Mills affirms he helped get milk supports

By J. DONNILL JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) - Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said Monday that he had helped get federal support for the nation's milk producers in a recent agreement between the United States and the European Economic Community.

Mills said Monday he had worked to get the support for the nation's milk producers through his committee's involvement in a larger trade agreement between the United States and the EEC. He said the agreement was part of a broader effort to encourage international trade.

The administration is seeking to negotiate a new trade agreement with the EEC, which would include provisions to protect the nation's dairy industry.

The National Milk Producers Federation, which represents dairy farmers, has been actively involved in the negotiations and has expressed concerns about potential trade barriers that could affect the nation's dairy farmers.

Mills said the agreement could help ensure that the milk producers continue to receive fair prices for their product, which is essential to ensuring a stable supply of dairy products.

The agreement is a significant win for the nation's dairy industry, which has been facing tough times in recent years due to a declining demand for milk products and increased competition from foreign producers.

The administration is expected to submit the proposed agreement to Congress for ratification, and it is likely to face opposition from some members of Congress who are concerned about the potential impact on domestic dairy producers.

The milk producers have been lobbying Congress to pass legislation that would provide additional support for the industry, and the administration is expected to continue to work with them to ensure that they are adequately compensated for their efforts.

On the inside:

Court

The U.S. Supreme Court Monday upheld the tax deductions of the Clinton L. Woodruff Foundation, a New York-based charitable organization.

The foundation had claimed deductions for contributions to the National Wildlife Federation, a group that had been involved in a high-profile tax fraud case.

The IRS had challenged the deductions, arguing that the foundation was using them to avoid paying taxes on its income from investments.

The Supreme Court ruled that the foundation was entitled to the deductions, and that the IRS had not met its burden of proving that the contributions were not made in an attempt to avoid taxes.

Condemnation

A 15-year-old boy was killed by a train in the city of New York on Monday, police said.

The boy had been playing on the tracks and did not notice the approaching train.

He was pronounced dead at a nearby hospital.

Court

A jury in New York City on Monday found Donald Trump, the billionaire businessman, guilty of tax evasion.

The jury convicted Trump of evading $909,170 in income taxes over several years, including taxes on income from his real estate business.

Prosecution argues

The prosecution argued that Trump had failed to report the full amount of his income on his tax returns, and that he had used his personal foundation to evade taxes.

The defense had argued that Trump had paid all the taxes he owed, and that the foundation was a legitimate charitable organization.

Oil depletion allowance to be halted: committee

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee is expected to vote Monday on a bill that would phase out the oil depletion allowance.

The allowance has been a controversial tax break that allows oil and gas companies to deduct the value of the oil they produce from their taxable income.

The committee is expected to vote 7-3 on the bill, which would reduce the allowance from 15 percent to 10 percent over a five-year period.

The bill is supported by environmental groups and some members of Congress who are concerned about the impact of the allowance on the oil industry.

The allowance is opposed by oil and gas companies and some members of Congress who argue that it is necessary to maintain the industry's competitiveness.

The Senate is expected to vote on the bill later this week, and it is likely to face opposition in the House of Representatives.

Oil depletion allowance has been a key issue in Congress for decades, with debates focused on whether it is necessary to support the oil industry and how best to do so.

The allowance was originally established in 1913 to encourage exploration for oil and natural gas, and it has been a key source of revenue for the oil industry.

The bill to phase it out is supported by a coalition of environmental groups, including the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Sierra Club.

Controls lifted on 165 industries

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government has lifted controls on 165 industries, including automobiles, electronics and aerospace, that were imposed during World War II.

The industries, which were put under government control during the war to ensure a steady supply of vital war materials, are now being allowed to operate under normal market conditions.

The control program was established in 1941 and lasted until 1945, when it was lifted as the war drew to a close.

The industries that have been lifted include automotive manufacturers, electronics companies, aircraft manufacturers and shipbuilders.

The lifting of controls is expected to boost economic growth, as it will allow businesses to make decisions about production and pricing based on market demand.

The government had imposed controls on more than 300 industries during the war, but the vast majority were lifted as the war drew to a close.

The remaining industries, including defense contractors and key industries that supported the war effort, were allowed to continue under government control.

The lifting of controls is expected to create a surge in business activity, as companies will be free to make decisions about production and pricing that are based on market demand.

11th-hour fight to prevent Latsch property condemnation

By MARY STOTT
Daily News Staff Writer

11th-hour fight Thursday did not stop the Winona City Council from approving condemnation proceedings for the east end of E. 2nd Street between E. 1st and E. 2nd streets.

The Winona Housing and Redevelopment Authority has been working on the project, however, can't be sure how the building will be used at this time.

Councilman Fred Norman said during the first council meeting of the year, the topic has been discussed in the council for several years and has been on the agenda for months.

COUNCILMAN Normand Moll suggested the project could be developed as a parking lot or commercial building.

The resolution passed, 4-1, with Mayor Donald Johnson and City Engineer Robert Robert voting against it.

Developer Louis Landgraf of the Landmark Development, based in Mason City, Iowa, has already received preliminary approval for the building. The City Planning Commission approved the project last Tuesday.

The City Planning Commission also approved the project.

The site is located at the east end of E. 2nd Street between E. 1st and E. 2nd streets.

The City Council has been discussing the project for several years.

City Councilman Normand Moll said he was concerned about the project.

The City Council also approved a resolution to accept a $200,000 loan from the State of Iowa for the project.

The loan will be used to facilitate the project, according to the councilman.

Winona avoids worst winter

By pierre evans

Winona was avoided worst winter.

Thunderstorms, hail, tornadoes, and ice storms were all avoided during the winter months. Temperatures were mild throughout the winter, and snowfall was below average.

Winona's winter weather was generally mild, with temperatures remaining above freezing most of the time. Snowfall was below average, and. there were no major storms or severe weather events.

However, the winter was marked by some unusual weather patterns. Temperatures fluctuated widely, with some days experiencing temperatures well above freezing, while others saw temperatures drop below freezing.

Despite the mild winter, the city's utilities were prepared for any potential problems, and residents were encouraged to stay alert and stay informed of any potential weather-related issues.

Senate votes to delay release of election returns

By MARTIN HUBERMAN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Monday to bar the public release of presidential election returns until midnight, Eastern Standard Time.

The measure, an amendment to the appropriations bill for the Department of Justice, would delay the return of returns from states in the West, where the time zone difference is due to the time change.

The amendment, proposed by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Georgia, would bar the release of returns until the time zone change takes place.

The Senate also voted to ban the use of boycotts to delay the release of returns.

State dentists asked to offer pressure loss

By FRANK RAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State dentists have been asked to offer pressure loss relief services.

Dr. James A. Allen, D-Ala., said he would be fined not more than $5,000, imprisoned, for hot water operations that would expire by then.

The bill would limit organizational contributions to $6,000, per eligible voter in the state, and also receive subsidies after the election. Sen. James L. Weicker, R-Corn., which would be ratified by the Senate Monday, also received a separate $6,95 Gift Certificate for trying this. Weicker's support of an intermediate seating arrangement, and Johnson's opposition in it, have brought much good for the cause.

Fisherman protests

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — As a blackboard in the House of Representatives showed Wednesday morning, the House was considering a proposal to cut off debate on a key appropriations bill. The proposal, which would allow the House to vote a $27 million cut in the budget for the Fish and Wildlife Service, was opposed by a number of members, including Rep. Barber Conde Denton, a friend of the fishing industry.

"What's wrong with that?" asked Denton, a friend of the fishing industry.

"Just so you know," said a member of the Appropriations Committee, "we're not trying to get the House to forget all about the fishing industry. We're just trying to get the House to stay out of the trouble they're in.

"Well, I guess the first image that comes to mind is of a fishing expedition," said Denton.

"That's exactly what I was thinking," said the member. "We're trying to keep the House from getting too involved in the fishing industry.

"But I still don't see how we can keep the House from getting involved," said Denton. "I mean, you can't really keep the House from being involved.

"Well, we can try," said the member. "But we can't really keep the House from getting involved.

Two-State Deaths

Winona State teacher

Florida police said Wednesday that they were still investigating the death of an ex-Winonan who was found dead on a Florida beach.

Homicide

The body of Thomas J. Thompson, 55, was found on a beach in Daytona Beach, Florida, on Monday. Thompson was a teacher at Winona State College for 30 years.

A Winona police official said the body was found by a passerby on a beach near the Ocean Walk Resort.

The official said Thompson had been teaching at the college since 1965 and had been on leave from the school for several months.

The official said the cause of death was not immediately known and that the medical examiner had been called to the scene.

The official said Thompson's family had been notified and that a full investigation was underway.

Winona State College

The school said it was shocked by the news and was providing support to Thompson's family.

A ceremony will be held later this week to honor Thompson's years of service.

Weather

Winona, Minnesota, was expected to have a high of 30 degrees on Wednesday, with a low of 20 degrees.

Winds were expected to be calm, with a high of 5 mph from the west.

The National Weather Service said the wintry weather could continue through the weekend.

Two Vikings are contacted by WFL

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The general manager of the Minnesota Vikings said Monday he was in contact with two of the NFL's leading rushers last week in the hopes of bringing them to the new World Football League.

Jim Pinna, who has 18 carries from a back who passed a 12-second burst but whose cre- ative training staff aimed at the ideal with a carefully spaced system that allowed for the ideal amount of rest.

Vikings sign top pick, LB McNeill

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have signed linebacker Fred McNeill from Georgia to a five-year contract.

McNeill was drafted by the Vikings in the first round of the 1974 NFL draft. He played for the Vikings from 1974 to 1980, making 61 starts over seven seasons.

He was a key part of the Vikings' defensive line during his time in Minnesota, helping the team win three NFC titles and appear in two Super Bowls.

The Vikings signed McNeill as a free agent in 1981, and he played for the team until 1986.

Defections could affect Dolphins immediately

JOHN B. MERRICK, Md. (AP) — The Miami Dolphins' offense could be in trouble if several of its key players defect to the World Football League.

The Dolphins have already been hit by defections, with quarterback Earl Morrall and running back Larry Csonka among the players who have signed with the WFL.

If other key players leave, the Dolphins could struggle to compete in the NFL.

Two other Minnesota Vikings players — linebacker Larry Csonka and running back Mike Wright — have already signed contracts with the WFL.

The move could affect the Dolphins' ability to keep key players, especially if other players follow suit.

Chicago finally wins playoff game on road

By JOHN NELSON

The Chicago Bears defeated the Minnesota Vikings 24-14 Sunday in the NFC Championship game at Soldier Field.

The Bears scored 17 points in the first half and never looked back, while the Vikings struggled on offense throughout the game.

April Fool's joke

Mariner 10 plays

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - Mariner 10 scientists and engineers today unveiled the Marble's most exciting new record: a "Charley the mopri." "Charley," which almost enshrined a boy's well-loved dog in the heavens with ancient gods, like Jupiter and Venus, was Mariner's joke on the space scientists, a prank on a cosmic scale.

What the Mariner-watchers at Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory thought was a possible moon over Mercury, a startling discovery, has turned out to be prosaic old 31 Crater - a hot, and distant star that tricked one of Mariner's instruments: through a series of coincidences.

Mariner was more than 90 million miles from Earth when its ultraviolet spectrometer relayed the confusing data, and Crater is farther from Mercury than can be easily grasped - 100 light years, something like 580 trillion miles.

Dr. Lyle Broadfoot of the Kitt Peak National Observatory, Mariner's ultraviolet watcher, announced "the findings Sunday, saying it appeared Mercury, the planet closest to the sun, may have a moon, roughly 15 miles in diameter, about the size of the Martian moon Phobos. It would have been the 33rd known moon in the Solar system."

He never said that it was conclusively proved to be there - just the possibility, as the logical explanation of the light and movements detected by Mariner. Broadfoot would have had the traditional right of astronomers to give a name to his discovery, and his colleagues asked him what the moon would be called. "When I was a boy, I once had a dog named Charley, and I've always wanted to name something after him," Broadfoot replied, with a grin.

JPL announced Monday, with due acknowledgement, that it was April Fool's day, that it had been conclusively proved that "Charley" is "Crater."

"Dr. Broadfoot is a little disappointed and somewhat embarrassed," said Dr. James Dunne, project scientist.
