Soviet ship docks with space station

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet Soyuz spacecraft carrying two cosmonauts docked with a space station on Friday in what appeared to be a major step toward the eventual joining of the two ships.

The Soyuz was launched early in the morning from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan, and the cosmonauts, Vladimir Komarov and Alexei Leonov, are scheduled to spend several days on the space station, which is orbiting the earth.

The docking was the first of its kind between a Soviet spacecraft and a space station, and it is expected to pave the way for future missions that will involve longer stays on the station.

The Soyuz spacecraft, which carries a crew of three, has been used by the Soviet Union for a variety of missions, including space walks, to repair and upgrade the space station.

WASHINGTON — The Federal Credit Union Act, which was passed in 1956, has seen its first dramatic change since its inception when Congress recently approved legislation that would permit federal credit unions to issue credit cards.

The act, which was designed to stimulate savings and investment by providing a source of credit to individuals who did not have access to traditional banking institutions, was amended to include provisions for the issuance of credit cards.

The new legislation, which was signed into law by President Ronald Reagan, will allow federal credit unions to issue credit cards to their members, thereby expanding their services and making it easier for their members to access credit.

Thousands participate in Washington protest

Marchers chant peace through San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tens of thousands of Anti-Vietnam War demonstrators streamed through the city streets for the 10th annual May Day demonstration, calling for an end to the war.

Police Capt. George Ries told a large crowd Saturday evening that the demonstration was the largest ever held in San Francisco, with an estimated turnout of 100,000.

Police officers in riot gear and carrying batons fought to control the crowd as many thousands of demonstrators tried to force their way into downtown areas.

The marchers chanted peace slogans, and many carried signs with messages for President Nixon, who was expected to make an appearance in California later in the week.

Some of the demonstrators were arrested for blocking traffic, and several were injured in scuffles with the police.

The event was the largest protest against the war in recent years, and it reflected growing frustration with the war's duration and the lack of progress in ending it.

The marchers called for an immediate withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam, and they demanded that the government end its support for the war.

The police were deployed in large numbers to keep the peace, and they used tear gas, pepper spray, and batons to break up some of the more violent protests.

The demonstration was marked by a mixture of peaceful protest and violent clashes, with the police using force to maintain order.

Cancer research bill supported

In 1980, every seven women and only in this country, our government spent $500 on breast cancer. In the same year and only in this country, cancer research spent $700 on breast cancer. Miss Hope, has the money to save lives.

I am writing this letter to you, the female readers of the New York Times, to bring attention to the fact that cancer research is not only underfunded, but also underappreciated. Women are more likely to develop cancer than men, yet they receive less funding for cancer research. This is not fair and it needs to change.

I urge you to support cancer research bill and to demand that our government spend more on cancer research. Together, we can make a difference and save lives.

Site plan amendment laid over

A request to amend the site plan for Warehouse Market, 1515 Service Dr., was laid over Thursday night by the City Planning Commission.

When the market was built two years ago, the city council required the property to be zoned for a single (in-bound) row of trees; and to the south of the market, on 1733 Service Dr., was laid over an affianced apartment building.

Committee OK's end to college deferments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has voted to end most college deferments starting with those awarding aid after July 1, 1973, starting with those awarding aid after July 1, 1973.

The provision approved as part of the Department of Justice, Commerce and State Appropriations bill, the Senate panel rejected a bill that would have ended deferments for most college students starting in July.

The provision would allow colleges to continue to defer students through the end of the current academic year, but it would end any deferrals for students entering college in the fall.

The committee's action came after the House Armed Services Committee had approved a similar measure in its version of the appropriations bill.

The measure would affect about 15,000 college students each year, or about 5 percent of the total number of students enrolled in college each year.

The Senate panel's action would affect about 1,000 college students each year, or about 1 percent of the total number of students enrolled in college each year.

Decision federal action

needed in Reserve case

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Defense officials on the Lake Superior Environmental Conference have agreed that federal action is needed to prevent pollution of Lake Superior by taconite tailings.

"There's been a lot of discussion about the taconite tailings," said Capt. Donald W. O'Neill, commander of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Duluth.

"The problem is that the tailings are a major source of pollution," said O'Neill.

"If we don't take action, there's a real chance for a major disaster," said O'Neill.

The conference, attended by representatives of the EPA, the Army Corps of Engineers, and other federal and state agencies, was held in Duluth to discuss the issue.

The conference heard testimony from experts in the field who voiced concern about the potential for a major spill that could cause widespread environmental damage.

The conference agreed that federal action is needed to prevent such a disaster.

Campaign spending bill includes some points Nixon dislikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a spending bill covering some of the spending limit on advertising expenditures for political candidates.

The measure, which would limit spending to $5,000 per contributor and $10,000 per candidate, was approved by the Senate on a 90-9 vote.

The bill, which was approved by the House earlier this year, would also require candidates to disclose all contributions and expenses over $2,000.

The bill would also require candidates to file quarterly reports with the Federal Election Commission.

"This bill is a strong step forward in limiting the influence of money in politics," said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., sponsor of the bill.

House committees use FBI agents

WASHINGTON—At a June 27 hearing, members of the House Appropriations Committee, who have a 32-agent staff, learned about the enormous size of its investigative arm. The agents are the only full-time federal employees who have authority to tap telephones, search for and seize evidence in criminal violations, and arrest suspects.

The Appropriations Committee, which has an annual budget of $1 billion, was seeking information on the size of its investigative arm compared to other congressional committees. The FBI, which has 25,000 agents, was used as a benchmark by the Appropriations Committee.

The Appropriations Committee staff consists of 32 agents, including the director, who are full-time employees. The FBI agents, however, are paid by the committee, and the Appropriations Committee has requested that the FBI agents be removed from the committee's payroll.

License to recycle cans

If any Winona resident is looking for a hassle-free way to recycle cans, they may consider placing a properly crushed food can in the can recycling container provided in front of the grocery store. Edward Quillan, owner of the store, has carried over the recycling idea from his La Crosse business, which is among five grocery stores there that provide a pickup service for cans.

Edward Quillan, owner of Quillan's, 805 Second St. W., is looking to place the proper container at his store to encourage customers to recycle their cans. He has two containers in front of his store, one for cans and one for bottles. The cans are collected every two weeks, and the bottles are collected every three weeks.

Summer jobs for youth may be scarce

With school vacation time still a few months away, the local Recreation Service office already has 400 applications from high school and college students in its file, according to R. K. Sanger, manager. The large majority of student applicants for summer work had been filled with the office within the past two weeks.

According to Brown, however, there are still plenty of jobs open at this time of year for "part-time recreation jobs," he said, "but we hope the place will be filled.

Students expect that jobs will be plentiful this year and their early start at filling the jobs is a good sign of their determination in finding employment for the summer vacation period. Brown said. From the schools, more than 100 boys and girls have filed applications under the federal work-study program. Each child enrolled in kindergarten will be given a chance to improve reading and arithmetic skills.

A week with music greats is GREAT!

By MARY KRUGER
Daily News Women's Editor

In what transpires when a chamber orchestra takes up residency for a week, with several hundred students waiting to absorb knowledge from "those who really know the score?"

It's not all work, but many hours are devoted to individual work sessions, small group sessions and, of course, the times when everyone joins in for a combined session.

We refer to the past week, when the 22-member St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, along with its conductor, Edouard Forner, made Winona State University a "home away from home." Students worked and talked to chamber members and just discussed the world of music and other related subjects. Some found themselves straying a bit, with discussions centered on earth week; others lunched together and made what some hope will be lasting friendships.

Housed at the Park Plaza, chamber members spent approximately six hours each day, Monday through Friday, working with the students on campus. For ease of working with students, the chamber divides itself into four small groups — two quartets, a baroque ensemble and a woodwind quintet.

"The outcome was great," according to Richmond McCluer, head of the music department at Winona State College. "It certainly stimulates the students at the college when they are given this kind of opportunity," said McCluer.

Students at the college had a real surprise Monday when the baroque ensemble moved into the smog, unplugged the juke box, set up equipment and proceeded to play baroque music for the afternoon.

The chamber orchestra first began the idea of a week in residency in the fall of 1969. The first visit was to WSC. This past week marked the second visit to the college. They now conduct the same type of program at other state colleges and this winter have taken up residency at several state high schools.

"Music is the chamber musicians' life," they love it and they lead it — from one end of the state to the other.

Dear Abby:

Teen girl defends long-haired youths

By JERSEY VAN HURCEN

DEAR ABBY: You recently wrote that there is more than one way to look at the average American family member.

I am a girl, 16, and I want to know why adults are so mean to me. I am to blame for being an adolescent, yet I am the last person on earth to blame. It makes me wonder what my parents expect me to do or think or feel about myself. How can they criticize me one moment and be my best supporter the next? I don't get to know a lot more beautiful people who look like me, but I have to take what I can get if I feel like that somehow. SPENDING FOR MANY YEARS

DEAR ABBY: I agree. It is a trend in the family's universe. But we can do without it. When I was young, my parents let me do my own thing. I felt like they had a sense of humor about it. I don't think they ever heard of Florence Crittenton Services. We offer girls the premises.

I may be the only one who feels this way, but I don't think I am. I am a productive young man who wants to look like a shiftless . . .

True, perhaps we are missing out on meeting a lot of people because of our hair, but that's not necessarily the case. I think we are still in a world where people want to look at a person and see beyond his hair or his dress. They don't care what's underneath.

I don't want him serving me in a restaurant.

Planting of trout nearly complete

By LEWIE HAYES
Sunday News

The "put" phase is nearly complete to the start of the 1962-63 trout fishing season. Final stockings of young trout have been made in cages at the Fish Hatchery and the plants have been put in various lakes and streams of the state. The first plants are scheduled to be made this week in Lake Nokomis, and early in the season plants will be made in all other lakes and streams of the state.

The trout plants are handled by the Hatchery staff under the supervision of state fishing officers.

The fish are transferred from the stocking tanks to the cages and released into the lakes and streams. The trout are held in the cages until they are transferred to the lakes and streams, where they will be released.

The trout are handled carefully to ensure their survival, and the stocking tanks are maintained under carefully controlled conditions to ensure the survival of the fish.

The stocking of trout is a vital aspect of the fishing season, and the state is committed to maintaining a healthy and growing trout population in its lakes and streams.

The trout plants are a vital part of the fishing season, and anglers are encouraged to support this important activity by purchasing fishing licenses and participating in the fishing season.

Stenvig challenges see property taxes as No. 1 Minneapolis issue

By MORRIS LEEAN
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Premier Latvia set the tone for Tax Day this year as Mayor Donald Stenvig's two major challengers to the first-term mayor failed to show up.

"We do see property taxes as the No. 1 issue," said Stenvig, who said his run for a third term has been "a study in contrasts." He said he's increased departmental budgets by about 9 percent and that the city's overall budget has risen 11 percent over the past two years.

Stenvig's boasts of contrasts in contrast to his mayoral rivals. Both DFL Party and Republican candidates have pointed to the city's tax policies as one reason why they're seeking the mayor's office. Both have vowed to make property taxes a major issue in their campaigns.

"We've been working hard to balance the budget and to reduce property taxes," Stenvig said. "And we've done that." He said he's increased departmental budgets by about 9 percent and that the city's overall budget has risen 11 percent over the past two years.

"We've been working hard to balance the budget and to reduce property taxes," Stenvig said. "And we've done that." He said he's increased departmental budgets by about 9 percent and that the city's overall budget has risen 11 percent over the past two years.

Stenvig's boasts of contrasts in contrast to his mayoral rivals. Both DFL Party and Republican candidates have pointed to the city's tax policies as one reason why they're seeking the mayor's office. Both have vowed to make property taxes a major issue in their campaigns.

New Graham-McGuire store expands lines

This June, in the dozen years since its establishment by Gerald Graham and George McGuire, the Graham-McGuire Sporting Goods store in Wheeling, Illinois, has been expanded to include a complete shop area for gun and hunting equipment.

The new shop area downstairs is 21 x 48 feet and contains sports cloth and accessories, ranging from shoes to clothing. A complete golf shop is also available.

According to McGuire, the sporting goods store is"very pleased about the expansion. We now have our complete shop area for gun and hunting equipment, and are happy to offer our customers the best service possible.

The new shop area is located in the basement of the store, which is the same floor as the present gun and hunting shop area. The expansion of the store has increased the size of the gun and hunting shop area to 21 x 48 feet.

In addition to the new shop area, the store has also expanded its inventory to include a complete line of gun and hunting equipment. This includes a wide variety of guns, ammunition, and accessories.

As McGuire mentioned, "We are very pleased about the expansion, and we are confident that our customers will be happy with the new shop area.

The expansion of the store has allowed us to offer our customers the best service possible, and we are looking forward to serving our customers in the future.

The store is located at 100 Main Street, Wheeling, Illinois, and is open from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Idled chemist helps in development of pancreas

The importance of pancreas transplantation was emphasized in a recent article by Dr. Joseph B. Hepler, a professor of physiology at the University of California, Los Angeles. He emphasized the need for an instrument that could be used to build a device that would allow the body to perform its functions in the absence of a pancreas.

The device, which has been under development for many years, is a small, plastic tube about 1/4 inch in diameter. It consists of a core of biological material that is surrounded by a layer of synthetic material. This core is made from a combination of several substances, including insulin, which is the hormone that regulates blood sugar levels.

The device is inserted into the body, where it begins to function immediately. It provides the necessary insulin to regulate blood sugar levels, thereby allowing the body to function normally. The device is currently being tested on animals, and initial results are promising.

Anti-Chinese American campaigning

Chinese people keep smiling

For the last few days there have been constant reports that Chinese people have been subjected to attacks in several cities in the United States. The attacks have been carried out by young men, who are said to be members of a group called the "Chinese-American Workers." The attacks have taken the form of violent tactics, such as beatings, stabbings, and shootings.

The Chinese-American Workers group was formed in response to the rise of Chinese-American workers in the United States. The group has been active in several cities, including New York, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. They have been known to carry out violent attacks against Chinese people, claiming that they are being "stealing from" white people.

The attacks have been condemned by the Chinese-American community, who have called for an end to the violence. The Chinese-American community has also called for the government to take action against the group.
