Wallace gets nonboard from voters in Tennessee

By DON MCLEOD

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — George C. Wallace's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination hit its Tennessee test just two days ago with a defeat that left the Alabama governor shaking his head. The setback was a stinging loss to another lesser known candidate, former Senator Al Gore of Tennessee. Wallace, the one-time third party candidate, lost the primary to Gore by a 16,000 to 7,000 vote margin, leaving the Alabamian with a huge hole in his road to the Democratic convention in San Francisco.

Wallace, who in 1968 had won the Democratic primary in Alabama, said his Tennessee loss was a setback, but he would not withdraw from the primary race. He had been banking on a win in Tennessee as a stepping stone to a nomination.

The victory was a victory for Gore, who has been rallying voters for the past two weeks in the state. Gore's campaign manager, Johnnie Cochran, said the victory was a vindication of the strategy that Gore had been following since last week. He had been working to reassert his leadership in the party, and the victory was a victory for him, he said.

Gore, who had been leading in polls in recent weeks, said his victory was a sign that the Democratic Party was ready for change. He said his campaign was about bringing the party together, and he was confident that he could win the nomination.

The loss came as a surprise to many in the party, who had been counting on Wallace to do well in Tennessee.

Wallace was expected to do well in the state, given his previous victories in the South. However, Gore had been campaigning heavily in the state, and his strategy had paid off.

The victory for Gore was a boost for the Democratic Party, which has been struggling to find a candidate who can appeal to both black and white voters. The victory was a sign that the party was ready to move forward, and it was a victory for Gore, who had been working to reassert his leadership in the party.

The loss for Wallace was a stinging defeat, and it was a setback for his campaign. However, he said he would not withdraw from the primary race, and he would continue to fight for the nomination.

Snowmobilers disagree with environmentalists

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Snowmobilers and environmentalists came to loggerheads Thursday night as the St. Paul Police Board, in response to a complaint about illegal vehicle traffic on public lands, denied a request for off-road vehicle use on a snowmobile trail in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) of northeastern Minnesota.

The three-hour hearing at the St. Paul Vocational Technical High School, attended by a large audience, included discussions on the regulation of off-road vehicles in the BWCA, the history and establishment of the trail, and the environmental impact of snowmobiles on wilderness values and wildlife.

The Supreme Court ruled Thursday that banning snowmobiles in the BWCA was constitutional, as the trail was established to protect the last quiet bastion of the snowmobiles in the area. The court also ruled that the snowmobile trail was not being used as a public highway, and therefore did not fall under the jurisdiction of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The court said that the trail was intended to be a private, non-commercial use trail, and that the environmental impact of snowmobiles was not significant enough to warrant the ban. The court also noted that the trail was used by a small number of individuals and that the environmental impact was minimal.

Snowmobilers claim the 1964 Wilderness Act protected the BWCA from commercial use, but the court ruled that the trail was not being used in a commercial manner. The court also noted that the trail was not being used as a high-speed road, and that the environmental impact was minimal.

The court said that the trail was not being used in a manner that would significantly impact the environment, and that the trail was not being used as a high-speed road. The court also noted that the trail was not being used in a commercial manner, and that the environmental impact was minimal.

Property tax cut less than expected

ST. PAUL, May 4 — With a remarkable silence, adding that Minnesotans are not likely to see any property tax John A. Hoevn, a tax attorney, said in response to a question by a member of the audience, "It's not likely that property taxes will be cut in Minnesota this year.

"In fact, it's possible that they will go up slightly, despite the fact that the state has a surplus of $10 million.

"The reason for this is that the state has a lot of debt, and it needs to raise money to pay off some of that debt.

"Also, the state has to pay for the ongoing operations of the government, and it can't cut property taxes too far, or it will have to cut other taxes, like income taxes.

"So, it's not likely that property taxes will be cut, and it's possible that they will go up, even though the state has a surplus.

"It's a difficult situation, but it's the only way the state can balance its budget.

"I'm not saying it's a good situation, but it's the only way it can be done.

"It's a tough situation, but it's the only way it can be done.

Dr. Samuel L. Hayakawa was the voters of present-day America. In his 1965 volume, "The Violence Within," Hayakawa described the "American ideal of freedom...that we have no right to do what we want" as "frightening to many Americans, who have been taught to think of freedom as a right."

The idea of expanding the concept of "freedom" to include" "students" has been a source of concern for many educators. In his book, "The Violence Within," Hayakawa describes the "American ideal of freedom...that we have no right to do what we want" as "frightening to many Americans, who have been taught to think of freedom as a right."

Dear Abby:

As a friend, how would you feel if a close friend of yours died?

Dear Abby: I have a close friend who is very close to my heart. Her name is Betty, and we have been friends for over 10 years. She is a wonderful person, and I love her very much. However, I recently found out that she is getting married to a man named David, and I am not happy about it. I know that Betty is happy with him, but I feel like something is missing from our friendship.

Could you please give me some advice on how to handle this situation?

God's Soil

...and it's time to conserve it...time to save it! It is evident, when we witness the increased destruction of timber lands, national cover crops and wide-spread erosion, America needs a national Save-The-Soil-Week. It is urgent that we treat Mother Earth with greater respect and appreciation. We must give back to her as much as we take away. There's no better time than during National Save-The-

Soil-Week, to come to a full realization that "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." We are stewards, appointed by God, to look after the earth He gave us. It is time to renew your faith in God and the Good Earth.
Thoughts of a clownman.

None so blessed

BY THE REV. JOHN L. FLEISHLER, Pastor Lin Creek, Dakota and Dresbach, Mion. United Methodist Church.

A small boy, born with many advantages, has had an adventurous life. He didn’t “sweat” in glands; there were no psychotics to his worries.

But the young lad saved enough money from his energy strategy to buy a “Thelmas” Miracle Garden for his name organic salad, which he used for his cereal.

When this adventure was over, he turned his mind toward a new adventure, a summer job in the garden. He was young and eager to learn.

In recounting his experiences, he said, “I used to think that the garden was a paradise. I had to pull some weeds, but I didn’t mind. I enjoyed the fresh air and the sunshine. The flowers were always in bloom.

I remember one day I was picking flowers when I heard a loud noise. It was a locust. I was shocked when I saw it. It was huge! But I didn’t run away.
I just stayed there and observed it. I learned a lot about locusts that day.”

The young boy continued, “At times, I felt lonely in the garden. But I knew that my parents were always there for me. They were proud of me and supported me through thick and thin.”

The young boy’s adventures in the garden were memorable, and he believed that they taught him important lessons about life. He learned the importance of hard work, perseverance, and adaptability.

But the young boy’s greatest adventure was yet to come. With his garden skills and knowledge, he opened his own garden business, which thrived for many years. He continued to learn and grow, and his adventures in the garden will always be remembered.

Dominican church marks 50th year

BY KENNETH NEWS/FEATURES

Five years ago, the first congregation of what is now known as the Dominican Church was established. The church is the oldest congregation in the state of Wisconsin, and it has been a cornerstone of the community ever since.

The church was founded by a group of individuals who were eager to establish a place of worship and community in the area. They formed a congregation and began meeting in a small room, eventually moving to a larger building where the church remains today.

Over the years, the church has grown and expanded, serving a wide range of community needs. It has become a hub of activity, offering programs and services to people of all ages and backgrounds.

The church has also been involved in community service and outreach efforts, supporting local organizations and organizations around the world. It has been a source of inspiration and support for people in the area, providing a place of refuge and comfort.
