relatively low-keyed until the end of the five candidates.

To his campaign, accused Muskie Monday of "what appears to be a major campaign strategy on a major issue." McGovern "attacked the one other candidate's positions on an issue, and then that he wouldn't be around." McGovern has never been around.

The Democratic party has the majority of candidates in the race, but the party isn't going to open them up.

"I think in the end, they'll find that the American people are not really interested in the Democratic party," Muskie said. "They'll find that they have a choice of candidates, but they're not going to vote on a candidate.

In the end, if they want to vote, they'll vote for the candidate they think is the best, not for the one they think is the worst."
Wabasha superintendent quits, attorney fired

By PATTY McMANUS

Daily News Staff Writer

WABASHA, Minn. — The resignation of Superintendent John E. Pelzer, which took effect early Monday morning, and the appointment of an attorney to represent the school district are both preliminary moves toward a reorganization of the school administration, according to town officials.

Pelzer, who has been superintendent of the Wabasha School District for six years, submitted his resignation to town officials last week, following a meeting with them. The resignation was effective Monday morning.

The school board, which is responsible for hiring the superintendent, has hired an attorney to represent the school district in the ongoing investigation of the school administration.

The attorney, who has not been identified, will be working closely with the school board to ensure that the investigation is conducted in a fair and impartial manner.

The school board has also been working with the school district to establish a new administration, with the hope of bringing stability to the school system.

Lobbyists work hard on consumer protection bill

By.Personal Security

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - High-powered lobbyists were out on the capital steps yesterday trying to win favor for a comprehensive consumer protection bill.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., would give the Federal Trade Commission new powers of investigation and control over a wide range of consumer products and services.

The bill now goes to the House Commerce Committee, which is expected to report it by the end of the month.

College graduates find they must settle for less

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Many of Kansas City's top college graduates, who have started their job search in earnest, now are finding that the job market is tougher than expected.

Several factors have contributed to the tough job market, including a recession and a sharp rise in the number of graduates.

How to get heroin off country's best seller list

By OR. H. DONER

Statistics demonstrate that a high percentage of the population of the underdeveloped nations is suffering from malnutrition. The extent of undernutrition may be so great that the people may be threatened with starvation unless measures are taken to prevent it.

One billion of the world's 5 billion people are estimated to be lacking in food and clothing in the long run. This situation is so serious that a number of authorities—each with his own point of view—have been predicting the future of the world and the people of the world in the coming years.

One of the main issues is to find a solution to the problem of the underdeveloped nations. This is a complex problem, and the solution is not yet clear. However, there are some measures that can be taken to alleviate the situation. The following measures are suggested:

1. Increase food production:
   - Encourage the cultivation of crops that require less water and land resources.
   - Improve irrigation systems and water management to ensure a steady supply of water.

2. Improve cooking and food preparation:
   - Teach people to use cooking methods that require less fuel and energy.
   - Promote the use of cooking appliances that are energy-efficient.

3. Reduce food waste:
   - Implement measures to reduce food waste at all stages of the food supply chain.
   - Promote the use of food preservation techniques to reduce spoilage.

4. Increase food availability and accessibility:
   - Ensure that food is distributed to the needy populations.
   - Promote the use of food vouchers and other means to increase access to food.

5. Increase food security:
   - Strengthen national food security systems to ensure that food is available when needed.
   - Increase the capacity of national food security systems to respond to emergencies.

These measures can help alleviate the problem of food scarcity in the underdeveloped nations. However, it is important to note that a comprehensive approach that involves multiple sectors is needed to address the root causes of the problem.

The number of arrests may be a poor indicator, as for the addict, with a smaller cost for his habit, which doesn't even look like a hospital is supposed to offering problem: The national drug arrests of about 1 million each year is a moral issue, for people with government grants. AP APPROACH 2. Full Utilization of the ocean's harvest:

The phytoplankton (microscopic plants) in the oceans and seas could provide a potential source of food. Phytoplankton are photosynthetic organisms that produce oxygen and organic matter. They are the base of the marine food chain and are found in all parts of the world. Phytoplankton can be harvested and processed to produce a variety of products, including food and feed.

The potential of the ocean's harvest is enormous. For example, the harvest of 23,907 whales in 1933 was equivalent to the harvest of 5,000 million metric tons of food. The harvest of 1.2 million metric tons of krill in 1980 was equivalent to the harvest of 3,000 million metric tons of food. The harvest of 1 billion metric tons of anchovy in 1976 was equivalent to the harvest of 25,000 million metric tons of food.

The potential of the ocean's harvest is not limited to marine animals. The harvest of 1 million metric tons of fish in 1980 was equivalent to the harvest of 25,000 million metric tons of food. The harvest of 10 million metric tons of mollusks in 1980 was equivalent to the harvest of 250,000 million metric tons of food. The harvest of 100 million metric tons of shellfish in 1980 was equivalent to the harvest of 1,000,000 million metric tons of food.

The great state of New Hampshire

At Buchwald

VATERTALE, VALLEY

N.H. — Every four years, all newspapermen engaged in campaign journalism have the same embarrassing dilemma: How to present their readers with the nitty-gritty of the Presidential Primary, without over-combing the mountainous details of the campaign. The matter is even more difficult when the primary is held in New Hampshire, where everything is so close and personal.

But in the case of the Primary this time, the pressmen have the additional problem of reporting on the long and winding road of President Johnson's re-election chances. The President himself, who has taken a leave of absence, has not been seen since the Senator's nomination. The new President must be reported on, but it is not clear that the President is a viable candidate for the 1968
Primary. The pressmen are faced with a problem of reporting on the primary without the President's involvement.

In the meantime, the pressmen must continue to report on the primary, without the President's involvement. They must continue to report on the primary, without
the President's involvement. They must continue to report on the primary, without the President's involvement.

Traditional priests: those seeking change hurt themselves

By KAREN A. MILLS
POMPEAVILLE, Miss. (AP) — The Rev. Robert L. Landwehr, head of the old Tridentine Mass, offered his resignation at a diocesan administrative meeting Monday night as the St. Cloud Diocese grew more receptive to the traditional Mass offer.

"The role of the church is not to live in the shadow of a rain forecast," said the action was taken "in light of the building which probably had not been used for a long time."

Teen-agers expected to pad voter turnout

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Madison, Wis. (AP) — Nearly 150 Wisconsin high school students are expected to vote in today's preliminary winners' elections, a new poll indicates. The number of students voting in the election was not available, but the Wisconsin State Journal reported several weeks ago that the number was expected to be about 100.

"A short supply of ballots has been observed," said a St. Cloud diocesan administrative secretary. "If more ballots were available, the turnout might be higher."

"Today's preliminary winners' election is a test to see whether the election is a success," said John M. Scott, a State Senate clerk.

The number of Old Order Mennonites in the state is said to be between 1,000 and 2,000. The number of people voting in the election was not available, but the Wisconsin State Journal reported several weeks ago that the number was expected to be about 100.

Fund for Lovers of Wisconsin Snowmobiling, Inc., which is seeking an "improved image for the sport," and which is trying to oust "mavericks" who have been turned off by the sport.

"We are not the only group that is concerned," said Lewis Schmidt, who chairs the Fund's board of directors. "But we feel that our approach is the most effective way to achieve our goals."

Schmidt said the Fund is working with national organizations such as the National Ski Areas Association and the American Skiing Industry Association to improve the sport's image.

"We are trying to create a positive image for the sport," he said. "By doing so, we hope to attract more people to snowmobiling and make it more popular."

The Fund is also working with local authorities to improve safety and decrease the number of accidents.

"We are working on a number of projects to improve safety," said Schmidt. "These include more education for snowmobilers and better signage for trails."

Investigators seeking cause of fireworks complex blast

ORLAND PARK, ILL. (AP) - Investigators combed the ruins of a 14-building fireworks-manufacturing complex today seeking the cause of a series of explosions that virtually obliterated the buildings when it exploded.

A succession of explosions, witnesses reported, started at 2 p.m. when most of the 30 persons working at the Melrose Display Fireworks Co. stored its wares, about 250 yards from the scene.

Flames that spread to the nearby area of senior citizens' apartments in the town were extinguished by a 2½-ton fire pump made of steel, and helped put a stop to the explosion's effects on the buildings when it was exploded.

There were no confirmed deaths. The report of a third death was later retracted, said a friend of the victim, who had been spotted late by eyewitnesses that a 14th victim had been killed when the buildings when it exploded.

Police and fire officials said they would continue investigations today. Residents who had been forced to flee their homes when the explosion occurred remained in the basements of the buildings.

The 2,000 children in Orland Park's five schools were escorted from the basements into the hallways and the playgrounds where the explosions crumbled adjacent school windows. They were dismissed for the rest of the morning.

Fire Chief Arthur Granat of Chicago's South Side and southern suburbs, who was in the Orland Park office when the explosion occurred, said the 14 buildings were concrete block with wood roofs. All were leveled.

Granat said the buildings were concrete block with wood roofs.

The Rotarians estimated the cost of $500,000 for the entire project, which would be divided as follows: 40% percent to be paid in the first year, and 60% percent in the second year. The Rotarians attributed the high cost to the American Freedom Foundation, which is planning a $500,000 educational work, which is to be paid for by contributions of $100,000.

Other council business:

The council set March 20 as the date for opening bids on the $1,728 bond issue. The bond issue is needed for the new 3rd District 861 of the school district as a measure to improve the district's facilities.

The settlement, which is binding on the city, was reached after six months of negotiations. The settlement includes a $75,000 payment to the city, in addition to $1,150,000 with the current tax bill, to be paid in equal installments over a period of five years.

The option to sell the bond is being exercised by the city's bond counsel, Vernold Boynton, who said he will be able to sell the bond at a price of $1,000,000 in bonds.

The council also discussed the $1,728 bond issue, which was approved by the referendum. The council agreed to the plan, which will be presented to the community for approval.

Possible additions of a motorcycle driving course to the high school curriculum were discussed. The course could be offered as an option to students.

She let husband write own ticket—and wow!

Dear Abby: My husband and I have been married for 20 years and have three children. We have had three women over the years but nothing serious ever came of it. I thought that this time around when I asked him if he had a full-time girl friend, he was honest. I was shocked today when I found him with a full-time girl friend. He wanted it to be a surprise for me. He said he had been seeing her for a while and that she was a friend of his. She has been in the area for about a year now. She's a beautiful woman and he's very happy with her. He said he wanted to tell me about her because he felt it was fair to you. I thought we had a pretty good marriage and that both of us were happy. I don't know how I'm going to handle this news. What should I do?

Dear Abby: I'm a high school senior and I'm having trouble with my boyfriend. He's been cheating on me with another girl and I'm not sure what to do. I want to trust him but he always seems to be hiding something. I'm feeling very confused and I don't know how to move forward. What should I do?

Dear Abby: My son is getting married next month. He's about to graduate from college and has a good job. He and his fiancé are very happy and they want a simple wedding. I want to help out but I'm not sure what to do. I don't want to be too pushy but I want to make sure they have everything they need. What should I do?

Dear Abby: My friend has been having a really tough time lately. She's been going through a divorce and she's having a hard time coping. She's been drinking a lot and I'm worried about her. What can I do to help her?
