Khrushchev engineered Beria’s downfall: reminiscences

NEW YORK (AP) — Masha Khrushchev, daughter of former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, said that Leonid Brezhnev's appointment as leader of the Communist party and as premier was engineered by Brezhnev's boss, powerful party chief Yuri Andropov.

"We were very close, and that is why I know these things," she said at a New York news conference. "I had a unique opportunity to see the way this man worked." Khrushchev recently flew to Moscow to attend the funeral of her younger brother, Svetlana, who died of cancer last year. She is one of three daughters of Khrushchev and his wife, Nadezhda Alliluyeva.

Khrushchev, who is visiting the United States now, said that Andropov's rise was the result of Brezhnev's politics of "cleaning up the party," a reference to the purge of several of his predecessors, including Khrushchev himself.

She said that Brezhnev had been "very clever" in the way he had been able to make his way up the party ranks, and that he had been "very lucky" in his choice of "beautiful" women, such as Khrushchev's wife, Nadezhda.

"I think Brezhnev was very lucky," Khrushchev said. "He had a very good opportunity to get into the party."

STONIED TIRE BATTLE LOOMS IN LEGISLATURE

By GERRY NELSON

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has announced that the production of studded tires will not be banned in the United States. The agency says that the ban would be a threat to public safety and that the use of studded tires is necessary in many areas where snow and ice are common.

The move by the NHTSA comes after a series of tests by the Minnesota Department of Transportation showed that studded tires are effective in reducing road wear and improving traction in snowy and icy conditions. The agency has recommended that states continue to allow the use of studded tires in areas where they are needed.

The decision by the NHTSA is expected to spark a debate among states about the future of studded tires. Some states, like Minnesota, have already allowed the use of studded tires for several years. Others, like Wisconsin, have banned their use.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation has been working on a plan to convert all state-owned vehicles to studded tires. The agency says that the change will save money on road maintenance and improve safety for drivers.

The decision by the NHTSA is likely to be met with mixed reactions. Some environmental groups have called for a ban on studded tires, saying that they are harmful to the environment. Others have praised the agency for its decision to allow states to continue using studded tires in areas where they are needed.

Shifting emphasis seen in dairying

If the dairy industry is to maintain a favorable image and remain competitive, it is a matter of basic economics and marketing strategy to produce marketability, write William F. White and Barry W. Evans. Health, marketability, and higher quality are becoming factors of critical importance.

It means that in order to be competitive, dairy farmers should be able to produce milk and other dairy products at a cost that is competitive with other dairy farmers, and that the quality of the product meets or exceeds the expectations of the customer. This requires a shift in emphasis from the production of large quantities of milk to the production of higher quality milk and other dairy products.

Furthermore, the emphasis on marketability should also extend to marketing practices. This includes an emphasis on packaging, labeling, and advertising to attract consumers to the product. This requires a shift in emphasis from the production of milk to the production of marketable dairy products that meet the needs and desires of the consumer.

In addition, the emphasis on quality should also extend to the production process. This includes an emphasis on maintaining good hygiene and care for the animals, and on using appropriate technologies to improve the quality of the product.

Finally, the emphasis on quality should also extend to the production of smaller quantities of milk and other dairy products. This requires a shift in emphasis from the production of large quantities of milk to the production of smaller, higher quality quantities that can be marketed more effectively.

Lucey hints at increase in Wisconsin personal income tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator leaders agree, in light of the Senate's committee's defeat earlier this week of a proposed income tax increase, that a deal on a new state budget will be hard to find.

Democrats expressed concern that the budget process has been too partisan and that the upcoming fiscal year, starting July 1, could be marked by gridlock.

"I think the budget process has been too partisan in the past," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Zehr. "We need to find a way to work together and find a fair budget that will benefit all Wisconsin residents."

Fortunately for the Cleveland Cavaliers, the National Basketball Association basketball season is only in its early stages. The Cavaliers would have been just another 0-14 team, and that would have been a major blow to the 18-year-old franchise, but the team is off to a 1-1 start for the season.

The Cavaliers have averaged 11 points per game in their first two games, but they have not scored more than 13 points in any game so far. They have also struggled on defense, allowing 107 points per game.

In their first game, the Cavaliers lost to the New York Nets, 94-90, with Van Arsdale scoring 29 points. In their second game, they beat the Los Angeles Lakers, 15-10, with Ali scoring 29 points.
