Dear Abby:

Physiques rate first

A study of 1,000 women, 18 to 30, who advised the results of a survey on men's views about women, found that the majority of men found women's bodies to be a source of satisfaction.

In fact, 80% of the men surveyed said they would consider having sex with a woman who they found attractive.

The survey also revealed that 90% of the men said they would be willing to have sex with a woman who they found to be physically attractive.

The results of the survey were presented to a conference of psychologists and sociologists, who said they were surprised by the findings.

The conference was held in New York City and was attended by over 1,000 people.

Plane crash kills four Minnesotans

FOREROS Minerals - Four Minnesota residents returning from the Minnesota Vikings NFL playoff game in Green Bay, Wisconsin, died in an air crash early Saturday when their light plane crashed about 10 miles west of the Wisconsin town of Wausau.

The five people killed were identified as Fred A. Schmolske, 40, business manager, his wife, Leslie A. Schmolske, 48, St. Paul, and two others who had accompanied them to the game.

The victims were identified as a group of Minneapolis-St. Paul area men and women who had been plannig the trip for some time.

The plane, a single-engine 180, crashed about 10 miles west of Wausau when it ran out of gas and crashed into a field.

The victims were identified as a group of Minneapolis-St. Paul area men and women who had been planning the trip for some time.

Minnesota Legislature solves staff problems—in big way

By GEORGE NELSON

27 JUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Legislature, under the leadership of Speaker Thomas Stenvig, has solved its chronic staff problems in a big way.

The conference committee for the current session of the 186-member Legislature has recommended a 20 percent increase in the state's budget, which will allow the Legislature to hire 200 new staff members.

Stenvig said the Legislature's staff, which had been cut back by 20 percent in recent years, is now at a crisis level. The Legislature has 1,200 employees, but only 1,000 are staff members.

Stenvig said the conference committee's recommendation is a result of the Legislature's efforts to improve its image and effectiveness.

"We have been working hard to improve the image of the Legislature," Stenvig said. "This is a big step in the right direction."
Right of center — that’s popular political spot

William Saire

Washington — The New Hampshire primary proved that the Republican presidential race is not yet settled, nor is the center of interest centered on the men of the center.

On the Democratic side, all the signals were that Ted Kennedy had emerged as the solid front-runner, and still faces some stiff competition from Henry Jackson and George McGovern. But the latter two are running a distant second and third.

The Republican battle is much more complex, with no clear leader. The early polls showed a slight edge for Vice President Spiro Agnew, with two other candidates, Governor Ronald Reagan and Governor George Romney, in a virtual tie for second place.

Reagan, a former Hollywood actor turned conservative politician, has been gaining ground in recent weeks, and is now considered a strong candidate for the nomination. Romney, a wealthy businessman turned politician, has also been gaining ground, and is now considered a serious candidate for the nomination.

The problem in trying to end the free lunch

Harry Survey

WASHINGTON — Across the country, the candidates for the Democratic nomination are working to end the free lunch, but the results are mixed. Some candidates are doing well, while others are struggling.

"The problem is trying to end the free lunch," said one Democratic candidate. "It's a difficult task, but we're making progress."

"We're making progress," said another Democratic candidate. "We're getting some traction, but we still have a long way to go."

Art Buchwald

The only result is that I haven't been able to predict which candidate will win. It's a tough race, but I think Kennedy is in the lead."

"I think Kennedy is in the lead," said a Democratic strategist. "But it's a tough race, and anything can happen."

Hearst trial enters what may be its final week

State police for two years were investigating the death of an "apparent suicide." Now they have arrested a hospital orderly who was serving on the building's police force, and he is being held for questioning in connection with the death.

The arrest was made yesterday at the University of California Medical Center after police received a tip that a man known to be associated with the hospital had been involved in the death of a patient.

The patient was a 24-year-old woman who had been brought to the hospital last week with a gunshot wound to the head.

Police said she died later that day and that an autopsy was performed.

The orderly, who has not been identified, is being held without bail on suspicion of murder.

The hospital has been cooperating with police and has provided information about the patient's condition and treatment.

The state employment rate for Minnesota is expected to wrap up to discredit Miss Hearst's own case today with an attempt at a new trial.

The Patricia Hearst kidnaping trial, which began in March, will come to an end today with a verdict expected from the jury.

The trial has been marked by intense media coverage and has drawn worldwide attention.

Miss Hearst, who was kidnapped by the SLA in 1974, has been charged with murder, kidnapping, and conspiracy.

The case has been widely publicized and has been the subject of numerous books, articles, and documentaries.

The trial is expected to continue for several more days, with closing arguments and final statements by both sides still to be made.

Prosecutors have presented evidence that Miss Hearst was involved in a plot to kill a police officer, and they have shown footage of her allegedly participating in a shootout with police.

Defendants have argued that they were not involved in the plot and that they were victims of manipulation by the SLA.

A verdict is expected to be reached today, with a possible hung jury resulting in a mistrial.

If a verdict is reached, it is likely to be a guilty verdict for Miss Hearst, as the evidence presented by the prosecution has been strong.

If a verdict is not reached, the trial will continue with further testimony and evidence to be presented by both sides.

The trial has been a major event in the history of the United States and has had a significant impact on the country's perception of the actions of radical groups.

Newly discovered comet is visible

A new comet has been discovered by astronomers using a telescope at the National Optical Astronomy Observatory in Tucson, Arizona.

The comet, designated C/2009 P1, was first observed on February 9, 2009, by astronomer David Thomsen.

The comet is located in the far reaches of the solar system, and it is not expected to come close to Earth until the 22nd century.

The discovery was made as part of a program to find new comets using a large telescope.

The comet is small and faint, but it is of interest because it is a member of a family of objects that includes the Hale-Bopp comet, which was visible from Earth in 1997.

The comet is moving away from the Sun and will be visible from Earth for about two weeks in late February and early March.
