Nixon gets more time to produce material

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House of Representatives on Tuesday retired the Nixon administration's request for a four-week extension of the deadline for turning over White House tapes and documents on the Watergate scandal.

The Nixon administration's offer of a four-week extension of the deadline was made after the administration's lawyer, John Dean, informed the House that it had no more tapes to turn over to the Watergate investigation.

The extension was sought as part of a deal with the Watergate special prosecutor, Archibald Cox, to pay for the investigation by the president's Committee on Legislative Oversight.

The extension was approved by the House committee on Monday after it was agreed that Cox would turn over tapes of his conversations with Nixon and his aides on the Watergate case.

The House committee also approved an extension of the deadline for producing documents and tapes to Jan. 15, 1974, after the administration agreed to turn over all relevant materials on the Watergate scandal.

The extension was granted on the condition that the administration would turn over all relevant materials on the Watergate scandal by Jan. 15, 1974.

State to get one percent more gasoline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration said Tuesday the District of Columbia would get one percent more gasoline from the federal government.

The administration said the increase would be based on the District's population and would be effective as of Feb. 1, 1974.

The increase was the result of a formula that takes into account the District's population, as well as its economic and environmental needs.

The formula was developed by the National Academy of Sciences and the National Research Council and was designed to ensure that federal block grants would be distributed fairly.

Under the formula, the District would receive $1.5 billion in block grants in fiscal year 1974, compared to $1.4 billion in fiscal year 1973.

The increase was in line with the administration's goals of providing more resources to help meet the needs of the nation's capital.

Mini-budget in Wisconsin lead

MADISON (UPI) — The Wisconsin state budget for fiscal year 1974 was set Tuesday at $1.3 billion, which was $20 million below the governor's proposal.

The budget was the result of a compromise reached between the governor and the legislature, which agreed to cut some spending and increase some revenue.

The budget included a 20 percent increase in spending for education, which was the governor's priority.

The budget also included a 10 percent increase in spending for health and human services.

The budget was passed by a vote of 60-30 in the state Senate and 109-28 in the state House.

When will the drought end?

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The drought that has gripped the United States for the past several years is expected to continue into the fall, according to the latest report from the Agriculture Department.

The report, released last week, said the drought is expected to last until late fall, when rain is expected to finally arrive.

The report also said that the drought has caused a significant decrease in crop yields and has led to higher prices for farm products.

The drought has also prompted a number of farmers to seek federal assistance, and the government has announced several programs to help farmers during the drought.

A step short of impeaching

Tom Wicker

Debate is, at its heart, a long and venerable institution. In the bicameral Congress, it is the venue of debate and deliberation. The Senate has long been considered the chamber of reflection, with its closed-door sessions and the tradition of cloture or the requirement for 60 votes to end debate and proceed to a vote. The House, on the other hand, has a more open and dynamic atmosphere, with frequent votes and the potential for immediate action. Both chambers have their distinctive styles, and the nature of the debate in each can influence the outcome of legislation.

In the context of impeachment, debate is critical. It allows for a thorough examination of the charges against a president or other high official, ensuring that the proceedings are transparent and that all relevant evidence is considered. The Senate, as the body tasked with judging the case, must conduct a fair and impartial trial, and debate is an essential tool for achieving that goal.

However, recent events have raised concerns about the integrity of the debate process. With the growth of social media and other forms of instant communication, debate has become more rapid and intense. This has led to a rise in partisanship and ideological polarization, making it difficult for lawmakers to find common ground and reach consensus.

The danger of this trend is that it can undermine the effectiveness of the debate process. If lawmakers are not able to engage in substantive discussion and consider all relevant evidence, the outcome of the debate may be predetermined before it even begins. This can lead to hasty and ill-advised decisions, with potentially disastrous consequences.

Therefore, it is crucial that we work to strengthen the debate process and ensure that it remains a vital component of our democratic system. This will require a commitment to civility and reason, a willingness to listen to opposing viewpoints, and a dedication to finding common ground even in the face of significant disagreement.

In conclusion, while debate is an essential aspect of the impeachment process, it is also crucial that we work to strengthen this process and ensure that it remains a vital part of our democratic system. By doing so, we can help to protect the integrity of the debate process and ensure that it remains a vital component of our democratic system.

Get off the hook, both of you will feel better

DEAR ABBY: I was really surprised when Joyce asked me to be maid of honor for her wedding. I've been close friends with Joyce for a long time, and I accepted because I didn't know how else, but now I'm really wondering if I did the right thing. Joyce has a new boyfriend, and he's really Jealous of me. It's really tough living with all of this pressure.

I've never been in a wedding before, but I'm really feeling the pressure of having to do everything perfectly. I'm not sure if I can handle this. I've even considered declining, but I don't want to hurt Joyce's feelings. What should I do?

Joyce (Not her real name)

DEAR JOYCE: It's not necessarily your job to be perfect, but it's your job to be supportive. You can help Joyce feel more comfortable by being her friend, rather than her critic.

Dear Abby:

I'm the maid of honor at my sister's wedding, and I'm feeling very overwhelmed. I don't know where to start, and I'm worried about making a mistake. Can you give me some tips on how to handle this role?

Sisterly Love

DEAR SISTERLY LOVE: Being a maid of honor can be a daunting task, but it's also a great honor. Here are some tips to help you:

1. Communicate with the bride: Stay in touch with the bride regularly and ask how you can help. This will make her feel supported.
2. Be present: Be there for the bride on her big day. Offer to help with last-minute preparations.
3. Be a good listener: Sometimes the bride will need to vent, and you can be a supportive ear.
4. Be flexible: Be prepared for anything to happen, and be willing to adapt as needed.

Remember, the most important thing is to enjoy the day and make memories with your sister.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I recently found out that my daughter is pregnant. I'm devastated. How can I help her through this tough time?

Confused Parent

DEAR CONFUSED PARENT: It's okay to feel overwhelmed, but try to focus on providing support and guidance for your daughter. Here are some steps you can take:

1. Talk to her: Have an open and honest conversation about what she's going through.
2. Encourage her to seek professional help: A counselor or therapist can provide emotional support and guidance.
3. Help her create a plan: Discuss what she wants to do next and offer to help her find resources.
4. Stay involved: Continue to support her through this process.

Remember, it's important to prioritize your daughter's well-being, and you can offer a loving and supportive environment.

A closer Walk With God Will Lead You Right Straight to Church

NOTE!

A common-some law of life warns us not to do it, To do so proves just bone weak and small we really are. It is vulgar. It is a Bible command. We are warned "not to take the name of the Lord Thy God in vain." Why do we do it?

Is your soul calibrated? Do you associate with wicked people? Do you insistently think it is smart? Do you own a dirty vocabulary? Just explain why you do it.

Your best friends don't like it. Your office associates hate it. Your family and even the stranger on the street condemns you for it. Why on earth do you do it? The Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain.

You solve a problem, never gained a friend nor proved a reason for using these words. You are losing your honor. God requires better of you. Regular worship in church will help you break this drinking habit. Learn to respect and honor God. Don't swear!
The interest in the Bible grows

By VIOLA MILLER, soap, Jewel, South Central Methodist Church,

This is the age of the Bible. It is not a coincidence that the number of books written about the Bible is growing. People are searching for the meaning of life and the Bible provides answers. The Church has always been a place where people can come to learn about the Bible and understand its teachings. The Bible is not just a book, but a living document that speaks to the hearts of believers.
