Astronauts set for return

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16's exploration of the land of the moon tonight will bring the long journey toward the planet's surface to a near conclusion with a successful landing of the command module and return trip in sight.

The Apollo 16 crew — astronauts John W. Young, Frank B. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. and Thomas K. Mattingly II — is scheduled to descend to the moon's surface for the first time since December 7, 1968, with the intent of exploring the Descartes plateau, a region near the lunar equator that has been described as an area of ancient volcanic activity.

Young, Aldrin and Mattingly are scheduled to make their descent in the Eagle, a lunar module that will carry them to the surface for up to 20 hours. The astronauts will collect samples and conduct experiments to help scientists learn more about the moon's geology and history.

Young said in a speech today that the mission was "the greatest adventure any man has ever undertaken." He added, "We are going to the moon to explore, to learn, to grow, to share and to live."

Aldrin, who will become the first American to walk on the moon tonight, said, "This is an exciting time for all of us, especially for those of us who have been on this journey for so long."

Mattingly, who will be the pilot of the mission, said, "I am looking forward to this opportunity to share in this historic event and to contribute to our understanding of the moon's surface."

Many records, one failure

APOLLO 16 (AP) — The flight crew of the Apollo 16 mission collected a total of 245 pounds of samples from the moon's surface, establishing a new record for the amount of material brought back to Earth. The mission also set a new record for the longest total hours exploring the moon's surface, during which the astronauts drove their moon car over the Descartes plateau and on more than 30 miles in the highlands.

However, one failure occurred when John W. Young tried to clear a power cord to the heat flow experiment was broken, ruining the experiments. Grayson has said that the experiment was "an important part of our mission and it is a disappointment that it was not able to function as planned."

Price board ready to set reblobals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Price Commission today announced that it would set price ceilings on a broad range of goods and services to keep prices in check and help control inflation.

Commissioner C. Jackson Grayson said that the commission's limit on profits had been effective in preventing price hikes and had been successful in reducing inflation. He added, "We will continue to monitor the situation and take appropriate action to keep prices in check and help control inflation."

Scientists acclaim mission to highlands

BY BILL STOCKTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists today hailed the Apollo 16 mission as a major scientific achievement. The mission was praised for its contributions to our understanding of the moon's geology, history and environment.

Dr. John H. Morgan, a geologist at the University of California, said, "This mission has made a significant contribution to our understanding of the moon's geology. We have learned a great deal about the moon's history and the processes that have shaped it."

Dr. Robert A. Parnell, a geologist at the University of Arizona, added, "This mission has also made a significant contribution to our understanding of the moon's environment. We have learned a great deal about the moon's atmosphere and the processes that have shaped it."

The Apollo 16 mission is expected to help scientists better understand the moon's geology, history and environment, and to help guide future missions to the moon.

Mondale says all campaigns should be U.S. financed

Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., says there should be a limit to the money spent on federal elections.

"The average American, if there ever was one, is so powerless," he charged. "The reason is that Minnesota's corporate income tax contains an allocation for campaign costs. In 1971, the state spent $2,000,000 on elections, which, he said, signified what was a curse of money should be eliminated from American politics and all campaign costs.

"The present system puts a price tag on almost every political decision," he said. "If we don't move, the Coast Guard will stop him. (1966), 10:30, Ch. 11.

"It would be as if every farmer in Luverne—" said citizens can't find the answer, "nor can farmers in the nation."

"Every politician in America," he added, "is so powerless."

"You can't get politicians to listen to you."

"It's a curse," he charged. "The average American woman makes more money than her husband. Women often dictate the divorce which sometimes American women are forced to suffer."

"They are the only solution to the problems."

"The Alliance of American Women, which calls for expanding the franchise to women, was founded in 1971."

"We are just the same as the average American woman."

"This is a struggle for woman's rights."

"I accept no label. I'm an average American woman."

"I am not a puppet."

"The average American is not interested in vasectomy, nor is his husband."

"We are the only solution to the problems."
