WASHINGTON (AP) - The Watergate scandal, in its second month, began to show signs yesterday that it had eroded the presidency. In the past, the White House's ability to suppress news reports has been nearly impeccable. Reports received today from an Associated Press source also reported that members of the administration were attempting to suppress reports that Richard Nixon was involved in the break-in of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex, although the White House denied it.

The White House spokesmen rejected suggestions that the Watergate scandal has made some people lose faith in the presidency, because of President Nixon's second-term re-election campaign, which now seemed to be in trouble, according to sources who were expected to worsen after new rains last week fell in the flooded areas.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon was to fly over some of the flooded areas en route to a ceremony at Meridian, Miss., honoring Sen. John C. No-fault insurance won't reduce premiums, witnesses claim

Wisconsin Electric Tower Co., a public interest group that advocates for electricity in Wisconsin, held a hearing on Friday, April 12, 1973, to discuss the potential effects of no-fault insurance on electric rates. The hearing was held in Madison, the capital of Wisconsin, and was attended by representatives from the insurance industry, labor unions, and consumer groups.

One of the main arguments against no-fault insurance, according to Richard Rouse, representing the Wisconsin Electric Power Cooperative Association, was that it would increase the cost of electricity. Rouse stated that the current system of liability insurance was sufficient and that no-fault insurance would lead to higher premiums and a decrease in coverage.

On the other hand, some witnesses, such as John Wickhem, of the State Bar, argued that no-fault insurance would reduce the cost of medical treatment and lower insurance premiums. Wickhem stated that the threshold limit— the amount of pain and suffering that a person could recover for damages due to an accident— was not adequate.

The state bar proposal has no built-in savings mechanism, Wickhem said, and it would allow too many people to sue for pain and suffering, leading to higher premiums. The state bar proposal would allow injured persons the option of suing for non-economic damages, such as pain and suffering, if they can prove that the threshold limit was not adequate.

Critics of the bar proposal argued that it would not reduce premiums and would not provide adequate compensation. Some witnesses, such as John Winkelmeyer, argued that the state bar proposal was not a solution to the problem of medical malpractice.

The hearing was part of a larger campaign to pass the Wisconsin ceiling law, which was intended to limit insurance premiums and increase the availability of medical treatment.

The state bar was an important force in the no-fault insurance legislation, and the testimony of the witnesses at the hearing was critical in shaping the final bill.

Long-range power plant requirements receive applause

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The applause from power plant operators and officials of the Wisconsin Electric Power Cooperative was loud and clear. They were pleased with the state's ratification of retail power plant requirements.

The Wisconsin Electric Power Cooperative President, Ralph Nye, called the bill a "landmark" in the history of electric power in Wisconsin. Nye said the bill would provide a steady flow of power to the state, which would be essential in meeting the increasing demand for electricity.

However, Opponents of the bill, including the Wisconsin Electric Power Cooperative, argued that the bill was not a sufficient solution to the problem of power plant requirements. They were concerned that the bill would not provide enough power to meet the growing demand for electricity.

In conclusion, the Wisconsin Electric Power Cooperative was pleased with the state's ratification of the bill. They believed that the bill was a necessary step in meeting the growing demand for electricity in Wisconsin.

Ban on gold dealing may be near repeal

By ROBERT S. BOSTWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Republi- can leaders are expected to announce Friday that they are backing a bill that would allow the first major step toward selling gold in the U.S., a ban that has held since World War II.

The legislation, sponsored by Rep. James B. Traficant Jr., D-Ohio, would allow the sale of gold coins, bullion and jewelry. It would also create a task force to study the possibility of selling gold bullion to the public.

The bill would be the first major step toward repealing the 1933 Gold Reserve Act, which prohibited the sale of gold bullion and gold coins to the public.

The legislation would also establish a Gold Reserve Fund to finance the cost of implementing the bill.

The bill is expected to be introduced in the House on Friday and is likely to be passed by the end of the month.

The legislation would also authorize the U.S. Treasury to sell gold to the public on a limited basis.

Mini bike riders are traffic hazard

I'm a supporter of people who can understand the lack of ambition of others. At a door to door survey of the Winona area citizens, I found that 95% of the people who live there do not keep their dogs tied up. And in all areas, especially as long as the money in their pockets will allow, they continue to feed the traffic laws. As a matter of fact, if it were not for the job, I would gladly pay the extended fees to the town to remain.

I'm a little bit of a political junkie, and one of the people I support most is the Morgan Block. As a child of Rochester, I have been a part of the team and have always been concerned about the lack of ambulance service.

Why Compromise

—when the road to happiness offers so much? There are only two marked ways—one leads to happiness—the other to oblivion. One might lead to Heaven—the other to hell. But why despair when the going gets tough, when you have a decision to make? This may be the true measure God uses to separate the good from the bad; the chaff from the wheat; men of strength and character from those with none. Why compromise with oblivion staring you in the face?

It is an unceasing testimonial of weakness. One may lose the bird in the hand; lose all the God-given opportunities for service and most of all, your own soul. Maybe you still have time to come to church and let it help you decide the directions to go.
Hindu scholars gather

By BERNARD WEINBAUM

NEW DELHI — Benares Hindu University scholars meet to discuss the Vedas, the ancient Hindu scriptures, and their influence on modern Hinduism.

"The Vedas" is a collection of sacred texts that form the oldest and most important scriptures of Hinduism. They consist of four main collections: the Rigveda, Samaveda, Yajurveda, and Atharvaveda. These texts are divided into the Samhitas (collections), the Brahmanas (commentaries), and the Upanishads (philosophical dialogues).

The scholars gathered to discuss the role of the Vedas in contemporary Hindu thought. They explored how these ancient texts continue to influence modern Hindu practices and beliefs.

Transports strike idles Japanese

By JOHN ROBINSON

TOKYO — Japanese trucks idled Monday as three-day transport strike looking at the eight-day-old strike after three unions agreed to end it.

This week, there were three million trucks working around the clock, 50 percent of the total.

The strike was called by the three unions to protest the government's decision to raise the price of gasoline, which has plunged to 61, the lowest level.

On the previous day, the strike ended and the workers were tagged as "low-income earners" by the government. The new workers are demanding higher wages and improved working conditions.

But the three unions, the Japanese Railway Workers Union, the National Railway Workers Union, and the Transport Workers Union, were unable to reach an agreement on the strike.

The three unions have agreed to return to work on Monday.

Future of Title I funds outlined at training session

Most recent information regarding the future of school programs nationwide focused on the provisions of Title I of the Elementary and Secondary School Aid Act was presented to southern Minnesota Title I administrators at a training session Thursday at Holiday Inn. Vern Stiles, Title I coordinator for Winona County, reported the importance of local representation for the success attained by programs represented in Winona County.

Principal speaker at the meeting was Thomas H. Scott, state coordinator of Title I programs. Mr. Scott explained that programs being outlined at this training session are aimed at providing assistance to school districts in planning and implementing programs to meet the needs of many children in the United States.

Scott told the group that the specific provisions of Title I, which are contained in the Education Amendments of 1970, provide for the allocation of funds for educationally disadvantaged children. These funds are intended to provide educational opportunities for children whose educational needs are not being met by the regular educational services of their school systems.

Mr. Scott went on to explain the importance of effective planning and implementation of educational opportunities for disadvantaged children. He emphasized the need for close cooperation between local school districts, state educational agencies, and local service agencies to ensure that children's needs are met.

The funds outlined at this session are intended to supplement the regular educational services of school districts. They are not intended to replace these services but to provide additional resources to improve the educational opportunities available to children.

Mr. Scott concluded by emphasizing the importance of local representation in planning and implementing programs under Title I. He stated that the success of these programs depends on the involvement of local school districts, state educational agencies, and local service agencies in the planning process.
