Daily News Staff Writer

Agreement that some areas could be improved than the other, was being developed by the governmental bodies has resulted in a number of subdivisions. The total of all subdivisions was over 50 square feet. The City Planning Commission approved the plan, saying it would improve the area.

In other action, the commission also approved a plat for building a new subdivision. The plat would consist of approximately 100 acres of land. The plan was presented by the subdivision's attorney, Robert J. D. Langford presenting arguments in favor of approval and no objections in the gallery.

Commissioner Charles Dillerud who said that certain developers' attorney, Robert J. D. Langford had prepared some time ago and that certain developers' attorney, Robert J. D. Langford had prepared some time ago and that certain developments might be required.

Dillerud said that although some developments might be required, he did not see any objections in the gallery.

The commission then approved the plat for the new subdivision.

Brownsville boy dies of injuries

A Brownsville, Ohio, boy has died of injuries received in a car accident. The boy, 17-year-old James C. Brokaw, was thrown from a car in a single-vehicle accident in the town on May 10.

The accident occurred at 1:03 p.m., when the boy was driving in a car heading north on Route 56. The car hit a tree and flipped over, killing the boy.

The driver of the other car involved in the accident was not injured.

The boy was pronounced dead at the scene.

City Planner Charles Dillerud, who reviewed the project, said that the subdivision was well planned and that the developers had done a good job. The subdivision was approved by the commission.
Porn movies dying of boredom

CANNON — Few sites of probable excess or farce in the world of entertainment have been more neglected than the movies with cheap, raunchy stories that are marketed as sex-oriented. But some producers, who are already engaged in other ventures, are exploring the American audience for a new kind of movie that will appeal to America.

"Where has the audience gone?" asks Bob Orben, a producer of low-budget movies. "They're not interested in the kind of movies they used to like. They want something new and different."

Orben's last film, "Greed," was a box office disaster. But he has high hopes for his latest project, "The Godfather," which he plans to release next month.

"This is a movie that will appeal to a new audience," Orben says. "It's different from anything else that has been made before."

WASHINGTON — Senator Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate, is in the White House today, and there are signs that the President and the Senator may be meeting either this morning or tonight to discuss some matters of importance. Stevenson had previously been scheduled to see the President today.

In the past, Stevenson and the President have been close friends, and the Senator has been a strong supporter of the President's foreign policy. However, their relationship has been strained in recent months, particularly over the issue of the Vietnam War. Stevenson has been critical of the President's policy in Vietnam, while the President has been critical of Stevenson's public statements.

McGovern's leap— is it democratic?

From an editorial in Chicago Tribune

Sunday, May 16, 1976

Sen. George McGovern is now considered the favorite in the race for the Democratic nomination. But the situation could change at any time, and there are several factors that could influence the outcome.

First, there is the Democratic Party convention. McGovern, with 15 million votes, is well ahead of his nearest rival, Edward Muskie, with 10 million votes, and George Wallace, with 5 million votes. But the convention rules are not clear, and it is possible that a player could be nominated on a platform or at the convention.

In other words, more than 1 million Democratic votes have been cast, and only 5 million have been cast on the floor of the convention. McGovern is certain to get the most votes, but he may not get the majority he needs to win the nomination. The result will depend on the behavior of the delegates, and the outcome could be decided at the convention.

The calls for McGovern's withdrawal

In the wake of the Democratic convention, there have been calls for McGovern's withdrawal from the presidential race. Some have suggested that McGovern should drop out of the race to ensure the nomination of another candidate. Others have called for McGovern to run as an independent candidate or as a third-party candidate.

However, McGovern has been urging the Democratic Party to support him. He has said that he is the only candidate who can ensure a majority of the Democratic votes. He has also said that he is the only candidate who can win the general election.

If you're going to play it up as too simple to pick the likelier black man or woman to win, let's see where the strength of the forces lies that might make it difficult to play a decisive role in the election of a president.

In fact, the forces that are working against the election of a president are formidable. There are forces that are working for the election of a president, but they are not as powerful as the forces that are working against the election of a president.

Life after death

By THE REV. JOSEPH L. SCHUMACHER

Every true minister of God has the personal assurance and experience of the Lord Jesus Christ to support him in the spiritual life even after he has died. The word "life" is not always here in this world but rather in the world to come. It is a comforting thought for the minister to know that he is not alone in the world after his death, but that he is united with the Lord of the Universe. This is the assurance that the minister has in the life to come.

State court narrowly upholds conviction on defacing flag.

By GREG NELSON
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal appeals court on Friday upheld the conviction of Thomas L. Clifton, 41, of Minneapolis, who was found guilty of defacing the American flag by painting a white peace symbol on it.

Clifton, a Mormon, was found guilty by a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Clifton, who was a member of the Mormon church, was convicted by a federal judge in 1980 of defacing the American flag with a white peace symbol.

In regional track meet
Cotter thinclads going for broke

By C. LYNCH

Lake City, Minn. — The Lake City High School boys track team is picturing the Fort Benton High School Class C meet as no ordinary affair. It was one of the best track meets of the year for Lake City, and it will be the second meet this season for the team, which placed fourth at the Section meet.

According to Lake City coach H. L. Hunsaker, the team is prepared for the meet, which will be held tomorrow. He said the team is ready for the meet, and that the team will be able to handle the competition.

The meet will be held at the University of South Dakota, and will be the second meet for the team this season. The team placed fourth at the Section meet.

The top three places in each event will be awarded, and the team will be presented with plaques.

A big mistake

THE DEPARTMENT of Transportation in Minnesota has stopped looking for a site for a new storage facility for the St. Croix River near Stillwater.

The department said it was not including the river in the Colclough proposal because it did not want to have a storage facility near the river.

The Colclough proposal would have built a storage facility near the river to control the flow of water.

Anderson and Governor Patrick J. Lawler of Wisconsin have testified in favor of the bill, which would require the department to study the potential impacts of the storage facility.

The department's field study team recommended that the storage facility be built, but the team said the facility would have to be located near the river.
