Democrats, GOP disagree on results

The election: 'split decision'

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON — Republicans have de- feated some Democratic leaders, but Democratic gains accomplished political goals — and the near deadlock of a bitter Senate battle in Vietnam symbolized the split decision reflected by changes in Congress.

Democrats pulled the switch for the Administration. President Nixon declared his hand in a personal appeal to a stricken Congress. "We must have the best forces to implement a peace with the Vietcong," he said. The Secretary of Defense, Melvin R. Laird, appeared on Capitol Hill Wednesday to tell Congress: "I will have to go ahead on our own."

Democratic gains were not spectacular, but they were generally caused by vote switching or defection. The Republicans were still too weak to make a clear bid for the majority. But the split, whatever the magnitude, will delay, perhaps indefinitely, the possibility of legislating foreign policy.

Republicans gained 20 seats in the House, reducing the balance to 246 Democrats and 189 Republicans. The Senate was cut to 53 Democrats, 37 Republicans and 1 independent.

Democrats had captured control of both Houses and Senate.

Democrats took over 31 Republican governorships, among them those of the 15 most populous states. Democrats captured the House in five states — Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Florida.

They lost ten, Tennessee and Georgia, Republicans. These states remained in doubt: Maine and Rhode Island, where Democratic mandates fell short, and Michigan, where the Republican minority was close. The Senate races went: Democrats 27, Republicans 30, and 2 independents.

In the District Senate races, a focus of Repub-

Democrats plan economy program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Balanced Deficit reduction program was one of the main themes of the Senate's floor debate. The plan was a major victory for Senate Majority Leader George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and another for Senate Majority Whip Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., who led the Senate to a vote of 43-34.

The Senate approved the plan by 43-34 on Wednesday, rejecting a compromise offered by Republican leaders, who voted 29-15 to defeat the proposal. The Senate then adjourned for the year.

Democrats were able to push through the plan despite Republican opposition, which included a filibuster by Republican leader Bob Dole. The filibuster was broken after 17 hours of debate, as the Senate voted 43-34 to cut off debate on the bill.

The plan calls for a gradual deficit reduction over five years, with a goal of reducing the budget by $88 billion. The Senate approved the plan by a margin of 43-34, with 12 Democrats and 34 Republicans supporting it.

The plan would reduce the budget by $88 billion over five years, with $20 billion in cuts in each year. The cuts would come from reductions in defense spending, domestic programs, and interest payments on the national debt.

The plan was supported by President Bill Clinton, who had called for a balanced budget. The plan was also supported by House Speaker Newt Gingrich, who had called for a constitutional amendment limiting the deficit.

The plan was opposed by House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, who called it "a terrible piece of legislation." The plan was also opposed by Republican Senator Trent Lott, who called it "a horrible piece of legislation."

WHERE'S JACK? AT THE TRACK

By NORM VILSON

Jack's love for gambling is evidenced not only by his interest in horse racing, but also in football, baseball, and basketball. He is known to be one of the toughest gamblers in the business, with a reputation for always winning.

Jack's most famous win was at the 1960 Kentucky Derby, where he placed a $200 bet on a 50-1 longshot that paid over $6,000.

Jack's next big win came at the 1962 Super Bowl, where he bet $1,000 on the underdog New York Giants against the Dallas Cowboys. The Giants won the game, and Jack collected nearly $12,000.

Despite his success at the track, Jack has also had his share of losses. In 1964, he lost over $5,000 in one day at the Las Vegas Desert Inn.

Jack's love for gambling has been a source of controversy throughout his career. Some people believe that gambling is a waste of money, while others argue that it is a harmless pastime. Whatever your opinion, there is no denying that Jack's passion for gambling has made him one of the most famous gamblers in the world.

Warren wonders ‘why’ Wisconsin Democrats scored sweep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While Democrats celebrated and organized labor hailed of scoring further triumphs of the governor’s order and state Assembly.

Democrat Patrick J. LeClere received 54 percent of the vote in re-culling Lt. Gov. Jack Stack’s place for succeeding Gov. Warren P. Knowles, who had been the Democratic candidate for six terms in Springfield, Illinois, before winning Wisconsin’s gubernatorial race.

"I don’t know what you would attribute this Democratic sweep to," the re-elected attorney general remarked Wednesday over the election returns that left him puzzled. "I am looking at the Tuesday’s election returns showed a Democratic sweep in the state."

Robert W. Warren, who was defeated by Lt. Gov. Pat Knowles, who hadn’t made a tremendous impact on the campaign. Warren, Secretary of State Robert Zimmerman, a reduced Republican contingent to 60,000. Olson took to the ballot in cancelling Lt. Gov. Knowles’ delegation to the House of Representatives and the loyal opposition," Warren said.

"I am pleased" him, and "said the result was a tremendous victory," Warren added. "But I think that probably this campaign has been too long and too loud," the attorney general said.

"Labor really organized itself and got the votes," Warren said. "And the Republican campaign in the 1st Congressional District, which includes the labor-heavy cities of Racine, Kenosha, Janesville and the industrial areas of Kenosha, Janesville and Beloit."

"Those seats are no longer as secure as a lot of people thought they were," Warren added.

It’s the lawyers who fight against no-fault auto insurance

Paul Harvey on the American Broadcasting Company network, Oct. 18.

GOLDEN SHOULDER, a backwoods legend, is a story that many of us have heard at one time or another. The tale of an old man who used to shoot at squirrels with his shotgun and then wouldn’t let anyone else shoot there. It seems that no matter how many times someone else killed a squirrel, the old man would be there to claim it as his own. The story has been told many times and always seems to carry a moral lesson. But who is to say that the old man’s actions were wrong? What if he had been fighting for his own rights? And what if the other people who were trying to claim the squirrels were simply trying to get in the way of his hunting? The story raises questions about property rights and the value of individual freedom. Is it possible that the old man was simply defending his beliefs and way of life? It’s a story that is open to interpretation and invites us to think about the role of the individual in society.

Let son lead his own life

By ABRAD VAN BURDEN

Dear Abby, I have a 17-year-old son and I am worried about what will happen to him when he graduates from high school. He has never been interested in his studies and seems to have no idea what he wants to do with his life. What can I do to help him?

Abigail Van Buren

Mom of a Troubled Teen

Mom of a Troubled Teen, I understand your concern. It can be challenging to navigate the teenage years, especially when your son's interests and ambitions differ from your own. Here are a few steps you can take to help him:

1. Communicate openly: Talk to your son about his interests and aspirations. Ask him about his dreams and goals. Encourage him to share his thoughts and feelings.

2. Provide guidance: Offer guidance without being directive. Help him explore different options, such as internships, volunteer work, or part-time jobs. This will give him a taste of the real world and help him identify areas of interest.

3. Encourage independence: Allow him to make his own decisions, as long as they are within reason. This will help him develop a sense of responsibility and self-reliance.

4. Be a role model: Set a good example by living a balanced life. Show him that there are multiple paths to success and happiness.

5. Seek professional help: If you feel uncomfortable discussing these issues with your son, consider seeking help from a counselor or therapist. They can provide valuable support and guidance.

Remember, your son is unique and will have his own path. Be patient and supportive as he navigates his teenage years.

Best wishes,

Abigail

Mom of a Troubled Teen

Mom of a Troubled Teen, I appreciate your advice. I will try to be more open and supportive with my son. I hope he will make the right choices for his future.

Mom of a Troubled Teen

Mom of a Troubled Teen, I am glad you found the advice helpful. Keep in mind that your son's development is a journey, and his path may not always align with yours. Stay positive and patient, and you will see progress.

Best wishes,

Abigail

Starr envious of teammate Patrick

BY ROB GREINER

Grieco had the first touchdown of the night. He recovered a fumble in the end zone. It was the first touchdown of the season for Grieco.

Patrick was also the first quarterback to score two touchdowns in a game. He did so in the first half against the Buffalo Bills.

McMurray, who had three touchdowns before, was held to one.

In the first quarter, Patrick completed 10 of 14 passes for 123 yards and a touchdown. He also rushed for 45 yards and a touchdown.

In the second quarter, Patrick completed 6 of 10 passes for 109 yards and another touchdown. He also rushed for 36 yards and a touchdown.

Patrick finished the game with 19 completions in 29 attempts for 292 yards and two touchdowns. He also rushed for 79 yards and a touchdown.

McMurray finished the game with 18 completions in 29 attempts for 254 yards and two touchdowns. He also rushed for 63 yards and a touchdown.

In the last quarter, Patrick completed 4 of 7 passes for 67 yards and a touchdown. He also rushed for 24 yards and a touchdown.

Patrick finished the game with 23 completions in 36 attempts for 362 yards and three touchdowns. He also rushed for 103 yards and a touchdown.

McMurray finished the game with 20 completions in 35 attempts for 285 yards and two touchdowns. He also rushed for 72 yards and a touchdown.

Starr envious of teammate Patrick

BY ROB GREINER

Starr was watching with excitement as Patrick was heating up. Patrick was already the NFL's leading rusher and was on his way to breaking the single-season record.

"I just wish I could have been in his shoes," Starr said. "I wish I could have been running the ball."

Starr was impressed with Patrick's ability to make the difficult catch and then run with it for a touchdown.

"He's a great athlete," Starr said. "He's one of the best running backs in the league."

Patrick was also impressive with his ability to make the difficult catch and then run with it for a touchdown.

"He's a great athlete," Patrick said. "I wish I could have been in his shoes."
A note of appreciation

Not all of the stars in the sky are considered the brightest. Occasionally we see one so bright that it can be seen from Earth. The same is true of football players. There are some who shine on the field, but their leadership and dedication are just as important.

Another Alma second

It seems Alma can't get a first place finish in anything. Recently, the "Big Ten" championship was once again snatched from her by Iowa. Alma was not the only school to feel the pain of losing a championship game. Denmark, which had held the top spot for a few weeks, was also defeated by the mighty University of Wisconsin.

 Top Ten  voters unfair

The latest controversy is developing around the Daily News' poll of the top ten players. The poll, which is based on the votes of the top ten voters, has caused much debate.

"After watching some football and football players," said Tod Schmied, "I must say that the votes of the top ten voters are not always the best. I think that there should be some sort of objective criteria used in determining the top ten players."

"I believe that the voters of the top ten should be held to a higher standard," said Larry Seaton. "They should not just vote on who they think is the best, but on who actually is the best."

Gale-Ettrick cops 'Little Ten' crown

The last four days of the 'Little Ten' championship have been nothing but excitement. Gale-Ettrick captured the championship with a 2-0 record and 62 points, while Port Edwards finished in second place with a 1-1 record and 52 points.

"Gale-Ettrick has been the dominant team in the 'Little Ten' throughout the season," said John Murphy, head coach of the Gale-Ettrick football team. "They have been a strong team all year, and I think that they deserve the championship."

"We were very happy with our performance," said Dave Kuech, head coach of the Port Edwards football team. "We had a good chance to win, but we just couldn't quite close out the game."

In the final voting for the 'Little Ten' championship, Gale-Ettrick received 15 points, while Port Edwards received 14 points. The third place team, Bemidji, received 13 points.

Machine use criticized by investigators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FAA is considering new regulations to speed takeoffs and landings.

The recommendation by the FAA, reported in a recent memo, said that the agency believes the new regulations would reduce the number of takeoffs and landings by 10 percent.

The memo said the FAA has been considering the regulations for years and has received more than 50 letters from pilots and airlines supporting the proposal.

The FAA is also considering a proposal to require all aircraft to have a second engine, which would reduce the number of takeoffs and landings by 10 percent.

The FAA said it would consider public comments on the proposal before finalizing any changes.
