RIDGEFIELD (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces were alerted today for increased enemy activity, especially in the areas of the battle zone where the occupying Northern Vietnamese are strong.

U.S. officials said the enemy, called the Viet Cong, had moved into the abandoned barracks on Milwaukee Street and was planning to attack the area. The officials said they were concerned about the increased activity and had ordered the increased security measures.

The Viet Cong, a group of Communists, had been fighting the U.S. forces in the area for several months. They had been responsible for several attacks on American troops, including the death of a soldier last week. The officials said they were concerned about the increased activity and had ordered the increased security measures.

Recommends vast hospital expansion program

The planning commission, after months of study, ended its work on Tuesday and Wednesday. The commission's recommendation was that the hospital should be expanded in two phases. The first phase would include a new building to the east, and the second phase would include a new wing to the south.

The commission's report was well-received by most of the speakers at the meeting. However, some residents expressed concerns about traffic congestion and the possible impact on residential land to the east.

The planning commission's recommendation is subject to council approval. The council will consider the recommendation at its next meeting, scheduled for next Tuesday.

Reasons for expansion explained

1. Federal and state health programs such as Medicare and Medicaid.
2. The hospital's need to increase its capacity to meet the growing demand for health care services.
3. The need to improve the hospital's efficiency and patient care.

The planning commission recommended that the hospital be expanded to accommodate a new building to the east and a new wing to the south.

The new U.S. policy on Israel

William S. White

The whole thing is happening before our eyes. In the Middle East, everything is in motion. The United States has now taken a new position on Israel. This policy is a significant step forward. It is a policy that will bring peace to the region. It is a policy that will bring stability to the region. It is a policy that will bring prosperity to the region.

WASHINGTON — The new U.S. policy on Israel is being formulated by the State Department, led by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The policy is based on the belief that peace in the Middle East is possible only with the active participation of all parties.

The policy is aimed at reducing tensions and increasing cooperation between Israel and its neighbors. It recognizes the legitimate rights of all parties and aims to create a climate of trust and understanding.

The policy is also designed to address the economic challenges facing the region. It includes measures to promote trade and investment, and to support economic development.

In conclusion, the new U.S. policy on Israel is a significant step forward. It is a policy that will bring peace, stability, and prosperity to the region. It is a policy that we should support.
American crafts: expression in diversity

by LESTER BERNHARDT

The昨日 American heraldry and craftsmanship has been admired by people the world over for centuries. American craftsmen have been known for their skill and creativity in producing objects that are both functional and aesthetically pleasing. This article explores the history and evolution of American crafts, and how they have contributed to the development of American culture and identity.

The early days of American crafts

Craftsmanship has been an important part of American history since the first European settlers arrived. Native American tribes had a rich tradition of creating beautiful objects using natural materials such as feathers, bone, and wood. They were skilled at weaving, carving, and making baskets, jewelry, and clothing. The Puritans who came to America brought with them their own crafts traditions, such as carpentry, tinsmithing, and weaving.

The 18th and 19th centuries

During the 18th and 19th centuries, American craftsmen gained a reputation for producing high-quality furniture, clocks, and other household items. The Boston Tea Party, which was a significant event in American history, also had a profound impact on the American craft movement. The British, who were the colonial power at the time, had imposed restrictions on the production of certain items in the colonies, such as tea. The Bostonians, angry at this restriction, threw tea into the harbor, which is remembered today as the start of the American Revolution.

The 20th century

In the 20th century, American craftsmen continued to produce high-quality objects, but they also began to experiment with new materials and techniques. The decline of the Industrial Revolution, which had brought about mass-produced goods, allowed American craftsmen to focus on individual hand-crafted pieces. This period also saw the rise of craft co-ops and museums, which helped to promote the appreciation and understanding of American crafts.

The present day

Today, American crafts continue to thrive, despite the challenges of globalization and mass production. Many American craftsmen have embraced new technologies and materials, while also remaining true to their traditional roots. The American craft movement has also had a profound impact on the global craft world, as American craftsmen have shared their techniques and ideas with others around the world.

Conclusion

American crafts have played an important role in American history and culture. They have contributed to the development of American identity and have helped to shape the culture of the nation. As American craftsmen continue to innovate and experiment, they will no doubt continue to inspire and delight future generations.
A different 'broken' marriage

By GERRY NELSON

ST. PAUL (AP) — The Hiram Johnson Super Court today struck down the last barrier to divorce between members of the same family, but warned judges to be alert to possible attempts at fraud.

In a 5-2 decision, the court ruled that a child could not be used to prevent the divorce of parents who have been consensual parents for many years. The court also held that the child would not be considered a separate entity of the family, but rather would be considered part of the family as a whole.

The court noted that the decision would have an impact on the way judges handle cases involving children.

Roeser leaves Commerce Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — James W. Roeser, once a trusted aide to President Harry S. Truman, has been named as the new director of the Commerce Department, it was announced today by Assistant Secretary of Commerce, the man who held the post during the Truman administration. Roeser, who has been with the department for 15 years, will succeed the departing William L. Carter, who has held the post for the past 10 years.

Roeser's appointment was announced by Secretary of Commerce Charles E. Sawyer, who said the selection was made after a thorough review of candidates from within and without the department.

The move is expected to result in a more dynamic and efficient operation of the Commerce Department, Sawyer said. Roeser, who has a background in economics and business, is expected to bring fresh ideas to the department's operations.

Israelis hit army camp in Egypt

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes struck a military camp near the Egyptian border Thursday night, killing two Egyptian soldiers and a nurse and damaging several army barracks.

The Israeli attack, smuggled into the Egyptian border town of Satotha, was the most serious Egyptian military installation since the 1973 war. The attack was believed to have been carried out by Israeli commandos who crossed the Suez canal into Egypt.

The Israeli forces were reportedly on the ground for less than an hour. The attack was called a "preventive" strike by Israel, which said it was responding to an Egyptian threat.

A spokesman for the Egyptian army denied the reports, saying:

"We are absolutely confident of our ability to defend our borders. We have no information indicating any such attack."

Chiefs picked by four over Jets, Falcons will fall to Vikings 27-10

By JACK STAR
Associated Press Sportswriter

NEW YORK (AP)—First-year head coach Tom Landry’s Bill Dallas may not have the most pass defensive guru this year, but he will have the best pass rush. Landry, who played for the University of Texas, has at least two players who can give Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton trouble. Landry did well against Tarkenton last week when Dallas beat Minnesota 21-7. The Vikings will make it difficult for Tarkenton, but they will not be able to stop him completely. The Chiefs have had some problems with the Jets in the past, but they have overcome them in recent years. Dallas will have to be careful not to overplay the passing game and leave the run game wide open. The Chiefs have a strong running attack, and if they can get things going on the ground, they will have a good chance.
Thoughts of a clergymen
On firm purpose

By THE REV. PAUL E. NELSON
Principal
Cedar Crest High School

On that day they will sing the song in the land of Israel: A song of songs, of Solomon. This is a declaration, a song of the daughters of Zion. "Let us enter his gates with thanksgiving, and His courts with praise. For the Lord is good, His mercy is everlasting, and His faithfulness to all generations."

A song of firm purpose you may keep to mind. "FIRM PURPOSE" is discussed here because of the study of the various aspects of the entire church. The material provided will be continued in several articles to follow. The gratitude of the people of God is expressed in the hymn for the nation's singing in the Church of the Messiah. It is a song of thanksgiving that God has given us a land of opportunity for the development of our number. This nation is a land of many opportunities, and the people of God are the citizens of this land.

Many of the psalms have been written in the past few years by the people of God. They express the joy of the people in the land, the strength of the people, and the hope of the people. It is a song of thanksgiving that God has given us a land of opportunity for the development of our number. This nation is a land of many opportunities, and the people of God are the citizens of this land.

The statement said: "The Lord is good, His mercy is everlasting, and His faithfulness to all generations." A song of firm purpose you may keep to mind.
