Flee Cincinnati jail

May 19, 1972

CINCINNATI (AP) — Three of 25 escapees held for 28 prisoners who escaped Monday night.

The jail, built for about 175 prisoners, housed about 275 for the winter months.

Bus parking proposals are considered

City Council members Monday night voted to consider the parking proposals for Winona State College presented to them by Dr. Richard K. Hoveland.

Hoveland recommended the college be given the right to have 180 parking spaces within the liberal arts area of the city. In addition, he recommended the college be given one parking space in the municipal parking lot on 14th Street. Hoveland also recommended that the city sell street rights to the college for $1,000 a year. The proceeds would be used for the operation of a parking lot.

The city council will consider the proposals at its next meeting.

Area burglaries are under investigation

WINONA, Minn. — Winona police are investigating burglaries at the Winona, Minn., municipal court and the Winona State College basketball court.

At the court, a burglar entered the building and took an assortment of items from the court's office.

The burglaries are believed to be related to the thefts at the Winona State College basketball court.

Candidate announces at Black River Falls

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. — Black River Falls Mayor-elect Jim Lee, who defeated incumbent Paul W. LePage in the Nov. 3 election, announced his intention to seek re-election in 1975.

Lee said he would seek re-election because he feels the city needs a mayor who can work with the city council and the city administration to solve the city's problems.

Lee added that he feels he can do a better job of representing the city's citizens than any other candidate.

Lee's announcement comes just two days after he was elected mayor of Black River Falls.

Transmission of cancer virus thought possible

By BILL STOCKTON

The nation's cancer experts say the virus which causes Hodgkin's disease has been transmitted from person to person, possibly as a contagious disease.

This brings into question whether certain cancers might be transmitted from one person to another, particularly between healthy relatives and Hodgkin's disease patients and grown in the body's natural defense mechanism after exposure to the virus.

The telltale biochemical fingerprint was found in the healthy relatives and workers closely associated with a victim of Hodgkin's disease. Martinez, Texas. It is a gift from the Texas State Society of Washington.

The findings, Sanders said, are the basis of an ongoing study of the virus, which is thought possible to test large populations for evidence of the virus. The findings, he said, are the result of a study of the virus.

The immediate importance of the findings, Sanders said, is that scientists now have a potentially powerful tool to test large populations for evidence of the virus. The findings, he said, are the result of a study of the virus.

Wisconsin begins adult empire

Governor Patrick L. Lucey will sign legislation Thursday making the adult age in Wisconsin from 21 to 18.

It is a controversial legislation, the lawmakers estimating that the number of single women seeking legal abortions would have increased from 1,750 to 3,000 per year.

The law is expected to be signed Thursday at the state capital, Madison.

Urban vs. rural

From an editorial in "West Central Daily Times, Winona, Minnesota."

Former governor Daniel L. Stahl said: "Abolishment of pop.

In one case of the county's economic problems, "many people are now looking for direction," he added.

"It will find a ready market" in the rural areas, Stahl said, "for it is a product that has a high demand both in urban and rural areas."

The news is expected to be well received in rural areas, where many people are looking for direction.

WASHINGTON — If there is one thing America prides itself on, it’s that anyone in this country can grow up and run for President of the United States. Nothing set the stage for this more than the New Hampshire and Florida primaries.

In some respects, it is quite possible that there are thousands, perhaps even hundreds of thousands of people who might like to run for the Presidency, but they are not sure if they have the qualifications. Therefore, as a public service, let’s consider the qualifications of those who have announced so far.

First, multiple choice.

1—It would be impossible to make a list of all the qualifications you will need to run for President.
2—The qualifications you will need to run for President are those held by the person who is seeking the office.
3—The qualifications you will need to run for President are those held by those who are seeking the office.
4—The qualifications you will need to run for President are those held by those who are seeking the office.

Now for some mathematical calculations.

You reply (A) 50 percent, (B) 10 percent, (C) 2 percent, (D) 2 percent, (E) 2 percent, (F) 2 percent, (G) 2 percent.

1. We estimate that the person who is seeking the office will need to pay a minimum of $2 million to underwrite it.
2. If you need $2 million to underwrite it, you are worthy of running for this office as any of the candidates who have announced so far.

Your reply (A) 10 percent, (B) 20 percent, (C) 30 percent, (D) 40 percent, (E) 50 percent, (F) 60 percent, (G) 70 percent.

1. You may hear may be a New ... “COMMUNICATOR”...

Conservatives grumbling over leadership shown by Lindstrom

By GERRY NELSON
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — It will be a quiet grumbling season for St. Paul’s Conservative Club, the Associated Press has learned.

Lindstrom, 46, is the Lindstrom field, the mouth of the Associated Press group that has been picketing the Associated Press group.

Cargile says he is dogmatic, and he doesn’t like to talk about the Conservative Club. It has been trying to get its message across.

But informants say that Lindstrom has almost 100 percent of the party behind him.

Lindstrom is out to dump Dirlam as top man in the Conservative Club and to line up against Aubrey Dirlam in the House of Representatives.

Lindstrom feels that there is a strong voice of leadership for the House majority leader last year.

He called political "spots" on radio and television in preparation for the primary election.

"You can’t be in a position of leadership unless you are running," Lindstrom said.

"Don’t be one of those people who just sits down and says, ‘I’ll just sit back and let others do the work.’"

According to informants, Lindstrom was asked to run for a House seat.

"I can’t be in a position of leadership unless I am running," Lindstrom said.

Lindstrom is a candidate for re-election to the conservative club.

Radiologist reports—

Frostbite growing as a problem

By C. G. MUSSELMER

Chicano (Art.) — While home through the holidays, Musselm er was as eager to return to the look of his native town to pursue his medical career as he was to return home to his family.

One of the first things he noticed was the increase in frostbite cases.

"The manner in which frostbite is occurring is different this year," he said. "Previously, frostbite was most common in the fingers and toes, but now it is spreading to other parts of the body, such as the face and ears.

"We have seen cases of frostbite in the upper extremities of the hand and the lower extremities of the foot. In some cases, frostbite has even affected the arms and legs."

Musselm reported that patients with frostbite were often misunderstood by their parents, who believed that the hippie lifestyle was responsible for the frostbite. However, Musselm said, "The frostbite we are seeing is not caused by hippie lifestyles, but by the cold weather conditions that we have been experiencing."

Musselm noted that the increase in frostbite cases was caused by the prolonged cold weather and the lack of proper protection against the cold.

"Patients need to wear warm clothing and protect their exposed areas when they go outside," he said. "Wearing gloves and hat, and using hand warmers can help prevent frostbite.

In addition, patients should avoid prolonged exposure to cold temperatures and should seek shelter if possible.

Musselm concluded, "We need to be vigilant in protecting ourselves from frostbite, especially during the cold winter months."

Automakers fear they won’t meet emissions limit

By R. B. WALTER WALLACE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The auto industry, on edge as it prepares to face a surging July with the greatest pressure it has faced in years to meet car emissions standards, has ”set the record straight” with the government and the press.

The pressure on government officials to extend the auto industry’s deadline for meeting federal emission standards has been mounting, as the industry faces the challenge of building cars that meet the 1975 standards.

The industry had set its sights on meeting the standards, but it has been forced to acknowledge that it will not meet the deadline. The government has extended the deadline for the auto industry to meet the standards to the end of 1975.

Auto manufacturers have been working on developing new engine technologies to meet the standards, but they have been faced with a number of challenges. The cost of developing these new technologies is high, and the industry has been unable to come up with a solution that meets the standards.

The industry has also been faced with a lack of public support. Many consumers are not willing to pay the high cost of new cars that meet the standards, and they have been critical of the government’s decision to extend the deadline.

Despite the challenges, the auto industry is determined to meet the standards. The industry has been working closely with the government to develop new technologies that will allow them to meet the standards, and they are confident that they will be able to do so.

The industry has also been working to educate the public about the importance of meeting the standards. They have been running ads and holding events to raise awareness about the issue.

The auto industry has been faced with a number of challenges in recent years, but they are determined to overcome them and to continue to build cars that meet the highest standards of safety and efficiency.

Proposed railroad regulations hit

By VERN HULCUM

WASHINiGTON (AP) — The National Railroad Passenger Corporation, which operates Amtrak, is proposing a series of regulatory changes designed to improve service, cut costs and attract more passengers. The Federal Railroad Administration has proposed the regulations, which would affect a wide range of railroad-related activities, including fares, routes, equipment and safety standards.

The proposed regulations would allow Amtrak to operate routes that are not currently served, increase fares and reduce service on some routes. They would also allow Amtrak to enter into joint ventures with other rail companies and to use foreign labor in some operations.

Amtrak, which operates about 1,000 trains weekly, serves about 50 million passengers each year. It is a federal corporation, but its operations are financed by passenger fares, federal subsidies and private investments.

The regulations are expected to be finalized in the next few months. They would then be subject to public comment and approval by the Federal Railroad Administration.

Another British soldier is killed in Londerry

BELFAST (AP) — The Irish Republican Army killed another British soldier in Londerry, Tuesday night. The soldier was killed in an explosion caused by a bomb planted by the British soldiers. The soldier was a member of the British army.

The explosion occurred near a British military base in Londerry, and the soldier was killed instantly.

It is the third British soldier killed in recent weeks in Londerry. The IRA has been engaged in a campaign of violence against the British government in response to the British government's policy of continuing to maintain troops in Northern Ireland.

The IRA has been conducting a series of attacks against British military targets in recent weeks, and it has claimed responsibility for the deaths of several soldiers.

The United Nations Security Council has condemned the IRA's violence, but the organization has continued to carry out attacks against British military targets.

The IRA has been active in Londerry for several years, and it has a strong base of support in the city. The IRA has been involved in a number of attacks against British military targets in recent weeks, and it has claimed responsibility for the deaths of several soldiers.

Off, on-campus costs similar, survey shows

The survey that's been promised for a while off campus comes as a surprise to many people who have been reading about the cost of living in Winona. The survey, conducted by Winona State University students, shows that the average cost of living off campus is comparable to the cost of living on campus.

Portraits of Winona State students, coordinates in the survey, were all asked to compare their off-campus living costs with their on-campus living costs. The survey was conducted over a period of several weeks, and the results were compiled and analyzed by the students.

The survey results show that the average cost of living off campus is comparable to the cost of living on campus. The students found that the average cost of living off campus is $95 per week, while the average cost of living on campus is $97 per week.

The survey also found that the average cost of living off campus is comparable to the cost of living on campus in terms of food, housing, and transportation costs.

The survey results are significant because they show that students who live off campus can expect to spend the same amount of money on housing, food, and transportation as students who live on campus.

The survey was conducted by Winona State University students, who have been coordinating it for several weeks. The results are expected to be released next week.

The survey results will be used to update Winona State University's housing and food costs for next year. The results will also be used to update the cost of living for Winona State University students who live off campus.

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad to see that you make mistakes, too. If you don't, you aren't the only one with a brain. What you need more than mistakes is a backbone. Don't let Nepal walk all over you. If you can't stand up straight, she won't and she won't give him a divorce.

DEAR ABBY: I can't tell you how happy and relieved I was to read your latest column. I have been corresponding with him after the birth of their third child. I will admit, that if One could care LESS he cares a great deal. And if I couldn't care MORE! Thanks to you and Judge Haney.

DEAR GRANDMA: As long as there is no communication between your son and his wife* there is nothing for you to do. See your attorney.

DEAR DREAMER: Fantasies have always been a part of our lives. They are perfectly normal, and nothing is more fun. Ask any dreamer.

DEAR DREAMER, I am a "dreamer." I have my favorite fantasies about Dean Martin, Paul Newman and Gregory Peck, and I'd never tell him about these romantic dreams I have. But then I could care less if he knew. Just my own private joy.

DEAR ABBY: My son respected her wishes for two years. Finally he couldn’t stand it any longer and he strayed. My son wanted to return to me. And now I don’t want him back. If I had been the one who wanted him, I’d never tell him about these romantic dreams I have. But then I could care less if he knew. Just my own private joy.

Your horoscope—Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22
Your Monday today, Tuesday; and Wednesday is your best. This period is good for the creative, for those interested in being more productive, or for those who are already involved in creative projects. Enjoy the day! The stars are in your favor.

ALBERT "BABY" ATTILA. Unlike the other two horoscope writers, I am a woodworker. My horoscope is based on the belief that it is important to understand the spiritual and physical aspects of life. I am a strong believer in the power of positive thinking and the importance of maintaining a healthy lifestyle. I am also a strong believer in the importance of education and personal growth. I believe that it is important to live a balanced and fulfilling life, and I strive to do so every day.

Today's Horoscope:

Aries (March 21-April 19): Nobody you work with will see the day's problems in the same light. Keep your temper and your head, and the day will pass better than expected.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your efforts today will show results. You are well on your way to achieving your goals.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): Your creativity and the pursuit of romantic and sentimental ventures should thrive.

Cancer (June 22-July 22): Your family and the NEW relations and gifts for the day will be a source of happiness.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your mood today is one of optimism and enthusiasm.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your hard work and determination will provide you with the results you desire.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your social life is on the upswing, and you will enjoy the company of friends.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work piles up. You are well on your way to achieving your goals.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your confidence and self-assurance will be evident to all who know you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your spirit of independence will be evident to all who know you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Nobody wants to stop and think before acting.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your spirit of independence will be evident to all who know you.

Dog psychologist: raise pets not to be canine delinquents

By PEACE HOFFMAN

St. Joseph, Minn. — For those of you who have pets, or for those who are thinking about getting a pet, you may be interested in this advice: if you are planning on having a dog, you should be aware of the possibility of canine delinquency. Dogs can be a source of great joy and companionship, but they can also be a source of frustration and behavior problems. Here are some tips to help you avoid canine delinquency:

1. Socialization: Dogs need to be socialized early on. Take your dog to parks, dog parks, and other social settings where they can interact with other dogs and people.

2. Obedience Training: Dogs need to be trained from an early age. This will help them learn the rules of the house and the expectations of their owners.

3. Mental Stimulation: Dogs need mental stimulation to keep them mentally healthy. This can be achieved through training, puzzles, and other mental exercises.

4. Regular Exercise: Dogs need regular exercise to keep them physically and mentally healthy. This can be achieved through walking, running, and other forms of exercise.

5. Adequate Care: Dogs need adequate care to keep them healthy. This includes proper nutrition, medical care, and daily grooming.

By maintaining these tips, you can help your dog avoid canine delinquency and ensure a happy and healthy life for both you and your pet.
