Charges Pentagon Hiding Number of Battle Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — An expert has found the Pentagon is hiding the number of Americans killed in the war in Vietnam.

"The number of combat deaths and wounded has been overestimated," said the expert. "It is clear that the real number of deaths is much lower."

The expert, who was not identified, said the Pentagon has been "grossly misleading" the public about the number of deaths in Vietnam.

College Officials in North Troubled by Lack of Negro Educators

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Gone are the days when a black man stood on a wooden block for sale to the marketplace to-t cilan for black studies at the University of Wisconsin. President Kenneth Wickes often referred to the black faculty member as an "infracolor" in his role.

Wednesday, the University of Wisconsin announced it was hiring two black professors, one in the College of Arts and Sciences and the other in the College of Letters and Science.

The largest pool of potential faculty members for the black studies department at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, was identified in a study of 63 black faculty members at 13 Southern universities. The study found that only two black professors had tenure at the universities.

Northern universities have been more successful in hiring black faculty members, but the University of Wisconsin has not.

The economic value of a good Negro student is high, one member of the faculty committee said.

"Like any scarce commodity, Negroes are more valuable to the educational community when they are distributed among institutions," he said. "The black educational community has been un-derestimated, and the black student has been underutilized."
City Meter Revenue Increases Sharply

The City Meter Revenue in the third district for the month of March was reported to be $1,234.35, an increase of $234.35 over the revenue for the same month last year. This increase is attributed to the improved weather conditions and the increased commercial activity in the district. The Board of Directors of the City Meter Revenue Committee recommended an increase in the meter rates for next year to reflect the higher costs of operation.

Northam Files in 3rd District

The Northam Files in the 3rd District were reported to be 2,500 cases, an increase of 500 cases over last year. The files include cases of all types, from minor traffic violations to serious criminal charges. The increase in the number of cases is attributed to the increased population and the improved law enforcement in the district. The Board of Directors of the Northam Files Committee recommended an increase in the filing fees for next year to reflect the higher cost of operation.

Summer in the Park

The Summer in the Park program will begin on June 15th and will continue through August 30th. The program includes a variety of events and activities, such as concerts, dances, and sports competitions. The weather is expected to be warm and sunny during the summer months, providing ideal conditions for outdoor activities. The Board of Directors of the Summer in the Park Committee recommended an increase in the entrance fees for next year to reflect the higher cost of operation.

City Events, Services

City Events

Who Is the Agressor in Middle East?

By A. B. ROBERTS

Everyone today seems to be at the end of his rope, and there is an air of despair about the situation. However, there are those who believe that the United Nations can still save the situation by a imaginative and bold action. For as long as there is a hope, there is still a chance. For, as the saying goes, "he who dies with the most dogs wins." The United Nations must not lose any time in acting. It is imperative that it should not sit idly by and watch the situation deteriorate. It is the duty of the United Nations to step in and take action. For as long as the United Nations remains passive, the situation will only worsen. It is the duty of the United Nations to act. For as long as there is a hope, there is still a chance. For, as the saying goes, "he who dies with the most dogs wins."

Wisconsin Man Organizes Crusade for Tax Reform

By DEREK L. KORNHERB

The State Capitol building was crowded with officials and lawmakers last week as Governor Edward J. Gargen and the Wisconsin legislature opened a session that will last until late March. The focus of attention was the introduction of a bill to reduce the state income tax by 20 percent.

The bill, which was introduced by Senator George E. Holmquist of Milwaukee, is expected to be one of the major issues considered by the legislature this session. The governor has expressed his support for the bill, and it is likely to become a major campaign issue in the upcoming election.

The tax reform bill would reduce the state income tax rate from 5.7 percent to 4.5 percent, which would result in a significant tax cut for middle- and upper-income taxpayers. The bill would also eliminate the state sales tax, which is currently 5 percent.

The bill has been met with mixed reactions from the public and lawmakers. While some have praised the bill as a step towards reducing the burden on middle-class families, others have criticized it as a giveaway to wealthy individuals.

Senators and representatives have already begun to express their views on the issue. "I believe this is a fair and responsible way to reduce the tax burden on our citizens," said Senator Holmquist. "We need to find a way to make our tax system more equitable and fair, and this is a good step in that direction."

However, others have expressed concerns about the impact of the bill on state revenue. "We need to ensure that we maintain a stable and reliable source of revenue for our state," said Representative David Johnson. "We cannot afford to lose the revenue that comes from the sales tax, especially at a time when we have limited options for increasing other sources of revenue."

The debate over the tax reform bill is likely to continue throughout the legislative session. Both sides will need to find a balance between reducing the tax burden on citizens and maintaining a stable source of revenue for the state.

Spokesmen for Municipal Culture Centers Meeting

Spokesmen for municipal culture centers throughout the state are meeting this week to discuss the impact of cuts in state funding and explore ways to maintain and strengthen their programs.

"We are facing unprecedented challenges in funding our programs," said one spokesman. "Governor Gargen's proposed budget includes significant cuts to our funding, and we need to find ways to continue providing cultural programs to our communities."

The meeting, which is being held in Madison, brings together representatives from municipal culture centers from across the state. They will discuss strategies for maintaining and expanding their programs, as well as exploring ways to increase public support for cultural initiatives.

"We believe that cultural programs are essential for the well-being of our communities," said another spokesman. "They provide opportunities for learning and growth, and they help to build a sense of community and pride. We need to find ways to continue supporting these programs in the face of funding cuts."

The spokesman added that the meeting is an important opportunity for centers to come together and share their experiences and strategies. "We have much to learn from each other, and we need to support each other in these challenging times."

The meeting is expected to conclude with recommendations for ways to continue supporting cultural programs in the face of funding cuts. The spokesmen will then return to their respective centers to implement these strategies and advocate for increased public support.

Dedicated to Jane Eyre

DEAR ABBY:

Dear Abby: I am writing to express my concern about a recent trend in our community. I have noticed an increase in the number of individuals engaging in civil disobedience, and I believe it is time for us to reassess the effectiveness of these actions.

Many of these individuals argue that they are acting out of principle and in protest against certain policies or practices. However, I believe that these actions are not only ineffective but also counterproductive. They often escalate tensions and create a negative perception of our community.

I urge everyone to consider the impact of these actions and to explore alternative methods of protest that are more likely to achieve meaningful change. Together, we can work towards a positive and constructive future.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

In the House of Representatives, Speaker William J. Jorgensen announced that the assembly had unanimously approved a bill to authorize the payment of $500,000 to the University of Wisconsin-Madison for the construction of a new science building.

The bill, which was sponsored by Representative John W. Zelle, was praised by Jorgensen as a "significant step forward in the development of our state's higher education system."

"This bill is an important investment in the future of our state," said Jorgensen. "We need to ensure that our universities have the necessary resources to continue providing a world-class education to our students."

The bill, which was approved with a vote of 95 to 0, will provide the university with the funding needed to construct the new science building. The building is expected to be completed in three years and will provide 20,000 square feet of additional space for science classrooms and laboratories.

In other legislative news, the assembly approved a bill to create a task force on the issue of pesticide use. The task force will be charged with studying the impact of pesticide use on human health and the environment and will make recommendations to the assembly on ways to reduce the use of pesticides.

The bill, which was sponsored by Representative Mary W. Johnson, was praised by Johnson as a "significant step forward in the fight against the overuse of harmful chemicals."

"We need to ensure that our communities are protected from the harmful effects of pesticides," said Johnson. "This bill is an important step towards achieving that goal."

The bill, which was approved with a vote of 85 to 15, will establish a task force comprised of representatives from the agriculture, environmental, and public health communities. The task force will be charged with studying the impact of pesticide use and will make recommendations to the assembly on ways to reduce the use of pesticides in the state.

In other legislative news, the assembly approved a bill to extend the current term of Governor Edward J. Gargen, and to increase the state's share of the federal unemployment trust fund.

The bill, which was sponsored by Representative John W. Zelle, was praised by Zelle as a "significant step forward in the development of our state's economic infrastructure."

"This bill is an important investment in the future of our state," said Zelle. "We need to ensure that our communities have the necessary resources to continue growing and prospering."

The bill, which was approved with a vote of 95 to 0, will extend the current term of Governor Gargen and will increase the state's share of the federal unemployment trust fund. The bill is expected to provide additional resources for the state's economic development efforts, and will help to create new jobs and opportunities for our communities.

Washington, D.C. — The Senate Commerce Committee today approved the $4.5 billion antitrust program for newsweekly operations.

In December, a state official had been removed from his position for malfeasance.

The program, which the Senate had approved earlier, was designed to help newsweekly operations, which have been facing increasing competition from larger newspaper publishers.

The Senate Commerce Committee had approved the program in December, but the House had yet to act on it.

The bill, which was introduced by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., would provide funding for newsweekly operations, allowing them to purchase or lease facilities and equipment, and to make improvements to their facilities.

The program was expected to benefit newsweekly operations throughout the country, particularly those in rural areas.

Sen. Robert C. (Bob) Packwood, R-Ore., had expressed support for the program during a hearing earlier this year.

Packwood, who chairs the Senate Commerce Committee, had noted that newsweekly operations were an important part of the nation's information system and that they provided a unique perspective on local news issues.

"I believe Winona County can benefit greatly from a public health program," said Dr. Warner. "Winona County is a very fortunate county in the sense that it has a public health officer." Dr. Warner said the recommendation is to establish a public health program in the county and to establish a public health office in the county.

"The public health officer will be the key to making this program successful," said Dr. Warner. "The public health officer will work closely with the county health officer, the county commissioners, the county health board, and the county health department to ensure the success of the program.

"The public health officer will be responsible for coordinating the program, setting priorities, and ensuring that the program is effective," said Dr. Warner. "The public health officer will be responsible for ensuring that the program is well-funded, and that it has a strong support base.

John Havlicek and Larry Siegfried summed up the feelings of the Celtics, who have already been on the winning end of a few games this season.
