To see if fraud involved
IRS file still open on Nixon

By C. BARTON HERSHOF
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Monday that it will still hold open the file of President Nixon's tax returns for four years, instead of releasing them, as it had previously said it would do.

The decision was based on legal advice from the Justice Department, which said the files were subject to a federal law that prevents the release of tax returns for more than three years.

The White House announcement was not a surprise, as it had previously said it would release the files for four years. But it was a reversal of the position it had taken in 1973, when it said it would release the files for only two years.

The new policy will allow the administration to keep the files confidential, as it had planned to do. It also will allow the administration to use the files to help it make decisions on tax issues, such as how to allocate resources.

The files are currently being reviewed by the Department of Justice, which has been asked to determine whether the files should be made public or kept confidential.

The administration has said that it will make the decision about releasing the files after it has received the Justice Department's recommendations.

Foreign policy tied to Watergate defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration had shifted to a new policy of defending itself with a series of legal maneuvers, including the filing of a suit in federal court to block the release of a White House study that was prepared by a government agency.

The suit, which was filed Monday, sought to block the release of a study that was prepared by the Department of Interior, which is responsible for regulating the sale of a commodity, the oil-spill.

The suit was filed in federal court by the Nixon administration, which is seeking to block the release of the study because it contains information that it considers to be sensitive.

The administration has said that it will release the study in January, but that it will not be released until February, when the administration has said it will release a series of legal maneuvers to block the release of other studies.

Property tax freeze to aid senior citizens hit by confusion

By GERRY HANSEN
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — property tax freeze is only the first step in a major effort by state and local governments to help senior citizens in Minnesota this year, but the spread of the freeze was confusing to some.

Property tax freezes have been announced in 47 cities, including Minneapolis, St. Paul, Rochester, St. Cloud and Willmar, and they are expected in 11 others.

The freeze was expected to be the big story in the legislature this year, but it will be off the first-time list.

It works like this: any owner who was 75 years old or over on Jan. 1 and who filed his property tax bill on time will get the freeze.

Under the law, which was passed with the help of the state labor unions, the amount paid in taxes in 1974 will be locked in place for 1975.

There have been some snags in the process, including the fact that the amount paid on a car or a boat can rise in 1975, but property owners' shares remain fixed.

There have been some complaints that the tax reform was done too fast and that the law was not fully explained.

There are two ways to appeal the assessment: by going to court or by appealing to the assessor's office.

The bill is expected to pass both legislative chambers with ease, but the process will be confusing to some.

Fire causes pose mystery

ST. CLOUD — Two people were killed and several others injured when a fire destroyed the town's aluminum factory last night.

The fire, which started in the mill around 4:30 p.m., spread quickly and consumed the entire building in less than an hour.

Witnesses said they saw flames shooting out of the factory before the fire department arrived on the scene.

Sgt. John Johnson, who was in charge of the fire department's response, said the cause of the fire is under investigation.

Johnson said the fire department received several calls reporting smoke coming from the factory shortly after 4 p.m.

When the firefighters arrived, they found heavy smoke billowing from the building.

Johnson said the fire department was able to get the fire under control within 15 minutes of arriving on the scene.

The cause of the fire is currently unknown, but Johnson said it is possible that it was caused by a machine or equipment malfunction.

"We're going to have to look at everything," Johnson said. "We're going to have to look at the machines, the equipment, everything we can get our hands on."
Nixon facing dog problems

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With a cloud hanging over them, President Nixon is expected to return to the White House today to begin public appearances today. But the White House may be preparations for the next tour of the country. The announcement of a dog named Fala, which was made last night, may be part of a larger strategy to keep Nixon’s image from being overshadowed.

The White House may have made the announcement of a dog named Fala as a way to deflect attention from the growing scandal surrounding the Watergate break-in. The White House staff has been working overtime to come up with strategies to keep Nixon’s image from being tarnished.

The dangers of nuclear energy

Again we have three examples of the nuclear industry "moving ahead" with reckless predictions. Nuclear power plants are being scheduled for sites close to the edge of town, and a seemingly infinite source of energy is being announced at an accelerating rate. It is a situation where the public is left to wonder how long the public is being misled.

The

In December 1972 the Oyster Creek nuclear plant near Atlantic City leaked 50,000 gallons of poisonous radioactive water into the basement of the plant. Why are the power companies afraid to accept this responsibility if they really believe that nuclear power is safe? Likewise the makers of the equipment are exempt should their equipment prove faulty; yet the nuclear establishment has been cited in these areas by the state in the forefront.

President Nixon's overall job rating has risen 7 points since March. In February, the public rated him at 29 percent positive, while today 36 percent do. With the Watergate case, President Nixon's ratings have risen 6 points in the past month.

Dr. Weinberg, an advocate of nuclear fusion, has admitted that deficiencies in technology could mean catastrophe for the people. Why do the power companies continue to operate nuclear power plants, knowing that they could be unsafe?

During the past month Mr. Nixon has engaged in a heavy schedule of public appearance in an effort to create confidence in the future. This has been done through holding press conferences, open meetings and making speeches.

Hypertension cure now possible: researchers

CHICAGO (AP) - A new study of drug-resistant hypertension may lead to a whole new approach to treatment of high blood pressure. Researchers said Monday that a diet high in sodium reduced blood pressure in patients with resistant hypertension.

The study, published in the journal Hypertension, involved 24 patients with hypertension who were not responsive to conventional treatment. The patients were put on a diet high in sodium and a combination of calcium, magnesium, and potassium supplements.

Purpose

The study aimed to determine if a diet high in sodium and supplements could lower blood pressure in patients with resistant hypertension.

Methodology

Twenty-four patients with hypertension who were not responsive to conventional treatment were put on a diet high in sodium and a combination of calcium, magnesium, and potassium supplements.

Results

The study found that the diet high in sodium and supplements significantly reduced blood pressure in patients with resistant hypertension.

Conclusion

The study suggests that a diet high in sodium and supplements may be a new approach to treatment of resistant hypertension.

Affiliation

Dr. Andrew Hynyn, head of the hypertension research group at the University of California, San Diego, said the findings could have implications for the treatment of resistant hypertension.

Implications

The findings could lead to new treatment options for patients with resistant hypertension and may help improve the overall management of high blood pressure.

Mitchell, Stans defense at work

NEW YORK CITY — President Jimmy Carter told California Republican United States Senator Richard G. Riordan that he was still considering a spot for Senator Riordan to join his Cabinet.

Riordan is one of the candidates for the position of Secretary of Defense.

The White House said that the President was considering several candidates for the position, including Senator Riordan.

The President's remarks came after a meeting with Senator Riordan.

Riordan is a strong supporter of the President's policies, and has been a vocal opponent of the Republican leadership in Congress.

The move to appoint Riordan to the position of Secretary of Defense would be a significant victory for the President, who has been under pressure to appoint someone from his own party to the position.

The appointment would also be a boost to Riordan's political career, as he is one of the most popular members of Congress.

Riordan is expected to make a decision on his future in the next few days.

Riordan's appointment would also be seen as a sign of the President's commitment to repairing relations with Congress.

The President has been under pressure to work more closely with Congress, and has been accused of not doing enough to do so.

The appointment of Riordan would be a significant step in that direction.

House emphasizes livability

By ANDY LANG

The Pleasant Home Inn, in an urban setting, must be a separate entity that feels like home. It must have the right kind of living space for guests to enjoy. It must have a sense of place, and it must be comfortable. The inn, which can be used as a model for a home, works well in the city, according to the inn's owner, Donald B. York, who has been a resident of the city for 15 years.

For example, the inn has a living room with a fireplace, a dining room, a kitchen, a bedroom, a bathroom, and a garage. The laundry area is on the first floor, with the service area on the second floor. The garage is on the ground level, which is a good idea for a small building.

The building is in a convenient location, with easy access to transportation and parking. It has a good view of the city, and it is close to the downtown area.

The house is a place where guests can relax and unwind. It has a comfortable living room, a well-equipped kitchen, and a nice bedroom. The bathroom is well-maintained, and it has a good shower.

Overall, the inn is a good example of how a home can be designed to work in an urban setting. It is a good model for other builders who want to design homes for the city.

Legislator wants Texas divided

By ROBERT LINDSEY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Texas, said Saturday he would push a constitutional amendment to cut Texas into two states in the fall session of Texas Legislature.

"Every county in Texas is fighting all the time with every other county," Kubiak said. "People think they need a vote on how they are going to spend their money, but they have no vote at all."

Kubiak said he was inspired to propose the idea because of the state's political clout in Washington, D.C., which he said is not shared by Texas' smaller sister states.

"I think it certainly needs to be considered," he said. "And if we can get it done, it will certainly be worth while for Texas."
