Senate approves $70 billion for defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved an $83.9 billion defense authorization bill today, including $70.2 billion for procurement, over President Nixon's objections.

The bill, passed 83-17, included $23.9 billion for military construction and $6.6 billion for the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. It also included $1.6 billion for the State Department and other foreign operations.

Nixon had opposed the bill, saying it went beyond what was needed to achieve peace in Vietnam.

The bill was passed just a day before the Senate adjourned for the holiday recess, and it will be taken up by the House when it reconvenes next year.

The defense chief acknowledged that the Senate had passed a bill he had opposed, but he said he would support it because it was necessary for the nation's defense.

In his remarks, the President said the bill was a step in the right direction, but he added that it was not enough to bring about a quick end to the war.

“I don't know how much more we can afford,” Nixon said. “But I do know that we must act now to end this war.”

The bill includes a number of provisions aimed at reducing the size of the armed forces and increasing the nation's economic growth.

It would authorize the construction of new military bases and the addition of new ships to the fleet, as well as the purchase of new equipment for the military.

The bill also includes provisions to increase the nation's industrial production, including the extension of existing programs to produce more goods for military use, and the introduction of new technologies to improve the efficiency of military operations.

The President said he would work closely with Congress to ensure that the bill is implemented effectively and that the nation is prepared to meet any future challenges.

The bill was passed by a vote of 83-17, with 17 Democratic senators voting against it. The President said he would sign the bill into law.

The Senate had previously passed a defense bill that was similar to the one approved today, but it was vetoed by the President.

This time, however, the Senate had passed a bill that included provisions that the President had previously opposed, including the authorization of additional troops for deployment in Vietnam.

Kelly's tough chore: a star for 'Mame'

Mark Trail

BY EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Gene Kelly's becoming one of the most pesky men in the movie business. You can't rush him, you can't pin him down. You're always thinking you'll have a chance, and then he'll make you say, "Well, I'll tell you what."

"I want to take a long breath before deciding whether I'll do another picture," he says.

The experience of directing co-star and future wife, Barbra Streisand in "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," wasn't what he had anticipated. "It's been a pain in the neck," he says. "Our relationship has become strained."

"It's a tough job," he adds. "It's been tough on both of us."

Kelly is now directing Barbra in "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," which opens Jan. 20. Hugh Downs m.c.

The buck goes to west

WASHINGTON — On the face, the heart of the matter is the fact that the Senate is one of two co-equal branches of the government and that it is the Senate's job to check and balance the power of the President. This, in turn, means that the Senate has the power to reject a bill, even if the President signs it, thereby preventing it from becoming law.

The Senate, as the upper chamber of Congress, is charged with reviewing and debating proposed legislation. It has the authority to approve or disapprove presidential nominations, and it has the power to override the President's veto. In addition, the Senate is responsible for ratifying treaties and confirming presidential appointments.

The Senate's role in the legislative process is to ensure that the laws passed by Congress are constitutional, to protect the rights of minorities, and to hold the President accountable for his actions. The Senate's power to block legislation is one of its most important functions, and it is a power that it exercises frequently in order to protect the interests of its constituent states.

In recent years, the Senate has become increasingly divided along partisan lines, with the Republican Party in control of the Senate. This has led to a number of gridlock situations, with the Senate unable to pass important legislation.

The Senate's power to block legislation is not without its criticisms. Some argue that the Senate is too slow and too obstructionist, while others argue that it is necessary to protect the rights of the minority party.

In conclusion, the Senate's role in the legislative process is critical to the functioning of our democracy. Its power to block legislation is a vital tool for protecting the rights of all Americans.

Dear Abby:

Office parties aren't mandatory

By ARLIALLY VAN BURIN

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been at a company Christmas party every year for the past ten years. He even went last year, although he was ill. He doesn't go this year because he is not feeling well. I think it's a shame that he is not going to the party this year, but I know that he is not feeling well. Is it a problem if he doesn't go?

DEAR ABBY: How should I handle a situation where my friend's room is always a mess? He has a lot of responsibilities at work, and I know he's busy, but his room is consistently a mess. Is there a gentle way to politely ask him to keep it clean?

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor's room is always a mess, and I know he's busy with work. Is there a way to encourage him to keep it clean without being too demanding?

DEAR ABBY: I'm looking for tips on how to order in a restaurant and introduce the whole bit on how to be a gentleman without being a pecked. I'd like to know your opinion of this.

DEAR ABBY: What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. I'm having a hard time with a recent breakup. I'm feeling really low.

DEAR ABBY: Don't confuse "respect" with "affection." What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. I'm having a hard time with a recent breakup. I'm feeling really low.

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and has been granted a loan from a bank. He is very happy about it. However, I'm not sure about the terms of the loan. Can you provide advice on how to handle this situation?

Libya requests withdrawal of Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Libya's military government called for a speedy American withdrawal from the country, saying the Americans were doing too much in Libya.

American diplomats, however, said they were preparing to stay in Libya until at least the middle of 1972.

"This government intends to make clear that it wants the Americans to get out long before the end of 1971," an American diplomat said.

In a statement, the American government said it welcomed the Libyan request for an American withdrawal.

"We have heard the request and we are prepared to discuss it," said the diplomat.

Trade unions today urged the American government to withdraw its force of 1,700 service personnel from Libya.

American officials have said that in recent years the American government has been reduced and now numbers less than 1,000.

Clearer not expected to return to legal practice

ALGIERS (AP) - Eldridge Cleaver, who is small scale of operation in prison, announced Monday that he was being reconstituted and preferred to go to the hospital. The announcement was made in a speech given by Cleaver, who had been convicted of murder in California and sentenced to life in prison. He was released last year and has been living in Algiers, where he is a writer and publisher.

Cleaver said he was not going to return to his legal practice, but would continue to write and publish. He also said he would continue to work on his book, "The Black Panther's Handbook: A Survival Guide for Children of the Revolution," which is scheduled to be published later this year.

Amended bill would permit cutoff of federal funds

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Senate Appropriations Committee has amended the pending bill to permit a cutoff of federal funds to a hospital in the District of Columbia.

The committee, after adopting a compromise amendment earlier today, acted on a resolution that would prevent the government from paying for hospital services.

The amendment, introduced by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, W.Va., and Sen. Robert C. Byrd, W.Va., would provide that the government would pay for hospital services only if the hospital is licensed by the state and meets certain regulatory requirements.

The cause of cancer remains a mystery, and cardiac decompensation often accompanies the cancer of the cervix, although I do not believe hormone production appears to occur in a well decompensted heart. The diagnosis is made when there is evidence of the disease in the heart muscle or blood vessels. It can only be determined by comparing the size of the heart muscle in different stages of the disease. The heart muscle is affected in different ways, depending on the cause of the disease, and the size of the heart muscle can be assessed by various methods.

In the case of Mrs. B., we found a thickened heart muscle, which led to the heart muscle being removed, which proved to be a possible cardiac cause of the disease.

As an example, the following discussion refers to a case of cardiac disease in which a thickened heart muscle was removed. The heart muscle was affected in different ways, depending on the cause of the disease, and the size of the heart muscle can be assessed by various methods.
