the detention hall with one teacher on detention duty.

Mrs. T.H., Anonymous

Answer:
After-school detention is so far removed from, and so little related to the "crime," it often loses its disciplinary value. Punishment should be prompt so that it is associated with the offense.

However, sometimes detention can serve a useful purpose, as in the case of the third grade boy who was kept in at recess to reread a story. He had been a habitually careless reader.

Just this one experience had a lasting effect. From that day on he gave care and attention to reading assignments. In this case the punishment not only fitted the crime, it was corrective.

Dear Dr. Nason:
My neighbor's son is half-way through college and still has no goal. How should this young man go about remedying this sad situation?

G.L., Long Beach, Calif.
Answer:
Whether or not a person is goal-minded and a planner is a habit of thinking and an attitude toward life in general. This young man must make up his mind to start working toward something.

He may need the help of a job counselor from the college staff or elsewhere. Or, perhaps he needs only to make a decision to take charge of his life and start moving in some direction. The first goal chosen need not be adhered to for the rest of his life.

One third of college students change their majors during their four years of college. This does not mean that they should not have made the first choice. The educational gains made while working toward the first goal facilitate attainment of the ultimate goal.

Second U of W Campus Planned

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A second University of Wisconsin campus in Madison should be large enough for 20,000 to 25,000 students, says Wisconsin Chancellor Robben W. Fleming.

It would offer a four-year program, probably devoted to the arts and sciences, and should have the same admission standards that now apply to the main Madison campus, he said.

Fleming noted a faculty projection of a 40,000 student enrollment by 1971.

Minneapolis Lawyer's Wife Dead in Crash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The wife of a prominent Minneapolis lawyer — and mother of seven children — was killed in a Las Vegas, Nev., bus-car collision Friday, ending a vacation trip to Hawaii.

Mrs. Charles T. Hyvass, 40, was killed when a sightseeing bus bound for Hoover Dam collided with a car in which she was riding on the Las Vegas strip.

Hospitalized were her companions on the trip, Mrs. Si Weisman, 50, St. Louis Park, Minn., wife of Hyvass' law partner, and Mrs. Connie Siegal, wife of an Aberdeen, S.D., lawyer who is a member of the firm representing the Fischer triplets.

Also injured was the driver of the car, Mrs. Sylvia Gold, 53, Las Vegas, identified as Mrs. Weisman's sister.

Mrs. Siegal was listed in serious condition, the other two as fair.

No serious injuries were reported aboard the bus, which careened into a vacant lot after the crash, but remained upright, according to the Nevada Highway Patrol.

Friends said the lawyers and their wives had gone to Las Vegas for a convention of the International Assembly of Trial Lawyers and planned to vacation in Hawaii afterward.

Meanwhile, the highway fatality toll in Minnesota rose to 67, or 20 below the count a year ago today, with two deaths Friday night.

Virgil V. Hartman, 41, of rural Jordan was killed when his car plunged off Minn. 21, down a 75-foot embankment and into a pole near Jordan.

Harold O. Antonson, 61, Mankato, was killed when his car ran off U.S. 14 near Owatonna, sheared off a pole and rolled.

Mrs. Marvin Lunde, Mrs. Tracy Rice and Mrs. William Duffield are helping the students, with Donald Heinzeleman as assistant.

State Water Resources Group Named

ST. PAUL (AP) — Gov. Karl Rolvaag's office announced appointment Friday of a 19-member Water Resources Review Committee assigned to develop a statewide water conservation program.

Raymond A. Halk, Minneapolis, was named chairman. Halk is president of the Minnesota Isaak Walton League.

Others named to the committee were Conservation Commissioner Wayne Olson; Agriculture Commissioner Russell Schwandt; Dr. M. M. Hargraves of Rochester, chairman of the Water Pollution Control Commission; and Dr. Robert N. Barr, state health officer.

Also, William C. Walton, George E. Loughland and H. Alexander Dean, Minneapolis; Arlin Albrecht, Red Wing; Mrs. J. Homer Pierson, South St. Paul; Frank J. Murray, Edward J. Liston, St. Paul; Theodore O. Hagseth, Fergus Falls; Fran P. Befera, Duluth; Earl Enright, East Grand Forks; Daniel Burton, Mankato; Mrs. Dwayne Andreas, Excelsior; William J. Nee, Fridley, and Eugene A. Hickok, Wayzata.

Today we're going to take a first-hand look at the rugged parade watchers. That's right, I said parade-watchers.

Someone has coined a phrase that states, "People are funny." The people we allow are always other people.

The occasion of this thought is a festivity in a lively community of some 50,000 people. The affair itself has lasted five days. Saturday afternoon they have a parade. Cars line up 10 to 15 blocks away. People approach the parade route with chairs, stools and strong constitutions. Kids sit on the hard black top road or cement curbs. Parents jostle babes in arms and a man near me in a folding chair has fallen sound asleep while everybody waits.

SOME LAUGH, some scold, some chat, and others just sit staring in the direction of the anticipated spectacular. I mean folks gathered for this parade hours in advance and they have stayed with it. Many may be miserable, but they have stuck it out as if it were a matter of life or death.

Oh, wait a minute. Don't get the wrong idea. Don't let me suggest that these people, now numbering in the thousands, were funny. After all, I am one of them. But how about that peculiar lot who stayed home, enjoying a lemonade on this warmish October day, in a relaxed mood, and are relatively unconcerned about being where the action is. I'm not sure if their absence from these thronging hordes of parade enthusiasts is due to a quirk in their thinking, or if it is indifference to the "everybody's doing it" bit. Maybe it's a distaste for being shoved, pushed, and stomped on. Then there could be the attitude, "If you've seen one, you've seen them all."

BOY WE'VE been here a long time. The next time I may get as funny as those that stayed home, providing my memory of this long wait doesn't fail me. "Sit down, Tim, the parade is coming," a fellow behind me said. It really isn't coming yet, but Tim settled down a bit, thinking his Dad was on the level.

And me? Oh, I'm not to be numbered with these rugged, patient parade-watchers either. You see, I have gotten impatient so I laid hold on some scraps of paper and scratched out these reflections for what they're worth. Excuse me, I'll have to quit now. Here comes the parade. And to think I've only been here for an hour. Sure glad I brought my aluminum yard chair along. They say this thing is going to last about three hours.

HERE COMES the band. Somehow that long wait seems worthwhile after all.

Life is much the same as watching a parade. First we hear of an adventure, job, career or investment that promises to be intriguing and worth a great deal of effort to gain that adventure, job, career, or investment. Often there is a waiting period, and during that wait, some sacrifice is demanded. Instead of being able to earn money on some run-of-the-mill job and buying the things you want, you forego the pleasure of such independence to get a better education. Or, you put off buying a motor boat or a new car in order to invest more in your business which is small, but promising. The point is, the spectacular is at hand for those who are willing to hang tight to whatever good thing they anticipate.

Mondovi Scouts Receive Honors

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — Thirty boys and many parents attended a Boy Scout court of honor at Central Lutheran Church Thursday night.

Parents presented a set of luggage to Scoutmaster Dudek Miles and his wife.

The source said the announcement would be made before network television cameras and a group of Wallace supporters.

Minneapolis Elevator Strike Is Settled

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A settlement by arbitration was reached in Miami, Fla., in the strike of Elevator Constructors Union Local 9 against area elevator manufacturers, it was reported Thursday, clearing the way for the men to go back to work today.

Only about 120 men in the Twin Cities were involved, but about 1,200 construction workers on six big building projects honored their picket lines, which were withdrawn Wednesday.

Thousands of Decorations To Viet Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Decorations for valor in combat, which like casualties measure the scale of a war, are mounting in the Viet Nam conflict.

They now include one Medal of Honor — the nation's highest decoration — 53 Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force crosses; eight Distinguished Service Medals; 354 Legions of Merit and 443 Silver Stars.

Those of lesser order number in the thousands.

The Purple Heart decoration for wounds in battle has been issued about 7,500 times.

Here are decorations for the top five categories by service: ARMY — One Medal of Honor; 27 Distinguished Service Crosses; three Distinguished Service Medals; 278 Legions of Merit; 260 Silver Stars.

MARINES — Four crosses; two DSM's; 29 Legions of Merit; 70 Silver Stars.

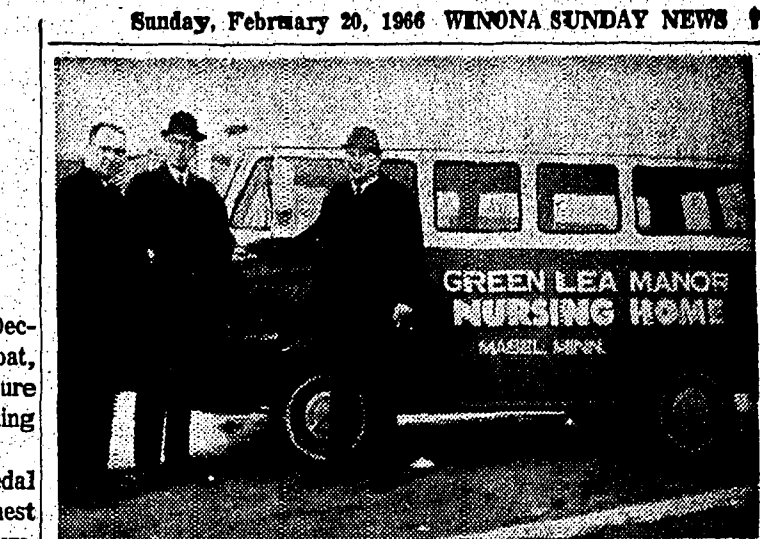

NAVY — Three crosses; 14 Legions of Merit; 12 Silver Stars.

AIR FORCE — 19 Crosses; three DSM's; 33 Legions of Merit; 101 Silver Stars.

The number of decorations does not reflect the relative fighting capability of the service, but is pegged in considerable measure to the number of men involved. Thus, out of 201,000 now deployed with Viet Nam, the Army has 128,000, the Marines 38,000, the Air Force 25,000, the Navy 9,700 and the Coast Guard 800.

Afloat in ships of the 7th Fleet off Viet Nam are another 70,000 Navy men, but only the pilots of carrier-launched planes come into direct action against the enemy.

In World War II there were 468 Medals of Honor; 4,972 Distinguished Service Crosses; 2,078 DSM's; 88,368 Silver Stars. The awards in Korea were 121 Medals of Honor, 731 Crosses, 233 DSM's, 12,206 Silver Stars.

Mabel Lions Donate Bus to Nursing Home

MABEL, Minn. (Special) — As one of its community service programs, Mabel Lions Club has purchased and donated a 10-passenger courtesy bus for Green Lea Manor Nursing Home.

It is to be used in transporting residents of the nursing home to town, taking wheelchair patients and others to the local clinics and for other purposes.

During summer months, residents will be taken on short trips in the country. Roland Torgerson, manor administrator, is the driver.

Mabel Lions Club was organized Dec. 15, 1944, with 26 members. Odell Lee Sr. was the first president. Current officers are: Knute V. Hagen, president; Glennis Wold, Norvel Tranaas and F. J. Shorter, vice presidents; Nansen Spande, secretary-treasurer; Roland Torgerson, tail twister; Kenneth Herzog, lion tamer, and Dr. Vernon A. Karl, Alvin Redwing, Donald Wendlandt and Paul Housker, directors.

Past projects include a slave auction to finance equipment for the clinic; a bandshell at Memorial Park; donations of $1,000 for lighting at the athletic field, $500 for high school band uniforms, and $3,500 for Green Lea Manor, and placing four litter containers on Mabel's Main Street. The club sponsors the athletic and Boy Scout banquets each year.

Canned peas (the small early variety) can be added to a chicken or turkey salad to extend it.

Arctic Springs Volume Hits $385,486 Total

GALESVILLE, Wis. (Special) — Arctic Springs Creamery Co. of Galesville, did a gross business of $385,486 in 1965.

The cooperative purchased 1,930,910 pounds of whole milk, grade A, and 8,352,406 Grade B in 1965, for a total of 10,283,316 pounds. John Dysart, director of public relations for the Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc., of which the Galesville Creamery is a member, gave the financial report.

PATRONS WERE overpaid $609.99, he reported. This loss, Dysart said, was due to many factors, the high cost of feed, and the rising prices of swine and beef. However, he said, the financial report is in line with reports over the most part of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. Dividend checks for 1965 were paid.

No butter is churned at the Galesville Creamery. Milk is sold to the Whitehall Drying plant.

Dysart, who was guest speaker, said the farmer's problem today is to dispose profitably of his products. The past 10 years, Dysart said, Land O'Lakes has done the most business in its 45-year history. Another year it may be expected to do more than 300 million dollars of business.

Butter sales at Land O'Lakes have increased every year, he told.

EARL HANSON, Viroqua, ADA representative, presented a film, showing how ADA advertises farm products in magazines, over radio and television, and on billboards. Every state in the union, Hanson said, participates in the ADA program.

Verl Hansen, manager of the milk drying plant at Whitehall, told of a new continuous churn. With it three men can produce 3,500 pounds of butter per hour. Three hundred quarters per minute may be printed, wrapped and put in packages, untouched by hand.

He displayed the sacks used for sending powdered milk to foreign countries by the federal government. The sacks are printed in several different languages, and have the words, "Given by the People of the United States." Hansen explained the sacks have an inner lining sewn so tightly they are dust and vermin proof. But, alas, Hansen said, the powdered milk is but skim milk. Experiments are being made now by which vitamins may be added to the milk, making it more nutritious.

JOHN TAYLOR, Whitehall, state inspector, urged the people present to take a tour through the drying plant at Whitehall, to inform themselves as to the methods in use there. He discussed the state's close check on bacteria count and warned the farmers to keep their milking machines clean and in good order.

Re-elected directors were Norman Hess, Arvid Evenson and Lloyd Mahlum. Other directors are John Dicken, president; Norman Hess, vice president; Mrs. Howard Quinn, secretary-treasurer, and David Mahlum, George Trimm, Lewis Lebakken, Herman Dopp, and Ralph Emmons.

A. E. Pickering is local manager, assisted by Bernard Lebakken.

SPRING GROVE CLASS — The last of 10 evening school meetings in the vocational agriculture classroom at Spring Grove High School will be Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. It will be a corn clinic, giving the latest developments in chemical weed and insect control. A chemical company representative will assist. No evening school will be held this week Monday.

Buffalo County Atlas Cover Winner Named

ALMA, Wis. (Special) — The Buffalo County deputy county clerk, Mrs. David Ebert, won the $25 prize offered by Title Atlas Co., Minneapolis, in a contest for the best cover for an atlas that soon will be published here.

Mrs. Ebert was presented her check by Matt Smigelski, field manager, at a dinner at Alma Hotel Wednesday night. Among the guests were the judges, Melvin Lorch, Town of Cross; Christ Castleberg, Nelson; Ole Thompson, Modena, and Eldon Risch, Alma.

Mrs. Ebert's design consists of an outline of Wisconsin, with a buffalo in the center, and Buffalo County blocked off in its location.

Dale Gustafson said this would be the company's first atlas dedicated to the county for which it is published. There were about 30 entries in the contest.

In addition to maps the atlas will include county, church and town histories and a variety of pictures. The last county atlas was published in 1932.

Bids Opened On Wisconsin Highway Job

MADISON, Wis. — Bids on road projects in four counties in Western Wisconsin were among $6.6 million in bids opened on 35 projects in 24 counties by the Wisconsin Highway Commission Thursday.

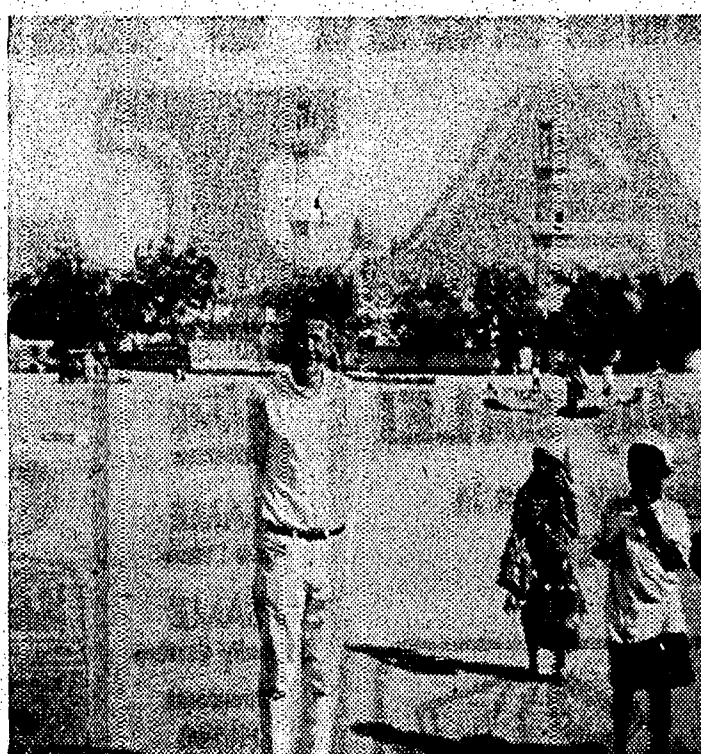

Apparent low bidder on base course and aggregates for resurfacing of Highway 88 between Czechville and Cream in Buffalo County was Clarence Weiss, La Crosse, at $27,170. Mathy Construction Co., La Crosse, was apparent low bidder at $303,172 on grading, base course, bituminous paving and structure on U.S. 10 and Highway 27 in Trempealeau County, involving 10th Street in Osseo easterly to the county line and No. 10 to the north county line.

Rein, Schultz & Dahl, Madison, was apparent low bidder at $174,910 on bituminous paving of Highway 54 between Irving and Black River Falls, Jackson County.

In La Crosse County, Kluck Construction Co., Stevens Point, was low at $846,506 on the Highway 16 overpass at Onalaska, grading and base course; Mathy, low at $598,631 on bituminous paving of Highway 16 between La Crosse and Sparta; L. G. Arnold, Inc., Eau Claire, low at $124,282 on highway structures on I-90, including a Burlington overpass on 16, La Crosse-Tornah road, and E. Sperling & Sons, Iron Ridge, was low at $4,904 on well drilling in safety areas on I-90.

The Views of A Teacher It's Not the Same in Nigeria

IN NIGERIA . . . Bud Paape, Peace Corps, is shown on a visit to Kano in northern Nigeria.

"Darkest Africa isn't dark at all. It's bright and alive, beautiful and colorful, fresh and green and fragrant. But they tell me this is the cool season, the rainy season, and they tell me it will get hot and a lot of the green will turn to brown. Yet I could tell them that it will not snow, that I will not have to start a stubborn car in 20-below weather . . . though I think it's best to save such optimism for later on . . ."

These were some of the initial impressions of a former Winona man when he arrived in Africa last fall to begin a tour of duty as a Peace Corps volunteer assigned to teach school in a community in Nigeria.

BUD PAAPE, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Paape, 602 E. Broadway, has written of his observations during the several months he has been an algebra instructor at the Emekuku Community Secondary and Technical School in the Eastern Region of Nigeria. A 1958 graduate of Cotter High School—where he was cited as "Student of the Year"—Paape was graduated from St. Mary's College here in 1962 after majoring in mathematics and history.

He spent the following summer at the University of Idaho studying drama and in the fall of 1962 became a member of the faculty of Hill High School, St. Paul, as an instructor in mathematics and history. At Hill, Paape, who had been active in dramatics at St. Mary's and participated in joint dramatic productions with the College of Saint Teresa, helped organize a new drama group for high school students.

At the end of the 1964-65 school year he enlisted in the Peace Corps, received training at Kalamazoo, Mich., and then was assigned to teaching duties in Nigeria.

ONE OF THE first problems to be met when he arrived in Nigeria, he says, was that of language.

"During training we were given an overdose of Igbo, the language of Eastern Nigeria," he writes. "However, there is a difference between classroom learning and learning by experience. One is afraid, at first, to use those words which don't seem to pass out of the mouth without a little struggle.

"But, after a bit of hesitation, one gets around to trying out the strange way of speaking. The native Igbo laughs. He appreciates your attempt. He makes believe he understands. He really doesn't know what you're saying at all."

"They told us during training, however, that our assignment in Nigeria was comparatively easy in that most of the people speak English. They were only halfway right. The Nigerians DO speak a form of English but it is their second language (and, aware of how hard it was for me to learn Igbo, I respect the Nigerian speakers of English very much); yet one must remember that they learned this language from the British. (Ever have trouble understanding some of those late movies?)

"SO WHAT it finally boils down to is that the Nigerians have a combination English-Nigerian accent which, to the American ear, is almost an entirely new language.

Problems of Nigerian-English are soon overcome by my talking very slowly, and their listening very intently. But my communications difficulties are compounded in that I am temporarily living with a group of Irish missionaries.

"Now these Irishmen are not the type of Irishmen who assume a brogue every St. Patrick's Day; they are real, shamrock-bloated Irishmen, and they really do talk like the stereotyped New York policeman . . . only much faster and using many more colloquialisms. The Irish missionaries are nearly as hard to understand as the Nigerians, especially since their conversation is often about the 'old sod' or about the 'seminary in Kilkenny.'"

"Yet, the problems of communications do not stop there. Since my house is not ready, I have been living at the mission but I have been taking all of my meals with my principal and his wife. My principal is Texan and though a Southern drawl has its drawbacks, it is the least of my worries. My principal's wife comes from Switzerland and speaks very little English. As a result, most of the dinner conversation is in rapid, fluent German.

"SO, SURROUNDED by Nigerian-English, Irish-English, British-English, German-English, Igbo, German and even a little Gallic, it isn't hard for me to realize that I am in a foreign country. Maybe it isn't as bad as all that. I CAN go to the market for bananas and be understood, and I can at least make a token comment at dinner.

"But, all in all, I guess it is this 'inability to communicate' that makes a trip to a foreign country really an experience and more than just a trip to the movies or an afternoon with the National Geographic. It does tend to bring out the 'idiot' in a person, for, since I arrived in West Africa, I've learned to nod and smile a lot."

TEACHING in a Nigerian school, Paape writes, "is a refreshing change from teaching in an American school."

He explains it this way: "The Nigerian education system, though it has its petty annoyances and political red tape, is very energetic, cognizant of the big job that needs to be done if it is to keep up with the needs of a rapidly growing country. I say that the Nigerian way of doing things is refreshing in that it is different; it lets the American teacher step back and take a good look at his own system . . . and from four thousand miles away, one can get a pretty good view."

"Nigerian secondary school students go to high school for approximately five years, then take a test for their 'diploma' and then go on to high school for about two years more before entering the university."

"THEIR SCHOOL year is divided into three terms of 13 weeks each, starting in late January and ending in early December. They take a wide variety of subjects in a curriculum which tends to be more advanced and more varied than the curriculum in an American high school. And, to add to the difficulty, all of the classes are taught in English which, to the Nigerian student, is a second language. American students study a foreign language only incidentally, while in Nigeria this 'foreign language' is the basis for all other courses.

"But before we throw too many rocks at American kids, it must be pointed out that in Nigeria, only the very gifted, only the above average, go on to secondary school. So, therefore, you can see that the curriculum can be speeded up and advanced, according to American standards."

"Yet, it should be remembered that in America it is the aim to give all a high school education. Consequently, some American courses must be 'watered down' to meet the needs and abilities of some students."

"THE MOST distinctive characteristic of the Nigerian school system, however, is the WASC—the West African School Certificate Examination. This is an exam given to all of the high school students at the end of their fifth year in high school. Those who pass are given a West African School Certificate—similar to our diploma—and those who fail, though they have spent the five years in school, have very little to show for their efforts."

"As you can imagine, there is much anxiety and worry as a student approaches the exam, for a lot of time and money has been spent in preparation. In most areas, a student can 'sit' for the exam more than once, so all is not lost on one throw of the dice."

"But one can see the obvious mental strain on a boy or girl and, in all logic, an American would object that one test is not a true, indisputable barometer of a student's knowledge."

"YET, some good can be said for the WASC. In Nigeria, where there is a lot of diversification among the people, and this diversification is reflected in the different types of secondary schools, the WASC is a means whereby the Ministry of Education can maintain the high standards of secondary education."

"When an American teaches in a Nigerian school he learns more than he teaches, I surmise. He learns that the American child is very lucky for the American student can buy pens and notebooks at the local street corner; he has public libraries and school buses at his disposal and he has access to a television set which shows him the world about him, so he knows—and realizes that the world is a bigger place than just his home town. And an American teacher begins to wonder if, with all the advantages there are back in the States, we are really giving the students that much better an education than here in Nigeria."

LBJ Will Ask New Teeth in Desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will ask Congress to put new teeth into federal laws aimed at desegregating public schools, it was learned today.

He will ask also for about 100 new FBI agents to cope with that agency's swelling civil rights caseload, informed sources said.

A bill being drafted by the Johnson administration would give the attorney general greater authority to initiate court action toward desegregation of schools instead of awaiting complaints and taking part in suits brought by Negroes.

The proposal would be aimed at blocking intimidation of Negroes seeking to integrate schools and harassment of Negro pupils attending previously all-white schools, according to informants.

The President is expected to include school desegregation proposals in a civil rights package that will include proposed laws to eliminate discrimination in jury selection; extend federal court protection to Negroes and civil rights workers in the South, and eliminate discrimination in the sale or rental of housing.

Johnson included all but the school proposals in his Jan. 12 State of the Union Message. The bills reportedly are nearing completion in the hands of Justice Department draftsmen.

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights reported Tuesday that nearly 12 years after the Supreme Court ruled that segregated schools are unconstitutional, only one of every 13 Negro children in the South is attending school with white pupils.

The commission said fear, intimidation by whites, racial ties and habits have combined in the South to circumvent desegregation plans and federal laws aimed at withholding federal aid from school districts where segregation continues.

Austin Boy Brings Dynamite to School

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — A boy won a 50-cent bet, but he had to explain to school authorities why he happened to have a stick of dynamite in his locker.

The 16-year-old, whose name was not disclosed, was bragging to his chums how much he knew about explosives. That prompted a friend to bet him half a dollar he wouldn't bring the dynamite to school.

The boy showed off the stick, which he'd gotten from his uncle's farm. Police said the dynamite fortunately did not have a fuse on it. They confiscated it.

Ash Wednesday Services To Begin Lenten Season

Ash Wednesday marks the start of the Lenten season.

Many Protestant churches in Winona have scheduled special services. The local Catholic churches will distribute ashes to their parishioners during the daily Masses and the evening devotions.

Faith Lutheran Church will hold a Communion service on Ash Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The meditation will be "The Marks of Christian Fellowship"; prelude, "O Man, Bewail Thy Grievous Sin"; offertory, "Ah, Holy Jesus"; postlude, "In Quietness and Confidence," all by Bach. Mrs. Robert Treiman is organist.

Goodview Trinity Evangelical Lutheran will conduct a Lenten service Ash Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. "In the Upper Chamber" will be the sermon. Central Methodist will have an Ash Wednesday service at 7:30 p.m. Central Lutheran will conduct an Ash Wednesday Communion service at 7:30 p.m.

"Our Perfect Redeemer; Perfect in His Submission" will be the title of the Lenten sermon at St. Matthew's Lutheran Ash Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The senior choir, directed by G. P. Schaepekaam, will sing "On My Heart Imprint Thine Image." A coffee hour, sponsored by the Lutheran Girl Pioneers, will follow the service.

Evangelical United Brethren will have an Ash Wednesday service at 7:30 p.m. The sermon will be "Accompanying the Man of Sorrow." First Congregational will hold a Lenten supper service at 6 p.m. on Ash Wednesday.

McKinley Methodist will conduct an Ash Wednesday Communion service at 7:30 p.m. St. Paul's Episcopal will have four Ash Wednesday services: Holy Communion, 7:30 a.m.; Holy Communion, 10:15 a.m.; Penitential Office, 5:30 p.m.; and Holy Communion, 8 p.m. Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran will have an Ash Wednesday service at 7:30 p.m.

Spring Grove Dinner Observes Birthday of Scouting Movement

SPRING GROVE, Minn. (Special) — Boy Scout Troop 55, parents and leaders observed the birthday of Scouting Monday night with a potluck supper and court of honor at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Scoutmaster Harold Wright led a dedication ceremony. Skills were given by patrols. Merit badges and advancements were distributed. Wright recognized adult Scouters and introduced Gerald Johnson, assistant Scoutmaster.

The 1966 charter was presented to Olaf Torvick, institutional representative. Membership cards were distributed. Wright reported and read the final speech of Lord Baden-Powell.

Eleven Scouts attended church in a group Sunday. John Dooley, Charles Sylling and Larry Overhaug received the Pro Deo et Patria badge.

eran and St. Martin's Lutheran churches will conduct their first Lenten services on Thursday evening. Redeemer's will be held at 8 and St. Martin's at 7:30.

All CATHOLIC churches will distribute ashes during their Ash Wednesday services.

St. Casimir's will distribute ashes before the 7:55 a.m. Mass. Stations of the Cross will be at 7:30 p.m. St. Stanislaus will conduct a 7:30 p.m. Mass on Ash Wednesday in addition to the regular schedule of Masses. Ashes will be distributed after all the Masses on that day.

Cathedral of the Sacred Heart will distribute ashes on Ash Wednesday after all of the Masses. Stations of the Cross will be at 7:30 p.m. Beginning Monday and continuing through Lent, the time of the weekday Masses will be changed to 7 and 8 a.m. and 12:10 and 5:15 p.m. The regular schedule of Masses will be held on Sundays.

St. Mary's will hold Masses on Ash Wednesday at 6:45, 7:15 and 8 a.m. and the Stations of the Cross and benediction at 7:30 p.m. Ashes will be distributed after each Mass and in the evening after Masses. Through-out Lent, Masses will be held daily at 6:45, 7:15 and 8 a.m. Stations and benediction will be held Wednesday evenings at 7:30 and Friday afternoons at 2:45.

St. John's will conduct the blessing and distribution of ashes on Ash Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., followed by the celebration of the Mass.

Huskies Top State 81-72

ST. CLOUD, Minn. — There is only one conclusion you can draw from the last eight-day span: St. Cloud is about 11 or 12 points better than Winona State.

And that is nothing to be ashamed of for the Statesmen for St. Cloud wrapped up the Northern Intercollegiate basketball title Saturday night with an 81-72 triumph.

It was the eighth time in nine years the Huskies have either won outright or shared the NIC title and Saturday night they had to scrap for all they were worth to do it.

It was nearly a carbon copy of the first game between the two teams just a week ago Saturday. In that one Winona hung with the bigger and stronger Huskies until the waning minutes.

And it was again to be the case at St. Cloud's Hallenback Hall.

A St. Cloud flurry in the final minute of the first half gave the host squad a 44-38 advantage at the intermission. In the second half Winona charged back and came within three points at one juncture.

But then the immense size and rebounding strength of the Huskies began to tell and for the second straight week Winona's upset aspirations faded.

St. Cloud, which had wrapped up a share of the NIC title Friday night with a 76-62 triumph over Moorhead, got 20 points each from 6-8 Izzy Schmiesing and Terry Porter. John Daggett added 13.

Dave Meisner continued his late season scoring quest for Winona, now 7-14 for the season, with 25 points. The effort brought the 5-8 guard within 22 points of the coveted 1,000-point mark.

Tim Anderson added 14, Mike Jeresek 12 and Gary Petersen 11 for the Warrior cause.

EXTEND STRING TO FOUR STRAIGHT

Redmen Bite Bulldogs

St. Mary's kept its late-season MIAC spurt intact by roaring past University of Minnesota-Duluth 80-67 before a crowd of 1,700 at Terrace Heights Saturday night.

The Redmen breezed past the Bulldogs behind a shooting attack that blistered the nets at a 54 percent clip for the game. And the troop from Terrace Heights shot 63 percent from the field the second half.

WITH THE victory, St. Mary's pushed its overall record to 12-11 and evened its conference mark at 7-7. The Redmen Monday host Augsburg in an 8 o'clock contest.

Duluth did lead briefly at the outset of the contest, but once St. Mary's began to sprint, the Bulldogs were strictly out of it.

St. Mary's trailed 7-5 when Jim Buffo hit a free throw and George Hoder followed with two straight jumpers. Roger Pytlewski got the next three and Tom Keenan the next four as the Redmen ballooned their gap to 17-7 with 11:51 to play in the half.

AND IT stayed that way for the remainder of the first 20-minute segment, St. Mary's leading 39-30 at intermission.

In the second half, the Redmen opened a 12-point lead and then saw Duluth spring back to trail 74-67 with 1:24 left. But St. Mary's calmly got the next six and walked off with the victory.

St. Mary's showed a balanced scoring attack with Hoder leading the way with 21 points. Sausser shot in 17, Buffo 16 and Keenan 14.

For Duluth, Jeff Ellenson, the freshman from Eau Claire, Wis., pumped home 17, Jim Gornick and Greg Thone 13 each and Bob Carey 11.

THE LOSS shifted Duluth's record to 5-15 for the year and 2-11 in the conference. It also avenged an earlier setback suffered by St. Mary's in the northland.

BUT MICHIGAN WINS THE WAR 128-94

Schellhase Wins Battle

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Defending champion Michigan established a single game Big Ten basketball scoring record Saturday as it overwhelmed Purdue 128-94, but the loser also re-wrote the record book.

The old conference record was a 122-point performance by Indiana against Ohio State in 1959.

Purdue's Dave Schellhase chalked up 57 points to erase the old Big Ten individual scoring record of 46 achieved twice by Indiana's Jimmery Rayl. The Wolverines, holding a 61-46 halftime lead, came roaring out of the locker room to build up a 21-point lead, 69-48, in the first three minutes of the second half.

Big Ten scoring leader Cazzie Russell paced the Wolverines with 28 points, but forward John Clawson provided the spark for the high-scoring second half with 17 points in the period. He fouled out with 8:45 remaining in the game and with a game total of 27.

The deadeye Wolverines, who shot at a 54.2 per cent clip from the field, sank 52 field goals to set another conference record, and the two-team total of 222 points tied the Big Ten record made last Saturday when Michigan trounced Wisconsin 120-102.

Pauling Decides Iowa Win

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Denny Pauling dropped in six key points in the final 90 seconds Saturday as Iowa won a Big Ten road game for the first time this season by shading Ohio State 86-80.

The Hawkeyes, boosting their league record to 5-4 and their over-all mark to 13-6, held a 64-52 advantage with 12 minutes left.

With leading scorer George Peoples on the bench with four personal fouls, Iowa went into a stalling game and did not hit a basket for almost 7 1/2 minutes.

During that span the Buckeyes, sparked by Al Peters, forged into a 66-66 tie with 5:30 remaining.

The visitors never gave up the lead although Ohio State trailed 76-75 with 2:06 left.

That's when Pauling registered two baskets and two free throws to preserve Iowa's victory.

Ohio now 3-6 in the conference and 9-10 for the season, bolted out to an early 12-3 lead but Iowa reeled off 12 straight points to go ahead 15-12. The Hawks led by eight three times in the first half before a late rush by the Bucks closed the gap and Iowa was ahead at intermission 45-42.

Peters and Bob Dove shared scoring honors with 23 points each. Peoples topped Iowa with 21 before fouling out with 4:30 to go.

Bowsher Is Favored in 250-Mile Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As the man with the fastest car and record qualifying time, Jack Bowsher of Springfield, Ohio, is the strong favorite in the Automobile Racing Club of America's third annual 250-mile championship stock car race today.

Reserves Spark Badgers' Upset

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin Coach John Erickson labeled forward Joe Franklin "a holy terror" but credited two reserves with major roles in the Badgers' 78-77 upset victory over Michigan State Saturday.

Paul Morenz and Dave Roberts were tagged by Erickson as providing the punch that belted the Spartans.

"We couldn't have won without Morenz and Roberts and I must give them major credit," Erickson said.

Roberts, a senior forward, came off the bench to score 16 points. He also was a bull on defense, guarding Michigan State's 6 foot 7 center, Matthew Alth.

Morenz, a senior guard who has played clutch roles for the Badgers before, scored 14 points and several times came up with baskets when Wisconsin's fortunes were sagging.

Erickson lauded the play of Michigan State center Stan Washington, who took game scoring honors with 22 points.

"I've never seen Stan Washington play harder than he did today," Erickson said. His Michigan State colleague agreed.

"Washington played a fantastic game despite feeling ill because of a fever," said John Bennington.

Bennington praised Wisconsin's performance but summarized the game in one sentence: "They scored the clutch free throws in the last minutes while we were fouling them."

Wisconsin made 18 of 19 free throws.

Both teams hit well from the floor. Wisconsin scored at a 51.7 clip on 30 baskets in 58 attempts. Michigan State scored 30 baskets in 59 tries for a .509 percentage.

The Spartans held an edge in rebounds, 35 to 30.

The Badgers, now 3-6 in the conference, tied it with free throws in the remaining minute after protecting a 44-41 halftime lead.

The score was 70-75 with 14 seconds left when Ken Gustafson sank two free throws that put the Badgers out of reach. Stan Washington hit a jump shot with four seconds to go for the Spartans to narrow the gap to a single point, but the clock ran out with Wisconsin in possession of the ball.

The Spartans are now 6-3 in the Big Ten.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Substitute Jim Cummins stole the ball for a tie-breaking layup and then dropped two free throws to give Northwestern an 83-82 victory over Indiana Saturday.

The Wildcats broke a tie with the Hoosiers in the big ten basketball standings, climbing to 4-5 and dropping Indiana to 3-6.

Indiana, led by Vern Payne with 31 points, outshot the Wildcats from the field, but Northwestern won on 21 of 26 free throws to Indiana's 6 of 11.

Jim Burns led the Wildcats with 26 points.

Tommies Get First Title Since 1923

MOORHEAD, Minn. (AP) — St. Thomas clinched its first Minnesota Intercollegiate Conference basketball championship since 1923 here Saturday with a 73-67 victory over Concordia.

The victory saw the Tommies' 14th straight league win and gave them a 21-3 season record. But they had some tense moments when Concordia tied it up at 49 with 10 minutes to play. St. Thomas led 42-30 at halftime.

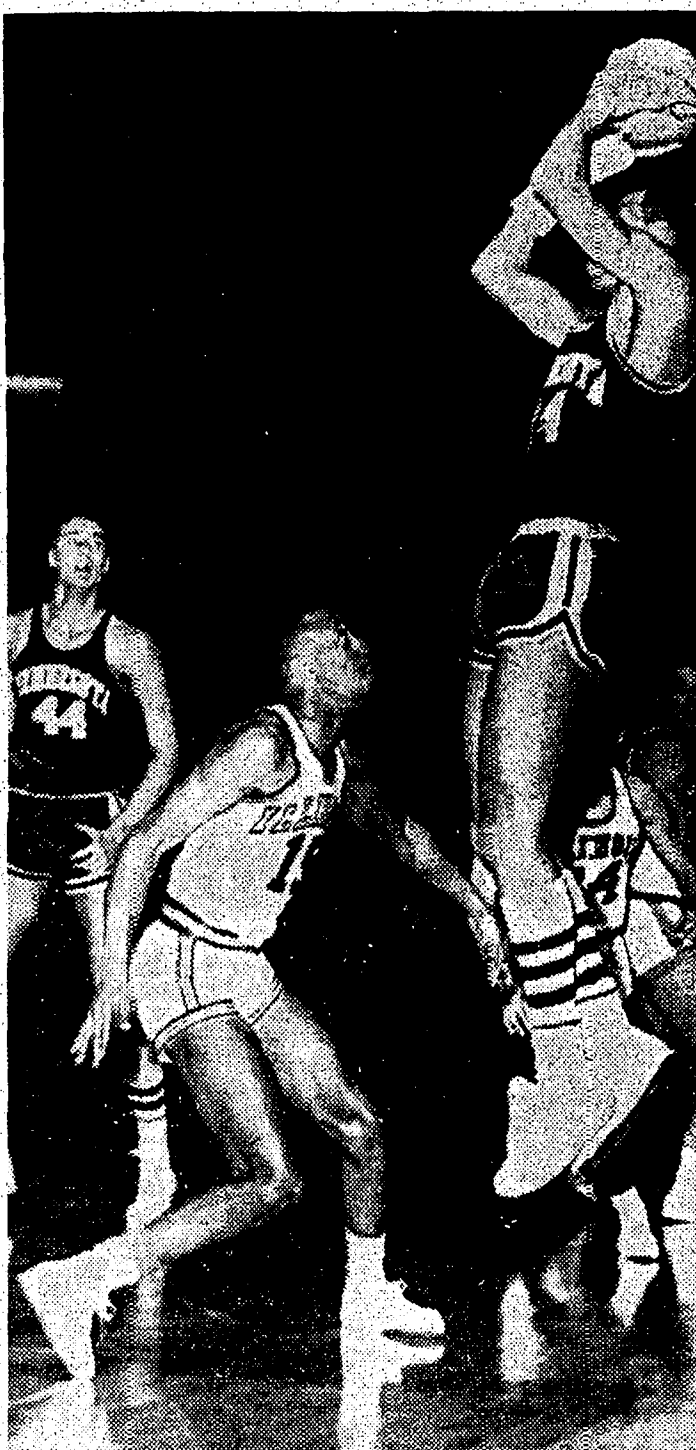

Concordia center Bob Laney led all scorers with 22 points, and teammates Jim Lindberg and Bob Moe collared 15 and 10.

A balanced St. Thomas squad was led by 19-point efforts from Fred Korba and Mark Miller. Wayne Pier and Dan Hansard plunked 12 apiece, and Wayne Pier counted 10.

Concordia, now 6-7 in the MIAC.

Steve Miller collected 20 points and Dave Odgaard 17 for the winners. Eric Paavilainen got 16 points, and Frank Sahlmann 14 for Tech, now 0-8 in the NIC.

Gophers Drop From Picture In Big Ten

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Don Freeman pumped in a career high of 37 points in pacing Illinois to a 100-89 victory over Minnesota Saturday and kept the Illini's Big Ten basketball title chances alive.

The Illini, rallying from an early deficit, easily recorded their sixth victory against three defeats in conference play.

The defeat removed Minnesota which had been tied with Illinois for third place, from contention with a 5-4 mark.

Freeman, held scoreless in the first nine minutes, wound up with 14 field goals and nine free throws as he topped his previous varsity single game high of 35 points.

Freeman's free-wheeling play seemed to inspire the Illini who erased a 17-10 deficit after the first six minutes and with four minutes left charged to a 94-71 lead.

All five Illini starters scored in double figures, with Jim Dawson collecting 19 points, Rich Jones 18 Ron Dunlap 15 and Bob Brown 11.

Minnesota led by Archie Clark's 26 points, was outdistanced under the Illini boards.

Illinois led 50-44 at halftime, and hit the 100 mark with about two minutes to go.

A bright spot for the Gophers was sophomore center Tom Kondia, who hit 22 points—his highest of the season. Lou Hudson and Paul Presthus each counted 13 more for Minnesota.

Illinois, which goes to Minnesota next Saturday, now trails first-place Michigan by two games with five Big Ten contests left.

Hawk Matmen In Third Place

KASSON, Minn. — Rochester swept to an expected victory in the District Three wrestling meet, here, Saturday night, but Red Wing pulled out a surprisingly second, nosing out Winona.

Rochester piled up 133 points, advancing nine of its 12 wrestlers including seven class champions, but Red Wing, on the strength of four consolation champions, edged Winona for the runnerup spot 65-55.

Kasson-Mantorville, the de-lending district champion, had 41 points, Pine Island 34, Stewartville 32, Plainview 29, Lake City 28, Dover-Eyota 21, St. Charles 16 and Dodge Center 3.

But it wasn't really a day for defending champions. Last year's defending 95-pound champion Rick Wellner of Rochester, was upset by Red Wing's Jerry Berning in the 103-pound finals, while defending 120-pound champion Mark Hoehn of Kasson-Mantorville was knocked off by eventual champion John Vandervall of Plainview in the semifinals. Vandervall went on to pin Jim Dotzler of Winona in the finals.

Red Wing advanced eight to the Region One tournament at Rochester next week, while Winona moved five up to the tournament.

The only Winona champion was 138 - pounder Tom Hadfield at 138 with an 8-4 decision over Stew Dormady of Stewartville.

Dick Henderson lost a 4-2 decision to No. 1 seeded Gust Barbes of Rochester at 145, and Chuck Lueck dropped a 2-1 decision to Red Wing's Dave Snesrud at 175.

Duke: 'Won't Hurt One Bit'

By BOB JUNGHIANS
Sunday News Sports Writer

WABASHA, Minn. — "We were just laying in the weeds all season waiting for this one," chuckled Duke Loretz, coach of the Wabasha St. Felix Yellowjackets.

Loretz was looking back at a rousing finish to a rough season for St. Felix, a usual powerhouse in Region Six Catholic basketball circles and the Bi-State Conference.

But going into the season finale Friday night, the Yellowjackets had a 4-15 season record, had seen their skein of Bi-State victories and conference titles broken and were faced with the prospect of meeting the undefeated Bi-State champion Onalaska Luther in the final game.

"I just told the kids to go out there and throw it up and if it went in all right, and if it didn't that was all right too," said Loretz.

And the St. Felix cagers took Loretz at his word and charged to an upset 66-65 victory over Luther, ending the Knights 16-game winning streak.

"We played an awfully good game on the boards," said Loretz of his team's 52-rebound effort. Terry Strool, a six-footer, hauled down 21 caroms and also scored the winning basket with two seconds left, while John Arens, only 5-9, got 15 rebounds.

"He's my center," quipped Loretz of Arens. "Actually he's built for wear. He's one of those kids that's really nice to coach. For him the most important thing is to get a rebound."

Loretz has been using four other cagers in the starting lineup. They are John Bill, 5-8, Jeff Yaeger, 5-9, Bill Johnson, 5-9, and Bob Kasper, 5-10. Yaeger, Johnson and Kasper usually alternate in the starting spots.

This will be the starting lineup that will represent St. Felix in the Region Six Catholic basketball tournament which begins Wednesday at St. Mary's. And the Yellowjackets will go into the game with considerably more optimism after Friday

Arkansas	6	4

No. 1 ranked Alma unleashed its mighty offense once again Friday night, smashing Taylor 109-51 as the West Central Conference wrapped up another season.

Fairchild tumbled Gilmanton 89-42, and Arkansas turned back Pepin 65-44 in other contests.

TAYLOR 51
For the fourth time this season Alma cracked the century barrier in squashing Taylor 109-51 Friday night.

The Rivermen, who have averaged 64 points in winning 17 straight games this year, put six men in double figures, paced by John Stroh with 27 and Dick Ebersold with 25.

Alma held quarter leads of 23-8, 49-21 and 78-33.

Following Stroh and Ebersold were Brian Kreibich with 14, Don Ristow with 13, Mike Moham with 12 and Rick Stiehl with 10.

Maynard Kral hit 22 to lead Taylor.

Alma also won the B game 63-35.

GILMANTON 42
Gilmanton scored nearly as many points Friday night as it has in its last two games, but it was far from enough as the Panthers tumbled to powerful Fairchild 89-42.

Hit by an icy shooting streak, Gilmanton scored only 48 points in its last two games.

Alma Center, which had lost four of its last five, broke loose from the doldrums Friday night and surprised Osseo 74-55, and with Alma Center's help, Whitehall moved into second place all alone in the Dairyland Conference with a 77-45 rout of Independence.

Eleva-Strum won its 13th conference game and ninth straight since Christmas with a 87-32 conquest of Augusta, while Blair took over fifth place with a 75-60 victory over Cochrane-Fountain City.

ALMA CENTER 74
OSSEO 55
Alma Center outshot Osseo 28-9 from the free throw line and that was what it needed to defeat the Chieftains 74-55 Friday night.

Lincoln trailed 16-8 at the end of the first quarter, but then the tide turned and the Hornets took a 32-24 halftime lead and continued to add to it.

Gene Janke poured in 30 points, including 16 free throws, to pave the way. Dale Cummings added 16 and John Bates 13.

BLAIR 75
COCHRANE-FC 60
Blair broke open a close

game with a 26-point fourth quarter that carried the Cardinals to a 75-60 victory over Cochrane-Fountain City Friday night.

Lee Tranberg and Dean Dale each hit 25 points in the victory, while Tom Holven tossed in 12.

For C-FC, Hal Chedester had 22 and Dennis Tacke 19.

AUGUSTA 32
Augusta suffered its poorest offensive night of the year and the Beavers did it against the best of the Dairyland Conference has to offer, Eleva-Strum, losing an 87-32 avalanche.

Roger Tollefson led the way with 22 points, while Tim Bae and Jim Skogstad had 14 each. Vince Brian added 11.

For Augusta, eight points each from Ron Stanek and Dick Osborn was the best the Beavers could muster.

INDEPENDENCE 45
Gaining strength with every outing, hot-shooting Whitehall blazed past Independence 77-45 Friday night to take over second place in the conference.

With Keith Johnson hitting 25 points, Whitehall outscored the Indians in every quarter, holding quarter leads of 24-12, 39-21 and 51-31.

Behind Johnson came Bruce Ausderau and John Everson with 14 each and Barry Johnson with 12.

Frank Hotchkiss hit 16 and Bob Edmundson 13 for Independence.

Friday night the Panthers trailed 19-10 at the end of the first quarter and 49-17 at the half as the game was put out of reach.

Dennis Blang hit 26 for Fairchild, while Randy Julien hit 20 and Mike Laffe 18. Ron Hovey had 13 and Al Winsand 11 for Gilmanton.

Fairchild also won the B game 56-21.

PEPIN 44
Reverting to its usually balanced attack, Arkansas tumbled Pepin 65-44 Friday night.

Four Travelers hit double figures as they jumped to a 15-9 first quarter lead and after having it shaved to 31-26 at the half, broke it open by outscoring Pepin 12-6 in the third quarter.

Dennis Hutter hit 17 to lead the way. Jeff Hoffman had 12, Bruce Martin 11 and Dave Dreier 10.

For Pepin, Charlie Anderson potted 15 and John Lawson added 13.

Arkansas won the B game 55-32.

Alma Center, which had lost four of its last five, broke loose from the doldrums Friday night and surprised Osseo 74-55, and with Alma Center's help, Whitehall moved into second place all alone in the Dairyland Conference with a 77-45 rout of Independence.

Eleva-Strum won its 13th conference game and ninth straight since Christmas with a 87-32 conquest of Augusta, while Blair took over fifth place with a 75-60 victory over Cochrane-Fountain City.

ALMA CENTER 74
OSSEO 55
Alma Center outshot Osseo 28-9 from the free throw line and that was what it needed to defeat the Chieftains 74-55 Friday night.

Lincoln trailed 16-8 at the end of the first quarter, but then the tide turned and the Hornets took a 32-24 halftime lead and continued to add to it.

Gene Janke poured in 30 points, including 16 free throws, to pave the way. Dale Cummings added 16 and John Bates 13.

BLAIR 75
COCHRANE-FC 60
Blair broke open a close

game with a 26-point fourth quarter that carried the Cardinals to a 75-60 victory over Cochrane-Fountain City Friday night.

Lee Tranberg and Dean Dale each hit 25 points in the victory, while Tom Holven tossed in 12.

For C-FC, Hal Chedester had 22 and Dennis Tacke 19.

AUGUSTA 32
Augusta suffered its poorest offensive night of the year and the Beavers did it against the best of the Dairyland Conference has to offer, Eleva-Strum, losing an 87-32 avalanche.

Roger Tollefson led the way with 22 points, while Tim Bae and Jim Skogstad had 14 each. Vince Brian added 11.

For Augusta, eight points each from Ron Stanek and Dick Osborn was the best the Beavers could muster.

INDEPENDENCE 45
Gaining strength with every outing, hot-shooting Whitehall blazed past Independence 77-45 Friday night to take over second place in the conference.

With Keith Johnson hitting 25 points, Whitehall outscored the Indians in every quarter, holding quarter leads of 24-12, 39-21 and 51-31.

Behind Johnson came Bruce Ausderau and John Everson with 14 each and Barry Johnson with 12.

Frank Hotchkiss hit 16 and Bob Edmundson 13 for Independence.

3 Golden Eagles Caught in Area Fox Traps

2 to Be Freed, Third Faces Life in Zoo

By LEFTY HYMES
Sunday News Outdoor Writer
THREE hungry Golden Eagles soaring southward in search of food became victims of steel fox traps over the past weekend. An adult fully matured one with a great wingspread, was locked in a trap set near a carcass of a dead dog by William Mastenbrook, Minnesota City, hopeful of catching a valuable red fox.

The other two, both juvenile or immature birds, fell victims of traps baited with dead chickens in a valley near Cream, east of Alma, Wis., where Levi Boettcher of Cream also sought red fox.

In both cases the eagles, fully protected by federal and state laws, were turned over to game wardens and Wildlife Refuge personnel. One had a broken leg that probably will have to be amputated, resulting in it being confined in a zoo for the rest of its life. The other two were caught by their talons and are being cared for in the Foster Kennels here until their feet are healed and then will be released to go their way.

GOLDEN Eagles are extremely rare in this area. In winter they occasionally are observed in the areas back from the river in narrow ravines or wooded draws which are inhabited by rabbits or other small game. A full-grown Golden Eagle can lift up to eight pounds in its talons. The golden, unlike the Bald Eagle, feeds on meat. The Bald prefers fish and inhabits areas immediate to the river. This section is one of the wintering regions for the Bald Eagle. There are in winter normally quite a flock of Balds on Lake Pepin.

In his book "Birds of Minne-

GOLDEN Eagles, America's majestic bird of prey, driven southward by the extremely cold winter and probably lack of available food in its more northern range, moved into this wintering range of the Bald Eagle recently.

How extensively it is difficult to determine, but over the last weekend, three of the great hungry birds became victims of traps set for fox, but lived to be turned over to personnel of the Wildlife Refuge.

This series of pictures were made here in Winona where the eagles are confined for feeding and treatment at the Bart Foster kennels.

The adult Golden Eagle (1) simple doesn't like the presence of people. It shows its feeling in its battle-ready pose. It is all gold except for the white tail feathers, and a slight graying head, indicating its a rather old bird.

The wingspread of this eagle (2) is revealed as nearly eight feet when fully extended. Bart Foster of the Wildlife Refuge staff, who is holding the bird has a way with the big birds. Note the hand hold he has on the bird.

The other two Golden (3), victims of the steel traps, are nursing sore talons. When their feet have recovered they will be turned back into the wild blue yonder.

Foster and Bill Bair (4), new biologist assigned sota," the late Dr. Thomas Roberts declares that the Golden Eagle was a winter visitor to Minnesota. Most reports, he recorded, were from Southeastern Minnesota, especially in the Root River area. A doctor who listed at Lanesboro in the 1880s listed the golden as not rare in winter.

ALL THREE birds are eating well in captivity, Bart Foster reported today. He is feeding them meat scraps and a rabbit or two contributed by hunters. Nothing is left of the rabbits but skin when the eagles finish.

Each of the birds held here has been banded with Fish and Wildlife Service bands. Not many eagles are so honored since few golden are taken alive and no organized banding effort is carried on among the big birds.

Trappers coming in contact with eagles, Foster warns, should use extreme caution in removing them from traps since they are dangerous birds that can impose serious wounds with their beaks or talons.

All eagles found in traps alive or dead should be reported to a game warden or to the office of the Upper Mississippi River Wildlife and Fish Refuge here.

Dead birds are sent to the service laboratory for examination for cause of death and tested for pesticides in their bodies. Wing studies also are made.

Tail and wing feathers are sent after this investigation to the tribes to make head-to the Trempealeau Refuge replacing Mike Neilson, retired, are placing a band on the leg of one of the birds. It is a Wildlife and Fish Service band, and will be registered in the service office in Washington.

Arms full of eagles (5) Foster has just come forth from the kennels with all three birds. Despite their calm looks, they are dangerous. A bite from the beak or a tear from the talons can be a serious cut. Bart handles them barehanded.

Voice of the Outdoors

River Problems
The Mississippi and its problems from a law enforcement and improvement viewpoint were discussed in a day-long meeting of federal and state representatives at a powwow in La Crosse Thursday, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin had their top men there, including chief game wardens and Army engineers and federal wildlife and fisheries service were represented. Don Gray, manager of the wildlife refuge, headed the Winona delegation.

More uniform regulations for the river between the states covering fishing and hunting, litterbugging, boating and general law enforcement came up for discussion. A better understanding of present aims was discussed.

No concrete action was taken since there was no authority for any action. None of the delegations could pledge their units officially since they had no authority to do it, but co-operative efforts were agreed upon.

One of these understandings was on litterbugs on the sandbars. The group agreed jointly to clean up the areas and see that the public keeps these recreation areas usable. An effort will also be made to clarify conflicting regulations and laws between the states.

"The meeting," Gray said, "established better acquaintance between the men along the river, clarified objectives, and washed away a lot of misunderstanding. I think it was a very worthwhile affair."

Fishing Conditions
With the present stage of the river nearly four feet above winter pool level, the water in the backwaters and sloughs still remains cloudy, if not dirty, from the high water, which, of course, is not favorable for ice fishing. At Spring Lake, Buffalo City, Wis., fishing was slow and poor. There were only half a dozen fishermen on the ice Friday. Only a few of the fishing shacks, taken off when the ice started to move out, have been put back. March 1 is the deadline for fishing houses on the ice.

A few hardy boat fishermen have been out below the dams. At the Winona Dam there is a regular out every day, who fishes from a boat. He got his limit Thursday and Friday of nice walleyes. All the gates are still up there and the flow Friday was 49,000 cubic feet per second, which means a powerful current.

night's victory than they would have otherwise.

"It's sure not going to hurt us for the tournament," said Loretz. "This might be just what he really needed. I've been telling the kids a little more self confidence wouldn't hurt and maybe this gave it to them."

St. Felix meets Caledonia Loreto in the second game of the first night of action at 8:45 p.m. In two previous meetings, the teams split so the game has to be rated a toss-up. In the first game of the tournament, Rochester Lourdes meets Cotter at 7:15 p.m.

Rochester is regarded as the tournament favorite with perennial champion Cotter having one of its rare off seasons, but Loretz says, "If I was going to worry about anyone, I think it would still be Cotter."

KENNEY

Walsh got four points for Winona on a drive and two free throws, and the Hawks were up 29-18. They settled for a 33-24 halftime lead.

In the third period, Rochester again was reeling after Addington clicked on a jumper from the baseline and Walsh ran in two free throws for a 43-29 edge at 3:24.

BUT THE Rockets battled it down to 47-37 at the break and closed it to 59-53 on a drive by Brad Haper at 1:47.

But by that time it was over, the final points serving only as a bargaining point should the two teams meet in the District Three tournament finals.

A rather dejected Rocket coach Kerwin Engelhart wasn't pleased with his team's first three quarters. "We didn't do much," he said flatly. "But when we loosened up in the fourth quarter, we played the way we have been."

For Winona, Hazelton was the leader with 18 points, Walsh scored 14, Addington 13 and Plachecki 12 as the Hawks won it from the free throw line.

OUTSCORED by six goals, Winona committed but seven fouls. The Hawks, however, capitalized on 23 Rocket personal to run up a 22-5 edge from the line.

Greg Munson led Rochester with 18 points. Rick Dowron had 15 and Joel Schwanke 12.

Stout Is Crowned Champion
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Stout is king.
The Blue Devils celebrated their coronation as 1966 champion of the Wisconsin State University Conference basketball race by punching past Platteville 71-61 Friday night.
The victory ran Stout's record to 14-1 with a two-game lead over Oshkosh with only one game yet to play.
Oshkosh, meanwhile, clinched at least a tie for second place by swamping Superior 106-72.
Third-place La Crosse, the defending champion that outdistanced runner-up Stout for the title last year, was knocked off 88-80 by Stevens Point, a sleeping giant that has now won four of its last five games and has been the only team to stop Stout.
Eau Claire buried Whitewater deeper in the cellar 73-60 in the other WSUC game Friday.
Stout, displaying the balanced attack and clutch play that has fueled its championship drive all season, wiped out a 41-39 Platteville halftime lead to win easily.
Jim Conley hit 19 points and Willie White 16 to pace Stout. Free throws were the margin of victory as Stout sank exactly 10 more than did Platteville and committed only eight fouls.

Bigger They Are Harder They Fall, In Judo, That Is

By VI BENICKE

Sunday News Women's Writer

"THE bigger they are the harder they fall," says Miss Patricia (Pat) Walter, Hobart, Ind., a student at Winona State College, who teaches self-defense judo at the Young Men's Christian Association. Yes, that's right . . . a class for girls at the boys Y.

John Domonkos, a Winona State College judo enthusiast, is her assistant. He is called the "fall guy."

The sport of judo, called the gentle art, is taught by John. Pat teaches jujitsu, the Japanese art of self defense without weapons. John and Pat are trying to incorporate both.

"THE TRICK of judo is in using the attacker's weight and balance against himself. As soon as the attacker starts trying to throw his weight around, he is off balance, only he doesn't know it until he lands," agree Pat and John.

The 10-week course was at first offered only to high school girls, but it was opened to college girls who showed interest. The response was so great on the first night of instruction that it was decided to hold classes twice weekly. They are held Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 8 to 9 in the community room. Both classes are full; 16 girls in each.

Thirty-two "femme fatales" get thrills of accomplishment when they manage to throw John to the floor, since he stands 5-foot 10 and weighs 165. His weight is more of a challenge than Pat's 5-foot 2 and 110 pounds.

Basic principles of self defense are taught. At the beginning of each session, the girls greet each other by bowing. They then pair up for practice. First thing they are taught is balance. Next they are taught how to move in for a throw and the art of falling. They also learn how to ward off would-be attackers.

A GI, JAPANESE name for the judo uniform, is worn by John and Pat. Different colored belts signify degree of skill. Enrollees wear slacks and sweat shirts. All are stocking footed.

During practice sessions all jewelry, watches and glasses are removed. John received an expensive reminder of this procedure. He broke a watch he had forgotten to take off.

Pat acquired her knowledge of judo at the Gary (Ind.) YMCA and John, Midway YM, St. Paul.

It will be a sorry day for any so-called "tough guys" who attempt any unwanted act of aggression toward these 32 members of the fairer sex.

BACK NECK CHOKE . . . Tulia Gomez is in the process of breaking a back neck choke. She is holding John by his little fingers and pulling his hands away from her. At the same time, she is kicking her foot in a backward motion into his knee, which would ward off a would-be attacker.

INSTRUCTORS . . . Patricia (Pat) Walter is 5-foot 2 and weighs 110. John Domonkos stands 5-foot 10 and weighs in at 165. Both are Winona State College students. They are wearing gis, Japanese judo uniforms, made of heavy white cotton. Colors of the belts signify degrees of skill. Colored belts with white stripes are worn by women judo enthusiasts.

PRACTICING HOLDS . . . Several pairs of girls are practicing different holds: Straight arm bar, front choke, back choke, O-Goshi (major hip throw) and Taitoshi (body drop). They also are practicing the art of falling, which includes side falls, back falls and roll outs. (Sunday News photos)

FRONT NECK CHOKE . . . Tulia Gomez has just broken a front neck choke that had been attempted by John. She broke the hold by clasping her hands together and pushing her arms and hands in an upward motion against his outstretched arms.

PAYING RESPECT . . . At the beginning of each class, Pat and John and the students pay respect to one another by getting on their hands and knees in the dojo (gym) and bowing to each other. This is how a formal greeting is performed in Japan.

BODY DROP . . . Pat has just thrown Renee Gruler in what is known as the Taitoshi, body drop. Pat accomplished this by pulling on Renee's elbow and pushing on her shoulder, causing Renee to lose her balance. Pat then extended her foot, tripping Renee.

man, and Steve Holmay, who plays the foreman. Seated is Bill Hermes, who plays Howard, an eastern teen-ager who is sent to the ranch to spend the summer by his father. The opera will be presented Monday evening in the school auditorium and is open to the public. Curtain time is 8 p.m. (Sunday News photo)

Directing 'King and I'

Busy Man John E. Marzocco Involved In Dramatic Events at St. Teresa

"Busy Man" at the College of Saint Teresa these days is John E. Marzocco, director of "The King and I," opening March 3 in the college theater. Marzocco, an associate professor and chairman of the college speech and drama department, finds time to teach his classes, confer with his staff for the coming NDEA Summer Institute which he is directing and to plan the events of the Winona Summer Theater as well as direct the coming production. "The King and I," for the director is, in a way, an anniversary.

"This is my tenth musical at the college," said Marzocco. "It has been satisfying to see the interest in musicals by the student body and our Winona public grow over the years. Each musical presents its own challenges and problems and each cast offers to a director new incentives; this one is no exception."

The director pointed out that "The King and I" has a complete absence of three of the stock items of the old-fashioned musical comedies. It has no villain, no planted "comic character," no songs as separate entities that could singly be heard as advantageously on a juke box as in the context of the show.

Mr. Marzocco continued, "The old-fashioned villain could be dispensed with because all the characters are human beings, that is, less than completely heroic, and come into dramatic conflict with each other for reasons unrelated to their being 'good' or 'bad.' In this musical, no comedian, as such, is necessary, because the play's situation itself is sharply true, therefore amusing."

Exchange Club Will Present Malaysia Film

A rare color film of the newest nation in the Far East, Malaysia, will be narrated by Bathie Stuart, a native of New Zealand, in the fifth in a series of travel films, sponsored by the Winona Exchange Club, at the Winona Senior High School Auditorium Saturday at 8:04 p.m.

Malaysia, a melting pot of many Asian races, units Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah, which is North Borneo. This country leads in the production of tin and natural rubber.

Miss Stuart will describe and show scenes through fertile valleys and exotic markets and through dense tropical jungles to see once-fierce head-hunters, villages, cities, arts and crafts.

uation itself is sharply true, therefore amusing."

ALSO, he pointed out, that while the Rodgers and Hammerstein songs are integrated into the action, several are so tuneful that, whether intended or not, they did reach the Hit Parade and the juke boxes.

"Rapport with the cast, the crews, his technical staff and his infinite patience in perfecting the details of each part of a production, account for the professional character of the Teresian productions under Marzocco's direction," claims a staff member.

All seats are reserved for "The King and I" playing March 3-8 at 8 p.m. in the College Theater.

Blair Legion Auxiliary Hosts County Meeting

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Six of the seven units of the Trempealeau County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary were represented at the Wednesday meeting hosted by the local unit at Blair First Lutheran Church.

Auxiliaries present were from Osseo, Whitehall, Independence, Galesville, Ettrick and Blair. Presiding officer was Mrs. Sheldon Cantlon, Ettrick. Mrs. Victor Folkedahl, also of Ettrick, is secretary-treasurer.

The council voted $10 to the USO and 2 toward the expense of a teacher to be sent to Valley Forge next summer for training for "Americanism." Mrs. Melvin Gunderson, Ettrick, sunshine chairman, gave her report.

Lunch was served by the Mmes. James and Milton Fredrickson, Alf Peterson, Leonard Gunderson, Everett Hanson, Albert Helstad, Arthur Galstad and Harris Hanson.

Officers of the Blair Auxiliary are: Mrs. Jerome Mattison, president; Mrs. Marie Bersing, secretary, and Miss Arlene Dahl, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Prissel

Durand Couple Wed at Holy Rosary Church

DURAND, Wis.—Miss Darlene Smith and Ronald Prissel were married Feb. 5 at the Holy Rosary Church, Lima Township.

The Rev. Charles Wolf officiated.

PARENTS of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Prissel, all of Durand.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of angel-mist tulle and lace, with long sleeves and a detachable court train, falling from the shoulders. Her illusion veil was held by a crown of pearl arches. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Miss Betty Gumbert was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Smith, sister of the bride, and Miss Brenda Prissel, sister of the groom.

They wore floor-length red velvet gowns.

Flower girl was the bride's sister, Sharon Smith, who wore a dress like the bride's. Ring bearer was Mike Prissel.

Allen Bauer was best man and groomsmen were Larry Prissel, brother of the groom, and Stanley Smith, brother of the bride.

A dinner reception was held in the church parlors.

The couple will live in rural Durand, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Osseo Hospital Auxiliary Holds Special Meeting

OSSEO, Wis. (Special) — Mrs. Melvin Krienke, president, called a special meeting of the Auxiliary to the Osseo Municipal Hospital and Nursing Home, and several important decisions were made.

Because the auxiliary meets only four times a year, authority was granted to the board of directors to act on business matters between meetings. The group approved three fund-raising projects for the spring season: A bakeless bake sale, a games party after Easter and the selling of tickets for the auction sponsored by the Osseo businessmen in April.

Mrs. Charles Rongstad, RN, listed items needed at the hospital and home. It was suggested that $1,500 for linens for the addition to the Nursing Home be a project for the auxiliary.

Active auxiliary members have given 6,500 hours of volunteer service during the last year. Certificates were presented to 20 women, each of whom had contributed 100 or more hours.

It was announced that 100 puppets had been given to hospitalized children and 50 bibs to new-born babies.

Kellogg Scouts Hold Hootennany

KELLOGG, Minn. (Special)—Members of the Kellogg Junior Girl Scout Troop participated in a hootennany at their Valentine party at the American Legion Hall Monday evening. The girls were attired in granny-fashioned dresses.

A rehearsal for the future Girl Scout Thinking Day followed. Ice Cream and cake were served.

The annual Girl Scout cookie sale is under way. Scouts are making a house-to-house canvass through Monday. Cookie sale chairmen are Mrs. William McDonough and Mrs. Warren Graner.

Kellogg adult troop leaders, the Mmes. Oryln Ranvik, Harris Wilson, Victor Holland and Richard Hartert, attended the River Trails Scout District Art and Craft Exhibition, Tuesday at the Methodist Church, Rochester.

Kellogg GAR Circle Installs

KELLOGG, Minn. (Special)—Women of the Grand Army of the Republic, Circle 57, installed their 1966 officers Feb. 12 at the home of Mrs. Clemen Heins.

Mrs. Paul Schouweiler was installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Charles Wehrenberg, conductor, and Mrs. Clemen Heins, musician.

Installed were: Mrs. Braton Collier, president; Mrs. Edward Huth, senior vice president; Mrs. Earl Timmsen, junior vice president; Mrs. Paul Schouweiler, secretary; Mrs. Gilmore Olson, treasurer; Mrs. Lester Graner, chaplain;

Mrs. Richard Hartert, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Raymond Slawson, registrar; Mrs. Charles Wehrenberg, conductor; Mrs. Cecil Weir, assistant conductor; Mrs. Lucille Maahs, guard; Mrs. William McDonough, assistant guard; Mrs. Victor Holland, historian; Mrs. Raymond Slawson, relief committee, and Mrs. Clemen Heins, musician.

Mrs. Lucy Schurhammer, Kellogg, Grand Army of the Republic department historian, will be a delegate to the state convention in Minneapolis in June. Mrs. Roy Bakewell is alternate. Circle members voted to give $5 to the Heart Fund.

Cards were played. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Earl Timmsen, high; Mrs. Paul Schouweiler, low; Mrs. Victor Holland, nine bid; Mrs. Lester Graner, special prize and hostess, and Mrs. Heins, a special prize.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Heins. The home, as well as the serving table, was decorated for the Valentine season.

Ballet Series Being Given By College of St. Teresa

"The Many Facets of Ballet," a series of ten television programs, will be presented by the College of Saint Teresa, dance and drama department, fine arts division. The programs will be seen every Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. over Channel 2 from March 1 through May 3.

Miss Eileen Whalen, associate professor in the College speech and drama department, will coordinate the series and serve as script consultant.

Television instructor of "The Many Facets of Ballet" will be Bernard J. E. Johansen, a member of the college faculty, department of dance, speech and drama.

Johansen is director of the Rochester School of Ballet and the Rochester Ballet Company. He has studied at the Andahazy School of Classical Ballet in Minneapolis and St. Paul and was an instructor at the Andahazy School for three years.

Among his teachers have been Frederick Franklin, Edward Caton, Martha Graham, Yurek Lazowski and Anthony Tudor.

Johansen has danced leads with the Andahazy Ballet Borealis, St. Paul; the Yurek Lazowski Folk Ballet in New York and in Professional Summer Stock in Michigan.

Assisting Johansen in his illustrations will be dance students at the College of Saint Teresa and members of the Rochester Ballet.

FIVE televised programs will be given in March. Scheduled are: March 1, "Introduction to Ballet," a lecture covering a history of the ballet; the beginning of dance, the formalization of ballet and its "golden periods" in history up to the 20th century. Dance excerpts will be presented from "Les Sylphides," Chopin; "Mazurka," from "Copelia," Delibes and "The Unsquare Dance," Brubeck.

Demonstration and explanation of the exercises performed at the barre to show their use in the correct body development of the dancer will be given March 8.

The March 15 program will demonstrate and explain center work as the logical step in the development of the dancer after barre work.

Pointe will be illustrated and discussed in the March 22 program.

Character dance, the formalization of the folk dance for the stage and its incorporation in the training of a ballet dancer or the stage is the topic of the March 29 lecture.

APRIL'S programs: April 5 — classical ballet with the presentation of excerpts from "Les Sylphides," and "The Nutcracker Suite," Tchaikovsky; April 12 — character ballet, selections from "Polovtsian Dances" from "Prince Igor," Borodin and others.

The April 19 and 26 lectures will deal with contemporary ballet with selections from modern composers ranging from musical comedy, television through electronic music.

The final program May 3 will be on modern ballet, a 20th century story ballet, using music from Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring."

Altar Society Hears Mrs. Rupp On Trip Abroad

CALEDONIA, Minn. (Special) — Mrs. Victor Rupp showed color slides and talked on the trip she and Mr. Rupp took abroad last fall at the Feb. 10 meeting of Holy Family Altar Society of St. John the Baptist Catholic Church.

The society met in the St. Mary Clubrooms, with the new president, Mrs. Lloyd Jennings, presiding.

Mrs. Rupp's presentation included pictures taken on an African Safari, at African missions, in the Holy Land and in Rome, Italy.

Members made plans for the St. Patrick's Day dinner to be held at the St. Mary Auditorium March 13, starting at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Thaddeus Derezinski spoke briefly and announced that the Forty Hours will be held March 4-6.

Announcement was made that St. Anne's Circle will entertain residents at the Caledonia Nursing Home March 2 and that Mrs. Lloyd Becker and Mrs. E. A. Quay will lead the Rosary before the Masses during the month of March.

St. Margaret's Circle was in charge of entertainment and lunch.

Staff members in addition to Johansen and Miss Whalen, for "The Many Facets of Ballet" include Robert Larka, production supervisor; Judi Larka, visuals; Dorothy Ackerman, costumes, and Nancy Johansen, pianist.

Choreography for all dances in "The Many Facets of Ballet" except "Les Sylphides" and "Prince Igor" have been created by Johansen.

John Diersens Observe 60th Wedding Year

CALEDONIA, Minn. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. John Diersen observed their 60th wedding anniversary Feb. 13 at an open house in St. John's Lutheran Church parlors.

During the afternoon program, the Rev. Robert Kent gave devotions. The Rev. Paul Monhart, Tomah, Wis., was guest speaker. "This is Your Life" was pantomimed by their grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Four student relatives from the Luther Seminary, Thiensville, Wis., Marcus Diersen, Lyle Sontag, Carl Otto and John Schroeder, sang songs. Guests attended from Nebraska, Milwaukee and Tomah, Wis., Houston, Brownsville and Rochester, Minn., and the surrounding community.

Mr. Diersen is 85 and Mrs. Diersen 83. Both enjoy good health and attend church services regularly. They are interested in gardening and farming. Mr. Diersen and the former Lisette Kruse were married Feb. 15, 1906, at Zion Lutheran Church, Eitzen. Prior to moving to Caledonia, they made their home on a farm five

K. M. Urbergs Feted at Party

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — The Rev. and Mrs. K. M. Urberg, whose birthdays are in February, were honored in the church parlors Tuesday evening by the Blair First Lutheran Church Women.

Mrs. Clifford Dale, president of the Church Women, was mistress of ceremonies at a program which included musical selections and readings. Devotions were by Arthur Galstad. Mrs. Amos Holte cut and served the three-tier birthday cake.

Mrs. Urberg was presented a flowering plant. The couple received money, cards and gifts.

More than 100 attended, including a number from the Fagernes and North Beaver Creek churches.

Their other two sons are Paul and Carl. Mrs. Merrill (Esther) Krueger is their daughter. All are of Caledonia. There are eight grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Richard Puent, Eljean Hagen Exchange Vows

OSSEO, Wis. (Special) — Miss Eljean E. Hagen, Madison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Hagen, Osseo, and Richard E. Puent, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Puent, Madison, were married Saturday at St. Mary of the Lake Catholic Church, West Port, Wis.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward Auker performed the ceremony. Mrs. Ronald Hagen was soloist.

Miss Margaret Hagen, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Gerald Riddle, Madison, bridesmaid. Linda Hagen, Eau Claire, was flower girl.

Ronald Adler, Madison, was best man and Ronald Hagen, Osseo, groomsmen. Ushers were Robert Hagen, Eau Claire, and Gerald Riddle, Madison.

THE BRIDE wore a regal, floor-length gown of nylon sheer over taffeta. The snug bodice was styled with a scoop neckline and long sleeves. Re-embroidered lace accented the bodice and hemline of the dome-shaped skirt and the double court train. She wore a double bow headpiece with a bouffant veil of silk illusion. Her cascade bouquet was of yellow orchids and feathered white chrysanthemums accented with ivy.

Her attendants wore floor-length mint green linen gowns with bateau necklines and cap sleeves and embroidered trim at the hemlines of the sheath skirts. They wore matching headpieces and carried cascade bouquets of green-fringed carnations and white-feathered carnations.

Distinguished Guest Honored by Osseo Chapter 265, OES

OSSEO, Wis. (Special) — Osseo Chapter 265, Order of the Eastern Star, entertained Jeanne Johnson, grand lecturer and past grand matron of the Grand Chapter of Eastern Star of Wisconsin, at its annual review at the Masonic Temple.

WORTHY Matron Bernice Seiler and guests of honor, Joanne Johnson and Alice Foss, were presented with corsages at the banquet which preceded the meeting. The banquet was prepared by the church women and served in the dining room of the United Church of Christ. Tables were decorated with tall yellow candles and flowers. A large gold star, centering with a Bible and sheaf of wheat, was placed on the main table to honor Jeanne Johnson. Decorations were made by Grace Nelson and Betty Foss.

Worthy Matron Seiler and Worthy Patron Milo Johnson welcomed and introduced Mrs. Johnson. Other guests welcomed were Arvelia Eland, Grand Representative of Nova Scotia in Wisconsin; Carol Wolover, Grand Representative of Oklahoma in Wisconsin; and Clara Walters and Alice Foss, district deputies of the Grand Chapter OES.

Worthy matrons, worthy patrons, and members of the following chapters also attended: Arcadia, Augusta, Altoona, Blair, Black River Falls, Durand, Fairchild, La Crosse, Mondovi, Galesville, Superior and Trempealeau.

Card Party Tonight At St. Mary's Replaces Dinner

An innovation this year, instead of the traditional anniversary parish dinner at St. Mary's Catholic Church, is a public card party this evening in the church basement.

Bridge, schafskopf and 500 will be played, starting at 7:30 p.m. Special prizes will be awarded for highest score in each game, in addition to prizes at each table. Coffee and dessert will be served.

The social gathering is expected to be attended by about 200 parishioners and guests. "Anyone interested in a social evening of cards is welcome to attend," said Mrs. John Januschka, general chairman. She added that guests need not come as couples or foursomes, but that these will be arranged at the party.

Assisting Mrs. Januschka on committees are: Mrs. L. J. Dietzman and Mrs. Robert Briggs, tickets; Mrs. R. J. Rodney, publicity; Mrs. Dan Cram, tables; Mrs. Daniel Schultz, clean-up; Mrs. Richard Will, prizes, and Mrs. Robert Shoup, lunch.

Senior Citizens View Stained Glass Windows at Church

Senior Citizens Friendship Four and Golden Years Clubs were guests Friday afternoon of Central Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service. The party was held in the Guildhall.

The 50 men and women attending were taken into the sanctuary to view the new stained glass windows. Mrs. R. H. Watkins, who was chairman of the party, explained the meaning of the windows, which depict the life of Christ.

A highlight of the program was a picture travelogue, given by Dr. Melvin Wedul, head of the education department at Winona State College. He showed slides and talked on the European trip he and his family took through Norway, Germany, Luxembourg, Denmark, Sweden, Belgium and Holland.

John Gage, who is 93 years of age, won the prize for being the eldest person present and Mrs. H. S. Erdmanczyk won a prize for having the most grandchildren — 25.

Dessert and coffee were served at tables decorated with runners of artificial flowers.

Assisting Mrs. Watkins were the Mes. R. H. Mourning, R. B. Price, P. Earl Schwab, M. H. Doner, Ray Gorsuch and Thomas Goetz.

Senior Citizens at St. Joseph's Hospital Feted

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — The Senior Citizens who make their home at St. Joseph's Hospital here, were feted at a valentine party Feb. 13. The party was given by the recently organized Hospital Guild.

Oscar Maier and Mrs. Pauline Klonecki were chosen as king and queen of the festivities. Their royal attendants were Frank Skroch and Mrs. Mary Knutson. Miss Ruth Kania, guild president, placed crowns of hearts on the king and queen, then presented Mrs. Klonecki with a long-stemmed red rose and Mr. Maier with a carnation boutonniere. Everyone joined in a grand march. Several of the elderly folks demonstrated that they still enjoy good waltz music. After a valentine exchange, lunch was served.

Music was furnished by the high school combo band under the direction of Gerald Gleason. Mary and Kristy Kampa, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Everett Kampa, sang several selections.

Since hospital employees organized the guild in November, they have been active in various projects. Proceeds from a holiday bazaar were used to purchase a piano, bulletin board, yarn, embroidery material and other craft and art work in which interest was demonstrated. A sewing machine has been donated by Mrs. Josephine Crampton.

The Sisters who staff the hospital have furnished a room where weekly meetings are held. Some of the guild members are present at each meeting to offer assistance and encouragement on projects in which the residents are interested. The guild plans to make the holiday bazaar its big annual event and is presently working on rugs, afghans, pillows and other things.

Guild members feel this is a worthwhile and rewarding project and appreciate the interest which many in the community have shown. The senior citizens enjoy the challenge of learning new things. New ideas are always welcome," a guild member said.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Rush to Build Up Inventories

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen have been building up their inventories at the fastest clip since the Korean War days of 1951. And this helps give a rosier glow to the economy in general.

It also raises some questions: Can the sharp spurt in inventory building in the final weeks of 1965 be traced to a speculative frame of mind — a belief that business is sure to increase its already fast pace? Or are businessmen afraid of inflation — and thus buying materials and goods now before an expected price increase? Or is the inventory buildup just a delayed catching up with the rapid growth of sales? Earlier in 1965 inventory building was lagging behind the pace of sales.

Government economists may not be sure which one, or which combination, caused the fourth quarter rush to build up stocks. But as to what it did for the economy in general they have figures.

Twice within a month they have revised upward their estimate of 1965's Gross National Product. They now put this total of government and private production of goods and services at a record $676.3 billion. In current dollars the increase over 1964 was 7.5 per cent. In constant dollars, adjusted for the rise in prices, the gain was 5.5 per cent.

The inventory buildup gets the major credit for the upward revised rate for the fourth quarter to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $697.2 billion. In the third quarter the annual rate was $681.5 billion.

In the final three months of the year inventory pileup was at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $10.1 billion. The previous quarter it had been $7.6 billion.

Government spending also rose, particularly in the final months of the year. And this trend is continuing in the new year.

That is why government economists are watching the rise in inventories so closely. If the buildup is due to fears of inflation, it might be catching.

Guard to Help Keep Minnehaha Creek Running

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — City and National Guard officials said Friday an armored personnel carrier would be brought from Camp Ripley to keep Minnehaha Creek open and alleviate flooding.

At least one street was 3 1/2 feet deep in water Friday when Mayor Arthur Naftalin and other city officials met with homeowners who live near the creek. Many complained of flooded basements.

New Medical, Hospital Plans Are Reviewed

Hospital and medical benefits under Medicare were explained at the regular meeting of the Winona Council of Social Agencies Tuesday at City Hall.

Benefits become effective July 1, 1966, for persons 65 or older, whether or not they have had Social Security, according to James Casey of the social security office here. An exception is nursing home benefits, which become effective Jan. 1, 1967.

ALL PERSONS under social security will be covered automatically for the over-65 hospitalization, Casey said, with no premium payments necessary. Persons over 65 who have never been under social security are required to apply for the hospital coverage at Social Security offices.

A separate medical benefits plan which pays doctor bills is available to these individuals if they wish it, he said. A person wishing this coverage must apply for it by March 31, 1966, and must pay a $3 monthly premium when the protection goes into effect.

Many private insurance companies will offer policies to supplement Medicare, beginning July 1, Casey predicted. Rates are expected to be relatively low. He also said present policy holders should keep their coverages in force at least until July 1.

PERSONS NOW under social security, but over 65 and still working, also must sign by March 31. A person approaching 65 may sign up three months prior to his birthday month or within three months after the birthday month, he explained.

THE MINNESOTA -Medical Assistance Program is separate from Medicare and was effective Jan. 1, according to Frank Tillman, a Winona County welfare department supervisor. The program covers all persons under old age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to disabled persons. Medical expenses before the date of an application will not be paid by the welfare department, he said.

Home health care services were described by Mrs. Philip Karsina, supervisor for the city public health nursing service. At present no charge is made for these services, she said. They consist of part time or intermittent care, given according to individual needs of patients, she said.

With the introduction of Medicare, said Mrs. Karsina, the demand for nursing services is expected to increase. This will require new personnel and probably the inauguration of a fee system, she said. Under Medicare a patient is entitled to home health care visits, she added.

Judge Hears Divorce Case

Judge Arnold Hatfield took under advisement a divorce suit tried before him Friday in District Court.

Alfred B. Kramer, 40, Hayward, Wis., did not contest his wife's suit for divorce from him on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. But he did testify concerning his financial status.

Mrs. Veronica S. Kramer, 32, 1630 Gilmore Ave., testified that Kramer married her here Sept. 28, 1953, and that they have two children, aged 10 and 11.

Testifying in corroboration of Mrs. Kramer's cruel and inhuman treatment allegations was Mrs. Clarence Barnes Fountain City, Wis., a sister of Mrs. Kramer.

Corroborating Kramer's testimony about his financial condition was the evidence of Robert Johnson, Hayward, Wis.

Judge Hatfield took the case under advisement. Attorney William A. Lindquist represented Mrs. Kramer, and Attorney Duane M. Peterson represented Kramer.

WEEK'S NEWS IN REVIEW

Johnson's Viet Policies Under Heavy U.S. Attack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The fire was almost as heavy, if not as lethal, on Capitol Hill as it was in South Viet Nam.

President Johnson's Viet Nam policy came under heavy attack in hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee but by week's end seemed to be weathering the barrage. On Thursday, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former ambassador to Saigon, defended administration policy and ran head-on into Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a regular critic of the Viet Nam commitment. "I happen to hold to the point of view," said Morse, "that it isn't going to be too long before the American people as a people will repudiate our war in Southeast Asia."

"That, of course, is good news to Hanoi, senator," the general replied.

Retorted Morse: "I know that there is the smear artist answer that you militarists give to those of us who have honest differences of opinion with you, but I don't intend to get down in the gutter with you and engage in that kind of debate, general."

Things went a little better for the administration the next day when Secretary of State Dean Rusk testified before the committee. He reminded the committee that the Senate in 1954 had set the course of Southeast Asia policy. That was the year the Senate approved the Southeast Asia Treaty, which binds the United States to aid any country in the area under Communist attack, such as South Viet Nam. To those who say the American people doubt the U.S. role in Viet Nam, Rusk said, "Let us find out," let the House and Senate vote. But the secretary asked that first each senator and representative think long and deeply about the real path to peace. He added that failure to live up to treaty commitments in Southeast Asia would undermine confidence in our intent to stand by obligations elsewhere. The Committee was milder in its handling of Rusk than it had been with Taylor, and several senators came to the defense of the administration.

But while Rusk was delivering his views to the committee, and to the nation on television and radio, an anonymous woman called and said she intended to shoot the secretary. Security measures were tightened and Rusk left the committee without incident. An investigation was started.

Meantime, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was completing a smiling, but hard-hitting tour of Asia, drumming up support for American policy.

Humphrey told both Pakistan and India they would get no more military aid from the United States until they reconcile their differences over Kashmir and concentrate on the real enemy, Red China. He also announced a $50 million loan to Pakistan and a $100 million loan to India, but warned them to produce well-documented plans for self-help if they expect big American aid in the future.

The American maritime unions took a stand on Viet Nam. They told President Johnson they will boycott all ships dealing with North Viet Nam unless the United States can prevail on its allies and other non-Communist nations to stop dealing with the enemy.

As a side effect of the Viet Nam debate, Fred W. Friendly quit as president of the Columbia Broadcasting System news division. Friendly had recommended live coverage of the Senate hearings when George F. Kennan was the witness the previous week, but John A. Schneider had overruled him. Schneider, newly-named No. 3 man at CBS, was upheld by the firm's chairman and president and Friendly departed with a blast to the effect that advertising dollars had triumphed over responsibility to the public.

The pot was beginning to boil under President Johnson's lid on wages and prices. The presidents of unions representing 3.5 million building trades workers and 100,000 coal miners announced they would ignore the government's wage guidelines in negotiating new contracts. The guidelines put an unofficial ceiling of 3.2 per cent on wage increases. The complaint: no such limit on farmers' income, industrial profits or dividends, or professional income. Labor's revolt was seen as a sharp blow to the administration's thus-far "voluntary anti-inflation controls."

Two Soviet authors found that independent thought and writing were dangerous things. They were sentenced Monday to long terms at hard labor for conviction on charges of maligning the Soviet Union in books published abroad. Andrei D. Sinyovskiy, published abroad under the pseudonym Abram Tertz, was sentenced to seven years in a forced-labor camp, and Yuri M. Daniel, a little-known poet, to five years. Conviction was no shock, but the sentences were, even to Communists in the United States, France, Italy and elsewhere. There was no question that the Soviet image had suffered a harsh blow.

A Soviet TU114, the world's largest airliner, crashed on take-off Thursday at Moscow International Airport, at the start of a flight to Africa. Western sources said 70 persons were aboard the plane, including some Africans, and that 38 persons were killed. The Russians announced only six passengers and the crew were killed. How many in the crew? Nobody would say, but perhaps from 9 to 11.

Death of the Week:
Alfred P. Sloan Jr., 90, successively president, chairman and honorary chairman of General Motors, a pioneer in modern management techniques, scientist, philanthropist, died Thursday of a heart attack in New York.

Quote of the Week:
"I myself have no doubt that in the long term we can achieve military victory. It is not going to be a short war." Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Space Goals May Not Be Met in 1967

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert C. Seamans Jr., deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, says he can offer no assurances that the nation's space goals can be met next fiscal year.

Seamans, at a House Space subcommittee meeting, said that under the slightly trimmed space budget "we hope, but cannot assure, that the goals which have been set for this nation will be met."

NASA's budget request for slightly more than $5 billion is $163 million less than last year's appropriation.

'Y' Sex Course Attracts 130 Fathers and Sons

A course in human growth and development, sponsored by the YMCA, was attended by 130 fathers and junior high school sons, according to Larry Schiller, youth work secretary.

Public acceptance has moved the YMCA youth committee to continue its sponsorship of the course. Another class, for senior high school boys and fathers, will be offered this spring. The next course for junior high boys and fathers will be held in the fall, said Schiller.

Speakers at the first course included Ed Griffin, associate general secretary of the Minneapolis YMCA, Dr. James Wilson, Rushford, and the Rev. Martin Olson, chaplain of the Newman Center, Winona State College. General purpose of the course, said Schiller, was to provide common ground for discussion of sex problems by fathers and sons. Most of the emphasis was on attitudes rather than biological aspects, he said.

NATO Ministers Discuss Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strategic nuclear weapons planning took top priority at a two-day meeting of defense ministers of five North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations.

The ministers represented the United States, Britain, West Germany, Italy and Turkey at the meeting that ended Friday. They are members of the Nuclear Planning Group, a subcommittee of the NATO Special Committee of Defense Ministers.

A Pentagon announcement said the discussions included consideration "of the way in which nuclear forces are planned, procured and managed; discussion of problems and procedures in the development of plans with respect to such forces as well as the command and control arrangements which govern them."

Soil Conservation Meetings to Begin At Whitehall High

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — A series of 10 weekly meetings on soil and soil conservation will be conducted by Glen Olson, vocational agriculture teacher at Whitehall High school, beginning Monday at 8 p.m. Designed for young adult farmers, the course will include movies issued by the National Plant Food Institute, Washington, D.C., and speakers.

Good rule to remember: In rolling out pastry for the bottom of a pie, cut the dough an inch larger than the top outside edge of the pie plate. Fit gently into the plate.

Joint Services Planned for St. Charles Area

ST. CHARLES, Minn. (Special) — Six Protestant churches of the St. Charles area and Dover will hold cooperative services again this year on Wednesday nights during Lent.

Guest speaker at one of the services will be the Rev. James P. Fasnacht, pastor of St. Charles Catholic Church.

Each service will begin at 8 p.m. The general theme is "Personalities of the Passion." The complete schedule, including place of meeting, speaker and sermon title:

Feb. 23 — Trinity Episcopal Church, the Rev. Ervin Weiland, "Pilate."

March 2 — Dover Methodist Church, the Rev. Carl Helmich, "Judas."

March 9 — First Congregational Church, the Rev. Walter H. Meyer, "Simon of Cyrene."

March 16 — St. Charles Methodist Church, the Rev. James P. Fasnacht, "Barabbas."

March 23 — Berea Moravian Church, the Rev. Marvin Nordmeier, "The Centurion."

March 30 — United Church of Christ, the Rev. George W. McNary, "Peter."

On Good Friday from 12:30 to 3 p.m. there will be a union service at First Congregational Church.

St. Mary's Gets Grant of $1,400

A $1,400 National Science Foundation grant for undergraduate research was awarded to St. Mary's College chemistry department last week.

The award will be shared by two juniors during the 1966-67 academic year, according to Brother Ambrose, department faculty member. Additional support probably will be available to allow the two students to continue working through the summer of 1967, he said.

Names of students and their projects have not been announced. Under terms of the grant, they will work in independent research in collaboration with faculty scientists.

Four students are currently working on chemistry projects financed by NSF grants, said Brother Ambrose, and another one will be added this summer. Under study are problems in biochemical, analytical and physical chemistry.

Trempealeau Co. Cancer Society Names Director

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — Mrs. Clarence Moen, Galesville, was named publicity director of the Trempealeau County Cancer Society at a meeting of the executive board at the courthouse, Whitehall, Thursday night.

The cancer film, "Who? Me?" will be previewed by Mrs. Mabel Skroch, county nurse, with a view to purchasing it for the chapter. Films owned are available for meetings of any organizations.

The bowling tournament of which Walter Hanson, Trempealeau, was chairman netted the chapter $528.

Mrs. William Thomas, Frenchville, will be chairman of the crusade for members and funds in April. The goal is $4,675. Mrs. Ronald Johnson, Preston, and Mrs. Clifford Fjeldstad, Osseo, will be co-chairmen. The next board meeting will be May 19 at the courthouse.

SERVICES AT NELSON NELSON, Wis. (Special) — Grace Lutheran Church will hold its first Lenten service, Ash Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. Lenten services will be held each Wednesday evening at 8:15 until Holy Week, said the Rev. L. E. Lillegard.

The 'Country Doctor' Tells of His Joys

By RUTH ROGERS

Sunday News Area Editor
HOUSTON, Minn. — "He who knows typhoid, knows medicine," Dr. L. K. Osgard quoted from the eminent Dr. William Osler, British physician, 1849-1919.

"What does the present day doctor know about typhoid?" the Houston physician went on as he traced a century of medicine in Houston County for the county historical society at the village hall here last Sunday afternoon.

"WHERE ARE the smallpox cases my Dad saw — the tuberculosis, scarlet fever and diphtheria? I am so glad I have seen so many of the benefits of the great medical progress of recent years. I realize now how little we had to work with when I graduated from medical school in 1930."

Dr. Osgard and his father, also Dr. L. K., together have served Houston 74 years.

"Come back with me to the days of Drs. Ignatz Philipp Semmelweis, Robert Koch, Louis Pasteur, Joseph Lister and others," Dr. Osgard said in his preface. "Pasteur founded the science of bacteriology. Koch discovered the tuberculosis bacillus. Lister founded antiseptic surgery."

"There were many great men in the history of medical progress, but I want to tell you about one man I have always remembered — the Hungarian Semmelweis."

"Twelve out of every hundred women died in childbirth from infection back in his time, and all he did was advise doctors to wash their hands."

"These students and teachers went from the autopsy table, where all kinds of infections were prevalent, to the delivery room, wiping their hands on their white coats en route."

"The messier his coat was, the more prosperous the doctor, because it showed he was a busy man, much in demand."

"Semmelweis was laughed at and forced to leave Vienna. He died knowing he was right."

"LET US go from those early days filled with wonderful stories about early pioneers in medicine to a date 100 years ago last month when my father was born near Spring Grove. He always told folks he was born on the first day of January at 6 o'clock in the morning. Then he would invariably say, 'Gee it was cold that morning — so cold my teeth just chattered.'"

"He attended county school and upon finishing, he and his brother, Christian, and the school teacher decided to go to medical school in Cincinnati, Ohio. It took two or three days by train to get there."

"They entered Eclectic Medical College. In those days there were several kinds of practitioners — the allopaths, homeopaths, osteopaths, eclectics, and regulars."

"THE SCHOOL teacher flunked out, but the brothers passed. Dad finished a short time before he was 21, so he took an extra course in pharmacy, became a registered pharmacist, and took extra courses in eye, ear, nose and throat until he was of age. It was illegal to practice medicine before age 21."

"He loved to tell one thing he learned in medical school: A substantial pair of mammary glands have the decided advantage over the two cerebral hemispheres of the 'most learned professor in concocting a nutritional food for infants.'"

"He practiced five years at Harmony and came to Houston in 1892, buying out a Dr. Johnson and the same old home that is still here."

"IN THOSE pioneer days Caledonia had its Dr. Browning and Dr. Belote. Spring Grove had my uncle, Dr. Jensen, married to Dad's sister. In Fillmore County Dr. Grinnell preceded my classmates there, Dr. J. P. Nehring. Dr. Anderson was in Harmony. Dr. Lamm in Mabel; Dr. C. K. Osgard, my uncle, Dr. William and Dr. Davis in Rushford."

"Those were the hard days of the horse and buggy. Many times I recall Dad coming home with ice on his whiskers. He wore a suit of chamois skin underwear."

"That reminds me of an experience with an old man one winter. I suggested he take a bath, and he looked at me and said, 'Take a bath in the winter time?' I can see his eyes and his scowl yet."

"Dad was a great horseman. He had a team, Phorro and George, a team of ponies, Fannie and Frank, and old Prince, a white horse he drove when courting mother. Prince died a natural death from old age. He had to grind feed for him at the last, because Prince had no teeth left."

"HE SOLD Frank. One day he thought he saw this horse tied on the street in La Crosse. He decided to see if it was old Frank, so he walked up to him and said, 'Shake hands, Frank.' Sure enough, Frank raised his right front foot."

"Dad walked away, and the two never saw each other again."

"Our home was the first telephone office in town. The few party lines came into our living room, with a bell for each line. Frequently Dad hired a rig from the livery, with a driver. He paid for this many times himself, and got nothing for his calls. When he came home on cold nights he would never water or feed the horses for a half-hour, letting them cool off first. The driver often tired and Dad would change drivers, but he himself had to go on, called from place to place."

"ROSS Leslie was operated for appendicitis on the kitchen table. Dad broke his own arm trying to crank his old Ford. He almost lost his life in a blizzard between Haupt's Corner and the Walters store, but he saved the mother, who was in convulsions, and also the child."

"THEY couldn't save legs on the battlefield," he said, "so they amputated as soon as possible to avoid shock. They used liquor for anesthetic."

In his collection is a trephine, used for making an opening into the skull, and a bleeder, with 10 tiny blades that were pressed year after Dr. Osgard.

"The depression was on when I started practicing," Dr. Osgard said. "Office fees were $1. Dad used to get $5 or $10 for deliveries. I received $25 in the hospital and $33 at home. Now the fee is $150."

"I NEVER lost a mother, but came very close two times. Both are living today. I lost two babies from the same mother about two years apart, and I couldn't understand it. Her husband patted me on the shoulder and said, 'Doctor, it isn't your fault. There's something we don't understand.'"

"Later I was to learn the answer — it was the RH factor. The babies were No. 8 and 9."

"Think of what we didn't have in the 30s! I recall the first time an antibiotic was used in Houston. Lester Olson was ill at his home with pneumonia. He was breathing heavily with fever and chest pains. I went to a medical meeting in Rochester and brought home the first sulfanilamide. I administered it to Lester at midnight, and he improved from then on."

"ONE DAY I had a country call to make so I asked Andrew Gustafson to go along. I had a Model A sport coupe with a Hades or Tropic Aire heater. I drove for a couple of miles until the water got hot enough and turned on the fan switch."

"Andrew felt here and there with his hand and finally finding the heater, exclaimed, 'Oh! You've got a stove in here too!'"

Dr. Osgard had on display several old instruments including a set of knives and saw used for amputation during the Civil War.

"They couldn't save legs on the battlefield," he said, "so they amputated as soon as possible to avoid shock. They used liquor for anesthetic."

In his collection is a trephine, used for making an opening into the skull, and a bleeder, with 10 tiny blades that were pressed ed into a vein when cocked.

"They thought bleeding would remove impurities from the bloodstream," Dr. Osgard said. "What the patients should have had was transfusions of more blood. George Washington was bled when he was dying."

HE HAS preserved an electric medicine dropper which his father used to administer aconite for fever, belladonna for spasms, digitalis for the heart, ipecac and other medicines. He has an inhalator which was saturated with chloroform for mothers to hold to their nose during childbirth, letting it fall on the bed when sleep came.

Many in the audience said they had been weighed with that tiny baby scale in his collection. Among them was the son of Ray Anderson, who said he drove through floodwater to get his wife to the doctor before her son was born.

Dr. Osgard says he'll practice here until he's 75 and then turn the practice over to another father-son team. He and his wife has a daughter, Mrs. James (Bette Jeanne) Simon, Winona, and a son, Robert, who's in the U.S. Air Force at Amarillo, Tex.

THE SPEAKER was introduced by Sigurd Vathing, Wesley Hoppel, society president, announced that a board of directors meeting will be held at Caledonia March 8.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Roger Johnson, Mrs. Doris Benson and Mason Witt.

JENSEN AIDS PROGRAM

Wisconsin Counties May Get Park Aids

MADISON, Wis. — When you write to the state Conservation Department at Madison, your reply may come from Eric P. Jensen, former Trempealeau County forester and later district forester out of La Crosse.

Since the first of the year Pete, as he is better known, has been conservation staff specialist with the program coordination division at the headquarters office in the state capital.

UNDER THE Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1964, implemented in 1965, Wisconsin was allotted $1,777,847 for 1965-1966 for approved outdoor recreation acquisition and development projects.

Of this amount, one percent, $17,778, is allocated for administration; $13,000 for comprehensive state recreation; 40 percent or $698,827 to local units of government; 40 percent or the same amount for state agencies; and 20 percent or $349,413 for a contingency fund to cost share special projects of high priority throughout the state for both local and state projects.

Of the funds available to local units, 60 percent is based on each county's proportional share of the state population; 30 percent is equally distributed among the counties; and 10 percent is for counties that do not have Outdoor Recreation Act program money available to them for Public Law 566 watersheds, Metropolitan aids or County Forest aids. Thirty counties are eligible for the 10 percent portion.

COUNTIES in this area are in planning area 5, the west central part of the state. BUFFALO COUNTY'S allocation is $6,666; JACKSON, $4,421; PEPPIN, $5,995; and TREMPLEAU, $7,589.

The 11 counties in the area have been allocated $71,872. The other counties are Barron, $6,350; Chippewa, $7,482; Dunn, $7,798; Eau Claire, $8,865; Pierce, $5,259; Polk, $5,427; and St. Croix, $6,014.

LA CROSSE COUNTY, in area 4 with nine other southwest counties, has been allocated $12,662. Total in the southeast area is $71,960.

Area 3, the southeast including the Milwaukee - Kenosha - Racine area, was allocated the largest amount, $274,038, with the east central area including Door and other counties allotted $114,662.

COMMUNITIES can stretch allocated funds through the Urban Housing Assistance Program, Section 701 of the Federal Housing Act of 1954 on a matching two-thirds federal, one-third local basis, or through the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

Urban Planning Assistance is available only for comprehensive community planning, with recreation as a basic element. Information can be obtained from the Department of Resource Development, Madison.

Information on the Housing and Urban Development Act may be secured from the Housing and Home Finance Agency, Chicago.

JENSEN SAID each county board has been asked to establish a committee as liaison between all its subdivisions and the Conservation Department.

However, if such liaison isn't established, political subdivisions may submit projects directly to the Conservation Department for 50 percent of the funds for an approved project.

"In Wisconsin," said Jensen, "program emphasis is on land acquisition where adequate public land for outdoor recreation isn't available."

"When adequate public land is available, emphasis should be on basic development such as roads, sanitary facilities, pic-

Improvement in Negro's Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — The percentage of nonwhite women in private household work is about half what it was 26 years ago, an assistant labor secretary reports.

Esther Peterson, assistant secretary of labor and special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, says also that since 1940 the percentage of nonwhite women in clerical work has risen from 1 per cent to 11 per cent.

Mrs. Peterson, in a YWCA speech, says that since 1940 the proportion of nonwhite women has doubled in the professional fields. These include nursing, accounting, law, library science and dietetics.

She predicted "an acceleration of improvements in the status of the Negro in America now that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 has paved the way."

Mrs. Peterson noted that while the average earnings of nonwhite women are 69 per cent as much as white women, the gap is closing.

THEY WEIGHED THE BABY . . . Caledonia, center, looks on with interest and Wesley Hoppel, right, demonstrates how the newborn baby was weighed. William Murphy, some thought.

Man Who Won In High Court Mankato Grad

ST. PAUL (AP) — A mathematician who prepared his own appeal without benefit of counsel won his case in the Minnesota Supreme Court Friday in a dispute over a "no left turn" sign.

Elliot L. Adams, 38, whose only previous experience with the courts had been jury duty, said he was elated with the decision.

Adams, employed as a senior programmer at Univac, St. Paul, holds a bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering from Wayne University, Detroit, and one in education from Mankato, Minn., State College. At Wayne he took two courses in law, contracts law and real estate law, fields which were not involved in the presentation he made to the high court.

He taught mathematics at De La Salle High School, Minneapolis, for two years before joining Univac.

Adams said he "did everything" in preparing his appeal without help of an attorney. "The law is the only defense I had," he said.

Incidentally, the "no left turn" violation calls for a $5 fine on conviction.

Two-State Deaths

Charles F. Balk

COCHRANE, Wis. (Special) — Charles F. Balk, 86, Cochrane, died at his home Friday at 6:30 p.m. after a brief illness.

He was born June 20, 1879, in Lincoln Township, Buffalo County, to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Balk. He married Lucy Haigh Nov. 26, 1904. The couple farmed until 1919 in the Cochrane area after which he worked for Kochenderfer Oil Co. until his retirement in 1950.

Survivors are: His wife; two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Eleanor) Vye, St. Paul, and Mrs. Oliver (Edna) Bade, Mondovi; four grandchildren; two great-grandchildren, and four sisters, Mrs. Minnie Schneider and Mrs. Emma Fetting, Alma; Mrs. Alwina Zirzow, Cochrane, and Mrs. Elsie Sandvig, Winona. Three brothers have died.

Funeral services will be Monday at 2 p.m. at Evangelical United Brethren Church, Cochrane, the Rev. E. T. Antrim officiating. Burial will be in Buffalo City Public Cemetery. Friends may call at the Colby Funeral Home, Cochrane, this afternoon and evening and Monday until 11 a.m., then at the church.

Mrs. Emma Belitz

PEPIN, Wis. (Special) — Mrs. Emma Belitz, 88, died of a heart attack Thursday night at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Wabasha, where she was making her home for the winter.

The widow of the late Dr. Alfred Belitz, Pepin, she was the former Emma Robbins, born Nov. 22, 1877, at Eureka, Utah. She was married May 16, 1899. Before coming to Pepin in 1918, the couple lived at Gunnison, Utah; Seattle, Wash.; San Jose, Calif.; and Cochrane. She was a member of Pepin Methodist Church.

Survivors are several nieces and nephews. Her husband died in 1953; one son, Emmett, also has died.

Funeral services will be Monday at 2 p.m. at Pepin Methodist Church, the Rev. Robert Vars officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Elwin Schrut, Jesse and Lewis Jahnke, Elmer Davis, Arthur Purdy and Chancey Weitz.
Friends may call at Goodrich Funeral Home, Durand, this evening and at the church after 11 a.m. Monday.

Douglas D. Johnson

WEAVER, Minn. (Special) — Funeral services for Douglas Dean Johnson, who was killed in a one-car accident, were held Tuesday at Grand Valley (S.D.) Lutheran Church, with burial at Canton, S.D. He was a student at General Beadle State College, Madison, S.D. His father, Elmo Johnson, Worthing, S.D., was born and raised at Weaver.

Mrs. Edward Eggenberger

LAKE CITY, Minn. (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Edward Eggenberger were conducted Saturday at Peterson-Sheehan Chapel by the Rev. Walter H. Meyer, Lewiston. Burial was in Lakewood Cemetery, Lake City.

Pallbearers were Roger Eggenberger, Harold Moechnig, Alfred Pretzer, Bernard and Robert Rheingans and Leo Rahrmann.

Jackson Lumber Sales Up 30%

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — Sales increased 30 percent in 1965, stockholders of Jackson Lumber Harvester Co., Inc., were told at the annual meeting.

Sales were the highest last year since the company was established here in 1953 with the backing of Mondovi Area Development Corporation.

Thomas F. Meis, president and general manager, said John Leirmon, lifetime resident of Mondovi who joined the company in a sales capacity last year, was responsible for much of the increased sales activity in north central states.

Overseas sales contributed approximately 24 percent of the company's total sales, with machines going to Venezuela, Chile, Viet Nam, Spain and Canada. Meis said the first wood shaving mill sold in Spain is operated by one of the largest poultry producers in the country.

Wood shaving mills went to Alabama, Georgia, Missouri and Mississippi last year. Also contributing to the year's success was the sale of sawmilling equipment to the U.S. Air Force.

It was announced that a new model sawmill carriage now is available which will accommodate larger diameter logs and permit use of a larger head saw on the mill.

COMING MEETINGS

OF GOVERNMENTAL BOARDS
Monday — City Council, 7 p.m., City Hall.
Thursday — City Planning Commission, 7:30 p.m., City Hall.

Mother Alcuin, Rochester, Dies

Mother M. Alcuin McCarthy, 68, past general superior of the Sisters of the Third Order Regular of Saint Francis, Congregation of Our Lady of Lourdes, Rochester, died early Friday morning of cancer at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester. She had been ill several years.

She had been general superior from 1946 to 1958. The former Elita McCarthy, she was born in Austin, Minn., July 17, 1897. Mother Alcuin entered the postulantcy of the Rochester Franciscans in September 1922. Previously she had attended Winona State College and had served as a teacher in the Rochester Public School system.

After her novitiate, she taught until 1937, when she was named supervisor of schools staffed by the Rochester Franciscans. In 1946 she was chosen general superior and in 1952 she was re-elected for a second six-year term.

During Mother Alcuin's term as general superior, the new motherhouse at Assisi Heights was built and major expansion took place in various other institutions and schools conducted by the Rochester Franciscans. She was a graduate of the College of Saint Teresa, Winona, and held her master's degree from the University of Minnesota.

Survivors are: Three sisters, Sister M. Alonzo, Assisi Heights, the Misses Edna and Alice McCarthy, Austin; A brother, Msgr. Francis McCarthy, and a sister, Miss Inez McCarthy, have died.

A solemn pontifical Mass of requiem will be offered in the Chapel of Our Lady of Lourdes at the motherhouse at 10:30 a.m. Monday. The Most Rev. Edward A. Fitzgerald, Winona, will be celebrant. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Friends may call at the motherhouse requiem chapel.

Buffalo Co. Jails 118 During Year

ALMA, Wis. (Special) — Sheriff Myron Hock reported to the Buffalo County Board of Supervisors last week that 118 persons were confined to the jail in 1965, of whom 19 were male juveniles and 19 female juveniles. A total of 1,191 meals was served.

Total number of miles traveled by the sheriff and his deputy, Clem Breen, was 18,310 in the county and 23,862 out of the county.

Three persons were transferred to penal institutions; 14 to mental, and 49 to University Hospital.

The number of accidents investigated by the department was 38; they involved $19,058 in damages.

Investigations included four drownings, four as humane officer, three stabbings, three assaults, three suicides, three burglaries and 30 thefts, including two auto. A total of 329 complaints was investigated and 60 worthless checks collected.

The county traffic patrol traveled 71,078 miles and investigated 135 accidents, four of them fatal, 32 with personal injury, and property damage listed at $74,266.

Traffic arrests total 181, with $5,171 in fines collected under county ordinance. Five arrests were for drunken driving; three for driving after revocation; 10 for no driver's license, and 14 for non-registration. The report was made by H. A. Zeichert, Buffalo City, for himself and Robert Sing, Mondovi.

Batteries Taken In Goodview

Batteries were stolen Thursday and Friday nights from the cars of two Goodview men, Sheriff George L. Fort reported Saturday.

Nicholas C. Luhnmann, 885 43rd Ave., Goodview, reported that he parked his car Friday evening partially inside the garage of his home. When his wife attempted to start the vehicle about 7:30 p.m., it was found that the battery had been taken, Luhnmann told the sheriff.

Luhnmann followed footprints in the snow for 1 1/2 blocks to a place where a car had apparently been waiting for the thief to return with Luhnmann's 12-volt battery. Luhnmann said that he had just bought the battery recently.

Clifford W. Paswalk, 855 39th Ave., Goodview, reported that someone took the 12-volt battery from his car Thursday night while the vehicle was parked in front of his home. Both thefts are under investigation, the sheriff said.

Rolvaag and Keith Attend Party Fetes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Potential nominees for governor in both political parties showed up together at party functions in Bloomington and Duluth Friday, and there were no harsh words toward intra-party rivals.

Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag and Lt. Gov. A.M. Keith attended a Duluth "Salute to Congress" dinner along with State Rep. Fred Cina of Aurora and Minneapolis businessman Robert Short — all viewed as potential Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party nominees.

South St. Paul lawyer Harold LeVander and Ramsey County Atty. William B. Randall presented views on taxes at a Republican Task Force on Fiscal Reform at Bloomington.

Rolvaag and Keith — considered the main rivals for the DFL nomination — even shook hands at Duluth.

In a speech, the governor said state agencies — and he singled out the Education Department — have not been using all available federal aid. Minnesota is "creeping where Congress galloped," he said.

Keith said only a few words.

Others present included Sen. Walter F. Mondale, Rep. John A. Blatnik and Minneapolis Mayor Arthur Naftalin.

Mondale said the 89th Congress passed "the most sweeping social measures" approved by any session in history.

At Bloomington both GOP candidates called for over-all tax reform. Randall said "full and true value is a meaningless term in real estate assessments, and out-of-state business is scared away by high mill rates that result."

Minnesota law requires property to be assessed at full value, but one-third of that has become a more accepted standard.

Randall said unskilled assessors sometimes adjust assessments to fit local prejudices or attract new business. "I'm against tax incentives for industry," he said. He called for complete revision of state tax laws.

LeVander urged the task force to consider Twin Cities area growth as part of over-all state tax problems, perhaps by returning more state revenue to local governments.

Randall made no mention of a sales tax. LeVander repeated part of his campaign kickoff speech, in which he said sales and excise taxes "are not wicked devices to shift the tax burden to the poor."

Congressman Clark MacGregor said Friday night a "lack of information is robbing both Congress and the people" of their right to participate in foreign policy and Viet Nam war decisions.

The 3rd District Republican told a University of Minnesota audience: "The administration's unwarranted information policy is directed by a desire for personal and political popularity, rather than the necessities of national security."

Earlier Friday, Blatnik urged strong efforts to increase federal aid for clean water, saying a massive attack is needed to reverse the "long, tragic neglect and abuse of our natural resources."

The 8th District congressman told an Industrial Water Conference in Minneapolis that the national water quality laboratory in Duluth is supplying vital data "urgently needed if the national surge for clean water is to be successful."

Ex-Marine Too Honest to Keep Phone Box Keys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John W. Nicholas, unemployed ex-Marine, stepped into a phone booth Friday night, ready to put 10 of his last 34 cents into the phone to call the Weather Bureau. For two years he has been sleeping out, and he likes to know what to expect.

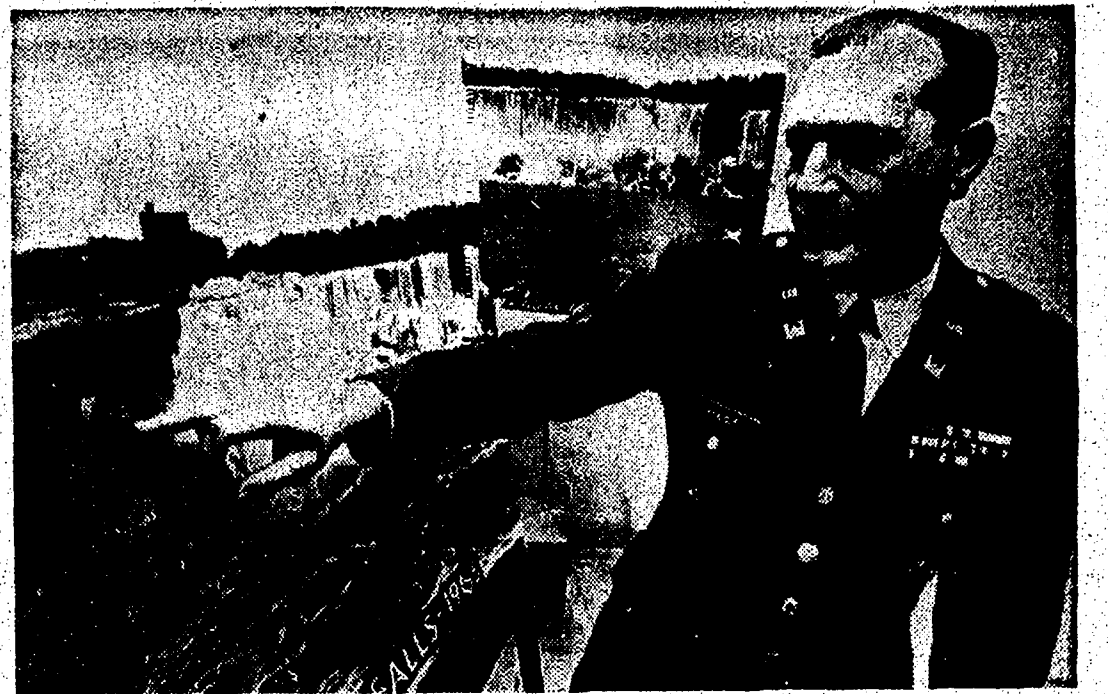

He saw the three keys dangling from the phone box. "I didn't even hear the forecast," Nicholas said later. "I put those keys in my pocket and started walking south. I thought, 'gee, I'm in the chips; all that easy money in all those phone boxes!'"

Nicholas was in front of the Times Building. He reconsidered, and reported his find to the city editor.

The editor called Fred Cram, telephone repairman on duty in the building. Cram gratefully accepted the keys.

Nicholas turned to the city desk. "I'm glad I did it," he said.

As he moved away, he asked: "By the way, have you seen the weather report? Is it going to rain?"

ARMY WORKS ON PLAN TO TURN OFF NIAGARA

Brig. Gen. Roy T. Dodge, chief of the North Central Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, points to an area of recently fallen rock at Niagara Falls. Under his direction a feasibility study is under way looking into possibility of removing accumulated fallen rock at base of falls. The plan would entail diverting the river over Horseshoe Falls by means of a dam of steel piling. (AP Photofax)

Army Engineers Eye Face-Lift Job on Niagara

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Niagara Falls has gotten a notice that its water may soon be turned off.

Did they forget to pay last month's water bill? Or is it an anti-homestead plot hatched by the likes of those who planned to blow up the Statue of Liberty?

No, it's just the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The engineers are looking for a way to turn off the falls to give it a face-lift. Rock slides, it seems, are threatening to ruin the American side of the falls.

Although the announcement came from the Corps of Engineers, it can be revealed that the idea originated in one of the most hush-hush agencies in Washington — Operation G.E.N.I.U.S.

Operation G.E.N.I.U.S. is dedicated to the proposition that man's ingenuity knows no bounds.

He can put a spacecraft on the moon, move the ancient statues in Egypt's Nubian Valley, tame the rampaging Mississippi River.

Operation GENIUS, by the way, stands for Great Engineering Nuggets of Ingenuity Under Study.

Here are a few of its other hush-hush programs:
Project Westward Ho — This is a plan to move Washington, D.C., lock, stock and White House, from the banks of the Potomac to the Pedernales. Despite the coincidence the project has been under study for more than a hundred years. The idea was to shorten stagecoach travel from the West to the Capital. In later years, however, the feasibility study staff grew too large to dismantle without affecting the nation's economy.

Project Liberty — In 1886 the Statue of Liberty was erected in New York Harbor, and there she has stood ever since. In response to requests from several Midwestern senators, G.E.N.I.U.S. has undertaken a study of sending the Statue of Liberty on a nationwide tour.

Project Mountain — Three years ago Mohammed, a small resort on Florida's Atlantic Coast, was casting about for some means to compete with its neighbor, Miami. The city fathers hit upon the idea of erecting a mountain — something even Miami doesn't have. They approached the government's surplus mountain disposal agency, which in turn called in G.E.N.I.U.S. A study is now under way to see how to get the mountain to Mohammed.

Only one proposal brought to the agency for solution has been dismissed by its engineers as impractical. That was how to make an automobile graveyard look a little more presentable.

2 State Park Contracts Let

ST. PAUL (AP) — Three state park construction contracts were awarded Friday.

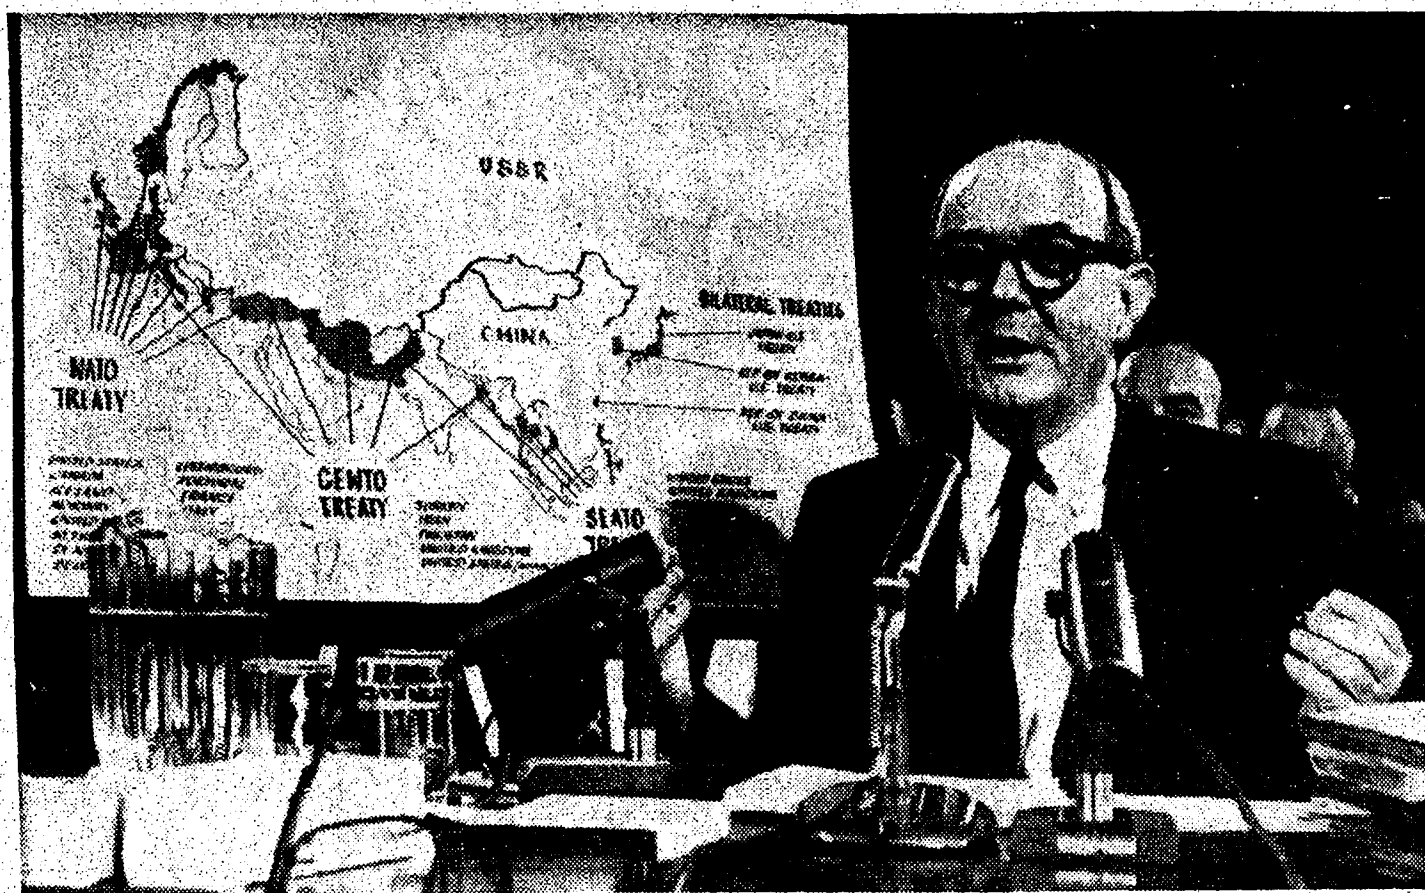

Louis Leusick & Son, Ely, is to extend Hefelfinger trail in Finland State Forest for $27,950.

H. L. Olson & Son, Red Wing, is to build a shelter at Frontenac State Park for $21,750.

Greiner & Tanberg Construction Co., Grand Rapids, is to build the Shannon Lake Forest road and bridge in Sturgeon Lake Forest for $15,940.

To vary the flavor in a cheese sauce, sometimes add grated Parmesan cheese instead of the usual cheddar.

Wants Doubt Removed

Rusk Challenges Congress To New Vote on Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the administration's chief foreign policy spokesman, has issued a ringing invitation to Congress to vote again on Viet Nam war policy "if there is any doubt about it."

Rusk voiced his assurance the vote would be as overwhelming as it was in 1964 when Congress handed Johnson the resolution authorizing him to act in Southeast Asia.

"We'll give him a chance to find out next week," Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as the group shut down Friday the public part of its probe of the president's Viet Nam policy.

Morse, the most outspoken among Senate critics of U.S. involvement in Viet Nam, said he intends to force a vote on rescinding the 1964 resolution passed after North Vietnamese PT boats attacked U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin off Viet Nam. Morse and Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, were the only two in Congress to vote against the resolution then. The House approved it by a 414-0 vote and the Senate went along 88 to 2.

Morse said he would try to rescind the resolution by an amendment to the bill authorizing 12.3 billion in additional defense funds now pending in the Senate.

His move, however, drew no support from other members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, ended the sessions at least temporarily after hearing Rusk give a lecture on the roads to war and peace.

"I personally don't see any need for further public hearings," declared Fulbright. But he said he would let the committee decide if it would like to ask Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to appear at closed sessions.

When Rusk left he was closely guarded by a security detail reinforced after a Baltimore television station, WMAR-TV, reported it had received an anonymous telephone call from "a woman with a husky voice" who said: "Dean Rusk will be shot right between the eyes when he leaves that building in Washington."

As the committee raged down the curtain on the hearings that have become the storm center of Viet Nam debate, one committee member put out an invitation to the President for some private, heart-to-heart talks.

Last week, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., declared bluntly that the aim of the hearings which have been broadcast and televised nationally was to "go over the head of the President to the people" and thus express senators' concerns to the President through the people.

And, said Gore Friday, "we have reached the President by this hearing. I understand he has been listening today and yesterday."

Gore had expressed worry the conflict was inching toward a war with Red China but he indicated he was heartened by Rusk's assurance of "the limited nature of our purpose there."

Then the Tennessee Democrat threw out his broad hint to Johnson:

"I have the feeling we should have our sessions with the secretary — and the President — behind closed doors for awhile. This has reached, I hope, a fruitful point from which some unity can be achieved in the country."

floor over the administration's authorization request for 4.8 billion for military supplies.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, charged opponents of the administration's Viet Nam policies were filibustering against it.

Russell said "if senators continue this delay interminably, we risk losing the war in Viet Nam by a process of attrition and a lack of ammunition which our forces must have to defend themselves."

But Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., disputed Russell's contention that a filibuster was under way to block support and funds for the war, saying he thought it proper for the Senate to discuss for a few days the policies involved in expenditure of extra billions for the war.

THE INVESTOR

Common Stock Split Explained

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE
Q. My son, who is with the Army in Viet Nam, has some Textron common stock. He seldom sees newspaper stock quotations and has asked me to find out what went wrong with Textron. A few months ago it was above $80 a share and now is below $45. Can you help us?

A. Happily! It's nice to be able to send the boys some good news from the home front. Nothing went wrong with Textron.

The stock was split, two for one, in December. Your son and all the other stockholders now own twice as many shares as they did before the split.

Each of the doubled number of shares represents half as much ownership in the company as each of the old number of shares did. And, of course, your son's portion of ownership in the company remains unchanged.

When a split takes place, the market price of the stock is automatically reduced to reflect the increased number of shares.

HERE'S another bit of good news for your son. The dividend rate on his stock has also been increased. Before the split, Textron was paying dividends of 45 cents a share every three months. The latest dividend, paid Jan. 1, was 25 cents a share. Because there are twice as many shares outstanding, this is equal to 50 cents a share.

I hope you clip this column and send it to your boy — to let him know that all state-side news isn't being made by bearded beatniks and other demonstrating draft-dodgers.

Q. My son has most of his money invested in common stock of a supermarket chain. The company has several stores near where he lives. But he seldom buys there. Instead, he shops in other stores. I told him he should buy only in stores of the company in which he is a stockholder. Am I right?

A. You bring up the subject of stockholder loyalty. Your question can't be answered with a flat "yes" or "no." How about "maybe."

Naturally, if your son and all other stockholders of that supermarket chain shop only at that company's stores, that will boost the company's sales and profits. That will make the stock more valuable.

The normal inclination of an investor is to do business with a company of which he is a stockholder — a part owner. Anything that helps the company is good for the shareholders.

THIS IS a basic reason why most companies like to have as many stockholders as possible. More stockholders usually mean more customers.

But every investor does not do business only with companies of which he is a stockholder. Your son, for instance, might feel that he is getting better buys or better quality at stores in which he is not a stockholder.

All things being equal (price and quality), it would be in his own best interest to shop where he is a shareholder. But things are seldom as cut and dried as you would make them out to be.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

First Bank Pushes Billings Investigation

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — First Bank Stock Corp. is continuing an investigation into affairs of its member bank at Billings, Mont., that started after the fire death of a bank officer there.

"There is no completion date on the investigation; it is a continuing thing," First Bank Stock President Granger Costikyan said Thursday.

He added that the probe into affairs of Midland National Bank of Billings would continue "until we have all the facts in the case."

The investigation is centered on a possible $3 million worth of loans made by John A. Silvers, 38, who was vice president and chief commercial lending officer of the Billings bank.

Silvers' burned body was found in a still-burning car last Dec. 20 by police on the rim-rocks overlooking Billings.

Midland National is a wholly owned affiliate of First Bank Stock Corp., which operates 87 banks and trust companies in Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

On Dec. 31, Midland National announced that First Bank Stock Corp. had contributed $1.3 million to the Billings Bank. And on Feb. 2, First Bank Stock Corp. announced it was sending another $1.7 million to Billings.

At that time, Costikyan said loans of "doubtful collectibility" made by Midland National in 1935 totaled $3,768,692.

Commenting on status of the investigation, Costikyan said, "We want to provide the public all the pertinent information we can. An audit has been on a continuing basis since Dec. 25 or 26. I'll be meeting with a partner there to go over the information. There is no indication when this investigation will be completed."

Officers Named Of Creamery At Ridgeway

RIDGEWAY, Minn. — Arthur Erdmann has been elected president of the Ridgeway Creamery Co.

Other officers: Vice president, J. Ray McNally; secretary, Lucille Von Moos; and treasurer, Mrs. Alice Hackbarth. Other directors are Robert Hass, W. H. Pflughoef, Milo Runnigen and Russel Bublitz.

In 1935 an addition to the creamery was constructed for quickly unloading whole milk from bulk tanks or cans and for cleaning and for washing bulk truck tanks.

The creamery has been under the supervision of a new manager, Clarence Cummings, who has had many years of experience. The last four years he was employed at Chatfield Creamery.

In 1965 a total of 1,164,081 pounds of butter was manufactured at the creamery. It was sold locally and to H. C. Christians Co., Chicago.

A total of 24,222,920 pounds of skim milk, 756,000 pounds of whole milk and 656,730 pounds of grade A milk was sold to Rochester Dairy and 923,448 pounds of buttermilk was sold to St. Charles Condensery.

Eltrick Gun Club Names Directors

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Directors were elected at the Eltrick Rod and Gun mid-winter party in the Blair city hall for the various areas served by the club.

Herman Fredrickson was elected for Reynolds Coulee; Martin Berg, Peterson Coulee; Lester Moen Jr., Blair; Mahlon Anderson, Voss Coulee; Ray Solberg, Lower Lakes Coulee; George Solberg, Larkin Valley; LeRoy Fredrickson, Lower Trump Coulee; Willard Thompson, Upper French Coulee; Bernt Thompson, Franklin; Arnold Solberg, French Creek; Earl Lokken, Washington Coulee; Norman Anderson, Joe Coulee.

Albert Gunderson, South Branch; Ronald Terpening, South Beaver Creek; Ralph Killison, Upper French Coulee; Bear Creek; Hakan Erickson, village of Eltrick; Albert Svensson, Frenchville; and Burton Risberg, Tappen Coulee.

Some 90 members attended, a total of 49 participated in an informal tally of hunting and fishing successes during 1965. They had killed 39 birds and caught 170 trout. One hunter had taken 16 birds. Most successful fisherman caught 38.

New officers will be chosen by the directors at a meeting planned this week.

Levee Park is a piece of real estate which helps put Winona in a scenic class of its own. Making the park and its riverfront atmosphere an integral part of downtown is an objective of the downtown renewal plan.

BARRIERS that now isolate the park from the rest of the city should be removed or reduced, according to planning recommendations. Such changes are quite feasible as well as desirable, states the planning report.

Development of public parking areas north of 2nd Street, between Main and Lafayette streets, would eliminate much of the intervening barrier.

Another bar to free flow of vehicle and pedestrian traffic, between park and downtown, is a broad band of railroad trackage. Removal of some of this track is feasible, states the report. This would logically follow some of the proposed building demolition since some of the track provides loading-door access to rail cars.

Retaining of some trackage is necessary to commerce and industry but this need can be met by substantially fewer sidings than are now in the area, the report argues.

CUTTING down the number of tracks will not affect the business district adversely, according to the study.

The planning report assumes that present parking spaces in Levee Park will be kept as they are. It points out that this is a hindrance to possible expansion of the park and therefore might be removed in later years.

It is assumed that the park and two adjoining blocks of off-street parking will be subject to occasional flooding. While protection for the business area is under close scrutiny, it does not seem feasible to set the wall riverward of park areas, observes the report.

In order to avoid a high wall that would cut off the view from business areas, the retainer should be farther inland on higher ground, the study recommends. Such a location would make a low wall possible.

Ex-Durand Policeman To Train for Patrol

DURAND, Wis. (Special) — Everett Biles, Durand city patrolman the last three years, will leave in March to enter training for the state highway patrol at the Wisconsin Academy, Camp McCoy. Following work as an understudy with current officers, he will receive a probationary appointment. Mrs. Biles and two children will remain here while he is in training. Mrs. Biles is office nurse for Dr. Joseph Springer.

Trempealeau Board

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — The Trempealeau County Board of Supervisors will meet Thursday at 10 a.m.

OUT-OF-TOWN COLLEGES

In Opera Production

DONALD STOW, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hale A. Stow, 622 Sioux St., and a graduate music student at Mankato (Minn.) State College, is appearing in the Mankato State music department's presentation this week of the opera, "The Marriage of Figaro." The production opened Wednesday and will be seen through Saturday.

A 1955 graduate of Winona Senior High School, Stow plays cello in the pit orchestra. He has taught in schools.

RUSHFORD, Minn. — Betty Heiden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Heiden, was one of 30 students at Hamline University, St. Paul, who recently spent four days in Chicago on an art study tour. Purpose of the field trip was to acquaint Hamline students with major works of art in Chicago.

GALESVILLE, Wis. (Special) — Miss Kathleen Emmons, 20, student at Methodist-Kahler Hospital School of Nursing, Rochester, Minn., class of 1966, has received the selected youth service La Sertoma Club award.

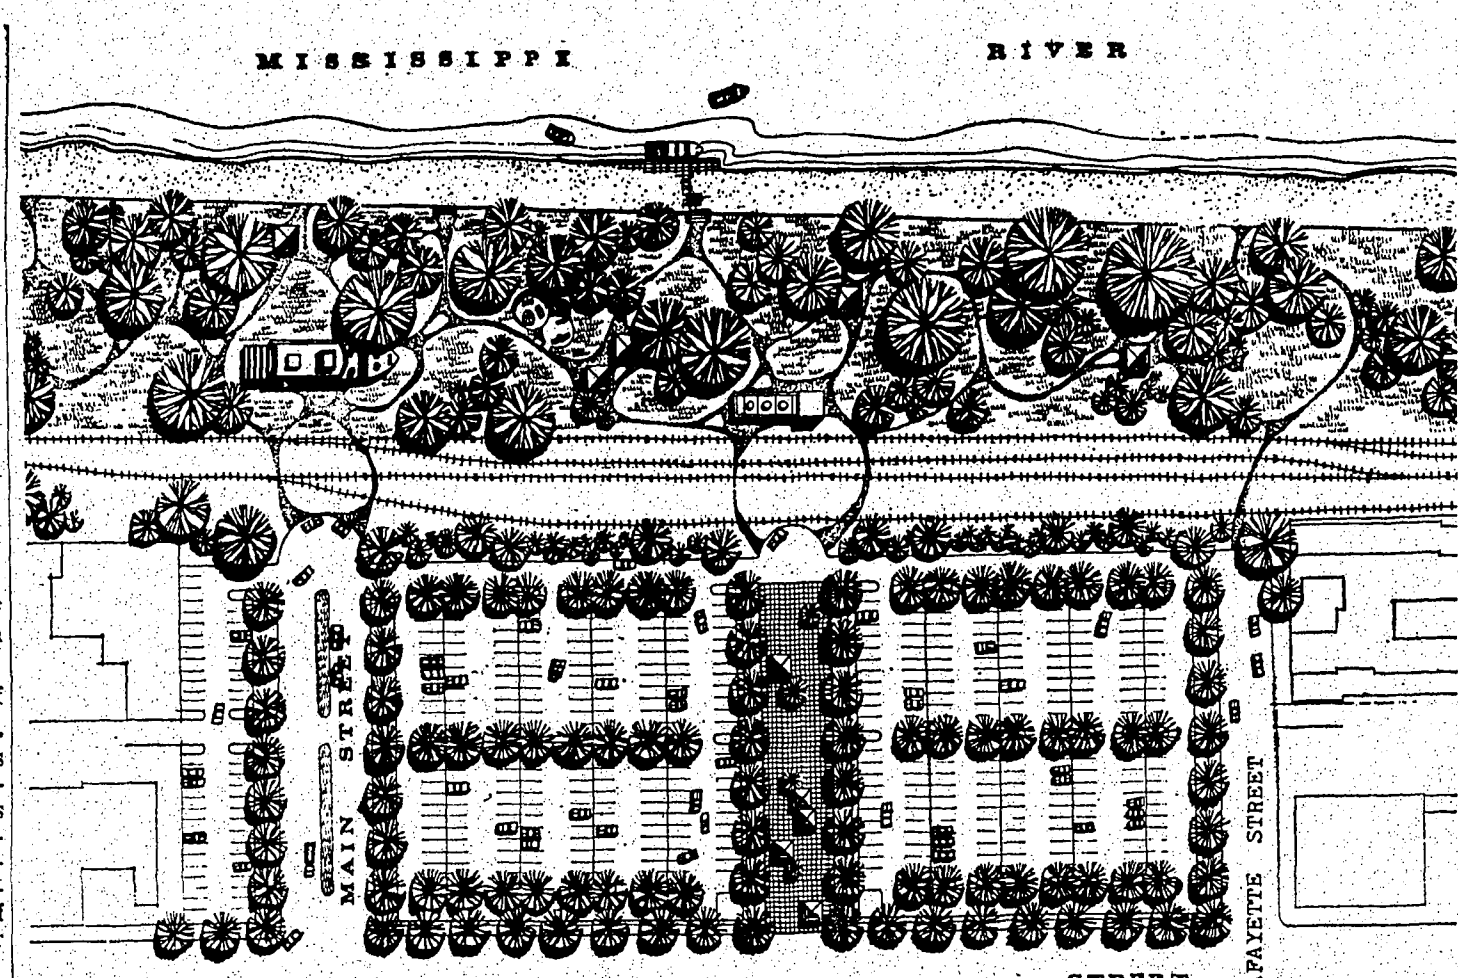

It was presented at a luncheon recently held by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Emmons, Galesville, attended.

Miss Emmons is president of the sixth district Minnesota Nurses Association and co-chairman of the Minnesota Nursing Student of the Year contest. She attended the national student nurses' convention at Atlantic City. She is a member of Methodist-Kahler chorus and is active in the Bible Club and Nurses Christian Fellowship. She was a delegate last summer to the chapter camp at Bear Trap, Colorado Springs, Colo.

She has sung in Bethel Lutheran Church choir, was president of Zion Lutheran League, Galesville, and visits patients at the Samaritan Nursing Home, Rochester. While in high school at

AN EXPLANATION — NO. 7

How to Put Levee Park 'Downtown'

ILLUSTRATIVE PLAN

LEVEE PARK DEVELOPMENT

PARK PLAN . . . Making Levee Park an integral part of the downtown area is important to the city, planners believe. Railroad trackage should be cut to a necessary minimum and intervening areas opened up between the park and the core retail district, it is contended. Immediately south of this area is the proposed super-block comprising four present business blocks.

Questions & Answers

(Editor's Note: Answers to these questions are supplied by the Housing and Redevelopment Authority of Winona.)

Q. — If a renewal project is started, how do we know there will be new buildings to replace those that are removed? Will the cleared land lie idle for indefinite lengths of time?

A. — This authority has a firm policy: No building will be taken down until there are signed commitments for sale and redevelopment of the space. The authority will not speculate; there must be solid evidence of interest before changes are made.

When the authority buys property in a project area, it does not mean demolition starts immediately. Occupants can stay in their locations, if they wish, until removal actually starts. They will get ample time to move and are entitled to various forms of assistance in moving and relocating, either temporarily or permanently.

Q. — Why does the federal government have to tear down buildings and rebuild them for businesses at exorbitant profits for the favored few?

A. — First, it is the housing authority, not the federal government, which acquires property in renewal areas. Three-fourths of the financing is by federal funds, one-fourth by city funds.

Second, the authority does not rebuild. This is done by purchasers, using their own capital.

Third, the property is subject to fair appraisals before the authority buys it. If a reasonable figure cannot be negotiated, the authority can use condemnation procedures.

Lake Elmo VFW Clubhouse Burns

LAKE ELMO, Minn. (AP) — A two-story frame building housing the Veterans of Foreign Wars Club in this Washington County village burned to the ground Friday.

No one was injured.

Firemen said there was no estimate of the loss, and the cause of the blaze was not determined.

The Lake Elmo, Stillwater and East County Line fire departments fought the flames.

The building, originally used as a school, was located on Highway 212 about 10 miles east of St. Paul.

Col. Abel Gets Order of Lenin

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's highest award, the Order of Lenin, has been presented to Col. Rudolph Abel.

The Soviet master spy who was arrested in the United States in 1957 also received a number of other high honors for his 30 years as an intelligence agent, the newspaper Trud (Labor) reported today.

Abel, 63, is now living in retirement in Moscow. After serving four years and eight months of a 30-year sentence in the United States, he was traded on Feb. 10, 1962, for American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Washington Monument Gets Cleaning

WASHINGTON (AP) — They vacuumed the inside of the Washington Monument last week — just in time for George Washington's birthday.

It was the monument's semi-annual interior cleaning, a time for picking up the dust that two million tourists leave behind each year in the 555-foot-high granite shaft. The monument in 1964 had its first exterior cleaning in 30 years.

Joseph P. Eaglin, monument supervisor, estimates his men cart out two 20-gallon cans of dust each week.

But last week's thorough cleaning included the monument's entire interior — not just the 898 steps and the landings which are cleaned daily.

For the day and one-half of cleaning the monument was closed to the public. The only visitors were the workmen — 20 on each shift — cleaning from 6 p.m. Wednesday until Friday morning.

Twice each year National Park Service workers repaint the benches, the ground floor room where visitors await the elevator for the one-minute ride to the top and the observation deck.

Also, they wash the elevator shaft and roof and erase the crayoned remembrances visitors have left behind.

Special attention is given to the 190 memorial stones that line the inside of the drafty monument's walls. Donated by states, organizations and individuals, they are favorite targets of the crayon wielders.

The only tourists who see most of the memorial tablets are those who use the stairs — and most ride the elevator.

Anybody who gets to the top, however, can see a stone from the ruins of ancient Carthage. It was found seven years ago in a corner of a stair well. It had lain there about 80 years and was to have been set in the wall with the others.

Another stone is slightly radioactive — but not enough to be harmful.

In 1949 a visitor with a Geiger counter found the radioactivity about half way up the monument. It is raw uranium in a memorial stone from Colorado.

Action Council Asks Applications For Administrator

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — Applications for administrative director of the four-county Western Dairyland Community Action Council, Inc., organized at Whitehall Wednesday, may be mailed to Emil Steiner, Alma; Stanford Stuber, Strum Rt. 1; Mrs. Mary McDonald, Black River Falls; or William Amundson, Strum.

The application committee consists of Mrs. Mabel Kroch, Whitehall, chairman; Donald Duxbury, acting county agent, Eau Claire; the Rev. Mitchell Whittebratt, Black River Falls; and Marcel Thoma, Mondovi.

The applications committee will meet at the courthouse in Whitehall March 3 at 9:30 a.m. The administrative director must have a college degree in social work or administrative management or equivalent in training or actual on-the-job administrative experience. Applicants must state their background in writing, present employment, age, salary requirements and availability.

Residents of the four counties — Buffalo, Eau Claire, Jackson and Trempealeau — will be given preference.

The director will manage the four-county office field force to carry out the community action program under the Economic Opportunity Act.

The governing council consisting of five from each county will coordinate the efforts of groups to alleviate poverty, and also will apply for the funds to operate it. Federal funds will supply 90 percent of the cost this year, and counties, 10 percent.

IT WAS A HARD DECISION to make, but the teen-age girl in our house finally decided she'd rather have a year's supply of french fried shrimp than a horse.

Housewifery is a profession that allows a woman to work eighteen hours a day without ever having to figure out how much she is going to get in overtime pay.

Men are smart. They know enough to be able to cook or run a house. But they are too clever to try it.

Our middle daughter is improving in her culinary attempts. Food cooked in the oven on her baking days now burns more evenly on the bottom.

Last week we discovered a person we didn't believe existed in this world. Three feet tall, with bold blue eyes; there in front of our eyes stood a little boy who wouldn't eat peanut butter.

Rules are for when brains run out. A hole is to dig. Thumbs are for holding up a sandwich. Or so say the small fry.

It helps at times to remember that in all this world no one NEEDS a mink coat but a mink.

The thing about bachelors that impresses me most is their seeming ability to find enough clothes each morning of their lives to appear in public completely dressed.

When you drive an automobile as long as we do, it acquires a personality. Ours is temperamental, cranky, conceited, and unreliable. If it were a horse it would have to be shot.

Driving our car is bad enough, but parking it is nigh impossible. It's more a case of abandoning the thing.

I'm not sure what the critics were so worried about. TV hasn't replaced the radio half so much as they have both replaced studying school lessons.

Today beware of the noble person who is suffering in silence. They are sometimes apt to have a lot to say about it later . . .

A Princess Turns Her Hand to Cooking

THE reigning Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Mary Ann Titrud of Clarissa, Minn., demonstrated another of the many talents which helped win her selection as this year's queen of the dairy industry when she participated in this month's Winona Dairy Foods Festival Cooking school at Senior High School auditorium. The school was conducted by home economist Mrs. Kay Goergen of Winona with Princess Kay and Winona County's 1965 Dairy Princess, Jody Waldo, on stage to lend a helping hand. Miss Titrud is seen on today's Sunday Magazine cover at the food preparation table at the auditorium demonstration taking her turn at preparation of one of the dairy foods recipes.

The Schulers Find Relaxation Outdoors

In a Busy Life, Time for Camping

The Robert Schulers of Long Island, N.Y. — he's the son of Mrs. C. C. Schuler, Winona, and she's singing star Patrice Munsel — are subjects of a feature article in the current issue of the nationally circulated magazine, Better Camping.

The story by Dorothy Madlee, illustrated by photographs by Don Wood, tells of the enthusiasm of the Schulers for the outdoors and their camping activities with their four children, Heidi, 12; Rhett, 10; Scott, 7, and Nicole, 6.

In a footnote to the story, Better Camping explains that "Getting the story of Patrice Munsel's camping family was not at all easy. They do not stay in one place very long. But a knotty problem in logistics was solved by having Dorothy Madlee interview Miss Munsel between shows in Chicago and Don Wood photograph the Schulers between rain showers on Long Island."

Miss Madlee is a feature writer for the Boston Record American-Sunday Advertiser and a free-lance writer. Her teenage novel about zoo people and animals, "Miss Lindlow's Leopard," was published last year and another is in the making. Wood is a commercial photographer and a frequent magazine contributor.

Excerpts from the article, "A Star Goes Camping," were made available to the Sunday News in the belief that their camping activities would be of special interest to Winona and area people.

The Robert Schulers have been in Winona for visits with his mother and brother, William Schuler, and his family who live at 726 Johnson St.

TWO men paused during their mountain hike, listening. A clear, powerful soprano was singing "Villia" from "The Merry Widow," orchestrated by the twilight whispering of leaves and the silvery chuckling of a small, swift-running brook.

The song broke off. There was a chattering of children. A dog barked. A man spoke, was answered and someone laughed. Then a raucous voice made a remark the men in the woods couldn't understand.

"Ye gods! If I wasn't in the Vermont mountains I'd swear that was a parrot," one of them said.

As they walked on, the lovely voice they'd heard first began again, this time in a fragment of "Bali Ha'i" from "South Pacific."

"It couldn't be," the second listener said, "but for a moment I'd have sworn that was Patrice Munsel singing."

It was. The Robert Schuler family was camping as they often do. And Mrs. Schuler, who is Patrice Munsel, was singing just because she felt like it. She often breaks into song spontaneously when the whole family is together in some beautiful wild place. And the squawky sounds were indeed spoken by a parrot. Her name is Sonia and she goes everywhere with the Schulers.

The Schuler campsite may be in the eastern mountains, on a beach in the Virgin Islands, beside a Texas arroyo, at a skiing center in Europe, or in a wooded section of their own 10 acres near Brookville, Long Island, N.Y. They sometimes camp out overnight on their own land to the delight of Heidi, 12; Rhett, 10; Scott, 7, and Nicole, 6.

Jason, the Great Dane, Delilah, the poodle, the talkative Sonia, and whatever hamsters, turtles, baby alligators and other pets the children have on hand go camping with them. The least experienced Schuler camper is Marlene, a dog who appears to be almost entirely dachshund. Marlene joined up one morning at the house the Schulers were living in while Miss Munsel was singing a long engagement in Dallas. The children welcomed her. After inquiries failed to turn up an owner, the long small dog became a part of the Schulers movable menage.

The Schulers have a vivid, vital love of life and motion. Their adventures are embarked upon suddenly because, for people of their volatile temperament, it's more fun to act spontaneously than it would be to make long-range plans and act predictably on them.

Their method might be called camping elegantly. Usually the cook goes along, and on long trips the company will include the children's governess and the chauffeur/butler. Time is the most precious commodity for the coloratura star and her producer-director husband and it is only reasonable to avoid as much detail as possible to save time for relaxing together as a family.

'My Husband's a Gypsy and I Love Our Kind of Life'

NEXT! . . . Seven-year-old Scott Schuler is in a hurry to retrieve his soft drink glass from his father, Robert Schuler, during lunch on a camping excursion the Schulers made to wooded land near their home on Long Island. Keeping a watchful eye on the proceedings in the rear is Scott's 10-year-old brother, Rhett. The family frequently camps out during their travels and when they're at home they often plan impromptu camping trips to areas nearby for a day of relaxation. Usually they're accompanied by family pets that include a Great Dane, a poodle, a talkative parrot and an assortment of hamsters, turtles or other pets that the children may have at the moment.

"My husband's a gypsy and I love our kind of life," Miss Munsel said. "Some people need to be settled, to plan ahead. A life like ours would drive them out of their minds. I suppose I learned spontaneity from my parents in Spokane. One or the other would say, 'Let's go to the Rockies,' or 'Let's go to Seattle,' and we'd simply go."

The pattern of spontaneity has not changed. Miss Munsel recalls a New Year's Eve before the camping enthusiasm began.

"My husband and I went to a ski resort in New York. When we got there it was 10 degrees below zero. We took our skis out of the car and looked at each other. We looked at the frozen faces of the other skiers.

"He said, 'Let's go to Puerto Rico.'"

"We put back the skis, drove home and shocked our staid and proper English butler with our plans.

"'But Madam, you are giving a dinner party Saturday night,' he gasped.

"'All right, we'll be home Saturday afternoon,' I replied. He almost swooned. But we did return Saturday afternoon, and the party was a great success."

The Better Camping article tells how the Schulers bought their first camper unit in the summer of 1964 before the concert season started and, although there was no time for real camping immediately, Miss Munsel used it on an eight-city nationwide tour as an auxiliary dressing room, storage area and relaxing area.

She found it especially useful when she was in San Francisco where she lived an hour's drive from the theater and after a last performance for the day could get into the mobile unit, change to slacks, have a bite to eat and nap on the way, squeezing out an extra hour of rest in a busy schedule.

A trip to the Virgin Islands with their camping equipment had to be postponed but Miss Munsel insists, "I've always wanted to camp on a tropical beach, and we're still going to do it. Won't it be heavenly? Water skiing in the daytime, the sound of the sea while we sleep, and all of us feeling like nomads."

They also dream, when time allows, of shipping the camping equipment to Europe. They will camp near a major ski spot and that, too, will be "heaven," combining the restfulness of their family camp with the exhilaration of skiing.

CHOW TIME . . . Cooking is fun in the "campground" on the Schuler property on Long Island. Here Mr. and Mrs. Schuler set up shop for a lunch during a day with their children. Mrs. Schuler was a camping enthusiast even before she became known as singing star Patrice Munsel. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Audley Munsel of Spokane, Wash., often took her with them when she was a child on hunting and fishing trips within driving distance of their home. Despite her demanding career she has energy left over for skating, skiing, swimming, water skiing, riding and camping.

Meanwhile, the story continues, the Schulers are not the kind to let even one brief day of free time go to waste.

"Let's go camping in our own woods," Patrice proposed one day.

The trick was to maintain the illusion of getting away from familiar things. There was a flurry of loading the car with camper and overnight supplies. The animals were rounded up. Everyone piled in and Robert Schuler devised a roundabout course to a wooded place near a small river, quite out of sight and sound of the house.

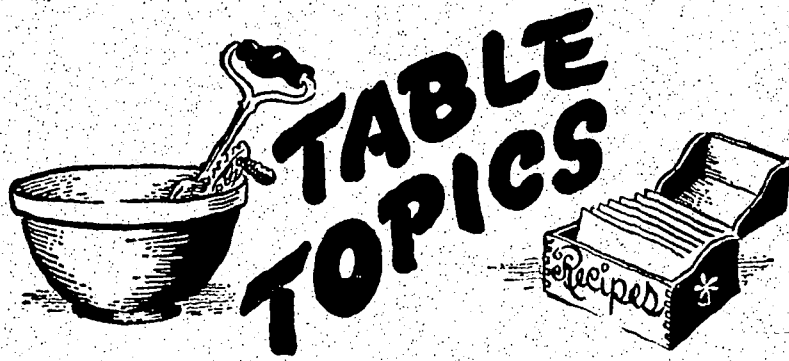

Unspoken rules helped preserve the illusion of distance and adventure. If anything had been forgotten, nobody suggested going to the house to get it. Home was far away. Even the dogs kept up the pretense. Scott's favorite turtle took advantage of the sudden plunge into the wilderness by starting a turtle-sprint toward the riverbank. It was caught and brought back to camp.

"We had a perfectly delightful time," Miss Munsel said later. "We've done the same thing several times since and it never fails to be fun."

In early summer there was time for a real camping trip in the Vermont mountains. The whole family loved it. It was, at last a real, down-to-earth camping experience. That was what they wanted.

Camping is one of the ways the Schulers — busy parents and happy, adaptable children — keep their interests together as a close-knit family. Lucky for all, there is not a tenderfoot nor a temperamental prima donna among them.

Your Cooking Can Have the 'Gourmet Touch'

ONE of the highlights of this year's Winona Dairy Foods Festival was a cooking school presented by Mrs. Kay Goergen for some 900 appreciative and enthusiastic women at Senior High School auditorium.

Mrs. Goergen, who is home economist for Northern State Power Co. here and lives at 351 W. Wabasha St., keyed her demonstration to the theme, "The Gourmet Touch to Everyday Cooking," and treated her audience to step-by-step preparation of a number of recipes using fresh dairy sour cream and butter. For those who were unable to attend the cooking school, Mrs. Goergen agreed to furnish her recipes for presentation on this page today.

Of her audience at the auditorium, Mrs. Goergen — who appears frequently in food preparation demonstrations in communities throughout the area which NSP's Hiawatha Division serves — said, "You couldn't have asked for a better and more interested group."

The biggest problem encountered in such a project, she explains, "is the spacing and timing so that everything comes out at the right time."

Of her recipes she says that one that she always likes to prepare is Baked Alaska because "there are so many women who think that because this is a fancy dessert it's probably too hard to prepare. Actually, it's very easy and it's a handy one, too, because it can be frozen."

Here, then, are the recipes Mrs. Goergen used for her demonstration of how to bring gourmet cooking into anyone's kitchen.

Chicken-Pork Divinity

- |  |                                  |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 1 lb. boneless lean pork, cut in 2 in. strips (about 2 cups) | 1/4 tsp. rosemary                |
| 2 cups white chicken meat, cut in 2 in. strips               | 1/4 tsp. mace                    |
| 1/4 cup butter, melted                                       | 1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese    |
| 1 1/2 cups (12 oz. can) apple juice                          | 1/2 cup Macademia or cashew nuts |
| 1 tsp. salt  | 1/4 cup chopped pimiento         |
|  | 2 cups dairy sour cream          |
|  | Cream, if necessary              |

Brown pork and chicken in butter. Add apple juice, salt, rosemary and mace; simmer about 45 minutes or until meat is tender. Stir in Swiss cheese, nuts and pimiento, cooking until cheese melts. Add sour cream and heat over low temperature; do not allow to boil. Thin with a little cream if too thick. Serve from chafing dish in Cheddar Noodle Cups. (If held, blend 2 tablespoons flour with each cup sour cream before adding).

Cheddar Noodle Cups

- Buttered muffin tins, 2 oz. cups. Preheated 300° oven.
- |  |                               |
|--|-------------------------------|
| 2 1/2 cups (5 oz. can) chow mein noodles | 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese |
|  | 1 egg white                   |

Mix together thoroughly noodles, Cheddar cheese and egg white. Press firmly into bottom and sides of muffin cups. Bake 12 - 15 minutes. Yield: 8 cups.

Little Apricot Loaves

- |  |                         |
|--|-------------------------|
| 1 cup chopped dried apricots, (uncooked) | 1 1/2 cups flour        |
| 1/2 cup brown sugar                      | 2 tsp. baking powder    |
| 1 cup milk                               | 1 tsp. salt             |
| 1 egg, beaten                            | 3/4 cup quick oatmeal   |
| 1/4 cup melted shortening                | Grated rind of 1 orange |

Preheat oven to 375°F. Combine chopped apricots, brown sugar and milk. Add beaten egg and melted shortening and stir until well mixed. Into another bowl sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Add to the batter mixture. Blend in oatmeal and orange rind. Spoon into six well-greased 6-oz. frozen-fruit concentrate cans. Bake in a moderate (375°F.) oven 30 minutes. Cool 5 minutes; ease out of cans with spatula. Cut end out of can. This bread slices best the second day into dainty little round slices.

Noodles Romanoff

- |                               |                                |
|-------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 2/3 cup noodles               | 2 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce    |
| 1 cup cottage cheese          | Dash Tabasco Sauce             |
| 1 cup sour cream              | 1/2 tsp. salt                  |
| 1/4 cup onion, finely chopped | 1/2 cup Cheddar cheese, grated |
| 1 clove garlic, finely cut    |                                |

Cook noodles. Add cottage cheese, cream, onion, garlic, Worcestershire Sauce, Tabasco, salt, and pepper. Place in buttered baking dish (8 in.) Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 30 minutes. Remove from oven, sprinkle with cheese, return to oven for 10 minutes. Serves 6.

Ham and Asparagus Rolls with Cheese Sauce

- |                      |                               |
|----------------------|-------------------------------|
| 2 cups milk          | 1 cup grated cheese           |
| 4 tablespoons flour  | 6 slices ham, boiled or baked |
| 4 tablespoons butter | Mustard                       |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt    | 1 can asparagus tips          |
| 1/8 teaspoon pepper  | Slivered almonds              |

Make cream sauce with butter, flour and milk. Add salt and pepper. Add cheese and stir until melted. Remove from heat. Lay 3 or 4 pieces of asparagus on each ham slice that has been spread with mustard. Roll up and fasten with toothpicks. Place in a buttered baking dish and top with cream sauce. Sprinkle with almonds. Bake 20-25 minutes in a moderate (375°F.) oven. Serves 6.

Stuffed Avocado Salad

- |                              |                     |
|------------------------------|---------------------|
| 2 avocados                   | almonds             |
| 3 oz. cream cheese           | Salt                |
| 2 T. Bleu cheese             | Grapefruit sections |
| 2 T. lemon juice             | Lettuce             |
| 3 T. blanched finely-chopped |                     |

Peel avocado pears, cut in half, remove seed. If cavity is small, remove small amount of meat. Blend cream cheese, Bleu cheese, lemon juice and salt. Add almonds. Fill avocados with cheese mixture; place halves firmly together. Wrap in saran or waxed paper. Chill for several hours. Place grapefruit sections on lettuce leaves, arrange 3 or 4 sections of grapefruit. Cut avocados in slices and arrange around grapefruit sections. Pass French Dressing. Serves 6.

Orange-Pear Salad

- |                          |               |
|--------------------------|---------------|
| 2 large oranges, peeled  | Lettuce       |
| 1/3 cup dairy sour cream | 8 pear halves |

DRESSING

- |                         |                                   |
|-------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1 cup dairy sour cream  | 1/4 tsp. grated lemon rind        |
| 1 1/2 tablespoons honey | 1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds |
- Cut each orange into 4 slices. For each salad, spread 2 slices with sour cream and put together. Arrange lettuce on plates. Place orange slices between two pear halves. Stand on lettuce with large end of pear base. Top with dressing made by blending sour cream with honey and lemon rind. Sprinkle sesame over each salad. Serves 4.

Cheesy Corned Beef Barbecue Sandwiches

- |                        |                             |
|------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 12 oz. can corned beef | 2 tsp. prepared mustard     |
| 6 slices bread         | 2 tsp. vinegar              |
| 1/2 cup catsup         | 2 tsp. finely chopped onion |
| 2 tsp. horseradish     | 6 slices Cheddar Cheese     |

Chill corned beef. Cut corned beef lengthwise into 6 slices. Place a slice of corned beef on a slice of bread. Combine catsup, horseradish, mustard, vinegar and onion. Spread half of sauce over corned beef. Top each sandwich with slice of cheese. Broil 6 inches from heat until cheese melts and sandwiches are hot. Serve remaining sauce with sandwiches.

Lime Sherbet in Choco-Nut Cups

- |                         |   |
|-------------------------|---|
| 1 pint sherbet          | 2/3 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces, melted |
| 1/2 cup chopped nuts    |   |
| 2 cups shredded coconut |   |

Combine nuts and coconut with melted chocolate. Rub muffin pan with softened butter. Spoon coconut mixture into muffin pan and press to form shells. Place shells in refrigerator to harden. To serve, unmold shells and fill each with sherbet or ice cream. Serves 6.

Baked Alaska

Bake half recipe Egg Sponge Cake or use baked Angel Food Cake (shape cake as desired - loaf or round). Place on aluminum foil-covered board.

MERINGUE - Beat 6 eggs whites until frothy. Add 1 1/2 teaspoons cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar. Continue beating until meringue is stiff and glossy. Pile ice cream on cake. Completely cover ice cream and cake with meringue. Place in a very hot (500°) oven for 3 to 5 minutes or until meringue is delicately browned. Slip the dessert from board to serving platter. Serve immediately.

Work to Enhance a Lovelier Self

Let's Keep Femininity in Style!

STARK lingerie and undergarments are out, in this man's catalog of womanly charms. They have never been in, as far as I am concerned, for they neither enhance the woman nor attract the man.

In times past, feminine (all right, even frilly) lingerie were practically the birthright of the rich. Few women who could afford frothy, lacy confections passed them by. The plain, unadorned garments were the lot of the poor, the working classes. But in time, the pretty, delicate-looking things became available in most price ranges, and as people earned more money, most women found that they could afford lovely lingerie and undergarments.

Well, it should come as no news to you that in the world of fashion, innovation is prized. Change in itself is valued (it obviously stimulates buying waves) and so well-enough was not left alone. Instead, as a so-called reaction to pretty things, the stark school established itself and began to make a lot of noise. And of course, women being what they are, some of you were impressed by the hoopla and the cries for independence.

Okay. But independence from what? From looking pretty? From small aids that assist your sometimes flagging sense of femininity? From the absolutely terrible drudgery of having pretty things at reasonable prices? From admitting that you're feminine and enjoy it? From pleasing the man in your life?

The way I see it, this new trend is one more giant step toward the goal of defeminizing you, for what purpose I would be the last to conjecture. For you see I like you the way you are. I like feminine curves, translucent fabrics, the subtle promise of lace—and I am ready to stand up and be counted.

I find nothing feminine or appealing about dull and solid-colored opaque nylon, no matter how quickly it dries. I find nothing attractive in a loose-hanging sleep shift, no matter how comfortable it may be. And I find nothing romantic in hard-colored geometric zigzags, or in clashing bands of color that make you look like a girl trying hard not to look like one.

Lace, chiffon and organdy on the other hand, do everything possible to enhance your lovelier self. They hint, imply, suggest. They flatter and soften. They are, in short, romantic—a word rapidly going out of style but one that still describes precisely the way a woman is supposed to look in her boudoir. It is also how she's supposed to feel, and these lacy, frothy things encourage her to feel that way. They give her a different image of herself, free from the daily tailored and efficient person that may be her other self.

You see, that is one of the glorious facts about women: You have many selves for the different lives you lead. To ignore one of them—and romantic femininity is perhaps the most important of all—is a foolish, act. And to what purpose? Utility is no substitute for sexiness, no matter what the current way of the world may lead you to believe.

No, the results of the stark new garments is a feeling of unremitting neutrality—and who wants to remain neutral in the battle of the sexes?

FASHION MIRROR

For the winter trip south, or for the summer ahead, the shift-and-shorts set will be around in increasing numbers. The shift, worn very short—usually well above the knee—is often sleeveless and collarless, with at least a couple of good-sized slits. The slits of course play peek-a-boo with the matching shorts worn beneath (Bermuda or Jamaica are the most frequent lengths). Most often the dress is brightly patterned. The shorts are either the same pattern or a solid color that coordinates with the dress.

These little outfits are ideal for cruise wear, for beaches when you're not swimming, and for general vacation sportswear use. And don't be surprised if your more adventurous friends wear them with the baby carriage.

FASHION TIP

One sign of a well-dressed woman is her willingness to experiment, to depart a bit from the usual without crossing over the line to the garish. It is frequently small things that give a woman that certain something. And what could be a smaller detail than the placement of a piece of jewelry? Yet it can make a big difference in your total appearance.

The usual jewelry spots are either side of your dress or suit, but I suggest that you consider dead center. On some dresses that is exactly the right spot for your most important pin, especially if the pin or dress is symmetrical. It may really help the dress and will surely call attention to your pin.

Two Heads (Of Hair) Are Better Than One

VIDAL SASSOON'S short cut, sculptured to the head.

JOHN GARRISON'S look is easy and swinging.

The long and short of spring hairdos will be a little of both. Short for daytime fun and sports and a long hairpiece for romantic evenings.

True — many young girls wear shoulder length hair and trends have a way of starting with youth.

But back at the beauty salons the short-long idea has caught on. It provides an opportunity to have two or more heads of hair. Most hairdressers promote it.

Vidal Sassoon is an exception. The London hair designer showed his "architectural" hairdo at a recent New York fashion preview. It seemed to have few takers. It was just too short.

In comparison, John Garrison of Chicago promotes an "upbeat" hair style created with loops, swept from a top layer and at back.

SASSOON'S CUT WAS unkind to blondes. It looked better on models whose topknots had been dipped in a Black Velvet dye, accentuating the look.

"The hair is not going to be anything like a tight helmet" commented John Bernard, artistic director of Inter-Coiffure, an international hair dressing organization.

"It's an ugly style and will seem even more repulsive when it is worn with the new short skirts. That unattractive dimpled area at the back of the knees and a chopped hairdo would make an utterly revolting picture."

Bernard is showing fluffy hair with lots of curl, "a lot of movement," he says, not shoulder length but with a shaped back. He expects women will wear a cascade of hair for evening.

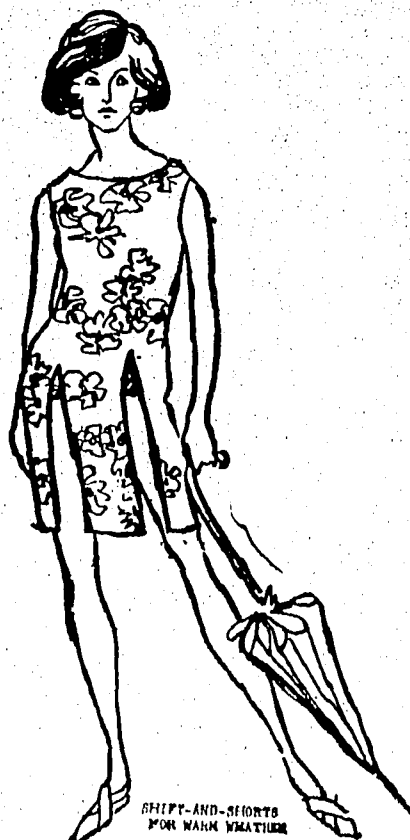

KENNETH BATTELLE goes along with the inevitable as he has been doing for the last six months or so — women will wear their hair the way they like it from chin to shoulder length. "The individual look is still with us," he repeats.

"Short, but not too-short hairdos for day and long hairdos for evening."

The long evening hairdo is an added hair piece as far as Kenneth is concerned. He likes the romantic look of a curl over one shoulder. Heads will be small, he says, not curly.

THE PAGE BOY COIF may be making a return engagement. Michel Kazan's hairdos for dress designer James Galanos spring fashions showed long hair turned under, ideal for his new loose from the shoulder billowing styles.

While page boy hairdos come and go as styles, it is one that has never really been out for certain women, explains one hairdresser who says that when he doesn't know what else to do for certain socialite customers he gives them "a sleek page boy." He thinks it is the ideal hairdo to wear with a good suit, and feels that hairdressers should try to find more variations of it.

It's Mary Tyler Moore

Photogs Choose G.I. Pin-Up Girl

By CHARLES WITBECK

In this town of "show business knowitalls," few stars — you can count them on your fingers — are safe from a knock, or a disparaging remark. A slurring word, perhaps out of envy, can be heard on just about everybody, even a Julie Andrews.

But, each year, a few untouchables manage to be classified as "all-good," and in television, at the moment, no one puts the knock on Mary Tyler Moore, Dick Van Dyke or Andy Williams.

Mary Tyler Moore has been in this exalted stage of grace for about two years. Everyone marvels at her acting talent which she wasn't expected to have, so this is a big bonus. No one knocks her sexiness, her gorgeous legs, her dancing ability, her nose or even her surprising humor. Occasionally a wise guy carps about Mary's high nasal tone, but he is quickly shushed up.

AT THE MOMENT Mary Tyler Moore, wife of NBC programming executive Grant Tinker, another All-American nice guy type, is the ideal girl in town, the dame most men would like to have as a wife, and, as such, she is the perfect choice for pin-up photos now being sent to servicemen in Viet Nam.

It seems pin-up pictures died out with Rita Hayworth and Betty Grable in the "old war," World War II. Photographers don't bother with that sort of stunt any more, and movie studios aren't pushing such photos either.

Evidently no one consulted the servicemen on the situation. A Marine got into the act, and complained that the only pin-up pictures available in the sixties were those of unknown starlets obviously hunting for publicity. What was wrong with Hollywood stars anyway? Were the big names above posing for pin-ups?

The Marine's beef hit the papers, and Mrs. Tinker read the item. Mary had always avoided cheese-cake photos, but now her dander was up, and she allowed that she was available for pin-ups to go to servicemen.

THE IDEA was taken a step further, as the American Society of Magazine Photographers decided to hold a "Pin-Up Photo Contest," using Mary as the model. The winning picture of Mary

TV Mailbag

QUESTION — Is there any chance at all of the old movie "The Sullivans" ever being shown on TV again? If so, when? I remember having seen it several years ago but would enjoy seeing it again, as would many others, I'm sure. — Mrs. W. S., Duncan, Mississippi.

ANSWER — Three additional requests have been received lately concerning the showing of this film, most unusual since it has been on TV many times for the past several years. Its TV distributor is Screen Gems, and the decision to show it again rests with your local channel. As a footnote, it's not generally known that this movie was produced in 1944 by the former Dr. Zorba of "Ben Casey," Mr. Sam Jaffee.

QUESTION — Was Roberta Peters married to Robert Merrill of the Metropolitan Opera for a short time? — B. J., Columbus, Ohio.

ANSWER — For a short time is right. Both have since remarried. Mr. Merrill's autobiography is currently in the book shops, if you would care to read the details of his life.

SOME PEOPLE ARE GOOD LOOKERS!

If you've ever been involved in selling a home, you know what it means to have a parade of lookers interrupting your privacy. This is one of the less pleasant aspects of putting your house on the market, and we know from experience how to reduce this nuisance to a minimum.

When we size up a home we also size up the prospects... and the only ones we bring to YOUR door are those we are reasonably sure will be genuinely interested in what YOUR home has to offer. It's a great time and energy saver — and it's much, much easier on YOU.

HAPPY SPIES . . . Enemy agent Francois Dorleac has a change of heart after meeting British espionage agent David Niven in WHERE THE SPIES ARE, currently at the State.

Spy Role Changes a Timid Man

David Niven assumes the role of an unlikely foreign agent in WHERE THE SPIES ARE, featured through Tuesday at the State Theatre.

A timid country doctor, Niven is enlisted by British Intelligence as a "sacrificial" espionage agent to work in a Middle East country.

He quickly masters the use of his futuristic spy accessory kit, out-judos would-be killers and proves himself to be a debonair ladies' man. The latter accomplishment turns out to be a fortunate one when a beautiful woman enemy agent, played by Francois Dorleac, becomes so smitten with him that, after he has prevented the assassination of a Lebanese prince, she rescues him from Russian killers.

Miss Dorleac loses her life for her troubles but Niven lives to love again another day.

Two widely-acclaimed comedy productions, TOM JONES and IRMA LA DOUCE, are paired as a double-feature Wednesday through Saturday at the State.

Albert Finney stars in the title role of "Tom Jones," winner of a 1964 Academy Award for "Best Picture of the Year" and Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine cavort through Paris in "Irma La Douce."

Booked for showing at special Kiddies Matinees only next Saturday and Sunday will be the color feature HANSEL AND GRETEL, based on the children's classic.

'Magnificent Men' in High-Flying Comedy

A madcap era in which man made his airplane flights is recalled in THOSE MAGNIFICENT MEN IN THEIR FLYING MACHINES which continues its run this week at the Winona Theatre.

The movie opens in 1910 when Patricia Rawnsley, played by Sarah Miles, convinces her father, Lord Rawnsley, a wealthy and influential newspaper publisher portrayed by Robert Morley, to sponsor an air race from London to Paris and invite flyers from all over the world to compete for the 50,000-pound cash prize.

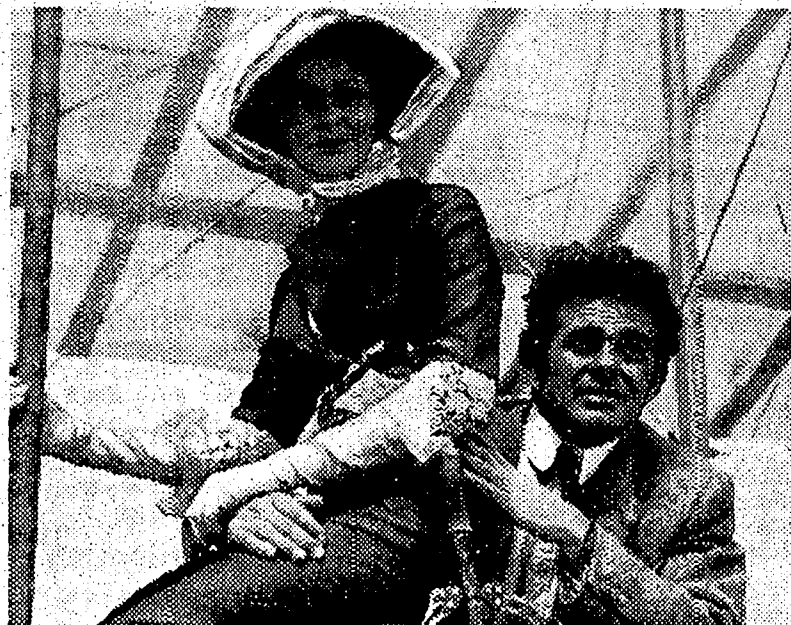

Among those who enter are a Royal Navy lieutenant, James Fox, who Morley hopes will prove that Britannia rules the air as well as the sea; Stuart Whitman, a flamboyant American barnstormer; Gert Frobe, a German cavalry officer intent on bringing glory to the fatherland; Jean-Pierre Cassell; a French daredevil; Italy's fearless Alberto Sordi and Yojiri Ishihara, Japan's dauntless birdman.

Rounding out the group of competitors is Terry-Thomas, as a Britain who plots to secure victory by sabotaging his rivals' flying machines.

As the contestants work at Brookley Airdrome to prepare for the race and indulge in intense rivalry over national honor, Fox and Whitman also are competing for the attention of Miss Miles while the amorous French entry, Cassell, is bedeviled by several girls who look alike.

The story builds to a climax as the day of the race approaches and the comic suspense heightens in the race for the cash award, national honor and Miss Miles' hand.

HEINRICH SCHULTZ: The Seven Last Words of Christ On the Cross, Metrical Psalms, et al. Telemann Society Chorus and Recorder Ensemble, Theodora Schultz, conductor.

Good Friday is not far off and will be attended by Lenten and Easter concerts of many sorts. The Seven Last Words by Schutz is a work that should be performed and heard more frequently for its profound religious expression, for its mastery of style and technique, for its length (only 20 minutes). It would admirably replace the saccharine Lenten music more often heard that takes an hour or so to hear. Schutz was one of the greatest German masters of the Baroque. He was among the first to provide great music with the further consideration of employing his native language. Most of his religious music is set to a German text and he wrote the first German opera.

ONE OF THE pleasures of recorded music is that it may be heard if and whenever wished, and a translation is usually given with the recording.

As recordings go, this one done by the Telemann Society Chorus is interesting, for its interpretation. Schultz left the instrumentation open and most performances include violins. This one features recorders — wooden flutes played vertically and distinguished by their faulty intonation and neuter timbre. But the ear accepts this after awhile as a style characteristic. I suppose, with some allusion to just intonation and the imperfections of our tempered scale.

Whatever that all amounts to, it does not allow for flat singing, or for an organ registered like a Wurlitzer, both heard in this recording. Despite these faults, Schultz comes through it all testimony that great music, even with faulty performance, will stand aloof from it, impressive and strong.

BRAHMS: Sonatas for clarinet and piano
Opus 120, Nos. 1 and 2
David Glazer, clarinet
Frank Glazer, piano
Vox DL 1210

Three years before his death in 1897, Brahms completed his last published compositions — two sonatas for his virtuoso clarinetist friend, Richard Muhlfield. It seemed to Brahms an ideal instrument, with its strongly characterized three registers, to speak of his increasing languor towards his age, and to look back with restrained feeling on a successful life.

And they are full of warmth, gentleness, and love in this performance by David and Frank Glazer. The clarinet tone is clear and lyrical in the upper register, rather mysterious and soft with Brahms' con amore in the middle register, dark and sombre in the chalameau, or low register. Frank Glazer performs with perfect artistry and sensitivity to these characteristics, but joins the clarinet as an equal partner, and the title suggests.

Affirmative Thinking Has Surprising Results

SAY YES! by Ralph Caplan. Doubleday & Co., 279 pages, $4.95.

By JOHN R. BREITLOW

In an often comic novel entitled SAY YES!, fledgling novelist Ralph Caplan pokes some good fun at the academic world and the professional philosophers of success. While the two categories have little overlap in the real world, they find common ground in an upstate Pennsylvania College called Bradlark with far-reaching and amusing results.

The title SAY YES! refers to the key phrase of a "How to Succeed" system called Affirmative Dynamics, as propounded by Dr. J. Cladder Lovelace, the college chaplain and popular author-lecturer, a kind of spiritual Dale Carnegie. His gospel has earned him national reputation and handsome remuneration, plus the scorn of serious philosophers.

Chief scornor of the novel is Gordon Moss, a young philosophy instructor at Bradlark. Moss's opposition to the pompous, popular preacher with the "Yes" convictions is complicated by his diffident nature, lack of tenure, departmental inferiority, and unrequited — even unexpressed — yearning for Dr. Lovelace's comely daughter Barbara.

IRRITATED by student reaction to a chapel program of Dr. Lovelace's, Gordon Moss pens a stinging attack on the "Yes" philosophy of Affirmative Dynamics, exposing its weak reasoning, overlapping purposes, and misleading, inflated language to the unflattering evaluation of the trained analytical mind. He is so impressed with his effort that, on impulse, he submits it to the novel's version of Playboy Magazine — "Good Sport."

To support his onslaught, Moss was naturally forced to read Dr. Lovelace's book. Against his will, its improbable, effusive postulates linger in his mind with the accompanying irritation of a sesame seed lodged between two teeth. They soon dislodge into his life with amazing results.

More for appearance and exercise than love of the game, Gordon Moss is preparing for a round of golf, a sport at which he is far from adept. On the first tee, he is reluctantly paired with the dean of the Philosophy Department, an avid golfer of gruff and remote ways.

After customarily miffing his first shot, Moss mockingly decides to apply Affirmative Dynamics. He decides he will drive the green some three hundred yards away, and does. The balance of the game is characterized by similar feats, making a profound impression on Gordon's superior, as well as on Barbara Lovelace and her father, whom they encounter one the course.

THE GAME culminates with a hole-in-one, a request by the dean to develop a new course that Gordon has been itching to teach, favorable notice from the lovely Barbara, and a request from her father to "tell me your secret." To the amazement of Gordon Moss' manner of asking for it, appears to work in spite of all the reasons it shouldn't.

It works so well, in fact, that Moss later shares the year's "Most Popular Professor" honors with Dr. Lovelace and is about to ask that worthy for the hand of his daughter, having got Bradlark's president to agree to an unheard-of raise in salary because he was impressed with Moss's manner of asking for it.

Nearly forgotten is the essay in Good Sport Magazine attacking Affirmative Dynamics and its creator. When the issue hits the stands, the situation hits the fan. The Lovelaces, father and daughter, will not speak to him, and he is on the carpet in front of the president's desk, awaiting the nearly certain sack.

To Moss' astonishment, the president casually lauds his sensible criticism of Lovelace, contending that in spite of his short-sighted public relations people, such publicity gives the college a desirable image of intellectual ferment. Moss finds himself being offered the reins of a new counseling program and encouraged to accept an offer to debate Lovelace on national television.

The plot of SAY YES! is all a bit too contrived and slick to be entirely believable and the author's position on success philosophies is left completely up in the air, but the book is delightful reading. There is some early attempt at character development, but the text is mainly situation and dialog, brisk and refreshing. The author's insight into the foibles and values of the traditional academic community are enjoyably keen, and he has a gift for word caricature that is deliciously accurate. If opportunity for reading SAY YES! is encountered, follow the titles advice.

Fuller's Taj Mahal Of Twisting Words

GAMES FOR INSOMNIACS.
By John G. Fuller. Doubleday. $4.50.

The expressed purpose of this volume is to drive you daffy.

Its subtitle refers to brain twisters, and it presents itself as a "monumental tower of pleasant trivia."

What it really contains is a lot of word games — some clever and some stupid — for solitaire consumption, or party nonsense, or post-martini conversation. Maybe they will catch on as The Thing, for Thinkers.

There is a whole agonizing riot of paronomasia here (puns, to you) and some of this punning is funning. Or would you rather have palindromes? Or maybe you'd like to touch all the states by naming funny places, on the theme of "Noah's Ark."

OR maybe you remember the Tom Swifities ("That dog has no pedigree," he muttered.) Or you could have a weakness for silly slogans, silly headlines, silly menus, silly book titles, silly al-

PICTORIAL HISTORY, John Terraine.

This book is not only a pictorial history, but is written to point out the fatal consequences of militarism, national pride, and the inadequacies of statesmen.

THE HIGH VALLEY, Kenneth E. Read.

An autobiographical account of two years spent in the Central Highlands of New Guinea, a stone-age island in the Malay Archipelago north of Australia.

AMERICAN HOUSES IN HISTORY, Arnold Nicholson.

This book presents some of the most famous American houses, and some lesser ones, of two and a half centuries, beginning with 1610 and ending with the Civil War, phabet constructions. Nothing silly is mist here.

There is no limit to the tortured word-configurations of the devoted gamesman. Such as: "One pregnant Indian wife slept on a hide of elk; another on a buffalo, a third on a hippopotamus skin. The first and second each had a son; the third had twin boys. Moral: The squaw of the hippopotamus is equal to the sons of the squaws on the other two sides."

This is a compendium that gets nuttier as it squirrels a lot of word colonels. Sometimes it is so labored that it seems uncaptivating, and as boaring as a pig's uncle. But if you like to play toe-tac-tic, this could be your anagram. You'll have to take it one square (you) at a time, because you aren't supposed to take it seriously.

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the PRIZEWORDS puzzle by fitting in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully, for you must think them out and give each word its true meaning.
2. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the official entry blank printed in this paper, but no more than one exact-sized, hand-drawn facsimile of the diagram. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED (printed, mimeographed, etc.) copies of the diagram will be accepted.
3. Anyone is eligible to enter PRIZEWORDS except employees and members of their families of the Sunday News.
4. To submit an entry, the contestant must attach the completed puzzle on a 6-cent POSTAL CARD and mail it. The postal card must be postmarked before MIDNIGHT TUESDAY following publication of the puzzle.
5. Entries with insufficient postage will be disqualified.
6. All entries must be mailed and bear a postmark. Entries not attached on a postal card will not be eligible. This newspaper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries not received for judging by 4 p.m. Wednesday following the date of publication of the puzzle are not eligible. Do not enclose entries in an envelope.
7. The Sunday News will award $50 to the contestant who sends in an all-correct solution. If more than one all-correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all-correct solution is received $10 will be added to the following week's PRIZEWORDS AWARD.
8. There is only one correct solution to each PRIZEWORDS puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges' decisions. All entries become the property of the Sunday News. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.
9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win, for EVERY ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winners announced. No claiming of a prize is necessary.
10. Entries must be mailed to: PRIZEWORDS, Winona Sunday News, Box 70, Winona, Minnesota.
11. The correct solution to this week's PRIZEWORDS will be published NEXT SUNDAY.
12. The Sunday News reserves the right to correct any typographical errors which may appear during the puzzle game.
13. PRIZEWORDS clues may be abbreviated and such words as AN, THE and A omitted.
14. No entry which has a letter that has been erased or written over will be considered for judging.

Last Sunday's Prizewords puzzle proved to be too tough for players of the word game, few of whom were able to even come really close to the correct solution.

Since no one was to select all 16 letters that would have provided the right answers to last week's clues, the $60 reward offered for a winning entry stays in the jackpot and to it is added the $10 that goes in each week there isn't a winner.

THAT means that a check for $70 will go to the one person who is able to hit on the solution to today's puzzle and send in an entry in accordance with all of the rules.

About the best anyone could do last week was to come within three letters of a winning entry.

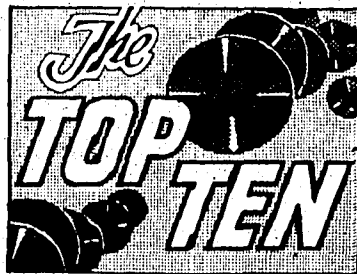

Among those whose entries were marred by only three mistakes was our regular player from New Albin, Iowa, Rt. 1, Miss Helen Weymiller; Mrs. Anne Hinke, St. Joseph's Hospital, Arcadia, Wis., and Elinor Przytarski, 530 W. 4th St.

OUR Prizewords judges ask that we remind you again to be sure that your puzzle entry is attached to a postcard with four cents postage.

The rules specify that any entry received in an envelope is ineligible for a prize. Remember, too, that cards must bear a postmark of not later than midnight Tuesday to be in the running for a prize.

If there are two or more winners this week the $70 prize money will be divided equally among them.

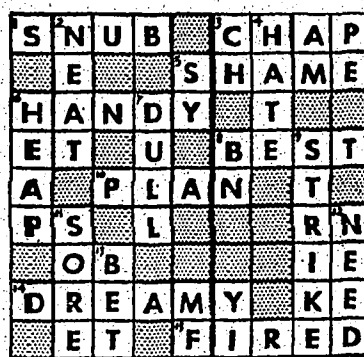

If there isn't a winner in today's word game another $10 will be added next week to raise the bounty for a perfect entry to $80.

Last Week's Correct Prizewords Solution

EXPLANATION OF ANSWERS ACROSS:

1. We're often apt to admire a person who is indifferent to a SNUB (Snob). — A SNUB is a direct, personal affront, and therefore more likely to be hard to take. To be indifferent to a Snob isn't nearly so great a test of character.
3. A man who hasn't time for a friendly CHAP is often the loser thereby (Chat). — A friendly CHAP could be helpful in many ways. This isn't so true of Chat; it could be quite trivial in nature.
5. We're usually glad for his own sake when exposure of his shortcomings tends to SHAME a man (Shake). — When it merely tends to Shake him, it doesn't have a profound effect. SHAME goes much further.
6. A youngster's attempts at being HANDY tend to give his mother many a headache (Hardy). — HANDY is much more to the point; he could end up with broken dishes, bruised fingers, and so on. Hardy, in comparison, is less to the point.
8. It's usually BEST for a youth to have to shoulder responsibility (Test). — Usually understates with Test. Exceptions are more likely with BEST; if he's unfitted for the responsibility, it will do him no good to assume it.
10. The man who is too old to PLAN can scarcely be called a real optimist (Play). — Not Play; physical infirmities might prevent him from playing. PLAN is more to the point; if he thinks he is too old to PLAN, he thinks he has no future. That's no outlook for an optimist.
14. Guests who are DREAMY are scarcely likely to add zest to a party (Dreary). — Attempts by other guests to cheer up the Dreary one might brighten the whole party. This isn't so likely to happen with guests who are DREAMY, who are just not "with" the group.
15. There might be lengthy discussions over money when men are FIRED (Hired). — When men are Hired, the rate of pay is established in advance. But when they are FIRED there might be questions of back pay, overtime, vacation pay, and so on.

DOWN:

2. It often irritates a father when his wife always wants their children NEAT (Near). — The fact that she always wants them Near isn't by any means unreasonable. But always wanting them NEAT is a little too much to expect of children.
4. Workers are apt to be disgruntled when they HATE to work very hard (Have). — HATE completes a straightforward statement. When they have to work hard, they could be well paid and be quite satisfied.
6. It's indeed cynical to say that the best way to win a person's love is with HEAP of money (Help). — Not Help; money provides the means to make life pleasant, to a degree. HEAP implies that the money is the main attraction for the object of affection — much more cynical a statement.
7. Small children are often apt to regard a little baby as DULL (Doll). — The restraint of often apt fits well with DULL. Most children have a lively interest in little babies, and the restraint of the clue is too great with Doll.
9. STRIKE might be disapproved of on principle (Strife). — Might understates with Strife. The doubt implied is more fitting with STRIKE; the STRIKE might or might not be justified.
11. A guest who has shown himself to be SORE at a party is unlikely to be invited again (Bore). — A more definite statement is called for with Bore. The guest who is SORE might be SORE only on that occasion; he need not be angry the next time.
12. It sometimes happens that a great NEED isn't even recognized (Deed). — Sometimes understates with Deed. The restraint is more reasonable with NEED because, for one thing, the NEED is harder to conceal.
13. It's usually because they're confident of success that people who seldom BET do so (Beg). — They might Beg for many reasons. BET is better here; they expect to win.

Be Tops in Your Class

By Bonnie

and Reba Churchill

HERE are some "study right" tips to help you learn faster and remember more. First rule: Don't let assignments pile up. Keep pace with classwork, bring notes up-to-date, and review frequently, not just the night before exams. When studying for a quiz, outline key points on index cards. This habit speeds up reviewing. Also, as actress Dawn Wells discovered, comprehensive notes and outside reading give the overall picture of the subject, not spot coverage. Such concentrated attention pays off in knowledge and high marks.

ORGANIZATION and grade improvement go hand-in-hand. Whenever possible, set aside a special time for homework, and do the hardest subject first! It's better not to work for several hours without a break, but divide study span into two or three sessions. Research shows too much time on a single subject tends to dull interest. Dawn, seen on the CBS-TV series, "Gilligan's Island," uses this intermittent plan when studying 55 pages of script each week.

KEEP YOUR NOTES orderly. It should never take more than 12 seconds to find notes on any course. It won't if each subject is separated by a divider and the initial page of each assignment is clearly labeled. When reviewing material, note or type major points on 3x5 cards. Did you forget any important items? If so, write them on the paper in a different color ink. Now, when you skim through review cards, the forgotten data will loom out bold and definite. It's difficult to overlook the mental picture such underscoring makes.

TEENS FRONT

Linda Buswell

This year's Student Council president at Winona Senior High School is Linda Buswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Buswell, 936 W. King St.

Linda was last fall's homecoming queen, has been class secretary for two years, a cheerleader for two years, a member of the Pep Club three years, Future Teachers of America one year, Modern Dance Group, Drill Team and participated in the all-school production.

She's a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and its youth group and her hobbies are dancing and sewing.

She plans to attend Winona State College and major in elementary education. Linda has three sisters and four brothers.

Bruce Volkart

Bruce Volkart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Volkart, Minnesota City, has been a member of the Senior High School Student Council for two years.

He participated in last year's district Science Fair, is a member of the National Honor Society, is active in the World Affairs Program and has been a member of the Spanish Club for three years.

Volkart is a member of McKinley Methodist Church and its MYF organization. His hobbies are hunting, fishing and stock cars.

He plans to enroll in pre-engineering courses at Winona State College and probably transfer later to the University of Minnesota.

He has one brother and one sister.

Pin-Up Girl: 1966 Vintage

Eleven of Hollywood's best picture takers showed up one evening last fall at photographer Tom Kelly's studio to fire away at Mary, dressed in a sexy, but demure costume.

Each man was allowed ten minutes to shoot after he had arranged his lights. Available props consisted of a chair, or a circular leopard skin covered ottoman, placed on a huge white layer of paper which rolled back and up to provide a white backdrop.

Each photographer, with his competitors looking on, tried to shoot something different. One might emphasize Mary's remarkable legs, another would move in close to concentrate on that face.

"We shoot on the cuff," said photographer Lou Jacobs, the eventual winner, after his ten minutes. "We don't know what we'll have to work with when we arrive, so none of us can plan ahead. You walk in, size up the lighting possibilities, look at the girl and the begin."

Tom Kelly, known for his famous shots of Marilyn Monroe, added, "It's the girl who makes the pinup. I think the pin-up is a dead pigeon, but this girl may bring it back."

AS ONE PICTURE taker followed another Miss Moore stood, ready to smile, turn, stretch or simply sit and purr like a kitten. One photographer simply told Mary to make dancing moves, and he fired away as the actress spun, twirled, dipped and kicked, using all sorts of dancing gestures with her arms and legs. In ten minutes the man had 80 some odd pictures.

"It pays to shoot fast at times," commented Kelly. "That fellow took a whole different approach."

Waiting his turn, photographer Ken Whitmore pointed out that a photographer is only as good as his model. "You can see how professional Mary is," Whitmore remarked, "by all those moves she just made. She knows what her body looks like when she moves, so she knows exactly what to do. Each gesture emphasized her good points."

The photographic sitting took all evening, and Mary submitted patiently, smiling, twisting, turning like a perfectly trained model. For a final shot, magazine photographer Lou Greene assembled all included in the proceedings — from press agents to hair dresser Donna McDonough — behind Mary, and Lou kept urging the group to close ranks around the star.

"My," murmured Mary, as Greene jabbered, "I feel like Gloria Swanson."

DEAR ABBY:

Some Good Advice That Bears Repeating

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 20, and for nearly five years I have carried one of your columns in my wallet. It is so worn I can scarcely read it, but it's done me more good than any single thing I've ever read. Please reprint it, Abby, for girls who need the advice as much today as I did then. I am enclosing the column. I am the girl who wrote the letter signed "Mother Hater."

Sincerely yours,
"WISER NOW"

DEAR WISER: Yes, I'll reprint the column. And here it is:

"Dear Abby:

You will probably think I am a monster, but I am a girl of 14 and I hate my parents. Especially my mother. She is so old-fashioned it's pitiful. She wants to pick out all my clothes and tell me how to wear my hair. And I am the only girl in our crowd who doesn't wear eye make-up. She won't let me go in cars with boys. All she worries about is my reputation, and I swear I haven't done anything wrong. She is killing my chances to go with the right kids and be popular.

Don't tell me to talk it over with her because she will only give me a long lecture on this bull about how it's all for my 'own good.'

I would like to be able to tell her things but, heck, I don't want to get killed. I hate to sneak behind her back, but I have no other choice. I sure wish I had a different mother.

"Dear Mother Hater:

Girls your age, who feel as you do, regard all adults as the enemy. Perhaps a letter from a girl your age with a different point of view on the same subject will help you more than any advice I could offer:

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and think more girls my age should appreciate mothers who love them enough to care about what they do. I feel sorry for young girls my age whose mothers let them go in cars with boys, wear eye make-up and hair-dos that are too old for them.

I am not allowed to go on car dates until I am 16. My mother helps me select my clothes. I wear no make-up to school, and only a little on special occasions. My mother has lived a lot longer than I have, and I have learned from experience that when she forbids me to do something she always has a good reason for it. I am thankful that I have a mother who loves me enough to raise me right. FOURTEEN AND LUCKY"

DEAR ABBY: Why doesn't some smart jeweler design a ring to be worn by widows and divorcees to let men know that they are available? It could be some simple little band with a heart or some other symbol on it. One look at that and a man would know at once that there is no husband on the scene.

NEW IDEA

DEAR NEW: An eligible man with sufficient interest in a woman to find out whether there is a "husband on the scene" can, and will.

CONFIDENTIAL TO REVEREND F. IN TULSA: No one said it better than Harry Emerson Fosdick: "Vital religion is like good music. It needs no defense, only rendition. A wrangling controversy in support of religion is as if the members of the orchestra should beat the folks over the head with their violins to prove that the music is beautiful."

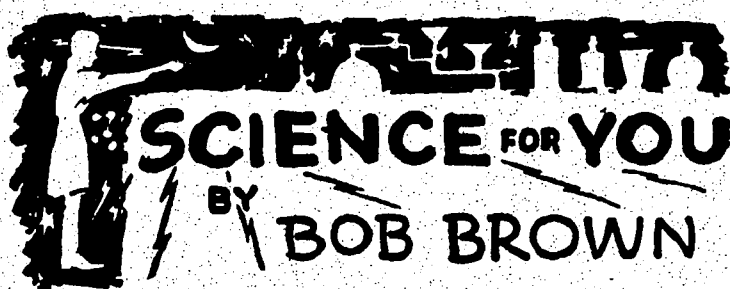

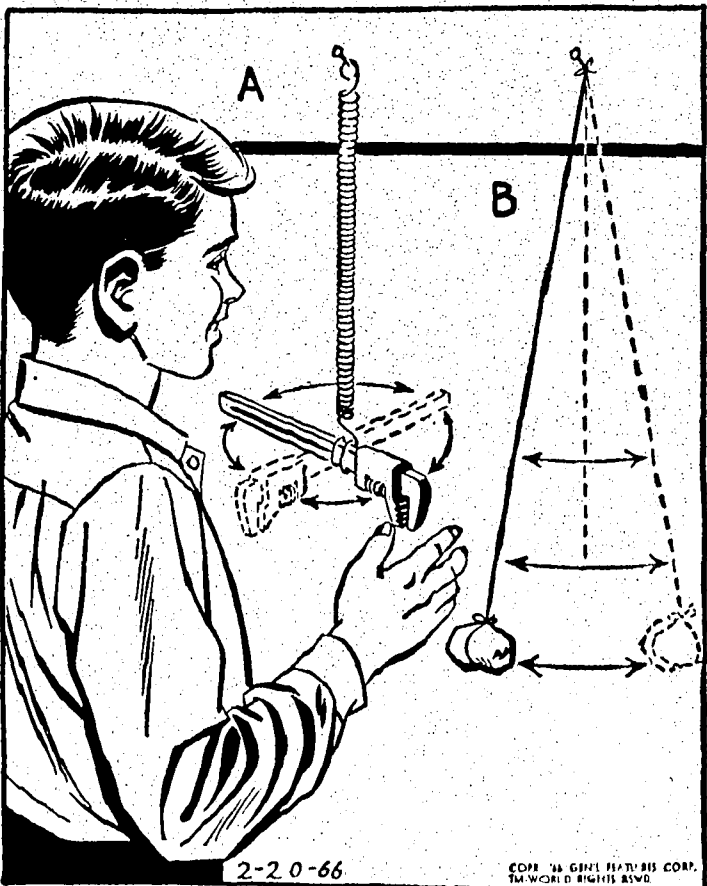

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CONFUSED ABOUT CONSCRIPTION IN CANADA": Conscription varies from country to country. For example, in Ethiopia, the following order was issued by Emperor Haile Selassie in 1935:

- (1) All men and boys able to carry a spear go to Addis Ababa.
- (2) Every married man will bring his wife to cook and wash for him.
- (3) Every unmarried man will bring any unmarried woman he can find to cook and wash for him.
- (4) Women with babies, the blind, and those too aged and infirm to carry a spear are excused.
- (5) Anyone who qualifies for battle and is found at home after receiving this order will be hanged.

Abby

Conditions Shape Pendulum Paths

PROBLEM: Pendulums.

NEEDED: A spring from an old window shade roller, some nails or other weight, some string.

DO THIS: Suspend the spring and the string. Attach weights to each. The weight on the string will swing back and forth in the manner of a pendulum. Its path is not always in one dimension but the outline of the swing is a long, narrow ellipse. The weight on the spring may be made to go up and down or to twist. The outline of its swing may also be an ellipse.

This gives us three types of pendulums.

NEXT WEEK: A Trolley Ride.

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF SPACE is a common decorating problem . . . for apartment dwellers, homes where rooms are small, even in big houses where the families are even bigger.

You can find many ingenious ways to make the most of space. The neat, out-of-the-way corner cupboard in a dining area is a good idea borrowed from yesterday, if you don't have room for a large buffet.

An intriguing bedroom storage idea is to put an extra chest in a closet. Does that sound impractical? Well, if you look over the contents of your closet, you'll find that pretty close to half the things on hangers are short — blouses, sweaters, coats, and the like. You can divide your closet so that these pieces hang over a chest placed on one side . . . with long pieces on the other side.

Another bedroom storage idea, where space is at a premium, is to use larger, roomier chests in place of night stands on each side of the bed.

Handsome chests — to place in bedrooms, halls, living rooms, just about anywhere — are very much in vogue today. You'll find a really handsome selection in our showroom, in styles and sizes to answer your needs — and your space problems! Come in and look them over.

Broader Opportunities for Expression

Versatility, Variety Give Individuality

One of the more welcome advances noted among offerings of furniture manufacturers recently has been toward the design of new groupings around a broader theme to afford the purchaser wider opportunities for greater individuality. Dining room and occasional living room pieces are being created so as to be related in subtle ways. This new approach to furnishing a room broadens the individual aesthetic sense and gives personal distinction. In the setting above the center of attention is the lighted cherry veneered china set against the dark walnut paneled wall. The twin cocktail tables are made of Appalachian oak and are distinctive for their superbly carved pedestal motifs and simple classic lines. The end table is made of rich walnut veneers and pecan solids. The pieces, all drawn from the same motif, are from a new Grand Tour collection.

Popular and versatile, the low dining table or party table is a relative newcomer among furniture designs. The more casual look achieved through the lower height makes it appropriate for living areas as well. The table is from a new collection inspired by design themes drawn from Europe. The mitred table top and chairs are made from fine pecan veneers and solids.
