Small Tributaries Show Rapid Rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Mississippi River was rising, but slow. In the extreme upper reaches of the river, where the small tributaries were feeding the main stream, conditions were severe. The tributaries, many of which are small, had risen nearly three inches per hour at Lamont, about 196 miles upstream from Minneapolis. The rising water would eventually reach Mankato and the Twin Cities, making it necessary to pull off the streets and leave the houses.

The Cottonwood was climbing at New Ulm about 2:30 p.m., and the forecast would indicate that the river would continue to rise. The forecast would indicate that the Cottonwood River would reach 24 feet in a few days. The forecast would indicate that the river would reach flood stage of 19 feet. CRUCIAL DECISION FOR NIXON:

What to Do About Model Cities

By RONALD KLAIN
Washington (AP) - The Nixon administration's five-year-old experiment in urban renewal is being defended by its most powerful advocate as a "crucial decision" for the future of poor neighborhoods.

But new of the critics will be able to call the President's desk in the White House to put the full weight of his office behind a revamped program, some members of Congress have said.

Nor will the President's decision be easy. He has some 12 months to prepare a new urban renewal plan, and he will face powerful opposition from his own party's urban politicians.

"The decision is one of the most complex, and possibly the most important, administrative problems the President will face," said a White House official. "He will have to make a decision that will affect the future of some of the poorest neighborhoods in the country.

"The President has a lot of work to do before he can make a decision," the official said. "He will have to consider the problems of the urban poor, the concerns of his administration, the needs of the cities, and the wishes of his political party."

"The decision will not be easy to make," the official added. "The President will have to take into account the views of his own party, the wishes of the cities, and the needs of the urban poor."

Job Corps Funds Off Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Job Corps, a federal program that provides job training to young people, has been pulled off a congressional schedule.

The program, which was established in 1963, has been opposed by some members of Congress who argue that it diverts funds from other social programs.

The program's supporters, including President Nixon, have defended it as a way to provide job training to young people.

"The Job Corps is a valuable program," the President said. "It provides job training to young people who might not otherwise have a chance to pursue a career.

"The Job Corps is a valuable investment in the future of our country," the President added. "It provides job training to young people who might not otherwise have a chance to pursue a career.

The Meaning of the Resurrection Is What Matters Today

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

A man raises his hand, taking as oath of office, and in the gesture he makes, in the object or act, in what he says, in his attitude, in his whole being, it is not the gesture that matters, but what it means. In offering this prayer, he is taking an oath, not simply as a juridical act, but as a personal commitment, an inner act of faith and prayer. It is the heart that matters, not the hand. And in the same way, we must understand the Easter series about the mysteries of the resurrection.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

TWO years ago in this column, we explored the meaning of Easter. We examined the extraordinary claims of the Christian faith, the claim that Jesus rose from the dead. We saw how this event challenged our assumptions and worldview. We concluded that the resurrection is not just an historical event, but a transformation of our very existence, a demonstration of the power of love and the possibility of new life. We saw how the resurrection is not just an event in the past, but a present reality, a promise of new beginnings for us all.

But so what if he rose from the dead? What does it matter? Isn't it just a story, a myth, a fairy tale? Isn't it just a figment of the imagination, a way for Christians to make sense of the world and their place in it? No, it is not. It is much more than that. It is a statement of the essence of life, the ultimate nature of reality, the source of all spirituality and morality. It is a revelation of the true nature of the divine, the ultimate ground of being.

And yet, even when we admit the historical and spiritual significance of the resurrection, we still have an important question to ask: how do we know? How can we be sure that Jesus really rose from the dead? How can we confirm this event in some objective way?

We need to look at four things: the historical evidence, the scriptural accounts, the religious significance, and the personal experience. Let's look at each one in turn.

First, the historical evidence. There is a wealth of evidence that supports the authenticity of the resurrection. There are eyewitness accounts, stories of the appearances of Jesus, and reports of the empty tomb. These stories are corroborated by other sources, such as the Roman records.

Second, the scriptural accounts. The New Testament contains several accounts of the resurrection, each with its own unique perspective. These accounts are consistent with each other and with the historical evidence.

Third, the religious significance. The resurrection is a central event in the Christian faith. It is the basis for all Christian teachings, including the doctrine of the Trinity, the atonement, and the hope of eternal life.

Fourth, the personal experience. Many people have experienced the reality of the resurrection in a personal way. They have felt the presence of Jesus, heard his voice, seen his body, and experienced the transformative power of his love.

So, how do we know that Jesus rose from the dead? We know because of the historical evidence, the scriptural accounts, the religious significance, and the personal experience. We know because the resurrection is not just a story, but a reality, a transformation of our very existence. We know because the resurrection is not just an event in the past, but a present reality, a promise of new beginnings for us all.

The resurrection is not just a historical fact, but a spiritual experience. It is not just a matter of belief, but a matter of faith. It is not just a matter of reason, but a matter of love. The resurrection is a reality that touches the very core of our being, a reality that transforms our lives and gives us hope for the future.

The meaning of the resurrection is not just in the facts, but in the feelings. It is not just in the evidence, but in the experience. It is not just in the past, but in the present. It is not just in the mind, but in the heart. The meaning of the resurrection is not just a matter of knowledge, but a matter of faith. It is not just a matter of belief, but a matter of love.

The resurrection is a reality that transforms our lives and gives us hope for the future. It is a reality that touches the very core of our being, a reality that gives us the courage to face the challenges of life. It is a reality that gives us the strength to overcome the obstacles, a reality that gives us the power to accomplish the impossible.

The meaning of the resurrection is not just in the facts, but in the feelings. It is not just in the evidence, but in the experience. It is not just in the past, but in the present. It is not just in the mind, but in the heart. The meaning of the resurrection is not just a matter of knowledge, but a matter of faith. It is not just a matter of belief, but a matter of love.

Joff Mullins before the Warriors in Philadelphia with starting returned to Los Angeles for the Boston Celtics when they continued in the weaker Western Division. Mullins is coaching for the Minnesota Twins as Minnesota Twins field general manager for 1966, the same record his father, Gene Mullins, set for the Kansas City Royals in Kansas City Tuesday afternoon against each of the Western Division plaguing by injuries all year, said the Twins must improve their Sluggers Harmon Killebrew on the Twins' American League flag. The Twins must avoid crippled major slugs in double plays last year. But for Cowens, the Twins socked it to Toronto to Thursday's report in the Minnesota American League flag during the NHL playoffs.

Littler Gets Unexpected Opposition

GREENWICH, N.Y. (AP) — Organization leader Bob Littler, an experienced athlete who had been suffering from back pain and stiffness, defeated former champion Gene Bobo, 65, in a tight match Thursday in the American Professional Golfers Association's (APGA) Stroke Play Championship at the Westchester Country Club.

Littler, who had missed the first cut by one stroke early in the tournament, shot a one-under-par 71 in the final round to win the title. Bobo, who was tied for second place after the first round, fell back with a 74 in the final round.

The championship, played over 72 holes, featured a mix of young and experienced golfers. Littler, a former FBI agent turned golfer, had been struggling with his game but managed to pull ahead in the final round.

Near Miss in Team Game Pin Category

The New York Yankees were just a few strokes away from winning their first World Series title. However, their hopes were dashed in the final round.

The Yankees were the defending champions and were up 2-1 in the series against the Cleveland Indians. In Game 7, the Indians took the lead in the third inning and never looked back, winning 4-2 to capture the championship.

Catcher Elisio Rodriguez is looking for a personal Best when the Cardinals face the Pirates in the National League Championship Series. Rodriguez, who has been consistent at the plate this season, will need to step up if the Cardinals are to advance.

Pipers Lose; Suffer Four More Injuries

Piper, a popular folk music group, announced Thursday that they have suffered four more injuries, bringing the total to eight.

The group, which includes singers Sinead O'Connor, Sinéad Lohan, Sinéad O'Callaghan, and Sinéad O'Kennedy, said in a statement that they have undergone surgery to repair their injuries.

Nats Bomb Chance; May Not Start

The Washington Nationals announced that they are not sure whether shortstop Trea Turner will be able to start in the upcoming series against the Miami Marlins.

Manager Dave Martinez said that Turner is still recovering from a back injury sustained in the previous series. The Nationals need Turner to be at full strength if they hope to make a run in the playoffs.
