Although rain fell on the Winona Steamboat Days parade Saturday afternoon, it failed to dampen the enthusiasm of either the marchers or the spectators—at least those who came. Despite a delay of one hour, few of the thousands of parade watchers left the scene. Third Street was lined with people from Laird to Washington Street.

The crowd used every means of protection available, from plastic sheets and raincoats to store canopies. They huddled under umbrellas and crowded into doorways, but they stayed. It was the first time the parade had been held in rain.

ALTHOUGH the rain was still coming down steadily, the parade finally began at 2 p.m. First in the procession was the American Legion color guard, followed by Gov. Harold LeVander, the parade marshal, and Lt. Gov. James Goetz of Winona. They were followed by Winona Mayor R. K. Ellings, State Sen. Roger Laufenburger and State Rep. Frank Theis.

Then came the newly-crowned Steamboat Days Queen Terry Gromek and her attendants, Janet Johnson and Kathy Kendrick.

The girls were followed by a procession of marching units, including drum and bugle corps, such as the Warrior Baton and Drum Corps of La Crosse, the Blue Stars, also from La Crosse, and the Peters Meat Co. of St. Paul.

A HIGHLIGHT was the Decorah Killies Drum Corps from Decorah, Iowa, resplendent in their authentic Scotch kilts.

In between the bands and floats which followed were the clowns and novelty units, such as the Strum seven-man bicycle and Mabel steam engine. Members of the Winona Summer Theatre also put in an appearance on their brightly painted psychedelic tractor.

Shriners on motorcycles and in cars and wagons from Winona, Rochester and St. Paul also were present. The two motorcycle groups, the Winona Sheiks Patrol and another group from Rochester, performed intricate maneuvers on their cycles to the delight of the crowd.

One minor accident, involving a Shriner on a motorcycle and a spectator, was reported. It occurred at 3rd and Walnut streets, when the motorcycle slid into a group.

BESIDES the Steamboat Days Queen, her attendants and the other candidates, beauties from the surrounding area also were present. They included Miss Fridley, Connie Renee Elseth; Miss Red Wing, Judy Peterson, riding on the Red Wing Chamber of Commerce float, and Janet Waldron, La Crescent Apple Festival Queen.

Because of the rain, many of the bands scheduled to appear, couldn't. Of the bands marching, the Coon Rapids band won first place award in Division A, while second place went to the Durand, Wis., band. The top award in Division B was won by the Black River Falls, Wis., Junior High School band. The bands were divided into two divisions on the basis of their enrollments. One band, the Winona Municipal, did not compete.

Judges were Douglas Wood, public schools music staff, and Meryl Nichols, Winona junior high orchestra leader.

THE RAIN also cut down on the number of floats. Judges were Charles Woodward, manager and owner of KSUM radio in Fairmont, Mrs. Woodward, and Francis Vaughan of Winona.

Judged "best of parade" was the Owl Motor Co. float depicting a Viking ship in bright red and gold. Grand award winner was the "Oktoberfest" float from La Crosse, which showed a huge oak leaf amid an orange, brown and yellow backdrop.

The President's Award went to the Doughboy Industries — Elevea Boiler Festival entry.

IN THE regular float division, first prize was won by Trempealeau County Centennial float showing a large stockade; second place, Red Wing Chamber of Commerce float.

Congolese On Rampage

KAMEMBE, Rwanda (AP) — Congolese government troops, routed by rebels aided by white mercenaries, returned to the border city of Bukavu Friday and killed more than 60 persons, including five Europeans, in a wild rampage of revenge, diplomatic and Red Cross officials reported Saturday.

They said disciplined Congolese paratroopers brought calm to the eastern Congo resort city after their arrival by air from Kinshasa, the Congolese capital.

The reports of the refugees from Bukavu to this neighboring nation came as the Congolese radio announced that forces loyal to President Joseph D. Mobutu had defeated mercenaries and rebels in Bukavu, Kisangani — formerly Stanleyville — and Kindu. The radio said the fighting was over.

It said the fighting that started last Wednesday had ended with government forces in control. Mobutu claimed the rebels launched the hostilities as part of an attempted coup plotted in Spain by former Premier Moise Tshombe, who is now in custody in Algeria.

His chartered plane was hijacked while flying over Spain's Balearic Islands and diverted to Algeria. The Congo seeks his extradition to execute him as a traitor and subversive.

NEA Imposes Sanctions in School Action

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The National Education Association executive committee, charging extreme deficiencies, Saturday invoked sanction against the Baltimore, Md. public school system.

The committee, meeting in post national convention session, said it was the first sanction ever imposed by the NEA on a city school system.

The committee said the sanction will notify state departments of education, certification authorities, school placement officials, business and industrial leaders and the citizens of Baltimore of the following situations:

The public school system of Baltimore is so "extremely deficient" that many of the children of the city are being denied the minimum level of education opportunity to which every child is entitled.

Salaries and working conditions of teachers in Baltimore classrooms are so deficient that it is unreasonable to expect professional teachers to continue their struggle against virtually impossible odds to educate the children in the classroom.

Many existing school buildings are ancient and dilapidated, and impair the effectiveness of instruction.

The committee said it would retain the Baltimore school system under its scrutiny and would, if conditions warranted, strengthen the sanction.

It also stands, the committee said, ready to review conditions in Baltimore and remove the sanction if conditions improve sufficiently.

Reds Cross Border Into Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) — Six hundred heavily armed Gurkha troops Sunday patrolled the Hong Kong half of Shu Tau Kok village, where 1,000 Communist Chinese crossed the border and attacked a Hong Kong police station Saturday with rifles and machine guns.

Five police were killed and 13 wounded before the Gurkhas rescued 96 police who had barricaded themselves in the police post and 80 others in a government building 50 yards behind it.

Government officials in this British colony and in London said they believed the attack was "an isolated incident" and did not preclude a Communist Chinese military offensive against Hong Kong. The colony is recovering from Communist rioting and anti-British demonstrations in May and Communist-instigated labor strife in June.

Supt. D. G. McNeill, commander of the police station, said no army or militia uniforms were worn by the Chinese who swarmed across the border, rushed the post 100 yards inside Hong Kong territory, and opened fire.

He would not speculate on whether troops or militia might have been operating in civilian clothes. Many observers in Hong Kong believed that some troops or militia were involved. Reports out of Red China say no one except soldiers and militia is allowed weapons.

The new queen is Miss Terry Ann Gromek, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gromek, 503 Sunset Dr. Her sponsor, Merchants National Bank, is also her employer.

"I feel wonderful," said Miss Gromek following the crowning. "I'm at a loss for words — I really did not expect to win. I would like to thank my parents and sponsor for helping to make this possible."

"Here's hoping that everyone has a good time during Steamboat Days. I hope, too, that I will be able to reign beautifully, just as Kathy Wolfe did last year."

REIGNING ALONG with Miss Gromek during 1967 will be Miss Janet K. Johnson, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome A. Johnson, Windom, Minn., who was chosen first attendant, and Miss Kathleen Kendrick, 21, daughter of Mrs. Clyde Kendrick, Rollingstone, second attendant.

Khrushchev 'In Limbo'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is described in a magazine as living "a sad and relatively lonely life" with his wife, Nina, in a seven-acre fenced compound 15 miles southwest of Moscow.

The description is given in a Parade magazine article, "What the Russians Have Done to Nikita Khrushchev," by editor Jess Gorkin. He says Khrushchev describes how Poulson greeted him at the Los Angeles airport in 1959 and criticized him at a civic dinner, the old man scowls and his bullneck reddens.

Gorkin says he made his contact for the story some time ago through a Russian newsman, whom he did not identify. He did say it is not Alexei Adzhubei, Khrushchev's son-in-law, as reported by some sources. Adzhubei is the former editor of Izvestia who now has a lesser job on the Soviet publication.

The Parade article says the Khrushchevs' four-bedroom country home is one of 10 in the compound, which has a guard-house protecting the entrance.

Gorkin supplies this description of what he calls the 73-year-old Khrushchev's "life in limbo":

"Nikita and his wife are attended by two maids, two cooks, a gardener, two chauffeurs, all paid for by the state. As a pensioner, he receives 550 rubles — $600 — a month.

"Khrushchev lives a sad and relatively lonely life. He sees few people outside his immediate family. Occasionally an old friend will make an appointment to chat, but his many ex-colleagues, even though they live nearby, stay away from this political leper.

"Khrushchev's favorite American is the late President John F. Kennedy. The American who irritated him most was Norris Poulson, a former mayor of Los Angeles. When Khrushchev describes how Poulson greeted him at the Los Angeles airport in 1959 and criticized him at a civic dinner, the old man scowls and his bullneck reddens.

Security Council Called

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptians and Israelis fought jet battles and artillery duels along the Suez Canal Saturday in the most serious breach of their cease-fire since the end of the Middle East war June 10.

Both sides called for an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council in New York which was summoned into emergency session at 6 p.m. Saturday to consider the charges.

Egypt said six Israeli planes bombed the twin cities of Port Said and Port Fuad at the Mediterranean entrance to the canal, killing one civilian and wounding seven others. It said Egyptian jet fighters engaged the Israelis in dogfights. Israel claimed one Egyptian MIG21 was shot down south of Port Said.

The Israelis charged the Egyptians had set off the fighting with artillery attacks on Israeli troops on the east bank of the canal. It said 21 Israelis were killed and 20 wounded.

The first fighting broke out at 9:25 a.m. Both sides reported all hostilities had ended before nightfall.

Radio Cairo broadcasts said Egyptian forces destroyed 3 tanks and 21 armored cars. The Egyptians charged the Israelis had tried to make an armored drive from the south to seize important canal installations at Port Fuad.

The air combat over the entrance of the canal is the first aerial engagement between the Egyptian and Israeli air forces in the six-day war of early June. Egyptian planes never got off the ground.

Israel reported its jet fighters also had strafed Egyptian artillery positions on the west bank of the Suez.

An Israeli army spokesman said the Soviet-built MIG21 of the Egyptian air force was shot down in a dogfight between four MIG21s and two Israeli Mirage jet fighters. The MIG21 is the Soviet Union's most advanced fighter. The Mirage is a French-built jet.

The Israeli announcement said the Egyptian MIGs penetrated 15 miles inside Israeli-occupied Sinai and were intercepted by the Mirages. The three other MIGs fled, the announcement said.

There was no mention of Israeli air strikes on Port Said and Port Fuad in the Israeli announcements.

Luster Lost From Public Image

U.S. Forced Into 'Impossible' Showdown

By JOHN T. WHEELER
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's President Ho Chi Minh has forced the United States into a showdown test of will that U.S. intelligence estimates once rated as impossible.

In 1965, when it was decided to send about 120,000 American troops to rescue South Vietnam from the prospect of defeat, senior U.S. military officers said it was preposterous to think North Vietnam could resist, let alone turn back, a predicted allied victory tide.

But by mid-1967 Hanoi's determination to counter the allied offensive, regardless of the cost in blood and national resources, has forced Washington to a crossroad in the seven-year-long war.

American and Vietnamese military sources say that, unless 100,000 to 140,000 more U.S. troops are sent, the allies may be forced gradually into a defensive posture that could end in stalemate.

This could mean the loss of any hope for a negotiated peace favorable to the allied side.

Even if Washington agrees to all of the recommendations by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander, more troops might be needed later.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, who is on his ninth inspection tour of Vietnam, will recommend to President Johnson how many more troops than the presently authorized 475,000 should be sent. The impression in Saigon is that at least 30,000 to 40,000 more will be authorized. There are 466,000 here now.

But McNamara and the administration must weigh considerations the military men don't have to contend with.

To send 100,000 more men probably would mean three divisions together with helicopter, supply and other support units. Military men here believe this would involve a partial mobilization of reserves, higher draft quotas, higher battle casualties, an additional $10 billion or more in defense spending, the possibility of a tax increase and dislocations in the civilian economy.

Concern is voiced also about the effect of another major buildup on South Vietnam. Saigon sources cite the already overheated economy, government troops who seem to fight a little less with the arrival of each new U.S. division and possible effects on the campaign for winning the allegiance of the peasants.

The Americans, hailed in 1965 as the saviors of Vietnam, have lost luster from their public image for a number of reasons. One is the terrific amount of bombing and artillery used in the countryside.

Queen Shows She Has Answers for Her Boss

Miss Kendrick was quizzed on what she would do if she had planned a surprise party for her husband and he brought his stuffy boss and wife home for dinner.

"I would surprise him and his stuffy boss."

MISS HAGMAN was asked if she felt that the actions of youths in Lake Geneva, Wis., and in Florida represent the typical teen-ager.

"No, I don't think that it is the typical way teens feel. But they do want to be independent and this is one way they can express themselves."

The other four finalists were: Miss Carolyn Taggart, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Taggart, 1717 Gilmore Ave., sponsored by Rush Products; Miss Elaine M. Hagman, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hagman, Hopkins, Minn., Coast to Coast Store; Miss Beyer, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William King, 515 Olmstead St., Winona Fire Fighters Local 575.

OTHER contestants were: Miss Barbara Ann Speltz, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis Speltz, Rollingstone, sponsored by H. Choate & Co.; Miss Karin L. Lofquist, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lofquist, 1711 Gilmore Ave., The Sidewalk Cafe in Miracle Mall Shopping Center; Miss Meredith Meyers, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyers, 421 Sioux St., Happy Chef Restaurant; Miss Barbara Baker, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald D. Baker, Rushford Rd. 1, First National Bank; Miss Barbara Davidson, 21, daughter of John Davidson, St. Paul, Arenz Clothing & Shoe Co.

Miss Carol J. Ratz, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ratz, Minneka, Minn., A & D Bootery, and Miss Mary K. Modjeski, 22, (tallest of the contestants), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Modjeski, 306 Olmstead St., Montgomery Ward & Co.

Trophies were presented by Fred Benning, Jaycee queen chairman, and Jaycee President Earl Flatness. Judges were Mrs. Pat Smiley, a former Miss Minnesota and runner-up in the Miss America contest, currently Minnesota hostess for the Minnesota Brewers Association; Mrs. Harold Molzahn Jr., La Crosse, Wis., a women's fashion consultant; Charles V. Woodward, president and general manager of KSUM radio, Fairmont, Minn.; and Robert Easely, display manager at Dayton's, Rochester.

The pageant, sponsored by the Winona Jaycees, was considered a huge success. In the block-long area near Main Street stage people were seated on wooden bleachers as well as on the brick road and cement sidewalks and standing where ever room was available.

Cities Need Permit To Do Business Under New Tax Law

ST. PAUL (AP) — Even cities and villages must get a permit to do business under Minnesota's new 3 per cent selective sales tax, Atty. Gen. Douglas M. Head ruled Saturday.

The $1 permit is required at each place of business of any concern that will collect the levy, which goes into effect Aug. 1.

Answering a question from East Grand Forks City Atty. Robert A. Matt, the attorney general said the provision includes municipalities.

Head also said the city must collect the tax on its sales of electricity and water. Garbage collection will be tax-free, however, he said.

THE COLLISION occurred in about the center of the wide blacktop highway on a straight stretch, officers said. Mrs. Win-

Out of Control Cycle Knocks Down Three

Three people were knocked down by a Rochester Shrine motorcycle that went out of control near the end of the Steamboat Days parade about 3:15 p.m. Saturday. Their injuries were reported as minor.

Police also reported two car accidents Saturday afternoon; there were no apparent injuries.

THE SHRINERS had just completed their maneuvers and the motorcade was proceeding west when the last machine, driven by Evans Rubenstein, appeared to be having trouble, according to John Laak, Gilmore Valley, who was standing at 3rd and Walnut streets as an auxiliary policeman.

Laak said that when the driver touched the throttle in an effort to get the machine started, it began to accelerate. Apparently out of control, it ran over a woman's toe. Laak said he reached for the cycle with his left hand in an effort to stop it; he received a gash on the top of his hand and was knocked down. Mrs. Hubert Bembek, 509 Harriet St., and her daughter, Maria, standing next to Laak, also were knocked backward.

They were taken to Community Hospital, where four stitches were taken in Laak's hand. The Bembeks didn't wait for examination but returned home. They received only minor cuts and bruises but were shaken by the episode.

Police said the brakes on the motorcycle grabbed because of the wet weather, causing the driver to lose control. After knocking the three spectators down, the machine tipped on its side and the engine stopped.

Rubenstein was not injured. Damage to the cycle was reported at about $23.

NO ONE was hurt in the collision of two cars at 5th and Franklin streets at 3 p.m. Anthony Kammerer, 21, 553 Olmstead Street, traveling alone, was proceeding west on 5th when his 1966 car was struck by the 1967 vehicle driven by Robert Pflughoeft, 16, 702 Mankato Ave., going south on Franklin.

The Kammerer car veered left and up onto the boulevard at the Mrs. H. Cisevski residence, 227 E. 5th St., causing an estimated $10 damage to the lawn.

Pflughoeft had passengers, police said, but no one was reported injured. Damage was estimated at $250 to the right front and side of the Kammerer vehicle and $450 to the front of Pflughoeft's car. No citation was issued at the scene.

A REAR-END accident occurred at 3:30 p.m. on Franklin, 60 feet south of 5th Street. Sharon Gady, 18, 402 E. Wabasha St., driving a 1962 car, had stopped in the line of traffic.

Damage to the rear of her car was estimated at $125 when it was struck by the 1967 car driven by Donald Groh, 25, Houston Rd. 1. An estimated $20

Area Denied U.S. Aid for '67 Flood

A request to the President to designate flood-stricken South-eastern Minnesota-Western Wisconsin regions a disaster area has been denied, Gov. Harold LeVander said in a news conference here Saturday.

The governor talked informally with newsmen at the Chamber of Commerce offices following his appearance as marshal of the Steamboat Days parade.

GOV. LEVANDER said the White House answer to his request (and that of Gov. Warren Knowles) was that the affected areas were not large enough, or heavily damaged enough, to warrant federal expenditures for assistance in restoration and repair.

For Winona, the turnaround means the City Council will have to set up a program of repayment for $238,000 borrowed from banks to cover last spring's flood protection expenses. City officials had hoped for a repeat of the 1965 situation in which the federal government reimbursed the city for most of its flood losses and emergency protective costs.

Answering a reporter's question, the governor said Winona interests "should definitely call to the highway commissioner's attention" their position that Highway 43 should be expanded to four lanes between Winona and Interstate 90.

He declined direct comment on the situation but added that there is now more leeway than before in highway programming with advent of the newly legislated acceleration of financing and construction.

The state will sell its first $20 million bond issue in August under the new law, the governor said. This will make the funds available late this year for highway use.

AN OBSERVER can get a good idea of the importance of intensified water and air pollution control measures when he sees how extensively public waters are used in this area alone, the governor told newsmen. He said the wisdom of his administration's successful demands for better regulations in the last legislative session is borne out by such observations.

He had a kind word for city officials who saw to it that temporary dikes built last spring are being kept in place. Special credit is due city government, he added, for its success in persuading property owners to let the dikes remain on their lands.

Initiative shown in successful promotion of Steamboat Days by Jaycees and others indicate that the city is "a vital and virile community, a quality which is necessary in order to do such things as the industrial expansion job," said Gov. LeVander. This spirit should be fostered all across the state, he said.

MUCH OF HIS time is now taken up with a multitude of appointments to new boards and commissions created by the legislature, the governor stated. He does not expect to meet his own Aug. 5 deadline for completion of this task. An example he used is that of the new metropolitan council for Twin Cities areas; he must screen 300 applicants for the 14 appointive council positions.

Gov. LeVander foresees burgeoning trade with foreign countries as a result of Department of Economic Development reorganizations. For the first time the state has a foreign trade adviser and has recently entertained the first Japanese trade mission ever to visit the Midwest.

Industrial development and tourist promotion are getting increased attention, the governor declared.

TURNING briefly to politics the governor said it is too early for Republican governors to try influencing the choice of presidential nominees.

Winning the presidency is a definite possibility, he said, but it will not be done unless the GOP is a well unified party, unmarred by intra-party feuds and open antagonisms.

Centerville Child Fatally Injured

CENTERVILLE, Wis. — A 4-year-old Centerville child died in his mother's arms shortly after 10 p.m. Friday at St. Francis Hospital, La Crosse, some seven hours after a collision on Highway 35-54 in which three others were injured.

Eric Winters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Winters, died of apparent internal injuries. His mother, 29, brother Michael, 12, and Robert Jack, 28, Galesville, were reported by the hospital as in satisfactory condition Saturday morning.

AN AUTOPSY was to be performed on the child Saturday. His grandfather, Merlyn Winters, proprietor of the Winters store, Centerville, said there were no outward signs of injury.

The accident occurred shortly after 2:30 p.m., 1½ miles west of the Wason Supper Club and near the Jens Vossotog home. The sheriff's office in Whitehall received a call to the accident at 2:54 p.m.

Mrs. Winters and children were traveling west toward Centerville, Jack was going east toward his home at Galesville after completing work for the day at Fibertite Corp., Winona, where he is a shift leader.

All accident survivors were said to have received multiple lacerations. Michael also received a leg fracture, the hospital said. The Winters family said he was to have surgery Saturday for insertion of a pin in his knee. Mrs. Winters went into shock after her son's death.

Jack was reported also to have received an arm fracture.

THE COLLISION occurred in about the center of the wide blacktop highway on a straight stretch, officers said. Mrs. Winters told her family she was in her own line. It appeared that the approaching Jack car would collide with her, she said, so she swung left.

The right fronts and sides of the cars collided. The right side of the Winters car was caved in and the right side of the Jack car was ripped back to the front seat.

Both vehicles traveled some 20 feet after the impact and landed in ditches almost opposite each other. Each was standing upright and on opposite sides from which they had been traveling—Jack's on the north side and the Winters car on the south. The right front wheel of the Jack car had flown off, an officer said.

When the first officer got there Jack was still in his car and was conscious but lapsed into unconsciousness before being taken to the hospital by ambulance.

MRS. WINTERS apparently had gotten out of her car and was sitting in the grass holding Eric, with Michael lying beside them. Eric appeared to be unconscious.

The children bore the brunt of the crash. Michael was in the front seat with his mother and Eric was in the back seat. Jack was traveling alone.

The 1963 Winters car and the 1959 Jack vehicle were described as total wrecks. Investigating were Sheriff Eugene Bijod, Whitehall, his deputy, Darryl McBride, Galesville, and Gary Redsten, Galesville police chief.

ERIC WAS BORN Oct. 23, 1962, to Douglas and Kathleen McClanahan Winters.

Survivors, with his parents, are his one brother, Michael; one sister, Rhonda, 11; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Merlyn Winters, Centerville, and maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. W. McClanahan, Galesville.

Funeral arrangements are being completed by Smith Mortuary, Galesville. Services are expected to be at the Presbyterian Church, Galesville, with burial in Evergreen Cemetery, Centerville.

This was Trempealeau County's second traffic fatality in 1967 and the second within four days. Wayne Mitskogen, 27, rural Blair, was killed in a 1-car accident near Pleasantville Tuesday.

Honorable mention went to the U.S. Navy float depicting the atomic sub George Washington and to the Sailorettes and Marching Misses from Winona.

A TOTAL of 110 entries were scheduled to participate in the parade, but because of the weather only 65 actually showed.

Parade chairman Steve Slagie said that many of the floats, including the $4,000 queen float, were unable to participate because they would have been ruined by the moisture. Slagie added that the same held true for many bands and novelty units.

It Happened Last Night Van Dyke's Doc Had Early Doubts

By EARL WILSON

LONDON — During the other war in the '40s, Dick Van Dyke long-distanced the physician in West Plains, Mo., who delivered him and asked if he could supply him with an affidavit to the effect that he had been born inasmuch as the court house with all the records had burned down.

"You still alive," cackled the doctor, according to Dick. "You can't be. I said you wouldn't live five minutes. No fingerprints!"

"I hate to disprove your prognosis but I'm alive enough that they want me in the Army and I need proof of birth," Dick replied.

"Heh, heh, heh," chuckled the ancient medic. "The Army! Why, you'll never pass the physical. No fingerprints!"

Dick's fingerprints passed the physical, he eventually became a TV and movie star, and now this Missourian, who later became a Hoosier, is swelling around London with his wife, a nurse, and four sons and daughters, including 18-year-old Christian who's soon entering Princeton Seminary to become a minister. All have fingerprints, including Dick.

HE IS recognized throughout the British Isles where he is regarded as a nonsuenger in swinging England. He wears vests — to remind him when he dines too well — he knows wines, he drinks vodka, he smokes too much, and in Hollywood he has been known to drive too fast. He isn't permitted that vice in England, where he's filming a picture, "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang," which is alleged to be the "purr" of a 1910 motor car.

"I have to be driven to the studio," he polulates. "It's because the driving's on the left side. They can't take chances on me killing myself. And I've driven in England, before, too!"

Because of his reputation for clean living — he's a Presbyterian Elder — Dick gets needed if anything he does in movies or on TV is a bit blue.

"Everybody wants to argue with me about 'Divorce, American Style,'" he told me.

"A Russian woman reporter attacked me. She said, 'In Russia, we have mistresses and we don't need divorces.'"

"AND HERE I am, the only one in the cast without a divorce. Debbie Reynolds — my wife — why, she could be a technical consultant. But Debbie seems happy now, married to Harry Karl. She married a human being."

Dick's a secret do-gooder. He was dining in New York when Billy Daniels came over and said:

"That was a great speech you made at the Buckley School appealing for $2,000,000."

"How did you know about it?" beamed Van Dyke.

"From my daughters. They go there, too."

Dick insists that it was an interview I did with him in 1961, quoting him that he didn't want to do pictures that would embarrass his children, that brought him to the late Wall

Like that much either but it sure was better than Dick so I took Jerry. I made the right choice too because the other name our dad had left for us boys was Una Merkle."

Blair Man Recalls Tales of River Lore

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Winona Steamboat Days this weekend recalled to Charles Nelson Howe, rural Blair, tales of steamboat days on the Mississippi River as told to him by his father, Charles Thaddeus Howe, who was chief engineer on the Ben Hershey.

The retired Blair man has a picture of the boat taken at Davenport, Iowa, in 1884, with his father standing in the engine room door.

The Ben Hershey was owned by Hershey Lumber Co., Wabasha, Minn. Primarily built for freight, she also was equipped for passengers.

She had two powerful steam engines with 16-inch base and 24-foot stroke, Howe says, fed by two boilers carrying 200 pounds of steam to the square inch. She could handle a raft of logs containing a million feet or more.

The Ben Hershey's home berth was La Crosse, Wis., running from there to St. Louis, Mo., and back. Samuel R. Van Sant was captain. He started on the river as a cabin boy and served in the Civil War.

When he returned from service he was made captain of the boat.

Howe's father started as an oiler, then advanced to fireman and chief engineer, spending nine years on the boat. Previous to his Mississippi River service he worked on the Great Lakes, Erie Canal, Hudson River, and in Chesapeake Bay and New York Harbor.

Court Upholds Finding Against Winona Woman

The Minnesota Supreme Court Friday upheld a Winona County District Court judgment against a cleaning woman, Mrs. Erna Austin, 63, 57 Vine St., who had sued Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. for $35,000.

Mrs. Austin's suit charged she suffered a broken vertebra Sept. 17, 1962, in a fall on papers discarded in a hallway at Metropolitan offices in the Kresge building here. Judge Arnold Hatfield found for the defendant Feb. 11, 1966, in a summary judgment.

The Supreme Court's opinion stated: "The duty owed by a tenant to a cleaning lady employed to pick up and remove discarded wastepaper must be viewed in light of the relationship of the parties and where it would not be foreseeable that the place or manner in which the tenant set aside the wastepaper involved a danger to one whose duty it was to remove it, there is no negligence as a matter of law."

Chrysler Recalls Cars to Check Brake Defects

DETROIT (AP) — Owners of 6,500 Chrysler Corp. cars are being asked to return the vehicles to dealers because of a possible defect in front wheel disc brakes.

The firm said Friday it has recalled 525 late production 1966 and 5,975 early model 1967 Plymouth Belvedere and Dodge Coronet and Charger cars with the disc brakes.

The reason: "A possibility that water may enter the disc brake proportioning valve." Dealers are to install new valves.

Chrysler also ordered back 7,407 Plymouth Barracuda and Dodge Dart 1967 two-door hardtops with rear center seat belts. The firm ordered its dealers to install a part that would protect the seat belt from possibly being cut by a shell panel brace in a severe collision.

Also recalled were 159 Dodge Chargers made this year, for inspection to determine whether their chrome front wheels were assembled without hub dust caps that prevent dirt and water from reaching the hubs.

Great Day for Parading Kids

Free Theme Plan Brings Wild, Wide Variety of Entries

It was a beautiful day for a parade Friday afternoon and that is exactly what happened as over 700 area youngsters participated in the annual Steamboat Days Kiddie Parade down 3rd Street.

This year the youngsters chose their own themes. The result was costumes ranging from the "Lonely Petunia" to "Batman and Robin" and floats as different as Princess Wenonah and the Three Blind Mice.

Parade Director Vernon Smelser, of the park-recreation department, headed the parade for the 13th consecutive year and said "it was one of the best."

Over $175 was awarded in cash prizes to first, second and third place winners and to those who received honorable mention.

In addition, everybody received an ice cream bar at the end of the long trek.

Winner of the special playground division float contest was Central playground with its puffed napkin replica of "Smookey the Bear," complete with ranger hat and shovel.

First place winner in the float division was a colorful tepee and canoe complete with Indian maidens and braves entitled Princess Wenonah. It was entered by Hunter Mertes, 328 Wilson St.

Israeli Reservists Drift Back to Jobs

By DENNIS NEEDLE
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) —

The mailmen and taxi drivers, waiters, printers and farmers are drifting back to work as Israel starts cutting its citizen's army.

With the Arab threat to Israel's existence largely removed, reservists, who make up the bulk of this country's military force in times of crisis, slowly are being released back to their civilian jobs.

The mechanics of mobilization and demobilization are closely guarded secrets in Israel, but some facts are clear.

When threatened, Israel can field a fighting force of almost 250,000 men, 10 per cent of its population and five times the size of its regular army.

Mobilization in this little country of 7,300 square miles goes like well-oiled clockwork. The army can have its reservists in action within 48 hours.

Women as well as men are called to the colors, the girls doing largely office duties in military establishments and communications centers.

For a long time the fortress was regarded as a curiosity. Further research, however, revealed that it was loomed the 30 horses would be saddled up and regular troops would gallop out summoning the citizenry to arms.

Israel in 1967 adopts a similar plan.

The regular army has only about 60,000 troops organized in four 4,000 brigades plus a separate armored command of division size.

The reserve has 24 brigades, one-third of them armored, amounting to more than 20,000 soldiers.

When the call comes, almost half the total adult male population joins up. Buses, taxis and private cars take the reservists to their units. Many hitchhike and others report for duty in their milk trucks and bread delivery vans.

They may look a scruffy, oddly garbed lot, but every man is a trained soldier. They can be in action within hours.

Military service is almost universal in Israel, claiming all men and women between the ages of 17½ and 18½. Only Arabs, mothers, pregnant women and women for whom military service would violate religious principles are exempt.

Even the Druze people, who belong to a sect that broke from Islam centuries ago, are conscripted—and considered excellent fighters. Their loyalty to Israel is regarded as beyond question.

Girl soldiers serve for 8 months, men for 2½ years. They get $5 a month. When released from conscripted service they are assigned to front-line reserve units until they are 39, then transferred to home guard or civil defense forces until they are 50.

Every year the reservists do a period of field training and are liable for regular weapon instruction sessions and target practice.

The troops are mobilized by code phrases broadcast over the radio and flashed on movie screens. Others are called up personally by comrades-in-arms who come to their homes and tell them to get ready—usually within the hour.

"Open Window," "Wedding March," "Men at Work" and "Lovers of Zion" are examples of code names.

Every man knows his call sign and few fail to report for duty. Most units are made up of troops who have known each other for years and every man knows his allotted task. Refresher courses are unnecessary and reserve units are dispatched promptly to strategic positions.

Speculation Gains On Stock Markets

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In less than one year the prices of some stocks listed on Canadian and American exchanges have doubled, tripled and more than quadrupled, bringing fortunes to some speculators and tremors to market officials.

The eventual danger that market men see is the crashing return to earth of some of those stocks, with the impact certain to be detected by congressional and regulatory listening devices in Washington.

Speculation that a small company might become successful can be healthy and profitable. But gambling, which really is the worry, can only bring problems.

The immediate concern is that some stocks are being manipulated, that prices of others are rising on incomplete reports and rumors, and that heavy trading in some represents nothing but a fatal greed.

The evidence is coming in faster than it has been, and the Securities and Exchange Commission and stock market officials have been active lately, primarily in seeking clarification of rumors.

But the evidence comes also in the form of price-earnings ratios, a standard guide on Wall Street. It is a figure calculated by dividing the company's earnings into the price of its stock.

Thus a $100 stock with income of $5 a share has a price-earnings ratio of 20 to 1, a figure that is considerably higher than the multiple for most of the bluechip, investment-grade stocks.

Nevertheless, at least one company now has a price-earnings ratio of 200 to 1, and many others are in the 50 to 100 to 1 category.

Some of these stocks warrant such ratios because they represent thriving companies whose earnings are expected to continue growing, just as General Motors, once a speculation, has continued to grow. Others in the category are simply overpriced.

Speculative activity is shown also by trading volume, which generally has been setting one record after another in the past 12 months. Volume in some stocks has exceeded the total supply over a year's time, meaning that some shares were traded several times.

This is hardly the type of activity that could be produced by small investors. Obviously, it is professional trading, by the institutions, but the fear is that the contagion could envelop the small trader. The temptation is there.

The irrefutable fact about speculation is that it can mean a considerable profit. Whereas it might take a decade for the price of a blue chip to double, a speculation could double in a week.

There is plenty of evidence, however, that most small investors

Blast Destroys Red Wing Home; Four Injured

RED WING, Minn. (AP) — One person was still hospitalized Saturday with injuries suffered in an explosion that demolished a landmark home in Red Wing. Three workmen were treated and released.

The home, built about 100 years ago, was occupied by the George Horen family. No one was in the home when the blast occurred about 1 p.m. Friday.

Assistant Police Chief Elmer Iverson said the blast apparently occurred from an accumulation of gas that escaped from a ruptured main. Street repairs were underway in front of the Horen home.

Still hospitalized is Jean Kenitz, 26, Red Wing, who suffered burns about the face and arms and cuts.

Miss Kenitz, employed at the Virginia Day Nursery, next door to the Horen home, was in the yard between the two buildings.

Street crew workmen treated for injuries and released were Earl Lick, minor facial and arm cuts; Jim Featherstone, eye injury; and Kenneth Meyer, cuts and leg injuries. All are of Red Wing.

Damage to the nursery in which several small children were being cared for was minor.

Walls of the Horen home were blown out. Bricks were knocked from the exterior, walls were puffed out and furniture and window frames strewn outside.

tors avoid the temptation to speculate. In fact, they have been accused of being too conservative and timid.

A list supplied by the New York Stock Exchange provides some documentation of this conservative behavior, showing that the small investor buys mostly blue chips.

Idle Youths Put to Work Cleaning City

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A self-help program designed to reduce racial tension in areas of low income has turned into a $50,000 citywide project intended to put idle youths — of any race — to work for the summer.

In the process, city officials say, this city of 30,000 on Florida's Gulf Coast will get a partial face lifting.

A dozen members of the newly formed Fort Myers Youth Corps, all teen-agers, went to work Friday cleaning up streets in a rundown Negro residential area in Dunbar Heights. Eleven of them were Negroes.

More than 50 other youngsters, including six Negro girls, have applications on file for $1.25 an hour jobs. All were told to report for work Monday.

Leslie Smith, an assistant public works director for the city and supervisor of the Youth Corps Work Project, said, "we will hire kids on a first-come, first-serve basis" for whatever jobs are available.

The Youth Corps is an outgrowth of "Operation Cool Summer," a week-long training program sponsored by the National Association for Advancement of Colored People as a pilot project for possible use nationally in reducing racial tension.

Can the Far East War Be Won?

(Editor's Note: Few men can view the war in Vietnam with the experienced eyes of the Associated Press writers who collaborated on this article. Peter Arnett and Horst Faas have been in South Vietnam five years, and almost every week they have been in the field, separately or together, to record first the efforts of Saigon's army and later the expanded campaigns of U.S. and allied forces. They went to South Vietnam in 1962 to cover what was then a small war of insurgency. They have seen the war grow until more than 500,000 Americans are committed. Their news coverage has won them Pulitzer prizes — Arnett in reporting and Faas in photography.)

By PETER ARNETT and HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — In 1962 no one seemed to doubt that the war could be won. It is now five years and many delusions later, and there are still predictions of much the same sort of victory.

Hope continues to spring eternal in the breasts of allied authorities. There can be no surprise, then, when in answer to a particularly pessimistic report on the current pacification program, a U.S. official in Saigon is informed by Washington, "Your report is too leftist and defeatist. Please look for more encouraging aspects."

The search for encouraging aspects has bedeviled the gradual U.S. slide into the Vietnam morass, with the resultant toll of more than 10,000 American dead and $70-million-a-day expenditure.

In our view, the ever-enlarging U.S. commitment has not been paralleled by an expansion of allied frankness or understanding about the realities of Vietnam today.

However well intended, misjudgment and official deceptions or delusions surrounding the war have not helped its progress.

There is no question about the bravery and skill of allied fighting forces as a whole, but this does not remove doubts about their effectiveness in assigned tasks under the limitations imposed on them.

The enemy has grown steadily. Official statistics placed enemy strength at 30,000 in 1962, at 300,000 today.

American officials often have smiled at Vietnamese statistics, shrugged their shoulders, and commented, "Well, those enemy bodies were by Vietnamese count."

Yet today there is reason to believe that U.S. field commanders sometimes yield to the temptation of exaggerating enemy casualty figures in order to gain healthy ratios to their own dead. A favorable kill ratio is one way to measure progress, however ephemeral. Allied commanders seem to favor a 10-to-1 ratio. Maybe 3-1 or 4-1 is more like it.

In statistical language there are never any American military defeats in Vietnam. No matter how severe the U.S. casualties, the enemy usually takes far more. If the bodies were not actually left on the battlefield, then they were "dragged away" or "killed by air and artillery too deep in the jungle to investigate."

But the ability of many "destroyed" enemy units to return to the fray disputes allied claims and adds another degree of confusion.

Official estimates of enemy strength took on an air of reality last year, but the ghost of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's 1963 estimate that the major part of the U.S. commitment would be completed by 1965 comes back sometimes to haunt.

It was in 1965 that American combat troops were first committed. Without these troops the Saigon government certainly would have perished. But even now the official impression is given that with "just a few more troops" the job can be done, say 200,000 more. This continues an attitude that governed the dispatch of the first troops here.

Their role was to free Vietnamese soldiers from guard duty so they and not the Americans could seek out and destroy the Viet Cong main forces.

In reality Saigon's army had long been an ineffective fighting force, and top Americans knew it. Most of the best Vietnamese officers were either dead in battle or sent into political exile.

The army itself was weighed down by the specter of having been on the losing side against the same enemy 10 years earlier.

American troops rapidly began taking on an ever greater share of the war, determining the destinies of the Vietnamese population in vast areas. The Vietnamese army receded along the U.S. military commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, still heaps public praise on the Vietnamese military.

There never seems to be quite enough American troops to do the job. One reason is that hopes of stopping enemy infiltration have not been realized, either by border fighting or the bombing against North Vietnam.

With only about 20 percent of its regular army committed, Hanoi can raise the ante. The war, then, can get very much bigger but remain just as inconclusive.

The image of the Viet Cong has been lowered in the eyes of the Vietnamese — the Communists are no longer Robin Hoods. But the image of the United States has dropped, too. In large areas Americans are under orders to shoot on sight any living thing that moves.

Some aspects of America's military role disturb many U.S. civilians working in the countryside. Some are wondering if more troops are really necessary for the war, or to meet U.S. commanders' eagerness to expand their operations. Such questions, of course, arise in other wars.

The system of rotating U.S. troops at the end of a year's duty benefits morale but destroys continuity and the "institutional memory" so valuable in recalling past events.

The empty memory bank will afflict the new division commander who comes to Vietnam with his own ideas. If he meets heavy going and wants quick results, he may belatedly seek knowledge from the records of his predecessor.

These same reports could be faulty, particularly in regard to statistics and the destruction of enemy units. The new commander could build a whole strategy on the basis of wrong information, and have this compounded over the years.

A military machine tries to justify its role. Gen. Westmoreland, seeking indices of progress, will refer to enemy casualties. Sometimes he cites the construction of a score or more airstrips capable of landing C-130 cargo planes.

Better measures, perhaps, are the provable destruction of enemy forces, and a resultant increase of control over the population.

Authorities have been stating for years that the Viet Cong are demoralized, have been denied recruits and are ineffective. Yet the enemy seems as obstinate and as daring as ever. It breaks up big concentrations of American troops and scatters them by staging battles that burst like blisters across the anatomy of Vietnam.

There is no front line, yet the front line is everywhere.

Consequently, units sorely needed for battles along the borders are often tied up "securing the victories" gained months earlier. The U.S. Army has to move into U.S. Marine territory to drain off pressure.

In only a handful of areas has the Viet Cong guerrilla organization been adequately destroyed. The cost of holding this ground makes the prospect of spreading such security throughout the country almost a tactical impossibility. Millions of American troops would be required on that basis, according to some estimates.

What of the other index of progress, population control? One pacification scheme after another has crumbled, victims of a Vietnamese grass-roots inability to grapple with the clandestine organization of the Viet Cong.

In 1962, some of South Vietnam's 13 million peasantry was affected by the war. Today they all are affected. They plant rice under the bombs, huddle in refugee camps, or cram into the cities.

Nearly two million refugees, one in every seven Vietnamese, live in government resettlement camps.

Military men argue that resettlement will at least make the people safe from the war, and also remove a source of prime assistance to the Viet Cong.

Americans are placing great hopes in presidential elections this year and the modicum of democracy they are supposed to bring. The president-elect's first mission must be to reorganize a civil service that has run down since the French left Vietnam.

Unless an effective administrative body is created the elections will be in vain. Bureaucratic inefficiency would negate any good works the President might do, just as it has negated billions of dollars of U.S. aid programs. The military have the only workable system in the country.

It is hard to escape the conclusion that as the months go by the solution of the conflict is being viewed more in purely military terms than in negotiations or pacification.

The irony is this: If the American and North Vietnamese forces were suddenly whisked away, South Vietnam would be back basically to the situation in 1962, so little has a real penetration of the Communist problem been made.

Experts Plan Worldwide Dial System

By JENKIN LLOYD JONES

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND — How long will it be before you can pick up your home phone and dial direct to your friend, Mitsu Tokugawa, in Japan?

The International Telecommunication Union in Geneva estimates from five to seven years. But it is going to take some doing — and some dialing.

The ITU has just completed the last of four thick books covering a master world telephone plan. It includes forecasts of telephone, telegraph and telex traffic, an estimate of needed earth-circling satellite relays and a telephone numbering plan for all the world.

The telephone business is exploding. Thirteen years ago there were 90 million telephones, most of them in the United States. Today there are 200 million. For the year 2000 — and that's only 33 years away — the estimate is 600 million.

Unfortunately, too, not all the telephone systems are compatible. In the United States and most of the world the first number on the telephone dial is 1. But in New Zealand it is 9 and in Sweden 0.

THE EXPERTS in Geneva are furrowing their brows over the new space relays like Telstar. One such stationary satellite (that is, one that remains directly over the same spot on earth, if put into orbit at an altitude of 24,000 miles, can "see" 40 percent of the earth's surface.

Many electronic experts argue that signals bounced off satellites will be far cheaper than those which have to amortize the tremendous cost of cables.

But there are some bugs. Although we think of radio communication as "instantaneous," it really moves at the speed of light, 186,000 miles a second, which would be noticeable in a rapid phone conversation. Besides, space relays must be weakly powered by solar batteries, and good reception can't tolerate much natural interference.

Still, this is a gabby world, and it will get gabrier. Five years ago there were 276 telephone circuits between Europe and North America. Next year there will be 834. The plan for the year 1975 is 2,100. Satellites are bound to be important, particularly as intercontinental television gobbles up new frequency bands.

How are you going to call your friend in Tokyo? The ITU has planned seven huge automatic telephone exchanges — New York, London, Moscow, Tokyo, Singapore, Sydney and the last for either India or Pakistan.

There will be nine regional call numbers — 1 for North America, 2 for Africa, 3 and 4 for Europe, 5 for South America, 6 for the South Pacific, 7 for the U.S.S.R., 8 for the North Pacific and 9 for the Middle and Far East. Each country will be designated by one or two numbers following the regional number. Switzerland, for example, will be 41.

IF YOU ARE making an international call to the ITU headquarters in Geneva, for example, you will dial first a series of numbers (not yet specified, but designed to prevent accidental long distance calls) to get the regional center. Then you would dial 41 for Switzerland, 022 for the Geneva area code, and 34 70 00, the ITU telephone exchange. Slow, but not as slow as arguing with overseas operators.

The ITU was perhaps the world's first successful international regulating agency. It was set up by the crowned heads of Europe in 1865 to lend some order to the bewildering new telegraph. Before ITU, a wire from France to Germany would be written down at the border, carried under the barrier by a boy on a bicycle and retransmitted. Everybody was gouging on the rates.

When radio came along, the ITU recognized its possibilities for rescue and invented S-O-S, a meaningless symbol, but an easily recognized three dots, three dashes and three dots.

When the arrogant radio operator on the Titanic, with a sheaf of business messages to transmit, told the operator of the nearby California to get off the air, the California man went to bed. The fact that the Titanic's desperate distress calls an hour later were unheard by a ship still in sight caused ITU to work out the automatic alarm.

Without ITU regulations, radio stations would be on top of each other and television a hopeless garble. Right now the ITU is struggling to get nations to agree on one of the three incompatible color television systems. Eventually it will succeed.

The ITU carried this message: International co-operation is not only feasible, but very successful where it can be demonstrated that regulation is to the interest of every nation. Everybody wants to hear and be heard. No one wants chaos.

More Tips On How to Take Pills

By J. G. MOLNER, M.D.

Our discussion on people who have difficulty swallowing pills (this is a nervous manifestation, but no less real to the sufferer) brought from readers several tricks that have worked.

Here are some typical ones:

My husband was one who could not take a pill. Somewhere I read that it was easy if taken with a spoonful of applesauce.

He tried it, and even though he took five pills three times a day for years (he lived to be nearly 87) he never had any trouble taking pills with applesauce. Even in the hospital he took his pills with applesauce. I kept some in the refrigerator on his floor. — E.G.B.

I have found the following method helpful. Chew a piece of toast or bread until you have a mouthful of mash or pulp. Stick the capsule or pill in it and you can swallow it

First fill the mouth with water but do not swallow. Ease the pill through the lips. Drink more water and swallow fast. Sometimes you can take in "sandwich" form what you cannot abide by itself. — I.E.A.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had to have a Caesarian section. Now my doctor says that if I have other babies, they will have to be delivered by Caesarian, too. I have read articles saying that after a Caesarian it is still possible to have a baby normally. Does each doctor feel different about it, or is there one correct answer? — J.D.

Your question isn't as simple as you think. The mere fact that a woman has had a Caesarian doesn't necessarily mean that she must always have them. Normal deliveries have occurred subsequent to a C-section. However — and this is the important point — you must take into consideration the reason for the first one. If the same condition is still present, such as a pelvis which is not adequate for normal delivery, then the necessity of another C-section remains.

Castro Plans New Subversion

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The United States is confronted with the possibility of a half-dozen or more Vietnam-type conflicts. For the Castro government of Cuba, supported by the Soviet Union, has instigated an extensive series of guerrilla wars designed to harass the military forces of governments in Central and South America.

A comprehensive report, just issued by a subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, declares that Castro has expanded his list of target countries, and is holding on July 28 in Havana a conference of Communist parties from various areas in Latin America to plan more subversive and terrorist activities.

At present, the report says, "There are guerrilla movements of significance" in Venezuela, Colombia, Guatemala and Bolivia. Details of these operations now are furnished by the House committee, based on an extensive investigation and public hearings.

The big question is whether some of the principal counties in the world are going to cooperate with the United States in preventing Cuba from carrying out its plots. The House committee — which heard testimony from officials of the State Department and the Defense Intelligence Agency — makes these findings:

"CUBA IS STILL receiving considerable assistance from our 'friends and allies.' Such assistance results in improving Cuba's economy as well as furnishing Castro with additional resources to expand his revolution.

"The British are trading with Cuba and recently completed a credit guarantee for a large fertilizer plant, despite our protests. At least nine members of the Organization of American States have remonstrated with the British government, but to no avail.

"A number of other countries have granted credits to Cuba, including Spain, Japan, France, the Benelux countries, Morocco, the United Arab Republic, Italy and Canada. Canadian wheat, purchased by the Soviet Union and shipped to Cuba, amounted to 200 million dollars in 1965, according to the latest figures available.

"The United States should urge other members of the Organization of American States to join with it in taking the most forceful measures practicable toward terminating entirely all significant trade between the free world and Cuba."

Realistically, the only effective method of cutting off trade with Cuba is a blockade. When a nation is virtually in a state of war with other governments, as is the case with Cuba, measures can be taken to "quarantine" the perpetrator of a widespread aggression.

The Organization of American States has already adopted resolutions condemning the government at Havana for "aggression and intervention" and recommending suspension of diplomatic relations as well as trade and shipping between member countries and Cuba. It is significant that only Mexico has not complied with the 1964 decision to cut off relations with Cuba.

THE OAS HAS also proclaimed the right of its members to engage in individual or collective self-defense. "Including armed force, if Cuba persists in aggressive and interventionist acts."

The Soviet Union, too, is on notice to keep missiles and other aggressive weapons out of Cuba, and the House committee report says that the OAS has urged that "member countries take all necessary individual or collective measures, including armed force, to assure this."

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

GOP Hopefuls See Chance to Beat LBJ

By DREW PEARSON and JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — With a year to go before the Presidential conventions, the Republican contenders are battling fiercely for the nomination that earlier they thought would be worthless. Now the political pros agree that President Johnson can be beaten in 1968.

Here is the outlook as it appears today from inside the Republican National Committee:

Richard Nixon is out front in the race for delegates, and Gov. George Romney is ahead in the popularity polls. But the secret soundings show that the conservatives' real favorite is California Gov. Ronald Reagan, while the liberals privately prefer Illinois Sen. Charles Percy.

Nixon's secret strategy, say insiders, is to line up delegates quietly at the local level, and to act the statesman who stands above petty political squabbling, saying nothing against his rivals that would prevent them from supporting him wholeheartedly if he should become the nominee.

Nixon is trying to keep behind the scenes, and to that end has spent considerable time "studying" abroad.

MEANWHILE Romney is caught in the merciless glare of the spotlight; is subject to the constant critical, clinical inspection of the press. Other presidential hopefuls also tend to gang up on the front runner, who judging from the publicity appears to be Romney but who in the smoke-filled rooms is really Nixon.

Insiders agree that if the convention were to be held now Nixon would win the nomination. He has enough delegate pledges in his pocket to assure victory. But the former vice president acknowledges privately that his ultimate success will depend upon LBJ's popularity. If the President's rating with the public is low, the Republicans will take a chance on Nixon. But if the President's popularity goes up, the Republicans may look around for a candidate with more ballot-box appeal.

To prove he can win, Nixon is counting upon his unique popularity in New Hampshire to score a stunning victory in the nation's first presidential primary. The confidential polls show that in New Hampshire he has a surprising 2-to-1 edge over Romney.

Nebraska's Gov. Norbert Tiemann has claimed that Nixon will also win the Nebraska primary. But the confidential polls show that Romney is the clear favorite with midwestern voters.

Romney's prospects are based upon the backing of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, whose formidable organization is working for the Michigan governor. Rockefeller has warned his fellow moderates that they will lose the nomination by default unless they unite behind Romney.

OTHER hopefuls, however, are reluctant to give up their bargaining power by offering premature pledges to Romney — as long as they are in a position to make a deal for the vice presidential nomination or perhaps even get a shot at the top spot.

The Washington press corps has also become critical of Romney. His Mormon piety isn't popular with them. Despite his background as a Senate aide and auto-industry representative in Washington, plus his successful record as president of American Motors and governor of Michigan, they refuse to believe he has any depth.

"We're going to get Romney," Hears's Marianne Means has told high administration officials.

Romney's strategy will be to prove his popularity with the voters by rolling up primary victories. This was the strategy that won the Democratic nomination for John F.

Kennedy in 1960. Nixon, in turn, has adopted the strategy that won the Republican nomination for Barry Goldwater in 1964.

Both Reagan and Percy, while disclaiming any presidential ambitions in 1968, have sent political scouts across the country to line up second-choice commitments from the delegates — in case the two top contenders falter.

If this should happen, Rockefeller would fall heir to most of Romney's delegates and would emerge as the strongest contender on the second ballot. He would also be the toughest Republican for the Democrats to beat.

STOKELY Carmichael, Floyd McKissick and Dr. Martin Luther King, among others, will be delighted to receive in their mail an appeal from ex-Gov. Orval Faubus of Little Rock, Ark., school integration fame, asking for money to build the "Orval E. Faubus Library."

Prominent citizens all over the U.S.A. are receiving this Faubus appeal. It states that the library will house "documents showing the early Faubus family history and the Scottish-Anglo-Saxon-Ozark" background.

It will also house "more than 50 filing cabinets of documents and correspondence—letters from every post office in Arkansas . . . Awards as 'American Legion Man of the Year,' 'Municipal Man of the Year,' 'Conservationist of the year' . . . Lists of all board, commission, and special committee members who served in the Faubus administration . . . Political literature, cards, posters and pictures used in various campaigns . . . State maps, 13 of them showing the election returns in each campaign."

The ex-governor made headlines around the world when he forced President Eisenhower to send troops to Little Rock to desegregate Central High School.

Romney Has Confidence For '68

By CARL C. CRAFT
MIRROR LAKE, N.H. (AP) — Encouraged by his conferences with New Hampshire Republicans, Michigan Gov. George Romney says he is "confident I could win" America's premier primary here next year if he decides to seek the GOP presidential nomination.

Romney, 60 Saturday, was in a gay mood when he gathered with more than 500 Granite State Republicans, representing all levels of the state party structure, and declared: "There's a better way than LBJ."

Leonard Hall, head of a national Romney for President organization, repeated the phrase at the Friday night reception at a nearby hilltop estate known as "Castle on the Clouds."

Hall, a former Republican national chairman, promptly added: "and George Romney will show the way."

Romney concluded his four-day "pulse-check" of New Hampshire Saturday and flew to Scranton, Pa., for the 25th wedding anniversary of former Pennsylvania Gov. and Mrs. William Scranton.

Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe joined the Romney party.

Romney and Volpe, who have made no formal announcements, but could be opponents in New Hampshire's March 12 primary, exchanged views Friday but maintained they reached no decisions and made no commitments.

Romney, who had been staying at the lakeside summer home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Willard Marriott of Washington, D.C., has held extensive private talks with hundreds of state Republicans who had been asked by Romney backers to come here and exchange views with the Michigan governor.

"I am confident I could win and could have a lot of support from the people I talked to," Romney said. "I've been able to get personally acquainted with significant people — to get their viewpoint and reaction."

Sheriff Checks Dodge Breakins

DODGE, Wis. (Special) — Trempealeau County Sheriff Eugene Bjold is investigating two break-ins in business places in Dodge Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Someone jimmied a back door to the George Hoesley implement garage, to gain entrance, walked through the repair shop into a machinery storage garage, and into the parts department where a safe which was left open was ransacked. Papers were strewn all over the parts department. No money was in the safe and as of now, Hoesley can't find anything stolen or missing. This is the second break-in at the Hoesley parts department this year.

About the same time someone broke a window in a back door leading into the Herrick's Garage, reached in and unlocked the latch and gained entrance into the garage. Robert Herrick, owner, said he couldn't find anything missing and no money was taken. The place was not ransacked.

Garrison Reply To Critics Slated for TV

NEW YORK (AP) — New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison will appear on the National Broadcasting Co. television network next Saturday to reply to NBC's program which criticized his conduct of an investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Garrison's reply will run from 7 to 7:30 p.m. CDT. The program will be taped next week at the studios of WDSU-TV, the NBC affiliate in New Orleans.

The NBC telecast, entitled "The J.F.K. Conspiracy: The Case of Jim Garrison," ran on June 19.

In New Orleans Friday, Walter Sheridan, an investigator for NBC, was charged with public bribery of a prime witness in Garrison's presidential assassination conspiracy case.

Garrison contends more than one person was involved in Kennedy's death. The Warren Commission report said Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone.

Garrison charged Sheridan with bribing Perry Raymond Russo, 25, a Baton Rouge insurance man.

Russo is the main witness in Garrison's case charging Clay L. Shaw of New Orleans conspired in 1963 to kill President Kennedy.

Education Aid Fund Available At Arcadia

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — Loans from the Annie Courtney student loan fund again will be made to graduates of Arcadia High School who are in need of money to attend institutions of higher learning. Application blanks are available in the high school office and must be returned completed on or before Aug. 10.

The fund was established several years ago in the will of the late Annie Courtney, providing a considerable sum for students who can't go on to college or trade school for lack of money. Purpose of the fund is to help pay all expenses on a loan basis at a school in Wisconsin. Interest rate is low, but increased on extended and over-due loans.

Because of the large number of requests for loans from the Courtney fund, it has been found necessary to pre-rate the amount that can be borrowed by any one individual at any one time or over an extended period.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The girl married the Supreme Court justice. In short order, he was dropped from the Social Register, a congressman demanded an investigation, fellow justices heaved private moans, and wags had a field day.

That was one year ago.

On July 15, blue-eyed, blonde Cathleen Curran Heffernan, 24, and Supreme Court Justice William Orville Douglas, 68, celebrate their first wedding anniversary.

It has been a year of trips, speeches, pressure, social ostracism, unexpected kindnesses, exhaustion and a new heart-break and happiness—a year quite like most first years of marriage, yet totally different.

She was a bouncy tomboy working her way through college, the darling of three brothers, a typical Oregon youngster. Then she met Douglas.

Douglas is a loner, a nonconformist; he was one of the youngest men ever appointed to the Supreme Court. He is 44 years older than Cathy and three times divorced.

Bill Douglas is used to the public spotlight, and in fact, enjoys it. To his bride—from the evening newsmen crashed the bridal reception—it's been all new, both pleasure and anguish.

The young Mrs. Douglas has had experiences to make any wife wince—narrowly missing one of her husband's former wives at a party, being stared at in the family pew at the Supreme Court, a much publicized reported harassing by actress Joan Crawford at a White House dinner, anonymous phone calls and ugly letters.

After a year, Cathy Douglas is the most recognized young woman around town, next to the President's daughters.

Men think she's pretty. Women think she's brave.

"She has something," says a law clerk at the Supreme Court. "She's someone you want to protect, to make happy. I've talked to her several times, and I'm still entranced. I don't quite know why."

When she's in a large crowd, Cathy stays close to her husband. He keeps his left arm around her shoulder. She shakes hands limply and seems shy at first meeting.

Privately, she sparkles. She has a ready wit—curtailed some now that she's seen herself in print—a quick smile, and a natural affection for children and other persons.

Cathy is 5 feet 6, weighs about 120 pounds, and has the relaxed, easy gait of an outdoors woman. She has given up smoking—her wedding gift from her husband was an ashtray—enrolled in a correspondence course at the University of Michigan, and taken a stab at learning French.

She and her husband have entertained friends at the kind of party they both enjoy most, an informal backyard barbecue. One such gathering was held for Cathy's 24th birthday, April 30. Guests included three Supreme Court justices, an ambassador and their wives.

Cathy says she scolds her husband occasionally. She tells friends she has a temper. The age difference doesn't bother her, she says, but the justice's former marriages sometimes do. She figures that's normal.

Can this winter-spring union last?

Before the Douglasses left for their summer home in Goose Prairie, Wash., Cathy went by her husband's office, and those who saw her said she was "very, very, very happy. And in love."

To paraphrase a Washington society matron, "Solomon had 14,000 wives, and he was the wisest judge we ever had."

College Argues For Accreditation

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge heard arguments Friday on an attempt by Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa, to retain its scholastic accreditation.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has discredited Parsons effective July 1, but both sides agreed to maintain the status quo pending a court decision.

Detailed reasons for discreditation were not announced but the association said it resulted from allegations of mismanagement of finances, poor building maintenance, limited curriculum and overcrowded classes.

The college sued in U.S. district court for an injunction to prevent the association from taking Parsons off its membership list, Friday's hearing before Judge Julius J. Hoffman was on a temporary restraining order.

North Central maintains Parsons is in no position to carry its fight to the courts because it joined the association voluntarily.

Red Arms Delivery Dims Hope of Pact

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rapid Soviet delivery of fighter planes, tanks and other modern arms to Arab nations during the past month has sharply discouraged Johnson administration hopes of negotiating an international agreement to limit arms levels in the Middle East.

U.S. officials say they have not given up all hope of discussing this problem with the Soviet government but that in the light of Soviet actions since the Arab-Israeli war ended last month the prospect does not look very promising.

The issue is understood to be one on which President Johnson received no encouraging indications from Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin during their conferences at Glassboro, N.J.

U.S. officials say Kosygin followed privately the same hard line on the Middle East crisis which he took publicly at the United Nations.

Nevertheless, administration officials found some reason for post-Glassboro hope because there are Arab-Israeli issues on which the United States and Soviet Union were shown to have somewhat similar positions.

Kosygin made clear to the President—as he said publicly—that the Soviet government recognizes the existence of the state of Israel. The Arab nations do not recognize Israel's right to exist.

U.S. officials also concluded from the Glassboro talks that the Soviet Union would have no problem working for an end to the state of war which has existed between Israel and its Arab neighbors since Israel was established in 1948.

Neither, it was said, would the Soviets object to finding some workable solution for the problem of more than a million Arab refugees from Israel.

It was also indicated at Glassboro that Moscow would go along with some kind of arrangement to assure international access to waterways in the area, apparently referring to both the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba.

The two major U.S.-Soviet problems on the Middle East are Moscow's new supply of arms to the Arabs—with no sign as to where it will end—and Soviet insistence that Israeli forces withdraw from conquered Arab territory in advance of a general peace settlement.

Officials here reaffirmed the U.S. position that arrangements for withdrawal must be part of a peace settlement. The most serious problem foreseen by Washington authorities is the ultimate disposition of the part of Jerusalem captured from Jordan by Israel during the week-long conflict that began June 5.

Israeli leaders have said they intend to hold onto the Old City though they would recognize the interests of religious groups in its holy places.

During the brief war Israel knocked out the Egyptian air force, made up of Soviet planes, and destroyed huge quantities of Soviet-supplied Egyptian armor.

Figures here show that by air and sea lift and by some direct flights of combat aircraft, Moscow already has replaced about 150 MIG fighter planes for the Egyptians. More than 300 were destroyed in the war.

The Soviets are reported to have replaced about 100 armored vehicles out of 500 destroyed.

The first replacements were made with airlifted deliveries and some supplies sent in by ships. Reports reaching Washington now indicate future deliveries will be primarily by ship.

An article in a Soviet weekly, "Life Abroad," gave the Soviet public its first official information Friday on the massive Soviet military aid being sent to Arab countries.

The magazine said that, "Thanks to the Soviet Union the Arab countries are able in a brief period of time to replace their losses to a considerable degree."

U.S. officials said the initial proposal for a ceiling on arms supplies covering both the Arab states and Israel had been read by the Soviets originally as intended to freeze levels as they existed at the end of the war. That would have tipped the Arab-Israeli balance of power to Israel.

Former Priest Disenchanted By Red Life

NEW YORK (AP) — Harold M. Koch, 35, is a former Roman Catholic priest from Chicago who went to live in the Soviet Union to protest U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Today he is back in this country. Three and a half months in the Soviet Union convinced Koch that life under communism was not for him.

But though he no longer wishes to live there, he says the views which took him there are unchanged. His message continues to be "for peace in the world and an end to the Vietnam war."

The worst part of his life in the U.S.S.R. was that "at sunset you look to the west and realize you could never travel back to the West. This becomes very difficult, almost unbearable, after a while," he said.

Of his treatment, Koch said: "They did not use me for propaganda purposes. But one of the reasons we had a parting of the ways was the fact that they wanted me to write an article on fascism in America."

The article he wrote, Koch said, was considered "too weak." After that, he said, there were "vaguely veiled threats of one sort or another" but they finally agreed to drop the idea of doing an article.

Koch left the Soviet Union last Dec. 8. He first went to Helsinki, then to Stockholm before proceeding to Paris where he said he studied and worked at the American College.

On April 18 he married the former Jeanette Naeger of Long Island. They returned to this country July 4 on a student charter flight.

Teachers Told to Use Ballots for Action

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The new president of the National Education Association has told its members to use their power at the ballot box to ensure that education's needs are met.

"The entire teaching profession and education in America are in the midst of revolution," said Baulio Alonso at the NEA convention closing Friday night. "Whether this revolution brings progress or disaster will depend more on teachers and their organization than on any other single factor."

Alonso, a Tampa, Fla., high school principal, said "Politics is not an unsavory business. We, who teach government, who teach democratic concepts, who help perpetuate our form of government should be the first to assume an active role in the political process. We must teach by example as well as by precept."

He said the day when legislators pass school legislation out of friendship or magnanimity for educators is long past, if it ever existed.

Alonso said that some teachers have limited opportunity for status and advancement because of religion or the color of their skins. But he pledged renewed efforts to advance NEA's progress in breaking down such barriers in the organization.

The NEA also installed its first Negro vice president, Elizabeth D. Koonz, a public school teacher from Salisbury, N.C. She is expected to succeed to the presidency next year.

Earlier in the week, when she was nominated to the vice presidency, Mrs. Koonz, 47, called it "significant." The significance, she explained, was not necessarily that she is the first Negro to be in line for the presidency. Rather, she said, it was the fact "that this association is too astute a body not to elect someone in whom they have confidence."

Delegates passed a resolution supporting racial integration of public schools and calling for steps to eliminate de facto segregation by such methods as busing pupils to other neighborhoods.

"Education must seek to eliminate prejudice and bigotry from the public mind," said the resolution.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, a former teacher, told the convention that Americans should be willing to pay higher taxes and work harder to provide better education for underprivileged children.

He said that children from poverty-stricken homes face many handicaps and that they enter school "badly prepared by everything in their experience."

He recommended that school administrators and teachers devise means to keep schools open the year around to help poor children.

Humphrey pointed out that there are many former teachers at the top level of governments, including President Johnson, Humphrey, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and House Democratic Leader Carl Albert.

The vice president seconded Alonso's remarks about teachers being active in politics.

Plea Delayed In Sniper Death of Two

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A gaunt, 35-year-old Canadian Air Force veteran stood meek and silent in Magistrate Court, charged with the murder of a young couple and the wounding of two others during a wild shooting spree.

Arthur John Towell said only that he would like time to get a lawyer before entering a plea on two counts of first degree murder and two of attempted murder.

Magistrate James Bartman Friday ordered Towell held without bail and said the plea would be heard July 14.

Police said the shooting with a high-powered rifle, broke out near the University of British Columbia about 9 p.m. Thursday.

The quiet evening was shattered by more than a dozen shots from the two-story West 11th Avenue house where Towell, a bachelor, lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Towell.

Neighbors ducked for cover in their homes as bullets shattered their windows. Others dived behind parked automobiles while more bullets howled wildly as they ricocheted off empty vehicles.

Some 20 minutes later, when Towell walked out of his house with his hands in the air, a young couple lay dead in the back yard of their home next to the Towell residence and two women were seriously wounded.

Police said the 5-foot, 10-inch, 140-pound Towell collected guns and made his own ammunition as a hobby. They said they found 13 guns, several hundred rounds of homemade ammunition, army ammunition pouches, a bayonet and two army knives in his home.

Deputy Police Chief John Fisk said Towell spent about 15 years in the Canadian Air Force and was discharged about two years ago on medical grounds.

No motive was found for the slayings. Police Staff Sgt. William Porteous said: "The man just went berserk."

David D.A. Webster, 31, an assistant professor of education at the university, and his wife, Marlene, 30, were killed instantly with single shots in the chest. The couple's four orphaned children, aged six months to 10 years, were found by police huddled together in the basement of their home.

Wounded and reported in fair condition were Mrs. Holda Baxter, 56, of Powell River, B.C., and Mrs. Patti Barrass, 18, a bride of only a few weeks.

Webster was hit as he ran into his back yard after the shooting started. His wife was cut down as she ran to his side.

Mrs. Baxter suffered multiple minor wounds from a bullet and flying glass while she was babysitting with her five grandchildren in a home across the street from Towell's.

Mrs. Barrass was shot in one leg as she and her husband walked down the street in front of the Towell home.

While police moved in on the Towell house with guns drawn and helped ambulance attendants pick up Mrs. Barrass, Towell's mother came running outside, shouting: "Don't shoot! Don't shoot! My son will surrender."

Towell walked out unarmed and surrendered quietly.

CCC Losses Show 35% Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Losses of the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corp. in carrying out farm price and income support programs have been running 35 per cent higher than a year earlier.

A department report shows those losses totaled $3.44 billion during the first eight months of the fiscal year which ended June 30, compared with $2.55 billion in the like period a year earlier. A report on full losses for the fiscal year will be made later.

Included in the losses were $2.44 billion in payments to farmers for carrying out cotton, wheat, and feed grain stabilization programs. Payments to cotton growers totaled $791 million to feed grain producers $1.34 billion and to wheat farmers $309 million.

The corporation lost $356 billion on $2.38 million worth of farm products it acquired under farm support operations by selling them for less than cost.

Houston Veteran Recalls Campaign in Philippines

By RUTH ROGERS
Sunday News Area Editor
HOUSTON, Minn. — "The frost hasn't been out of my lungs since I was in the Philippines," says Herbert G. Hill, 83-year-old resident of Houston who is the only Spanish-American War veteran left in Houston County.

With his parents' written consent he enlisted in the U.S. Army May 28, 1901 at Minneapolis. He was 18. Interested in the army since watching the National Guard drill at Spring Valley, Minn., his home town, he knew that he wanted to get into the 28th U.S. Infantry Regiment at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., because he had read they were headed for the Philippines.

After training at Vancouver and Boise, Id., he was shipped out aboard the transport Rosencrans from Astoria, Ore., and immediately, on that rough coastline, was placed on guard duty—a career in which he was to engage in civilian life after his three-year hitch.

He was guard at the state prison at Stillwater 41 years, 29 of those years as assistant deputy warden.

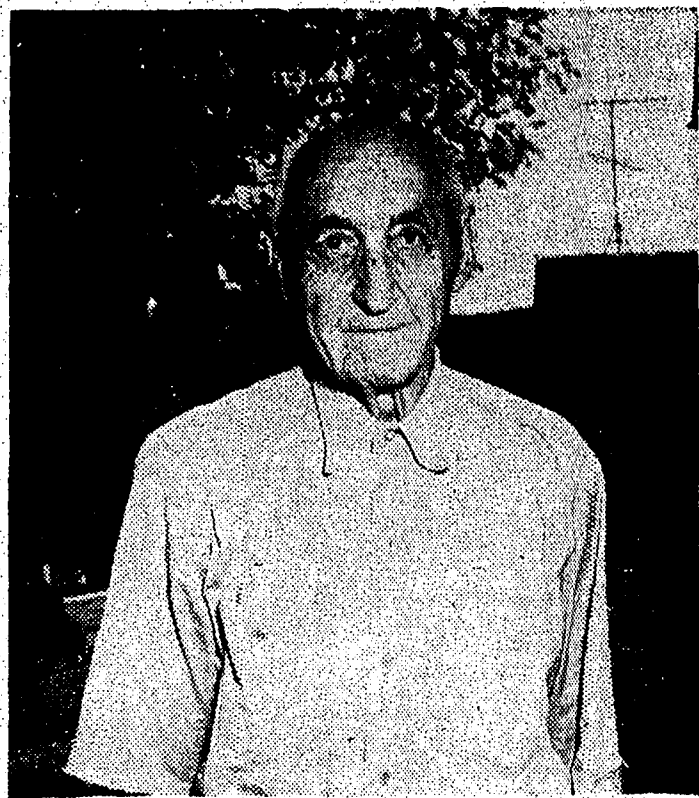

A STORM HIT just after the Rosencrans put out to sea and most of the men were sent into the hold, but young Hill and another sentry were forgotten and took refuge in a coil of rope on the hurricane deck so they wouldn't be thrown off the dipping and rolling craft. That was his first experience with the army.

Seven days later the ship docked at Honolulu for repairs and stayed five days. "Waikiki was only a beach then, it wasn't commercialized," Hill said, but they enjoyed swimming in the ocean. There was an artillery base at Diamond Head—that was all.

The Rosencrans passed Corregidor and landed at Manila Bay on Christmas Eve, 1901. They had a roast beef dinner which they ate from their mess kits.

"We had no dairy products," Hill said. "For a long time after I got home and out of the army, I forgot to use butter. Their main fare was hard tack, canned beef and beans."

Christmas night the regiment was sent south to Batangas Province where the next morning they had to unload in the ship's boats—there was no dock to tie up to. They camped in tents on the plaza in the city of Batangas until New Year's Day, 1902.

HERBERT G. HILL . . . Houston County's only surviving Spanish-American War veteran.

Joining other regiments on what was known as the South Line, Hill's regiment hiked out through orange groves, the men stuffing their pockets with ripe oranges, as they proceeded to join the troops headed by Gen. Franklin D. Bell in fighting the Filipino insurgents.

There Hill heard the crack of the first Mauser rifles which the insurgents had stolen from the defeated Spanish. The men formed a skirmish line and began swimming across a stream, chest deep. That was his introduction to battle. When they got out of the water and to the top of the hill, the Filipinos who were not dead had fled.

They fought until April to secure Batangas and Laguna provinces on the island of Luzon, Hill said. Asiatic cholera broke out when they returned to Batangas City. Guard duty again—Hill was sent up river to Montalban—Gem of the Mountains in Spanish—to keep the Filipinos from polluting the river that furnished water for the city of Manila.

From here Hill and nine other men and a hospital corpsman were sent still farther up the mountain to protect the source of the river.

"NOWADAYS they have the medical corps," Hill mused.

"Then we had hospital corpsmen," Hill volunteered for this job, although they were said to be going into a "lon's mouth"; the mayor was reported to be an insurgent sympathizer. "We found he was friendly to the insurgents only for the protection of his town," Hill said. "We told him we had a Gatling gun and would protect him."

They didn't have a Gatling gun, Hill said; "besides, a Gatling gun wasn't any good. Neither are machine guns; they just make a lot of noise, and it takes too many men to keep them running. Take the same number of men, each with a rifle, and they are more effective."

Hill said they all got malaria in this forsaken village where they were seven miles from any communication. "We considered malaria something like a bad cold," he commented.

Nevertheless the return downhill took them longer than it had coming up hill because of the disease.

Hill guarded a Spanish prison at Bagangas and helped drive the insurgents from Taal, the city that was later buried by its overhanging volcano. "We saw insurgents across Lake Taal from us," he said. "We fired at them at 1,800 yards until we heard the cease fire trumpet."

They were using Krag Jorgenson rifles. "They were the best rifles the army ever had," Hill thinks. "There wasn't a tree that we couldn't shoot through." He also liked the "use of the trumpet for issuing orders. I think the army still should have officer's call."

The Philippine insurrection was a supposedly suppressed June 4, 1902, Hill said; the surrender took place at Lipa, Batangas Province. Part of his regiment was sent to guard a prison on an island in Laguna Bay.

In January 1903, they were shipped to Mindanao Island to the south. "Luzon and Mindanao are the largest islands in this archipelago of over 7,000 islands," Hill said. "Each is about the size of Kentucky."

Only eight degrees from the equator, they helped build a military base. Here they had trouble with the Moros, or Mohammedans, a different breed and religion from the Tologs of Luzon.

LED BY Gen. Leonard Wood, for whom Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., is named, they embarked in a three-mile skirmish line on a forced march through swamps to rescue a squadron of 400 men from the island of Jolo in the Sulu island group 600 miles southeast of Mindanao but part of the Philippine Archipelago. Their feet cracked open first being wet and then from having to walk over the parched land of the island.

As they labored through the swamp they were forced to eat raw bacon, because there wasn't enough dry land to build a fire. They fought the Moros on the island surrounding the walled city of Jolo. They captured the sultan.

While in Mindanao Hill met Gen. John Pershing, then serving as officer of the day, later commander of the American Expedition Air Force in Europe in World War I.

When he was sent home for his discharge on May 27, 1904, Hill was a sergeant—the youngest sergeant of the then 28th U.S. Infantry Regiment.

His early interest in the army was inspired by his father, who was a Civil War veteran. He was born at Spring Valley, Minn., Oct. 10, 1883. While having there one day as a young man, he was called down off the load to meet his future wife, Nora Blakum of Houston. They weren't married until after he returned from service in the Philippines.

He supposedly ended his years as assistant deputy warden at Stillwater prison in 1941 after 36 years of service, because he felt like retiring.

"Prisoners are just like other people," he commented.

Report Filed On Allied Finances

ST. PAUL (AP) — The receiver for the bankrupt American Allied Insurance Co. reports that his office has collected some $478,000 but that claims against the firm now exceed $16 million.

Homer Bonhiver filed a report in Ramsey County District Court indicating that $345,000 had been collected and banked or invested, and that $104,450 had been used for salaries and other expenses of his office including legal fees.

Another $28,652 was spent for bills which the court ordered to be paid.

American Allied, with headquarters in St. Paul, was launched in 1963 and was declared bankrupt in early August 1965 after a lengthy investigation of its operations. In October 1965, a federal grand jury handed down indictments against 17 defendants, charging them with fraud and conspiracy. The government charged more than $3 million in policyholders' money had been illegally drained off.

Bonhiver's report listed $240,000 worth of assets, together with $105,000 on deposit at the Minnesota Insurance Division. The court was told the largest asset listed by Philip Kitzer Sr. and his son, Philip Jr., Chicagoans who headed American Allied, was $2,708,000 of Allied Realty Co., St. Paul. From that listing, Bonhiver said, his office has been able to collect some $61,000 thus far.

The Kitzers had claimed there were $6.5 million in free and clear assets, said Bonhiver. Dozens of lawsuits are coming up, Bonhiver said, in which he will try to collect money in behalf of the receivership.

He noted, for example, that his office and Kitzer Sr. are involved in a legal battle over vacant lots and a commercial building in Chicago owned by Kitzer. Kitzer is fighting Bonhiver's attempt to gain clear title to the property for the receivership.

Bonhiver said his office is bringing suit against 200 insurance agents who held back $466,000 in premium money paid for high-risk insurance with American Allied. It was testified recently at the federal court trial in Bismarck, N.D., that the agents were advised to hold back the money by Cyrus Magnusson, Minnesota state insurance commissioner, who reported to the agents that American Allied was in financial trouble.

Conservation Unit Sets Air Tours

LAKE CITY, Minn. (Special) — The Wabasha County Soil and Water Conservation District will sponsor air tours next Saturday at the Warren Roberson farm, Millville area, on Highway 60 for the purpose of seeing the progress made in conservation work in the county.

Patrons will have a choice of flights of either the north or south half of the county.

In case of rain, or too large a crowd for one day, flights will also take off July 16. Tours will be taken off from 9 a.m. until dusk.

Harold Bremer, Lake City, is chairman of the Wabasha County Soil and Water Conservation District.

"You have to know how to treat them. I treated them like officers handle men in the army. I supervised making twine in the prison, and never had any trouble."

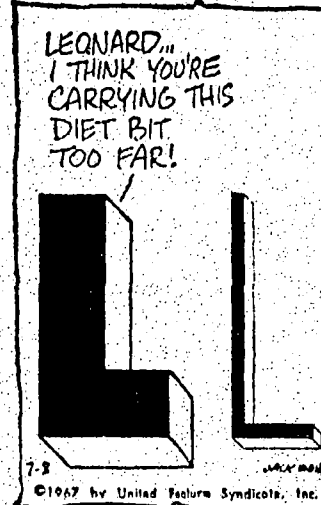

All prisons have innocent men in them, he said. When he retired he and his wife moved to Houston, his wife's home town. They went to Great Falls, Mont., to visit their son, Eugene, but before long Herbert found himself serving with the auxiliary military police as a guard at the airport there. He stayed on that job until the end of World War II.

Returning to Houston, he was called back to Stillwater Prison in 1951 because help was needed. Thus he filled out over 41 years there by working another four years and six months.

Bright eyed and quick witted, he told his story of his experiences in the Philippines as if they had been yesterday, recalling the names and the spelling of the places that also became familiar to many other American soldiers some 40 years later during World War II.

As he mows the lawn around their pretty little home at Houston, Hill still thinks most about the army and the armed services, as they have been the chief interest of his long life. He and his wife have three sons, Eugene, now of Davis, Calif., and Henry G. and Richard of Houston. Richard is the mortician here. They have four grandchildren.

Oregon Bank to Be National Landmark

JACKSONVILLE, Ore., (AP) — The C.C. Beekman Bank Building in Jacksonville will be designated next month as a national historical landmark.

The bank opened in the 1850s, when gold was discovered in southern Oregon. But it did not operate for profit.

It served simply as the community strong box. Depositors often received the exact same money they had put in earlier.

Innocent Plea Entered in Shooting

ANOKA, Minn. (AP) — James J. Ulfferts, 18, Coon Rapids, was held in lieu of $15,000 bail after he pleaded innocent Friday to a charge of first degree murder in the death of St. Francis Police Chief Gerald Boos.

District Judge Leonard Keyes set trial for Oct. 3.

The case of Ulfferts' younger brother, who also is in custody, is being handled in Juvenile Court, authorities said.

Boos, 29, was shot in the chest and stomach when he and another officer were investigating a group of teen-agers and four cars parked in an open field near the village limits June 10.

TB Victim Vivien Leigh Dead at 53

LONDON (AP) — Vivien Leigh, star of stage and screen, was found dead in her London apartment Saturday. She had been in ill health for some time.

Miss Leigh, former wife of Sir Laurence Olivier, had long suffered from tuberculosis. She had a relapse recently and was under medical care.

Doctors had advised her to rest last week after a recurrence of tuberculosis. She was to have begun rehearsals next month for Edward Albee's play, "A Delicate Balance."

Miss Leigh rose to world acclaim for her role of Scarlett O'Hara opposite Clark Gable in the film "Gone With the Wind." She was picked for the part in the place of some of the biggest names in the movie industry who had been angling for it.

When casting the film director George Cukor said of the role and the star he was hunting: "The girl I select must be possessed of the devil and charged with electricity."

Cukor decided the relatively little-known English actress had what he wanted.

Although "Gone With the Wind" brought her popular acclaim, Miss Leigh reached the peak of her acting career in association with Olivier, who was to become her second husband.

They toured the United States together in Hamlet with Olivier in the title role and Miss Leigh as Ophelia. They also worked together in Sir Alexander Korda's film production "Lady Hamilton."

Miss Leigh was divorced by her first husband, London lawyer Herbert Leigh Holman, after eight years of marriage and she married Olivier.

Miss Leigh and Olivier made theatrical history in 1951 and 1952 with their appearances in twin productions of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" and "Caesar and Cleopatra," staged both in London and New York.

Miss Leigh had already been stricken with tuberculosis in 1945 and spent two months in a sanatorium. The illness from then on forced her to rest periodically.

Earlier this year she planned a West End stage comeback in Albee's "A Delicate Balance" in which she was to costar with Sir Michael Redgrave.

But the recurrence of tuberculosis last month forced an indefinite postponement and Miss Leigh was confined to her home.

She was awarded an Oscar in 1939 for her performance in "Gone With the Wind" and won a second Academy Award in 1951 for her portrayal of Blanche du Bois in Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Miss Leigh was born Vivien Mary Hartley in Darjeeling in the Himalayas Nov. 5, 1913, the daughter of an English stockbroker and an Irish mother.

The Maldives: A Place in the Sun

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.
MALE, Maldives Islands (AP) — If you've been looking for an isolated tropic isle, a place where you can get away from television, city noise, smog, and lung cancer statistics, consider the Maldives Islands.

The Maldives—pronounced as in leaves—have no television, no smog, no income tax, no property tax, no banks, no gas stations, no political parties and no dogs.

If you are tired of your wife, all you have to do is walk to the city square, repeat three times, "I divorce you," and just like that, instant bachelorhood. Or, if you are so inclined, you can pick up another wife, or as many as four—all at the same time; it is perfectly legal here.

Money doesn't grow on trees in the Maldives, but you might say it can be picked up along the beaches at low tide. Cowry shells, the home of a type of mollusk, are found in abundance and they are as good as money.

According to Webster's, the cowry has been used as money in Africa and some Asiatic countries. It was the "coin of the realm" in the Maldives for years. According to street corner gossip here in Male, the Maldives' capital, two cowries will even today buy a wife in some places in Africa.

All of the above factors should make for a fairly decent place to vacation, if not retire. But there are some substantial drawbacks, among them the fact that the Maldives just aren't ready for visitors.

A U.S. government background note on the Maldives Islands rather aptly states, "The Maldivian experience with foreign influence has been limited."

First of all, it isn't easy to get to the Maldives, an archipelago of about 2,000 islands with a population of fewer than 100,000 tucked away in the north Indian Ocean. About once a month, a chartered Air Ceylon twin-engine plane flies the 400 miles to the Maldives from Colombo, Ceylon, with cargo, mail and perhaps a passenger or two. The two-hour flight is out for most visitors though, because the Maldivian ambassador in Colombo will, as he put it, "issue a visa only when accommodations are available, and there are no accommodations." Since the plane returns as quickly as unloading and loading can be completed, there wouldn't even be time for sightseeing.

The other possibility is by sea, and there are about two sailings a month by small freighters from Colombo.

I was able to make arrangements with Capt. P.P. Nair of the Ocean Princess, a 2,500-ton British cargo ship under charter to the Maldives, to use the stateroom of a ship's officer who was on leave and to sleep aboard ship the five nights she would be in Male harbor. In view of this, a visa was issued.

The Maldives lie about 300 miles southwest of India's Kerala coast.

None of the 2,000 islets, of which about 215 are inhabited, is more than five square miles in area and all are level and low-lying, seldom exceeding an elevation of five feet. They would probably be washed out of existence by the periodic typhoons, except that coral reefs make perfect natural breakwaters.

An elected-for-life sultan, Mohamed Farid Didi I, is the constitutional monarch. The Didi family has ruled the Maldives for eight centuries, even during a brief period in 1953 when the Maldives decided to become a republic and Amin Didi was elected president. The experiment failed and the islands went back to a sultanate, with rule primarily according to ancient Moslem law.

Justice Minister Ahmed Zaki, an articulate, husky man of 36, talked freely of the Maldives' problems, aspirations, and Islamic legal system.

"Lashing," Zaki said, "is a form of punishment in the Maldives, but this has been reduced to a minimum. It is used today only in religious crimes such as illegitimate births and adultery."

During the Moslem fasting month of Ramadan last year three Male businessmen were found guilty of breaking the fast — no food or drink may be taken from sunrise to sunset. Each was given 19 lashes, ordered to fast for two months, and placed under house arrest for six months.

Fines also are levied in the Maldivian courts, but perhaps the most common form of punishment is banishment, especially in the cases of crimes of violence. A man may be banished from his atoll for a period of months, or for life. Justice Minister Zaki admits to many problems confronting his country, but points out the Maldives are just beginning to come into the 20th century. None of the Maldivian judges, for instance, has an internationally recognized law degree. All senior judges, however, have studied Islamic law in Cairo.

"For so long we have been isolated that we tend to be less sophisticated," Zaki said, in explaining how the Maldives have been able to adhere so strictly to Moslem law and tradition. Because of these, no dogs or pigs may be brought onto the island; no alcoholic beverages are permitted and it has only been recently that tobacco was introduced and the women removed the veil.

Moving pictures also have been introduced — there is one cinema house on Male which operates on Saturday nights — but Zaki isn't sure this was a good thing.

"Thefts have become more common and there are many quarrels now. Most of the increase has been the past six or seven years since people began seeing movies. They don't understand the theme 'crime does not pay.'"

"We are trying to push ahead," Zaki says in a pensive moment. "We must have our students prepared for the modern world by the time our lives end."

The Maldives have a very high literacy rate, but unfortunately the medium of instruction has been Divehi, the Maldivian language which appears to be a mixture of Sinhalese and Urdu or Arabic.

By law, all parents are required to teach their children to read, write, understand basic arithmetic and recite the Koran.

For the past five years, promising young Maldivians have been sent abroad, thanks to scholarships from foreign countries.

Approximately 12,000 people live on Male, giving the island — which is a half mile long and a mile wide — one of the highest population densities in the world. Nonetheless, they have kept their island unbelievably neat and clean.

The white sand streets are swept clean of any leaves, paper or any other debris. Most of the homes appear freshly whitewashed and their roofs of corrugated metal, a very popular building material, have rusted and weathered to a uniform shade.

Each home has its own well, with water coming from a depth of only four feet. The water table is kept up by the 100 to 150 inches of rain which falls each year.

This ready availability of water is behind much of the severe health problem in the Maldives, explains Manikavasar Sathianathan, Ceylonese doctor assigned here by the World Health Organization.

"Human waste is placed in the soil not far from the wells," he explains, and with the sandy soil and heavy rainfall, the wells are contaminated. As a result there are periodic typhoid epidemics and chronic intestinal diseases.

The Maldivians appear to be of Aryan descent with some mixture of Arab and South Indian blood. They are generally small and wiry, with the average height of the men being 5 feet 2. The women are attractive — some very pretty — and lighter, probably because they stay out of the sun.

Fishing is the basic industry and about 3,500 tons of Maldivian fish are exported each year to Ceylon.

All commerce is carried on by the Maldivian National Trading Corp., through an office in Ceylon. Male is virtually a free port, and the government shops are stocked with Swiss watches, English bicycles, and Japanese cameras and transistor radios.

Sir William Ramsay received the 1904 Nobel prize for chemistry.

More Critics Heard on Viet Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long-muted House voices are beginning to be raised in support of some alternative to the administration's Vietnam war policy.

Until recently open criticism was limited to a handful of the 435 members.

A few weeks ago, however, 60 Democrats, all staunch supporters of President Johnson, cautiously raised the possibility of a renewed attempt to bring the United Nations into an effort for a peaceful settlement.

Now, a group of liberal Republicans has come up with a new proposal they say will improve chances for a negotiated settlement with minimum military risk.

The eight Republicans joining in the proposal have scheduled a news conference Monday to make it public. None is identified with the GOP leadership, which has maintained a public show of support for Johnson's policy.

While they declined to disclose details of their plan before the news conference, the eight said it was designed "to reopen the domestic dialogue on United States policy in Vietnam, which has in recent months been curtailed through a growing belief that any form of dissent or debate in wartime is unworthy."

In a statement announcing the news conference they said the plan presented "a viable alternative to the current administration policy which, to many, seems to offer no reason for optimism."

They said they also hoped their plan would remind "the policy-maker and the critic alike that Vietnam is still a limited war in every sense of that term and that there is an immense difference between the diplomacy of limited war and the diplomacy of total war."

The eight GOP members making the statement were Reps. F. Bradford Morse, Mass.; John R. Dellenback, Ore.; Marvin L. Esch, Mich.; Frank J. Horton, N.Y.; Charles M. Mathias Jr., Md.; Charles A. Mosher, Ohio; Richard S. Schweiker, Pa.; and Robert T. Stafford, Vt.

Dellenback and Esch are freshmen who already have shown independence in voting against GOP leadership positions. The other six are identified with an informal House group that has tried since the 1964 election to give the Republican party a more liberal image.

This is the first time any House Republicans, as a group, have come up with an alternative Vietnam policy. The party's leaders, including Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, have sniped occasionally at specific actions of Johnson's, but always stopped short of suggesting any approach of their own.

With the fight for the GOP presidential nomination heating up it is possible the current move by the eight liberals could be the start of an attempt to give the party a Vietnam policy that would offer the voters an alternative to Johnson's in 1968.

Billie Jean King Retains Wimbledon Singles Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King established herself as the world's No. 1 woman tennis player in sweeping to three titles Saturday in the Wimbledon Championships. The bouncy, 23-year-old Long Beach, Calif., housewife first crushed Britain's veteran Ann Haydon Jones 6-3, 6-4 for the women's singles title—her second in succession—and then shared the women's doubles and mixed doubles crowns in a feat last achieved 16 years ago.

The last player to score Wimbledon's rare triple was Doris Hart of the U.S. in 1961. Billie Jean and 18-year-old Rosemary Casals of San Francisco scored a comeback 9-11, 6-4, 6-2 triumph over defending champions Maria Bueno of Brazil and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., in women's doubles. In the final match of a long, exhausting day the bespectacled Californian paired with Australia's Owen Davidson in beating Miss Bueno and Ken Fletcher of Australia 7-5, 6-2 for the mixed doubles crown.

Mrs. King's three finals kept her on the center court for a total of more than 3½ hours—and she was as jaunty at the end as at the beginning.

A capacity crowd of 15,000 watched the women's final on the hallowed center court in bright, sunny weather. The 23-year-old American favorite hit a majestic serving rhythm and volleyed with verve right from the start of the match. Mrs. Jones, 28, failed to pull out an adequate return of service and often was caught on the wrong foot.

McLain Stops Boston 2-0

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain fired a four-hitter and set up Detroit's first run with a key single as the Detroit Tigers blanked the Boston Red Sox 2-0 Saturday.

It was the sixth straight victory for the second-place Tigers. Boston has dropped four in a row. The Tigers bunched two of their five hits and pushed across an unearned run off Lee Stange in the third.

Rico Petrocelli booted Ray Oyler's grounder with one out. McLain singled and Lenny Green followed with a base hit, pushing Oyler around.

O'Connor Added To Pan American Boxing Squad

ST. PAUL (AP) — Pat O'Connor of Rochester, Minn., was added Saturday to the U.S. 22-man boxing team which will go to Winnipeg for the Pan-American Games later this month.

Although he lost in Thursday's semi-finals of the 147-pound trials to Richard Royal of New York City, the AAU champion, O'Connor was picked to the U.S. squad because he fared better against Royal than did Bob Reid of the Army, who Royal stopped at 2:16 of the second round in Friday's finals.

Also picked to the U.S. team although he lost a semi-final match was Harlan Marbley of the Army at 114.5 pounds — backing up Roland (Boom Boom) Miller of Fairview, Mont.

Giants Dump Dodgers 8-4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Hart drove in five runs on a pair of homers and Juan Marichal became the major leagues' first 12-game winner as San Francisco ripped Los Angeles 8-4 Saturday.

The Dodgers had hopped on Marichal, 12-7, for a quick 4-0 lead on two-run homers by Lou Johnson and Ron Fairly but Hart led the Giants' charge back. Ollie Brown singled two runs home off Don Drysdale in the third and then Hart smashed a three-run homer and wiped out the Dodger lead in the fifth. Bob Schroder singled and Willie McCovey was hit by a pitch before Hart tagged his first homer.

Tom Haller followed that shot with a bases-empty homer, giving the Giants a 6-4 edge.

In the seventh, Hart connected again. The five RBI gave Hart 21 in the last 10 games. The fifth inning homer was the 100th of his major league career.

Tickets for State Golf Classic on Sale in Winona

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Annette Coursolle, a registered nurse from Minneapolis, has been named queen of the 1967 Minnesota Golf Classic, scheduled for Hazeltine Golf Course July 26-30.

Tickets are on sale for the tournament, which will draw the top touring pros, at Westfield Golf Course, the Junior Chamber of Commerce Office and KAGE radio.

Alston Picks Short To Replace Lemaster

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chris Short of the Philadelphia Phils was named Saturday by National League Manager Walt Alston to replace Denny Lemaster for Tuesday's All-Star game in Anaheim.

Lemaster of the Atlanta Braves injured his pitching arm in a game last Sunday.

KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Nationals Lose Ace

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "Pound-for-pound, he was probably the greatest little competitor I ever saw. He can't be replaced."

Thus spoke Murray Williamson, coach and general manager of the U.S. Nationals hockey team Saturday about Terry Casey, former University of North Dakota hockey star who died Friday night in a Montana automobile accident.

Casey, 23, from Great Falls, Mont., was one of four young men killed in a two-car collision near Hillsdale, Mont. Another victim was William Strow-bridge, 22, of Bemidji, Minn. Seven persons were hospitalized.

Williamson, who coached Casey when he played for the U.S. Nationals last winter, was stunned by his young star's death.

"He was probably the most popular player I've ever been associated with," Williamson said. "He was the only Montanan who ever played big-time amateur or professional hockey, and probably the only one we'll see in a long, long time from that part of the country."

"Typical of Terry, he was originally a figure skater. But he decided he wanted to be a hockey player, so he walked into a North Dakota practice session one day to try out. He wound up the Sioux captain and an All-American.

"He was the only player I ever had to hide his skates from to keep him from practicing. He had an injury at this year's world tournament and we had to rest him. He wanted to practice so bad I had to lock his skates up."

Casey's death, Williamson said, "really hurts us. In my estimation, he was the best American center in amateur hockey." Williamson said Casey had no immediate thoughts about turning professional, although he was on the reserve list of the Detroit Red Wings.

"His big athletic ambition was to play on next year's U.S. Olympic team," Williamson said. "He not only would have made the team, but we were counting very heavily on him."

Casey was working this summer in Great Falls, but had signed a contract to teach in the athletic program of the Burnsville school system in suburban Minneapolis starting in September.

IN ALL-STAR GAME

NL Seeks Fifth Straight Victory

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The favored National League, still smarting from the 1966 World Series disaster, takes dead aim at a record fifth straight All-Star game victory over the American League Tuesday in a unique twilight game at Anaheim Stadium.

In an effort to gain wider fan appeal, Commissioner William D. Eckert has set a 4:15 p.m. PDT (7:15 p.m. EDT) starting time for the contest. That will take the telecast over NBC into prime evening hours in the eastern section of the country.

Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle will play unusual walk-on roles as substitutes when the teams renew their midsummer rivalry with the 38th of the series. The National League, once outdistanced and humiliated by the American League, now owns a 19-17 edge and boasts a four-game winning streak.

Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Hank Bauer of the Baltimore Orioles, the managers of last year's Series rivals, meet again under somewhat different circumstances. Both the Dodgers and the Orioles have been rolling around in the second division most of the year. If both make it to the Series again, it will be a shocking upset.

Just as has been the case all year, Alston no longer has Sandy Koufax to fall back on as a starting pitcher. Sandy's role probably will be taken by Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants although Alston has a fine eight-man staff, and he might decide to go to Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs, Bob Gibson of St. Louis or even Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' precocious rookie.

Don Drysdale of the Dodgers, a starter in four All-Star games, also is available. Because both teams are light on left-handed batters in their starting line-ups, Bauer also is expected to go to a right-handed starter. Prime candidates are Dean Chance, the ex-Angel now pitching for Minnesota, Joe Horlen of the Chicago White Sox, Jim Lonborg of Boston or, perhaps, rookie Jim McGlothlin of the home town Angels.

The American League is crippled by the loss of star outfielders, Al Kaline of Detroit and Frank Robinson of Baltimore. Kaline suffered a broken bone in his hand when he hit a bat rack in a fit of anger after striking out. Kaline, the top vote getter with 242, has been replaced by Oliva of Minnesota.

Robinson, bothered by double vision since a June 27 baseline collision, scratched himself from the All-Star game after taking batting practice Friday night. His replacement will be Ken Berry of the White Sox.

Pittsburgh has three men in the National's starting line-up, including the Pirates' dazzling double play combination of Bill Mazeroski at second base and Gene Alley at shortstop. Alley led all the players with 250 of a possible 258 votes.

Roberto Clemente will open in the outfield with Hank Aaron of Atlanta and Lou Brock of St. Louis. It will be up to Alston to place the outfielders by position. The rest of the infield will have Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis at first and Richie Allen of Philadelphia at third; Joe Torre of Atlanta, back in action after missing several games due to injuries, will be the catcher.

Bauer will have one Oriole in his starting lineup. He is Brooks Robinson who will be at third base. Other American League infielders will be Rico Petrocelli of Boston at shortstop, rookie Rod Carew of Minnesota at second and Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota at first. Bill Freehan of Detroit is the catcher.

Carl Yastrzemski of Boston joins Oliva and Berry in the American League outfield.

Score in 9th Beats Merritt

CHICAGO (AP) — Tommy John pitched a brilliant three-hitter and Wayne Causey's ninth-inning sacrifice fly drove in the only run of the game as the Chicago White Sox blanked Minnesota 1-0 Saturday.

John allowed only three singles by Tony Oliva—two of them bloopers—and hurled his fifth shutout of the season, raising his record to 8-5. He struck out four and walked three.

Causey's sacrifice fly pushed the winning run across against loser Jim Merritt, who dropped his first game after six victories.

Rookie Dick Kenworthy opened the ninth with a double. Jim Stewart ran for Kenworthy and Merritt walked Ken Berry intentionally. Ron Hansen moved the runners along with a sacrifice and then Charlie Bradford was intentionally walked, loading the bases.

Then Causey flied to Ted Uhlaender and Stewart raced home after the catch.

John was in trouble only twice. He walked Harmon Killebrew with one out in the seventh and Oliva's second hit dropped in front of Berry. Then Bob Allison walked, loading the bases.

But John got Rich Rollins on a fly ball. In the ninth, with two out, Killebrew walked and Oliva lined his third hit of the day. But John got Allison to bounce into a forceout.

It was the second straight one-run, ninth inning victory for the first place White Sox over the Twins, who brought an eight-game winning streak into Chicago Friday night.

The victory kept Chicago three games in front of second place Detroit and dropped the third place Twins 4½ behind.

It was Chicago's 22nd one-run victory in 35 decisions this season.

Ryun Batters 7-Year-Old World Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — America's Jim Ryun shattered the world record for the 1,500-meter run Saturday with a time of 3 minutes 33.1 seconds in the United States-British Commonwealth track and field meet.

The university of Kansas sophomore, already holder of the mile record at 3:51.1, whipped Kenya's Kipchoge Keino by nearly 25 yards as he belated Australian Herb Elliott's seven-year-old metric mile record of 3:35.6.

Lennox Miller of Jamaica, who attends the University of Southern California, grabbed a first place for the Commonwealth with a 10.1 timing in the 100-meter dash, an event where two Yanks were disqualified for two false starts apiece.

Nebraska's Charlie Greene, the only surviving U.S. representative took second. Both Jimmy Hines and Willie Turner were ruled out of the race.

The United States swept the 110-meter hurdles with Willie Davenport, Richmond Flowers and Earl McCullough finishing 1-2-3 in a blanket finish with the winner timed at 13.6 seconds.

Another United States sweep came in the shot put with world record holder Randy Matson winning at 67-1½ followed by Dave Maggard at 64-1¾ and Neal Steinhauer at 63-11¼.

BUDDIES GAME RAINED OUT

The scheduled baseball game between the Winona Buddies VFW team and the Lake City VFW team was postponed Saturday because of wet grounds. No date has been set to make up the contest.

Buddies' coach Earl Brugger has called a practice for Tuesday at 1:45 p.m. at Loughrey Field.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tommie Sisk scattered 10 hits and Willie Stargell keyed two Pittsburgh rallies with doubles as the Pirates whipped Cincinnati 6-1 Saturday.

Stargell's first double launched a two-run Pirate rally in the fourth and his second drove in Gene Alley in the fifth. Manny Mota stroked three straight hits and Bill Mazeroski delivered a pair of sacrifice flies as Sisk won his seventh game in 13 decisions.

DAMP AND TIRED . . . These nine distance runners competed in the YMCA five-mile run Saturday. John Rahman (back row extreme right) won the race with a time of 26 minutes and 14 seconds. The course began at the YMCA and proceeded around Lake Winona, finishing at Lincoln School. The race was run entirely in the

FULL HOUSE OF SPORTS

Bambenek

FOR three or four years in Southern Minnesota there have been rumors about a possible college baseball league sponsored by the Major Leagues. M. J. (Mike) Bambenek, City Recreation Director, mentioned it just the other day.

What appears to have started the talk was a letter written to the Minnesota Twins' amateur baseball committee by Austin's Emil Scheid. To see just what the possibilities were, we went straight to the horse's mouth, so to speak, and talked with Twins' assistant farm director George Brophy.

The verdict? It won't happen in the foreseeable future.

"Nothing came out of that letter," commented Brophy by telephone from his Metropolitan Stadium office.

"The Twins underwrote a league in Northern Minnesota like that a few years ago until the NCAA ruled we couldn't do it," continued Brophy. "The biggest problem with a setup like that is finding jobs. The average labor market can't provide enough part-time jobs for the local school kids, much less for outsiders who come in to play baseball. And these players must have sort of income. This was one of the big problems with that northern league."

Scheid

BROPHY DID STATE that the Majors are pumping about $300,000 into an Illinois College league of this sort and the Basin League, however.

The Basin League is a unique setup about which we don't have full information but the Illinois circuit is just what local baseball promoters had hoped for this area. Due to the heavier industrial area in Illinois, however, more jobs are available.

University of Minnesota coach Dick Siebert's Metropolitan League is not getting any assistance from the Twins, said Brophy. "One of the reasons it is successful is that there are enough jobs in the Metropolitan area to absorb the players who come in."

Siebert

WE ALSO PLAYED a little game of name-dropping, mentioning former Cochrane-Fountain City athlete Larry McFarlin who just signed a contract with the California Angels. We hit a stone wall!

Brophy had never heard of McFarlin and after a quick check of some records, assured us that the Twins had not gone after him.

"We have scouts down there and if he did anything they saw him," Brophy said. "But evidently our people didn't like him."

McFarlin

SPEAKING OF RUMORS, we heard one about Elijah Pitts, halfback for the Green Bay Packers, that evidently has a good foundation.

It seems Pitts was on leave from Camp McCoy, there on two-week National Guard duty. The 220-pound blockbuster ventured across the river to La Crosse where he ended up in a scuffle in a local pub.

The result was that Pitts had to get some of his bridge work mended in a hurry before returning to Camp McCoy.

TWO MORE quick notes. First, the Concordia Coaching Clinic in Moorhead, Minn., has scheduled its all-star basketball game for 7 p.m. Aug. 12. The cage tilt will be preceded by an all-star football game at 4 p.m. Winona State's Dave Meisner and Tim Anderson will take part in the basketball game as members of the Minnesota All Star team coached by Dean Smith of North Carolina. Bill Fitch of Bowling Green will coach the outstate all stars.

And finally, don't forget the Inboard hydroplane races this afternoon at Levee Park. Even if you didn't care for the outboard version of years past, take a look at this year's field—and pray for good weather. With a reasonably smooth water surface the boats may reach speeds up to 140 m.p.h. At that speed a floating pop bottle will go through the hull of a boat like a cannon shell. Don't think it doesn't take courage to ride herd on one of those water-bound rockets.

Finalists For White Award Are Selected

CHICAGO (AP) — The five finalists for the Byron R. White Award were announced Friday by the National Football League Players Association.

Presentation of the award, which goes to the NFL player "contributing the most to his team league and community," will be made tonight at the NFLPA's first annual awards banquet.

The five finalists are Larry Wilson, defensive back, St. Louis Cardinals; Willie Davis, defensive end, Green Bay Packers; Lou Groza, placekicker, Cleveland Browns; Bart Starr, quarterback, Green Bay Packers; and Pete Retzlaff, tight end, Philadelphia Eagles.

Presentation of the award named for Byron R. "Whizzer" White, former All-America, NFL star and now a U.S. Supreme Court associate justice, will highlight the $100 per plate dinner for the benefit of the Better Boys Foundation.

Beman Ready For British Open Assault

HOYLAKE, England (AP) — Deane Beman, winner of both the United States and British Amateur championships, today was poised to join 130 golfers in an assault on the British Open Golf Championship starting next Wednesday.

Beman of Bethesda, Md., was one of the golfers forced to qualify and he made almost certain of a place in the championships round by shooting a 70.

Beman won the British Amateur championship in 1959 and took the U.S. Amateur title in 1963.

The 28-year-old American was due to play on his country's Walker Cup team this year, but turned pro shortly beforehand.

Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, is defending the crown he won last year at Muirfield and also trying to add this one again to the United States Open title he won a few weeks back.

Winona to Host Pan Am '9

Winona, which has been separated from the fuss and furor of the Pan American Games trials by the 120 miles between here and the Twin Cities, will hold center stage in those very same trials the evening of Sunday, July 16.

The as-yet unnamed Pan American baseball team will come to Winona to play a game at 7:30 p.m. at Gabrych Park that evening.

Players from the 1966 State Champion Winona Athletics plus other hand-picked players from Hiawatha Valley League teams will make up the Winona contingent which will face the U.S. representative in the Pan American Games scheduled to begin in late July in Winnipeg, Canada. The game in Winona is one of five the Pan Am team has scheduled as exhibitions.

The official name of the Winona team for the contest will be the Hiawatha Valley Stars (not with reference to the Hiawatha Valley League, but to the area from which the players are drawn to make up the team). "They thought they could get some good competition down here," said Max Molock, A's manager of last year who arranged for the game to be played in Winona.

"They will play us with their official 18-man roster," he continued. "This would be the Olympic team if they had baseball at the Olympics."

So far, Molock has named 15 players to the team which will represent Winona and area against the Pan Am team. Included in that group are nine of last year's Athletics: Pitcher Jon Kosidowski, catcher John Nett, first baseman Gary Grob, second baseman Bob Lietzau, shortstop Don Trollet, third baseman Davis Usgaard and outfielders Gav-in Grob, Larry Senick and Ken Mullen.

Kosidowski, Nett and Lietzau are presently playing for Rollingstone of the HVL, the Grob brothers are members of the Rushford team, and Usgaard and Senick are with the Winona Merchants. Mullen and Trollet are not currently playing on an organized team.

Other members named to the local squad are: Pitchers Ray Hibbs and Steve Styba and first baseman Jack Rader of Rolling-stone; pitcher-shortstop Todd Spencer of Winona, and pitcher-outfielder Jack Benedict and catcher Mike Leahy of Cochrane. Additions to the squad will be named later.

Also included on the exhibition schedule for the Pan American team are three games with a team from the Metropolitan College League of the Twin Cities and one with the professional St. Cloud Rox of the Northern League.

"It's quite a feather in our cap to get the Pan American team here," said Molock, who received the blessings of both the Hiawatha Valley League and Minnesota Baseball Association in promotion of the game. "It's a golden opportunity for Winona to show it is a real baseball town, and it's a good chance to help the Pan American team make some money to pay for their expenses at the Games."

The U.S. representative squad is not subsidized and must pay its own way to the Pan Am games.

Ticket prices for the 7:30 p.m. contest at Gabrych Park at $1.00 for adults and fifty cents for children.

LOSE TO WHITE SOX 2-1

Twins Falter in Ninth

CHICAGO (AP) — The Minnesota Twins faltered in the first game of their crucial four-contest series with the Chicago White Sox, and it added up to a new twist on an old theme—"too little, too late."

The Twins got a run on their only two hits of the game, in the first inning. It proved to be—too little, too early.

It may have made them a bit too sure with ace right-hander Dean Chance barreling down the stretch and looking like a 1-0 winner through eight innings.

The White Sox, however, got two runs across in the ninth on Zoilo Versalles' error with two out and the bases loaded. Chicago won 2-1, shoved Minnesota back 3½ games behind the White Sox and half a game behind Detroit, which beat Boston in 11 innings.

Minnesota Manager Cal Ermer said the obvious, "We did nothing after the first inning. Sometimes you get bombed just a pitch away from a victory."

And White Sox Manager Edie Stanky summed up, "I liked the way my ball club looked, even if we had lost one to nothing. Chance was great, but Peters pitched a helluva a game."

He was referring to the left-handed magic spun by Gary Peters after the first inning, when Minnesota scored on Cesar Tovar's double followed by Tony Oliva's two-out double down the right field line.

After that, Peters held the Twins hitless through eight innings and struck out nine. But he gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Hoyt Wilhelm set down the Twins in order in the final inning, picking up the victory for a 4-1 season record.

Chance lost his seventh compared with 11 victories, yielding six hits in 8 1-3 innings.

The fateful ninth went like

With one out, Tommy McCraw

banged his third safety off

Chance, a single to right.

Chance, who'd walked, only two other batters, then issued bases on balls to Jim King and J.C.

Marlin, loading the bags.

Al Worthington was called in from the bullpen and got Don

Buford to foul out. Ron Hansen drilled a grounder to Versalles' left. It bounced off the shortstop's glove and by the time Zoilo got himself righted and pegged home, two runs had scored.

It set up a jumping jack demonstration by White Sox players who may have been practicing up in hopes of winning the pennant.

Taniehill Wins In Semi-finals Of Pan-Am Meet

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Heavyweight titans Larry Kristoff and Curly Culp wrestled to a draw Friday night in semi-finals of the Pan-American trials.

That set the stage for their third meeting Saturday night, when finalists competed at Mankato (Minn.) State College. Winners will represent the United States at the Pan-American games at Winnipeg.

Kristoff, 250-pound AAU champion from Carbondale, Ill., defeated Culp, 260-pounder of Arizona State, Wednesday, 7-2.

In the 154-pound event, Jim Taniehill of the Minnesota Wrestling Club, dethroned Leonard Borchers of Portland, Oregon, 4-1.

LeJetz Shut Out 3-0 by Rochester

ROCHESTER, Minn. — The Winona LeJetz forgot their hitting clothes again Friday night and went down to defeat at the hands of Rochester and Steve Teske 3-0.

Winona managed just two hits off Teske, both of the infield variety, in absorbing its seventh loss of the season.

The Rochester left-hander fanned seven and didn't walk a man. It was Teske's fourth consecutive shutout and extended his string of scoreless innings to 29.

THE LEJETZ were able to get the ball in the air and out of the infield only three times during the game. Only once did they get a runner as far as second base. That occurred in the second when Loren Benz singled and went to second on Steve Gerlach's grounder.

Losing pitcher Pat Wiltgen suffered his third defeat in a row and was charged with all three Rochester runs before being replaced by Ron Quamen in the fourth. Quamen did a creditable job in the 2½ innings he worked, giving up only two hits and no walks. It was the first time the LeJetz' regular shortstop had hurled this year.

The story of the game is similar to previous LeJetz losses. Winona fell behind early and because of the opposition's superb pitching couldn't get back in the game.

In this case Rochester pushed across two runs in the first and another in the second to wrap it up.

Greg Gill singled to lead off the game and scored by Bob Carlson's double. Carlson then crossed the plate for the second tally of the inning on a fielder's choice and a Willgen wild pitch.

ROCHESTER scored its third and final run in the next inning. Dick Lougren walked, stole second, went to third on Teske's single and scored on an infield grounder by Gill.

The remainder of the contest was primarily a pitcher's duel as neither team was able to mount another scoring threat.

LeJetz coach Bill Allaire said after the game that "we were surprised by Teske, we had heard that their best pitcher Cameron Hedstrom broke his hand against Austin, and we thought we were in for an easy game."

The LeJetz defeated Rochester earlier in the season by a score of 5-3.

The defeat dropped Winona to a 2-3 in league play while Rochester moved its mark to 3-4 in the league.

Schell Takes Two Firsts At St. Charles

By STAFF WRITER

ST. CHARLES, Minn. — Jim Schell of Rollingstone, king of the Winona County Fairgrounds Speedway Street Stockers, showed why he has earned that title this year by roaring to a pair of victories Friday night.

Schell out-classed the field of 11 street stock cars to become the only double winner of the evening before a crowd in the neighborhood of 1,000.

HE BULLDOZED his way to victory in the heat race, topping Dick Thesing of Lewiston and Ralph Dunbar of Winona for the checkered flag. It took him longer to gain control in the feature, but a restart forced when Bob Jonsgaard of Rushford spun out and left a wheel in the middle of the track, gave him his opportunity. He took the lead at the two-thirds point of the race and romped home an easy winner over Henry Zeiman of Winona.

A total of 37 cars turned out with 17 of them in the semi-modified division where the only bad spill of the evening occurred. That came in the feature race when Mick Madson of Kasson, while running second, broke a rear axle and rolled his 1954 Buick. The car momentarily started on fire, but it was quickly extinguished and Madson was unhurt.

Gay Hultman of Rochester streaked away to victory in the feature with Harold Bakken, who had the second heat, finishing third. Jon Swanson of Rochester was the first heat winner.

IN CRUCIAL HVL GAME

Merchants Host C-FC

It almost looks like tournament pairings in the Hiawatha Valley League today when each of the teams that are chasing each other for positions play. The big game will be tonight at Gabrych Park when the Winona Merchants tangle with Cochrane-Fountain City in a 8 p.m. contest. The Merchants hold the lead by one game over C-FC, but the two teams are knotted percentage-wise.

THIRD SPOT in the loop will also be up for grabs when Rushford travels to Lewiston for an afternoon encounter. Rushford continued its hot streak with its fourth straight victory Friday night, topping Dakota 7-1 on Larry Papenfuss' three-hit performance.

Rollingstone and Trempealeau will be fighting for the fifth spot with the two teams collide at Trempealeau in a 2 p.m. tilt, and Dakota and Gale-Ettrick meet at Gale-Ettrick in a battle of the league's lower echelon.

Cochrane-Fountain City, like Rushford, has also won four straight games and has only two losses in league play compared to three for Winona and four for both Rushford and Lewiston.

Jack Benedict will get the call in the evening contest. His opponent on the mound for Winona will be righthander Fred Beck. Benedict bested Beck 4-3 in a previous game between the two teams when Cochrane-Fountain City chased home a run in the bottom of the ninth to win it. Beck allowed five hits in that game while Benedict was tagged for 11. Bob Hazelton had four of the Winona hits.

"THEY EVEN gave us trouble last year," said Merchants' manager Ray Lafky of Cochrane-Fountain City. "We can't afford another loss in league play."

The remainder of the Winona lineup will have John Ahrens behind the plate, Bob Kosidowski at first, Todd Spencer at second, Dave Usgaard at shortstop and Jim Gunn at third. Either Pat Boland or Lee Huwald will be in left field, while Larry Senrick in center and Bob Hazelton in right.

Cochrane-Fountain City's success has been built around the pitching of Benedict and the hitting of Mike Leahy, Brian Espe, Chuck Goerish and John Kannel. C-FC still has four makeup games on its schedule.

At Lewiston, Rev. Curtis Fox is expected to be the starting pitcher for the home team against Mary Berg.

Skalet fanned nine and blanked Dakota after a first-inning run Friday night in a makeup tilt as Rushford moved within one-half game of Lewiston in the standings.

GETS FOUR HITS, LOSES $50

Expensive Night for Rose

By HAL ROCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

It was the most expensive four-hit night of Pete Rose's career.

Rose smashed a triple, two doubles and a single, drove in three runs and scored twice as the Reds downed Pittsburgh 6-2 Friday night. It cost him fifty bucks.

That's because the only time the Pirates retired him, Rose broke Cincinnati Manager Dave Bristol's new rule that levies a $50 fine anytime a batter strands a runner at third base with less than two out.

Bristol installed the rule for the first time Friday, hoping to snap the Reds out of a lethargic slump that had seen them drop 14 and 19 games and fall from first to third place.

Rose, the new system's first victim wasn't complaining. "It's a good rule," he grinned, waving $25 and some trading stamps he had collected from a post-game radio interview and trying to get Bristol to settle for that.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday night, San Francisco nipped Los Angeles 2-1, Atlanta went 11 innings before edging New York 3-2, Houston battered Chicago 11-5 and St. Louis dropped Philadelphia 5-1.

In the American League, New York shut out Baltimore 3-0, Cleveland stopped Washington 6-3, Detroit nipped Boston 5-4 in 11 innings, Chicago squeezed past Minnesota 2-1 and California swept a doubleheader from Kansas City 7-2 and 8-2.

Rose's four hits raised his batting average to .326, sixth best in the National League.

Sammy Ellis went the route for the victory, scattering six Pirate hits and allowing two unearned runs. It was his first victory in nine starts since May 24.

Jim Hart smashed a two-run homer that broke a scoreless tie in the sixth inning and lifted the Giants over the Dodgers. Hart's 390-foot shot beat Bill Singer, who had shut out the Giants in his only other start against them.

Ray Sadecki, 3-0, and Frank Linzy limited the Dodgers to five hits. Jeff Torborg slammed a home run for Los Angeles.

Joe Torre drove in two runs with a single and homer and Mack Jones tagged the 11th inning homer that beat the Mets for the Braves.

Torre singled Hank Aaron across with the tying run in the ninth inning and then Jones opened the 11th against reliever Jack Lamabe with his game winner.

The Cubs absorbed their fifth straight defeat and fell 2½ games back of St. Louis as Houston's Barry Latman hurled 5-2-3 innings of two-hit relief.

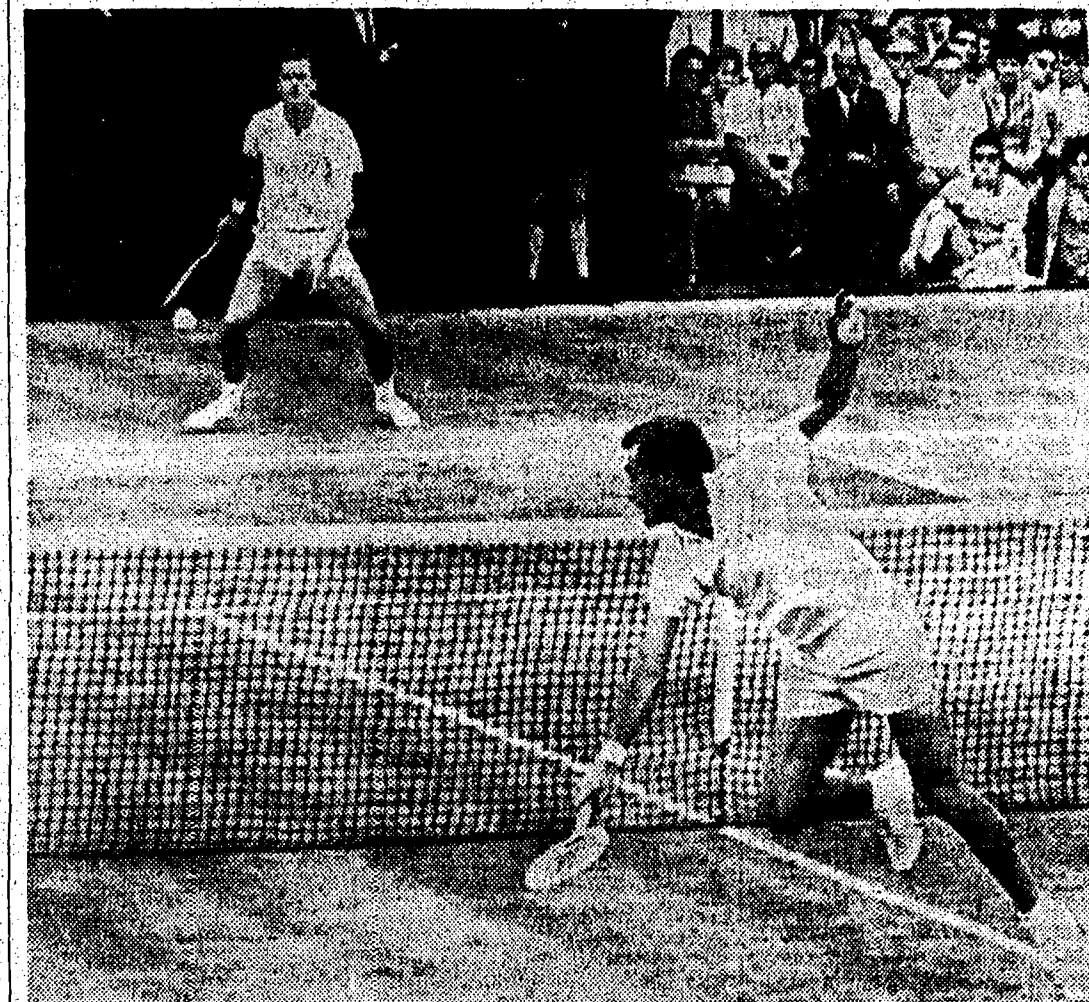

A five-run fourth inning keyed by two-run doubles by Don Davis and Bob Aspromonte, got the Astros going. Jimmy Wynn doubled across two more Houston runs in the fifth, lifting his league leading runs batted in total to 62.

Steve Carlton won his seventh game for St. Louis as the Cardinals snapped a 1-1 sixth inning tie against Philadelphia with four runs.

Julian Javier's two-run single was the big blow for the Cardinals, who beat ex-teammate Larry Jackson, 6-9.

Jackson was struck in the face by a wild throw in the four-run uprising and was to have X-rays of his nose taken.

'Milwaukeeans' Enjoy Upper River Fishing

Attractions Of Area Topic Of News Feature

By LEFTY HYMES
Sunday News Outdoor Writer

HAVE Fun Rediscovering the Mississippi, was the keynote of two feature stories by Milwaukee Journal writers last Sunday. Don Dooley, a travel writer, had fun covering "Old Man River" from Prairie du Chien north by boat, while Tom Guyant, outdoor editor, no newcomer to the river, made one of his seasonal fishing trips to known fishing spots.

Both articles stressed the scenic beauty of the river and its valley and their vast recreational areas. They emphasized that it is not just "a carp and catfish river." Guyant was after bass and Dooley told of the walleye.

But the big factor is that the Upper Mississippi has become a major tourist and recreation center to such an extent that it rates such publicity in one of the major daily newspapers of the nation.

Here are a few paragraphs from Don Dooley's article:

THE MISSISSIPPI River, running one-tenth of its 2,348 mile course along Wisconsin's western edge, is waiting to be discovered again.

Since 1541, when Hernando de Soto first crossed it near what is now Memphis, Old Man River has been used by explorers, settlers, gamblers, shippers, fishermen and duck hunters. It has not, until recently, been used very much by fun seekers.

Compared with its potential, the river is deserted recreationally. If the Upper Mississippi was situated in a more populous and water hungry area, it would be jammed.

Along the 230 miles where the Mississippi forms the border between Wisconsin and Minnesota and Iowa, there are a thousand Riverias — large and small sand bars that offer delightful swimming and camping.

THERE ARE backwaters teeming with game fish, islands, bluffs, sleepy river towns, locks and dams and spectacular scenery. The best way to see all this is from a boat.

One must spend time on the river to appreciate its magnitude. In some places it is nearly three miles wide. When we were on it, the water was high, from heavy rains, and it flowed along at 5 miles an hour, much faster than usual.

We asked Bill Hebling, Grant County's conservation warden, to show us some highlights. He knows the river, its backwaters and its people. He launched his outboard runabout here and we headed south.

"SCENERY?" There's a lot of it from the main channel, but there's 100 times more in the backwaters if you know how to get there," Hebling said.

Knowing the river is half the fun. Since we had high water, we could leave the marked main channel and go between islands and across wing dams, but such frivolity is not recommended for strangers. If could be at the very least uncomfortable, if you ran out of gas and got lost. It could be fatal if your boat struck a submerged object and sank.

WARDEN Hebling, formerly of Alma, turned the party over to John Elfa of Alma, who took us for a ride on one of his eight rental houseboats. A number of other river towns, including La Crosse and Winona, also are bases for rental houseboat fleets. We boarded at Buffalo City, went north to Alma where we stopped to buy steaks, then embarked for Lake Pepin.

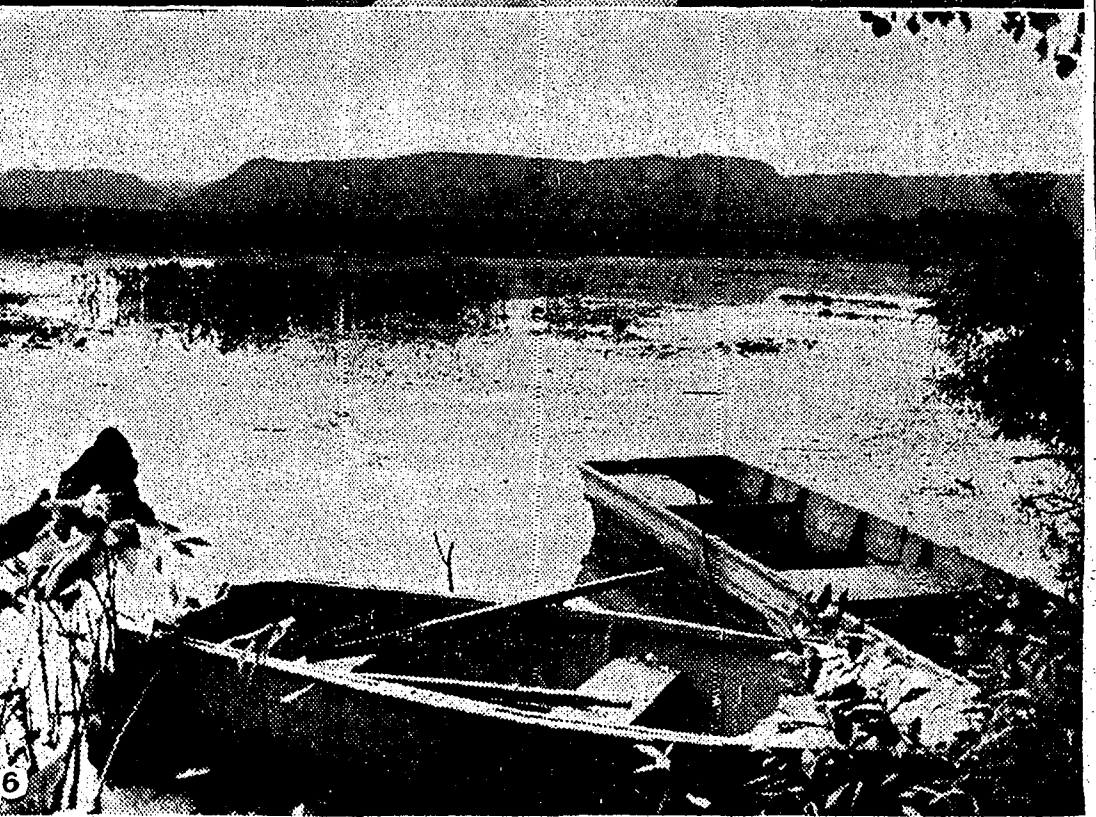

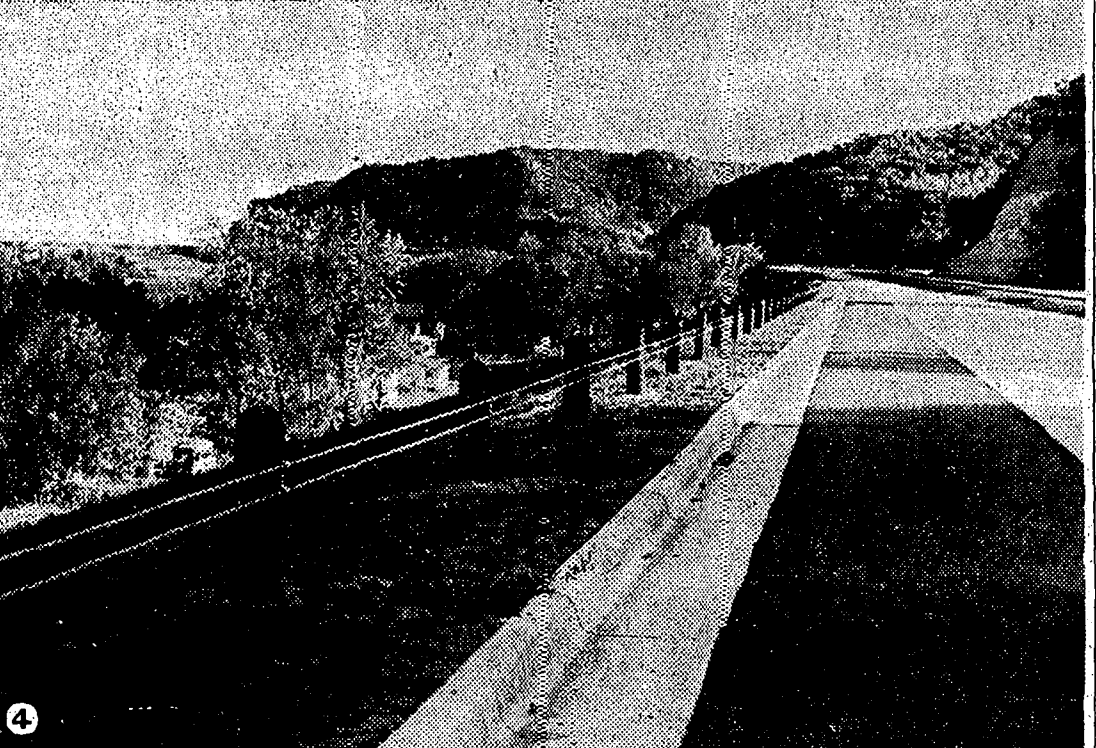

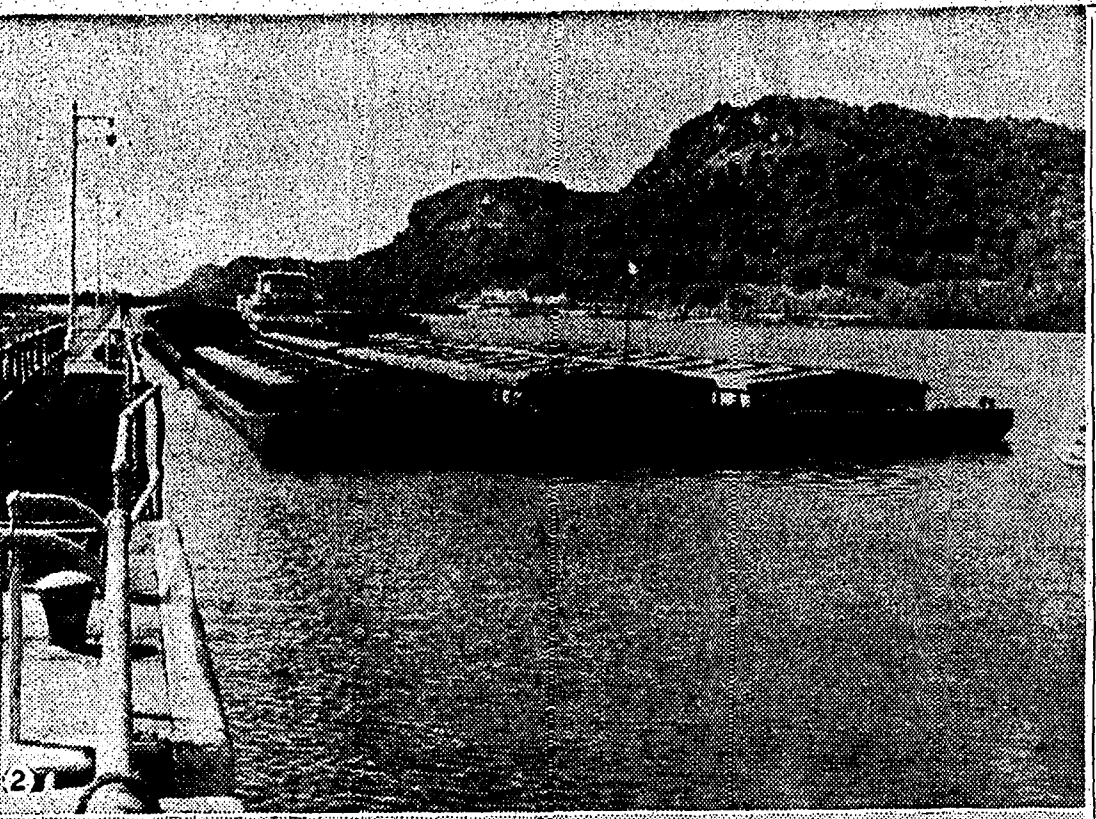

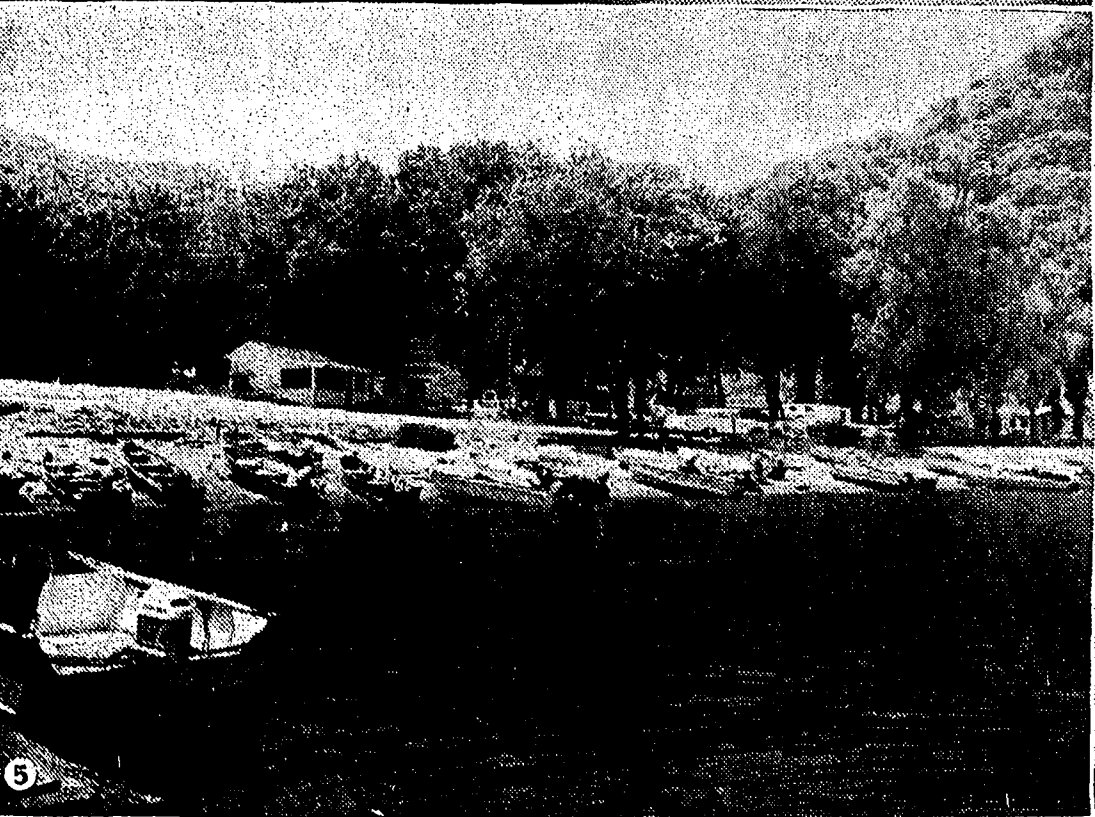

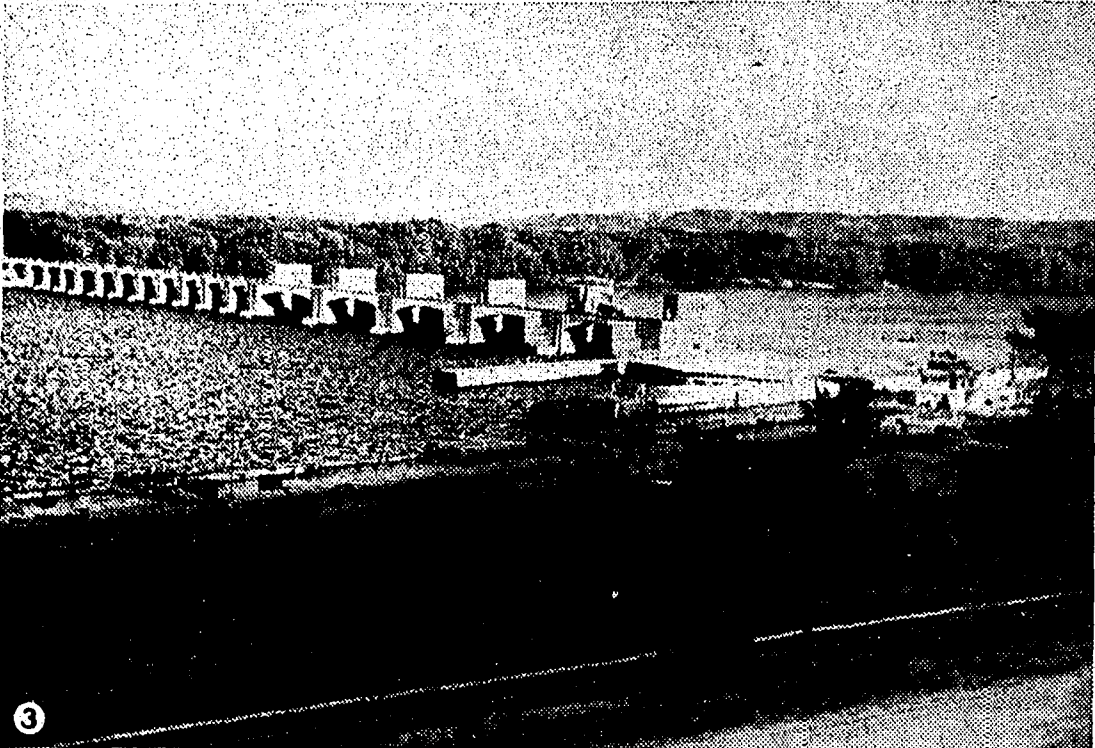

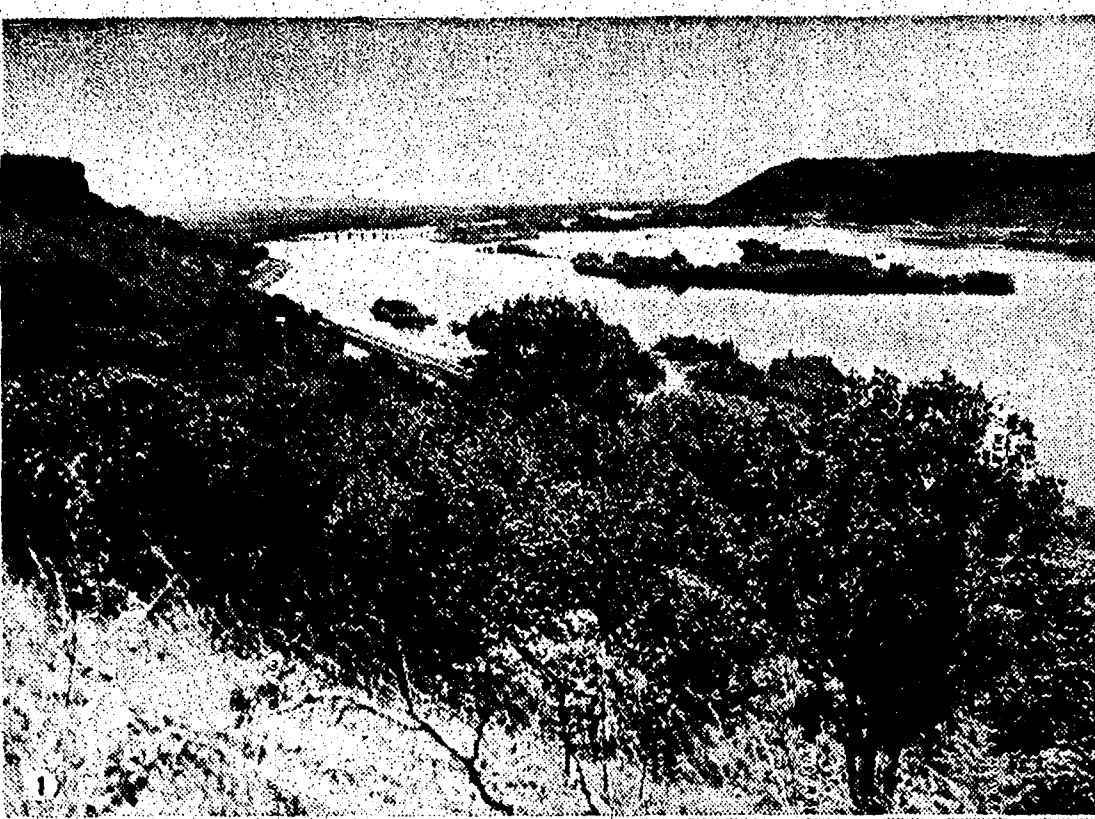

Lake Pepin is a widening of the Mississippi, 22 miles long and from one to two and one-half miles wide. The 38 square mile body of water is bounded by bluffs and little towns (Pepin, Stockholm, Maiden Rock, Bay City on the Wisconsin side) that make it one of the mid-west's scenic wonders.

William Cullen Bryant, the poet, said about a century ago when he saw the lake that it "ought to be visited in the summer by every poet and painter in the land." Good advice.

THE UPPER Mississippi, as readers of this column know, is a fisherman's river. Some declare it is the best fishing waters in Minnesota.

Tom Guyant, the outdoor writer is, of course, well aware of this. Here are some of his comments:

WHEN IT comes to fishing, there's always something doing on the Mississippi. Right now, for instance, Old Man River is being picked on by a sizable herd of fishermen, most of whom are returning with

Smaby Invites Resource Family To Conservation

MADISON (AP) — Conservation Commission Chairman James R. Smaby of La Crosse says he wanted to personally welcome resource development officials "into the conservation family."

The La Crosse trucking executive, referred to conservation's "enlarged role" under a reorganization of state government and said he was "gratified lawmakers had deliberately given conservation the dominant role."

Conservation will be merged with the Resource Development Board under the Kellest bill — the proposal bitterly opposed by conservation.

Under a compromise bill, the Conservation Commission was given a 4-3 edge over the Resource Development Board in the new Natural Resources Board. The new board will run the combined state agencies after July 1, 1968.

The compromise was demanded by the state Senate to make the merger palatable to the Conservation Commission.

"In its enlarged role, conservation now looks forward to a harmonious period of adjustment commensurate with its 100 years of tradition," said Smaby in his first public statement since passage of the bill.

Alligator Story Not Big Joke?

MANITOWOC (AP) — There were those who laughed but the Clark Mills alligator story really brought Manitowoc County to the attention of the nation last summer. Recent developments started the old controversy all over again. Now even the scoffers are wondering.

It all happened this week when a conservation officer in Door County captured and photographed an alligator on a beach near Sturgeon Bay — some 80 miles further north than Manitowoc.

It was only a year ago that a small boy ran screaming through the outskirts of Clarks Mills announcing to the world that an alligator was trying to eat his little sister. It touched off a long hunt that for weeks brought experienced alligator hunters to the area to search for the saurian. They found traces. But they didn't find the alligator.

There were arguments over whether it could live this far north until an Oshkosh historian came up with evidence that alligators had been hunted and their skins traded among Indians frequenting the Fond du Lac River where it emptied into Lake Winnebago.

THE Mississippi is a tremendous recreation fun area, in the opinion of two Milwaukee newspapermen, who wrote a voluminous account about their experiences on the river last weekend.

A wide expanse of water from towering bluffs to towering bluffs marks the course of the river (1) as it moves seaward through a vast wilderness area, the Upper Mississippi River Wild Life and Fish Refuge. Yet the river works (2), carries great tows of freight. A towboat enters one of the 26 locks on the river north of St. Louis.

These locks and dams (3), massive waterflow control structures, extend across the mighty river, symbols of strength that cause the visitor to linger and watch their operation.

The river offers, the visitors found, many recreational opportunities. There is fishing, boating, water skiing, camping and sandbar picnicking. One of the boat retreats (5) with waiting craft on a sandbar, is pictured. There are many such facilities on the Upper River.

An old rowboat will take a fisherman (6) into the marsh for sunfish or crappies or a duckboat in the autumn for bluebills and mallards.

More Launching Ramps

The second boat launching ramp, a cooperative project between Upper Mississippi Wild Life Refuge and the Army Engineers, was put in operation today. It is located above the Whitman dam, off U.S. Highway 61, in a pond adjoining the remains of the old John A. Latsch State Park. The launched boats pass under the Milwaukee railroad tracks into the main channel of the Mississippi River. It is aimed to reduce lockage through the Whitman dam into the big pool above the dam.

The other ramp opened recently is the Robert Verchota project of the Winona Rod and Gun Club, built in cooperation by these two government agencies. It is off the Winona dam dike and is an access to the Winona pool bottomlands.

A third ramp is now under construction at Weaver, across the Milwaukee tracks, and will put boats into the Weaver bottomlands. The refuge and railroad have reached an agreement on keeping the Weaver railroad crossing open. This crossing has been used for years by duck hunters and commercial fishermen.

There also is a free launching ramp at West Newton that puts bunters into that area of the Wildlife Refuge. South of Winona, all the accesses to the river are private except at La Crescent and a community-owned one at Homer and Dakota.

Pelicans Linger

Thirty-eight large white pelicans, the first group in recent years, have been residing in Pool 8, near Brownsville, Minn., according to reports of refuge personnel. The big birds have been there for about a month now.

The white pelican was formerly a common summer resident of Minnesota, according to Robert's "Birds of Minnesota," nesting in large colonies in several areas of the state. It is now an occasional summer visitor. Robert's records gives no Mississippi River data.

Rochester's Darley Bows in Net Meet

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Chuck Darley of Rochester, Minn., gave second-ranked foreigner Jaime Fillol of Santiago, Chile, unexpected difficulties before losing here Friday in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Norma Nelson of Racine, Parnelli Jones and three other national auto racing champions compete today in the 200-mile national championship late model stock-car race at State Fair Park.

Nelson, Jones and Don White won titles in late model stock cars.

The other two, Mario Andretti and A. J. Foyt, are big car kings.

After Year of Sovereignty, Life Returns to Normal

By MARIE WILK
Sunday News Women's Editor

The moment that she placed her crown on the head of the new Miss Steamboat Days, Terry Gromek, Miss Kathy Wolfe could sink back into semi-oblivion with the other queens who preceded her.

FIFTEEN YEARS ago, the Steamboat Days queen chosen to represent the city was Miss Maxine Kohner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kohner, 452 W. 4th St.

She was crowned by Miss America herself, Miss Colleen Kay Hutchins of Utah. Her attendants were Miss Barbara McHugh, (Mrs. Gene Rygmyr, 79 W. Broadway) and Miss Betty Boughton, (Mrs. Betty Gage, Phoenix, Ariz.).

Now Mrs. Thomas Berghs, she and her husband reside at Topeka, Kan., where she is interested in the local theater and has won the Renna Hunter Memorial Award for her acting in the Topeka Civic Theater.

The couple have two children, Lisa, 12, and Brian, 11.

MISS JUDY Murlinger was chosen Steamboat Days queen from a field of 16 candidates in the sixth annual festivities in 1953.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Murlinger, 666 Washington St., she was attended by Miss Marlene Fernholz, then of Arcadia, Wis., and Miss Rita Linteman, then from St. Charles, Minn.

A graduate of the Winona Senior High School, she attended Winona State College and was employed at a local bank at the time of her coronation.

Dakota Woman, After 21 Years Of Correspondence, Visits Pen Pal

By ALBINA FOEGEN
Sunday News Special Correspondent

DAKOTA, Minn. (Special) — First, it was membership into the Friendship Society, after encouragement by a teacher; second, a correspondence with a foreign girl; third, flight in a jet over the Atlantic—with the anticipated thrills, plus a few more—to London, England; lately, anticipation of a return visit. The lengthy correspondence covered a span of 21 years and Mrs. Loris Schwarz contends it was worthwhile.

It was a Latin teacher in Winona Junior High School who encouraged her pupils to start a correspondence with foreign students. Loris Radsek, now Mrs. Loris Schwarz, Rt. 1, Dakota, at first skeptically accepted the challenge.

Gradually the exchange of ideas with a girl in London, England, grew more challenging. Each girl grew in knowledge of the other's country and each had often expressed the hope they could meet in person. Both now are married and the mother of children. Mrs. Arthur Lovelock (Miriam) and her husband have two daughters and a son, Linda, Anna and Jeffrey, and live in London.

RECOGNITION at the ladies' first meeting came easily. Numerous photos had crossed the Atlantic in those 20-odd years. The American visitor in London received a special accord at the airport. She was there for a two-week stay, an English "fortnight."

Her first surprise came moments after her landing, after having been escorted to the family car of her host. Accustomed to driving her own car daily to her job in La Crosse, she proceeded routinely to the right front of the car, having been directed by her hostess to sit in the front seat.

"I soon learned that the driver and steering wheel were on the 'wrong' side of the car." Another "wrong" Mrs. Schwarz found was using London's traffic lanes on the left side. Before leaving the city, she often wondered if there was a wrong side.

TIME CHANGE proved upsetting; accent in speech was noticeable; six hours to cross the Atlantic—short time to make adjustments and 35,000 feet up in the air was no place to change one's mind or ask to turn back.

She described the trip as having a "magnificent sunrise and so much to see and experience" that she and other passengers were without sleep that night.

There was no smog or fog during the stay; June temperatures range 50-60 degrees at night and 60-70 degrees daytime. There are no electrical storms; no temperature extremes.

Schools do not recess until July and then for only six weeks. Students there envy American pupils for their three months of vacation.

TRAVEL IS primarily underground or "tube"—by rail—and includes travel under the River Thames. The population in London prohibits highway or extensive street construction. The Lovelock family lives in a semi-detached type of home, a two-family dwelling that shares a common wall. One-family homes are bungalow and those in solid lines stretching for a block are called terrace homes.

"Expensive" is a word seldom heard. The many shops lining London streets carry advertisements that use the terms: "Dear," "jolly dear," or "shocking dear." And shopping to an American can prove disheartening for a time, until coin denominations are made more familiar.

Loris will long remember June 4 as the day on which she went to Windsor Castle, which she described as "unbelievably huge and very magnificent."

SHE AND HER escort wandered through it for hours, but left time to see the Kennedy Memorial, set aside on an acre of land. Nearby, at Runnymede, the American people built the Magna Charta memorial.

Castles and memorials were not all that she saw. There was the boat ride on the River Thames and from there she could view two of the seven famous bridges, Tower Bridge and London Bridge, as well as historic landmarks visible from the river.

Buildings, on the whole, are quite new, built during the World War II cleanup. That same day she saw a 62-gun salute in honor of Queen Elizabeth—14 years as reigning queen.

Loris mentioned envisioning the sights of London as "spectacular" but the country would surely resemble Minnesota—long, deeply imbedded mental pictures.

Her early disillusionment with London's crowded living was partly erased with a trip to Portsmouth, home city of Miriam's parents, where the area did resemble Minnesota's rolling land, hills and chalk quarries. Chalk is used as a fertilizer. The countryside was beautiful from her description.

THATCHED roofs, a foot thick, could be seen on a farm near St. Meon. To discourage birds from using the roofing material containing reeds, a wire covers the thatch. At the same location, a twelfth century church had grave markers on the floor of stone. Some of the markers Loris still could read well.

Buckingham Palace, changing of the Guard at the Palace; St. James and Hyde Park—all greatly impress London visitors, but Loris saw what few Londoners get to see—the Queen Mother. She had attended services in St. Paul's Cathedral that Sunday and a camera shot of the scene was granted. A companion, living a lifetime in London, had never seen any of the royalty before.

"Much of England's food is imported," explained Mrs. Schwarz, "with the name of the country on the label. Denmark ships dairy produce; fresh fruit from South Africa; meat from Australia and New Zealand. All English take six tea breaks during the day. I was fortunate in that I like tea."

Asked how children react to Americans and the visitor replied, "The two main things all children asked me were about Hollywood and the Indians." They also view television like American children do.

WHAT ABOUT adult reaction to American visitors? "Adults," Loris explained, "asked me to tell them what the U.S. was doing in Vietnam. They seem to be strongly opposed to our presence there and many signs are visible that say, 'U.S. Get Out of Vietnam.'"

Loris concluded her account with the hope that she and Miriam and her family can meet soon—on American soil. In the meantime, the correspondence continues.

Mrs. Schwarz is a graduate of Winona High School and the Winona Secretarial School and for a number of years has been a medical secretary at the Gunderson Clinic, La Crosse. She and her two sons, David and Daniel, live on the farm of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Radsek.

More than 50 percent of the population of Guatemala is pure Indian.

Estate Case Going to Jury Monday

Testimony was completed in District Court Friday afternoon in the $25,000 action brought by the Merchants National Bank, guardian of Mrs. Martha Kiedrowski and administrator of the estate of Leo Kiedrowski.

Final arguments will be made before the jury at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

THE SUIT seeks to recover $25,000 from Valeria L. Kiedrowski, 571 E. 2nd St., alleging that she improperly converted the money for her own use.

Plaintiff's attorney William Lindquist completed his cross-examination of Valeria Kiedrowski after court resumed Friday afternoon. The witness denied that she knew anything about the $23,000 in a glass jar which her sister Blanche Barnes testified had been dug up from beneath the basement floor of the family homestead. She repeated that the money she used to purchase two $10,000 savings certificates had come from her sister's deposit box and a steel lockbox she kept at home.

Judge Arnold Hatfield cautioned her repeatedly about volunteering information and to speak up so the jury could hear her answers.

"You talk when you shouldn't and when you should you don't," said the judge after one such incident.

LINDQUIST also completed his cross-examination of Mrs. Edwin A. Losinski, 505 E. 4th St. On re-direct examination, Mrs. Losinski told the court she had driven Valeria to the bank one time and she returned to the car with her purse and a large paper sack filled with money.

Challen then called John Michalowski, 571 E. 3rd St., owner of the Lantern Tavern, for brief testimony regarding the drinking habits of the late Leo Kiedrowski.

In rebuttal, Lindquist called Eugene Frank, 226 Hilbert St., superintendent of the printing department of Watkins Products Co., and recalled Walter R. Thompson, vice president and trust officer, Merchants National Bank; Marie Kiedrowski, sister-in-law to Valeria, and Blanche Barnes, Valeria's sister.

Challen recalled Valeria for just one question and both the plaintiff and defense rested.

27 Chicago Area Children to Visit Wisconsin Homes

ALMA, Wis. — A total of 27 children from Chicago will be guests of Buffalo and Trempealeau county families for two weeks beginning Saturday.

Each summer the Chicago Missionary Society, an interdenominational support organization doing inner city work in Chicago, sponsors the project called "Friendly Town."

Through this project children from the city spend two weeks with suburban and rural families throughout the Midwest. Last year a total of 1,037 children participated.

The churches of this two-county area are cooperating. Two will be coming to families in Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, Whitehall; three to the Evangelical United Brethren Church, Alma; six to Whitehall Methodist Church; seven to Montana Evangelical United Brethren Church, and nine to the Gilmanton Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The children will represent interracial and interdenominational homes in the depressed neighborhoods of Chicago.

A picnic is being planned for the children and their host families.

Arcadia to Host Indian Head Unit Annual Meeting

ARCADIA, Wis. — Wisconsin Indian Head Country will hold its 31st annual meeting and banquet at the Arcadia Country Club Sept. 11 and 12.

The dates were announced by Steve Henry, Eau Claire, executive secretary of the Indian Head Country, and Stanley Wiersgalla, president of the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce.

The two-day affair will be highlighted by a golf tournament, bus tours of the Wisconsin Scenic Skyline Drive region, and a banquet-dance. Business sessions will be held both days.

The annual meeting will feature a review of the organization's accomplishments. President Alvin Bratten, Cumberland, will present certificates of achievement and report on the promotional plans of Wisconsin Indian Head Country, the state's oldest and largest tourist group now encompassing the 17 counties of the northwestern part of the state. Trempealeau County became the newest member last fall.

The Arcadia Chamber of Commerce recently has erected signs both here and at Centerville indicating the "Scenic Skyline Drive" over the Arcadia Ridge on Highway 93.

Officials Warn Mail Pileups Invite Break-in

Mail overflowing a mailbox while homeowners are away on vacation is an open-handed invitation to housebreakers, according to words of caution put forward today by Lambert J. Harnerski, acting postmaster, and Police Chief James McCabe.

They encourage those planning vacation trips to have neighbors pick up mail.

The postmaster noted that a "hold" order can be gotten from the post office, but because of limited space there, encouraged patrons to ask friends or neighbors to pick up mail after delivery. "In this way the vacationer is saved a trip to the post office and is assured of continuing and prompt delivery," said Harnerski.

"Of course, mail will be forwarded if a customer plans an extended stay away from home. Just ask your carrier or come into the post office to make arrangements for this or any other service we provide," he advised.

Both officials noted that arrangements should be made to curtail all other deliveries to lessen the chance of a break-in.

RED PAPER QUITS

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — The pro-Peking Communist daily Lida of Mandalay is ceasing publication this weekend after 22 years as the leading newspaper in mid-Burma, according to reports from there, because of a Burmese government refusal to renew its printing permit. Its circulation was estimated at 8,000.

Houston County Farms Will Host Diplomats

CALEDONIA, Minn. — Thirty United Nations and Washington, D.C., foreign diplomats will visit and tour Houston County, July 22 and 23. Final arrangements are being completed by Miss Kathleen Beckman, administrative assistant of the Minneapolis Aquatennial Association, and Ronald Weidenbach, president of the Houston County Tourism Committee.

Miss Beckman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beckman, Houston.

The diplomats will be officially greeted by mayors of Houston County communities at Beaver State Park, Caledonia. Following this greeting, each diplomat will leave for a 2-day stay with a farm family in the county.

According to Miss Beckman, "the welcome at Beaver State Park is to be the only official reception during the 2-day stay. This is being done so that the diplomats can get an accurate picture of American rural life."

The diplomatic group, scheduled to arrive in Minneapolis July 18, will participate in key Aquatennial "Mediterranean-67" activities. The diplomats will attend July 19 Mayors Day functions and Torchlight Parade, view a performance of Aqua Spectacular and attend the July 21 Queen of the Lakes coronation. During their Minneapolis stay, the diplomats will also attended the Guthrie Theatre, tour various local industries, and visit taconite mines at Virginia.

The diplomatic group will depart from La Crosse Airport for Detroit early the morning of July 24.

Visitors from the Washington Embassies are from Guatemala, Senegal, Germany, Zambia, Great Britain, Ethiopia, India, Sweden, Turkey, Indonesia, Korea, Russia, Bulgaria, Chile, Malawi, Venezuela, Panama and Tanzania.

Delegates from the United Nations Missions will be from: the Philippines, Guinea, Yemen, United Arab Republic, Cyprus, Niger, Sweden, Nigeria, Austria and Iran.

40 Pupils in Houston, Charter Unit Caledonia Headstart Member Quits

THE INVESTOR

Note All Stock Sales on Return

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE

Q. Suppose I buy some stock, hold it for a year or so, sell it at exactly the price I paid. There would be no gain or loss. Am I supposed to report this on my federal income tax return?

A. You're supposed to. I suppose it would be a fair guess that some people might just ignore the whole thing. But, technically, you're supposed to. You should report this on Schedule D of your Federal income tax return. That's where you list the profit or loss on the sale of "capital assets," which include stocks. And my tax experts pass on the word that a transaction such as you describe should also be reported there — even though you claim you came out even.

Frankly, it's mighty unlikely that you sold with absolutely no profit or loss. Check your total cost price and the proceeds from the sale again. Don't forget to figure in the commission charges.

The commission you paid when you sold was deducted from the sale proceeds. So, even if the per share price was exactly the same on the purchase and the sale, you ended up taking a loss because of the commissions you paid.

By reporting that loss, you reduce your taxable income and the tax bill you have to pay.

Q. I am curious to know who pays for the printing of stock certificates. I am thinking about stocks that are actively traded — sometimes hundreds of thousands of shares a day — especially low-priced stocks. It must be very expensive to print all the stock certificates.

Is this cost passed on to buyers in the price or in commission charges?

A. No. The cost of printing stock certificates is a corporate expense. The company pays the cost of having its stock certificates printed.

So, in the long run, all stockholders of the company bear that cost — just as they do all other corporate expenses. Each shareholder is a part owner of the company. When a company spends money, it's the stockholders' money that is going out.

Although the cost of printing stock certificates is really only a minor thing, it is naturally a somewhat larger expense for a company whose stock is very actively traded.

When the supply of stock certificates gets low, the company has to order more and pay for the printing. There's also the matter of increased bookkeeping and transfer agent expenses.

Q. Your extreme views about short-selling seem completely out of line. You say that "speculators are gamblers," that when a person sells short "there's no limit to his possible loss" and you mention "two commissions" on short sales but not on longs. Shouldn't a column such as yours present a more truthful picture?

A. What's untrue? Surely, you can't argue the point about speculators being gamblers. The words are interchangeable. I have no objection to people speculating in the market. That's a built-in part of Wall Street. But you evidently object to having the truth spelled out. Even you won't try to claim that a straight short sale is an investment. It's the sale of stock you don't own — stock you borrow — in the hope of buying back an equal number of shares at a lower price to realize a profit.

If the stock you sell short keeps going up in price, there is no limit to your possible loss. On the other hand, if you buy stock — either as an investment or a speculation — the most you can lose is the price you paid.

There's no getting around the fact that you pay two commissions — when you sell short and when you buy back. You know, everyone who "goes long" (buys stock) doesn't necessarily plan to sell.

ST. PAUL (AP) — A law passed by the 1967 Minnesota Legislature was described by the attorney general's office today as "absurd, impossible to carry out and completely ineffectual" when interpreted literally.

Atty. Gen. Douglas M. Head, answering a question from Assistant Commissioner of Administration Louis Plutzer, referred to part of the state building bill providing $54,000 for ward and administration remodeling at Fergus Falls State Hospital.

Head said the provision meant to refer to unspent money appropriated by the 1963 legislature to remodel the administration building at Fergus Falls.

Instead it referred by number to a 1965 appropriation for ward rehabilitation at the hospital. The entire $100,000 balance in that account already has been spent.

"No public benefit will be gained if the law is literally construed," the attorney general said, but the construction should be changed to allow what the legislature meant to do.

In another opinion, the attorney general said a state senator who retired after the 1965 session may switch from the Public Employees Retirement Association (PERA) to benefits set up for legislators.

Answering a question from State Auditor Stafford King, Head said the former senator should be repaid his contributions to PERA but must "buy back" legislative retirement at 7 per cent of his salary.

The senator's name was not made public.

PRIMARY CRUSHER . . .
Crude ore for Hanna's Butler Taconite plant and National Steel Pellet plant comes as taconite rock hauled from a pit area to a primary crusher building where it is dumped into this 60-inch gyratory crusher in which chunks as large as five feet are reduced to six inches. Each primary crusher has a capacity of 3,000 long tons an hour. They're powered by 800-horsepower electric motors and the crusher assembly weighs 502 tons. The mainshaft assembly is 96 tons. From the primary crusher crude ore is carried by conveyor belt to ore storage facilities adjacent to the concentrator and pelletizer buildings.

A Remedy for Economic Ills

Taconite Spurs Range Resurgence

By GORDON R. CLOSWAY
Winona Daily and Sunday News Executive Editor

THE patient obviously was doing very nicely.

Together with 24 other representatives of Upper Midwest news media I had the opportunity recently to visit the once gravely-stricken Iron Range area where ghost towns are experiencing a reincarnation, the dirge of economic despair has been drowned out by the clank and whine of machinery and a citizenry has forgotten trials of the past in the happy glow of a new future.

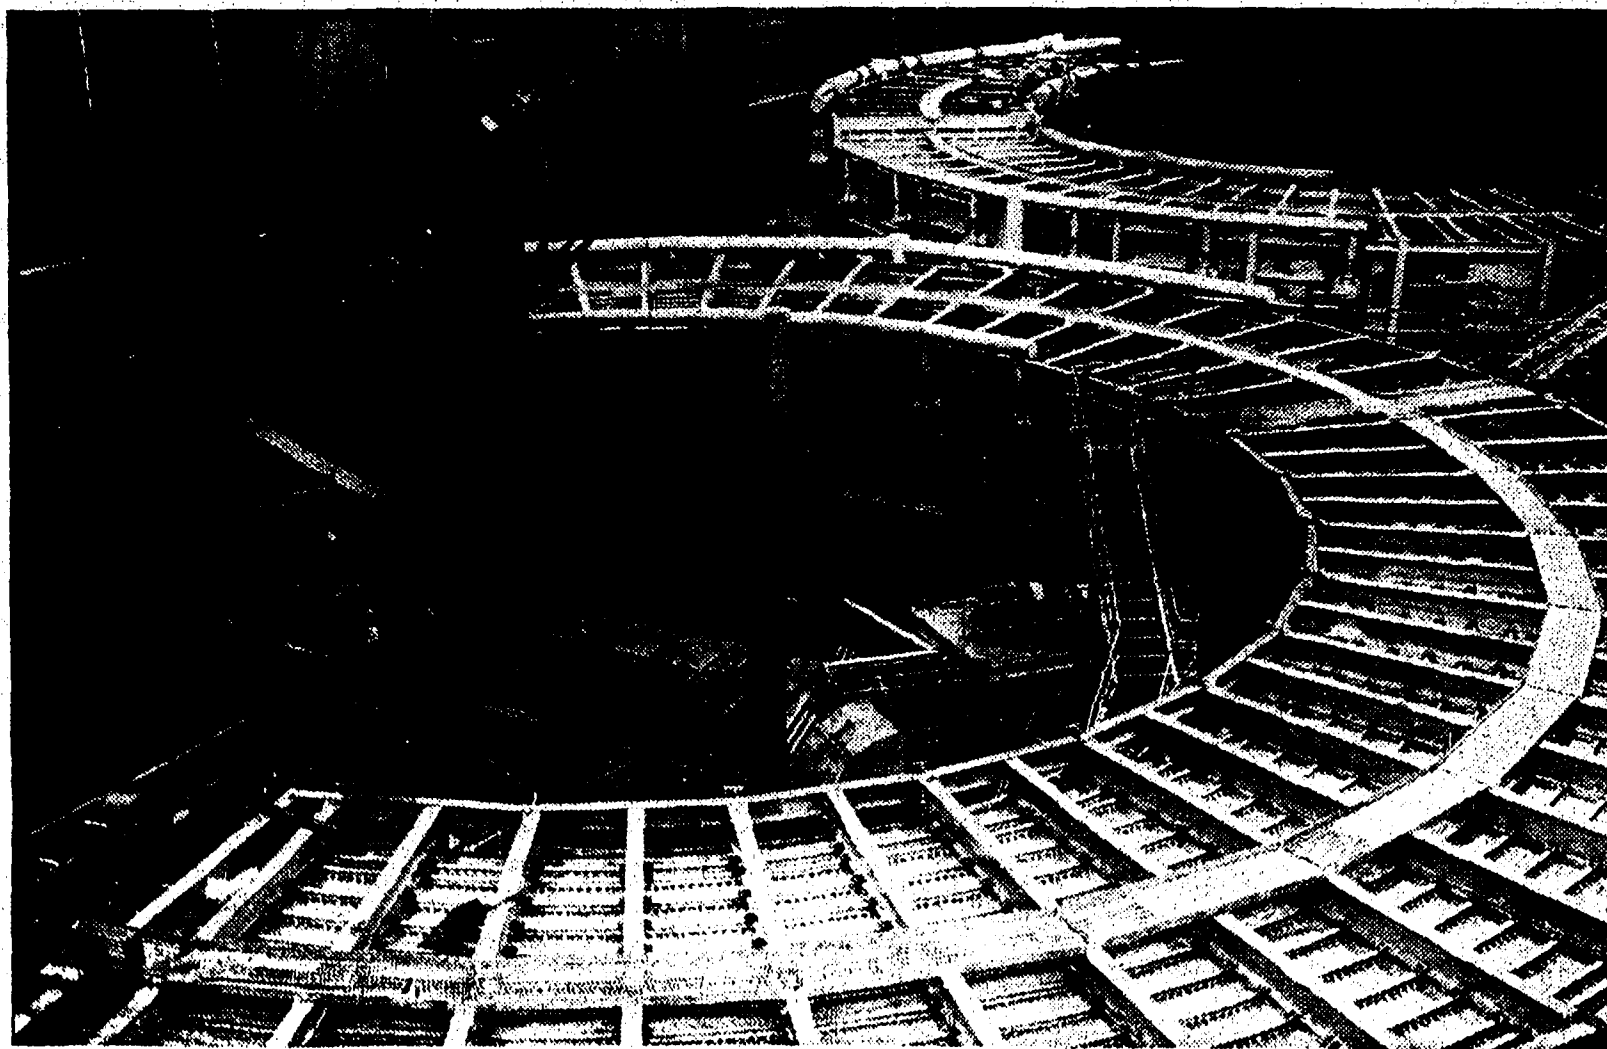

It took several hundred million dollars, a state constitutional amendment and a massive dose of technological know-how but the infusion has effected a dramatic revitalization of the Iron Range's iron-mining industry.

At the invitation of the Hanna Mining Co. we flew to Hibbing, Minn., two weeks ago to witness the transformation brought about by the new taconite mining operations in an area not long ago in the grips of acute economic doldrums.

When we arrived at Hibbing, B. M. Andreas, manager of Minnesota mines who was to escort us on our tour of two new Hanna taconite plants, commented, "We're close to being there. We're close to reaching the point we promised when the people of Minnesota were considering the Taconite Amendment."

He was referring to a time when, with its natural iron ore deposits that had supported the Range economy for more than a half century virtually depleted, mining operations dwindled, unemployment

HEAT-TREATING . . . Twin rotary hearth furnaces are used at Hanna's National Steel Pellet plant to heat-harden "soft" pellets after they leave the balling drums. ## Today's Cover

The Butler Taconite plant was the first of two Hanna Mining operations on Minnesota's Mesabi Range which began production of high-grade taconite pellets this spring. Located west of Nashwauk, the multi-million dollar plant has an annual capacity of 2 million tons. The taconite rock is hauled by truck to the primary crusher building shown at the upper right and dumped into a gyratory crusher. The crude taconite then is carried on a 3,000-foot conveyor belt to the ore storage building at the far right center. The taconite is moved to the adjacent concentrator building for grinding and separation of iron and waste. Then, in a pelletizer building at the center of the photo, pellets are formed, dried, preheated and heat hardened at 2,400 degrees. The pellets are discharged into a revolving cooler, screened and moved to the loadout area at the lower left.

Although natural ore deposits were almost exhausted, vast deposits of taconite — a basic low grade iron-bearing rock — underlay the Range area. Since 1871 efforts had been made to process the low-content rock for ore but even with technological developments that made separation of the taconite possible, the cost ran high.

The answer to the Range's economic problems obviously lay in attracting new investments for new taconite projects and the expansion of existing taconite plants. The deposits were there, industry was willing to make the investment required to develop production processes but first it wanted the assurance that it would not be taxed unfairly in comparison with other manufacturers in Minnesota. Recognizing that the ills of the Range couldn't help but have a serious impact on the economy of the entire state, the voters of Minnesota in 1964 approved a constitutional amendment which assured taconite companies that they would not be singled out for tax increases.

Within weeks of this answer from the people, five new taconite projects were announced for Minnesota, that would require over $400 million in new investments. A year later investment money already spent or committed for taconite projects in Minnesota exceeded one billion dollars and represented one of the largest investments of private capital ever made in a single area.

In speaking of the Taconite Amendment, Andreas told us, "The mining companies all want to pay their fair share of taxes but did not want to be penalized as were the iron mining companies of the early days. Once they were assured they would not be penalized they were ready to go ahead."

"Hanna alone has spent $125 million in its installations and others have spent many, many more millions."

The payoff from this investment as far as residents of the Range are concerned was apparent to us immediately. Hibbing is booming. Communities like Nashwauk and Keewatin that had become ghost towns are enjoying a great resurgence.

Much of this new prosperity resulting from burgeoning employment can be traced, of course, to construction work and there'll be some leveling off when the building phase has been completed.

Nevertheless, a solid base of permanent year-around employment is assured and the once hard-hit Range has the promise of a high level of economy for many years to come.

At a press briefing at the Mesabi Country Club at Hibbing, Andreas told us that Hanna's two new taconite plants on the Mesabi Range — one in production and the other scheduled for completion this month — alone will employ about 800 men throughout the year. Total tonnage from the two plants, both of which we visited during our tour, will be 4.4 million tons.

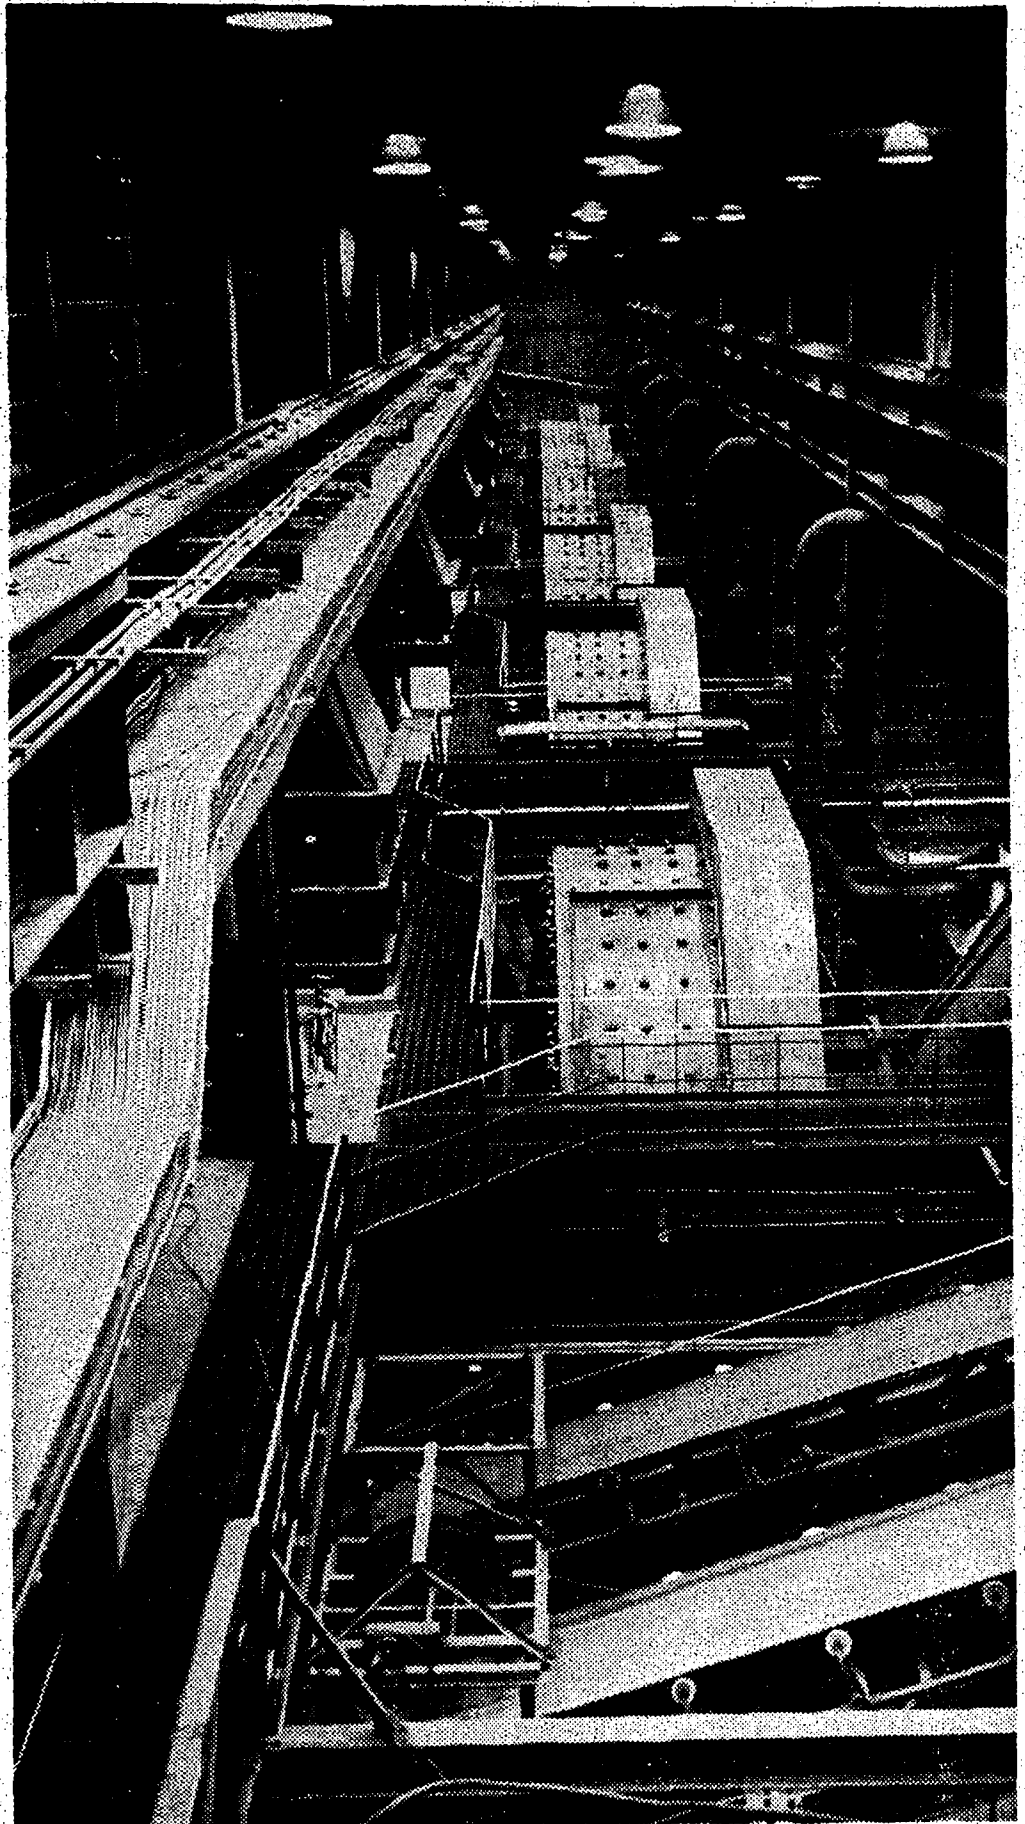

Butler Taconite, located near Nashwauk and about 15 miles west of Hibbing, is owned jointly by Inland Steel Company, Wheeling Steel Corp., and The Hanna Mining Co. Hanna is the operating agent and provides management and operating personnel for the facility.

The National Steel Pellet plant, situated five miles west of Hibbing near Keewatin, is owned jointly by National Steel Corp., and The Hanna Mining Co. Hanna will also be the operating agent for this plant.

BLACK RIVER FALLS PLANT HAS 'GREAT POSSIBILITIES'

Asked to comment on the recent announcement that Inland Steel Company's Jackson County Iron Company is seeking bids on a $20 million taconite and pellet plant just east of Black River Falls, Wis., Hanna manager of Minnesota mines, B. M. Andreas, said the new development appears to "have great possibilities. It should be a boon for that part of the Winona area."

The plant, 6 miles east of Black River Falls, is scheduled for operation in the fall of 1969, should employ about 200, have an annual payroll of nearly $2 million and is expected to produce about 750,000 tons a year.

GRINDERS . . . Taconite rock is fed into these autogenous grinding mills at the National Steel Pellet plant where it is dry ground to 14 mesh, about the consistency of very fine sand. Five-inch forged steel balls are used in the process. The mills are 26 feet in diameter on the inside and each is driven by a 3,000-horsepower motor. Five identical mills are used at the Butler Taconite plant.

bing near Keewatin, is owned jointly by National Steel Corp., and The Hanna Mining Co. Hanna will also be the operating agent for this plant.

Crude taconite for both projects comes from exhausted natural ore mines which were formerly operated by Hanna. Ore is mined by the conventional drill, blast, shovel loading and truck haulage method. The taconite rock is hauled to primary crusher buildings, located in the pits. The rock is crushed from sizes as large as five feet to six inches or smaller. The crushed taconite is then carried by conveyor belt to ore storage buildings situated adjacent to the concentrators.

The two Hanna-operated plants are the first in Minnesota to utilize dry semi-autogenous grinding mills. Crude taconite is taken from the ore storage buildings and charged into the 26-foot in diameter revolving mills. Through a tumbling action against itself and against five-inch forged steel balls, the taconite rock is reduced to the consistency of very fine sand. The fine material is then drawn from the mills by fans and the first separation of iron bearing materials from waste is made. A second separation is made following additional grinding in a series of ball mills which reduce the material to the consistency of flour.

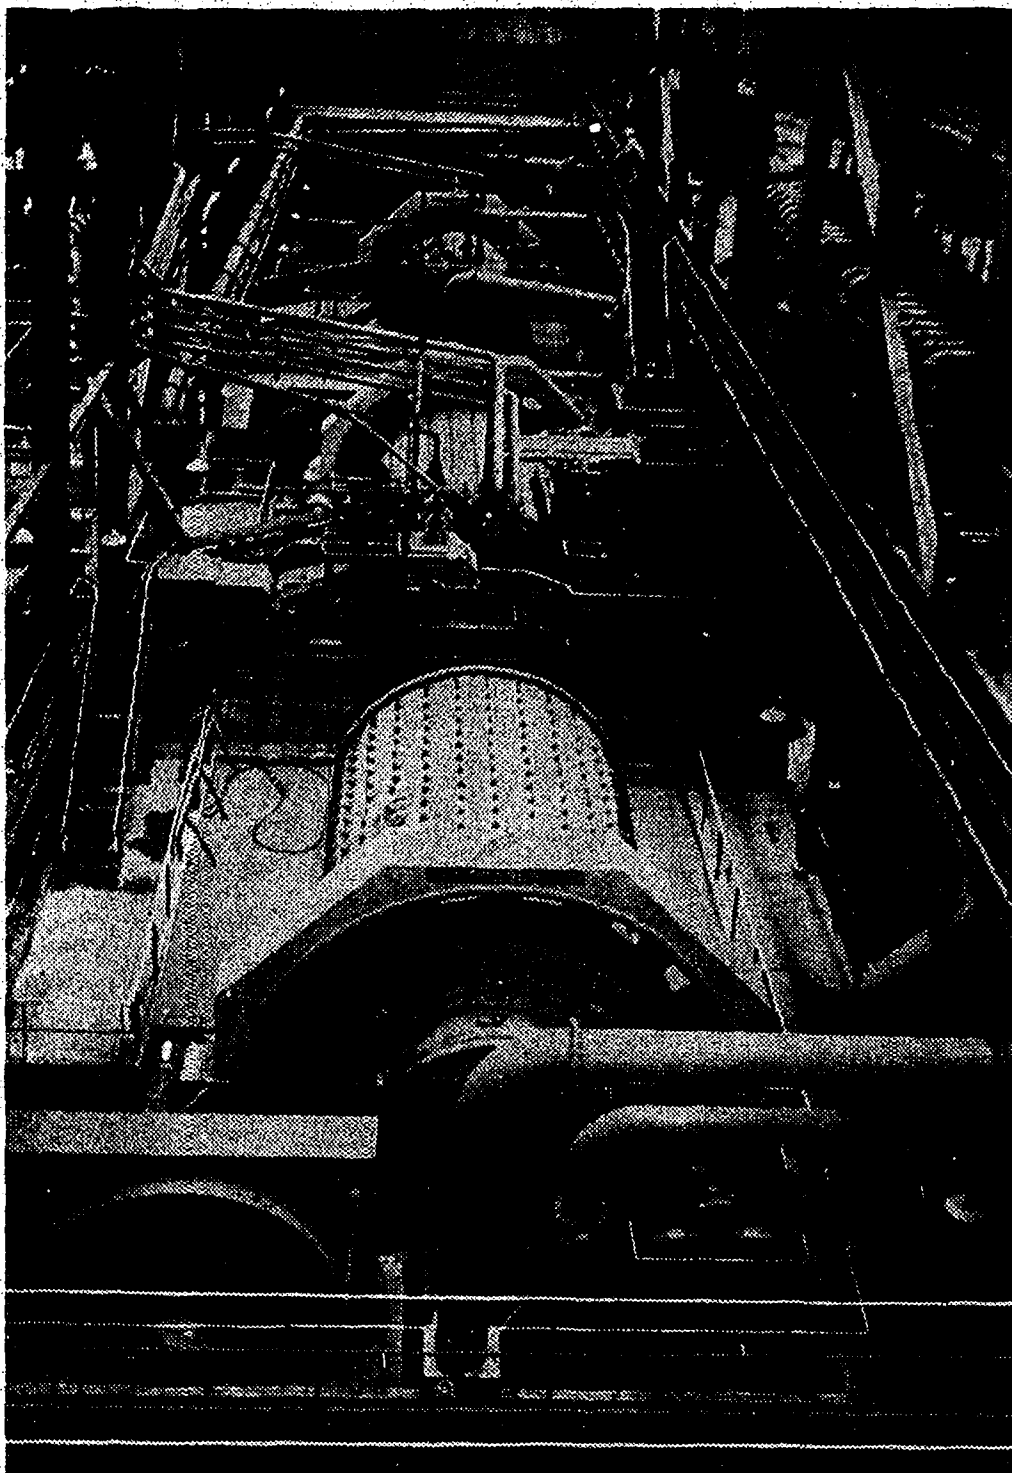

The concentrate is then filtered to remove most of the water which is used in some of the beneficiation processes as well as to convey the materials from one area of the plant to another after it leaves the autogenous grinding mills. Taconite production in the Hanna plants requires about 50,000 gallons of water a minute. However, 96 percent

BALL MILLS . . . Dry material from ore storage and wet concentrate from cobber magnetic separators are reground in these ball mills, after which the concentrate is pumped to hydroseparators where silica is floated off. The mills are 14 feet in diameter, 22 feet long and powered by 2,000-horsepower motors.

GIANT GEARS . . . Gears operating the grinding mills are three feet wide. They're driven by 3,000-horsepower electric motors. After crude ore has been ground to the consistency of sand the material is drawn out of the mills by powerful fans, then distributed to vertical classifiers, cyclone classifiers or cyclone collectors by weight.

MAGNETIC SEPARATORS . . . After final grinding in ball mills, taconite is processed through a battery of cyclones, right, and then the iron-bearing materials are recovered in a series of magnetic separators at the left. The product of the separators is then pumped to the pelletizing section of the plant where the material is filtered, formed into "soft" or "green" pellets and heat hardened.

ROTARY KILN . . . At Butler Taconite, after pellets are dried and pre-heated in a traveling grate furnace they are charged into this rotary kiln where they are heat-hardened at 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit. The kiln, 140 feet long and 20 feet in diameter, is one of the largest ever built for this purpose. Because of its size, the pelletizer building had to be constructed around it.

Concentrate is then formed into "soft" or "green" pellets in a series of balling drums. Bentonite, a clay-like substance, is used as a bonding agent.

At the Butler plant, the "soft" pellets are dried and preheated in a traveling grate furnace and then charged with rotary kiln for heat hardening. After they are cooled, pellets are directed to a load out area outside the plant.

Unit trains, consisting of 200, 75-ton capacity cars are loaded every other day at Butler Taconite. The trains are pulled to the ore docks in Superior, Wis., from which ore carriers are dispatched to the lower lakes ports and the eastern steel making centers.

National Steel Pellet plant utilizes a different method for pelletizing. The system incorporates a dryer furnace, rotary hearth furnace and stove furnaces. Unit trains will also be loaded from this plant every other day for transportation to the Superior docks.

In addition to the two taconite plants that Hanna Mining is operating in Minnesota, the company is also operating three natural ore mines in the state. The Pierce and South Agnew Mines in Hibbing are active this year as well as the Rabbit Lake Mine on the Cuyuna Range.

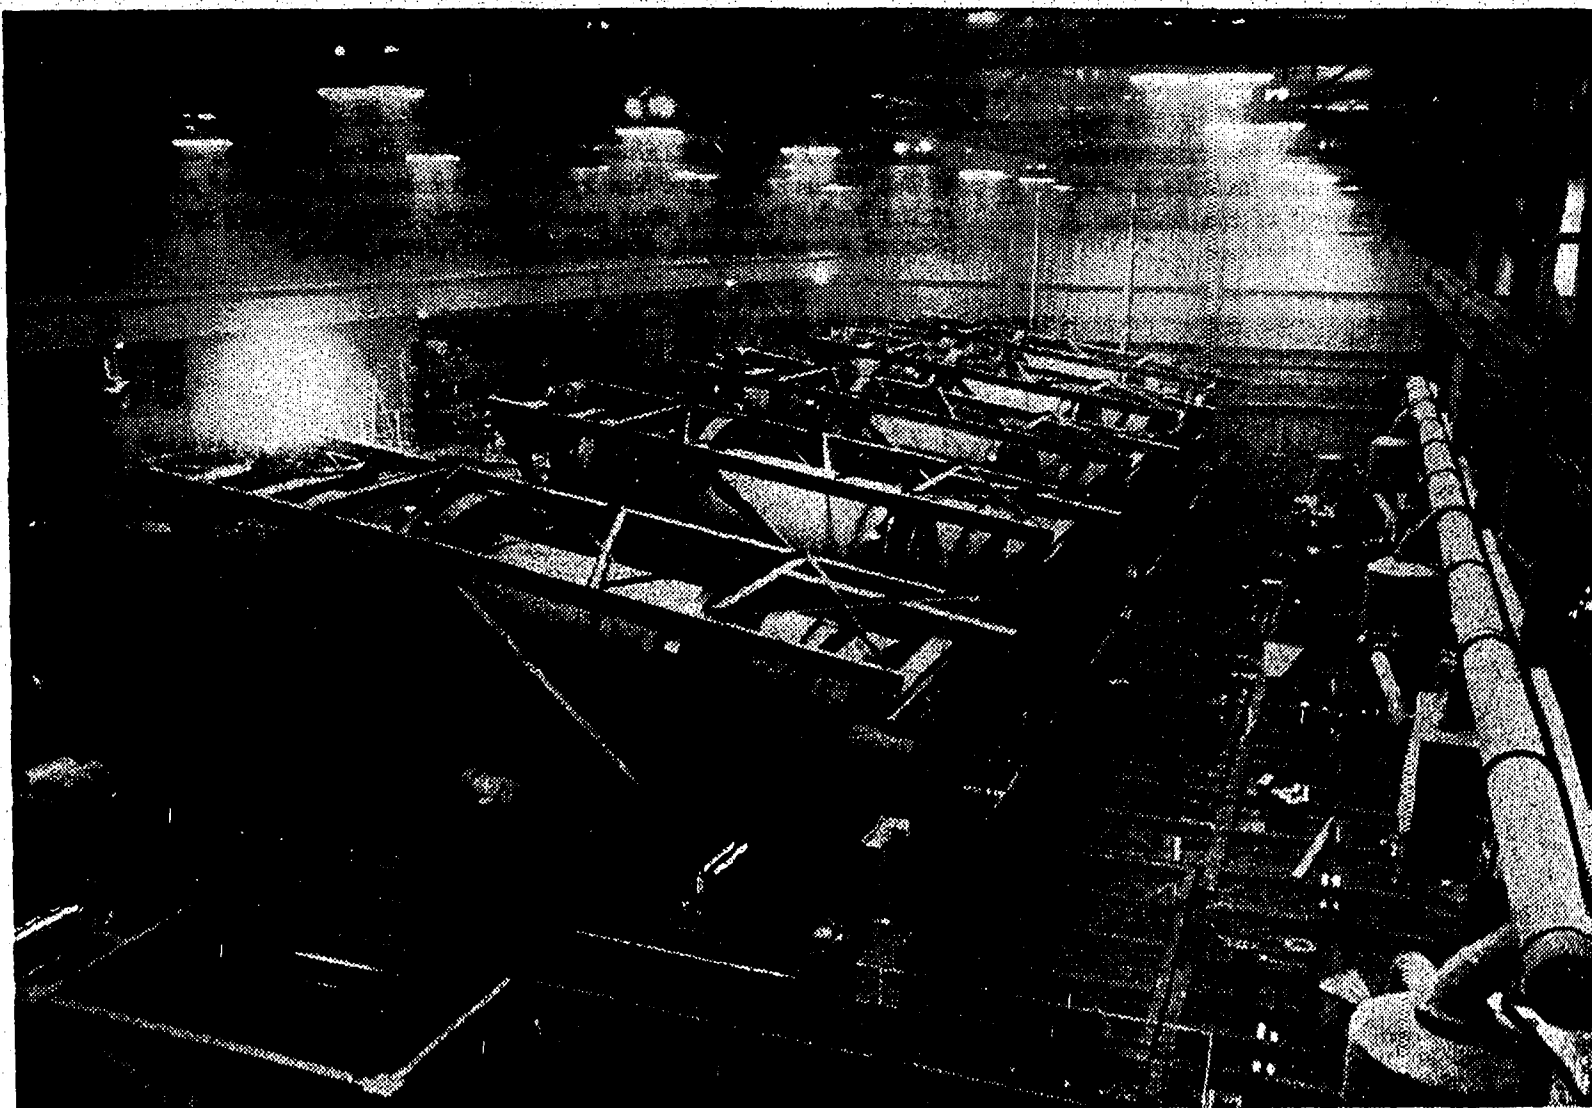

The Iron Mining Industry of Minnesota roster of producing firms includes, in addition to Hanna Mining Co., Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co., Erie Mining Co., Eveleth Taconite Co., Great Northern Iron Ore Properties, Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Oglebay Norton Co., Pickands Mather & Co., Reserve Mining Co., Snyder Mining Co., and United Steel Corp.

TAKING FORM . . . Dry concentrate stored in concentrate bins is dropped onto a belt where, as it passes another bin, bentonite is added. Bentonite is a clay-like material which serves as a bonding agent. The concentrate then is formed into three-eighth-inch "green" or "soft" pellets in one of these five balling drums at Butler. There are six such drums at National.

ON THE WAY . . . The first unit train of high-grade taconite pellets from Hanna's Butler Taconite plant near Nashwauk, Minn., was loaded March 27. The trains, consisting of 200 cars with a 75-ton capacity each, are scheduled out of plant every other day through the year. On alternate days, taconite pellets will be shipped from the National Steel plant near Keewatin, Minn. National, also operated by Hanna, is just beginning limited operations. The pellets are moved to ore handling and shipping facilities at Superior, Wis., and then carried by ore boats to Eastern steel mills.

TV Mailbag

By STEVEN H. SCHEUER

QUESTION. My husband and I are both in our sixties. What we would like to know is, why do they always take the good shows off and put something worse on? It isn't worthwhile to turn on your TV set anymore. Why do they keep something on like "That Girl," for instance? And why do they run such stupid specials? We try to watch them, but after a half hour we've had more than enough. We enjoy a movies — it doesn't matter how old — but now they've taken off the late movie for the likes of Joey Bishop. — U.K., Parryville, Pa.

ANSWER. It's terribly difficult to please everybody, especially in the realm of television, where there is such a wide variety of tastes. However, for the past several seasons there seems to have been a common complaint; the new shows always appear inferior to last season's.

QUESTION. Could you please tell me the name of Jackie Gleason's first wife on his "Honeymooners" show? The wife he acted with before Audrey Meadows. — Mrs. M. G. P., Old Bridge, New Jersey

ANSWER. It was Pert Kelton, who has been seen relatively recently in a number of cleaning commercials.

QUESTION. Unless I'm wrong, didn't the late Humphrey Bogart have a radio series on ABC called "Bold Venture"? How come this is overlooked when his movie career is examined? — B. F., Las Vegas, Nevada

ANSWER. Good memory! Bogie and "Baby" (Lauren Bacall, Mrs. Bogart) did the radio adventure series as a team. As we had mentioned in a previous MAILBAG, the characters in the radio show were adapted into a TV series bearing the same title, starring Dane Clark and Joan Marshall. The books on Bogart usually stick to his film career — but even there, often overlooked as his "guest" appearances in movies such as "Always Together," the British-made "Love Lottery," and a few others.

QUESTION. I saw an old movie on TV called "Lucy Gallant," starring Jane Wyman and Charlton Heston. Did Michael Redgrave appear briefly toward the end of the picture? And what year was it made? — E. I. E., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada

ANSWER. "Lucy Gallant" was released in 1955, and Mr. Redgrave was not in the film.

QUESTION. Was the name of Sergeant Garvia in the "Zorro" series Henry Calvin, and does he still act? — K. J., Memphis, Tenn.

ANSWER. Henry Calvin it is, and he still acts.

John Wayne Fan Producing

'Hondo' to Make Fall Series Debut

By CHARLES WITBECK

"Hondo," the John Wayne western of the giant scout forced to act as peacemaker between the Indian and white man, becomes a Friday night ABC-TV entry this fall, starring Ralph Taeger, who talks a little like Humphrey Bogart and strongly resembles the iron-jawed, gimlet-eyed "Duke" Wayne.

Producer Andrew Fenady, a Wayne worshiper, has never gotten over his excitement seeing the movie "Hondo." While making smaller versions of the idea with Nick Adams in "The Rebel," he used to tell his star to "Hondo" a scene in the Wayne manner. Fenady even walks like his idol, pacing up and down his M.G.M. office talking about his new series.

While producing "Branded," Fenady's film editor, Arthur Lovering, who cut Wayne's famous "Stagecoach" picture, introduced the star to his devoted fan, and after a long conversation which centered on the movie "Hondo," Duke declared that Fenady would be the guy to do a TV version if he ever decided to let it go on the air.

"WAYNE'S SON, Michael, and I were at Paramount Studios at the time, and we spent about three months discussing TV possibilities in the gym during workouts," Fenady, a bar bells and exercise man, explained. "At that time Warner Brothers still had the rights to the property, so there wasn't much we could do."

In the same Paramount gym, actor Ralph Taeger became friendly with Fenady and was the producer's choice to play the Wayne role on TV if avenues opened up. Taeger made his TV debut ten years ago at Warner's, starring with Jim Coburn and Telly Savalas, in a piece of nonsense called "Klondike," which went South after 13 episodes, finishing out a dismal season under the title of "Acapulco." Though he has been under contract to various studios, nothing much has happened to Taeger except anonymity until those workouts with Fenady at the gym.

Fenady soon jumped from Par-

— TV Mailbag —

QUESTION — Was wondering about this question for quite some time. My family and I love to watch "Mr. Ed"; is he trained to make the movements with his mouth, or is it a camera trick?—Mrs. E.R.M., Dallastown, Pa.

ANSWER — It's a little bit of both. To simulate a talking horse, "Mr. Ed" was trained to make the necessary head movements. Combined with the choice camera angles, the effect was often startlingly accurate.

QUESTION — Could you tell me if Martin Landau, of "Mission: Impossible," ever had a TV series of his own? It seems to me that I have seen him on a regular show, but I can't remember the name of it. Also, is he really a makeup artist, and why do they list him as a special guest star when he is a regular on the show?—Mrs. J.F.H., Lititz, Pa.

ANSWER — Martin Landau has done quite a bit of guest-appearing on various shows heretofore, but we don't recall him appearing as a regular member of a TV series. As a thoroughly experienced actor, Mr. Landau does have some knowledge of makeup, a knowledge necessary for all stage-trained performers. But on the show, let's not overlook the studio makeup experts, who help considerably. As we've stated before, Landau was originally signed as a guest-star, but his popularity was such that he was retained as a regular performer. You can bet he'll be starred when the show returns next season.

Anthony Quinn plays a Miami Beach mobster who engineers a $3 million scheme with the aid of four young partners in crime in THE HAPPENING, showing through Tuesday at the State Theatre.

In the mistaken idea that his young son has been abducted, Quinn offers himself as a hostage to the young trouble-makers. — George Maharis, Michael Parks, Robert Walker and Faye Dunaway — who demand $3 million for his return. Quinn's wife, Martha Hyer, refuses to pay the money, as does his business partner and a former friend who's also his wife's lover. Embittered by the fact no one wants him back, Quinn forces them to raise and turn over the ransom money and organizes his young crew into a crime-wise team capable of de-living the money.

New Record Releases

Fire, Candlelight Offered by Buffy

Buffy Sainte-Marie is a singer who doesn't record often enough to suit the many people who consider her a major talent.

So it's news that she has a splendid new LP, "Fire and Fleet and Candlelight" on Vanguard, for which she has written eight of the 14 songs. Miss Sainte-Marie is 25, a full-blooded Cree Indian, whose voice is whatever she wants it to be — beautiful, quavery as an old woman when she sings a dirge, sexy with the gritty flavor of a wide-open mining town when she sings "97 Men in This Here Town Would Give a Half a Grand in Silver Just To Follow Me Down."

Miss Sainte-Marie sings about the seasons as holding us in a circle of time, and like most of her songs it's a statement and not a protest. She also sings some traditional folk and she has the voice for that, too. She sings "Lord Randall," about a Scot's slow dying, murdered by poison, and her voice gets sicker and the effect very touching.

"Sassy Swings Again," Mercury, is Sarah Vaughan at her most appealing — really swinging the standards. Her scat is jarring in the lead-off song, "Sweet Georgia Brown," but everything else on the album is great. You keep wondering if you've ever heard some of these songs sung as well.

Here is the list she sings: "Take the A Train," "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," "Sposin'," "Everyday, I Have the Blues," "I Want To Be Happy," "All Alone," "The Sweetest Sounds," "On the Other Side of the Tracks," "I had a Ball." Winners all, and so is Sassy Sarah.

Ed Ames' stature as a pop singer has gone up fast; he's already one of the best.

His new RCA album, "Time, Time," features a good singing of the title song and a meaningful version of "Somethin' Stupid."

Ed Ames' voice has a comfortable overlayer of strength that doesn't have to shout. It can express itself in confidence and gentleness.

"MAGGIE Isn't Margaret Anymore," on London, refers to Margaret Whiting's new singing image — putting herself against a big-beat instrumental background. She sings "I Remember You" by mentor Johnny Mercer, and you could do a shoulder-shaking frug to it. There are also some on the ball, dy side of today's rock-pop market—"There's a Kind of Hush" (Herman's Hermits hit), "My Cup Runneth Over" (Ed Ames hit), the Sinatra family's "Somethin' Stupid" and the Dave Clark Five's "Because."

But her voice sounds much the same as it did in the radio show days, true and warm, especially noticed in the lovely "This Is My Song."

TRINI Lopez is the fellow who most successfully bridges the gap between the younger and older generation of pop music fans. "Trini Lopez in London," Reprise, has that "live" feeling, though it wasn't recorded with an audience. Even when Trini has overdubbed his voice to make a high-pitched harmony with himself, the listener has the sensation that he is in a club and Trini is there and Trini is, as an agent would say, really communicating.

FOR those old enough to remember, Columbia has brought out "Buddy Clark's Greatest Hits." They were recorded in 1946, '47 and '49, the latter the year Buddy Clark was killed in an airplane crash.

Clark had the light touch of Crosby, in fact we hadn't remembered that his sound was so much like Crosby's. Our favorite by him, "Apple Blossom Wedding," isn't here, but there are plenty to keep a Buddy Clark fan nostalgic — "Linda," "I'll Get By," "Peg O' My Heart," "I'll Dance at Your Wedding," "Girl of my Dreams" and duets with a couple of dream girls of the time, Doris Day and Dinah Shore.

Art Collection on Display

Russ Survey Lacks Strength

The chief appeal of "A Survey of Russian Paintings from the 15th Century to the Present," now at the Gallery of Modern Art in New York City, is that such a full survey of Russian art seldom is available to the public.

This gives the show a luster of novelty. But the exhibit itself does little to create an image of Russian strength in the visual arts.

It was organized, not from Russian sources, but from collections in the United States, by George Raibov, a collector who is an archivist at the Museum of Modern Art here. It will continue through Sept. 17.

Raibov says this is the most comprehensive survey of Russian art to be presented here since 1923.

There are more than 350 examples, mostly oils. Chronologically, the show begins with two dozen icons of the 15th Century, and proceeds spittily from there to the 1960s. Right through the 19th Century, when the Russians apparently were devoted to corn and camp, there is little to find in this show that is not derivative from other nations.

BUT THERE is one small section of the exhibit that serves to remind the viewer of Russia's contribution to the international scene. It is a section devoted to the early years of this century, when Kandinsky, Chagall, Malevitch, Jawlenski and others were pioneering the modern trend.

This section is a little skimpy, and underbalanced. It includes works of Kandinsky dated from 1902 to 1913, two Chagall watercolors of 1909 and 1914, and a Chagall collage of 1917, titled "Homage to Gogol." There is no hint of where the efforts of the modernists have led.

A small novelty in the show consists of two small portrait sketches — the subjects unidentified — that might escape the viewer's attention unless he notes the artist's name. They were drawn by Leonid Pasternak (1862-1945), father of Boris.

In the contemporary field there are some bizarre contrasts.

ONE GALLERY contains an amusing quaint selection of works in the category of "Socialist realism," the only recognized school of Soviet art to this day. They are on the level of calendar art.

Yet there also are some examples of nonobjective art, spurned by the Soviet museums, which seem to have an underground existence in defiance of the Russian dictum that art must sell the Socialist ideal.

Some of these latter paintings were loaned by Nina Stevens, the Russian-born wife of an American correspondent in Moscow.

Among them are several oils of an uninspired abstract type, and a few paintings by a 30-year-old Muscovite, Dimitri Plavinsky, on such themes as "Man-Fish" and "Coelecanth." Plavinsky seems to have borrowed some Western techniques to modify an Eastern imagery.

The group of unofficial, underground Russian paintings is given an added fillip by the presence of one "Pop Art" item. It consists of a pair of dirty old slacks tacked to a cluster of flimsy wooden slats. The creator, Otto Vazari, named it "Bleeding Buffalo, female."

THE SHOW also contains designs for Diaghilev ballets by Benois, Roerich, Korovin and Bilibin, costume and ballet designs by Doboujinski and costume and stage designs by Exter.

By coincidence, the Metropolitan Museum of Art now is showing in its auditorium lounge, through Sept. 4, a selection of 64 drawings by Russian artists — many of them are the same ones that appear in the exhibit at the Gallery of Modern Art — for ballet, stage and opera.

Later this Metropolitan Museum display will be enlarged to number 111 items, and will be circulated by the International Exhibition Foundation to universities, museums and college libraries.

Also at the Metropolitan, through Sept. 4, is a showing of 75 recently acquired prints of 18th and 19th century Russia. Most of this exhibit consists of lithographs and etchings of views in the St. Petersburg area, from the city's founding in 1703 to the early 19th Century.

Saving the Fleet From the H-Bomb

CHINA BOMB. By Richard Tregaskis. Ives Washburn, $6.95.

The time is in the near future. American intelligence learns through the Chinese Embassy in India that China has succeeded in making one H-bomb and intends to use it to destroy the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

The Chinese have no long-range missiles to deliver the big blast, but they have a Russian-made bomber. The urgent problem is to find out where and when the bomb is being launched, and then send in a small team of saboteurs to put it permanently out of commission.

At this point the cloak and dagger business begins in Hong Kong. Hank Musgrave, a Far East press correspondent with some previous experience in undercover work, is looking for his friend Mary Wu, a Chinese dance-hall girl. By the time he finds her, both of them have been catapulted into an intelligence operation, and Mary succeeds in learning the vital information. Hank then joins the sabotage team — they need a linguist in this "Typhoon Force" — and helps the military types reach their destination.

Tregaskis is best known for his nonfiction, especially "Guadacanal Diary" and "Vietnam Diary," and obviously is well versed in past military operations in the Far East.

As a fiction writer he is less skilled. Parts of the plot are too contrived and many of the scenes are implausible.

Yet this novel has its merits as a thriller. There is a really dramatic description of a long and danger-filled submarine run to reach the Chinese coast, and the last few hours of the mission are filled with enough violent action to satisfy all the fans.

WEEKEND BIRTHDAYS

Millionaire oil magnate, capitalist and philanthropist John Davison Rockefeller was born at Richford, N.Y., July 8, 1839.

He was 14 when the family moved to Cleveland, where he attended public school and began his career as an assistant bookkeeper in a commission house, earning $3.00 annually.

By 1858 he had saved enough to become a partner in a produce commission firm and four years later made his first investment in the infant oil refining business.

6. Devotion to his work causes many a student to DROWSE over it (Browse). — Many a student understates with Browse. DROWSE is more in keeping with human nature — he is simply too tired to concentrate longer.

In 1870, with others, he organized and became president of the Standard Oil Company, a corporation which established itself within 10 years as the most important single factor in America's growing petroleum industry.

Because it virtually controlled all U.S. facilities for oil refining and transportation, it was declared in violation of the anti-trust laws and was reorganized several times.

Bitterly castigated for his money as well as his methods, Rockefeller's monopoly nevertheless brought order economy and improvements to the then chaotic industry.

Always a devout churchgoer, Rockefeller, during his adult years in Cleveland, was both a teacher and superintendent of his church's Sunday school. Believing his wealth was a gift of which he was steward, Rockefeller began disposing of his vast fortune through a system of philanthropic giving.

At his death in 1937 he had given away more than $600 million, most of it to four great benevolent corporations he created, and the founding of the University of Chicago.

Others born today are politician Nelson Rockefeller, author Alec Waugh, actress Faye Emerson, singers Billy Eckstine and Steve Lawrence.

Those born July 9 include anthropologist Franz Boas, historian Henry Hallam, inventor Elias Howe, electrical engineer Nikola Tesla, author Dorothy Thompson and newsman H. V. Kaltenborn.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

1. New Hampshire.
2. A pagan.
3. Sir Walter Raleigh.
4. G. K. Chesterton.
5. A sea monster.

7. People who LIKE a gay social life seldom like to be alone for long (Live). — People who Live a gay social life might not LIKE doing so. LIKE is better. They enjoy the life.

9. It's apt to make a son work harder when his dad shows LOTS of confidence in him (Loss). — The sentence read with Loss is less than true; a youngster is easily discouraged. When his dad shows LOTS of confidence in him, it gives him a real lift.

11. As men grow elderly they often tend to become sentimental over their past JOBS (Joys). — However unpleasant their JOBS might have been, they tend to remember the good parts. Joys is much too general a term to use here. All Joys are not subject to sentimental recall.

13. Women are often much more critical than men of women in SHORTS (Sports). — In the case of Sports much depends on the ability of the women competitors. SHORTS makes a matter-of-fact answer.

14. The more timid a rich man is the more likely he is to HAVE people pestering him for loans. (Hate). — Hate goes rather far here; whether he Hates it scarcely depends on how timid he is. HAVE makes a straightforward statement.

15. When a youngster is given a TINY amount of responsibility it sometimes goes to his head (Tidy). — When given a Tidy or large amount of responsibility, sometimes understates concerning the head-swelling effect on the youngster. The restraint of the clue is better with TINY.

DOWN:

1. We usually feel bitter toward people who GULL us (Gall). — Since Gall is to make bitter, the word usually doesn't go far enough. GULL, in the sense of to deceive or to trick, is better. They might GULL us as a prank, a friendly prank.

3. It always takes a clever husband to FOOL a suspicious wife (Foil). — to FOOL such a woman always takes a clever spouse. He may Foil her at times, but she retains her suspicions. He hasn't been able to FOOL her.

4. We're apt to be very critical of someone who GETS a lot of money and loses it (Bets). GETS is better. It covers such a wide field, and could include money lost by betting. In the case of Bets, he might be well able to afford the loss.

5. A man inclined to SMIRK usually arouses the dislike of his fellow workers (Shirk). — SMIRK is better because of the unpleasantness of the mannerism. Shirk is less true because of the restraint of inclined. He may have to work hard.

8. Indulgent bosses often ENSURE inefficiency (Endure). — They must nearly always Endure it, put up with it, if it occurs. But their indulgence doesn't quite so frequently ENSURE, guarantee, that there will be inefficiency.

10. Being late makes most of us RUSH occasionally (Rash). — Rash, careless goes too far with most of us. That it makes most of us RUSH occasionally is true.

11. A spiteful person often makes a remark about you that isn't intended to be JUST (Jest). — Often is too restrained with Jest; a spiteful person is essentially humorless. JUST is better with often.

12. Men confident in themselves seldom allow discouragement to STAY their ambitions (Sway). — Seldom allows for few exceptions, and this is more likely in the case of STAY. Sway doesn't go so far in its implications.

Exercise for Beauty!

YOUTH AHEAD

By Bonnie and Reba Churchill

THESE tilting-tilting routines add a lively freshness to your fitness program. Space them between traditional exercises, and see how they remove the static sameness in your workouts, plus pepping circulation and toning muscles. Begin by standing on left foot, left hand extended at waist level. (If necessary, use a chair for balance.) Now, swing right foot back and up, grasping it with right hand. Tilt body forward, continuing to lean, until there is an invigorating s-t-r-e-t-c-h along the entire torso. Do not hold pose more than two seconds. Alternate sides; repeat four times.

ANOTHER TIP-TYPE routine starts by standing on right foot. Elevate left leg, bend knee and lean back until foot juts upward. Then, reverse procedure, so lifted knee points to floor and foot swings back. As actress Jean Hale, star of the 20th Century film, "In Like Flint," discovered, if hands are placed at the waist, you'll feel exactly where this to-and-fro action is concentrated. Alternate leg positions, and rehearse eight times.

FINALLY, HERE'S a new version of a teeter-totter tune-up. Stand with legs together; then, lunge forward on left. Really make it a giant stride. Keep left leg bent; right one flexed. Slowly elevate arms to shoulder height and try to touch clenched left hand to kneecap. Tilting back, straighten left limb, bend right one, and see if you can touch clenched right hand to thigh, or even better, to the calf of the right leg. Change sides; practice five times at a slow tempo.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM:
Electrical Coins.

NEEDED:
A dime and a copper cent.

DO THIS:
Hold each coin on the tongue separately and you will observe little or no taste. Hold the coins so that they touch, then touch them to the tongue at the same time for a few seconds. A salty taste will be observed — the taste due to a small electric current.

HERE'S WHY: The silver and copper of the coins react with the saliva in the mouth. The rate of reaction is different for the two coins, and this causes a small electrical voltage difference between them. With the closed circuit, a small electrical current flows which causes a salty taste on the tongue. The "dry" cell operates much the same way.

A Sense of Elegance in Bathing Suits

Summer... A Debacle or a Delight?

AS I have so "deftly" illustrated in the past, fashion does not lend itself readily to philosophy, nor does it provide a challenge "to the seeker of wisdom and truth." The innocent, who try to justify a style, a fabric, a "revolution," find a weary path down a dead end street, only to have fashion defy the rules of logic as if it were an entity peculiar to some supernatural force. A mid-calf skirt is undoubtedly far warmer in the winter and unfortunately in the summer as well. Nudity is undoubtedly far more comfortable than modesty and a lot more unsanitary as well.

To spare myself the harrowing experience of rationality (it's terribly distasteful to the irrational), I pompously present my ideas to be accepted or rejected at will. Very rarely do I trespass on the grounds of the pragmatic, except in the area of beach wear . . . an involvement I find difficult to avoid. It seems to me, a designer can't afford to be whimsical when it comes to a bathing suit — unless, of course, his conscience is indifferent to police charges of indecent exposure; patchquilt suntans (not terribly pleasant for the lover of said wearer); inability to perform the act for which the garment was designed (swimming) and a multitude of other distressing complications.

Unfortunately, our society deems the bathing suit a necessary component of moral housekeeping. Given this fact, a designer must agonize over the problems involved; for example, elegance vs. comfort and allusion vs. fashion, morality vs. design. (And believe me, the torsos of some women are agony!)

However, it is not my intention to shock, although I find the female body an immensely beautiful structure and advocate, the most revelatory of swimming apparel — unless of course, the female in question has been imbibing chocolate malts on a daily basis for the last five years. Then it is my responsibility to drape this distorted "bod" in a non too revealing, non too outdated, non too restricting swim decor. I know it's not easy, but new innovations in nylons and foundations have facilitated matters.

In bathing suits, as with anything else, I'm constantly striving for a sense of elegance. To me, cut-out bathing suits have been a colossal boon to the feminine "sex mystique." (Don't forget though, to wear a two piece initially. You try wearing a bikini with a checkerboard stomach!) Overly covered-up suits, (long sleeve, a la turtleneck) have eradicated the problems of sitting down with a frankfurter at lunch and having your bosoms accidentally coated with mustard. They're heavenly lounging apparel, for the high-fashion conscious.

Thus, I'm compelled to make two or more lines a season, with the hope that "Missy" and "Mini" don't become muddled in the dressing room and both wind up looking like "Maxi." It's simply a question of prospective . . . "Prospectively, what's the most flattering for me?"

Dear Abby:

His Business a Bar To Happy Marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 29 and the mother of three children under 10. My husband owns a very popular bar-lounge in town (We live in a suburb.) He comes home anywhere from 3 to 6 in the morning. He gets up about 11 a.m. and goes to work at about 3:30 p.m.

I don't mind his being in the bar business because it's been good to us, but I do resent very much his FORBIDDING me ever to come to his place of business unannounced or uninvited. (By the way, I never have, and I probably never would, so he doesn't have to worry.)

He forbids me to set foot in his place except when HE takes me — which is always on the dearest night of the week.

It's a respectable bar, and caters to women as well as men. This may sound silly to you, but his forbidding me to come by has become such a source of bitterness that I have developed ulcers. It is actually ruining our relationship. Can you tell me what to do? BITTER-HALF

Abby

DEAR BITTER-HALF: Tell your husband that you have had about as much FORBIDDING as you can stand, and that if he values your marriage he will accompany you to an impartial third party to help resolve your problems. If you have no clergyman to guide you, ask your family physician to recommend a marriage counselor, psychiatrist, or psychologist.

DEAR ABBY: I am in the guard house for going A.W.O.L. I've been here 3 weeks, and I hate to tell you how much longer I've got in here because this is my third A.W.O.L.

My girl friend just sent word to me that she is pregnant. Do you think they would let me out long enough to marry her? WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Talk to the chaplain and plead your case. Maybe they'll allow you just enough liberty to marry the girl. But don't expect a honeymoon.

DEAR ABBY: We were given a dog as a gift, and everything is just fine, except for one matter:

After we have dinner, my husband gives the dog his plate to lick clean.

I think this is a disgusting practice, and could be dangerous to our health. My husband says as long as all the dishes go into the automatic dishwasher and are rinsed in boiling water, it doesn't make any difference. What do you think about this? RED'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Red that if "It doesn't make any difference," you'd just as soon have your own dishes and let the dog have his.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Reflections

In a Fashion Mirror

Let's leave the bikinis behind us and turn our sights to that pervasive thing called Winter. And with Winter '68, the coat for '68 will be SHORT, SHORT, fitted, with hardware closing and link belts. The raccoon trim is back and the military look is bigger than ever. Of course, the mini coat will be blazing the market, but this little number will be coupled with coordinated mini dresses, whereas the mini coat, is a natural solo. Get set for a lot of browns, beiges, golds and navy, for all at once coats are no longer a bulky necessity, but a glamorous treat.

FASHION TIP

Keeping a well coiffed hairdo, that took three hours to achieve in the beauty salon and a pocketful of money as well, is always somewhat of a problem. Toilet paper and nets are a classic standby (ask any husband around.) But the greatest, is probably a pair of nylon panties (reserved solely for your hair!) worn upside down over your head works superbly. The ends are fine as soon as you accustom yourself to the means!

CHEER UP—these are the hot lazy days of summer that you will be sighing for come winter.

Never before have we been anxious for a summer to pass quickly; but this year we are anxious for November and a reunion of family. So we hurry the weeks along and even rejoice in the announcement of mid-summer sales.

Why is it that husbands never make mention of their grave financial status until a wife plans a shopping trip?

MEN USED TO BE PARTED from their money in the stock market. Today all it takes is the weekly trip to the local supermarket.

This is the time of the year when housewives enjoy rearranging the furniture or "doing" a room. The males of the house usually think redecorating is complete if there is a comfortable chair in front of the television set.

ONE ADVANTAGE OF A TRAVEL trailer is that all the furniture is stationary, and even a husband can find the chair he sat in last night.

But you lose out on all those little guest-size bars of hotel and motel soap!

Few 'Discreet' Changes Made in TV Version of 'Hondo'

amount to M.G.M. Studios, a step up the ladder right now, and his first move was to look over the studio roster which included young Taeger's name. Following this discovery, Warner's rights to "Hondo" came to an end. In a jiffy, Wayne's company, Batjac, Andrew Fenady, M.G.M. and ABC became partners for a TV version of "Hondo" starring Ralph Taeger.

To pay $750,000 for an hour TV pilot that might not sell, the four partners decided instead to make an European film version called "Hondo and The Apaches," and use it as a pilot.

WITH GUEST stars Michael Rennie, Robert Taylor and Gary Merrill, in addition to series regulars Taeger, Gary Clarke, Noah Beery Jr. and Kathy Browne, Fenady filmed the picture in 18 days, then shot an additional 15 minutes to fill out two one-hour TV segments which will become the first shows on the air this fall.

Even before the European run earned profits, ABC collared enough sponsors to put "Hondo" on the air. "Before our first day of shooting we've gotten our money back," said Fenady with a grin. "This is the only way to make pilots in these expensive times — do it as a TV or an European movie. It means trouble for TV independent companies who can't afford such projects, and more power for the major film companies like Universal, M.G.M. and 20th. Even Paramount Pictures is beginning to move in this direction."

In TV's version of "Hondo," Fenady injected a few discreet changes, shifting the scout's main base from a ranch to a fort, as he becomes a trouble-shooter for General Crook, moving back and forth between the cavalry and his Apache Indian friends, accompanied by faithful "Sam," a dog with cuts across his nose, mementos from an active life with his hero.

Sam is part St. Bernard, part mixture of a dozen breeds, and he goes where Hondo goes. Hondo disavows ownership of the dog, and he doesn't feed the animal, saying "Sam is independent, he does what he likes," and he just likes to be with the scout.

FOR THIS scene stealing role, Fenady has cast three dogs — an attack dog, a running dog and an acting dog, and all three are going to give star Taeger a run for the big money.

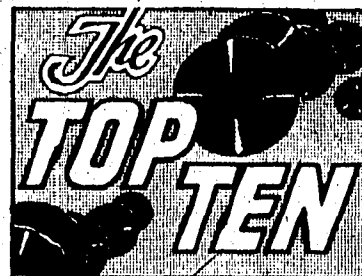

Says Fenady: "I'm not worried about Taeger. He's been around ten years and yet he's a new personality. He's got the face and all the moves. It's not his fault Warner's had Sam Peckinpah write a good pilot for 'Klondike' and then walk away. Tae-ger, Coburn and Savalas were left with nothing. The other two actors have made their mark. Now it's Ralph's turn."

And, will star Wayne ever make a guest appearance on his own series?

"I don't know," answered Fenady cheerfully. "Frankly, I don't have the nerve to ask him."
