Union Reports 90 Percent of GE Workers Out

NEW YORK (AP) — A union representing office workers at General Electric Co. says more than 90 percent of its members have walked off the job in a nationwide strike.

The strike started Monday morning at plants across the country in the nation's largest office workers strike since the 1937 General Motors walkout.

The union, Local 1, of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, said the walkout was over a contract that expired Saturday.

The union has been negotiating with GE for more than a year over the contract, which covers about 120,000 office workers.

The strike is the first major labor action since the 1920s, when GE workers went on strike over wages and working conditions.

The company said it would continue to operate its plants during the strike, although it declined to comment on the union's claims.

The walkout is expected to affect about 100,000 office workers at GE locations across the country, including in New York, where the strike started.

The union said it was seeking a new contract that would include increases in wages and benefits, as well as improvements in working conditions.

The strike is the latest in a series of nationwide labor actions in recent years, including the 1970s and 1980s, when workers went on strike over a variety of issues.

The walkout has been the most significant strike since the 1970s, when about 100,000 workers went on strike at General Motors.

The strike is expected to last several days, although the union has said it will continue to negotiate with GE to reach a settlement.

Groppi (Freed) Reports He Has Been Spiritually Awakened

WILMINGTON, Del. — The Roman Catholic civil rights leader has undergone a spiritual awakening, today's Supreme Court decision to deny him bail, and other events, including a recent telephone call from a priest, are signaling a new direction for Groppi, said a former friend.

"It's a new development," said the friend, who asked not to be identified. "It's a sign of spiritual growth." Groppi, who has been in jail for several months, is awaiting a decision from the Supreme Court on his appeal.

Last week, Groppi was allowed bail.

Agnew emphasizes a leader quality

Governor William J. William had more thoughtfulness in his speech on the court's decision in the case of Agnew v. The People. Agnew's emphasis on the leader's responsibility is significant. He argues that leaders need to be responsible and accountable for their actions, especially when it comes to issues of justice and fairness.

That might seem like a simple statement, but it is a significant one in the context of the current political climate. As I read through the document, I was reminded of how important it is for leaders to be held accountable for their actions. I believe that Agnew's emphasis on leadership quality is a positive step forward in ensuring that our leaders are truly serving the public interest.

The United States, and the world, is in a state of flux. We are facing challenges that require strong leadership. We need leaders who are willing to take responsibility for their actions and who are committed to serving the people they represent.

As I read through the document, I was impressed by Agnew's emphasis on leadership quality. I believe that this is a positive step forward in ensuring that our leaders are truly serving the public interest. I hope that other leaders will follow Agnew's example and work to build a stronger, more accountable government.

Worries About Payments to Nursing Homes

BY PAT (AP) - Minnesota State Treasurer Edward J. Heffernan was meeting today for a "very important" meeting with the Minnesota State Treasurer's Office and the Minnesota Department of Health. The meeting is to be held at the Minnesota State Capitol in St. Paul.

Although the meeting is expected to be held on a regular basis, there is no information available about the purpose of the meeting. The meeting will be attended by representatives from the Minnesota State Treasurer's Office and the Minnesota Department of Health.

The Minnesota State Treasurer's Office is responsible for the state's financial management, including the collection and distribution of state taxes. The Minnesota Department of Health is responsible for the state's health care system, including the regulation of nursing homes.

Synthetic Skin for Human Use

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - A new synthetic skin was introduced today by Dr. John M. Smith, a research surgeon at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Smith said that the new synthetic skin, which is made from a gelatin-based material, has been developed for use in the treatment of severe burns. The skin is said to be more durable and less painful than traditional woven skin grafts.

Nixon to Let GE, Unions Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Nixon administration today announced that it would allow General Electric and the United Auto Workers to negotiate on the issue of in-house health care.

The administration said that it would allow the two parties to reach an agreement, and that it would then work to implement that agreement.

Rules Against Long Hair

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - The Nixon administration today announced new rules to combat long hair, which is often seen as a symbol of rebellion.

The new rules, which are part of a larger effort to crack down on the Vietnam War, are aimed at combating the perceived threat of long hair to national security.

DEAR ABBY:

I love my husband and always will. He is an outstandingly handsome and charming man—the kind who could never belong to only one woman. I knew this when I married him years ago. My neighbor told me once that my husband was a player. I knew nothing about this at the time. He often went away on business trips, and I never questioned it. Now, however, I worry that my husband is seeing other women. I have looked through his clothes, but I could not find anything to be worried about. I do not know what to do. Please help me.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nixon on Friday agreed to lift the ban on airline express deliveries that has been in effect since the end of World War II. The ban, imposed by Congress in 1946, was intended to give railroads a competitive advantage in the express business. Nixon said the ban was no longer necessary and that it was causing unnecessary costs and inconvenience.

Nixon's decision came after several days of meetings with airline and railroad executives. He said he had been impressed by the arguments for lifting the ban, which he said would be good for the economy and the airlines.

The ban had been in place since the end of the war, when the railroad industry was in a period of decline. Airlines had been gaining market share, and the railroads had been losing money. The ban was seen as a way to give the airlines a competitive edge.

But in recent years, the railroads have been making efforts to revitalize their businesses. They have been investing in new technology and expanding their services. The ban has been a major point of contention between the two industries.

Nixon's decision is likely to be met with mixed reactions. Some airlines have praised the move, saying it will help them compete. Others have expressed concerns that the airlines could become too powerful in the market.

The ban will be lifted on a phased-in basis over the next few months. Airlines will be allowed to make deliveries on a limited basis, and the ban will be completely lifted by the end of the year.

50 Years Ago, Volstead Was Man of Hour

WHEN PROHIBITION, 16TH AMENDMENT TOOK FORCE

Granite Falls, Minn. (AP) — If for just a day, you could be 16 years old again, you could be a Minnesotan in 1917. For 26 years, the Great Depression, World War II, the Cold War, and the Space Race occurred 16 years before you were born. But if you could be 16 again, you might find yourself working in a bar in Granite Falls, Minn., making $1 per hour. President Herbert Hoover called the National Prohibition Act of 1917 a "noble in nature and experiment." The act was intended to reduce alcohol consumption and promote a "pure and healthful life." It was also intended to reduce crime and public drunkenness. The act was signed into law on Dec. 5, 1917, by then-President Woodrow Wilson.

The Volstead Act, named after its author, was the most important piece of legislation to emerge from a national era of reform. The act defined intoxicating liquor as any liquid containing more than 0.5% alcohol by volume. The act also prohibited the manufacture, transportation, sale, or use of intoxicating liquor.

The Volstead Act was intended to reduce the supply of alcohol and to disrupt the markets for illegal alcohol. However, the act was not effective in reducing alcohol consumption. In fact, consumption of alcohol actually increased after the act was signed into law.

The act was amended in 1924, and the 21st Amendment to the Constitution, which repealed prohibition, was ratified in 1933. The amendment was signed into law on Dec. 5, 1933, by then-President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The repeal of prohibition was a significant event in American history. It marked the end of a national experiment that had failed to reduce alcohol consumption and promote a "pure and healthful life." It also marked the beginning of a new era of alcohol regulation and control.

In the age of television, it is easy to forget that prohibition was a reality. It was a time of great social and economic change. It was a time of great political and legal change. It was a time of great cultural and religious change.

Tarkenton Dropped 10 Times By Hungry Dallas Defense

DALLAS (AP) — A defeated Fran Tarkenton so as to be in the game as the Minnesota Vikings bunched and knocked the man who has been with the team for the last 10 years.

"I was playing and lost control," Tarkenton said. "I didn't know what I was doing. I just didn't have it going my way."

But the Dallas defense was too much for the Vikings, who fell to 2-2 and dropped to 7-0.

"It was a hard game," said Tarkenton. "The ball was not coming to me. I couldn't make anything happen."

The victory gave the Cowboys a 4-0 record and the top seed in the NFC East.

"It was a great feeling," said quarterback Roger Staubach, who threw for 286 yards and tied the franchise record for career wins.

"We knew they had a lot of talent," said Tarkenton. "But we knew we could stop them. We just didn't do it."

The Cowboys are now two games ahead of the Vikings in the division, and they have a game against the Los Angeles Rams next week.

"We're not finished yet," said Staubach. "We've got a lot of football to play."

Met Pitchers Question Koufax-Drysdale Status

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Angels will be asked to pitch against each other in a major league game.

"They've both performed well," said Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda. "I'm sure they'll bring the best of themselves to the mound."

Koufax, who missed the entire 1968 season with a elbow injury, has a 2-4 record with a 2.39 ERA this season.

"I'll be watching closely," said Angels manager Darrell Johnson. "I want to see how he looks."

Youngsters Given Chance at QB in Rugged NFL

BY JOE BOWMAN

The Associated Press

The Bears' John Vitt and the Cardinals' Art Monk represent the NFL's future quarterbacks. In the NFC West, the Rams' Jim Plunkett and the 49ers' Joe Montana are sure to fire another battle of the quarterbacks.

The Bears' game against the Cardinals today at Soldier Field in Chicago will be a battle of two teams with a lot of pride at stake. The Bears are 5-1 and the Cardinals are 6-0. The Bears lead the NFC West by a game, while the Cardinals are tied for first place with the 49ers.

The Bears have won five straight games, but they have not scored more than 14 points in any of those games. The Cardinals have scored 121 points in their six victories, including a 56-13 drubbing of the Bears in their last meeting.

The Bears' defense has held opposing teams to an average of 127.3 points a game. The Cardinals' offense has scored 20.5 points per game. The Bears' defense has allowed only three touchdowns in the last three games.

The Bears' offense has struggled with a lot of personnel changes, including the loss of running back Walter Payton for the season due to a broken arm.
