WASHINGTON — Students are attacking teachers with increasing frequency.

The announcement made at the United Nations in New York City last week was only the latest in a series of similar incidents that have raised concern among educators and policymakers.

The incidents have been happening with increasing frequency in recent years, with reports of physical attacks on teachers becoming more common.

Several factors have contributed to this trend. Among them are:

- Increased violence in urban areas
- Changes in law enforcement policies
- Economic disparities and social inequality

The consequences of this trend include:

- Injuries to teachers and students
- Disturbances in the learning environment
- Reduced morale among teachers

Though measures have been taken to address this issue, including increased funding for school safety and more rigorous background checks on potential teachers, the problem remains significant.

The fight against violence in schools continues, as educators, parents, and policymakers seek to create a safer and more productive learning environment for all students.

Five Hour Battle Biggest in Six Weeks

BADDOCK (AP) — A five-hour battle near the border of Syria and Lebanon on February 10th was the biggest in six weeks.

The fighting, which erupted after a cease-fire agreement was reached earlier in the morning, involved Syrian and Lebanese troops.

Five hours later, the fighting had not ended, and both sides were reported to have sustained heavy losses.

At press time, the number of casualties was not yet available.

The battle is the latest in a series of armed confrontations that have troubled the region in recent years.

In a statement, the Syrian government said it would not accept any cease-fire agreement that did not include the withdrawal of foreign forces from the area.

The Lebanese government, on the other hand, expressed hope that the fighting would end soon.

Helsinki Site of Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union began arms negotiations today at the Helsinki site.

The talks, which are expected to last several weeks, will focus on reducing the strategic nuclear arms held by both nations.

Representatives of the two countries exchanged opening statements and indicated their willingness to work toward a comprehensive arms control agreement.

The negotiations are seen as a key step in the ongoing process of détente between the two superpowers.

Students Are Attacking Teachers With Increasing Frequency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students are attacking teachers with increasing frequency.

The trend is documented in a new report released today, which shows a significant increase in the number of incidents involving physical violence.

According to the report, the number of incidents involving teachers being attacked or threatened increased by 35% last year.

The report attributes this increase to a number of factors, including:

- Increased gang activity
- Drug use
- Mental health issues

The report also notes that the vast majority of incidents involve teachers being threatened or physically attacked by students.

The authors of the report call for increased attention to the issue and for schools to develop more effective strategies to prevent such incidents.

Christ from severe chest injuries and Mrs. Christ died about an hour later. Larry, 20, both died of skull fractures and Mrs. Christ was killed.

Pehler was aided by his son, Larry, in the investigation. According to Dr. E. A. Meili, Cochrane County coroner, the victims were members of the church men's choir, and the speed of the train was estimated at from $500 to $700 per hour.

The train was a Milwaukee Road train, traveling on the track that runs from Eau Claire to Winona and from Independence to the city, according to Charles Pehler, Register of rural Independence. Theyouth, who was driving, was killed in the crash, and the locomotive at Cochrane, Wis.

A trainman was killed when the train passed a streetcar track at this point. Pehler said he was uncertain whether the speed of the train was sufficient to cause a collision.

The right of way divides the road tracks at this point, and the conductor was the only person on the train when it passed the streetcar track. Pehler said he was uncertain whether the speed of the train was sufficient to cause a collision.

Lee Marvin's Singing Blues

By RUDY WILSON

NEW YORK — "Don't you want to buy me a drink?" Lee Marvin bellowed. "I'll buy you the drink." He was at a table, surrounded by a group of friends. "You'll never hear a song like this, my old man," he said.

"What's up?" someone asked.

"I've got a song for you," Marvin replied. "It's called "Don't you want to buy me a drink?""

Smoke was flying from a drink in his hand. "I'm going to sing this song," Marvin said. "It's going to be huge." He started singing:

"Don't you want to buy me a drink?" he crooned. "I'll buy you the drink."

The group started laughing. "That's not a very good song," one of them said.

"I know," Marvin said. "But I think it's going to be a hit." He finished the song and the group started clapping.

New Swedish Head Promises A New Style

By JOHN M. LEE

STOCKHOLM — Three weeks after becoming Prime Minister of the Social Democratic Party, the 72-year-old Hjalmar Branting, who was once a newspaper editor and is now the leader of the world-famous Swedish Labor Party, announced that he would introduce a new style of government.

"We are going to change the way things are done," Branting said. "We are going to be more efficient and less bureaucratic." He promised to reduce the size of the government and to streamline procedures.

Despite the fad for maxi-dresses, some girls don't go along with it. One saleswoman asked a customer, "How's this one, honey — too short enough?" The customer answered, "That's early, brother."
Here's What It's Like to Travel Upper Nile River

COCHRANE, Wis. - Dr. Tom Johnson, a veteran of World War I, has a car agency at Houston — he's the only local man with a car agency at Houston 30 years, and day News photo)

It is the Nile, the historic source of life for the region, its source in Tanganyika and its delta in Egypt. It is a six-day trip from Juba to Khartoum, a distance of about 1,200 miles.

For the traveler, the Nile is a journey of discovery, a journey into the heart of Africa.

The Nile is the longest river in the world, stretching from the source in Tanganyika to the Delta in Egypt, a distance of about 6,650 km (4,136 miles).

The river is divided into three main sections: the Upper Nile, the Middle Nile, and the Lower Nile.

The Upper Nile begins in south central Africa and flows for about 400 km (250 miles) before reaching Lake Victoria.

The Middle Nile extends from Lake Victoria to the Sudanic region, a distance of about 1,700 km (1,056 miles).

The Lower Nile flows from the Sudanic region to the Mediterranean Sea, a distance of about 1,770 km (1,100 miles).

The Nile is a vital source of water for the region, providing irrigation for agriculture, drinking water for human consumption, and a source of hydroelectric power.

The river is also a major transport route, with shipping and river traffic connecting cities and towns along its course.

The Nile is a rich source of fish, with over 100 species of fish found in its waters.

The river is also home to many other species of wildlife, including crocodiles, hippos, and elephants.

The Nile is a major tourist destination, with many people visiting the region to experience the beauty and history of the river.

The river is also a place of religious significance, with many people visiting the region to participate in religious ceremonies and rituals.

The Nile is a place of contradictions, with both beauty and danger, with both opportunity and obstacles.

The Nile is a place of contrasts, with both wealthy and poor, with both educated and illiterate.

The Nile is a place of extremes, with both heat and cold, with both desert and rainforest.

The Nile is a place of change, with both progress and stagnation.

The Nile is a place of conflict, with both war and peace, with both poverty and wealth.

The Nile is a place of hope, with both possibilities and challenges.

The Nile is a place of wonder, with both mystery and discovery.

The Nile is a place of beauty, with both grandeur and tranquility.

The Nile is a place of life, with both hope and despair.

The Nile is a place of the past, with both history and future.

The Nile is a place of the present, with both challenges and opportunities.

The Nile is a place of the future, with both hope and possibilities.

The Nile is a place of the infinite, with both mystery and discovery.

The Nile is a place of the eternal, with both hope and possibilities.

Indian growing as military power

Indian has the potential to become a major military power in the region. The Indian army is well-equipped and has been investing heavily in modern weapons and technology. The Indian navy is also expanding its capabilities, with the acquisition of new submarines and the modernization of its fleet. The Indian air force is modernizing its fighter jets and expanding its fleet of missiles.

Public sentiment can protect environment

The public can play a crucial role in protecting the environment. By expressing concern and demand for environmental protection, citizens can influence government policies and encourage businesses to adopt sustainable practices. Public sentiment can also support environmental groups and help them achieve their goals.

Man and nature

My understanding of nature is based on my interaction with it. I believe that understanding nature is crucial for our survival. It is important to respect nature and its resources, and to work towards a sustainable future.
Thorough Study of War Issues Urged

After attending the Oct. 15, 1969, session in Manhattan of the symposium on the Environmental Impact on the American Family, I'm having some doubts whether the meeting actually did educate, or whether it was an exercise in self-fulfilling messages. The work is not done yet—no matter how many more seminars are held, the problems are still prominent.

The war will not be ended by estudio or discussion. It is ended by the deployment of facts, the dissemination of documents, the establishment of campaigns, the dedication of agencies, and the cooperation of the government. The government is dedicated to stop the war, but it is more likely to end when the government's policies toward the war are changed, not when the government's policies are changed. The government does not have the power to end the war, the people do it.

Jackie Can't Live the Private Life

In a move that has been one year in the making, Jacqueline Onassis, the president's widow, married Aristotle Onassis, a Greek shipping executive, in a ceremony planned for Paris. The couple plans to spend several days in the French capital before returning to New York City, where they will live in an apartment overlooking Central Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Onassis were married in the Château de Versailles, a historic palace located near Paris. The ceremony was held in the presence of friends and family members. The couple was accompanied by their children, John Jr. and Madeleine, who will attend private schools in New York City.

The wedding was attended by notable guests, including Princess Grace of Monaco and Prince Rainier III, who are close friends of the couple. The wedding ceremony was followed by a reception at the Hotel de Crillon, a luxury hotel in central Paris.

After the wedding, the couple will head to their private yacht, the 303-foot superyacht, which is docked in the Port of Toulon in southern France. The couple will then proceed to their private island in the Ionian Sea, where they plan to spend several weeks.

The couple has been involved in various philanthropic activities, including the Onassis Foundation, which supports cultural initiatives and educational programs.

Market Crash, Great Depression Began 40 Years Ago

by Ron Miller, Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some poor devil cashed in on the stock market in 1929 and was never heard from again.

This year marks the 40th anniversary of the stock market crash of Oct. 29, 1929, a day that became known as Black Tuesday. The crash signaled the beginning of the Great Depression, a period of prolonged economic stagnation that lasted until the end of World War II.

"This was a time when people were just starting to get their heads above water," said Dr. Ronald Bailey, a historian at the University of California, San Diego. "It was a time when people were just beginning to think about what the future held for them."
He Carves Statues With Cutting Torch

BUZZ SAWYER By Roy Crone

BUDDY BEATLES

FOUNTAIN CITY, Wis. — When artist Edward Monti is in the creative mood, you find him with a welding torch, helmet, horns, and a high temperature stone with a welding torch. In a face mask, ear muffs and protective glasses, Monti is known as "The Stone Man of Fountain City." Monti's sculpture shop is high above the Illinois River, where the sculptures chisel with his torch, with your torch," Monti said, "it can make anything."

"After that, you are able to move from customers' stone, and finish off the product. Then you shape your statue with a buzz saw..." Monti said. "This is a very fine art, just, you know, and I have chisled the sculpture of a horse in a stone."

The Childress is a famous stone carver. He began when asked to cut a piece of stone. "I got tired of shaping the stone," Monti said. "So I got a welding torch." Monti's sculptures have been sold to customers in the United States.

BTW HIS old black and white photo of the famous riverboat the Childress is by the window of the lodge on the Illinois River. The Childress is a famous stone carver. When asked to cut a piece of stone, Monti said, "I got tired of shaping the stone. So I got a welding torch."

"It can make anything."

"After that, you can move from customers' stone, and finish off the product. Then you shape your statue with a buzz saw..." Monti said. "This is a very fine art, just, you know, and I have chisled the sculpture of a horse in a stone."

Nixon Makes Major Economic Decisions

ACHESON SAYS:

New York Times News Service

By ISRAEL SHNER

Washingon—Nixon repeatedly grasped the initiative on taxing and spending policy and, to a large extent, his economists clashed with his policy advisers—but had the Treasury secretary on a high-level decision within the administration. He was not only the dominant voice of the President's chief functionaries, but his influence was a key factor in the decision-making process. The Treasury secretary was also the chief financial advisor to the President, and the Treasury staff included a number of economists, including John Millers, who had been the Treasury secretary under President Truman.

The Treasury secretary had always had a strong influence over the budget process. He was also the chief financial advisor to the President, and his views were heavily weighted in decisions that had to be made in the fiscal year. A cast of seasoned actors will present the first thrust stage production of "That Scoundrel Scapin" by a college company in Minnesota when Wenonah Players open their 1969-70 season Saturday at 8 p.m. in Somsen Arena Theatre—Winona State College. Performances will continue through Nov. 8.

According to director Dorothy B. Magnus all but three in the cast have appeared previously with Players on the WSC open stages. In the title role will be Bruce Baggett, Minneapolis, who made his first appearance on campus last year as Bob Acres in "The Rivals." Playing the two fathers are Keith Anderson, La Crescent, as Argante, and Dennis Bell, Winona, as Geronte. Anderson, too, made his initial appearance with Players last year as Sir Lucius O'Trigger in "The Rivals," while Bell was double-cast as Bob Acres in the "Sheridan" plus. Romantic roles will be taken by Bruce Hittner, Glencoe, as Octavio, who played Faulkner in "The Rivals" and the title role in "Playboy of the Western World," and by Dennis Roemer, Wabasha, as Leander, who was seen as Fig in "The Rivals." Paul Stratman, Hills, Minnesota, who did David in "The Rivals" will be seen as Silvester, the wily valet in Octavia.

Two of the women's roles have been double cast: Playing Hyacintha, beloved of Octavio and daughter of Geronte will be Kathy Russett, Calmar, Iowa, who was seen as Lucy in "The Rivals" and who played the lead, Pegeen, in "Playboy of the Western World" and Peggy McSorley, Winona, who was seen as the gypsy girl in "The Rivals." Playing Zerbinetta, the gypsy girl, beloved of Leander, will be Patricia Peterson, Golden Valley, who did Mrs. Malaprop in "The Rivals" and the entire Quin in "Playboy of the Western World," and Jayn Crenier, St. Paul, who is assistant to the director and who did last year as Lucy in "The Rivals."

Completing the cast are a rascal played by Mike O'Toole, Loveland, Iowa, who did Thomas in "The Rivals," and Holli, Bloomington, as Notte, name to Rovigo, and who was also in the supporting cast of "The Rivals," and two porters, Terry Fredrick, West Concord, and Dave Croce, Sleepy Eye, Iowa, both new members of Players.

The play concerns the escapades of a "professional" trickster, Scapin, who lives by his wits and will do anything in some sort of entanglement. Duplicity is his specialty. The results are wildly comic in the Commedia dell' Arte tradition.

Although the story takes place in Naples, the setting is non-representational, colorfully stylized, as are costumes and make-up. Working under the supervision of Joanne Krieger, and his class in stage craft, the stage and light crews are preparing a stylized setting appropriate to the Commedia dell' Arte tradition being followed by director Dorothy B. Magnus. Costumes by Northwest Costume House, Minneapolis, and make-up reflecting the "Costume Art" tradition are in the hands of student crew under the guidance of Vivian Fusillo.

All scenes are being supplemented by the class in play production at the college. Heads of the design staff are Dave Acres, Mary Rand, and Carolyn D. Clark, scene designers; Gary Schott, lighting designer; Paul Stratman, stage manager; and Joe Hight, makeup, Dave Verhe, stage; and Art Humphries, sound.

All college box office opens Monday. Reservations may be made by calling the college switchboard from 9 to 4 Monday through Friday. All performances will begin at 8 p.m. and are open to the public.

Places to Hunt Should Be Abundant

ST. PAUL — Hunters of this state should have no cause for worry about the abundance of game, according to H. L. Frequin, assistant game warden for the Minnesota Game Warden Service.

With nearly 3 million acres of land open to hunting, the state's 2 million acres of state owned land plus private rights and waterfowl habitat, should help make Minnesota a land of abundance for hunters. In fact, the abundance of game in the western part of the state, where the state has a larger area of land open to hunting, is not likely to be exceeded by Minnesota's eastern region.

Mr. Frequin said that the abundance of game in Minnesota should be discussed in terms of the abundance of game in other states. He pointed out that the abundance of game in Minnesota is greater than the abundance of game in many other states.

South Dakota Plants 700,000 Pheasants

A lot of local hunters who thought they were getting a year's free pheasant hunting by being in the South Dakota pheasant season are living to regret it. In fact, according to the South Dakota pheasant hunting season, the state has 700,000 pheasants in its wildlife program.

Bob Gross 24, who is the South Dakota Pheasant Hunting season is now in full swing. He points out that the South Dakota pheasant hunting season is now in full swing. He points out that the abundance of game in Minnesota should be discussed in terms of the abundance of game in other states.

Lead poisoning is one of the most common causes of waterfowl mortality. It is caused by the ingestion of lead shot or弹丸. The lead is toxic to birds and can cause serious health problems.

Several states have laws that require hunters to report lead poisoning in waterfowl. These laws are in place to help protect waterfowl populations and to reduce the number of waterfowl that die from lead poisoning.

Lead poisoning is one of the most common causes of waterfowl mortality. It is caused by the ingestion of lead shot or弹丸. The lead is toxic to birds and can cause serious health problems.

Several states have laws that require hunters to report lead poisoning in waterfowl. These laws are in place to help protect waterfowl populations and to reduce the number of waterfowl that die from lead poisoning.

Winona Youths Spend a Summer in Europe

Seeing Where History Was Written

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Sunday Editor

IF you want to trace the taproot of the Roman Empire you can go to the library and plunge into a pile of volumes on Roman history... or enroll in a class in ancient civilizations... Or, you can go to Italy, to the banks of the Tiber; up the Palatine Hill where Romulus built his hut on the site of the earliest settlement of Rome; and explore the stone ruins of the villages of the Etruscans who played a prominent part in the city's earliest development.

The student of the arts encounters virtually endless new learning experiences in a visit to Paris and its famed Louvre, housing one of the world's most celebrated museums and the repository of many of history's greatest paintings.

Knowledge of English literature assumes new dimensions during a stroll around Stratford-on-Avon, William Shakespeare's birthplace and Anne Hathaway's cottage, or a visit to the Castle of Chillon on Switzerland's Lake Geneva, the setting for Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon."

For 16 Winona spring high school graduates, such experiences in reliving history and a first-hand exposure to contemporary Europe, its society and political organizations, were afforded by participation in a seven-week summer study-travel program arranged by the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS).

From June 20 until Aug. 7, the 16—joined by a New Jersey youth whose parents wanted him to become acquainted with teenagers from the Midwest because he would enroll at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., in the fall—spent two weeks each in Rome, Paris and London learning about the history, life and customs of Italy, France and Great Britain.

The Winona AIFS contingent was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Stephens—his chairman of the English department at Winona.

One of the historic sites visited by 16 Winona students during their seven-week study-travel tour of Italy, France and England last summer as participants in the American Institute for Foreign Study was the Temple of the Vestal Virgins in Rome. Sharon Herzberg, Janet Tindal and Kathy Ouren posed on the altar of the ancient temple during a break in the lecture session at the ruins.
Senior High School—who also were engaged in another program of advanced study on campuses of the three cities.

All courses in the three cities were organized and conducted by the Centre for Adult Studies of the University of Bath, England, with tutors drawn from Bath and other British universities and colleges and distinguished French and Italian guest speakers available for special lectures.

In Rome the focus was on ancient Roman history to widen students' knowledge of the origin of ancient buildings and monuments. When the course treated, for example, the Roman Forum or the Colosseum, the students and their instructor went to the site of these ancient structures and heard outdoor lectures delivered within the ruins.

In Paris and London participants, whose activities here were limited more to classroom sessions, were given an introduction to the history of these two neighboring but contrasting European countries and examined in some detail the problems facing the two nations today.

There were approximately 75 students from throughout the United States in the study group joined by the Winonans on their arrival in Rome.

The American Institute for Foreign Study Summer School, Stephens explains, is for high school students and spring graduates and he emphasizes that "the program is not intended for those primarily interested in sightseeing. Geared for the serious-minded student, the program has three objectives.

"First, the institute seeks to give the students the broadest general exposure to the great cultural heritage of Europe. It attempts to increase significantly the knowledge of its students in the humanities, languages, literature and history. And it hopes to develop the maturity and potential of the students by giving them an early taste of university life and self-discipline."

In Rome the students were housed in the new Rome Center of Loyola University of Chicago, in Paris in a dormitory on the Cite Universitaire of the University of Paris campuses and in London at Northampton Hall, at the City University of London.

In each of the three countries the 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. classroom and lecture schedule afforded ample opportunity for independent excursions and on several weekends the Stephens arranged special side trips not on the original itinerary. There was a swing into Switzerland where the Winona group rode cable cars to the top of Mt. Blanc in the Alps; a ferry trip from Sorrento to the Isle of Capri and a visit to the famed Blue Grotto; a day of sightseeing and shopping in Geneva during a four-day holiday from classes.

In Rome, the Winonans visited the Vatican and St. Peter's, where there was an audience with Pope Paul VI during which the name of each of the visitors was read from the altar.

A day was spent in the Catacombs of Rome, where one of the Winona girls lost one of her contact lenses in the ancient burial place.

"We were all down on our hands and knees digging around in the dust looking for it," Stephens recalls, "and never did manage to find it. Fortunately, she had another set with her."

For the Stephens, this was a second experience in chaperoning a summer foreign study group. In 1967 they accompanied 15 Winona and area students enrolled in a program offered in Durham, England.

Planning for the 1969 trip began immediately after the beginning of the 1968-69 school year.

"Because this was to be a pilot course, we knew that registrations would have to be in early if we were to get in on it," Stephens explains, "and by Oct. 5 our reservations were in. During the next eight months we had several evening meetings with the students, briefing them on the course, telling them what to expect in the three countries (Continued Next Page)
A Firsthand Exposure to the Heritage of the LAST-MINUTE NOTES . . . The Winona students had an eight-hour wait in Kennedy International Airport before taking off from New York for the flight to Rome. Kathy Ouren, Sharon Horsch and Janet Fundal spent part of this time writing letters to parents and friends.

they'd be visiting and reviewing various aspects of the program. There also was one meeting with the parents to inform them about the program.

The individual cost of the seven weeks of travel and study for each student ran to around $1,200.

The package price for transportation to and from Europe, food, lodging and travel on the continent and course fees was $890 and air transportation to and from New York added another $120.

"We didn't set a definite limit on the amount of spending money each could bring along but we suggested to the students and parents that it be kept to or under $200," Stephens says. "We did this because of our experience on the previous trip when some students carried along more funds for incidentals than others and those without as much money simply couldn't keep up with those who had more and wound up without any funds before the trip was over."

Each of the students who participate in the summer institute and is attending Winona State College this fall is receiving credit for the summer program. Those who aren't social studies majors receive a blanket 8 credit hours in social studies for use as an elective while social studies majors may use their 8 hours' credit to waive the required course in Eastern and Western Civilization.

Stephens is enthusiastic about the benefits he's convinced the students realized from their summer of study abroad.

"There's no question in my mind that it matured them; it broadened their background of experiences and for many of them it was the first time in their lives that they were, for the most part, on their own far from home," he observed. "Association with cultures and societies far different from the one they've been accustomed to can't help but give them a new perspective."

"History came alive for them and things that appeared dull and drab reading from a book or hearing in a classroom in Winona suddenly became exciting when they were right there where history had been made."

Stephens remembers suggesting during the two weeks in Rome that the group plan a visit to the opera.

"As soon as we mentioned opera, most of the kids said, 'Oh, no!' but they agreed reluctantly to go anyway," he says. "When they arrived they found that the opera was to be presented in an area that once had been an ancient Roman bath redesigned as a theater.

"There was this tremendous stage—large enough for actual horse-drawn chariots to sweep in if this was called for or elephants and camels to walk around the stage. Well, the kids were goggle-eyed at all of this; they really ate it all up and it turned out, I think, to be one of their big experiences of the summer."

Although the Stephens accompanied the Winona group on many of their non-school excursions, there were a minimum of restrictions on use of free time.

An 11 p.m. curfew and a rule that independent sightseeing trips... be made only in groups of four or more were about the only limitations imposed.

"When we arrived in Rome we advised the girls in the group that it was a common custom there for many of the young men to make rather bold advances to girls right on the streets of Rome," Stephens mentions, "and told them the best way to avoid any unpleasant situations was to completely ignore these boys; that any response on their part would only encourage additional advances.

"At first they couldn't understand why, after being used to trying to attract attention, all of a sudden they should reject all efforts to gain their attention. After a few experiences with these boys, however, they learned that ignoring their overtures was the best policy."

The students were intrigued, Stephens notes, by the different foods to which they were exposed during their visits to the three countries. One dish remembered particularly was Bubble and Squeak, a favorite among all classes in England. It consists of a mixture of ground day-old cooked potatoes and ground raw cabbage formed into croquettes and cooked in grease. It derives its name from the sound the croquette makes while it cooks and most of the students were delighted by the method of preparation and the end product.

Stephens found that in most cases the Winona group made satisfactory adjustments in coping with language and currency problems in the countries they visited, with one exception.

At a restaurant one night in Rome they studied the menu, compared dishes and prices utilizing the knowledge of the written language they'd picked up during their visit, and settled on shrimp.

"When our plates were brought to the table," Stephens recalls, "each had four large shrimp and the meal was most satisfactory. When it came time to pay the bill, however, we found that we'd misinterpreted the price list which actually quoted a price for one shrimp so we ended up with a bill four times the amount we had anticipated."

It didn't take the students long in Rome to discover that in shopping there the commonly accepted procedure is to haggle over prices.

"The kids readily picked up the technique of haggling over prices," Stephens says, "and dearly loved to bicker with the shopkeeper over the price of an item."

 For the students one of the highlights of the summer was a four-day holiday spent in Switzerland, where they vacationed at Montreux in the Swiss Alps. Stephens, chairman of the English department at Winona Senior High School, and Mrs. Stephens rested on a ledge at the edge of Lake Geneva with the Castle of Chillon, which figured in Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon," seen in the background.

ROYAL RESIDENCE

Hampton Court Palace, west of London, was one of the places visited by the Winona students during their residence in Britain. Construction of the landmark was initiated by Thomas Wolsey, archbishop of York, in 1514, about the time of the Reformation. Later it was used by Henry VIII for a retreat with his wives — other than Anne Boleyn — and it was the birthplace of King Edward VI. Now a national monument, it was used by British rulers until the death in 1625 of James I, for holding court.

Youngsters King Interesed In Ideas

The New People Has New Ideas

By CHARLES WITZEN

In a gamble to match viewers from "Laugh-In," "Gumshoke" and "Lacy," ABC has scheduled two 45-minute shows on Monday night featuring "The Music Scene" leads off at 6:30 p.m., with "Your Hit Parade" where recording artists deliver the nation's leading record sellers interspersed with anecdotes by that hit group, "The Committee." At 7:15 p.m., "The New People" puts the grab on strays bored by "Laugh-In," dramatizing life in a deserted alien tent site in the Pacific where youthful survivors of a plane crash cope without the help of pansy, bumbling adults who've fuddled up the rest of the world.

It's plainly a dream situation where the only inhabitants are kids. Conceived by "Mood Squad's" Aaren Spelling, the pilot depicted Richard Kiley in charge of a group of American youth who crash on their way home. The kids have been raised Ned in foreign capitals, pursuing an appearance in Washington, and Kiley was ordered to straighten out the troublemakers and return a tropical storm takes care of the rest, leaving a badly injured Kiley who dies at the end, putting his charges on their own.

On his way to work each morning a man ponders a bridge. Every morning he notices the biker bearing his assistant with a leaf of French bread. Each day over a period of several months. One day the biker is no longer on the corner. The man stopped and questioned the man what he had done with the leaf of bread in his hand. The man said, "It's gone. It's none of my business, but every day you have hit it's gone with a leaf of French bread now. why today the giant cake?"

"Nipper," answered the biker, "today is his birthday."

"The Old Lady of Central Park..." the Metropolitan Museum of Art is having her face lifted for her 100th anniversary next year.

The face lifting consists of a remodeling of the museum’s front facade, stretching for four city blocks along Fifth Avenue. When the scaffolding goes down, this building, with one million square feet of floor space, will bear more of a resemblance to its original design of 1809.

Museum Gets a New Face

The Metropolitan Museum of Art is marking the date in 1809 when a founding committee had the institution on paper. The first building, a room 30 feet by 20 feet, which at present would keep the museum going for about two weeks.

Already under way, the centennial observation will keep rolling into the fall of 1971. There will be five major exhibitions, and several others either being planned or supplementing them.

Just opened, a $6 million thorough renovation of 35 galleries. It is intended to give the New York School supplanted the School of Paris in mid-century. The catalogue, containing essays by several critics, is being published by Duell.

A subsidiary exhibit, in two parts, is "New York Artists as Printmakers." The first part is already open, and on Dec. 15 another array of prints will be brought in.

The second major show, from Feb. 12 through May 16 next year, will be "The Making of the Piest-Andrews," in which the author tells which cities appear in the games.

Another show, from Jan. 20 through May 29, will be "The Cloisters," in which the author tells which cities appear in the games.

The first show of the year, will be "The Year 1200," containing many more than 100 objects — painting, sculpture, stained glass and textiles — from the years 1190 to 1230.

"Nineteenth Century America" will be the third major exhibit, from April 14 through Sept. 7 next year, ranging from the Federal style to Tiffany glass and the early efforts of Frank Lloyd Wright.

A subsidiary exhibit on "The Rise of American Architecture" will open next May.

DEAR ABBY:

Sloppy Housewife Got the Message From Mom

By ABBIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I was one of those sloppy housekeepers who never seemed to get her homework done. I could sit for hours, daydreaming, and when my husband came home from work, the house looked about the same as when he left, or worse.

Gary never complained, so for four years we lived in a pigpen, whether he worked or not. Finally I became pregnant, and when the day came for me to go to the hospital, I left behind dirty dishes for three days, an oven full of dirty pots and pans which had been "washed" there for weeks, and slipped clothing piled high to the ceiling right next to my new washer-dryer.

This is a partial description, but it will give you an idea of what a messy housewife some people recognize themselves in.

I realize this is long, Abby, but I'm sure it describes many homes from New Hampshire to Florida, and I want to be sure these lazy women recognize themselves.

As a housewife I am sending you a copy of the letter my mother wrote to me while she stayed at my house. I was in the hospital. Past if you print it, it will wake up some other lazy wives. It sure did wake me up. And though it's been two years, her letter has been read, re-read, and cherished. I am still ashamed of my old habits, I've changed the names, so feel free to print it as it is.

"Dear Lisa,

Just a line between us girls. I am cleaning your house today so you won't have so much to do when you come home.

Now you've probably saying, "Gee, that's sure nice of you. I really appreciate you." And I do. It's the truth of it. But I wanted to, and I sure needed it. But this is all the past. Let's look at the future.

You are now a mother, and it's time you became a housekeeper, so get busy! If Gary made you a living, the way you keep your house, you would starve to death. He does his job well, and you should start doing YOUR job, too.

If you're tired, talk to your doctor, if you're too lazy, talk to yourself.

You may say, "Mom, you have so much to say!" I say, "Oh, yes, I have. It's mother's right."

Your house is spotted now. Keep it that way! And when you get over being mad, make it pot of coffee and invite me over.

For all my love,

MOM

DEAR ABBY: Recently I asked my baby-sitter (without pay) with my daughter's children while she and her husband went out for dinner.

I went directly to their house from work, thinking that what they expected. When I got there I noticed she had TV dinner ready for the children, but nothing for me, so I went home (only a few blocks away) and got myself a bite and brought it back and sat with the children. They ate their dinners and part of mine! All the while, their mother looked on.

I must have spilled this story more than I know, for her to be so thoughtless. What can I do now, if anything? Ask her to feed me next time, too? Or am I too sensitive?

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: It's difficult to believe that a daughter could be of those thoughts, but if years is, tell her that the next time she asks you to sit she should prepare to feed you.

Make-Up Gets POW!
By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

Dry rouge is out — pow is in! Autumn’s high voltage color is being copied by cosmetic chemists. Sturdy robust shades that duplicate nature and stand up to fashion’s ripe ‘n vivid hues are the getting thing. Nowhere is this color rampage more apparent than in the new rouges. Instead of cheeky pastels, there are lively apricots, spacy reds and goldens. Also, powdered bronzers that engage in not-so-secret undercover work.

A BEAUTIFUL dry rouge goes everywhere, liquid color is used only on the cheeks. It is applied immediately after foundation. Shake the bottle briskly, then pour color into palm. Use brush to homogenize and blend. If shade is too brilliant, lighten it with a drop of foundation. If, instead of cheeky pastels, there are lively apricots, spacy reds and goldens. Also, powdered bronzers that engage in not-so-secret undercover work.

ALTHOUGH dry rouge goes everywhere, liquid color is used only on the cheeks. It is applied immediately after foundation. Shake the bottle briskly, then pour color into palm. Use brush to homogenize and blend. If shade is too bright, lighten it with a drop of foundation.

OF course, the secret of wearing rouge is to appear NOT to be wearing it. It is not only how much, but how skillfully it is applied that spells success. Try this test. Look into a mirror, smile, and dot color on the apple of the cheek. Now, concentrate on the other side. Suck in jaws, and fan rouge along area that protrudes, both puffy area and horrid ridge. See the difference? When you smile, you “puff” out face. When you suck in, the outer structure becomes more pronounced, and your color placement more flattering.

69 EAST FOURTH ST.
Barbe is in the process of moving to another Army post where she and her children will live while her chaplain husband is on his second tour of duty in Vietnam. Her weekly column didn’t arrive in time for publication in today’s Sunday Magazine so Whimsey today features a sampling of some of her previous observations.

MAN may not understand WOMEN, but it’s all right... even if he did, he wouldn’t believe it.

ANY HUSBAND who needs to ask his wife’s opinion on a subject just hasn’t been paying the proper attention.

Young lads in school learn about Freedom and their Constitutional Rights. And then they marry...

The old adage claims that a fool and his money are soon parted—but nowadays it happens to anyone.

Ideas are like children... Your own are apt to be wonderful.

I finally solved the problem of the meal dawdler. Desserts are made in uneven sizes and the first child through gets first choice.

NOTHING IS IMPOSSIBLE to the man who doesn’t have to do it himself.

There are many confusing things in life. But surely among the worst would be following a female driver who does everything right.

One of the peculiar aspects of middle-age is that finding temptation suddenly becomes harder than resisting it.

EVEN IN THESE changing times it takes two to make a marriage... a single girl and her determined mother.

A bachelor is defined by husbands in our court as a man who may or may not have bad habits. But at least he’s allowed to enjoy them.

Probably most of us wouldn’t worry so much about what other people think of us if we knew HOW SELDOM they did.

Crystal Defects Detected

PROBLEM: Strain hardening.

NEEDED: Copper wire, a nail in the wall, a gas or alcohol flame.

DO THIS: Bend the wire (No. 12 or larger) and notice that it bends easily. Now pull the wire over the nail, back and forth, as if the wire were rope and the nail a pulley. The wire gets more difficult to bend.

HERE’S WHY: Defects or irregularities in the ordered pattern of the copper crystals that make up the wire act like sand under a sled runner to impede the sliding of the crystal planes over each other. When the defects are in the middle of a crystal they slide with the planes and offer only a little extra resistance. But when a defect reaches a grain or crystal boundary it locks or jams the crystal plane on each side of it.

Heat the wire red-hot, immediately cool it in water, and it becomes soft and ductile again, because the defects will have diffused back into the crystals. (Experiment suggested by W. M. Woods, Oak Ridge, Tennessee, scientist.)
