Shelley remembers making $18 weekly

BY EDEL WILSON
NEW YORK — Any of you ladies, or even gentlemen, remember "Hotspur"?

Shelley Winters felt deeply dejected when the all-Broadway way ended last week of the hit show "Hotspur." But the 1944 starring role on "Hotspur" made Winters more than just a Broadway pin-up girl. The part was a breakthrough for the actress, who had previously appeared in off-Broadway shows and was known for her才能 and dramatic abilities.

Winters, now 80, recalled the experience with fondness, saying, "I was 23 when I played "Hotspur," and it was a turning point in my career. It was a demanding role, but I loved every minute of it."

The show was a success, and Winters received critical acclaim for her performance. She was nominated for a Tony Award for Best Actress in a Play, but lost to Julie Harris for her role in "The Glass Menagerie." However, Winters was pleased with her work on "Hotspur," and it marked the beginning of a long and successful career in the theater.

Winters went on to star in numerous Broadway productions, including "A Streetcar Named Desire," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," and "The Diary of Anne Frank." She also went on to have a successful film career, winning an Academy Award for Best Actress in a Supporting Role for her performance in "A Touch of Class."

When asked about her memories of "Hotspur," Winters smiled warmly and said, "It was a wonderful time. I was young and bright-eyed, and I had a lot of fun."

Winters now lives in retirement in Los Angeles, and continues to be involved in the theater community. She often volunteers her time at local schools and theaters, and continues to inspire new generations of actors with her passion and dedication.

Shelley Winters felt deeply that "Hotspur" was a turning point in her career, and it marked the beginning of a long and successful career in the theater. She remains a beloved icon of American theater and film, and her contributions to the arts will be remembered for generations to come.

Solving ugly dilemma

For obvious climatic reasons, this is the season when the term "beer on campus" is more likely to be heard in the ears of college students than in any other time of the year.

To the student, especially the beer-wielding one, the sale of alcohol on campus means one thing: freedom. And to the student, freedom means one thing: the ability to buy beer whenever and wherever he wants it.

But the sale of alcohol on campus also means another thing: the ability to buy beer whenever and wherever he wants it. And to the student, the ability to buy beer whenever and wherever he wants it means one thing: the ability to drink beer whenever and wherever he wants it.

And so it goes, until the student's life is one long, endless cycle of drinking beer, buying beer, and drinking beer again.

And all the while, the student wonders: is this really what he wants? Is this really what he needs? Is this really what he deserves?

And all the while, the student wonders: is this really what he wants? Is this really what he needs? Is this really what he deserves?

And all the while, the student wonders: is this really what he wants? Is this really what he needs? Is this really what he deserves?

DISTRICT (AP) — A federal judge in the airways crash trial of the United States against Boeing Aircraft Corp. rejected today to clear the way for a settlement of the case. The judge said Boeing has been unable to meet the juries demands for settlement.

One proposed settlement was rejected because it did not include the latest Airline-type navigational equipment. Another rejected settlement included a provision that the new Senate Rules Committee is bound to follow should the case go to trial.

The 16-passenger plane has all the latest Airline-type navigational equipment on board at 7:35 a.m. Friday with Flight 101 on the new Twin Otter service from Winona to Minneapolis.

In recent sessions, both House and Senate went full-out on the bill that would be the latest Airline-type navigational equipment on board at 7:35 a.m. Friday with Flight 101 on the new Twin Otter service from Winona to Minneapolis.

Diocesan financial position studied by national group

A discussion of the Twin Cities diocese financial position took place at a recent meeting by the Commission on the Theology and Practice of the Church (T.P.C.). The group studied various financial reports of the diocese, including the biennial budget, the audited financial statements, and the diocesan financial report.

The commission was interested in understanding the diocesan financial position and how it compares to other dioceses. They also wanted to explore how the diocese is funded and how resources are allocated.

The commission noted that the diocese has experienced financial challenges in recent years, with a decline in membership and contributions. They discussed the need for a more sustainable funding model and the importance of investments and endowments.

The commission also examined the diocese's debt structure and the impact on the financial position. They recommended that the diocese work towards reducing its debt and increasing its savings.

The commission concluded that the diocese needs to develop a comprehensive financial plan that addresses its long-term sustainability and includes strategies for revenue generation, cost containment, and efficient resource allocation.

The commission plans to present its findings and recommendations to the diocesan bishops and the broader diocesan community for further discussion and action.

New rite addressed to infant

A new rite for the baptism of infants has been developed in the Roman Catholic Church.

The new rite, which is based on the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults, is designed to be more inclusive and, in some ways, more traditional than the existing rite. It includes a new ceremony for the baptism of infants, which is based on the older baptismal ceremony used in the early Church.

The new rite has been approved by Pope Francis and will be implemented in the United States and elsewhere. It includes a new ceremony for the baptism of infants, which is based on the older baptismal ceremony used in the early Church.

Dear Abby:

Joe's love won't pay her bills

By AMY VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an art student keeping company with a divorced man who is in his late 20s. He is nice, but I feel it is my responsibility to pay for our rent and food. He says he is not ready to settle down. I love him, but I can't keep going on like this. What do I do? Joe and I live in a studio apartment with no kitchen. I have to go out to eat every night, and I feel guilty about it.

DEAR GLADYS: Crazy? No. Crazy people don't ask questions like that. They're usually too dazed to think as they do.

DEAR ABBY: I'm hooked! on your column. It's the first thing I turn to in the newspaper, but I never thought I'd be writing for advice. It's about my husband, whom I love madly. We're naive, that's why we need an experienced opinion. I should have married sooner rather than later, but my parents were against it. We're talking about divorce, but I think it's too late. Our marriage is going to be split into two separate lives. We're talking about divorce, but I think it's too late. Our marriage is going to be split into two separate lives. I'm so confused. What do I do?

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. I'm 18 years old and I'm pregnant. I'm unmarried and I don't know what to do. I've tried to get help from my parents, but they won't talk to me about it. I'm so scared. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my friends. They're always fighting and I don't know how to help them. They're my best friends and I don't want to see them hurt each other. What do I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm in a difficult situation at work. I'm working in a busy restaurant and I feel like I'm constantly yelling at people. I want to be a good employee, but I'm not sure how to handle the stress. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I love my job, but I'm not sure if I want to pursue a career in that field. I'm not sure if I'm cut out for it. I'm thinking about switching careers, but I don't know what to do. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my sleep. I wake up several times a night and I can't get back to sleep. I'm tired all day and I don't know what to do. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my skin. I have acne and I don't know how to get rid of it. I've tried all sorts of treatments, but nothing seems to work. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my memory. I'm having trouble remembering things and I don't know what to do. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my relationships. I'm having trouble getting along with my family and my friends. I don't know what to do. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my diet. I'm trying to lose weight, but I'm not sure how to do it. I'm having trouble finding a healthy diet that I like. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my work. I'm not sure if I'm doing well or if I'm doing poorly. I'm having trouble getting motivated and I don't know what to do. What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm having trouble with my money. I'm having trouble saving money and I don't know what to do. What should I do?

ATLANTA - Ray Davis, owner of the Atlanta Hawks, has said that his team will not participate in the upcoming Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Davis, speaking at a press conference yesterday, said that the Hawks had decided against sending their team to the Games because of the high travel costs involved.

"We had a long discussion about this," Davis said. "We looked at the costs involved and decided that it would be too expensive to send our team to the Games."

Half million hunters expected in Wisconsin

Wisconsin's sporting season opens with the opening of the nine-day deer season, marking the beginning of a series of hunting and fishing seasons.

The time is early yet, but the predicted harvest is expected to be large.

Wisconsin's deer population is estimated at 1.5 million, with about 1.2 million of those being males.

The total kill is expected to be about 1,000, with the majority of the kill occurring in the north-central and northwestern regions.

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources expects to receive about 5,000 permits for deer hunting.

The permits will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis, with a limit of 500 permits per day.
