Officials ask retention of special needs welfare fund

"That's the last straw, that this welfare fund needs to be shut down now," said Madeline C. Todd, chairman of the Wisconsin's Public Welfare Rights Committee, at a meeting in Madison on Tuesday.

"We are not asking you to be separated from those who need help," said Todd. "But this is a special needs program that is not making the most of our resources."

The special needs program is designed to provide a way for people to receive assistance if they have special needs, such as disabilities or medical conditions. However, Todd said that the program is not being used effectively.

"We have to ask ourselves if we are using this program correctly," said Todd. "We need to make sure that the people who need help are getting it, and not just those who are taking advantage of it."

The proposal to end the special needs program was introduced by the Wisconsin Legislative Black Caucus. The caucus is made up of African-American lawmakers who are working to address issues of racial inequality in the state.

"We believe that the special needs program is not working as it should," said accused John F. Smith, a member of the caucus. "We need to find a way to make sure that everyone who needs help is getting it."

Mr. Packard told his class that his own view is that death is a natural part of life, and that it is important to accept it as such.

Despite these difficulties, Hermione remains optimistic about the future. "I believe in the power of the people," she said. "They will support me in my fight for freedom and justice."
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A House subcommittee has approved a bill allowing drugstores to advertise the price of prescription drugs.

O'Haire said the measure passed 18-0. He said the advertising could not encourage the unnecessary use or consumption of prescription drugs.

The bill would give the Drugstore Council the right to refuse advertising in any store. A similar bill has been defeated by the state Board of Pharmacy. Opponents generally contend that advertising will not encourage the unnecessary use of drugs.

The advertising could not encourage the unnecessary use or consumption of prescription drugs. It was argued, and the state Board of Pharmacy generally concluded that advertising would not encourage the unnecessary use or consumption, especially persons with chronic illnesses who need a steady diet of prescription drugs.

Some surveys have shown a wide variety of prices for the same drug, among various stores.

Six DFLers and one Republican voted for the bill; two Republicans opposed it.

Wrestling meet a plus for area

The Tribune's high school wrestling meet, held at Waukon Field over the weekend, received high marks from the fans and competitors of the events, many of them from outside the area.

With Internet 90 taking traffic away from the community, it was hoped that every event we can attract.

With several hundreds on hand in recent meets, the area's events have been a hit for area teams.

The hotel-based restaurant industry is an important industry, but many people who don't live in the area may not be aware of it. This is why we must celebrate this success, and work to ensure that our restaurants continue to flourish.

A move would be to have the tournament be outside of Waukon, ensuring that the public's right to know what it's buying.

That was the headline to the Sunday Sun that offers more than a passing glance, for behind it the school is expressing a message for all of us.

In a program developed largely by students, the Tribune's high school students have appeared with a new message: "Caring for others." The program emerged out of a concern for carelessness, selfishness and certain conditions among the facility.

Administrative and faculty printed the way, and students are making adjustments, said, "We have been moved with a sense of humility.

Congress control on spending power gets narrow approval

Although the American people are generally in favor of a balanced budget, recent polls show a growing concern about federal spending, especially by the federal government. The public is anxious to see a reduction in the national debt and a decrease in the national deficit. However, the recent approval of the proposed budget for the next fiscal year has been narrow, with just a slight majority favoring the cuts. The Budget Committee in Congress has been divided, with some members favoring a more aggressive approach to reducing the deficit, while others are concerned about the impact on social programs.

The judiciary must be made aware of its true mission

The founding fathers took great pains to draw distinct boundaries between the three branches of government: the executive, legislative, and judicial. Yet, especially, wrinkles in the fabric of this balance have often been seen to favor the latter two branches. It is therefore crucial that the judiciary, as the third branch, remains vigilant and independent. The judiciary has the responsibility to interpret the law and ensure that it is applied fairly and impartially. Any erosion of this principle would be detrimental to the stability and legitimacy of the system.

Major provisions of consumer act

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Here are some of the major provisions of the Wisconsin Consumer Act, which went into effect today.

- No-fault returns: A consumer may return merchandise to a merchant within three business days without need to explain or prove injury. However, if the return occurs more than 30 days after the date the purchase was made, the merchant may charge a restocking fee not to exceed 15 percent of the price.

- Credit transactions: A consumer must be informed of the total cost of the credit transaction, including finance charges, before agreeing to sign a contract. The merchant must also provide a copy of the contract to the consumer.

- Subpoenaed transactions: If a consumer is subpoenaed in an action involving a credit transaction, the merchant must give the consumer notice of the action and the consumer's right to contest the subpoena.

- Cooling-off periods: A cooling-off period is required when a consumer agrees to a credit transaction or enters into an installment sales contract. The cooling-off period runs from the date the consumer agrees to the transaction to the date the consumer signs the contract. During this period, the consumer may cancel the transaction without penalty. If the consumer decides to keep the merchandise, the merchant must provide a written statement confirming the cancellation of the transaction.

- Other provisions: The Wisconsin Consumer Act includes a range of other provisions aimed at protecting consumers, including provisions on false advertising, deceptive trade practices, and the use of unfair methods of competition.

Chances of gaining custody of grandson slim

Dear Abby:

My thirty-one-year-old daughter has been living for the past two years with her boyfriend in a shabby apartment in the same town where I live. I have no contact with this son of mine and I know none of his activities. He moved out of our house eight years ago and has never lived with his mother. My daughter and her boyfriend have never acknowledged my existence.

Recently, after a heated argument, my daughter's partner stated that if I were to get the custody of my grandson, my daughter would never speak to me again. I am concerned about my grandson's welfare.

To whom it may concern,

I would like to know the chances of me gaining custody of my grandson. My daughter is twenty years old and has a son named Thomas, who is two years old. I have not seen him since he was born because my daughter refuses to let me visit. She only lets her boyfriend see him.

I would appreciate any information you can provide on this matter. I am willing to take legal action if necessary. Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Wounded Knee scene of last major confrontation

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. - The final volley fired by the Lakota and Cheyenne warriors at Wounded Knee Creek in South Dakota was fired 80 years ago today. The 128th anniversary of the massacre here in 1890 was observed on Dec. 29 and 30 by the American Indian Community, which had suffered a battle loss during both World Wars, 5,6 and 7. A small ceremony marked the event.

Xmas Bell—most women, children and elderly were carried by their col- leagues near the village of South Dakota. Some of the 11 dead Litts men are from the same village.

The war at Wounded Knee was part of the Lakota resistance to the U.S. government's removal of the Lakota and Cheyenne people from the plains to reservations. The Lakota and Cheyenne tribes had been forced to leave their homes on the Great Plains and move to reservations in the 1870s, but the U.S. government continued to violate their rights and their lands were taken. The massacre at Wounded Knee was the result of a series of conflicts between the Lakota and Cheyenne tribes and the U.S. government.

The war ended during the struggle for survival, as the Lakota and Cheyenne people fought against the U.S. government's removal of their lands. The war was marked by violence and brutality, and the U.S. government's response to the war was brutal and violent.

The war at Wounded Knee was a turning point in the history of the U.S. government's relations with the Lakota and Cheyenne tribes. The war marked the beginning of the end for the Lakota and Cheyenne people's autonomy and their right to their lands.

WASHINGTON (AP) — On another bandstand where the Federal Reserve was thinking of a new law to give greater freedom to the banks to make loans and create money, President Nixon vetoed a bill Wednesday that would have strengthened the bill's provisions for a new and powerful Federal Reserve System.

In his message, Nixon said that the new law would make it easier for banks to make loans and create money, but that the Senate had failed to provide the needed freedom for the banks.

Bemidji seeks eighth NIC swimming crown

The Bemidji State Swim Team will be seeking its eighth national intercollegiate championship when it competes in the NIC conference meet at St. John's University this weekend. The meet will be held in the 25-meter pool.

"The main reason we're going is to have a good time and enjoy swimming," said Coach Jim Hopp. "We have some good swimmers this year and we have a chance to win.

"We hope to have a good meet, but we also want to have some fun. We're taking a lot of the pressure off ourselves and just having fun.

"We're looking forward to swimming in the 25-meter pool, which is a lot different from the 50-meter pool we usually swim in."

The meet will be held in an area that is known for its scenic beauty, which is located in the heart of the northern Minnesota wilderness.

"We're excited to be there and to be able to swim in such a beautiful location," said Hopp.

"The meet is scheduled for March 11-12, and we're looking forward to competing against some of the best teams in the country.

"We're confident that we can do well, and we're looking forward to the challenge of meeting some of the best swimmers in the country."

The Bemidji State Swim Team has a strong tradition of success, and the team has won multiple national championships in the past.

"We have a lot of experience on our team, and we're confident that we can perform well," said Hopp.

"We're looking forward to the meet, and we're excited to see what we can do."
And these days, gentlemen, the art of diplomacy is basically knowing how to get in and out of a house while waving gracefully at the cart.
