McGovern opens final push for primary votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, confronting the real possibility of losing his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, pressed his campaign for the first time through Friday morning when he resolved, "If I don't make it, then I'll drop out.

McGovern's trip to South Dakota to view the destruction caused by Saturday's floods was described as the worst disaster in his home state.

The South Dakota senator, who is under way to Washington, said, "The campaign's been a long grind." He was resolute in saying, "I'm going to stick with it through the convention."

He's had those out for over a month, 'til just, gee, he's got position paper after position paper."

Walter Mondale, the vice president, said, "The only other fact that Muskie was dropping out is that he would not encourage anyone to drop out.

It's even been so much on the news that McGovern is running out of cash, but I would put that to rest right now.

That's a fact that McGovern spent the day Friday getting in touch with his family and friends, but, "I'll still be in the race," he said.

"It's even been on the network. But I'm going to be in the race, so don't count me out yet."

"We'll stay with it through the convention."
ST PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Two ironworkers' locals and two cement masons' locals went on a strike rally, following the rejection of the proposed agreement by the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of Minnesota.

A statement issued by the AGC said that it was a "non-binding" proposal and that the unions had rejected it.

The statement said that the unions had rejected the proposal because it did not meet the needs of the workers.

The statement added that the AGC would continue to negotiate with the unions.

The flood played no favorites

By DAVID M. MURPHY
Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — The last of the dead in the flood disaster in Rapid City, S.D., was found today, bringing the total fatalities in the municipal disaster to 102. The death toll had been at 101 until this morning.

The city's police chief,4-year-old "Billy Wayne Noble, was found near a lumber yard.

The body was discovered when a state police officer, checking on a report of a missing person, found the boy's clothing near a wooden structure.

The boy was identified by his mother, Mrs. Noble, who was searching the area for her child after hearing of the disaster.

The death toll is the highest in the state in recent years.

WASHINGTON — In the aftermath of the California primary election yesterday, the Democratic presidential candidates are now beginning to consider the long road ahead.

It is likely that the national media will focus more on the Democratic candidates for the nomination, particularly Senator McGovern and Representative Tip O'Neill. However, it is important to remember that the California primary was a crucial victory for McGovern, and he is now seen as the front-runner for the nomination.

McGovern's victory was significant for several reasons. First, it showed that he has strong support in the West, which has been a weak area for him in past campaigns. Second, it demonstrated his ability to win in a state with a large number of African American voters. Finally, it provided a much-needed boost for his campaign, which had been struggling in recent weeks.

Although McGovern's victory was significant, it is unlikely to be the end of the road for either candidate. The Democratic nomination race is far from over, and both candidates will continue to fight hard for the nomination.

THE RIGHT WING — The right wing of the Democratic party is beginning to feel the pressure. After the California primary, Senator Edward Kennedy is now facing a challenge from Representative John D. Dingell of Michigan.

Kennedy's campaign is facing several challenges. First, he is facing strong opposition from the party establishment, which is concerned about his lack of support among African American voters. Second, he is facing strong competition from Representative Dingell, who has a strong base in the party's conservative wing.

Dingell's campaign is focusing on the issue of race relations. He is arguing that Kennedy is too soft on law and order, and that he is not doing enough to address the growing concerns about crime and violence.

Kennedy, in turn, is trying to argue that he is the more moderate of the two candidates. He is hoping to appeal to moderate Democrats who are concerned about his opposition to the Vietnam War.

It is likely that the California primary will be the beginning of a new phase in the Democratic nomination race. Both candidates will continue to fight hard for the nomination, and the race is far from over.
